Matron of the Home, Fearing Arrest, Departs Suddenly.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fearing that she would be arrested and taken before a court commissioner to have her sanity tested, Mrs. Williams suddenly departed from her home at 1021 University avenue southeast, leaving eight babies in charge of a 15-year-old girl. Complaint has been made against her, because it is said she attempted to commit suicide early in the week, and learning that she might be placed under arrest, made a hasty departure.

Learning that the eight young babies had been left in the house with only Mrs. Williams' young daughter to look after them, the humane society sent one of its nurses to care for them. She reached the house and began caring for the children but was obliged to go out to secure some matches and on her return found that the young girl had locked the doors and refused her admittance. For twenty-four hours the girl held the fort.

Then two officers of the East side police station appeared on the scene and demanded admittance. They were refused and were finally obliged to call Sergeant John Landy of the humane society to their assistance. Through his effort admittance was secured and none too soon, for two of the infants were in such a precarious condition that it was necessary to have them removed to the city hospital for treatment. The other six babies are still at the house in charge of a humane society nurse and that organization will have the babies properly cared for and endeavor to find out what can be done with them. No one but Mrs. Williams knows whose children they are and unless she can be located they may go nameless and become wards of the state.

COUNT OKUMA,
Who Has Stirred Up an Anti-Japanese Feeling by His Recent Utterances Concerning the United States Navy and President Roosevelt.

TAFT ANXIOUS ABOUT WEIGHT

Fears That He Has Not Reduced His Avoirdupois.

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 14.—"I would like to get on the scales and weigh, but I am not going to permit myself, for I might be disappointed in my belief that my daily exercise on the golf links has reduced my weight." This was Candidate Taft's admission today that he had not "weighed in" during his period of training for the campaign soon to begin in Cincinnati.

"I am convinced that I could have done nothing in the way of exercise that would have done me more good than has the daily game of golf, which I have so religiously played. But I am afraid that instead of reducing I have simply hardened my muscles. I never felt more fit in my life for any task."

Mr. Taft announced this morning that he should not dispose of his riding horse, nor should he buy another. He has become very much attached to the animal he has ridden for so long.

Is a Good Horse.

"He is a good horse," he remarked, "and the other day when he stumbled and lit on my shoulder over his head he made no attempt to move. And, besides," added Mr. Taft, frankly, "I haven't the money to spend on another horse."

"Can't we send you one of our best horses from Boston," was a telegram the candidate received today from the managing editor of the Boston Post. And to which he declined with an expression of thanks for the interest shown and the offer.

Another conference on the campaign plans of the national league of Republican clubs was held today between the candidate, Mr. Vorys and John Hays Hammond of Massachusetts.

Mr. Taft's mail has been somewhat reduced during the past week so that the average daily number of letters is about 100. These reflect the personal views of writers possessing many shades of opinion on politics as well as demands for positions, pensions, aid to build churches, personal loans, presents, permission to use the Taft name and photo for every conceivable variety of political and commercial purpose, congratulations and some abuse.

WIND PREVENTS TEST OF BALDWIN'S BALLOON.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Capt. Baldwin made a very short flight in his dirigible balloon at Fort Meyer this morning, but as a strong wind was blowing he did not proceed far enough to make an official flight. He went up at 8:30 o'clock and sailed over the parade ground, but the board notified him that if he crossed the starting point the flight would be regarded as an official one. The wind not being favorable for such a flight, Capt. Baldwin brought the balloon to the ground. If the weather permits he will make an official flight late this afternoon.

McGUIGAN GETS A BIG CONTRACT.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 14.—The contract for the electric transmission line to be built by the Ontario government from Niagara falls has been awarded to the McGuian Construction company, headed by F. P. McGuigan, formerly general superintendent of the Grand Trunk railroad, and later with J. J. Hill. The total length of the line is 293 miles. The contract price is $1,270,000.

ALLIANCE WITH CHINA

Tokio, Aug. 14.—Special dispatches from New York and London printed in Japanese newspapers, represent that the recent utterances of Count Okuma, attributing the naval expansion policy of the United States to the sudden rise of Japan to the importance of a world power is arousing intense indignation and has caused a complete recrudescence of anti-Japanese sentiment throughout America.

The New York newspapers are quoted as editorially urging an American-Chinese alliance for the purpose of offsetting the belligerency of the Japanese.

One newspaper is quoted as giving minister to the United States, on the minister to th cUnited States on the subject of an alliance in which he threatens Japan with "an early evidence of the real power of the American navy."

Americans residing in Tokio, Yokohama and elsewhere throughout Japan, are extremely indignant. They believe that the special dispatches exaggerate the tone of the New York newspapers and it is felt that it is particularly unfortunate that at this time anything should be permitted to retard he increasingly friendly relations of the two nations in view of the elaboratte arrangements on foot among the Japanese to welcome the American fleet and the growing cordiality exhibited on all sides towards Americans.

American business men especially regret the publications because the revival of the anti-Japanese propaganda in America will, they fear, undoubtedly afford gratification to the competing countries represented here and also seriously damage American trade. Count Okuma's frequent utterances do not create a ripple here and his most recent one was passed quite unnoticed

OUR SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES

The Only Army and Navy That Can Protect Us, Says Nelson.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The churches and schools of the United States were held up as the "only army and navy that can protect us in the future," by Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota last night.

He delivered the address at the rally that marked the close of the eighth convention of the Luther League of America, at the Auditorium. Fully 3,000 persons were present.

"Severed by the two vast oceans from the other great powers of the world," he said, "with our 100,000,000 of people and our almost limitless resources, we have no occasion to fear any attack or invasion from abroad.

"The enemy that will attack us and the danger that will threaten us, against which we must constantly be on our guard, will come from within: when we are untrue and unfaithful to our great trust and duty; will come when we cease to pass good laws, and when we cease to enforce the laws without fear or favor against the rich and poor, the high and low; will come when we allow the mammon of pelf and unrighteousness to rule and dominate; will come when we stifle or permit to be stifled the conscience of the masses of the nation.

"Against this enemy and this danger the only standing army and the only navy that can protect us and guide us, as in the past, are our schools and our churches. These, rather than brute force, will be our solace, our hope and our salvation."

ENGINEERS IN A MIX-UP

Chicago, Aug. 14.—In the presence of Matthew Comerford of Minneapolis, general president of the Stationary Engineers union, a dozen men were hurt, two of them severely, at a meeting of the union here last night. A dozen men attempted to bolt the meeting because three of their number had been expelled and had started a separate organization of engineers.

Emil Massow, who led the bolters, struck Mike Walsh, sergeant-at-arms over the head with a chair for closing the door at the order of the president, George W. Goding. Walsh turned on Massow and struck him several times, cutting a deep gash over Massow's nose and almost breaking the organ. Then the fight became general.

Charles Graif, another of the bolters, sent in a riot call for the police. When the latter appeared no one seemed to wish to press charges and the wagon left without any passengers.

President Comerford tried to get order. He had come to Chicago to attend the meeting.

"This is an insult to the national officers," said President Comerford. No attention was paid to him and the bolt went on.

Members of both factions threaten to cause arrests.

PHILLIPS MUST SERVE HIS TIME

Supreme Court Sustains Sentence of Seven Years in Prison.

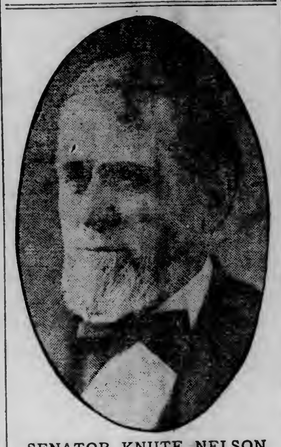
St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Samuel A. Phillips, who was convicted in the Ramsey county district court of embezzlement of funds belonging to the Hancock company of Chicago and sentenced to serve seven years in the Stillwater penitentiary, must serve his time. The Minnesota supreme court this morning handed down an opinion sustaining his conviction.

It was charged in the indictment on which Phillips was convicted that he appropriated to his own use the proceeds of transactions made on behalf of the Hancock company as its representative. Phillips contended that the transactions were his own private deals.

VICTIM OF HUNGER.

Fond du Lac, Aug. 14.—John Plautz, aged 70 years, a resident of Dundee, Wis., was found dead in the woods yesterday, after a search of forty hours. The body bears no evidence of foul play, and it is believed that he died of hunger and exposure.

TWO ARE KILLED AND SIX INJURED BY EXPLOSION OF BALLOON AT LONDON



SENATOR KNUTE NELSON,
Who Says the Only Navy of the United States in the Future Will Be the Schools and Churches.

Capt. Lovelace's Airship Wrecked at Franco-British Exhibition.

London, Aug. 14.—Two persons were killed and six injured by the explosion this morning at the grounds of the Franco-British exhibition of the envelope of the balloon owned by Capt. Lovelace of the New York Aero club.

Preparations for an ascent were being made when the accident occurred. The cause is supposed to have been the throwing down of a lighted match. Miss Hill, aged 18, secretary to Capt. Lovelace, was one of the persons killed. She was burned to a cinder. The other person killed, a man, and the six men who sustained injuries, also were employed by Capt. Lovelace.

Capt. Lovelace's clothes were burned, but otherwise he sustained no injuries.

THAW TO BE FREE SOON

Bankruptcy Proceedings Considered an Excellent Move.

New York, Aug. 14.—That Harry Thaw will be free within a month is the opinion of prominent New York lawyers. Eugene Philbin, former district attorney, said yesterday:

"There is no doubt that once Thaw steps foot outside of New York, he will be a free man, or if not actually free, can be made so by a writ of habeas corpus. Harry Thaw was not convicted of any crime. He was acquitted on the ground of insanity. Judge Bowling, believing it to be for the good of the state, committed Thaw to Matteawan. This commitment is legal only in New York.

"If the federal authorities demand Thaw's presence at the bankruptcy proceedings in Pittsburg, those who have Thaw in custody have no other course than to produce him. The ser-

SKELETONS ARE FOUND

Priests Find Remains of Canadian Missionaries Killed by Indians.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 14.—On June 8, 1736, Jean Baptiste de la Verandrye, 20 years old, son of the great explorer Sieur de la Verandrye, Father Aulneau, a Jesuit missionary and nineteen French Canadian voyaguers, were murdered by Sioux Indians on an island in the northwest angle of the Lake of the Woods. The memory of this lonely tragedy has been solemnly preserved by the Roman Catholic church throughout the long years that have passed away, and since then periodical attempts have been made to identify the scene of the massacre. On Aug. 7, last, a party of priests of St. Boniface college, Winnipeg, accompanied by Judge Prudhomme, discovered the site of Fort St. Charles built in 1732 by Sieur de la Verandrye on the northwest angle of the Lake of the Woods. They also discovered the skulls of the nineteen voyaguers and skeletons of Father Aulneau and Jean Baptiste de la Verandrye.

For many years past the Roman Catholic church has made attempts to locate these remains, but until the present month all efforts to do so failed.

BEMIDJI PHOTOGRAPHER SUSTAINS HEAVY LOSS.

Bemidji, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire, Wednesday evening destroyed practically everything in the photograph studio of N. L. Hakkerup, on Third street, entailing a loss of about $1,200, on which there was carried insurance amounting to but $345.

Mr. Hakkerup is at a loss to know how the fire started, as it was evident that the flames originated in the dark room of the studio, and the inflammable nature of the pictures, canvas, etc., in the interior of the studio, was almost as powder to the flames, and it was with the utmost difficulty that the fire department managed to get the best of the blaze. As it was, everything was destroyed that was of any value.

INVENTOR MAUSER HAS A NEW RIFLE.

Oberndorf, Wuertemberg, Aug. 14.—Paul Mauser, the aged inventor of the rifle bearing his name, has invented a new military rifle, the principal feature of which is a 25-shot automatic cartridge feeder. The rifle may also be used as a single-shot piece, the bearer reloading after each shot, while the magazine of twenty-five cartridges remains ready for an emergency. The new arm weighs but a few ounces more than the rifle now used in the German service.

SHOOTS WIFE FOR BURGLAR.

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 14.—Mistaking her for a burglar, F. J. Long, a Kenosha carpenter, shot and seriously wounded his wife, Lorina Long, at their home here. The shot was fired from a .38-caliber revolver and struck the woman on the right side of the face, tearing a hole in her face, knocking out two teeth and breaking the jaw bone. It is considered a miracle that the woman was not instantly killed.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The county convention opened this afternoon with over fifty delegates in attendance. The Duluth delegation was met at the train this morning by a delegation of Hibbing citizens headed by Martin Hughes and escorted to the Hibbing hotel.

Joseph Ward Reynolds of Duluth was elected chairman of the convention. No instructions were given regarding the state ticket. County and legislative tickets were recommended.

TOO OLD TO BE LIVING

Insurance Company Considers Gen. Rucker Should be Dead.

Pays Life Policy Due to the Aged Veteran.

Washington, Aug. 14.—It is quite a shock for a man to be told that he is dead, as is proved in the case of Gen. Daniel H. Rucker, a retired army officer, the father of Mrs. Phil Sheridan. At the age of 96, still enjoying more health and vigor than most men half his age, the distinguished general has been officially informed by a life insurance company that he is dead. The policy which he has for years been carrying in the company has been cancelled and the insurance has been paid.

The insurance company, like other American concerns of the kind, bases its operations upon mortality tables. Under this system all lives are supposed to have ended before the age of 96 is reached. The company therefore wrote Gen. Rucker that, having reached that age, "you are supposed to have died and your policy will be settled just as though it had fallen due by reason of your demise."

Note Shocks General.

This was the substance of the startling note which shocked the general, and caused him to seek the local representative of the insurance company. The declaration that so far as the life insurance company is concerned he is dead alarmed the Civil war hero, and his daughters report that he is greatly worried and too indisposed to discuss his statistical demise.

"It is not pleasant, you know, for a man to be reminded that he has exceeded the limit prescribed by the mortality tables," said Miss Rucker today. "My father draws the natural inference that he has lived longer than the statistical experts consider he has a right to live."

Cause of His Longevity.

Gen. Rucker attributes his longevity to "the grace of God and a good constitution." Until he reached the seventies he did not object to a little tobacco now and then, neither was he a teetotaler. His mother lived to be 80, but his father died younger, and his grandfather died when comparatively young. Gen. Rucker was born in New Jersey, April 28, 1812, and entered the army in 1837, being retired in 1882 with rank of brigadier and brevet major general. He made a distinguished record during the Civil war.

MANY WAITING TO SEE HITCHCOCK

Republican Leaders Have Conference With Chairman at Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—All of the Western members of the executive committee of the Republican national committee were waiting at the Auditorium annex to see Frank H. Hitchcock, the national chairman, when he arrived here today from Hot Springs, Va., fresh from his conference with Mr. Taft. The Western members of the executive committee are Senator W. E. Borah of Idaho, Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Victor Rosewater of Nebraska and C. Nagel of Missouri. Mr. Hitchcock took up with them details of the Western campaign, and these Westerners will continue the conference tomorrow with chiefs of the various divisions of the national committee.

These officials are expected to arrive here tonight to be present at the opening of Western headquarters in the Harvester building tomorrow. They will include T. Coleman Dupont, director of the speakers' bureau; George R. Sheldon, treasurer of the national committee; R. V. Oulahan, director of the literary bureau; Fred W. Upham, assistant treasurer, and several others who will take an important part in the campaign work.

It is likely that Mr. Hitchcock will be ready to announce the personnel of the advisory committee which is to aid Treasurer Sheldon in gathering funds for the campaign before he leaves Chicago Sunday night. The Eastern members of the committee have been selected, but Mr. Hitchcock desired to consult with those under consideration from the West before naming the committee.

The meeting of the heads of the various divisions of the national committee, which will be held tomorrow in the new Western headquarters, is expected to prove one of the most important gatherings of the campaign.

DEMOCRATIC SPEAKERS

Are Sent Out From Headquarters to Various Localities.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—With the organization of the speakers' bureau of the Democratic national committee practically completed, John H. Atwood, head of the bureau, today sent out nearly thirty speakers in response to requests from Democratic organizations in various parts of the country. The vanguard of speakers will be followed by others in greater number, and Mr. Atwood said that they would be sent to every part of the United States, wherever their services were needed.

The chairman of the speakers' bureau declared that the issues of the campaign would not lack for expression because of any inadequacy in his bureau.

"Speakers are volunteering their services in large numbers," said Mr. Atwood, "and no fewer than twelve United States senators have written me stating that they are ready to go on the stump. Every speaker that has been sent out has been a volunteer in the cause and ready to pay his own campaign expenses. We will send out speakers wherever they are requisitioned for a while, but later the national committee will prepare a detailed plan of speaking campaigns and then we will send out speakers on our own initiative. I expect Judge Alton B. Parker of New York to take an active part in the campaign."

Chairman Mack and National Committeeman Hudson of Minnesota conferred today on the situation in that state. National Committeeman John Tomlinson of Alabama, head of the club organization bureau left for Cincinnati and the East today to take up the work of club organization there.

LAUGHED AT DOCTORS.

Man Died of Hydrophobia, However, as Was Predicted.

New York, Aug. 14.—Although Conrad Steingruber laughed at the Christ hospital physicians in Jersey City, who said that he would die in twenty- four hours from the effects of a bite from a dog, the prophesy was fulfilled today. Steingruber said he was a disbeliever in hydrophobia and that he would be around again in a few days despite the warnings of the physicians. He rapidly grew worse, however, and all hope was given up of saving his life. He remained conscious until the end, and almost the last words he spoke were that he would get well. Steingruber was bitten by a dog a little over three weeks ago.

ARGUMENTS FOR NEW TRIAL.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Judge Kerstens today set the September term of court, the exact date to be determined later, for hearing arguments for a new trial for Mrs. Alice Webb, former wife of Brodie L. Duke. Mrs. Webb was recently convicted of cashing a worthless check for fifty dollars on the Great Northern hotel.

A NOTE OF WARNING

City Treasurer Urges the Committee Not to Cut Sinking Fund.

Shows That Small Bond Issues Must be Met.

A note of warning against cutting the sinking fund levy for this year, is sounded by City Treasurer F. J. Voss.

Mr. Voss claims that while it might be possible to cut the sinking fund this year, it would be at the expense of the city's credit, and would prevent the city taking up bonds which will mature during the next five years. Several small issues fall due between now and March 1, 1914, and they should be paid, according to Mr. Voss, in order that the city's credit may be first-class when it attempts to float an issue of $500,000 refunding bonds in May, 1914. This issue falls due then, and cannot be paid at that time. It will be necessary to issue new bonds to refund the issue, and Mr. Voss claims that if the city makes a practice of peddling small issues of refunding bonds in the meantime, its credit will be none too good.

"I do not want to attempt to dictate what the tax rate should be," said Mr. Voss, "but I do think the city should plan on taking up these small bond issues as they fall due, and keep our credit unimpaired. We have got to plan to float that $500,000 issue in 1914, and float it to good advantage, and I do not think we can do that if we go peddling these small issues of refunding bonds among the buyers of the East in the meantime. It's a penny wise, pound foolish policy."

THE MACK-LEONES.

"Lynwood," Famous Military Drama, Makes Good at the Lyceum.

With only one more week of the Mack-Leone company in Duluth after the present one, the many friends of the members are turning out in large numbers, and a well filled house greeted the first production of "Lynwood" at the Lyceum last evening.

The story is a pretty one, and full of heart interest. There are some exciting scenes, and the climaxes are well carried out. The acting is of the usual high order of Duluth's favorite stock company.

Willard Mack appears to his usual fine advantage in the role of Victor Blanchard, U. S. A. He is peculiarly well fitted for the part, and more than does it justice. Mr. Mack is always a favorite in military characters and his popularity in the present production promises to surpass that of past achievements.

Helen Holmes is dainty and charming as Lucille Carlyle. She makes the character a very lovable one. William Chapman makes good as Dudley Middleton, and Percival Lennon is good as Edwin Carlyle. Marshall Farnum does fine work in the character of Epetus, and Jay Quigley is clever as Mr. Caryle. Frank Patton, Wayne Ross, Maude Cleveland and Beatrice Meade all give good accounts of themselves in their respective parts. All the parts are in capable hands, in fact, and the show is a good one from start to finish. It will be the attraction at the Lyceum the remainder of the week, with the usual Saturday matinee tomorrow.

WEST END

IS KILLED BY FALLING TREE

While picking berries near the Morris Thomas road yesterday afternoon, John Benson, the 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Benson, was almost instantly killed by a falling tree.

Found lying with his head crushed beneath the trunk of a huge birch tree a few minutes after the accident by his mother and another member of the party, he was carried to a nearby farm house, where he died thirty minutes later.

The boy had been picking berries, and had his pail nearly full and was on the point of returning to his home, when the tree fell on him.

The family lives at 919 North Twenty-third avenue west.

"CANNED DULUTH."

West End Man Would Have Moving Pictures of the City.

Emil A. Nelson has a brand new scheme for the advertisement of Duluth.

Send the different views of the city to the film manufacturing concerns, and have films made of them. Then have them shown from the different moving picture theaters all over the country.

Mr. Nelson says that the plan is the least expensive of any that has been suggested during the past year.

LOSE SECOND CHILD.

Two Deaths in Two Weeks in the Norton Family.

With one death in the family only two weeks ago, and the memories of the dreadful details still fresh in their memory, the family of Perry Norton must live through the same experience once more, for yesterday, Dora, their three months old baby, died of cholera infantum, the same disease that called their two year old daughter away.

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence. Rev. J. A. Anderson of the Swedish Methodist church will officiate. Interment will be at the Lutheran cemetery.

West End Shortrails.

Mrs. H. Estes and daughter of Red Wing, Minn., are visiting at the home of A. Estes of 2821 West First street.

Mrs. C. O. Nelson, of West Eighth street, entertained the Ladies' Aid society of the First Norwegian Danish Methodist church last evening.

Mrs. A. C. Anderson has returned from a short visit in Bayfield.

Chester Wagner, of Goshen, Ind., is visiting his sister, Mrs. Harold Wahlstrom, of 2831 West Third street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Christian entertained informally Wednesday evening in honor of their niece, Miss Jennie Baldwin.

The funeral of Miss Myrtle Irene Chase, the 17-year-old daughter of Mrs. Eldora Chase, of 1824 West Michigan street, who died Wednesday, was held this afternoon from the residence. Rev. F. R. Reed of St. Paul's Episcopal church officiated in the absence of Rev. R. J. Mooney. The body was sent to Monticello, Minn., for interment.

TONY PASTOR RESTING EASY.

BATTLESHIPS LEAVE SATURDAY

Auckland, N. Z., Aug. 14.—The American battleships, under the command of Rear Admiral Sperry, are to leave here tomorrow, Saturday morning, at 8 o'clock. They will go to Sydney, N. S. W., where they are due Aug. 20, and will remain at that port for a week. The distance from here to Syndey is a little under 1,300 miles.

The American sailors have won the unstinted praise of the people of Auckland for their behavior during the stay of the fleet. Thousands of men have been ashore day after day, and there has been no disturbance of the peace. There was, however, an incident last night which showed the sympathies of the Auckland people with the sailormen on shore. The patrol from the fleet was engaged in rounding up the stragglers and getting them back on board and a crowd was watching the operations. At one stage of the proceedings the people came to the conclusion that the patrol was handling some drunken sailors too roughly. At this moment the local police arrived, drove the crowd back and escorted the patrol and their prisoners to the wharf.

The cutter race between vessels of the fleet for the Battenberg cup was rowed in the harbor yesterday. The Louisiana crew led from the start and finished five lengths ahead of the nearest competitors. Admiral Sperry, yesterday afternon, entertained a distinguished party of New Zealanders on board the battleship Connecticut. Among those present were Lord Plunkett, governor of New Zealand, and Sir Joseph Ward, the premier.

The Panthier, the Glacier, and the Relief will accompany the fleet when it leaves tomorrow.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

TRAGIC END OF ANOTHER

East Grand Forks, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Paul, the 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Johnson of this city, was killed Thursday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock under the wheels of a farm wagon on which he had been riding. His death makes the third of a series of fatal accidents to the children of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, two other boys of the family having been removed by tragic deaths within the past four years.

Paul was injured almost directly in front of the family home. The little boy with his sister ran into the street for a ride on the pole of a wagon which was being hauled in the rear of a binder. In some manner he lost his hold, falling directly in the path of the wheels, both of which went over his body. Death occurred shortly afterwards at St. Michael's hospital in Grand Forks., where he was immediately removed. The death has proved a severe shock to the parents.

Four years ago Horace, the eldest of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, was burned to death while playing about a bonfire. A year and a half ago Ralph Johnson was drowned in the Red river just a short distance from the family home, while yesterday the third and last boy met a tragic death. There are two daughters surviving. Mr. Johnson is cashier of the First National Bank of East Grand Forks.

BLAME COMPANY FOR BAD WRECK

Wooden Instead of Steel Trestle May Cost Northern Pacific.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 14.—That the lesson of the wreck of the North Coast Limited flyer of the Northern Pacific railroad, near Glendive Sunday, which cost five lives, including that of John C. Wilson, 740 Payne avenue, St. Paul, is that wooden bridges should never be used over culverts and fills is the unanimous opinion of a party of prominent business men who were in the wreck. Some of theese in the party were inclined to hold the company guilty of negligence in having such bridges on lines on which its fast trains are run.

The party which reached St. Paul yesterday, was composed of J. W. Black of St. Louis, president of the James Black Masonry & Construction company; E. Alvis Weiss, mining engineer of New York; William N. Given, an attorney of Chicago; Lewis Wiley of Seattle; A. L. Green of Portland, Or.; W. K. Greene of Seattle, Charles Heath of Yakima, Wash., George R. Schoenthieler of St. Louis, a construction engineer, and Baron Vonn Reinsberg of Dresden, Germany.

"I am a construction engineer," said Mr. Black. "From my observation of the premises after the wreck, I can say that the accident would not have happened had the bridge through which the train crashed, been constructed of steel or concrete. That bridge had been burning for more than three hours when the train came along. The timbers in many places where the train did not strike them showed evidences of having been burned almost through. The bridge has also been burned before. I think the fire was started by coals from a locomotive, and that the bridge had burned just so far and then gone out. The country through which we came was not burned over.

MONDAY'S STORM BAD.

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 14.—Reports of Monday's storm show that a great deal more damage was done to buildings and grain in this vicinity than was at first supposed. The storm reached from north of Mandan clear into South Dakota in a strip about fifteen miles wide and all along the route grains of all kinds were utterly ruined. Even corn fields were wiped off the earth by the wind and hail. Several detached storms ravaged parts of Dickey, Logan and McIntosh counties, and the loss will run up to a large figure. Many barns and light buildings were wrecked in this and other counties and stock killed by lightning. The hail was as large as hen's eggs and drifted two feet deep in places.

FOUR CARS DITCHED.

Wreck of N. P. Gravel Train Ties Up Traffic.

Little Falls, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—An accident happened on the Northern Pacific near Royalton, day before yesterday, which delayed traffic for about five hours. A gravel train, which runs from the Darling gravel pit to Becker, was the cause of the track being blockaded. When about a mile and a half out of Royalton on its return to this city, an air hose broke which caused the drawbar to be pulled out and it dropped down, throwing four cars from the track and badly twisting the track. One peculiar feature of the wreck was the manner in which the cars left the rails. Two cars were thrown, one on each side of the track, another was left standing straight across the track and the fourth was telescoped straight up into the air, the trucks from the four cars being left in a heap on the track under the end of the telescoped car, but all were detached from the cars to which they belonged.

PASSENGERS VERY LUCKY.

Miracle Many Were Not Killed on Northern Pacific Wreck.

St. Cloud, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Fehr, a former St. Cloudite, was aboard the North Coast Limited, Northern Pacific passenger which was wrecked at Glendive, Mont., a few days ago.

"It is a wonder to me that everybody in the train was not killed," he said. "We were going at the rate of about fifty miles an hour at the time the accident happened. The engineer did not see that the bridge was burning until he was within a few feet of it. He threw on the emergency brake, but it was too late. The big engine went into the ditch like a shot. The mail car became uncoupled and shot right above the engine, striking the bank on the other side. The baggage car and smoker piled in a heap over the engine. It was the people in these cars that were injured and it is a wonder that they were not all killed. The Pullman stopped before they reached the creek. I was in the observation car, where many were thrown out of the seats and slightly bruised."

COLLEGE BUYS LAND TO KEEP OUT THISTLES.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—An example of the prevalence of the Canada thistle pest is seen at Northland college grounds, where it was found necessary to purchase a piece of land to protect the college grounds. The land in question was covered with thistles, the seed from which spread all over the adjacent grounds. Enough thistles remain by the roadside, however, and under the long bridge, to continue the good work.

VERDICT WAS INADEQUATE

So Court Sets It Aside and Grants New Trial.

Bemidji, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge W. S. McClanahan has filed an order in the personal injury suit of Laura P. Schutchin against the city of Bemidji, granting the motion of the plaintiff for a new trial.

Mrs. Scrutchin sued the city last November for $3,000 for personal injuries claimed to have been sustained in October through a defective sidewalk.

The trial resulted in the verdict of $150 damages for the plaintiff.

Attorney McDonald then made application before Judge McClenahan for a new trial, which was granted.

"The verdict for the plaintiff herein established the defendant's liability, and the jury was thereupon bound to give adequate and reasonable compensatory damages," said the court. "The most cursory reading of the evidence, as disclosed by the jury herein, is inadequate and disproportionate to the nature of the injury. Such being the case, a new trial must be had."

MASTER LUFF AND BIG PIKE.

Akeley, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walter Luff, bookkeeper for the Red River Lumber company, made the record for catching big fish when he landed a huge pike or sand trout weighing over twenty-five pounds at Spider lake on the J. Nixon farm, nortwest of Akeley. The fish was longer than Walter Luff, Jr., as shown in the picture. This fish was caught by the rod seen in the hands of the son of Mr. Luff.

Mr. Luff has also hooked several big Northern pike weighing over nine pounds. He uses a steel rod and casts with a spoon hook and salted pork. His fishing boat is sixteen inches wide and fifteen feet long. Mr. Luff has also a record for casting, recently he casted nineteen times and caught seventeen big fat black bass near Howard lake at Moore Springs.

GIRL'S SUICIDE A MYSTERY.

Only 16, "Babe" Wright Takes Carbolic Acid.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The remains of "Babe" Wright, an adopted daughter of Mr. and and Mrs. John Wright of Derrick, Ramsey county, were taken through Grand Forks Wednesday evening en route East for burial. The young girl committed suicide, ending life by taking a dose of carbolic acid. She was but 16 years of age.

The case is a very peculiar one, no motive being known for the commission of the act. On Monday evening she had been out driving with a young man residing in the neighborhood. Tuesday morning when Mrs. Wright called the girl for breakfast she failed to receive an answer, and going to her room she found her dead body with the empty carbolic acid bottle nearby. No inquest was deemed necessary by Coroner Gilbertson.

MARQUETTE ORE PUNCHERS ALSO CAUSING TROUBLE.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 14.—A portion of the crew of ore handlers having walked out to enforces a demand for higher pay, boats loading in the lower harbor have been delayed somewhat in getting cargoes the past two days. Deck hands helped load the Joliet yesterday. The Crete was given her cargo also, and is awaiting her steamer. The Roman went to Ashland to load. The Abyssinnia will be handled today. The trouble is not at all serious and is expected to be ended in a day or two. Some new men are being taken on. The ore traffic is not in a particularly prosperous state this season, there being little money in it for either railroads or boats, and the walkout at this time is a matter of some surprise.

DEATH FOLLOWS OPERATION.

Mrs. Alguire of Grand Forks Dies at Rochester, Minn.

Grand Forks, N. D. Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Celiesta Adelia Alguire, wife of Charles Alguire, of this city, died at Rochester, Minn., Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock, following an operation, which she underwent a few days ago. With her at the time of her death was her husband and twin sister, Mrs. McCrea of Colton, Colo. The remains were brought to this city, reaching here this morning, and the funeral will be held from the Episcopal church, of which she was an earnest and devoted member, on Saturday morning at 10:30, Dean Burleson officiating.

DROWNING ENDS HIS SPREE.

Moorhead, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Steven Gunnell of Ponsford, Becker county, Minn., wound up a spree yesterday afternoon by making a vain effort to swim the Red river here after imbibing freely in local saloons. He jumped into the river crying "They're after me," and struck out for the Fargo shore. He made some headway then suddenly sank. His body was recovered and sent to his home at Ponsford. He is said to have been drinking in local saloons for two days and was half crazy from his debauch.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—C. H. Barber, secretary and treasurer of the Porte Printing company of this city, has sold his interest in that firm and will go West, where he will accept a more lucrative position as bank cashier. He and his family will leave here about Sept. 1 for their new location.

Minot, N. D.—Gus Swanson, a well digger, met a tragic death today while working on a farm near here. When about half way down he was overcome by gas and fell to the bottom. His comrades lowered another man to his rescue, but he, too, was overcome and had to be pulled out with the aid of hooks.

Fargo, N. D.—F. H. Wilder, secretary of the Merchants' National Mutual Fire insurance company of this city is in Des Moines, Iowa, this week attending the annual meeting of the mutual fire insurance companies of the United States. Mr. Wilder is a member of the executive committee of the association.

Bathgate, N. D.—Russell Symington, a young man 19 years old, residing near Neche, died suddenly a few days ago of "walking typhoid" fever. The young man had many friends here who are shocked to hear of his sudden death.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The local train between East Grand Forks and Pembina does not carry mail, only the flyer being engaged in the postal service. The pouches are thrown from the train at the various stations at which the fast train does not stop.

Lakota, N. D.—Clarence Howser, who resides about eight miles southeast of the city, met with a severe and very painful accident while operating a gasoline engine. The middle finger of his right hand got caught in the machinery, lacerating it badly.

Fargo, N. D.—President and Mrs. J. H. Worst returned this morning from Mackinac Island, Wis., where they have been on a vacation and where President Worst was attending the twelfth annual convention of the pure food and dairy department's association.

Bismarck, N. D.—The state board of equalization adjourned Tuesday for ten days to enable the clerks to summarize the reports for better consideration of the board.

Grand Forks, N. D.—A. L. Woods, who conducts a teachers' agency here, states that teachers are more plentiful this year than last. There is quite a demand for teachers in the graded schools, however. In the country schools the places are being filled rapidly and there will be no shortage in any county, it is expected. Many of the country schools and all of the city schools will open in September.

Minot, N. D.—Judge Goss has handed down a decision in the case of the city against the board of county commissioners to the effect that the section of Harrison township, which the city held was in the limits of Minot, is not a part of the city and that the property therein should be assessed as a part of Harrison township, not of Minot.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Little Falls—On Tuesday a deal was completed between C. B. Buckman and Charles Gravel of this city whereby Mr. Buckman sold his interests in the Onamia Lumber & Mercantile company and in part consideration received the old Guernon residence on the corner of Broadway and Fourth street northeast.

St. Cloud—At a meeting of the ministers of this city, together with Rev. E. A. Fredenhagen of Kansas City, founder and general superintendent of the society for the Friendless and Leagues of Christian Endeavor, arrangement were made for services to be held at the state reformatory every Thursday evening.

Pelham—Phil Fitzpatrick, who was helping to excavate the basement of the new potato warehouse, says that he has never seen the ground and sand so dry at so great a depth as it is this year. He says he cannot see how anything can grow with so little moisture.

New Yoak Mills—Charley Reynolds, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Reynolds of Otto, has returned to his home, after an absence of eight years at Lutsen, Minn., where he has been working.

Brainerd—White Brothers have been given the contract by John Larson for the erection of a brick block fifty by sixty-five feet on his lot on South Sixth street. The building, though but one story in height, will have a pressed brick front and plate glass and will be up to date in every respect.

International Falls—Rev. Fadam of the Lutheran church, Virginia, Minn., is spending a few days in this locality. Mr. Fadam is here for a much needed rest, and speaks very highly of our lakes and rivers.

Moorhead—James McGraham, a man about 50 years of age, who has been acting as porter at the Bowers restaurant and doing other odd jobs about town, was the victim of an accident Wednesday that will result in the loss of a leg.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Ashland—An invitation has been extended to the Ashland Masons to attend the cornerstone laying at Superior on Saturday.

Racine—With a razor, Albert Hess, aged 35 years, committed suicide Wednesday morning at his home in the town of Corliss, nearly cutting his head from the body.

Rhinelander—At the preliminary hearing before Court Commissioner L. J. Billings, Rudolph, Hugo and Albert Donnerstag, alleged counterfeiters, waived examination and were bound over for trial before the United States circuit judge at La Crosse on Sept. 15. The court fixed the bonds at $3,000 each. The three men were taken to Madison.

Tomahawk—Ambrose H. Woodworth, postmaster of Tomahawk, died Wednesday after an illness of ten days with Bright's disease, an ailment with which he was afflicted for many years. He was the first city attorney of Tomahawk and a pioneer of the city. He was serving a second term as postmaster. Burial took place at Oshkosh.

Milwaukee—The body of a well-dressed woman with refined features, about 35 years of age, apparently Jewish, was found floating in the lake about eight miles out of Waukegan by the crew of the steamer Carolina, Tuesday night. The body was brought to Milwaukee and is now in the morgue.

Neenah—After struggling three hours in Lake Winnebago in an effort to save himself from drowning, A. E. Post of Champlain, Ill., was rescued by a passing launch party and taken aboard in a drowning condition. Post had been sailing and a gust of wind suddenly overturned the boat.

Madison—The August term of the Wisconsin supreme court began Tuesday. The court went through the formality of convening and then adjourning to 10 o'clock a. m. Sept. 8. Only one member of the court, Associate Justice R. G. Siebecker of Madison, was present, all of the other members being away on their summer vacations. The new member of the court, Associate Justice John Barnes of Rhinelander, has qualified and will sit with the court on Sept. 8.

Ashland—Misses Alice Carsted and Selma Ahlstrom wen to Duluth Wednesday. From there they go to Carlton, Minn., as delegates, to attend the convention held by the Swedish Lutheran churches of the Lake Superior district.

Calumet—With the arrival of a steel trestle for the Houghton County Street Railway company, which is expected the latter part of the week, work on the extension from Wolverine to Mohawk will be rushed. The trestle is to span the Mineral Range railroad company's tracks over which the street railway's company must pass.

Houghton—McKinley Temple of Honor of Trimountain is arranging for a concert to be given in Paine Memorial hall at Painesdale the evening of Sept. 5, the occasion being the seventh anniversary of the installing of McKinley temple.

Hancock—The school board has engaged Prof. Coons, formerly of Ann Arbor, as science teacher of the high school to succeed George Albright, who resigned to accept a position in the West. Prof. Coons has been doing special work for the University of Michigan during the summer, and he is expected to arrive here soon.

Calumet—John D. Harger of Detroit, past supreme chief of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, and installing officer in Michigan, is in Calumet to attend the biennial convention of the order which began Thursday in the Temple of Honor hall.

Hancock—On Sunday next an excursion will be given to the entry by the Tamarack band, on the barge Pilgrim. The full band of twenty-six pieces will be on board to furnish music, and there will be free dancing at the White City.

Houghton—The board of education has rejected all the bids offered for the construction of the two new schoolhouses at Isle Royale and Superior mine locations. They have directed the secretary to ask for new bids.

Marquette—H. C. Huebner of Minneapolis is in the city to undertake the actual work of building the Interurban between Marquette and Negaunee projected by the Marquette, Negaunee & Ishpeming Interurban company.

Ishpeming—Rev. Aron Lindholm, one of the oldest Swedish Lutheran clergymen in the United States, and who has been doing missionary work, will preach at the Swedish Lutheran church Sunday morning. He has been for several years past a missionary in Cuba, and at the services here a freewill offering will be taken up.

Negaunee—About 150 men applied for employment Wednesday at the Mary Charlotte mine, where from 200 to 250 additional hands are to be taken on. Some of the men began work immediately. It was decided to at once resume operations on the night shift, and a crew was put on last night.

S.S.S. CURES ECZEMA, ACNE, TETTER ETC.

The skin is an index to the quality of the blood. Eczema, Acne, Tetter, pimples, rashes, eruptions, etc., show that some unhealthy humor or acid impurity is diseasing and corrupting the circulation, so that instead of supplying nourishment and strength to the fine, delicate tissues of the skin, it is continually pouring out its acrid and unhealthy accumulations. External applications of salves, washes, lotions, etc., may relieve some of the itching and other discomfort caused by skin troubles, and for this reason should be used, but such treatment cannot reach the humor-laden blood, and therefore cannot cure. A thorough cleansing of the blood is the only cure for skin diseases. S. S. S., a purely vegetable preparation, is the best and quickest remedy. It goes down into the circulation and neutralizes and removes the acids, impurities and humors, thoroughly purifies the circulation and permanently cures skin diseases of every kind. When S. S. S. has driven the humors and impurities from the blood, and cooled and cleansed the acid-heated circulation, every symptom passes away, the skin is again nourished with rich, healthful blood and the trouble cured, as the cause has been removed. Book on skin diseases and any medical advice free.

NO FIRE TUG FOR A YEAR

Dock Firms Will Pay Half, But City is Broke.

Mayor Tells Commercial Club That Funds Are Lacking.

The property along the harbor front will have to run unusual fire risks for another year, and as a result pay about $30,000 more in fire insurance premiums for lack of adequate fire protection. In short, Duluth can not afford a fire tug for another season at least. This was Mayor Roland D. Haven's report to the public affairs committee at the Commercial club last evening. He told the members that the city would pay the cost of maintenance, $15,000 a year, if the tug could be secured.

A fire tug will cost close to $100,000. In view of the immense saving in fire insurance premiums which would be effected by the presence of an adequate fire fighting boat in the harbor, the firms owning property on the harbor front have agreed to pay half of this, or $50,000, providing the city will furnish the rest of the money. Unfortunately, according to the mayor's report, the city is broke. The money for a fire tug would have to come out of the permanent improvement or general funds, and unfortunately these funds are deplorably low this year.

Those who talked on the subject last night all realized and emphasized the great need of adequate fire protection, and expressed the idea that a fire tug could best supply this protection. T. W. Hugo, engineer for several of the elevators, said that there was a period of twenty minutes during the big elevator fire last June when it was a question whether the business section of the city could be saved from the flames at all. Sparks from the immense blaze were carried as far east as the F. A. Patrick residence on Twenty-third avenue east, and with the Standard Oil storage plant hardly a block away, and the flames sending a rain of deadly fire brands over the wholesale district, things looked dangerous in the extreme. Mayor Haven expressed regret that the city could at present do nothing. He explained the condition of the city's funds and stated that if the city made provision for the operation of the tug and the installation of a high-pressure water system, it would be all the conference committee could be induced to give.

INTIMATE OF THE IRON CHANCELLOR

Washington, Aug. 14.—With simple funeral rites and accompanied only by a few faithful friends of his declining years and a single representative of the German embassay, the body of Baron Alexander de Pury-Herve, an aide-de-camp to Bismarck, and member of one of the oldest houses of Germany, was laid to rest in a little cemetery here. Two lilies and a single red rose reposed on the plain coffin. It was his dying request.

A friend and comrade of Bismarck, he was numbered among the pride of the German army that participated in the Franco-Prussian war. He married a princess of royal blood, but he erred once, it is said, and, rather than have the finger of scorn pointed at him by his comrades, he quit the army and came to America. That was twenty-eight years ago. His princess wife divorced him, and the little son, of whom he was so proud, grew up to forget his father. Today he is an officer in the kaiser's bodyguard.

In New York he married an actress with whom he fell in love. The family pride of the De Purys is great, and he was disinherited and his allowance of $300 a week cut off.

When he was disinherited he turned to journalism, working on the New York Staats Zeitung and other papers. Then his actress wife died, leaving him with three children. He moved to Winona, Minn., where he took charge of the Herald.

After a few years he married again. He came to Washington, but becoming sick, returned to Winona. However, after the close of the last session he came back and went to work in the storeroom of the government printing office. The heavy work of lifting documents was too much for the old man, and he suffered the severe strain, which necessitated an operation.

All his life the old soldier wore a rose of red, but he never told why until a few days before his death.

The battle which the Iron Chancellor had been witnessing was over one day, the sun was setting on a field of carnage, and Bismarck, with bowed head, turned and rode away, his aids around him.

The figure of a young officer in the full pride of manhood lying white-faced on the field caught the eye of the prime minister. Without a word he dismounted, picked a red rose from a bush near by and placed it over the young officer's heart. And as he placed it there a tear fell from his eye. So, when the old baron died, unhonored, unknown, they placed a red rose on his breast, for they knew his secret at last.

CHIPPEWAS TO BENEFIT.

Examination of Leech Lake Swamp Lands Will Help Redmen.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 14.—"The decision of Secretary Garfield to have a field examination of so-called swamp lands in the Leech Lake reservation means the saving of lands worth from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 to the Chippewas of Minnesota," says Chauncey E. Richardson, attorney for the Indians, now in the Twin Cities.

Mr. Richardson, who was formerly city clerk of Duluth, and more recently secretary to Senator Clapp, is now the regular salaried attorney at Washington for the Minnesota Chippewas. He has been fighting hard against the claim of the state of Minnesota to the swamp land in the reservations, and has gone into the courts to secure a reversal of the interior department's ruling in favor of the state.

"I shall go ahead with the fight in the courts of the District of Columbia," he says, "although by this last decision of the secretary we will get all the lands in dispute that are worth anything. This examination will show that many tracts classed as swamp, according to the field notes, which were liberal to the state in the extreme, are really high and dry, and nearly all such lands are covered with valuable pine timber. Everybody knows that pine will not grow in swamp. About all the land the state will get is now covered with water, because of the government dams and reservoirs which have backed up over the low lying lands."

SAGINAW, MICH., MAN IS CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 14.—A warrant was issued yesterday charging Joseph Duffy with the murder of the 4-weeks-old infant son of Miss Myrtle Lennon, which was found drowned in the river here. Yesterday Duffy's attorney began habeas corpus proceedings and the police countered by getting the warrant. No formal charge has been made against Miss Lennon, who at the time of her arrest said that she had accidentally dropped the baby in the river when she stumbled and fell while walking across the railroad bridge.

When arraigned Duffy stood mute and his hearing was set for Aug. 27.

TRAGIC DEED OF A FARMER

May Total Three Deaths as the Awful Result.

Crazed Man Shoots Wife and Crushes Daughters Skull.

Loveland, Ohio, Aug. 14.—Levi Fannan, aged 73 years, a farmer, residing at Dallashurd, three miles east of Loveland, fatally wounded his wife and felled his 14-year-old daughter Effie with a crowbar about 10 o'clock. Then the desperate septuagenarian shouldered a double-barreled shotgun, and, walking half a mile, crossed the line into Clermont county, where he committed suicide at the home of his married son, Thomas Fannan. The triple crime, with its inception in Fannan's home in Warren county and its tragic ending in Clermont county, and the awful circumstances attending it, mark it as one of the most terrible recorded in the annals of the two counties.

Mrs. Fannan, who is 53 years of age is lying at her home unconscious and near death, with a ghastly bullet hole bored through her right eye and extending through the skull to the right ear. It is thought by the physicians in charge that she will never wake to consciousness, and as a result will be unable to give an account of what led up to the terrible deed on the part of her husband. Near her lies her daughter, unconscious, but rallying at intervals, only to sink back to a lethargic state. During these periods of consciousness the little one told the story of the crime.

Child Near Death.

The blows inflicted by the infuriated husband and father have placed the child near death, and it is thought that her skull is fractured. In another room the old man is lying dead, with the upper half of his head shot completely off, a victim of self-murder. According to the story of the girl, told disjointedly and pieced together, Fannan returned to his home yesterday in a surly mood. He began to quarrel with his wife after she had told him that she and the girl intended making a visit to Hill's Station, about a mile distant. This seemed to enrage the old man and he began a tirade of abuse.

Effie paid but little attention to the quarrel of her parents, and repaired to another room. When she heard her mother shriek: "Oh, don't," she ran in and saw her father holding a pistol upraised and pointed at the woman's head. The next instant the infuriated man pulled the trigger and Mrs. Fannan fell to the floor, the blood streaming from a gaping wound in her head. The old man raised the pistol again as though to fire another shot into the prostrate body. Divining his intention, the child sprang between them, imploring him not to do so.

He then turned his attention to the girl, and with the remark: "I've a half notion to kill you, too," aimed his smoking revolver at her breast. He seemingly changed his mind, however, and, placing the weapon in his pocket, strode across the room and took a heavy steel crowbar from the corner. Advancing to the child, who was transfixed with fright, Fannan brought the iron bar down on her upturned head with terrific force, rendering her insensible and laying the scalp like a fold over her eyes and face.

Then Killed Himself.

Leaving his victims, he shouldered his gun and walked a half mile into Clermont county, where the home of his son, Tom, is located. Fannan entered the house and found that the family was absent, having gone on a visit to a neighbor. He procured a rope and a blanket, and took the articles to the foot of an apple tree, where he made an improvised pillow of the blanket. Then the aged man made preparations for his self-murder, and laid his head on the pillow. He placed the muzzle of the gun between his eyes and pulled the trigger with his toe.

There was a report, and Fannan's brains spattered about the tree.

When the wife of his son returned she screamed at the sight of the bloody remains, and alarmed the neighbors. Meanwhile Mayor Payne and others discovered the plight of the inmates of the Fannan home, and medical attenion was at once given them.

It is said by the neighbors that the crime is the culmination of numerous quarrels that have been going on in the Fannan home, and that Fannan has been offering strenuous objections to the visits of a young man named Dave Gibbs, who, it is said, was visiting the young daughter. He was one of the oldest settlers in the village and was respected. The couple married about thirty-two years ago, and Thomas and Effie Fannan were the only survivors of a family of seven. Late last night Mrs. Fannan was reported as dying.

AFTER POT HUNTERS.

Game Warden Munich on Trail of Illegal Hunters.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Deputy Game Warden William Munch left last evening for East Grand Forks and other points in Western Polk and Marshall counties, where he will investigate the charges that hunters from Grand Forks and other border North Dakota points have been violating the hunting laws by shooting prairie chickens by the wholesale during the past week. There have been similar allegations, well founded, in past years, and this year Warden Munch will put a stop to it if he has to swear in a deputy for every mile along the Red river, from Grand Forks to the Canadian line.

MONEY FROM INSTITUTIONS.

Several Have Remitted to the State Treasurer.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Treasurer Clarence C. Dinehart has received the July receipts from several of the state institutions. The twine plant paid in the largest amount for the month, $36,138.75, and the state penitentiary turned in $10,870.10. The state hospital for consumptives at Walker sent in its first receipts, which amounted to $1,928.80. This money will be placed in the revolving fund for that institution. The St. Cloud reformatory paid in $2,386.28, and the school for the feeble minded paid $928.63.

Ramsey county is the first of the large counties of the state to report the balance due from delinquent taxes. The amount reported was $80,163. Notices have been sent from the treasurer's office to all of the counties of the state, but Ramsey county is the first of the large counties to report.

WISCONSIN RED MEN WILL BAR SALOONMEN HEREAFTER

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 14.—Through the adoption of a resolution by the great council of Wisconsin of the Improved Order of Red Men, in session here, no saloonkeepers, bartenders, brewers or other persons connected with the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor, will be admitted to the organization. Saloon men have been active in this organization, and the membership of saloon men in some local councils in Wisconsin amounts to more than 50 per cent. Liquor dealers now in the order will be allowed to retain their membership, but no others will be admitted.

One of the best means of estimating the quality of our stock is by the words of praise from tourists of the metropolitan centers.

BUSY DAYS ON GOPHER

Minnesota Naval Militia is Active in South Manitou Maneuvers.

Commander Eaton Pays Official Visit to Commander of Fleet.

(By Herald Staff Correspondent With The Fleet.)

South Manitou Island, Mich., Aug. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—While the officers and men of the steamers Yantic and Don Juan De Austria danced on the veranda of the Grand hotel, at Mackinac Island, Commander Eaton and the good ship Gopher of the Minnesota Naval Militia, were pressing on the scene of the manuevers at South Manitou Island, arriving here at 5:15 this (Tuesday) morning, and taking her berth between the flagship, the Wolverine and the Dorethea of Chicago.

The Gopher is alive to all the naval regulations. She was the first ship to signal when the Don Juan and the Yantic hove in sight today.

The principal event of this morning, the first day of the manuevers, was Commander Eaton's official call on Commander White, in command of the fleet, on his flagship, the Wolverine.

Make way for the crew of the captain's gig.

The captain's gig, its crew garbed in spotless white, made a very pretty sight as she swept away from the ship's side, with Commander Eaton seated in the stern.

The warships at anchor in the sun, off this picturesque Michigan island, furnished the imagination with all sorts of combustible material. If you try, with eyes half closed, you can see crafty foes peering from the foliage on shore, and can almost make out sentries pacing up and down behind imaginary fortifications. In reality, the sentries and crafty foe are peaceful dwellers of South Manitou, and the fortifications are the sedate sides of a rural postoffice.

Weather Has Been Ideal.

The weather has been ideal since the Gopher left Duluth. Today is about 18 karats and admirable for the first events of the maneuvers. This morning there was signal practice, and this afternoon fleet maneuvers. Everything is hustle and bustle now. The peaceful routine of that trip down is gone. Commander Eaton and his officers and men are out to capture all the highest scores they possibly can. That is why the Gopher folks did not tarry to dance on the piazza of the summer hotels at Mackinac Island, last evening. The Gophers will do their tarrying and give imitations of the naval officers in comic operas, singing sweet songs to summer girls, on romantic islands, after the maneuvers are over.

The Hawk of Cleveland ran on a bar coming in here last night and had to be pulled off by the flagship. No great damage was done the Hawk.

BRANCH BANKS HELD UNLAWFUL

Under Kentucky Laws and Will Soon be Abolished.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 14.—Attorney General Breathitt has handed down an opinion that branch banks of large or small banks cannot be conducted in this state without violating the law. Four or five banks will be affected as a result of his opinion.

Secretary of State Ben L. Bruner, who is at the head of the department of banks in Kentucky, requested Judge Breathitt to deliver the opinion, so that he would know what steps to take. He said yesterday that he would not permit branch banks in Kentucky any longer.

In his opinion, the attorney general says:

"There is nothing whatever in the laws relative to banking institutions which would lead me to believe that it was intended by the lawmakers that banks should or could operate through branch banks.

"It may be that if they are authorized by the law to operate through branches there is no limit, and an incorporated bank may have one branch or it may have 100 branches. It may have one branch in its home county, or it may have ten. It may establish its branch or branches in its home county, or it may diffuse them throughout the entire state, without regard to county lines.

"There is nothing in the general incorporation laws, or the law relative to banking concerns which authorizes it either in express terms or impliedly.

"It is against public policy. The first provision of the laws relative to banks and banking, under the general title of 'corporations,' which, in Section 577, Kentucky statutes, provides, substantially, that the capital stock of no bank shall be less than $15,000, and in cities having a population of 50,000, not less than $100,000.

"There is evidently some reason for this provision. It, on its face, shows that the legislature intended that the bank doing a more extensive business should be required to have a larger capital stock; or, rather, it meant that the bank having the better opportunity for doing a more extensive business should be required to have a larger capital than the bank where opportunities would be less. How would this operate if branch banks were allowed?

"The requisite number of persons would incorporate a bank in Frankfort, a city of 10,000, and hold a capital stock of $15,000, as required under the law. They could then establish a branch bank in Covington, a city of about 50,000, and thereby have 60,000 people with whom to do business on a capital of $15,000.

"Or the requisite number of persons could organize a bank in Hopkinsville on a capital of $15,000 and start a branch at Paducah, 20,000 population; one at Bowling Green, 10,000; Henderson, 15,000; Madisonville, 6,000; Owensboro, 18,000, and wind up with a branch at Louisville with a population of 300,000 or more."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

It is announced that the Y. M. C. A. will install branches in every high school in Iowa this year. Nowhere else has such a movement been planned. It is expected to drive out the high school fraternities in this manner.

Belated results from outlying precincts confirm the first reports that J. Wickersham of Fairbanks, has been elected to represent Alaska in congress. It is estimated that something like 12,000 votes were cast.

The supreme lodge, Knights of Pythias voted Thursday that the next convention will be held in Milwaukee, which has already been selected by the supreme assembly of the uniformed ranks of the order. The formal vote stood yesterday: Milwaukee, 87; Richmond, Va., 23; Colorado Springs, 22; Mackinac Island, 65.

George Vail, Jr., 20, of Batavia, Ohio, charged with the murder of his father, George Vail, Sr., 61 years old, who disappeared suddenly on June 10, 1907, Thursday night confessed to having committed the crime. He said that he had quarreled with the elder Vail and had shot him only after he himself had been threatened.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Scandinavian Brotherhood of America Close Annual Meeting.

Youngstown, Ohio, Aug. 14.—The Scandinavian Brotherhood of America closed its annual session here yesterday. It will meet in Chicago next year. The following officers were elected: Past president, Carl Engsrud, Kane, Pa.; president, Benjamin Swanson, Maderia, Pa.; vice president, Solomon Ostrom, Youngstown, Ohio; lecturer, Mrs. S. M. Nelson, Dubois, Pa.; marshal, O. A. Erickson, Rockford, Ill.; secretary, Carl J. Svenson, McKeesport, Pa.; treasurer, John Burkman, Braddock, Pa.; trustees, John Broff, Jamestown, N. Y.; Jacob Oleson, Du Quesne, Pa.; Oscar Anderson, Chicago.

TWO PRESIDIO OFFICERS KILLED IN AUUTO WRECK.

San Francisco, Aug. 14.—Sergt. Maj. A. H. Belyea and Master Electrician Sergt. C. H. Jones, attached to the Presidio military forces, were almost instantly killed last night when thrown from a run-about automobile, which was crushed between cars running in opposite directions at Market street and Van Ness avenue. Jones was handling the car and drove across the path of a Haight street car. He had almost cleared the first track when an outward bound car struck the automobile. Jones and Belyea were thrown out, striking the pavement with much force. They were unconscious when picked up and both died within a few minutes.

Straight Front Corsets—Fat—and Heat

The first two stretch wretched minutes into hours of misery for the modish fat woman these days. Her daily programme is slow strangulation from 9 p. m. to bedtime.

But this (to others) comical anguish of the well-dressed fat woman in hot weather may be avoided. Let her reduce ten or fifteen pounds and she can wear her stylish garb with comfort at 90 in the shade.

All she needs to do is ask her druggist for ½ ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 3½ ounces Sirup Simplex, take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, and in a little while she should be losing from one-half to a pound of fat a day. At that rate she can soon get down into the comfort belt and do it without exertion, disturbance of her habits, or injury of any sort. For, understand, this is a harmless home mixture that doesn't cause wrinkles, cost much, or require any assistance from exercising or starvation methods to help it get results.

ENGINEER AT 69 IS ACTIVE.

Jacob La Mott Has Piloted an Engine for Fifty-One Years.

Carmi, Ill., Aug. 14.—Probably the oldest active engineer in years of service in the United States is Jacob La-Mott, pilot of the Shawneetown-Evansville accommodation. Other engineers are older, perhaps, in years, but a record of over half a century at the throttle is seldom attained by a railroader. "Uncle Jake," as he is called, has just rounded out his fifty-first year as engineer and in all that time has never been seriously hurt.

"No, I don't feel as young as I used to," he said last night as he oiled his engine at the water crane in the yards in this city, "but," continued the grizzled old man, "time has not changed my desire, when a mere child, to handle a fast engine, and when in later years my youthful desideratum was realized, the helght of my ambition was reached."

Although 69 years old, "Uncle Jake" has a clear eye and a steady hand. If "Uncle Jake' desired to take advantage of the company's offer he would retire on a pension of $100 per month for life. But this the veteran enginer has often refused to do. He says it is his desire to stay on the engine as long as he can handle himself, and he will not listen to the idea of going on tthe superannuated list.

At the age of 18 La Mott began his work on the road, working for the old Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern road at Cincinnati. His run was between Cincinnati and Seymour, Ind., and he early became one of the road's trusted men. He has been with the Louisville & Nashville road ever since the Shawneetown-Evansville accommodation has been in service.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF FIRE INSURANCE AGENTS.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 14.—The twelfth annual convention of the National Association of Fire Insurance Agents came to an end here with the unanimous adoption of the report of the nominating committee, which named the following officers: President, Edward W. Beardsey, Hartford, Conn.; vice Illinois; J. W. Alexander, E. B. Case, Ilnois; L. W. Childrey, Virginia; E. H. Forry, Indiana; Fred Gunther, Iowa; B. F. Kauffman, Iowa; F. W. Le Ballister, California; I. N. Manson, Wisconsin; A. W. Neale, Ohio; H. M. Thinkum, Maine; secretary, Henry H. Putnam, Boston; treasurer, W. H. Mandeville, Olean, N. Y.; chairman executive committee, Charles B. Well, Milwaukee; chairman grievance committee, J. H. Southgate, Durham, N. C.; chairman legislative committee, George D. Markham, St. Louis; chairman organization committee, C. W. Olson, Chattanooga.

HIGH PRICED BERKSHIRE.

Beloit, Wis., Aug. 14.—Baroness Belle, one of the swell Berkshires of the A. J. Lovejoy & Son farm, was sold yesterday to W. S. Corsa of Whitehall, Ill., for $410. More than a score of other beauties were disposed of at prices ranging from $60 to $300 each.

JUDGE CHARGES GRAND JURY TO PROBE CHARGE.

Paducah, Ky., Aug. 14.—Judge Thomas F. Cook, of the Calloway circuit court, at the opening of court charged the grand jury to investigate the reports being circulated around Maury that he himself and the commonwealth attorney, Denny B. Smith, of Trigg county, are night riders and have taken their oath.

He said it is bandied about that fifty witnesses could be produced to prove the fact.

He said he wished the county attorney to conduct the investigation, and mentioned the names of Dr. Berry, a dentist, recently of Metropolis, Ill., J. D. Sexton, a merchant, and W. L. Whitness, a tobacco man, as witnesses.

The case of Jake Ellis, the first of the men charged with participating in the recent night rider outrages in Trigg and Calloway counties to be brought to trial, is in the hands of the jury at Murray, Ky. Rumors current are that the jury is hopelessly hung.

Farmers, mechanics, railroaders, laborers rely on Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Takes the sting out of cuts, burns or bruises at once. Pain cannot stay where it is used.

SAWED WOOD LATE AT NIGHT

Neighbor Arrested for Threatening Too Industrious Citizen.

The case of James Underwood, charged with threatening Mike Katmacek with a gun, because he was sawing wood at 9 o'clock in the evening, thus disturbing the sleep of his early-to-bed neighbors, was continued for one month by Judge Cutting in municipal court this morning. The judge said he would not pronounce sentence for thirty days, awaiting to see if there were any further developments.

Evidence tended to show that Katmacek disturbed Mrs. Underwood, who resides at 213 West Ninth street, while she was ill. Her husband asked the man to stop sawing, and the latter refused to accede to the request. It is claimed he then went in the house and got a gun, with which he threatened his neighbor, who had him arrested.

On another page we have a special announcement of tomorrow's second 1908 clearing in the Shirt Section.

Be on hand in the morning.

While in, look over the $11.85 suit table. Really one of the most remarkable suit offers we ever made. The most deceptive store can make an ad look and sound as good as ours, but while this offer may appear almost too strong to be true, we can only reiterate that we sell $20 to $35 suits at $11.85. Part our own high-priced, light colored suits on which we take a big loss in good time, and part a special purchase on which the manufacturers swallow the bargain-hemlock.

Last of Boys' Suit Sales

Tomorrow night will see the windup of the Summer Suit Sales in our Boys' and Children's Department. The clearing has been going on at a tremendous rate, and with the exception of the Half-Price Sale of Boys' Wash Suits and Girls' Wash Dresses, will now be discontinued.

Come tomorrow—it's your last chance.

LIABILITY LAW THE SUBJECT OF DISCUSSION

Hon. Pierce Butler Says Society Should Bear Burden.

HON. PIERCE BUTLER.

The feature of this morning's session of the Minnesota State Bar association was the paper read by Hon. Pierce Butler of St. Paul, in which he advanced the theory that society at large should bear the expense of the injuries to workmen in hazardous employment, through an addition to the cost of production. The paper was of much interest to the members of the association and provoked no little comment and discussion.

The meeting opened with announcements by the entertainment committee of the automobile drive around the boulevard this afternoon.

The committee on biographies of departed members reported through Judge Daniel S. Fish of Minneapolis.

Before giving way to the Hon. Edmont S. Dumant, who will act as chairman during the remainder of the session, J. L. Washburn, president of the association, announced that he had received a letter from some far-seeing man in North Dakota, offering for sale his land, law and paper business. He thought as the members of the State Bar association were in session here, that there would be some one among them who would like to buy it.

Mr. Washburn was warned to be strictly impartial and not allow any of his particular friends to reap the benefits of this golden opportunity.

Among the new arrivals this morning were noticed Charles H. Farnham of St. Paul; W. H. Tardley, St. Paul; Pierce Butler, St. Paul; C. A. Nyo, Moorhead; James H. Quinn, Fairmont; H. F. Barker, Cambridge.

Mr. Butler's Talk.

The principal paper of the morning was read by the Hon. Pierce Butler on the employer's liability law.

Mr. Butler spoke in part as follows: "According to the reports of the interstate commerce commission there were of the employees of railroad companies in the year 1907 4218 killed and 64,939 injured. According to the report of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission of Minnesota, there were 114 killed and 1300 injured in Minnesota in the same year. According to the report of the department of labor of the state of Minnesota, of the employes engaged in industries other than mines and railroads in the year 1906, there were forty killed and 887 injured. And in the mines of Minnesota for the year ending June 30, 1906, ninty-three were killed. Comparison of these figures with similar statistics for other periods does not indicate that the number of accidents for the periods covered was far from the average.

"It is manifest, not only from the statistics but as a matter of common knowledge, that the conduct of the industries of the country annually requires an enormous sacrifice of life and limb. No more important obligation rests upon the state than the adoption of all reasonable means to lessen the sacrifice and to insure justice to injured workmen and in case of death, to those dependent upon them.

Numerous Damage Suits.

"Litigation growing out of injuries to workmen suffered in the course of their employment is so common and occupies so much of the time of the courts that an examination of the causes therefor, with a view of lessening it if posible, is, to say the least, fully justified. The rules of law upon which the question of liability depends are so frequently stated and applied that they are familiar to all. Perhaps familiarity with them is a cause for the infrequent consideration of the soundness of the reasons upon which they rest, or their adequacy for the establishment of justice between the parties, for the promotion of the welfare of the state. The state is much interested in the physical welfare of workmen, for upon power to earn depends in a large degree capacity to discharge the duties and obligations of citizenship. In the hazardous employments where injuries are most frequent workmen employed are necessarily young men. A large proportion of them have young families dependent upon them for support, education and development. The disability or death of such men frequently denies opportunity to their children. The concern of the state, therefore in such cases, is very great that opportunity for development be not denied to those upon whom it must rely in the future.

"The liability of the employer for the negligent injury of his servant is of comparatively recent development. Blackstone makes no mention of any such liability. Indeed, the earliest judicial formulation of the law of negligence was about the year 1700. The early cases recognize a liability of the master for the negligence of his servants resulting in injury to a third person, but the great mass of the law relating to employers' liability to his own servants for injuries caused by his negligence or the negligence of those for whom he is responsible, has developed within the last century. The tendency in recent times, not only of lawmakers but the inclination of the courts, is in the direction of enlarging the right of recovery. Minnesota, in common with other states and foreign countries, has by recent legislation indicated a marked tendency in favor of holding employers to stricter liability to employes inured in the course of their employment.

"It has been provided that companies owning or operating railroads shall be liable for injuries suffered by employes without contributory negligence by reason of any negligence of any other servant—any contract, rule or regulation of the company to the contrary notwithsanding. This abrogation of the common law 'Fellow servant rule' has been sustained on the ground that the dangers and risks incident to the operation of railroads was a sufficient basis for classification and the making of exception to the general rule. Similar laws have been passed and enforced in most of the states. At first great objection was made to this class of legislation but it is believed that now on one who understands the inapplicability of the reasons which are at the foundation of the common law 'fellow servant rule' and who appreciates the dangers and risks of injury borne by railroad employes engaged in the operation of the road, will contend that this class of legislation is not just. Indeed, it is now generally admitted that the application of the common law rule in the case of injury of a trainman through the negligence of another servant of the company whom perhaps he has never seen or had opportunity to know, would be harsh and unjust.

The President's Stand.

"The president of the United States in various messages and speeches has indicated that he favors establishing a rule for the compensation of employes injured in the course of their work without regard to whether or not injury resulted from negligence of employer or of those for whose negligence employer is responsible. He said: "In spite of all precautions exercised by employers there are unavoidable accidents and even deaths involved in nearly every line of business connected with the mechanic arts. This inevitable sacrifice of life may be reduced to a minimum, but it cannot be completely eliminated. It is a great social injustice to compel the employe, or rather the family of the killed or disabled victim, to bear the entire burden of an inevitable sacrifice. In other words, society shirks its duty by laying the whole cost on the victim, whereas the injury comes from what may be called the legitimate risks of the trade. Compensation for accidents or deaths due in any line of industry to the actual conditions under which that industry is carried on should be paid by that portion of the community for the benefit of which the industry is carried on—that is, by those who profit by the industry. If the entire trade is placed upon the employer he will promptly and properly add it to the legitimate cost of the production and assess it proportionately upon the consumers of his commodity. It is therefore clear to my mind that the law should place this entire risk of trade upon the employer. Neither the federal law nor, as far as I am informed, the state laws dealing with the question of employers' liability are sufficiently thoroughgoing;' and later, in his Jamestown Exposition speech in June, 1907, he said: 'Workmen should receive a certain definite and limited compensation for all accidents in industry, irrespective of negligence.'

"If the president is right in these dicta (and it may be said perhaps that these are 'obiter dicta') the rules of law in Minnesota touching the question of liability of master for injury of servant through negligence are far from sufficient.

Great Abuses Exist.

"That great abuses exist attending the adjustment of personal injury claims and the conduct of trials of personal injury cases is known to all. It would be profitless to consider whether greater fault lies on one side or on the other. The fact is that the law as now understood and applied before the litigation as well as at the trials does not give satisfaction to the interested parties. Does it yield the best results obtainable?

"Considerable observation leads me to the conclusion that as a general rule recovery, especially after extended litigation, does not much profit the plaintiff, even though that recovery be large. A great financial waste attends such litigation. Habits of idleness are acquired by the injured party while awaiting from term to term and sometimes from year to year for an end of litigation, frequently after repeated trials. Results in these cases do not stimulate confidence in the courts among the people, for many claims wholly without merit are known to succeed. The natural feelings of jurymen are in favor of recovery and the interest of a disabled plaintiff in the result of the litigation is so great that few men are able to withstand the temptation to vary a little from the truth if necessary to carry a case to the jury.

"As a matter of fact, in hazardous employments, a very large majority of all injuries suffered by employes results from the inherent dangers of the business and without negligence on the part of any one. Disability of the injured man makes recovery essential, almost to his very existence, certainly to his comfort and to the welfare of his family.

A Typical Case.

"Much observation of and a considerable experience with injury claims by employes of railroads suggests as a common, almost a typical case, substantially the following:

"A trainman employed at night, in fog and storm or other inclemency of the weather, is, without fault of himself or anyone else, so injured as to be permanently disabled. His fellow employes pick him up and cause his removal to a hospital, where he is treated, nursed and cared for at the company's expense. By telegram the fact, and briefly the circumstances, of the accident are reported to the claim agent of the company. Diligent and proper inquiry is speedily made touching the facts and circumstances of the accident and it is satisfactorily disclosed as well by the injured man himself as by fellow servants having knowledge, that the company is not liable for damages on account of the injury. The precaution of honestly taking the deliberate statement of the injured man himself in writing and having him subscribe it is taken, that the best evidence be had to resist any future claim that the facts were otherwise than innocent. Though the company has willingly assumed the burden of expense for nurses, hospital and physicians, the pay of the injured man stopped when he ceased to work. Such men are always dependent upon their wages from month to month. By the time that he is able to leave the hospital and return to his home he is poor, indeed. He presents himself to the claim agent and asks for settlement, and is told that the company, on the very facts stated by himself, is not liable. He asks for employment in some position which he thinks he can fill. All positions that he is capable of filling are taken. The obligations of the company to the public require for the most part the employment of men with all their limbs and faculties. Railroads cannot be run by cripples. If the claimant be persistent he calls upon the attorney for the road, who will undoubtedly inquire from him with respect to the circumstances of the accident touching the question of liability. Again the truth is told, liability does not exist; ordinarily no attorney for a railroad company is at liberty to pay any very substantial sum under such circumstances, however much inclined so to do, and claimant is at the end of peaceable endeavor to procure needed relief. Assuming that he has not yet been solicited to give his case to some attorney, he seeks legal advice, and let us assume that he be carefully and conscientiously advised as to the merits of his case. By this time he has learned the reasons for the legal conclusion that the company is not bound to pay. Perchance the question of liability or non-liability may depend upon a very simple question of fact—for example, whether or not a lantern at night in a fog in the hands of another man moved horizontally or whether it moved vertically. If it moved one way, he is entitled to recover; if it moved the other way, he is not. In the meantime commanding necessity is upon him, and poverty, actual need of self or wife or children, or all, tempts him. Sooner or later he will yield. To other counsel he again submits his case, claiming that the lantern moved in the direction which he has learned will entitle him to recovery. He is then advised that upon such state of facts the company is liable; settlement is demanded, refused, and suit is brought. He tells his story to a jury; it is contradicted by all men having knowledge of the matter, as well as by his own writing, but he explains away, or attempts to explain away, his own admissions of the facts upon the theory that he was overreached or cheated by a claim agent or some representative of the company. A question of fact for a jury appears upon the record, and a jury, being more likely to believe that which they desire to believe than the contrary, return a verdict in his favor, and that for a generous sum. Before payment, months and perhaps years have elapsed since the accident. Expenses have accumulated, debts have been incurred, habits of idleness acquired, and the amount of money received fails to furnish the relief that a much less sum would have furnished had it been promptly paid.

Temptation to Perjury.

"This case, stated to illustrate a large class of cases, is not overdrawn. Similar cases come under the common observation, not only of railroad attorneys but of other attorneys engaged in the defense of personal injury cases arising in the relation of master and servant. Perjury is abhorrent to honest men, but may it not be said in extenuation that the temptation was great? The temptation, while the present system of treating such claims endures, cannot be removed. Ought it to be permitted to remain?

"Is it not true that just so long as the question whether or not an injured employe or the widow and children of one killed while performing his work shall be indemnified for the loss, is made to depend upon the existence of negligence, just that long a great temptation shall be upon claimants to distort the facts that negligence may be found?

"I think the tendency of this class of litigation is to lower morals and lessen the influence and respect for our profession. Justice, as a rule, is not done.

"Should employes injured while engaged in hazardous occupation carried on for the benefit of the public, bear the loss, if there be no negligence chargeable to the employer? Every well-organized business concern makes provision out of earnings for the creation of a fund to cover impairment in value of machinery and plant by reason of wear, tear and accidental inson of injury or destruction. Would a similar provision for the compensation of men injured while engaged in the service, without wrongdoing on their part, be imposing more of a burden than industries can bear? Would not the added expense be included in the cost of the service of or the product contributed to by employes be added to the selling price and paid by the public? It is not the distribution of the loss by any reasonable means in such a way that the public or consumers, as a whole, shall bear it, preferable to the leaving of the burden upon the unfortunate few who suffer the loss under the present system?

"Lawyers are, as a class, conservative, undoubtedly by reason of wide observation and experience. The man with a remedy, is suspected of having an ax to grind or a client or an interest to serve. In dealing with the matter in hand a very serious step will be taken, if change be made from basis of liability grounded upon negligence to the basis of compensation irrespective of negligence of the employer. The experience of other countries ought carefully to be studied in the light of varying conditions to aid in determining whether such change should be made.

"It is not a present purpose to submit any detailed scheme for consideration, but rather only to suggest the question and invite the attention of the bar of the state, if the subject be deemed worthy of further consideration.

"Other countries have attempted to solve the difficulty without applying the test of negligence.

Favors New Law.

"I will close this very incomplete paper by asserting my personal belief that the time has arrived for addition to the law applicable in these cases. Personally, I am strongly inclined to support the principle so generally recognized in other countries, and applied in cases of government employes by the act of congress, to-wit: That in certain occupations attended by grave and peculiar risks of injury to employes there should be compensation in cases of injuries occurring without wrongful conduct on the part of the person injured, and not by reason of any irresistible force or the act of Providence, and that irrespective of the question of negligence on the part of the master—in other words, that in such cases the industry or the public should bear the loss resulting from such hazards and risks.

"May not a valid law be framed on the lines of the Massachusetts bill—classifying industries on the basis of risks incident thereto—providing for absolute liability except in the case of the wrongful misconduct of the person injured, and injuries resulting from irresistible force or the act of Providence—fixing a maximum sum or scale of compensation, providing for arbitration to fix the amount, with the exception that the employer may, if he so demands, have a jury to fix such amount, and leaving to employes all their remedies under the common law and present statutes, but providing that acceptance of the benefits of the act shall bar an action founded on negligence of the master?"

Mr. Jenswold Replies.

Mr. Butler's paper was well received. He was followed by John Jenswold of Duluth, who was given ten minutes to discuss Mr. Butler's article. Mr. Jenswold said that the liability law was the biggest question before the bar associations at this time.

"The public must not be made to stand the expense of caring for widows, and cripples. In order to have prosperity a community must be free from all hindrance, and I consider this a holdback to the prosperity of any community.

"The question has many sides, too many to discuss in the few minutes I am allowed. The public will not take a chance of being hurt, even though assured of the damage money, although the law if changed would be taken advantage of in many other ways.

"I believe that should a man be hurt in the employ of any company, that it should be responsible to his family.

"In nine cases out of ten the men hurt in these factories do not know the value of money, and even though they win their damage suit do not know how to care for it.

"The modification of the liability law called for the modification of other laws, and one of them is that the money should be paid in monthly payments, and not all at once.

"The sight of so much money dazzles them and they in most cases would be better off without it.

"A certain monthly sum paid based upon the size of the man's family, and his one-time earning capacity is my belief along this line."

Mr. Jenswold's talk was followed by a general discussion on the subject. The meeting adjourned shortly after the noon hour.

AWFUL DEED OF A MANIAC

Los Angeles, Aug. 14.—Driven insane by religious mania, H. J. Dufty, 60 years of age today attacked and killed his son and daughter with an axe, and then cut his own throat with a razor, inflicting fatal injuries. The tragedy occurred early this morning in the extreme northwestern part of the city. Dufty lived at the home of his son, Fred Dufty. He had been on the verge of violent insanity it is said, for weeks, from religious enthusiasm. Last night he attended a religious meeting and worked himself into a frenzy.

When he arose this morning he was suddenly seized with a desire to kill. Securing a sharp axe he stealthily entered the bed room of his son while the latter lay asleep. He crept close to the side of the bed and raising the weapon brought it down with terrific force across the neck of the son. The blow was delivered with such tremendous force that the head of the victim was severed completely from the body.

Rushed Down Street.

With a maniacal shout Dufty rushed from the house and down the street, waving his bloody weapon. Reaching the house at 451 Northwest Lake avenue, where his wife and daughter resided, he opened the front door and entered. Mrs. Ada Lacomb, the daughter, with her mother, were in a rear room. Proceeding cautiously to this room, the murderer opened the connecting doors. Mrs. Lacomb stood with her back to him. Without a word of warning, he swung the ax high in the air and cleft his daughter's skull. Her whole head was crushed in from the blow.

Mrs. Dufty fled through a rear door, closely pursued by the maniac, striking at her with the ax.

The woman succeeded in eluding him, but not before she had received a severe gash on the elbow from the ax swung by Dufty as he chased her. Mrs. Dufty's cries finally attracted the attention of neighbors, who came to her aid.

Dufty then walked to the street, where he drew a razor from his pocket and slashed his own throat, inflicting frightful injuries which will doubtless cause his death.

Several weeks ago Dufty went to the Evergreen cemetery and purchased a lot, explaining that he wanted it for himself, son and daughter. Three days ago he purchased a coffin for himself.

Don't think that piles can't be cured. Thousands of obstinate cases have been cured by Doan's Ointment. 50 cents at any drug store.

R. P. O. CLERKS WANT CATCHERS

St. Louis, Aug. 14.—The railway mail clerks of the Seventh Postal division, which has headquarters at St. Louis, have joined with clerks in other divisions through the National Association of Railway Postal Clerks in petitioning the government to speedily adopt and have the railroads put into use some device for safely delivering mail at catcher stations. A recent order of the postoffice department notifying the clerks that they are liable to be held personally responsible for money damages where persons are injured on station platforms by mail pouches thrown from moving trains has spurred the clerks to action. They claim that there are several devices offered which can safely deliver a pouch from a train at any speed, and that the government's attitude is unfair, because it has been slow in installing one of these inventions.

The warning promulgated by the department is the subject of much agitation among the 500 railway postal clerks in four divisions who run into St. Louis. Its peremptory tone was sufficient to alarm them. The notice refers to a recent case in Ohio where suit was brought against a clerk, and he was forced to compromise by paying $500 to avoid heavier damages being imposed by a jury. It also says that several railway companies have declared their intention to have the clerk made a party to all suits against them by persons injured by careless delivery of mail.

Will Hold Clerks Responsible.

On its own part the department proposes to rigidly investigate every case and hold the clerk who threw off the pouch strictly responsible, not accepting the usual excuse that the clerk did the best he could. This means that the rule providing a fine and suspension, or both, is to be enforced. In the past this enforcement has been rather lax.

Still P. Taft, superintendent of the St. Louis division, says that the clerks are considerably worried by the order. Experience has taught them that on dark nights, when rain and snow blur vision, it is difficult to throw a heavy pouch or tied sack so that it lands in the place designated for mail delivery, which is usually at the catcher crane or in a chute provided for the purpose. At the same time Mr. Taft says that he has never seen any device which would do the work under actual working conditions. He was on a committee last year which tested several pieces of apparatus, none of which proved practical. One which was partly adopted a few years ago tore the side out of a mail car on several occasions before it was abandoned.

A committe is now at work making tests of new devices. One is an automatic apparatus worked by air pressure. The crane by which mail pouches are caught by moving trains has been a success for thirty years, but the inventors seem to be baffled in getting up a delivering mechanism.

OLD OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

State Soldiers' Home Board Holds Its Annual Meeting.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 14.—At the annual meeting of the soldiers' home board, held at the home Tuesday, all the old officers were re-elected.

The most important subject up for consideration was the matter of adjusting the pension relief fund appropriations to meet the requirements of the act of congress passed on Oct. 19 last. This matter was settled by deciding upon a minimum relief fund of $3 per month for veterans not exceeding 62 years of age.

The old officers were all re-elected. Miss Agnes Hughes of St. Peter was made matron of the woman's building and Miss Ethel Hardan matron of the hospital. Dr. O. S. Pine of St. Paul and Dr. D. R. Greenlee of Minneapolis were designatied consulting surgeons.

The total cost of actual living expenses during the past fiscal year amounted to $7,434, somewhat greater than for preceding years.

M. K. Williams, quartermaster of the home, presented a report showing that the expenses for the year had been $87,988.48. The average attendance at the hospital was 72, and the cost of maintaining each individual during the year amounted to $252.32.

"Generally debilitated for years. Had sick headaches, lacked ambition, was worn-out and all run-down. Burdock Blood Bitters made me a well woman." —Mrs. Charles Freitoy. Moosup, Conn.

WRECKED BOTH WAYS.

Crookston Man in Train Mixups Goiag West and Returning.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. C. Misner, accompanied by Roy DeMott, arrived in the city Wednesday over the Great Northern road, having transferred from the Northern Pacific at Fargo. Neither one suffered the slightest injury in the Northern Pacific wreck near Glendive, Mont., and are counting themselves exceedingly fortunate in escaping as they did.

One of the peculiarities of their trip to Portland, Or., and return was that both going and returning they were in wrecks. On the way out on the Great Northern the engine to the train jumped the track, and while no one was seriously injured, the passengers were all more or less frightened and somewhat shaken up.

GET MORE PENSIONS.

Residents of Congressman Steenerson's District Benefited.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 14.—Congressman Steenerson has received word from the pension department that the following pensions had been increased under the age law: Amos B. Watson of Ada, formerly of Company B, Seventh Minnesota, aged 75 years, increase to $20 per month; Perry Powers of Solway, formerly of Company E, First Wisconsin, 62 years, increase to $12 per month. A pension was granted to Mrs. Susan Plummer of Hawley, widow of Charles B. Plummer, who was a member of Company C, Brackett's batallion of Minnesota cavalry, of $12 per month. The last is an original pension and was granted under the law providing a pension for every widow of a Civil war veteran.

FAILURE CAUSES DEATH.

Once Trusted Banker Could Not Stand Turn of Fortune.

Depere, Wis., Aug. 14.—The funeral of John Smith was held yesterday. The private banker and real estate dealer who recently filed papers in bankruptcy with liabilities at over $30,000 and assets at about $1,000, suffered a stroke of paralysis several weeks ago and later was stricken with apoplexy.

John Smith was born in Holland and came to this country in 1869, settling at Depere and residing here all of the time since that year. He was a member of the school board for twenty-five years and served the city as mayor and an alderman. He was 62 years old.

Surviving him are his wife, six sons, two daughters, a brother living in Depere and a sister living in Holland. A number of Hollanders are the creditors of the deceased.

NOW UP TO FARMERS

Appeal Issued to St. Louis County Boosters to Send Exhibits.

State Fair Showing Depends on the People, Says Hostetter.

It is now up to the farmers and other St. Louis county boosters to decide whether the county shall have an exhibit of which it can be duly proud at the state fair or not. The Commercial club has purchased back the St. Louis County building on the grounds, which was forfeited through non-usage for the past three years, and has offered substantial prizes for the best exhibit. A. B. Hostetter has been placed in charge of the exhibit. He is a practical man with large experience in this line of work ,and if he has anything out of which to build up an attractive showing for the county it will have an advertisement which cannot be equalled.

"St. Louis county is trying to build up a reputation as an agricultural county," says Mr. Hostetter. "To do this she has got to prove that she can produce good crops of grain and of garden stuffs. The county has good farms with products of which she may well be proud. If we can get the farmers of the county interested enough to send their products in for the exhibit, we will have a showing second to none. Nothing could do more to boost the county."

Besides several money prizes, a free scholarship in the state agricultural school at Minneapolis is offered to the farmer's son who submits the best showing of agricultural products. A prize of $15 is offered for the best essay on the county.

Any one desiring to enter an exhibit for the St. Louis county collection may do so without expense to themselves by sending the things which they desire to enter to Mr. Hostetter at the Commercial club in Duluth.

LAUNCH UPSETS, FOUR DROWNING

Kilbourne, Wis., Aug. 14.—By the capsizing of a pleasure launch on the Wisconsin river yesterday afternoon, four Chicago people were drowned, as follows:

EDWARD G. PFEIFFER, 193 Emerson avenue, Chicago.

RALPH PFEIFFER, son of above.

MRS. W. G. HEATH, 556 Seminary avenue, Chicago.

The rescued are: Mrs. E. G. Pfeiffer, wife of drowned man; Miss Pfeiffer, daughter of drowned man and twin sister of Ralph; W. G. Heath, husband of Mrs. Heath; son of Mr. and Mrs. Heath; Gertie Ward, sister of Mabel Ward.

The launch contained nine people and was returning from a trip through the dells. Near the dock the boat got into the swash of a passing steamer and the launch capsized, throwing all the occupants into the water. The accident was seen by many people on the dock and bridge and a rescue at once was attempted with boats and launches, but four had sunk before aid arrived.

COMMISSION APPOINTED TO REBUILD QUEBEC BRIDGE

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 14.—A board of engineers has been appointed to rebuild the Quebec bridge which collapsed with a loss of eighty-four lives. Henry F. Vautelet, former bridge engineer of the Canadian Pacific railway and Maurice Fitzmaurice, chief engineer of the county council, England, are the first two members. Mr. Fitzmaurice was associated with Sir Benjamin Baker in the building of the Forth bridge and later he was in charge of the Assouan dam in Egypt. Ralph Modjestki of Chicago, Ill., is the third member of the commission.

GREATER PORTION OF TAFT, MONT., DESTROYED.

Missoula, Mont., Aug. 14.—The explosion of a kerosene lamp is responsible for a fire which broke out at 3:30 a. m. and destroyed the greater portion of the town of Taft, Mont., located about 100 miles west of this city and having a population of about 3,500. The fire was only extinguished by the most strenuous work on the part of the residents. The loss is estimated at $80,000, with no insurance.

Fifteen buildings were burned to the ground, including the Taft hotel, the Northern Pacific depot, a wholesale liquor store and two variety theaters. The principal losses were in the contents of the buildings, which as a general rule were flimsily constructed. Rebuilding operations have already been commenced.

TO TEST PRIMARY LAW.

Democrats of North Dakota Question Constitutionality of Act.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 14.—Attorneys Jeff Meyers, H. C. De Puy and T. D. Casey are in the city for the purpose of bringing an action to test the law requiring a 30 per cent vote to nominate Democratic candidates at the primary election.

The Democrats are anxious to have the question decided, as there are many county and legislative candidates who failed to secure enough votes at the primary election. Application will be made to Judge Templeton to cite County Auditor Anderson to show cause why the Democrats who failed should not go on the ballot. After a hearing and a decision by the district court the case will be appealed to the supreme court.

The Democrats are confident that they can get the per cent decision of the primary law declared unconstitutional. They assert the per cent is far too high.

DOUBLES CAPITAL STOCK.

Brainerd Corporation Has Enjoyed Good Business.

Brainerd, Minn,. Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Parker-Dunn corporation, which was organized a year ago, held its annual meeting Tuesday. All the directors and officers of the company were re-elected, as follows: Directors, C. M. Parker, M. T. Dunn, H. Ribbel; president, M. T. Dunn; vice president, C. N. Parker; secretary-treasurer, H. Ribbel.

In addition to the election of officers the increase of the capital stock of the corporation, from $20,000 to $40,000, was authorized. This corporation was organized for the purpose of building a building, to be occupied by the Citizens' State bank, and owing to the change in plans accompanying the change in location, it was necessary to increase the capital stock accordingly.

MANISTEE NEXT YEAR.

Menominee, Mich., Aug. 14.—After electing officers and selecting Manistee as the convention city in 1909, the Sheriffs, Prosecuting Attorneys and Chief of Police association of Michigan have adjourned. The officers are as follows:

POTATOES SELLING WELL.

Anoka, Minn., Aug. 14.—Anoka has been the banner potato market of this section the past week. Prices rose steadily until they have reached the price of 87 cents a bushel, and indications are that they still will go higher. A steady stream of tubers continue to come in, with a ready market for every one that comes into town. On account of the dry weather the potatoes are not as large as in former year, and the late crop will be very light.

Fargo Man Brings Back Very Encouraging Report.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. W. Austin of the Maxhimer-Austin Investment company has returned from a forty-five-mile trip through the country south of Fargo and said that while going over the country he paid particular attention to the condition of the wheat. "I found very little black rust in this section," said Mr. Austin. "One field was all that I saw that was damaged to any extent and that was completely ruined. This field was a summer fallow field and the wheat was very rank. Threshing will be generally started in about a week and about two more days will complete harvesting in this part of the country. The farmers in this section are all progressive, and the improvements are the best to be found in the valley."

WILL AMALGAMATE.

Manila, Aug. 14.—The veterans of the Army of the Philippines, now assembled in convention in this city, have unanimously indorsed a proposal to amalgamate the island organization with the United Spanish War Veterans of America in compliance with an agreement recently entered into at Washington, D. C.

MAYOR OPERATED ON.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—After suffering for many weeks with gall stones, Mayor Elliott of this city has submitted to an operation and is getting along finely. He has been unable to attend to the duties of the office for some time.

The marriage of Miss Julia Chesley, daughter of J. A. Chesley of this city, to Frank E. Kinney of Great Falls, Mont., is announced to occur Aug. 26.

MANKATOAN GETS FORTUNE.

Mankato, Minn., Aug. 14.—Clement Langer, a local street car conductor, has received a cablegram informing him of the sudden death of his father, Count Clement Langer of Gaberlhof, Styria, Austria.

The deceased owned a large estate in Austria, besides a large rubber tire factory. Mr. Langer of this city is the only son and falls heir to the entire estate, his two sisters being married and already having received their portions.

DULUTHIANS ON VISIT.

International Falls, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—A jolly bunch of Duluth young men visited in town over Tuesday. In the party were C. E. McNamara, Charles Farrell, Gilbert McCarthy and Grant McLean. W. E. Lawrence showed them the points of interest and they left for a few days' trip up the lake. They will return to Duluth by taking the boat to Rainy River, thence to Kenora, and across Lake Superior from Port Arthur to Duluth.

HELP THE STRICKEN!

"Shall it come to this," asks Father M. O' Brien of Graceville, a member of the committee appointed by Governor Johnson to solicit aid for the ruined and helpless people of Clinton, Minn., "that those who are left, maimed and helpless, will envy their dead?"

Shall it come to this, that the cry of the stricken shall go unheeded in Minnesota, and that citizens of this state shall suffer want to go unrelieved?

Two months ago a cyclone devastated the little town of Clinton. An appeal for aid was made, and as is now disclosed, the response was trifling. Duluth, it is said, contributed but $10. Weeks after the event, in prosperous and contented Minnesota, the injured and the homeless still suffer.

This second appeal must not go unheeded in Duluth, the third city of the state. At last night's meeting of the public affairs' committee of the Duluth Commercial club, the club started a subscription list for this noble purpose. Today The Herald starts another one, heading it with a contribution of $25. The generous citizens of Duluth, who have responded so often and so nobly to the cry of need, are asked to contribute once more. The cause is worthy. The need is immediate.

Those who desire to take a handful of their plenty and give it to the destitute sufferers of Clinton are asked to send their gifts to The Herald—or to the Duluth Commercial club if they are members of that organization. In either event the money will be forwarded promptly to the relief committee. The need of a quick response to the appeal from Clinton is emphasized by the fact that two months after the catastrophe, only $12,000 has been received at Clinton, when five times that sum will only soften the harsher pains of the stricken.

THE ROORBACK.

One of the most engaging adjuncts of the American political campaign is the campaign lie, otherwise known as the "roorback." The name is very familiar, and there is scarcely a campaign, no matter how unimportant, in which it is not used to a greater or less extent, yet probably very few people know the origin of the term.

The roorback dates back to 1844, when James K. Polk was conducting a campaign for the presidency against Henry Clay in which he succeeded in defeating the Whig idol. In the heat of the campaign appeared a story, authenticated by a mysterious "Baron Roorbach," in which Polk was accused of selling to the Duck river slave drivers forty-three negroes upon whose shoulders he had branded the initials of his name.

Great was the excitement, of course, because while slavery was still a recognized institution, and the outcry against it came only from the despised Abolitionists, it was not a pretty thing, even then, for a man to brand slaves. The Polk partisans ran the story to earth, found that there was no such person as Baron Roorbach, and as usual the slander redounded to the benefit of the victim when the American spirit of fair play was stirred by the discovery that the tale was wholly untrue.

Ever since then campaign stories have been labelled "roorbacks," though in later years the term has been used more generally as referring to slanders peddled about so late in the campaign that the candidates have no chance to refute them.

The tendency of the average voter is to reject instantly such stories and to credit them to the overenthusiasm of political opponents. This is always a safe rule. Personalities are not bandied in political campaigns the way they used to be, and this is due not only to the fact that we have grown more polite, but to the more important fact that such campaigning doesn't pay. When campaign lies are spread against a candidate the public always discounts them because of their obvious source; and if they are particularly atrocious and defamatory, they usually react to the disadvantage of the candidate whose friends started them. This may often work out unfairly, at that; because it is scarcely just to blame a candidate for the mistakes of his fool friends. Yet that is the fortune of war, and as candidates always have been held so responsible, they probably always will be. The "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" of the unhappy Rev. Burchard, which had so much to do with defeating Blaine, could not justly be attributed to the man it injured, yet the voters who resented its silly malice had but one object upon which to vent their dissatisfaction, and that was the candidate whose fool friend uttered the damaging phrase.

It is a safe rule for the voter to be suspicious of personal accusations against candidates, especially if they are whispered instead of being uttered publicly. If there is anything bad about a candidate's record, it is better to come out in the open with it than to spread it stealthily; though so suspicious have the voters become of personalities that dealing in them is like playing with edged tools: they often cut both ways.

AN EMPTY ARGUMENT.

Says the Omaha Bee: "In his many addresses on the subject, Mr. Bryan has found no time to answer the argument advanced by Mr. Taft that the plan of guaranteeing bank deposits removes all safeguards against recklessness in banking."

If Mr. Bryan devotes any time to answering this argument, he will be making a pure waste of time and opportunity; for the argument answers itself: upon its face, it is no argument at all.

What safeguards are there now against recklessness in banking? The integrity of the banker, the effectiveness of laws regulating the banking business, and the vigilance of the officials whose duty it is to enforce these laws. Would the adoption of the guaranty plan repeal or obstruct any of these safeguards? It most assuredly would not; it would not lessen the native integrity of the bankers, it would not render less effective the present laws on banking methods, and it would not make public officials less vigilant.

On the other hand, by giving all bankers a greater concern in the methods used by their associates and competitors, it would provide a new check upon reckless and dishonest methods; for the banker who knew that if his competitor failed he would have to bear a share of the loss through the tax which would provide the guaranty fund, would watch his competitors more closely, and speak more readily if he saw anything wrong. This would lead to a strengthening of the banking laws all along the line, and the new interest of the bankers, combined with the interest of the public, would make public officials more alert than ever before.

The claim that the adoption of the deposit guaranty plan would make bankers reckless amounts to a charge that bankers are now kept from being reckless and dishonest only by fear that their depositors will lose money; which amounts to an assertion that bankers have no care for their own reputations and for the stability and permanence of their banks. This is not logical, not just to the bankers, and not borne out by the facts; for bankers who abhor recklessness and dishonesty do it not only because they are constituted that way, but because they owe an obligation to their stockholders and to their own personal reputations quite as great as that which they owe to their depositors.

If the deposit guaranty plan is rejected, it will not be because of this argument, therefore. The only Duluth banker who has replied to The Herald's many arguments for the deposit guaranty plan repudiated with some indignation the argument that it would make bankers reckless; in doing which he showed a greater knowledge of bankers and banking methods and objects than Mr. Taft shows in making this absurd criticism of the plan.

CARELESS CONVENTIONS.

The Saturday Evening Post, in a sharply sarcastic editorial, aptly criticises the recent Republican and Democratic conventions for their lack of care shown in the nominations for vice president. There is nothing absolutely damning to be said about either of the vice presidential candidates, though Sherman is known to be an active associate of the unpopular Cannon congressional machine; but neither of these men would have stood the remotest show of nomination for the presidency, and the conventions should never forget that the man elected vice president may become president through the death of the head of the ticket.

Says the Saturday Evening Post: "No posltive fault can be found with either party's candidate for the vice presidency. Mr. Johnson, the Republican nominee, is highly spoken of by his neighbors in Yonkers. He comes of good American stock and has arisen by force of genius and stability of character from comparative indigence and obscurity to the position, which he now honorably holds, of elder in the First Presbyterian church and director in the First National bank.

"Mr. Robinson, his competitor on the Democratic ticket, is as well recommended. His home life is above reproach, and in South Bend, where he lives, he has scarcely an enemy. In fact, ever since the nomination the city has been illuminated nightly by the electric light and power company in which he is a leading stockholder. Though a lawyer by profession, he has frequently given his time and thought to the advancement of his native city. It is recalled that he was one of the founders of the South Bend Silver Cornet band."

In other words, Kern—masquerading as nondescript Mr. Robinson, and Sherman—disguised as commonplace Mr. Johnson, are mediocre candidates; and of this there can be no question. Neither will add particular strength to the ticket, though Republicans hope that Sherman will bring the New York reactionaries into line because of his reactionary sympathies, while Democrats hope that Kern's local popularity will bring the Indiana electoral vote into the Democratic camp.

It is possible that either of these men, in the event that death removed the fortunate William who is elected—though both Bryan and Taft have, very fortunately, the most excellent health—would make a satisfactory president; but this isn't a matter which ought to be left to chance. The carelessness of both conventions in this matter leaves a way open for the possible introduction of a very unsatisfactory president.

"No positive fault can be found with these nominations," concludes the Saturday Evening Post; "nor should we cavil at the swapping of jackknives and marbles among the delegates by which the nominations were brought about. On merely sentimental grounds, however, the action of the conventions in a matter involving a possible successor to the office of Washington and Lincoln might be criticised as scarcely adequate. Indeed, one might see therein two typical illustrations of that deep sense of public responsibility with which a good, average crowd of politicians will act when the public isn't looking, or isn't caring."

A TRENCHANT APPEAL.

The president's address, delivered by J. L. Washburn to the Minnesota State Bar association yesterday, was an unusually earnest and forceful appeal by a lawyer to lawyers, calling upon them to be upon their guard, in these perilous times of change, against such too careless application of the reformer's knife as may do harm that will more than offset the good. It was no cry of reaction, however—no attempt to head off progress: it was merely the expression of an earnest hope that progress, in its course, may be guided aright. It should be read by lawyers and laymen alike.

One point touches upon an issue as to which there is much confusion in the minds of laymen, if not of lawyers. "I am one of those who do not believe that the judicial function should be exercised in the manner that the Arab sheik determines matters of dispute," said Mr. Washburn; "arbitrarily and in accordance with what he considers right between the disputants without regard to other citizens or litigants, past, present or future. Such determinations, while not unrighteous of themselves, often make bad law, destroy the guides the law should furnish to others as a rule of conduct and leave the practitioner in doubt as to what course of conduct he may advise his clients to pursue." This is the professional side of a controversy which appears in the layman's mouth as an outcry against the dead body of precedent which hampers the operations of the courts and frustrates justice. The layman, especially if he is a defeated litigant whose case has been distorted—as he rightly or wrongly thinks—to suit precedent instead of justice, finds it difficult to see that side of it; yet it is probable that without the practice for which Mr. Washburn appeals, legal chaos and a formless anarchy of practice would develop.

Yet if practical justice is served in each case, instead of precedent, does not the need of precedent tend to disappear? A righteous decision which is abhorrent to precedent may be awkward if the next judge in a similar case consults precedent; but if he in his turn seeks justice and disregards precedent, where is the harm?

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Do you know the way they fight fires in some of the big buildings in New York?" asked H. A. Reves, an insurance man of New York city, of the desk clerk of the Lenox last evening. That worthy answered that he supposed that they fought fires in the regulation way. The insurance man informed him that they had developed a new wrinkle in the fighting of fires in the tall skyscrapers.

"This new way to fight fires was tried out at a recent fire in Park Row," said Mr. Reeves. "The question was been often asked what would happen should a blaze start in one of the tall buildings, the top stories of which it would be impossible to reach by ladders? Well, a partial answer to the question was given the other day. A fire, as I said, started in an upper story of one of the largest buildings on Park Row. Some one conceived the brilliant idea of carrying the firemen up in the elevators. No sooner was the idea suggested than it was put in execution.

"The elevators of the big building were kept working at lightning-like speed and in almost less time than it takes to tell it, there were a score of fire laddies on the scene. The fire didn't happen to be more than a small blaze, so that the new fire fighting method could not be given a very practical demonstration. However, a new idea was given birth, and this act of carrying men and apparatus to the top stories of buildings may prove, in a measure, an answer to the question of how fires are to be fought in the big skyscrapers."

Baseball players often have a funny line of slang. Where this manner of diamond expression originated, no one has ever been able to explain in a satisfactory manner. Some of it dates back to the reign of "King" Kelly, while much of it comes from players who are in the game from the "Midnight" league of Western Canada, to the two big leagues. It is part of the game and most of it comes from the minds of the players.

Two players were talking baseball at the Lenox last night.

Said the first player: "Gee, that guy that got his Henry Hyde handed to him the other day was a stingy guy. He wouldn't spend enough to buy a pair of leggins for a mocking bird. You'd t'ink he was going to buy a section of land valued at $100 per acre the way he gloms onto his kale. He was flopin wid' me on the first trip, and I t'ink he had magnets sewed into his jeens, from the way his hands got stiff at the joints when I asked him for the loan of a beaner when me fingers was sore a feelin' for a nickel for to buy a high one. That boy was playing close to home plate all the time; he didn't make any sacrifice hits, and I'll bet he had a saving bank average of .359."

The drift of this conversation meant that the player who had been released was a frugal chap; one who read the paper some traveling man had left in a chair, avoided the bright lights and planted the pay envelope against a day when Mother Nature opened the heavens and poured forth rains of adverse circumstances.

Then the other player spake thusly: "The old scout was a cloutin' some today, boy. I was in the hole for two and he was a heavin' that ball up to the pan about the size of a shriveled pea. He was a workin' the corners like a bunco boy worker at a home coming, and when the ball went by me it looked small enough to whirl around a million years in a mosquito's eggs without getting any eggshell fuzz on the cover of the horsehide. He had me weakness pegged without readin' any notes, and I was as stiff as the dialogue of a retired parson and a Boston school marm, missing his fadeaway benders. Then he got chesty and split the grove. I hit the pellet on the plcalo and when he found out his mistake I was making a bow to the grandstand."

The above, in its translated form, meant that the player with the colloquial English had been deceived by the wierd delivery of the opposing pitcher. Suddenly, however, that gentleman had become overconfident and had desisted from the use of curves, throwing one straight ball over the center of the plate. The player thereupon smote the sphere over the fence. Had Noah Webster lived in the days of baseball terms, he might have thought that he had worked in vain.

The reception of "Duke," the tramp dog, who, by his protracted absence from "our midst," has all but moved the municipal authorities to adopt action looking to the proper commemoration of his demise, was indeed a joyous one, when he walked into the lobby of the Spalding hotel the other day. It is doubtful if Mr. Taft received a more joyous welcome or a more sincerely hearty acclaim, than did "Duke."

He was greeted by old friends upon all sides. His stumpy tail was indeed inadequate to give vent to the pent up feelings of the long lost canine. He overstepped his usual observance of the rules of canine decorum, and gave a shrill, joyous bark. The only times that "Duke" is known to bark, is at elephants and street cars. Elephants are subjects of wrathful rivalry to him, because they attract more attention than he does—while street cars in general have incurred his displeasure because conductors used to kick the pride of Superior street unceremoniously from the platform, after "Duke" had made a flying leap thereupon.

Yes, the reception, impromptu, though it was, was hearty and spontaneous and almost repaid "Duke" for the lonesome days he must have spent far from home. Old friends were greeted and new ones made, and if the prediction that there be no heaven for dogs be true, then "Duke" surely has had his mite of joy upon this mundane sphere.

THE WEATHER.

The weather man expects northeast winds and occasional showers, besides cool temperatures tonight and tomorrow. It was beautiful yesterday, with a maximum temperature of 72 degs. and a minimum last night of 62 degs., and this mornign it was cloudy, with a gentle rain falling, which kept up most of the forenoon.

A year ago today it was clear, cool and fine.

The sun rose this morning at 5:04 and sets tonight at 7:21, making 14 hours and 17 minutes of sunlight.

The weather bureau at Washington has issued a general forecast, covering Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, which follows: "A barometric disturbance will advance from the Rocky Mountain district to the Atlantic coast from Aug. 14 to 18, crossing the plains states Saturday, the central valleys and lake region Sunday and Monday, and the Atlantic states Monday and Tuesday, preceded by rising temperature, attended by rains that will cover the corn and spring wheat states, and followed by a period of lower temperatures."

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "A disturbance of moderate intensity is central over Utah. During the past 24 hours it has caused light to coplous rains in Minnesota, the Ohio valley and throughout the greater portion of the country west of the 95th Meridian. Temperatures have not changed materially, cool weather continuing in the Northwest, while in the Central Valley states it is rather warm. The barometer is highest over Western Ontario. Showery and cool weather may be expected at the Head of the Lakes tonight and Saturday.

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

If I Can Live.

If I can live
To make some pale face brighter, and to give
A second luster to some tear-dimmed eye,
Or e'en impart
One throb of comfort to an aching heart,
Or clicer some wayworn soul in passing by,

If I can lend
A strong hand to the fallen, or defend
The right against a single envious strain,
My life, though bare,
Perhaps, of much that seemeth dear and fair
To us of earth, will not have been in vain.

The purest joy,
Most near to heaven, far from earth's alloy,
Is bidding cloud gtre way to sun and shinel
And 'twill be well.
If on that day of days the angels tell
Of me, she did her best for one of Thine.

—HELEN HUNT JACKSON.

The New Leadership.

Baltimore News, Independent: Day by day, as the campaign develops, it becomes increasingly evident that the presidential candidates of the two great parties are both making honest and intelligent effort to crystallize into their thought, their utterances and their policies the best moral deductions that are to be drawn from study of present-day public opinion. They are aiming to interpret rather than to originate, to convince the voting public that they understand what it has on its mind rather than to induce it to accept what is in their minds.

It is a fine tribute to the accuracy and reliability of public opinion that Messrs. Taft and Bryan are paying. They recognize that, rather gropingly, rather uncertainly, the public mind is reaching out for better morals in politics, in business, in the relationship of man to man, of man to business, and of business to government. They are not trying to convince the voting mass that they know what it needs; they are endeavoring to demonstrate that they understand what it expects of them. They are not posing as leaders, but as translators and spokesmen.

Whatever may be said of the comparative merits of their platforms, the two men are proving that they understand what public opinion is demanding. It has been a footrace between them to announce concessions to the essentials which an aroused public conscience demands. Publicity of campaign contributions; refusal to accept money from corporations; determination that politics shall be lifted to a new moral plane; earnest purpose to secure application of the same moral code to the bigger and less personal relations of society as well as to the smaller and more personal—these are echoed alike from Lincoln and from Hot Springs.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

•••The St. Paul & Duluth road has finally refused to go into the agreement to make the same rates between St. Paul and the seaboard via Duluth, as Chicago lines make via Chicago. The effect will be to prevent the contemplated advance in rates in the Northwest.

•••John P. Mather, a well known and highly respected citizen, died about 5 o'clock this morning, from heart trouble. He has been ill for nearly two months. Mr. Mather was 48 years of age, was born in Lebanon, Ohio, and lived for a number of years at Richmond, Ind. For three years prior to coming to Duluth in March, 1887, he was county superintendent of schools at Warsaw, Ind. He leaves a wife, sister of Mrs. L. M. Willcuts, and three children. The body will be taken to Indiana for burial.

•••The telegraph announces the death by drowning at Cheboygan, Mich., of Lyman Morey, formerly of Duluth. He was a young man of unusual ability. He began his newspaper career on The Herald five years ago, went from here to the Tribune and News and three years ago became telegraph editor of the Minneapolis Journal. Since then he has been on newspapers in Detroit and St. Johns, Mich.

•••Two days ago telephone connection was made between Duluth and St. Paul and Minneapolis over the wires of the North American Telegraph company. Manager Fuller of the telegraph company and Manager Van Brunt of the local telephone company were both in conversation with the officials of the telephone exchanges of the Twin Cities, and no trouble was experienced in hearing what was said. This trial of long distance telephoning was the decisive step in the formation of a company, which will soon have telephone wires in operation between the important cities of the state. The line between Duluth and St. Paul will cost between $65,000 and $70,000.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Floodwood Broadaxe: The way some of the brethren are throwing stones at the Princeton Union, one would think that Brother Dunn was still a candidate for governor. We have been told that Bob is dead and buried, so why can't you give him a little earth for charity.

Eveleth News: The new Independence party will at least bear watching, even if Willie Hearst is its father.

Albert Lea Tribune: If the pernicious that a man must have served for years before he can wield any influence were destroyed, every individual would take the place where he belongs with in a few weeks after he entered on his first term. We hear much of the influence the old members wield in congress, but the only foundation for it is that as soon as a man has reached a certain number of years' service he becomes a member of the autocracy of the national legislature, and when he does that, it is usually at the expense of his district and his constituents.

Virginia Enterprise: Jacobson admonishes the Republicans to work for the balance of the ticket as well as for the governorship, averring that he does not desire to be elected unless the balance of the ticket and a Republican legislature is pulled through with him. If Mr. Jacobson will but interview his chief of staff, Bob Dunn, on the political history of Minnesota, he will doubtless learn that aside from the loss of the governorship a couple of trips, the Republican party of Minnesota has yet to book a losing. Let Jacobson and the managers look after Jacobson, lest history again repeat itself.

Northfield News: Men who inssit on giving more than $10,000 to a campaign fund will be pleased to hear that the Prohibitionists have not yet put a limit on their game.

Cass Lake Times: More than half of the Republican exchanges that come to our table have taken a decided stand against the nomination of Ira B. Mills for railroad and warehouse commissioner, and almost as many more are silent. Who can see no reason why this one candidate should be selected for slaughter when others on the ticket were nominated by the same influences. If the Republicans wanted reform spelled with a big R they should have begun with the head of the ticket and followed down the line with the nomination of men who would and could perform as required.

Brainerd Tribune: There will probably be more independent voting in this country this fall than ever before. The people are getting very tired of steam-roller methods in politics.

Willmar Journal: Who cares if Jake Jacobson eats his pie with his knife? That cuts no figure, but if Jake is elected, it is a safe guess that Bob Dunn will do the pie-eating and at the same time "do" the people. Jake will appoint Dunn as a six-year member of the tax commission, and then the "interests" will take great delight in seeing Dunn "eat the pie," but, judging from the care Dunn took of the interests of the "interests" when he was state auditor, Jake's election and Dunn's appointment on the tax commission will be the greatest calamity that has befallen the people of Minnesota in recent years.

"Nothing whatever," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "A candidate nowadays should be sufficiently popular to make his magazine articles and copyright photographs supply his own campaign funds."

JAKE'S AWKWARD ISSUE.

Crookston Times (Rep.): It is hard to believe that the Republican candidate for governor made the statements accredited to him in the public press of the state at the occasion of a banquet in Duluth. He is credited with making a point against the present Democratic administration on the ground that the expenses of the state have increased and that the number of employes and appointees has been materially enlarged.

In making such a statement Mr. Jacobson must know that he cannot make such a charge stick against the present administration unless he at the same time brings indictment against both the senate and the house of the recent sessions of the legislature, and as these were overwhelmingly Republican, he is placed in the light of criticising the members of his own party to whom he must necessarily look for his most effectual support.

As a matter of fact, whatever appropriations were made for the maintenance of the state government and its institutions will have to be charged up to the Republican party, and any increase in the number of state employes must be credited to the Republican party, who introduced and passed practically every measure that is written upon the state's statute books or appeared in the form of appropriations.

We cannot make ourselves believe that Mr. Jacobson really said what he is credited with saying in his Duluth speech, or, if he did, he permitted his enthusiasm to carry him away and did not give reign to his better judgment. There is no doubt that the Republican committee would not stand for such a campaign, for in the first place, there is no evidence of extravagance, nor is there any reason to believe that the multitudinous affairs of the state can possibly be conducted on a more economical scale at the present time.

There is no effort being made to hide the fact that the state's expense account has greatly increased, and there is no inclination to cover the fact that at the present time it has more men on the payroll than formerly. The Republican party is responsible for this condition of affairs and there should be no effort to shirk the responsibility.

We have not heard of the Democrats presenting for the consideration of the people any such issue, although we are inclined to believe that it might come with better grace from them than from the Republicans. The people of the state do not want extravagance in the administration of the state's affairs, and on the other hand they do not want parsimony in dealing with the legitimate functions of the commonwealth. The Republican party in state and nation is a party of growth, of development, of expansion, and when its leaders begin to talk repression and such doctrines, then it will lose hold upon a great majority of its voters. All that the people want to know is that any increase in expense is necessary for the proper development of the state, and that it is honestly expended. This is a task which is up to the Republican party to demonstrate and we have no hesitation in stating that it is ready and most willing to meet the issue.

SOX TAKE LAST GAME

Northern League Dies Peaceful Death With Few Fans Attending.

Dick Thorsen Harpoons Maroons Once More and Sox Win.

Two ball teams and a handful of tearful fans gathered at Athletic park yesterday for the funeral services over the Northern league, at least as far as Duluth is concerned. The organization was buried far down in the earth, so that it will not rise again this season. At the same time, another shovelful of earth was taken from the grave, which the Sox assisted in digging, for Eddie Herr's red clad Maroons. Though the spirit of revenge may be savage, it rules supreme when Duluth and Winnipeg clash, and the Sox were just full of it yesterday.

The southpaw had the call again, with Dick Thorsen doing the flinging. He tied Herr's men up in knots and rolled them from the plate to the bench. "Coming back!" was the call every time the ball was hit, and usually the Maroons were coming back before they started. They swallowed the hook Dick cast at them, bait and all, and were hauled in with a flapping and wriggling that was good to behold, but hard on the runners up for the flag.

As the last Northern league game of the season on the local lot, the contest was worth seeing as a curiosity. Purely as a baseball game, it lacked a good many things that go to make the game popular. There was no snap to it. Both teams wanted the game, but didn't have the gumption to go after it, and not until young Winans broke the traces and started at breakneck speed down the highway that leads to release, did anybody have a chance to grab the big end of the score.

It was Winans' first appearance on the local lot, and he didn't cut a very wide swath. Roundhouse balls that left his hand and ended up against the fire in front of the grand stand, were his specialty, and Ulrich worked so hard in the early innings that he finally went to sleep and didn't even try to cut off stolen bases. Eddie Herr removed the hook from its place of concealment once, put Glencke in the wings to wait for a cue, and prepared to use the instrument of torture, but Winans saw the cunning, picked up his lines and went through to the finish.

The Sox started things in the second, when Wescott drew a walk, stole second and scored on Schaefer's two bagger over Chesty Cox's head. The Maroons evened it up in the third when Bond scored on a passed ball on the third strike, a sacrice and a single. That was the last acquaintance the Maroons made with the plate. For the remainder of the game R. Thorsen, West Duluth, Minn., was on the job with a certain left whip and he used it to ornane the wild, woolly youths from the plains of Manitoba, who would fain prevent the Sox from pulling off the league obsequies as they saw fit.

Winans blew up with a loud noise in the fifth. He handed out passes like a circus press agent and a few, who couldn't get the comps, crawled in under the tent. The Sox started for forty-seven runs, but took three and were content. They didn't believe in sending the Maroons back to Winnipeg too badly beaten by a gang that is going to the bushes.

Hopkins was the man to take first on Winans' bounty and Monroe rapped one for two sacks after Hopkins had stolen second, sending in one score. Ness walked and O'Brien followed with a single that scored Monroe. Williams and Wescott walked in succession and Ness was forced across the plate. There were three on bases and nobody down and Glencke was pumping his arm off trying to get warm. Schaefer and Thorsen were both too light in the pinch and Koepping popped a dinky foul that was gathered in by Ulrich.

That was all and enough. The Sox rested on their laurels, pegged the Maroons out as quickly as they came to bat and left the Northern league with the consolation of having once more trimmed the ambitious pets of the Manitoba metropolis.

SUPERIOR IS FIRST TEAM

White Sox Will Take on Amateurs Saturday and Sunday.

Invasion of the Ranges Will Begin Next Week.

INDEPENDENT SCHEDULE.

Aug. 15—Superior at Duluth.
Aug. 16—Superior at Duluth; Fitwells at Duluth.
Aug. 18, 19 and 20—Duluth at Hibbing.
Aug. 21, 22, 23 and 24—Hibbing at Duluth.
Aug. 25, 26 and 27—Eveleth at Duluth.
Aug. 28, 29, 30 and 31—Virginia at Duluth.
Sept. 1, 2 and 3—Duluth at Eveleth.
Sept. 4, 5 and 6—Duluth at Virginia.
Sept. 7—Labor day—Eveleth at Duluth.

The Duluth White Sox, members of the Northern league, but not playing in the Northern league on account of lack of opponents, will open their independent schedule tomorrow, when the Superior City team will open a series of two games here. Sunday, both the Superior City team and the Fitwells of Duluth will be taken on by the Sox, the first game going on at 2:30.

The Superior City team is made up of the pick of the ball players across the bay. It has defeated the Fitwells in two out of three games and has made a good showing against some of the fast independent teams of the range. The Fitwell game will be the big game of Sunday, however. The local amateurs are anxious to beat the Sox. Their friends are backing them against the leaguers and the crowd will all split up in its partisanship. Earl Cummings, who recently returned from International Falls, where he has been pitching this summer, will pitch for the Fitwells, and with him in the box the clothing men usually put up a good argument.

Next week the invasion of the ranges will begin and with it there will be war. The range fans have always figured that their teams are faster than the Northern leaguers. The Sox are representative of the league and if they can get away with the big end of every series, they will prove the superiority of league ball.

Hibbing will first be invaded and then Hibbing will come here. Eveleth follows and then Virginia, after which the Sox will go to Eveleth and Virginia to meet the wonders of the range on their own grounds.

The present members of the Sox will be held together. The Duluth team is still a member of the Northern league and the players are under contract, so that they cannot leave the team without blacklisting themselves any more than they could if they were playing league ball. Thorsen, Murray and Brandt will do the pitching and Schaefer the catching for the series with the Independents, and the local management hasn't any fear that the Sox will not get the big end of every series.

FAST BOATS WILL RACE

With favorable weather, the clubs of the city will be busy tomorrow with their various branches of sport. The big event of the day, from a sporting standpoint will be a handicap motor boat race at the Duluth Boat club, in which the fast power boats of the harbor will all be entered. The supremacy in that class of craft, which has been in the air for two years, will probably be definitely decided and the followers of motor boat racing will be out in force to see it.

The Robert B. and Buster are new entries in the harbor this year, but they have shown speed enough to be contestants for the motor boat honors. Last year, the North Butte and Doman raced, with unsatisfactory results, as the owners of both claimed the victory. The Robert B. is a 60-horse power boat and the Buster a 40-horse power boat. Both have shown great speed and the undisputed superiority of the Doman and North Butte have had over the other motor boats is in danger of being dissolved.

Besides the motor boat race, there will be the customary program of aquatic sports, including swimming, rowing and war canoe races. The entertainment is provided especially for the members of the Minnesota Bar association and they will be given a complete exhibition of the place water holds in the enjoyment of summer in Duluth.

There will be the regular sailing races at the Duluth Yacht club, all of the competitions being private. Interest at the club centers in the Inland Lake Yachting association races at Lake Minnetonka next week and until they are over, there will be little doing at the club.

At the Northland Country club, there will be open house for the members, whose initial is from A to L, the remainder to hold open house a week from tomorrow. For the entertainment of the guests, there will bea golf tournament and other features.

EASY FOR PAPKE.

Boston, Aug. 14.—Bill Papke of Illinois made short work of two bouts at the Armory Athletic club's meet last night. John Carroll of Brooklyn, who was the first to meet him, was so severely punished in the second round that the referee stopped the fight. In the second bout Frank Mantell of Pawtucket, R. I., went down and out in the first round.

BIG CREWS WILL MEET

St. Louis, Detroit and St. Paul Will Represent the West.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 14.—Nearly 20 oarsmen, representing thirty clubs in this country and Canada, will exhibit their aquatic skill on the Connecticut river during the next two days in the various events of the national regatta.

There will be fourteen events, singles, doubles, pairs, fours and eights shells and a war canoe race. Several contests will be rowed each day and the great race, the senior single skulls for the championship, will take place just before the close on Saturday. All the races except the eight oared events will be a mile and a half long with a turn.

The regatta begins today with the intermediate race for intermediate four oared shells at 2:30 p. m., followed half an hour later by the association single sculls. Then at half hour intervals will come the senior international fours, the intermediate double sculls, the intermediate pair oared sculls, the senior double sculls and the intermediate eight oared shells. On Saturday the regatta will open with the senior four oared shells, followed by the intermediate centipede race, the intermediate single sulls, the war canoe, the championship senior single sculls, the senior pair oared shells and the senior eight oared shells.

Word was received last night that owing to poor railroad arrangements the two Toronto clubs will be unable to attend the regatta.

Clubs which will be represented at the regatta are, the West Philadelphia boat club, the St. Louis rowing club, the Detroit boat club, the Minnesota boat club of St. Paul, and Vesper club of Philadelphia.

The Duluth White Sox have played and won their last Northern league game, and leave league ball for this season with a percentage of .500

Fans may kick that Duluth didn't win the pennant, but they certainly cannot say the team discredited the city or didn't make at least a fair showing. Under the .500 mark is a poor place for any team. The Sox were under it often. On their return from Canada after the last trip they were away under it, but they came up with a rush, swept Fargo and Brandon before them, and regained the charmed half-and-half mark which is coveted by all ball teams. Above that there is hope, but under nothing but despair.

The Sox had a lot of hard luck, there is no denying. A poor manager at the start, pitchers who couldn't win games, an outfield that was a joke, and the necessity of coaching up young players faced the team all the way through. When Williams took hold he set the team to playing ball, and they have been playing ever since. They have lost games, but nobody can say they didn't work for the victories. The team quits the league with a clean record of honest endeavor, and no man or ball team can do more than his best.

The fans will rather welcome the change from league to independent ball at this time. The four club league gave too many series with the same team and made the series too long. The range fans, press and players have done a lot of talking, with the Northern league as the butt of it usually. They figure that the range clubs are so far ahead in baseball ability that Northern league is all a joke.

They will have ample opportuunity to prove their contentions. The same Duluth team that broke even in its games in the Northern league will face every important team on the range and if the range clubs can win a majority of the games, Duluth fans will admit that the high salaried teams up there are real ball teams and not aggregations of misfit stars.

Great indeed, will be the joy in Virginia, Hibbing and Eveleth if the proud leaguers can be humbled by the independent aggregations. Duluth fans hardly believe it possible. Such men as Graham and Gilligan will probably get away with a few games, but if the slugging Brandon Angels cannot hit Dick Thorsen, how can the range teams hope to beat him?

The above is the rule Umpire Ollie Anderson gives to support his calling Hopkins out at third last Monday, when Williams, who was coaching at third base, invaded the diamond. Anderson says he called Hopkins out because Williams interferred with the play at second base. In that event, Monroe, who was running for second, should have been declared out. Anderson, however, holds that the man nearest home is the man to be declared out. The rule undoubtedly covers the case in some way, and Anderson was all right in calling somebody out. Williams had no right in the diamond and even if there was a rule to cover it, somebody should have been taken off the bases.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

Olympic Athletes Make New Records and Sail for America.

Queenstown, Aug. 14.—Prior to sailing for New York, several of the athletes who recently competed in the Olympic games at London gave an exhibition on the Promenade Quay here last night and in each of the events established new records. Ralph Rose of San Francisco put the 16-pound shot 51 feet 1½ inches. Walsh of Canada threw the 56-pound weight for height 16 feet, 3½ inches, and John Flanagan, Irish-American A. C., threw the 56-pound weight 39 feet, 3 inches.

Sailing aboard the steamer Oceanic for New York yesterday were John J. Hayes, Irish-American A. C., who won the Marathon race, and M. J. Ryan and J. B. Taylor of the same club.

FLY CASTING TOURNEY.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The International torunament of clubs devoted to bait and fly casting, began at Washington park in this city today under the auspices of the National Association of Scientific Angling clubs. Prizes wil be given for distance, but most of the contests are to test the accuracy of the cast.

A feature of the program today was a try for accuracy in casting a dry fly. No previous competition of the kind has ever been held in a regular tournament. The tournament will conclude tomorrow.

IS ENTERED IN REGATTA

Duluth Yachtsmen Will Attend Inland Lake Association Events.

The yacht Young America, winner of the series of races with the Minotaur for the honor of representing the Duluth Yacht club at the Inland Lake regatta at Lake Minnetonka next week, was shipped to Minneapolis yesterday, and tomorrow the crew will go down to prepare her for the races, which will begin Monday.

The Young America is owned by Fred Smith, and will be sailed in her races at Lake Minnetonka by J. A. Roth, Charles Ruolo, Lester Phips and Sibley Macdonald. A number of members of the Duluth club will attend the races, which promise to be the most interesting in the history of the association. It was at first thought that the Duluth club would also enter the winner of the series for 18-footers, but the series is not decided, and the Young America will be the only Duluth boat in the races.

The members of the Minnetonka Yacht club are making big preparations for the entertainment of the visitors. Every effort will be made to pull off the regatta without a hitch, and the program is so arranged as to furnish the best entertainment and be of the most convenience to the visiting yachtsmen.

Following is the program:

SATURDAY, AUG. 15.

Class A—M. Y. C. trophy cups.
Class B—M. Y. C. trophy cups.
Class C—M. Y. C. trophy cups.
Two prizes in each class.
Open to all I. L. Y. A. yachts.

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Aug. 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, I. L. Y. A. championship series. Classes A, B and C. First and second prizes in each class.

SATURDAY, AUG. 22.

Annual cruise of M. Y. C. Open to all sailing and power launches on Lake Minnetonka. Every boat required to carry at least one lady passenger. Basket picnic at Chapman's. Sail boats, in classes, will race from starting buoy to buoys off Chapman's.

Two prizes (silver cups and pennants) will be given in each class.

Silver cups will be given as prizes to the best and second best decorated launches.

After picnic all boats will return as they please.

BIG BENEFIT FOR CY YOUNG

Boston, Aug. 14.—Nearly 20,000 persons from all over the New England states attended yesterday's benefit game for Denton Tecumseh (Cy) Young of Paoli, Ohio, the Boston American league baseball team's veteran pitcher, at the American league grounds. Three silver loving cups, a traveling bag and two big floral pieces were presented to Young. The largest cup was given to Mr. Young by his many admirers through a local newspaper. Lieutenant Governor Draper made the presentation. Manager Fielder Jones of the Chicago American club, presented a large silver cup, given by the players of the American league. One other cup was given by a friend and the traveling bag was given by the umpires of the American league. The Boston National league club gave a big floral offering.

The main attraction besides "Cy" himself was a game between Boston and a team of star players picked from the other American league clubs.

NEW RULES FOR BASEBALL CLUBS

Minors Must Pay $300 for Major League Players.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 14.—A new rule regarding the purchase by major league clubs of players from minors and one regarding the world's championship series, were announced by the national baseball commission yesterday. The first is rule 47 and provides that "No major league club shall in the future be permitted to sell a major league player to a minor league club with an option to repurchase said player unless the consideration to be paid by the minor league club for such major league player is at least $300.

The following additional detailed rule to govern the contests for the world's series was also announced:

"Rule 17.—Neither one of the contesting clubs shall be permitted to pay a bonus or prize to any or all of its players who may take part in the series, either before or after the same has been completed and the commission will retain the certified check, which each club is reuired to deposit under rule 6, until such time as they may be satisfied that there has been no violation of this rule and in case there is a violation of this rule, then said certified check shall be cashed and credited to the funds of the national commission."

EAST DEFEATS SOUTH.

Play Begins for National Tennis Honors in Doubles.

New York, Aug. 14.—East and South met yesterday in the first match of the challenge round for the national championship in lawn tennis doubles on the courts of the Crescent Athletic club at Bay Ridge, Beals C. Wright of Boston and Raymond D. Little of New York, the eastern champions and former internationalists, defeated Hugh Whitehead and James Winston of Norfolk, Va., the southern champions, in straight sets.

This afternoon Wright and Little will play the western champions, Nat Emerson of Cincinnati and L. H. Waldner of Chicago. The winners of this match will thus qualify to meet Hackett and Alexander, the national champions, at Newport next week.

In an exhibition practice match yesterday Hackett and Alexander defeated the westerners.

TWO LISTS ARE OPENED

Up to Present Time Duluth Has Sent But $10.

Duuluth's contribution to the Clinton cyclone sufferers now totals, $55.

The Herald today opened a subscription list, heading it with a conhribution of $25, and last evening the public affairs committee of the Commercial club donated $50. Small subscriptions to the amount of $10 have already been forwarded.

The Herald will receive contributions, acknowledge them through its columns, and forward them to the relief committee.

The little town of Clinton was almost wiped out of existence by the cicione recently. Thousands of dollars' worth of property and several lives were lost. Hundreds of the inhabitants were left in a destitute condition, entirely dependent upon charity for a living for the time being.

With characteristic energy, leading citizens of the village got together and organized a relief committee, which sent appeals for aid over the state. Governor Johnson indorsed the appeal, and added one of his own. These were received in Duluth, as well as in all towns and cities of the state. Until last night Duluth had sent but $10.

While other places were more liberal, the money raised was still insufficient to care for the stricken people, and a second appeal was sent out last week. This has just been received in Duluth. Members of the public affairs committee are inclined to believe that it was entirely due to carelessness and an oversight that Duluth did not come to the front more liberally, and express the belief that now that the matter has been called to the attention of Duluthians again, they will be more generous. That Clinton is a Minnesota city makes it seem all the more remarkable that this and other cities were not more liberal in their donations.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Cantaloupes, 85 cents half bushel baskets.

Cauliflower, 10 and 15 cents each.

Japanese tragedy plums, 50 cents a basket.

The tomatoes are not so very good, and even though the market teems with every other variety of vegetable, if the tomatoes are not so very good it is, of course, tomatoes that one wants. The beet greens, ending in little marble sized beets, are good looking, and the plums are beginning to come in splendid profusion and very good quality.

The sweet peas in various colors are, however, about the nicest things in the market.

the EVENING STORY

A Good Match

By Lansing Becker.

(Coprighted. All rights reserved.)

The bronzed and bearded man watched the little fairy playing in the sand, and into his heart came a strange and reminiscent tenderness.

She was so dainty, so sweet, so altogether pure and attractive that he longed to take her in his arms and kiss her and talk to her.

How did he know but somewhere in the great restless, pulsating world he had just such a little one. But, alas, that was just what he did not know.

He did know, however, that his life was broken and incomplete, and his memory reached back, as he watched the child play, to the time when it was rounded and filled with the presence and the love of a beautiful woman. And the maddening thought was that just as the break came—just when he and Lillian parted in anguish and in anger, the promise of the stork was upon her. He never had heard from her since. In his blind passion he had gone veritably to the ends of the earth, and had lost himself completely to all who had known him.

Years had softened and mellowed him, however. During long vigils under Australian skies and hours of reflection on the tossing waves he had grown to know that he had missed the most important thing of all. Regardless of whose fault it was, regardless of circumstances, in details of any sort, he had grown to know that the bosom of the woman from whom he had parted in anger, held the key to all the peace and joy his life had known or could know.

Success had been his, so far as fortune went. Money he had in plenty, and lands and respect and power. But beneath it all, despite it all, he knew his life was incomplete. And his restless spirit had drawn him back across the boundless sea, back to the land of his nativity, to the scenes of his happiness.

It had not been so many years, after all—only five or six, but a lifetime seemed to have been encompassed within them. It had been a lifetime of regret and remorse—and a lifetime of labor and achievement as well. Had it not been for the latter fact he had perished. Hard work and material achievement had saved him—insofar as he was saved.

So it happened that Bernard Spellman sat this day on the beach watching the swimmers and the waves—and the child. He did not know why he had come. He had no idea of attempting to knit up the raveled ends of the tear in his life—he knew that was impossible now. Lonely, restless and burdened, he simply had come back to America to wander about, a moody, silent, oppressive presence at hotel tables and on hotel verandas.

From these thoughts he was startled by the little girl who had rushed toward him and was tugging at his coat.

"Oh, please, please help me!" she cried in evident distress.

"What is the matter?" He smiled down upon her in strange contrast to the gloomy expression which characterized him.

"I have lost mamma's earring and I can't find it," she said.

"Mamma's earring?" he questioned, in the hopeless masculine way.

"Yes," she replied severely, reproving him in true feminine fashion for his density by the withdrawal of her fervor, which had attracted him more than she could know. For he was a lonesome man, and human trust and human fellowship were very dear to him. After her one glance of indignation, she went on:

"You see, I took it out of her jewel box. She never wears it, because it's only one and she hasn't got the other. So there can't be any harm in playing with it. So I took it out here and I have been playing with it—and I dropped it in the sand—and now I can't find it. Won't you help me?"

What could any gentleman do—especially a gentleman who was lonesome and heartsick and weary, and who looked into a pair of frank blue girlish eyes. He took her by the hand and strode along with her with a stride which made her run to keep up.

They sank down on their knees together on the sand, where she had been playing, and searched for the missing jewel. With his more experienced brain and hand he soon succeeded in locating the earring, and with the courtesy of the true gentleman he did not take it for her, but so guided her eyes and hand that presently she fell upon it herself with a cry of delight at her good fortune.

"Aha!" she said, "your eyes are not sharper than mine. I found it; I found it."

He laughed lightly.

"Let me see it," he said. "I tried to help."

He held out his palm and she placed the jewel in it. He gave a little start and the smile faded from his face—all expression faded from his face. He sat in the sand gazing at the earring with frightened eyes so long that the little girl became impatient and snatched it from his hand.

"I'm going back to the hotel and put it back," she said, and added sagely: "It is more trouble to worry about it than the fun is worth."

The man reached forward and drew the little one gently to him.

"Let me see the earring once more," he said, regarding her intently.

She handed it to him and he drew from an inner pocket a packet which he opened with trembling fingers. From it he took a small package, which he feverishly unwrapped, disclosing the very mate to the earring found in the sand. To a practiced eye there could be no mistake, as the design was most peculiar and there were certain jeweler's marks which denoted that the two had been made for a veritable pair.

The man showed signs of the greatest agitation, and controlled himself with difficulty when he realized the child was becoming frightened.

"What is your name?" he asked gently, fixing her eyes with a burning gaze.

"Bertha Spellman," she replied, becoming very sober and pulling from him.

"And your father—where is he?" asked the man, detaining her.

"He is dead," replied the girl, "and I want to go away."

"I don't know," sobbed the girl, to whom the situation was becoming alarming. "Mamma's name is Mrs. Bernard Spellman—and—and please give me her earring so I can take it to her. I want to go home."

"We will take it to her together," he said, rising and resuming his self-poise, which instantly set at rest the vague fears of the little girl.

So, hand in hand they walked back from the beach to the great hotel.

"There is mamma on the veranda," exclaimed the girl excitedly. "You wait and I'll run around and go in by the side door and put it back before she knows it is gone."

"No," said he gently, but with a tone of authority that brought the girl back to him as though he held her with a restraining hand. "We will take it to mamma and you can tell her that you did wrong to take it out of the jewel box and that you are sorry and won't do it any more."

"She'll punish me," whimpered the child.

"No, I think not," replied the man. "Because, after you give her the earring you took, you can say you found its mate down on the beach—and hand her this," and he placed the earring he had taken from his pocket in her hand.

The man kept close behind her.

"Mamma!" she cried, breathless.

"Where have you been so long, you naughty girl?" she said severely. "Haven't I told you that you must ask me before you leave the hotel?"

"Yes, mamma, but it was so lovely down on the beach that I wanted to play in the sand, and you were asleep—and I took the pearl earring out of your box to play with in the sand—"

"The pearl earring!" exclaimed the mother, sharply. "I certainly shall punish you. You know I prize it above everything I have. Oh, you naughty, naughty girl. No dinner for you tonight!"

The little lips were trembling, but the girl went bravely on:

"And I lost it and—"

"Lost it!" The tall woman had leaped to her feet and seized the child. "Lost it! Where? Come with me at once. You must find it. We must find it. It is worth more than anything else I have. It was—it was—"

The woman took the other earring with languid interest. The instant she fixed her eyes upon it the color fled from her face.

"Bertha," she exclaimed, pulling the child to her, "Where did you find this?"

The child, tired of dramatics, burst into tears and cried:

"This man gave it to me, and he helped me find yours too, and—and—"

The sentence was ended in sobs.

The woman raised her eyes to meet the steady gaze of the man. For some moments they gazed into each other's eyes. Finally:

"Lillian!" he said.

She arose and in an instant was clasped in his arms.

None of the hotel guests cared much for the dramatics in the drawing room that evening.

IMPORTANT DECISION

Heirs May Prove Up on Claim of Deceased Person.

Reverses Policy of Land Offices All Over the Country.

A decision of some importance has just been handed down by the commissioner of the general land office at Washington, in that it reverses the policy of the various land offices throughout the country for some time past. It relates to the rights of heirs in proving up on claims, the owners of which have died. The case was appealed from the Duluth land office, and the decision handed down rules that heirs can prove up on such claims. The policy of the land office officials throughout the country has been to refuse this right heretofore, and the case has never before been taken before the general office.

The case which was appealed was that of Nellie A. Tharalson, widow of Taly Tharalson, who was trying to prove title to a timber claim taken by her husband near the Syracuse mine on the range. The local officials, in continuance of the general policy, refused her right to prove up, and William Furst, of Minneapolis, who represented Mrs. Tharalson appealed the case to the general office. The decision which was received here today gives Mrs. Tharalson sixty days in which to make the payment of the purchase price and fees of the land, amounting to $424.58, and to furnish an affidavit of the death of her husband, the date of the death, and an affidavit of the fact that she has not agreed to sell or convey the land to other parties. If she fails to do this within sixty days her title is void. It does, however, establish unquestionably the right of heirs to prove up on the land held by a deceased party.

The land has, since the action began become exceptionally valuable, the Syracuse mine and the Longyear-Bennett property, which was in litigation here a week or two ago, being within a quarter of a mile of it.

VETERAN POLICEMAN KILLED BY A NEGRO.

New Orleans, Aug. 14.—John J. Carroll, a veteran member of the local police force, was cut to death by a negro cook, who was afterwards killed by the police today on a train of the Louisville & Nashville railroad station here. The negro was quarreling with another negro and when the officer entered the dining car he was disemboweled. The murderer then fled into the drawing car room, where he was surrounded and killed. Carroll fired at the negro as he was running and badly wounded another negro.

CHURCH HAS NEW PASTOR

Rev. B. Johnson Will Have Charge of Norwegian Lutheran.

Will Preach Sunday for First Time in Duluth.

The Immanuel Norwegian Lutheran church, corner of Fifty-seventh avenue west and Gosnold street, which has been in charge of Rev. E. Wulfsberg of the West End, since last May, when its former pastor, Rev. H. O. Sauer, resigned, will once more have a pastor of its own.

Rev. B. Johnson, who received a call some time ago from the church, has accepted, and will preach his first sermon to his new congregation next Sunday morning.

He is a young man, just through the seminary, and both in temperament and education, well fitted for his work. He is a graduate of Luther college, Decorah, Iowa, where he has attended Luther Seminary, St. Paul, graduating last June. While there he took an active part in the parish work of a large congregation, receiving much helpful experience in city work.

Rev. Johnson will be installed by Rev. E. Wulfsberg, Sunday. He will preach in the Norwegian language. It has been decided by the congregation that a welcome offering shall be taken up for their new pastor. Temporarily, Rev. Johnson will make his home with Rev. Wulfsberg at 2015 West Third street, as he will have charge of the latter's work while he is away on his vacation. Later, Rev. Johnson will live in West Duluth.

Club Will Attend.

An invitation has been received by the West Duluth Commercial club, to be present at a public meeting to be held Tuesday evening, Aug. 18, in the council chamber to consider and discuss the proposition to allow the Zenith Telephone company to charge toll for Superior connections. This matter will probably come up at the club's meeting tonight, if there is a quorum present.

West Duluth Briefs.

Fred Bujold of Sixty-fourth avenue west, was taken to the Northern Pacific hospital at Brainerd last night, suffering from a severe case of blood poisoning, that developed from an injury he received several weeks ago.

Mrs. George Broadwell of North Central avenue, was operated on Wednesday at the St. Mary's hospital. She is reported to be improving.

Mrs. F. P. McCauley, Abbie McCauley of St. Paul, and E. A. Shea of Brainerd, are registered at the Phillips hotel.

Mrs. Aaron Wests' condition is very critical at the Duluth hospital. No word has been received as yet from her husband, who is somewhere in North Dakota, near Casseiton. Every possible effort is being made to locate him, so that he may be informed of the serious condition of his wife.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Dallias of 218 South Sixty-first avenue west, yesterday.

A daughter was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. William J. Harvey of 227 South Fifty-seventh avenue west.

Charles Duggan of 4407 Oneota street has returned from a cruising trip through Northern Minnesota and is confined to his home with a severe cold.

CRAZY MAN CAPTURED

Is Not Lawrence Datka, But an Unknown Woodsman.

Datka Says Information Sworn to by Brother is Malicious.

The crazy man of the Gnesen woods is captured. Deputy Sheriff Horgan brought him in about noon today from the Sargent farm on the Howard and Gnesen road. He is not Lawrence Datka, as at first reported, but a harmless individual, with a mild form of dementia.

Lawrence Datka, who was reported as insane, roving through the woods with a black mask, skirts and a Winchester, came into the office of the judge of probate this morning and gave himself up. He is perfectly sane and has been working on a county road job for the last two weeks. Datka says the information of insanity sworn to by his brother John Datka, and alleging the facts of the skirt, mask and gun, was a piece of spite work, the result of a long standing grudge borne him by his brother and his brother's wife. He is threatening to prosecute the informer, if he can find means to do so.

The fact that there really was a crazy man in the vicinity however, renders it possible that Datka really mistook the demented stranger for his brother and swore out the information in good faith.

The man captured by Sheriff Horgan this morning was seen by Mr. Sargent on his farm yesterday. He was acting strangely, and to keep him near by Sargent told him to watch an old shack on the farm. The man obediently sat down and kept a lonely vigil over the shack all night and was there when Horgan arrived this morning.

He was too far gone to answer questions intelligently and his name has not yet been learned.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Women Released.

The case against the three women, one of whom was charged with running a disorderly house and the other two with being inmates of it, was yesterday afternoon dismissed by Judge Parker.

May Lay Cornerstone.

Tomorrow afternoon the cornerstone of the new Masonic temple at Belknap street and Hughitt avenue will be laid with appropriate ceremonies. Members of the various lodges of the order in the city, the Duluth commanderies and a number of prominent officers and members of the order throughout the state will be present.

Political Meeting.

Bryan J. Castle, former chief clerk of the state land office at Madison, will deliver an address on the congressional campaign in this district, at 8 o'clock this evening at Maryland hall. Ex-Mayor Charles S. Starkweather, will also speak.

No Improvement This Year.

General Manager Warren of the traction company, informed a committee of the Ninth Ward Improvement league, yesterday, that there will be no improvement on the Billings park street car service this year. The committee had asked that the line be double tracked from Missouri to New York avenues, and also that big cars be put on the run. Mr. Warren, though he said it would be impossible to make any changes this year, thought that next year some of their demands might be attended to.

Steel Rails Arrive.

Eight carloads of steel rails for the Soo road arrived yesterday. They are the first that have been received by the new road in Superior. They were immediately transferred to Connor's Point, where the company has started grading operations. Several more carloads of rails are expected in the next few days. Officials say that they will start laying rails as soon as the grading is finished between Fifth street and the intersection of Lamborn avenue and Main street. O'Hanlon & Massey of Omaha, who have sub-contracts for grading, have arrived with their outfits, and are setting up camps for their men near Belknap and Twenty-first streets.

Carrier Service.

Henry J. Ormsby, postoffice inspector arrived in Superior yesterday, and after looking into the conditions, decided that the people of Billing's park are entitled to carrier service at the Billing's park postoffice. Mr. Ormsby will recommend that the service be re-established.

Lund Will Leave.

Sergeant Lund of company I, one of the thirteen men who will represent Wisconsin at the national shoot at Camp Prairie, will leave tonight to attend the shoot.

Superior's Population.

According to the people who are working on Superior's annual city directory, Superior has an increase in population of 10 per cent over last year, which will give the city a population of approximately 46,000.

Grocheau Promoted.

H. R. Groenau, who for fourteen years has been in the service of the Omaha road at the Head of the Lakes, has been promoted to the position of acting claim agent for the road, with headquarters at St. Paul. Mr. Grocheau has been general agent in Superior for the past three years.

LEAGUE MAY MEET HERE

The annual convention of the League of American Municipalities may come to Duluth next year. There is said to be an excellent chance of this city getting the gathering, if it is gone after properly, and the city officials are determined to do what they can towards bringing about the desired result.

This year the league meets at Omaha in November, and representatives of Duluth will be on hand. When the time comes for choosing the next place of meeting, Duluth will step forward with strong arguments in favor of the Zenith City. They already have assurances of some support, and it is believed they will be able to land the plum.

This convention is much to be desired, for it attracts delegates from all parts of the United States, and is of considerable benefit to the city in which it is held, aside from the money that is spent in town during the event. The class of people attending are a good kind to impress with the manifold advantages of Duluth as a place of business and residence, and favorable impressions they obtain will work to the advantage of Duluth.

Aside from the ideal summer weather and comparatively central location, Duluth has many attractions to offer a convention of this kind. The municipality-operated light and water plants, the dairy ordinance and its method of working out, the city's incinerator and other things are of great interest to municipal officers in general.

Coliseum Buffet,

opposite Bijou theater, opens tomorrow afternoon at 3, stocked with the very best of wines and liquors. Lawrence & Andre will welcome their friends with a lunch that will include all the delicacies of the season.

COPPERS WEAK AND INACTIVE

Lower prices for the metal and free selling of some of the higher priced stocks in Boston weakened the copper market today and it closed still sagging. North Butte, Amalgamated and other good issues were the heaviest losers on the day's operations and the other stocks fell back in sympathy with them. Copper was lower in London, and on this side all grades lost ⅛c per pound.

Amalgamated opened at $79.50, which was the high mark of the day. It fluctuated weakly and closed at $76.37½, the low price of the day. North Butte opened at $81.50, fell back to $80, rallied to $81 and dropped at the close to $76.37½ bid and $76.62½ asked. Anaconda opened at $47.62½; dropped to $46.37½, advanced to $47 and fell back again to $45.25 at the close. Butte Coalition opened at $27.50, was inactive all day and closed at $27 bid and $27.12½ asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $122.50, advanced to $123 and dropped to $120 bid and $122 asked at the close.

The curb market was quiet, with few changes in prices. Greene-Cananea sold at $11.50, $11.37½ and $11.25; Superior & Pittsburg at $14.37½ and $14.25; Black Mountain at $3.50, $3.62½ and $3.50 again; Butte & Superior at $1.04 and $1.05; Calumet & Sonora at $9.87½; Carman at $3.37½; Cliff at $1.37½; Copper Queen at $1.37½; Dean-Arizona at $3.12½; Globe at $4.75 and $4.87½; Red Warrior at $3.12½, and Superior & Boston at $6.62½; Butte Balaklava was inactive at $7 bid and $7.25 asked, and Mowitza at $2.25 bid and $2.37½ asked.

BIJOU PLAYERS ARE DEFEATED

The sweet voice of Isadore Silver, Bijou ballad singer, was heard at Athletic park this morning. He wasn't singing ballads, however. The voice was raised in a cry of anguish and sorrow. The occasion was a baseball game between the policemen and employes of the Bijou. Anguish and sorrow came from the fact that the coppers won. The final score stood 4 to 2 in favor of the boys in blue.

This explains why Mr. Silver was not in his usual trim at the matinee performance at the Bijou this afternoon. Perhaps he was in the usual trim, but members of the opposing team of ballslingers say he was not. In the face of defeat they say he couldn't be. Matinee girls maintain that he sang as beautifully as ever, however, and that from his actions and voice on the stage one couldn't tell that he had gone down to an inglorious defeat in the mud at Athletic park this morning.

It was a warm game, despite the chilly breezes from off Lake Superior. Speaking of mud, there was about three feet of it covering the baseball field today. This fact did not seem to interfere with the playing of the cops. They lambasted the ball in all directions, but principally in the right one. They say they would have done even more of it, only they did not want to discourage real promising material. The Bijou sluggers promised, and that's about all they did do.

The coppers showed the courage expected of them in going ahead in the rain and mud, and the Bijou artists came in a close second. They were not going to let a little thing like water and mud interfere with their chances of walloping the boys in blue.

Despite unfavorable conditions, there was some good playing, and both sides covered themselves with glory—and mud, principally mud. On a dry field the result might have been different. The theater people say so, anyway. A future game may prove their contention to be correct, and again it may not.

Spot and Larson comprised the battery for the policemen, and "Happy" Clayton and Silver did the honors for the Bijou.

LANDMARK IS GOING.

Former Headquarters for Sailors is Being Torn Down.

The old Lake Front hotel, in the early days a famous hangout for sailors, located just west of the Sixth avenue viaduct, near the new cold storage plant, is being torn down. The building has become so old and dilapidated as to be useless for occupancy, and the owners concluded the best thing they could do would be to take it down and use the site for something else.

The building is quite a landmark in Duluth, and is especially well known to early settlers. It used to be very popular with lake men, and many a picturesque yarn of the ocean and lakes has been spun within its walls. It did a thriving business in the old days, but in late years has been failing to pieces.

Glee Club Excursion.

The Svea Glee club will have an excursion Sunday to Two Harbors.

The members will leave at 9:30 o'clock in the morning on the steamer America, returning to Duluth in the evening on the same boat. While at Two Harbors the club will give a concert at the opera house in the afternoon.

The club is looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to its outing. There are about thirty members in the chorus, and they with their friends and families will make a good sized crowd. The club will amuse its guests both going and returning with singing.

TRAFFIC UNINTERRUPTED.

The local office of the Great Northern road has received notification that freight traffic between points in the United States and Fernie and Michel in Canada, in the burned districts, has not been interefered with on accouunt of the big forest fires. The letter, from the head offices in St. Paul, states that newspaper reports have been exaggerated, and it is feared from them that the general public will get the impression that all communication with the points mentioned have been cut off, which is not the case. Shipments to Fernie and Michel are being handled as promptly now as before the fire.

HARRY THAW TAKEN BEFORE REFEREE.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Harry K. Thaw was taken to Fishkill Landing today for the third time since John F. Schlosser, a Fishkill Landing attorney was appointed referee to take Thaw's testimony, in Dr. John P. Wilson's action for $600 for services as a witness in the habeas corpus proceedings.

Thaw, going by train, arrived in Fishkill Landing shortly after 10 o'clock, in the custody of the two sheriffs. He was taken to the office of the referee, who adjourned the hearing until afternoon, and Thaw, with his custodians, took a trolley ride. They went to the Holland house for dinner.

IS LOGICAL CANDIDATE

Pledges Himself to Support St. James Man From Stump.

"Winfield S. Hammond is the logical candidate of the Democratic party of Minnesota for governor," said Former Governor John Lind this afternoon, when seen by a Herald reporter just as he was boarding the boat for Isle Royale.

Mr. Lind was the guest of friends in the city during the morning, and left this afternoon for a short vacation trip to Washington Harbor, with his wife and a party of friends.

JOHN LIND.

Mr. Lind confirmed the report published in a Minneapolis paper, that he had written Mr. Hammond urging him to run, and pledging himself to support the St. James congressman from the stump, if he would make the race against Jacobson.

"Mr. Hammond would make an ideal candidate for the party," said Mr. Lind. "The difference between him and Jacobson is so pronounced that I do not think the voters could fail to see it. He is the man for the place and will certainly have my hearty support if he is nominated."

Paying Case.
Notice of trial during the September term of court was filed this morning in the case of the Nikaniss company and Eliza M. Arnold vs. the board of public works and the city of Duluth. The plaintiffs are appealing from the assessment for the pavement of Ramsey street in West Duluth, which they claim was levied without authority by the board of public works, and which they claim was in excess of benefits derived. A. E. McManus represents the plaintiffs.

A settlement was effected this morning in the old case of John Armstrong vs. the board of county commissioners. Armstrong was suing for $567 for the board and keep of a team of county horses. The settlement allows him $300.

F. L. Gilbert Better.
F. L. Gilbert, who was reported as very ill some days ago, in St. Luke's hospital, is able to be about. His condition was at no time serious, and his illness was nothing more than a slight attack of rheumatism.

New Manager.
Under the management of J. J. Schultz, the dancing party at the Lincoln park dancing pavilion last evening drew a large crowd. Mr. Schultz is the new manager of the pavilion.

Reinstated by Court.
Maciej Szybicki was reinstated in the ancient and honorable order of Stanislaus Kostki No. 2 by an order issued by Judge Cant yesterday and filed in the clerk of court's office. Szybicki has been a member of the Polish sick benefit society since 1882. When he came to pay his dues for May and June this year, they were refused by Louis X. Kusmierk, the secretary, and he was notified that he was no longer a member. He brought mandamus proceedings in the district court, and Judge Cant ordered him reinstated by the secretary, with the alternative of appearing in court to show cause for the expulsion. The society at once reinstated Szybicki.

Much Street Work in Sight.
It is estimated that about $300,000 will be expended by the city of Duluth in street improvements next year. This year's expenditure will not amount to more than $100,000. The big contracts in sight for next year have already been described in The Herald.

Fargo Barnstorming.
A. W. Kuehnow received a wire late this afternoon that the Fargo ball team of erstwhile Northern leaguers is coming into Northern Minnesota on a barnstorming tour under the management of Albert Williams. The Fargoites asked for Saturday, Sunday and Monday here and the dates with the Superior City team have been cancelled so that the Sox may play the orphaned Browns.

Line Numbers Sixteen.

Public Works Fund.
According to the report of the board of public works for the month of July, just prepared, $58,921 of the board of public works fund was expended up to Aug. 1. At the beginning of the year, $77,979 was available. During July the board spent $11,113.75.

Land Office Inspected.
The local land office is being inspected, for the first time in two years. Inspector E. B. Linen, of the secretary of state's office, is here carrying on the inspection.

Fined $100 Each.
A fine of $100 each, was yesterday imposed upon Thomas Kearney and Andrew Peterson, saloon keepers at Fall Lake, by the district court, for keeping their places open after hours. County Attorney John H. Norton, filed the complaint. They both pleaded guilty to the charge before Judge Dibell. They were released upon payment of their fines.

SOFT-HAT time is the early fall, when the picturesque Knapp-Felt shapes harmonize with the negligee attire.

It is an agreeable change from the rigid straw hat to a comfortable Knapp-Felt, which may express in its lines the individual whim of the wearer. The careless grace of a well-handled Knapp-Felt soft hat will appeal to the discriminating — those for whom the best is none too good.

Knapp-Felt is not like any other hat-fabric and is not intended to be. The unique mellow texture of Knapp-Felt soft hats—so pleasant to the touch and attractive to the sight, the exquisite colors of the steadfast Cronap dye and the wear-resisting quality form a combination peculiar to the product of the C & K shop.

Knapp-Felt De.Luxe hats, soft or derbies, are Six Dollars. Knapp-Felt hats are Four Dollars. Columbia's $3. In Duluth only at

SAYS BRYAN WILL CARRY NEW YORK

Conners Believes That He is a Strong Candidate.

New York, Aug. 14.—In connection with the meeting today of the Democratic state committee, the principal business of which will be the issuance of a call for a state convention to nominate state officers, Chairman W. J. Connors had invited the chairmen of the various county committees for a general exchange of views on the political situation and the invitation was quite generally accepted.

Prior to the assembling of the state committee Chairman Conners stated positively that the convention will be held in Rochester Sept. 15.

"The temporary chairman," said Mr. Connors, "will not be selected until the next meeting of the state committee, which will be held at Rochester Sept. 14, to which date today's meeting will probably be adjourned. The Republicans have named their chairman in advance because they have a hard road to travel. There is no necessity of our naming our chairman until near convention time."

Mr. Connors was asked about the situation in the country and replied: William Jennings Bryan will carry New York state by from 75,000 to 100,000. Bryan is the strongest Democratic candidate in New York today. We will carry Erie, Niagara, Chenango and fifteen or sixteen other counties. Kings county will roll up a big majority and other boroughs of Greater New York may be depended on to add a sufficient Democratic plurality to wipe out the Republican plurality up state. In my opinion, whoever is nominated, the Republicans will not carry the state above the Bronx by more than 50,000 to 75,000."

Discussing the gubernatorial situation Mr. Conors said he had heard the name of Judge Alton B. Parker mentioned as a candidate.

"There is plenty of good material to pick from," said Mr. Connors. "Martin W. Littleton would make a strong candidate. State Comptroller Glynn has made a good record and would make a strong candidate for governor. Lieut. Governor Chanler has strong upstate."

KILLED UNDER BINDER.

Detroit, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—L. H. Hauge, a well known farmer living near Atlanta, in this, Becker county, was killed yesterday while working under the binder. He had tipped the machine back and put a neckyoke under the tongue to hold up the machine. This gave away, letting down the machine, causing instant death.

PRESIDENT HAS TWO OFFICIAL VISITORS.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 14.—Dr. Andrew J. Barchfield of Pittsburg, who represents the Thirty-second district of Pennsylvania in congress, and John W. Donavan, were the only official visitors to be received by President Roosevelt today.

Mr. Barchfield said that he had arrived in New York on Tuesday after an extended tour through Central America. He said that he wished to tell Mr. Roosevelt about the workings of the Central American court of arbitration which was the outgrowth of the Central American peace conference held in Washington last year. The arbitration court was meeting at Cartage, Costa Rica, while Mr. Barchfield was there.

CLUB PRESIDENT RESIGNS.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Secretary J. W. Moore has tendered his resignation to President H. C. Misner of the Twenty-five Thousand Commercial club, to take effect at the convenience of the club. It is understood that Register of Deeds J. H. Stair is a passive candidate for the position, and Thomas R. Johnstone would also accept the position in conjunction with that of chief of the Crookston fire department.

REACH NO DECISION

Question of Telephone Tolls to Superior Thoroughly Discussed.

Public Affairs Committee Fears Remedy is Not Permanent.

Would it be better to let the Zenith Telephone company be wiped out and take chances with the Bell company, or would it be better to come to the aid of the Zenith company and keep it in the field as a rival to the Bell?

This was the question which was put up to the Public Affairs committee of the Commercial club last evening, and for two hours the members of the committee discussed every phase of the subject in an effort to find out what course would be best for the interests of the general public.

The condition of the Zenith company, as outlined by Bert Fesler, its attorney, is briefly as follows:

The company has come to the end of its tether, the common stock earning no dividends, and being valueless. The owners are unwilling to sink any more money. The company must make about $200,000 work of improvements, consisting of conduit work, and the erection of a new office building and the installation of a new switchboard. These improvements will cheapen the cost of maintenance. In order to raise this $200,000 by the sale of preferred stock, the company must have an additional source of income, or otherwise the men with whom the company plans to place the stock, will not purchase it. To get this additional income, it is proposed to charge a toll of ten cents on calls to Superior, which should make a revenue of from $10,000 to $15,000.

The new council now has the matter of changing the franchise of the company under consideration, so as to allow it to charge the toll. The matter will be submitted to the people at the fall election.

"If we can't convince men like you of the truth of our claims then we certainly can't hope to carry the referendum," said Mr. Fesler. "The common stock has paid no dividends for eight years. The owners of it will turn over a controlling interest free to any group of men of good standing who will agree to keep the company in operation on a good basis. We do not propose to spend any money to carry this referendum, if it comes to a referendum.

"It is true that we can still raise our rates under our franchise, but we are convinced that to do so would not increase our gross income, on account of the subscribers it would lose us."

N. J. Upham spoke warmly in support of the company.

"The people will have to pay the freight in the end if the Zenith company goes under" said Mr. Upham. "We will be in the hands of the Bell company then, and they will put the screws on. It is a crying shame the way the people have failed to support the Zenith company in this city. The Bell company is not making money here and hasn't, but is can afford to say to these people, 'you have made your bed now lie in it.'"

O. H. Simonds expressed himself as willing to do anything he could for the Zenith company if he felt assured that the company was working out any permanent plan and that the present request for a toll charge was not only a temporary remedy.

"What would be the action of the other company, if you charged toll? asked Mr. Simonds.

"I don't Know" said Mr. Fesler. "If they didn't, it would doubtless reduce our income, and it would be done for the purpose of driving us out of business. If they did it would show the necessity of keeping the Zenith company in the field."

The general sentiment of the meeting seemed to be favorable to the Zenith company, and the members expressed themselves as willing to grant the request if they were given any assurance that the relief would be permanent, and that the company would not be back asking for more aid within a year or two. It was finally agreed to refer it back to the sub committee for a further report on broader lines, and another meeting will be called before the meeting of the council a week from Monday. A public mass meeting will be held next Tuesday to discuss the question.

BEECHER MOORE FILES.

Puts Up Required Fee, But Will Test the Law.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The constitutionality of the law requiring candidates for governor to accompany the filing of their name with the secretary of state with a fee of $50 will likely be tested. The Public Ownership party is behind the move.

Yesterday, following a refusal on the part of Julius Schmahl to place the name of Beecher Moore, the gubernatorial candidate of the Public Ownership party, on the official ballot, without the required fee of $50, J. E. Nash, secretary of the committee, paid the amount demanded and accompanied it with a letter in which he said the money was paid under protest. "Unjust, invalid and void," was the manner in which he characterized the statute requiring the fee, and the intimation was given that the matter would be tested in the courts.

ORE IN TODD COUNTY.

Belief General That Much Iron Underlies Surface.

Staples, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Considerable excitement prevails in the country, directly southeast of Staples, on account of the large bodies of iron ore which have been discovered. From good authority it is believed that a great quantity of ore exists throughout that section of Todd county, and a company has been incorporated, known as the Kipp Mining company, and will soon be on the ground for operation.

Besides purchasing several tracts of land, and options on a great deal more, they have purchased the old mill site on the Long Prairie river, which will be utilized for furnishing power and light for the mines.

FATAL ICE CREAM CONE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Heath, the 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Heath, 3226 Grand avenue, died yesterday after a week of suffering from ptomaine poisoning and peritonitis. He had been visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Sandehn, 364 Oak street, St. Paul, and with other children bought ice cream cones and cheap candy at a corner store. The death is supposed to have resulted from ptomaines in the ice cream.

SEASON IS ABOUT OVER

Commission Men Say Few More Berries Will be Received.

Grapes Are More Plentiful—Butter and Meats Are Lower.

The blueberry season is over. Only a few scattered shipments have been received on Michigan street this week. The crop was not over abundant this year, although the price was not any higher than last year when there was a bumper crop. The demand for the berries is still heavy, however, and the commission men are expected to have the fruit in or out of season.

A commission man said this morning that people let their preserving go until the last minute and then expect to get the fruit anyway. Retail dealers are beseiged for this variety of the berry, and are unable to tell their customers that the berry season is over.

"Why, I didn't start canning until September last year," said one indignant house wife. "That's just the way it is," continued the commission man. "We don't seem to be able to make people see how one season the berries will be on the market late and the next season early. Last year was an unusually late season, and because it was, people demand that we regulate this one in the same way."

• • •

Grapes of the large Concord variety were received in large quantities during the week. The prices are reasonable. Demand for the grapes during this, the first of the season, has not been heavy. Grapes, of all fruits, are the fruit that dealers dislike most to handle. They spoil in a very short time, and unless the demand is heavy, the dealer suffers a loss. Dealers say that it takes time to work up this trade, and a number of them have refused to handle this friut the first part of the season. Next week will really be the first week of actual trading in grapes.

• • •

The markets along Michigan street are teaming with good, fresh looking green stuff, for the most part right out of the near gardens. Commission men say this has been the best year for home trade they have yet experienced.

• • •

"The crop of green stuff has been unusually good," said one man this morning. "Almost every farmer makes a trip to the city once a week with all the green stuff he can haul."

• • •

The demand for butter is heavy, and the price is coming down so that most people can afford to eat it. Creamery prints can now be bought on Michigan street for 22 cents, and dairy in tubs for 20 cents.

• • •

Bananas are the backbone of the market. The demand has been heavy all summer, and greater than ever last week. The price has dwindled a trifle, and this fruit can now be bought for 3½c a pound.

• • •

Roots of a lni disavkeerry oin cmy Roots of all kinds are very cheap, the demand being very light. It is too early for the roots of Minnesota, but those from the Southern states have been on the market for many weeks.

• • •

Home-grown green peas were received during the week, and new potatoes are on the market.

• • •

The demand for meats of all kinds is light. Beef is cheaper, and pork, veal and mutton are also a trifle lower.

• • •

There has been a stiff demand for fish the past week, particularly white fish and salmon, neither of which are at this time very plentiful. The fishermen of the north shore say that luck the past few weeks has not been at all good.

• • •

• • •

Oranges are the best market holders on the street. When everything else plays out, oranges can be depended on. The demand has been heavy and the price holds stiff at from 18c to 30c a dozen.

• • •

The finest black currants on the market for years were received during the week. They sell at $2.25 a crate.

• • •

SOLD CIGARETTE "MAKINS."

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 14.—Kenosha had its first prosecution under the Wisconsin anti-cigarette law on Tuesday, when Andrea Marcio, an Italian, was arrested on a charge of selling the "makins" to two boys, each 14 years old. The man pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs. A crusade against the sale of the papers will be made.

Sir Knights, Attention.

All members of Duluth Commandery, No. 18, K. T., are requested to report at the asylum, Saturday, August 15th, fully equipped at 1:15 p. m. Special car leaves Lake avenue and Second street at 1:20.

BAGGAGE RIFLED ON BOARD OF SHIP

London, Aug. 14.—Some astonishing statements have been published here about the number of persons on the Western seaboard of South America who live by habitual thieving. These statements seem to have some bearing on a complaint of a gentleman who made a tour along that coast early this year, and had his luggage rifled in the course of a voyage from Callao to Panama on one of the ships of the Pacific Steam Navigation company. He left his luggage for safe custody at the company's office at Callao, transferred it personally to the ship a few days later, and locked it up in his cabin, keeping the key himself. On opening one of his trunks a day later he found that it had been ransacked and a quantity of clothing extracted, the lid of the trunk having been forced open without breaking the lock.

He was satisfied from the circumstances that the robbery must have taken place during the time his luggage was in the office at Callao, but the result of correspondence with the company in London was that they declined to accept any responsibility, and apparently they did not even think it necessary to express any regret. There were several other robberies on the ship during the voyage. The traveler who relates the foregoing experience criticises the British Steam Navigation company's local service in other respects; and his observations are worth attention both by the public and the company, because he also states that German lines are competing very keenly for the trade and capturing a great deal of it, and that people who, know the ropes always recommend travelers to choose the German lines. On the last night of the voyage above mentioned the passengers held an indignation meeting to protest against the inferior quality of the food, and the dirtiness and insolence of the stewards.

A series of criminal actions have recently been taken against tobacconists in London at the instance of the Havana Cigar Manufacturers' Protection association for applying a false description to English-made cigars in contravention of the merchandise marks act. The case of the prosecutors was that the Spanish wording and "get up" of the boxes were used to imitate the Havana products. Backed by the English cigar manufacturers, the last of the victims pleaded "not guilty" and was tried at the Old Bailey. He was convicted and fined $20, and, having appealed to the Court of Appeals in Criminal Cases, the right of the British manufacturers to continue the use of the Spanish language on their labels and trade marks was fully discussed, and finally the lord chief justice and Justices Channel and Darling upheld the conviction.

ROUTS MOB WITH SMALL GUN.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Rev. Marvin Jacobs, deposed pastor of the First Baptist church at Pine Plains, saved himself a coat of tar and feathers by keeping the mob which visited him at midnight back at the point of a 22-caliber revolver at the home of Mrs. Frank Husted. Jacobs had been in Pine Plains collecting for his insurance company. He was taken ill, and going to the home of Mrs. Husted, accepted an invitation to remain over night.

Some premonition warned Mr. Jacobs that there was trouble in the air, and before retiring he armed himself. About midnight he was awakened by a noise outside the house. He arose and found the house surrounded by white-robed people carrying pots and kettles in which there was a goodly supply of tar and feathers. Mr. Jacobs drew his gun and threatened to shoot the first man to mount the porch. Mrs. Husted appeared with another gun, and the crowd dispersed. In their hurry to get out of gunshot the raiders left their kettles, tar and feathers scattered all over the lawn.

GETS SIXTY DAYS.

John Dwyer tried to swallow a $5 bill, which he had stolen, but got a severe beating for his pains and had to spit out the money. On top of all that, he was sentenced to sixty days at hard labor on the rock pile by Judge Cutting in municipal court yesterday afternoon.

The bartender in "Little Jake's" saloon on the Bowery claims to have seen Dwyer steal $5 from a fellow woodsman and stick it in his mouth. The bartender pounced on him and made him cough up, and then Dwyer was turned over to a policeman. He was arrested on a charge of petty larceny and taken to the police station.

SOJOURNING AT MADELINE.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. E. A. Shores of Tacoma, Wash., and daughter, Mrs. Walker, of Duluth have been spending the past week at Madeline. Mrs. Shores left for Duluth yesterday morning, while Mrs. Walker will remain at the island until her mother's return. Mrs. Shores will spend some time at Ashland before leaving on an extended trip.

"Gold Standard"

36-in. Taffetas Saturday only 95c

The brightest politician on the platform would have a hard time convincing people that anything but gold is a safe standard for national currency.

And no conscientious silk man would dream of telling you that any other basis than a pure dye and finish, free from loading, is a safe foundation for making dependable silks!

For one day—to introduce this splendid 36-inch black silk—the price will be only 95c the yard.

New Messalines

Fashion demands messalines for dressy wear this fall, because no other silk is so well suited to the creation of the beautiful styles in vogue for the coming season.

You are familiar with the soft draping qualities and rich lustrous finish of the messalines and you will appreciate the excellence of the two qualities we have chosen after a careful search for the market's best.

Prices range—

FARMER KILLED IN BRUTAL WAY

Little Falls, Minn., Aug. 14.—William Galnick, a well-known farmer living seven miles southwest of this city, was murdered in his bed by two burglars at an early hour Thursday because he would not indorse certificates of deposit which he had been afraid to give them.

Mrs. Galnick, wife of the murdered man, stated that two men entered the house at an early hour through the front door, it having always been left unlocked. She stated that they entered the bedroom occupied by her husband and herself and demanded his money. Mr. Galnick replied that he had no money in the house, as it was all in the banks. They then asked for the certificates of deposit, which were given them. She states that the men then wished Galnick to indorse the certificates, which he refused to do. This angered them and they began striking him.

When asked with what they struck the victim, Mrs. Galnick said she didn't know and that she fainted immediately after and did not come to until 2:30 a. m. The woman says that one of the men was quite large while the other was small of stature. This is about all the description that could be given. She says that their faces were covered with masks and that they carried dark lanterns.

The victim was a man about 50 years of age and was well known to the citizens of Little Falls.

He was known to be well-to-do and owned 320 acres of land in Swan river. It was also known to many that he had money deposited in banks and probably that the burglars believed that a large amount of money was kept in the house.

LESTER PARK DANCING

Tuesday, Thursday and Saturdays

PRINTERS WILL MEET NEXT AT ST. JOSEPH, MO.

Boston, Aug. 14.—The delegates to the International Typographical union convention yesterday decided to hold the next convention at St. Joseph, Mo. The vote stood: St. Joseph, 172; Minneapolis, 51; Seattle, 31. With this question settled the convention took up several proposed changes in the general laws, but the only one adopted was that abolishing substitute lists in all union offices. The change, it was stated, will open all union offices to all union men who can get a job.

After the afternoon session addresses were made by George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmen's union of Cincinnati; Robert Glocking, president of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, and Charles H. Taylor, Jr., representing the American Newspaper Publishers' association.

NO CAR SHORTAGE.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 14.—Talk of a car famine this fall that will tie up the grain movement and heavy fall traffic is unfounded, according to local railroad men, who say there is no cause for alarm. There will be the usual shortage of cars when the heavy grain shipments commence, the same shortage that has been experienced for years past, but nothing more serious.

RICH BUT CAN'T SETTLE.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 14.—J. H. Wickersham, an old resident of this city, once worth $50,000, is in jail in default of payment for a $40 board bill. He is 70 years of age and entirely alone, and claims to have ample securities, but that he cannot realize on them.

HIS HEARING CONTINUES.

Rochester, Minn., Aug. 14.—August Meyer, who was arrested here on an accusation by his wife of attempting to blow her up with dynamite was not ready to plead yesterday, and his hearing was postponed one week. He was remanded in the county jail without bail. Mrs. Meyer is at present resting comfortably after having her arm amputated between the wrist and the elbow.

DEEP CRACKS FROM ECZEMA

Could Lay Slate-Pencil in One—Hands in Dreadful State—Disease Defied Remedies and Prescriptions—Suffered Seven Years.

FOUND A PERMANENT CURE IN CUTICURA

"I had eczema on my hands for about seven years and during that time I had used several so-called remedies, together with physicians' and druggists' prescriptions. The disease was so bad on my hands that I could lay a slate-pencil in one of the cracks and a rule placed across the hand would not touch the pencil. I used ——, ——, —— Skin Lotion, —— Remedy and others externally but I did not use any internal remedy, and while some gave partial relief, none relieved as much as did the first box of Cuticura Ointment. I made a purchase of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and my hands were perfectly cured after two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of soap were used. I now keep them on hand for sunburn, etc., and use Cuticura Soap for shaving. I could write a great deal more in reference to my cure but do not want to take more of your time. William H. Dean, Newark, Del., Mar. 28, 1907."

CHILD SUFFERED

"My little daughter suffered with sores on her legs all last summer. Her feet were sore, too, and she couldn't wear her shoes. I think she was poisoned by running through weeds but the doctor said it was eczema. I tried several remedies but failed to find a cure. Then I sent for Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment which cured her in two weeks. I find Cuticura the best I ever tried for any kind of sore and I hope I shall never be without it. Mrs. Gertie Laughlin, Ivydale, W. Va., Apr. 25, 1907."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.) (or in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass.

vice of a subpoena on either Thaw or the New York authorities would require his keepers to turn him over to a United States marshal, who would take him to Pittsburg. Once across the river and in New Jersey, he would be legally free and as long as he is kept out of the state of New York, he would have no fear of imprisonment."

John F. McIntyre, a leading lawyer of the criminal bar, said:

"Because Thaw was committed to an insane asylum does not necessarily prove that in any other state he would not be legally sane until proven otherwise, and until his sanity was passed upon by a competent commission he would have every right under the law of a sane and innocent man.

"The legality of the statute under which Thaw was sent to an insane asylum has never been tested in this state. I believe that Thaw's asking for bankruptcy proceedings shows good, sound reasoning and is an indication of perfect balance of mind.

"A commitment in this state has no extra-territorial force, and once outside of the state Thaw would be a free man. Any judge outside of New York must discharge him on the grounds that he is illegally retained."

by foreigners until the specials announced the outcry of the American newspapers. Even among Japanese statesmen and newspapers the first expression then was one of amusement.

Count Okuma Without Influence.

Count Okuma is regarded here as a doctrinaire politician, who is now completely without political influence except in academic circles. His statement concerning the American navy and President Roosevelt's advocacy of its expension was undoubtedly brought out by reports of Congressman Hobson's speech in the Democratic national convention, when he quoted President Roosevelt as predicting an early war with Japan.

"The statement, which has caused all the comment, was an excerpt from a series of articles printed in the Hochi, a Tokio paper, which are being written by Count Okuma, reviewing world politics and printed from day to day.

When Count Okuma returned today from the country he said to the Associated Press he was surprised to find that his utterances had been considered purposely offensive.

"It was only natural," he said, "in reviewing the world's politics, to point out that Japan's rise above the horizon has caused the American navy to turn its attention toward the Pacific. It was undoubtedly true that some Americans talk unwisely concerning Japan, but never for an instant have I desired or intended to reflect on the honor and courage of the American navy or its sailors; but it is an unconvertible fact that commercial considerations weigh materially with all older commercial nations even when it becomes a question of war. No one will endeavor more earnestly than myself to cultivate cordial relations with America because I realize that only through such cordial relations can Japan hope to become a really great nation.

In anarticle published in the Hochi, Aug. 11, Count Okuma attributed the present naval expansion policy of the United States to the sudden rise of Japan to the importance of a world power, saying in part:

"Judging from the fragmentary speeches of President Roosevelt that have been transmitted here, it is not difficult to infer that the augmentation of the United States navy in the Pacific is directed at Japan."

Count Okuma expressed a doubt, however, that the views and ideas of President Roosevelt would long continue to govern public opinion in America.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN IS KILLED

Crushed into an unrecognizable mass of blood, flesh and bones, the body of an unidentified man was brought to the city yesterday afternoon from Zim, a small station on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, where the man was struck by a train and instantly killed.

The head was cut off and crushed to a pulp, and the arms and legs were also severed from the body. The remains were strewn for 100 feet along the railroad track, and had to be placed in a sack to be brought to the city.

The man was run down on a curve, and it is believed he was not seen by the engineer, for the accident was not discovered until after the train had passed. The man's clothing and shoes were stained by iron ore, and it is believed he was a miner.

ON THE IRON RANGES

THIEVES OPEN MISSABE CARS

Help Themselves to Some Melons and Other Things at Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some time Wednesday night thieves broke into two cars of merchandise and two cars containing watermelons, which were standing on a siding of the Missabe railway. At present there is no telling just what the loss of the stolen goods will amount to. The neatness with which the job was done showed it to have been the work of experienced hands. The case is now in the hands of Chief Wring, who is making a thorough investigation.

Archie McFadyen, who sometime ago was suffering from eye trouble, but who was later getting along nicely, has suffered a relapse and has been obliged to take to his bed.

FINISH SEWER EXCAVATING.

Main Part of Aurora Work Has Been Completed.

Aurora, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The excavating for the sewer and the extension of the water system has been completed and Pastoret & Lunz have shipped the steam digger back to Two Harbors. It is estimated that three weeks more will finish the job.

The property owners on Jackson street will be compelled to connect with the sewer. A resolution to this effect is being drawn up by the village attorney.

HILL PARTY VISITS.

Coleraine, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special train came here yesterday over the Missaba road, bringing some Great Northern officials, and their coming started anew the rumor that road may soon be extended to this place.

The party included Louis Hill, president, and Walter Hill of St. Paul, and Supt. D. M. Philbin and assistants of Superior. The day was spent in looking over the Canisteo, Holman and Hill properties, which form a portion of the Great Northern ore lease to the United States Steel corporation.

WASHING PLANT SUCCESS.

Coleraine, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The washing plant, constructed here as an experiment, is in successful operation. Small daily runs are made to get a line on the capacity of the washers. The spur being built to the new washing plant site is progressing rapidly. Just as soon as the last rail is laid supplies and building material will be rushed in for the new plant, which is to be ten times as large as the present experimental washer.

TIMEKEEPER ASSAULTED.

Biwabik, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas Sulvaney, timekeeper at the Biwabik mine, was the victim of a cowardly assault early Thursday morning while returning from a dance at the pavilion. He was with a young woman and several friends, but none saw his assailant, leading to the theory he was hit by a missel thrown by some miscreant. His scalp was badly cut and he was knocked down.

BRAKEMAN'S FINGERS ARE CRUSHED BETWEEN CARS.

CHISHOLM PROPOSES SHANE.

Chisholm, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. G. Shane, a well known business man, is being groomed by his friends for the office of county commissioner. His friends believe this growing section is entitled to representation on the county board.

LOUIS FINN RELEASED ON OWN RECOGNIZANCE.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Louis Finn, who was arrested on a charge of inducing witnesses in the circus robbery case to leave town, was released on his own recognizance yesterday, on his promise to produce the witnesses. He was to report to the chief of police at 5 o'clock last evening, but failed to do so.

YOUNG HARRY ROSE LOST LIFE IN HEROIC MANNER.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Henry Rose, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis D. Rose of Hibbing, Minn., who was drowned near here Wednesday evening about 7:30 o'clock, while swimming on the north side of the first of the Picnic rocks, or the "point" as the boys call it, lost his life while trying to save his companion, Ralph Foreman, of this city, who, it seems, was seized with a cramp while in the water.

The only eye witnesses were three small boys, of eleven or twelve years of age. Two of them are sons of Archie L. Rose of 114 West Prospect street, and the third is a boy by the name of Extrom. After the terrifying happening the boys kept their heads, and hastened to give the alarm with all speed, running south on the beach toward the lifesaving station. The distance they had to cover before getting help was, however, a considerable one, and although members of the lifesaving crew hastened to the scene with all speed, it was about 8 o'clock before the bodies were recovered. They were worked over with all the familiar methods of restoring life in apparently drowned persons, but they had been in the water for half an hour or more, and the best efforts of the members of the crew were in vain.

ELELETH PUPILS TO BE CARED FOR

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—All is in readiness for the opening of the school term Sept. 8. In the short space of six weeks since the burning of the high school, the school board and Supt. Greening have worked hard to get things in shape so that all the pupils will have some place to go this term. The high school pupils will occupy their old quarters at the Fayal school. All the subjects as usual will be taught except possibly chemistry, as no laboratory apparatus has been received. Physics, manual training and cooking will be taught. The manual training department will occupy the basement rooms; the kindergarten children will use the Fayal hall, Mesaba Mountain township and the old kindergarten; the grade children will be placed in the new grade school and in the public school near the Iron Range depot.

All the pupils will be accomodated. All the high school text books and those for the grades that have not been received will be here by the first of the month. The teachers will begin to assemble near the end of this month, and as all that have been engaged will be employed, the standard of the school work will not be lowered by the burning of the high school.

As soon as the architect arrives from Duluth, the school board will hold a meeting to decide on advertising for bids for a new high school. The ruins of the fire have been removed, and work on the new building will be started before Sept. 1.

ORE IS REPORTED UNDERLYING LAND

Forty Adjoining Gilbert May Not be Used by Spartans.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is a report current to the effect that the forty adjoining the townsite of Gilbert, upon which it was proposed to move the buildings in the village of Sparta, in case their owners preferred to have them moved, is underlaid with ore, and that this fact has been known for some time, both by the officials of the Steel corporation and others on the inside. It is claimed that three drill holes, put down in different parts of the forty, all pierced the ore body. Whether this is true or not, the fact remains that not a single building in Sparta will be moved to the forty adjoining Gilbert, as practically the residents of Sparta, whose property was desired, have given options to the Steel corporation's representative for purchase of the same. The options expire on Sept. 15, when it is expected that the deals will all be closed, the money paid over and then the former owners can go to Gilbert or any place they choose. The buildings will either be sold or torn down, to make way for the mining operations. Only such property as lies over the ore body will be purchased by the company, and although this territory includes almost the entire business section, there will be quite a number of buildings left untouched, so that in all probability Sparta will remain an organized municipality.

For some time past the local agents of the fire insurance companies have been busy cancelling policies on Sparta buildings, probably for fear that some of the residents might become careless and allow their houses to burn up, now that they know they will soon be compelled to vacate. The holders of mortgages and other liens on these properties have also been busy getting their papers in shape to make collections when the Steel corporation gets ready to hand over the money.

Those who have purchased property in the new town of Gilbert are very much pleased over this turn of affairs, as they expect that many of the Spartans will purchase lots and erect buildings in Gilbert proper, while if they had been moved to the forty adjoining, the business section would have been stretched out to a considerable length, with the result that none of the property would be likely to increase in value very rapidly. With none of the Sparta buildings moved, the business center of Gilbert is expected to build up more compactly, and those who purchased business property for speculative purposes feel more secure that they will get out with a good profit than they did when the proposal was made to extend the business district by the addition of a forty.

While it is generally considered that the Steel corporation has made a better deal for itself by purchasing the properties outright, rather than moving the buildings to Gilbert, the Sparta residents are generally well satisfied, as they will receive fair prices, while they would much prefer to erect new buildings to having the old ones moved. The deal, as consummated, will undoubtedly be to the advantage of both Eveleth and Gilbert.

HIBBING BALL NINE BUSY.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.) — Commencing today, weather permitting, Coleraine will open a series of four games at the local ball park. Coleraine will be followed by the Duluth White Sox, who play here Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. Hibbing will then return with the Sox to Duluth for a series of six games, after which they will proceed to the Twin Cities for a series of six games for the championship of the Northwest. Leaving St. Paul on the morning of the third, the Hibbing team will depart for a tour of Northern Michigan and Wisconsin to meet such aggregations as the Hurley, Hudson, Ironwood, Bessemer, Ishpeming, Marquette, and Negaunee teams. This trip will undoubtedly be the longest ever made by a semi-professional team in the Northwest.

HOSPITAL A NECESSITY

Public Affairs Committee Urges Prompt Action by City.

"Take the Plunge and Then Hear Protests," is Advice.

Duluth's urgent need for a city hospital, and more especially the immediate necessity of a contagious ward, was recognized at the meeting of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club last night, and by unanimous vote it was recommended that the city take action at once to secure a suitable site and building.

The general opinion seems to be that a contagious ward should be established right away, the ultimate object being to provide additional room for other city hospital purposes, so that cases beside the contagious ones may be taken care of.

Mayor Haven addressed the meeting, saying several sites for the proposed building had been considered by the city authorities. The one which they at present incline to most favorably, he stated, is favorably located, and already has a building on it that could be utilized for the purpose desired. The site and structure could be purchased for $15,000, a sum that already has been appropriated by the council for city hospital purposes. The mayor seemed to be of the opinion that the buying of this property would be a wise step.

Bishop McGolrick spoke of the crying need for a city hospital. He said it was a disgrace to the city that it did not establish one long ago, and a crying shame that it hesitated now. The talk against locating the building in a residence section for fear of spreading contagion, he branded as rot, and pointed to St. Mary's hospital as an example of this. The contagious ward at this institution is full of patients all the time, and there never has been a case of contagious disease reported from the immediate neighborhood, proof positive that such a ward, when properly established and cared for, is absolutely without danger to the surrounding community. This ward, he stated, is entirely inadequate to meet the needs of the city, and quarantine has to be established in various parts of the city as a result, because there is no place to take scarlet fever, diphtheria and other patients. He said Duluth should not take a long time to debate so important a question, when the need was so apparent and so urgent, but that an immediate decision should be reached, to be followed by immediate action. He recommended that the city go right ahead and acquire a site and building at once.

George Ripley compared acquiring a contagious hospital to a plunge into cold water. "The only way is to take the plunge and have it over with, despite any objections that may arise from supersensitive citizens," he said; "In taking a cold plunge if we first put in one toot slowly, and then the other, and so on until we are entirely immersed, we feel it twice as much. The only way is to take one plunge into the icy water. That is just the way we should do with this hospital proposition."

There were several other speakers, and the sentiment favoring the immediate requirement of a hospital and site was unanimous. Members appeared to favor the plan suggested by Mayor Haven, of spending the $15,000 already in hand for the building and site he spoke of. The committee voted to rescind its former action in recommending the city park property at Twelfth avenue west as a site, on the ground that too many legal difficulties would have to be overcome before the land could be used for the purpose desired at the time of the original resolution. The city attorney, after investigating the matter, found that park property could not be used for contagious hospital purposes, and that special legislation would be necessary before it could be so used. The rescinding of this motion clears the decks for the city authorities and backs them up in any action they may take.

Excellent Health Advice.

Mrs. M. M. Davison, of No. 379 Gifford Ave., San Jose, Cal., says: "The worth of Electric Bitters as a general family remedy, for headache, biliousness and torpor of the liver and bowels is so pronounced that I am prompted to say a word in its favor, for the benefit of those seeking relief from such afflictions. There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of." Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c.

SITUATION PERPLEXING

Board of Equalization Puzzled to Know What to Do.

Duluth's Assessment May be Knocked Out in Courts.

No definite decision was reached by the county board this morning, nor is it likely that this afternoon's work will be productive of a final settlement of the Duluth assessment question.

The problem is deep and hard of solution. Every effort is being made to make a satisfactory arrangement of Assessor Jackson's figures, and at the same time place the assessment beyond fear of contest. It is feared that if the assessment should be knocked out in the courts by irate property owners next spring, the state tax commission might step in and make an assessment which would be still harder on Duluthians than the present one. A final resolution settling the question is expected tomorrow, but not before.

Mayor Roland D. Haven, and Assessor Jackson were in consultation with the board this morning. As Mr. Jackson figured it out, he had made a "poor man's assessment." The small property holder he declared, would pay less taxes under his increased assessment, because the rate would be lowered. He seemed surprised when Auditor Halden informed him that the state rate of approximately 3.48 mills was fixed by the last legislature, and that the county rate had also been fixed at 2.67 mills and would remain the same in spite of the assessment which Mr. Jackson had evolved. Mr. Jackson's figures were based on a reduction in the state rate, which he expected would be effected by an increased assessment in Duluth.

"Why, your big assessment here would be no more than a drop in the bucket in the state figures. It would not effect the rate. We will simply be paying more than our share of the taxes, both to the state and to the county," said Mr. Halden when the assessor submitted his figures.

Says It Is Conservative.

Mr. Jackson then submitted some figures showing where his assessment was conservative. Attorney Stevenson brought some figures on his own personal property showing that the assessment which Mr. Jackson had made was actually considerably above the actual price at which he had the property listed with a local real estate agent. Mr. Jackson said that there might, of course, be mistakes in exceptional cases.

Mr. Jackson stated that he doubted whether Thomas Lowry and the West Duluth Land company would part with their holdings on the bay front in West Duluth for double the price he assessed them at. It was pointed out to him by the board that neither the inflated speculative value at which lots like these might be held, nor the low forced sale value was the proper basis for a rational assessment.

Kicks of considerable magnitude are coming in from other sections of the city as a result of the excessive assessment. The Lake View Land company objected to the assessment of the lots in Crosley Park, Lakeside. These lots the company bought on the installment plan, at an unusually high price, it was stated, for $65,000. The assessor's valuation was $47,650, about 73 per cent of the actual value, in a 50 per cent assessment. The assessment of 1906 was only $22,000. They wanted a reduction of $30,000, or one-third on each lot.

Richardson & Day wanted a reduction on lots located in a body in the northwestern part of East Lawn division, above the normal school. They wanted an assessment of $31,270 reduced to $12,385.

No action has been taken on the request of the Great Northern Bridge company for the reduction of the assessment on the Duluth half of the bridge from $65,000 to $30,000.

In the resolution revaluing the iron lands on the range, published in The Herald Wednesday, charges were made which increased the range assessment about $2,000,000. This leaves a margin of this amount, which may, if the board so desires, be applied in reducing values in Duluth. This means that West Duluth values may be reduced, even to the extent of 40 per cent, as asked by the realty men there, and not necessitate a raise in values in other parts of the city.

Mayor Haven and Auditor Halden, with City Attorney C. S. Wilson and W. J. Stevenson for the county board, had a long and earnest discussion this morning, but apparently failed to decide upon any course of action. Mr. Halden stated at noon that he considered that there was no chance of getting things in shape for a resolution this afternoon.

KING GETS CONTRACT.

Is Lowest Bidder for East Sixth Street Improvement.

George R. King was the lowest bidder on the contract for grading East Sixth street from Twenty-eighth avenue east to Twenty-fourth avenue east, and Twenty-fourth avenue east to Vista street, the contract to include constructing a sewer over the same route.

The bids were opened this morning by the board of public works. There were two bidders, George R. King and P. McDonnell. The figures of the first were $8,957.80, and the second $9,196. This was about all the business of any importance to come before the board.

RAILROADS

ROADS READY FOR THE WHEAT

Cars Being Sent to Points Where They Are Needed.

Both the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific roads are sending cars to the points where the wheat will be loaded for the fall movement. An official said today that in a short while the westward movement of the cars would be general. The estimates for the probable yield have convinced the railroad men that they will have a very heavy yield, nad they are preparing to meet the tax that will be imposed upon the rolling stock.

The Pacific coast lumber trade and the other industries that last year at this time demanded many of the cars, will this year impose a less tax upon the cars of the railroad companies in the West. They will have more cars than they have had in years to meet the heavy demands of the wheat movement. Last year at this time, at the Head of the Lakes, there were not many cars in sight to meet the wheat movement. While the movement will be heavier this year, there will be added equipment to meet the demands fo the situation and railroad men state that they do not expect the delays that were occasioned last fall by the car situation.

The fact that the wheat has to be moved within thirty days, causes most of the congestion. It becomes a question of terminals, sidings and motive power. While the terminals, sidings and motive power of the roads of the West have not increased materially since a year ago, they will have many more cars waiting at the grain centers for loading, and much of the delay that was occasioned last year by lack of cars will be avoided this fall.

NO TROUBLE EXPECTED.

Although Canadian Northern Employes Claim They Have Grievance.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 14.—With regard to the trouble between the Canadian Northern railway and its employes, it is learned that prior to the adoption of the present schedule, May 1, the men were in the habit of getting an extra hour's pay a week, as they left work at 4 o'clock on Saturday but were not paid until 5 o'clock. There were a number of concessions, such as free transportation which were not specially mentioned in the new schedule and the men claim that a letter was written by the company in which it was agreed that all conditions not mentioned in the schedule were to obtain the same as previously. The extra hour has been cut off by the company, and while some trouble has resulted, it is not expected that any serious results will follow the negotiations.

WOODSMEN EAT ICE CREAM CONES

Confection Has Become Popular on the Bowery.

The popularity of the ice cream cone has spread to the bowery and Michigan street.

"Ice cream," calls a big fat man in a dirty apron, across from the union depot. "Here boys is where you get your ice cream cones. All sizes, from little cones for a cent to big ones for a nickel." And these days from early morning until late in the evening he does a rattling good business.

It is an odd sight to see big men, licking away at heaping little cornucopias of ice cream, but one can see it every day on Michigan street. Big, husky, bewhiskered lumberjacks lounging at the doors of saloons, appear to get all the enjoyment of small boys out of the ice cream cone. They crowd about the ice cream man, shoving and pushing to be waited on.

FLAX HAS A BIG BREAK

County Elevators Big Sellers and Prices Go Down.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 14.—The country elevators threw a bomb into the market about an hour before the close today by dumping flax on in such quantities that the market couldn't absorb it. Prices in all grades of flax were forced down from 3c to 4c by the heavy offerings, although there weren't many trades at the lower prices. At the close flax was down about 3c below yesterday's closing prices, and the market for it was weak.

The better feeling which prevailed among the wheat traders continued today, and there was a further small advance in all American markets. The bears exhausted their efforts Wednesday and the market is controlled now by news and natural conditions. Reports from the Manitoba wheat fields are conflicting, but for the most part promising of a good crop. The Modern Miller says:

"Winter wheat farmers are preparing soil for fall seeding and the deliveries of wheat are small at country stations. Interior mills generally report good stocks on hand."

The September option closed 1⅛c up in Duluth, ¾-⅞c up in Chicago, 1⅛c up in Minneapolis, ⅞c up in New York, ½c up in St. Louis, ⅝c up in Kansas City and ⅝c up in Winnipeg. The December option closed ¼c up in Duluth, ⅝c in Chicago, ⅝c up in Minneapolis, ¾-⅞c up in New York, ½c up in St. Louis, ½c up in Kansas City and ⅝c up in Winnipeg.

Wheat closed ¼d higher in Liverpool, ¾c higher in Berlin and ½c to ¾c lower in Paris. Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a steady undertone to the speculative wheat market at the opening values were ⅜d higher. There was some bull support on the firmer American cables yesterday and the light shipments from Argentine. During the morning some selling to realize took place, and values lost ⅜d to ½d on the fact that the frost reported in Manitoba did not do much damage, fine harvesting weather in the United Kingdom and favorable Argentine crop prospects. At this time the market was quiet and unchanged to ⅛d lower than yesterday.

"Corn was firm at the start and ¼d higher and further gained ⅛d during the morning. The strength was the result of the light Argentine shipments and the continued firmness of parcels."

The Argentine visible supply of wheat this week is 2,576,000 bus., against 2,240,000 last week and 723,000 bus., last year. The Argentine visible supply of corn is 2,389,000 bus., against 2,275,000 bus., last week and 894,000 bus., a year ago.

Car receipts of wheat were 13 against 16 last year, and at Minneapolis 94 against 99 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 107 against 115 last year. Chicago received 174 against 250 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 825,000 bus, last year 940,000 bus. Shipments 925,000 bus. last year 400,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 225,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 324,000 bus, last year 395,000 bus. Shipments 206,000 bus, last year 485,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 2,071 bus.

The Argentine wheat shipments this week were 1,264,000 bus against 2,700,000 bus last week and 1,000,000 bus last year. The Argentine shipments of corn were 1,406,000 bus against 2,096,000 bus last week and 1,065,000 bus last year.

There was considerable activity on the floor of the Duluth board of trade all during the session. Wheat was strong all day, with a few big deals, for an undertone of firmness. September wheat opened 1⅛c up at $1.02½, advanced to $1.03, then to $1.03¼, dropped back to $1.02⅜ and advanced to $1.02⅞ at the close. December wheat opened unchanged at 98⅜c, advanced to 99⅜c and dropped back to 99c at the close.

The flax market had a strong tone during the early part of the session and showed advances over yesterday's price, but the unloading of quantities by the country elevators broke the market and sent prices down below yesterday's level. September flax opened ½c off at $1.33, advanced to $1.34, broke to $1.30 and rallied to $1.30½ at the close, a net loss of 3c. October flax opened unchanged at $1.31, advanced to $1.31¾, fell off to $1.27½ and rallied to $1.28 at the close, 3c off. November flax opened 1c off at $1.30, dropped back to $1.27½ and closed at that figure. December flax closed 2¾c off at $1.26 bid.

Rye was ½c up at 73½-75½c and barley closed at 50-62c against 57-63c. Durum wheat was unchanged and cash spring wheat sold at 15⅛c over September wheat.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Easy Under Cables, But Advances on Rain Reports.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—An easy market at Liverpool was locally influential at the beginning of trade today, but the foreign factor was soon eliminated by reports of rains in the Northwest, which it was said would delay harvesting. September opened ¼c to ⅜c under yesterday at 92⅞c to 93c, and on active buying advanced to 93¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 281 cars against 361 last week and 265 a year ago.

The development of a cash demand at Minneapolis augmented the strength later. September advanced to 94¼c and closed strong ¾ to ⅞c up at 94@⅛c.

The firmness of cables and the local wheat market lent strength to corn, although business was quiet. September opened ⅛c lower at 77½c and rose to 77⅞c. Local receipts were 125 cars, with 41 of contract grade.

Heavy selling by cash houses on favorable crop reports sent the market to a weak close, September, ⅝@¾c under yesterday at 76⅞@77c.

The oats market opened quiet and steady, with the exception of the September option, which delivery, however, quickly recovered in sympathy with surrounding pits. September opened ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c lower, at 47⅛c to 47¼c, and sold to 47⅜@½c. Local receipts, 284 cars.

The recent decline having carried the prices of provisions to a level sufficiently low to make purchases sufficiently attractive, the market for hog products stiffened, despite a further drop in hogs. September pork opened 2½c lower to 2½c higher, at $14.95@15 and advanced to $15.10; September lard opened unchanged to a shade up at $9.25 to $9.25@9.27½, and September ribs unchanged to 2½c higher at $8.65@8.67½.

Close: Wheat, September, 94@⅛c; December, 95⅞@96c; May, $1.00¼. Corn—September, 76⅞@77c; December, 64½c; May, 63¼c. Oats—September, 47c; December, 47⅜c; May, 49⅜@49½c. Pork—September, $14.95c; October, $15.10; January, $15.97½; May, $16. Lard—September, $9.25; October, $9.35; January, $8.12½. Ribs—September, $8.65; October, $8.75; January, $8.12½. Rye, cash, 78c; barley, cash, 63@67c. Timothy—September, $3.65; October, $3.55. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 94@96¼c; No. 3 red, 93¾@95¼c; No. 2 hard, 94¾@97¾; No. 3 hard, 94¼@96c; No. 1 northern, $1.21; No. 2 northern, $1.18; No. 3 spring, 98c@$1.12. Corn—No. 2, 79½@80c; No. 3, nothing doing. Oats—No. 2 new, 47½.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Frost Report From Canada Gives Wheat a Quick Advance.

Minneapolis, Aug. 14.—Wheat had a strong opening and a quick advance on frost in Western Canada again last night and rains in North and South Dakota harvest fields. The cables were indifferent, which with good rain relief for the corn crop made Chicago less inclined to be bearish. Locally the receipts were so light, cash inquiry so good and the general supply situation so strained that few sold wheat and a little new buying put it higher. The run was 94 cars against 84, and in Duluth 13 against 16. Local elevator stocks will decrease about 375,000 bus for the week, which will bring the total down to about 800,000 bus. Near the close the market was firm and active. September opened at $1.02¼; high, $1.02⅝; low, $1.01½@1.01⅝; close, $1.02½. Old September opened at $1.03¼; high, $1.03⅝; low, $1.02⅝; close, $1.03½@1.03⅝. December opened at $1.00¼; high, $1.00½; low, 99½@99⅝c; close, $1.00⅜@1.00½. Old December closed at $1.01.

Cash wheat was in good demand. Ten cars of new wheat turned up and buyers were after it with $1.23 the early price for No. 1 northern and $1.20@1.21 bid for good No. 2. A car of choice old No. 1 northern sold at $1.25. No. 3 wheat went as high as $1.15@1.16. Close: No. 1 northern $1.23@1.25; spot new $1.10, to arrive; No. 2 northern $1.20@1.21; spot; new $1.07 to arrive; No. 3 wheat $1.15@1.18. No. 3 yellow corn 78¾@79¼c. No. 3 white oats 44⅞c; No. 2 rye 71¾@73¾c. Barley declined 2 cents for choice lots and 2@3c for ordinary low grades. Receipts, 48 cars; close, 52@62c.

Elevators wanted a little flax and crushers were no longer able to get it under 2 cents under Duluth September, as elevators paid full option price. Flax to arrive sold 2 cents under September. Close $1.30¼. Mill stuffs on basis, $19.50 for bran in bulk, millers' quotations. Flour shipments were back up closer to former daily totals, as the mills that closed temporarily have resumed grinding. There were rumors of sales of patent flour for export, but millers said that while they had sold some second clear flour to Europe, they were unable to figure prices on patents low enough for foreign business. The market remained firm. Shipments, 37,207 barrels. First patent, $6.15@6.25; second patents, $6@6.15; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

Prices are unchanged today.

The blueberry season is about over and it is only now and then that a straggling case is received on the local market. The berries have not been very plentiful this year, and the price has been the highest in years.

Heard on the Floor.

The appeal board in executive session, after the hearing, Aug. 12, in Minneapolis, decided to continue their investigations now under way of the so-called "velvet chaff" wheat before establishing a grade for it, if any, and adjourned until the results found from tests being made are concluded.

In the meantime the board will continue to carry the wheat as formerly, in the northern spring grades only, with a notation describing its character.

The question of placing dockage on oats and barley was also continued for further investigation and consideration until an adjourned meeting to be held about Sept. 1.

A DECLINE IN STOCKS

Closing Weak With Bears Hammering the Securities.

New York, Aug. 14.—Prices of stocks were shaded in the opening dealings today, but the declines in most cases were small and there was only moderate activity. There were gains in the Rock Island group, the preferred stock rising 1¼ and St. Louis and San Francisco preferred ¾. American Locomotive and General Electric declined 1, and Southern Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, American Smelting, National Lead and Utah Copper large fractions.

Extensive sales were made of a few of the important railroads and specialties, and when they broke from 2 to 4 points, the rest of the list also yielded sharply. Support appeared at the low level, and there were recoveries of a point in some cases. The decline cost National Lead 4 points; Missouri Pacific, 3⅜; American Smelting, 3; Rock Island, 2¾; Great Northern preferred, 2; Northern Pacific, 1¾, and the remainder of the list from 1 to 1½.

Extreme weakness was shown by special stocks and the prices receded to a lower level all around in sympathy. Westinghouse Electric broke 5¼, Canadian Pacific and the Readings, New York, Central, St. Paul, Southern Railway preferred, Colorado Fuel, Amalgamated Copper, Interborough Metropolitan preferred, American Sugar and Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred 2 to 2½. St. Louis & San Francisco Refundings 4's declined 2¼. Bonds were irregular.

Fractional recoveries were followed by a period of dullness on which the fluctuations were unimportant. Northwestern ran off 2 and Railway Steel Spring, 2¼.

The market showed slight signs of weakness again but the tone became firmer and sank into extreme dullness. Later Amalgamated Copper fell back to the lowest with sympathetic effect on the list. Toledo, St. Louis and Western advanced 1¼.

The market closed very weak. The bears forced the lowest prices of the day in a renewed rair on values in the final hour, which centered on the metal and mining stocks. American Smelting dropped 4½, Amalgamated Copper 3¾, Reading 3⅝, Anaconda and Colorado Fuel 2¾, Southern Pacific 2½, Union Pacific and General Electric 2⅜, Wisconsin Central preferred 2¼ and Great Northern preferred, North American and American Locomotive 2. Covering operations by the shorts to take profits caused some rally, but there was another slump.

Closing prices are bid.

BAND CONCERT AT LESTER PARK

Herald Provides a Great Musical Treat for Duluth People.

A band of twenty-five trained musicians under the direction of John Powell, the "Black Sousa," in a grand free open air concert at Lester park, Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock—that is the treat The Herald has provided for the people of Duluth.

Because "In Old Kentucky" company does not open its season until next Monday evening, at the Lyceum, The Herald has been able to make arrangements, through the courtesy of the owner, A. W. Dingwall, to secure the famous musical organization that has proven such a strong drawing card for the show, and which has been making a great hit this season at Manhattan Beach. The band will arrive from New York Saturday afternoon.

This is one of the greatest opportunities that Duluth people have ever had to hear a band of so wide reputation in a splendid program of sacred and popular music.

Go out to the park early. Take the family and spend the day at one of Northern Minnesota's greatest beauty spots. The park scenery is at its best, and there is no more delightful place in the world to have an outing.

Herald's Next Excursion.

The regular Herald excursion to Two Harbors will occur tomorrow afternoon on the steamer Easton from Booth's dock at 4 p. m. Don't miss this thirty-mile ride down the lake and return by moonlight—no finer trip in the country. The fare is only 30 cents. Tickets are now on sale at The Herald office. Buy your's early to insure your going, because the sale will be limited to the number of people that can be carried with comfort.

To find, to get, to let, to sell—is to Herald want advertise!

REAR ADMIRAL COGSWELL DEAD

News of the death of Admiral Cogswell was received in a telegram today by Undertaker George L. Thomas, of this city, from an undertaker at Jacksonville, Fla., which simply announced the death of the distinguished admiral, and asking that he make arrangements for the burial in Milwaukee.

Rear Admiral Cogswell was born in Milwaukee sixty-four years ago and was reared here. He was a school mate of Gen. Arthur McArthur and Gen. Charles King, and only a little over a year ago attended a re-union of the high school class to which he belonged when he was a boy.

It was Rear Admiral Cogswell who made the famous trip with the Oregon around the Horn from the Pacific to the Atlantic during the Spanish-American war.

CLEVELAND MAN SHOOTS HIS WIFE AND HIMSELF.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 14.—Crazed with jealousy, Stephen Petrik, 22 years old, probably fatally shot Marie Petrik, 18 years, his bride of seven weeks, at their home here today, and then committed suicide. This morning Petrick and his wife had a dispute and he left the house after threatening to kill her. He returned later and again threatened her. She dropped on her knees to plead with him, when he drew a revolver and shot her three times. He then fired a shot into his own head.

No one is apt to think more highly of a store than its owner does—hence his advertising should be so big that it will reflect his belief in his store's importance—and so continuous that it will have the force of iteration.

CALUMET & HECLA LODE ON NORTH SHORE

Mining Experts Claim to Have Contimation of Rich Vein.

Conglomerate and Amygdaloid Formations Resembles Michigan's.

After years of prospecting, analyzing, mining experts believe that finally the continuation of the lode, which makes the Keweenaw ranges the greatest native-copper producing district in the world, has been discovered on the north shore of Lake Superior.

E. C. Jordan, a local mining man, with offices in the Torrey building, has returned from Canada with a party of Duluth men, and he has charts, samples and reports of mining engineers to support the contentions he and many others make.

E. K. Corbett, a mining engineer in the employ of a New York syndicate, which is engaged in the location of an electro-metallurgical furnace on the north shore, is given credit for the discovery of the vein, which is located on the eastern side of the Black Bay peninsula.

Reports have formerly been made that the continuation of the Calumet & Hecla conglomerate vein had been discovered on the north shore, but they have always proven false alarms. Discoveries of copper were certainly made, but they were found to have no depth. Most of the discoveries were made on the western side of the Black Bay peninsula, however, while the new vein which is believed to be really the continuation of the Calumet & Hecla lode, is on the eastern end, a hitherto unexplored field. The slope of the peninsula from the vein is westward, and the theory of the mining experts is that in the upheaval, the molten lava naturally was thrown toward the west, which would explain the discoveries on the west coast of the peninsula.

The vein discovered by Mr. Corbett is of conglomerate rock, several samples of which were brought to Duluth by Mr. Jordan. Local mining men, who know the nature of the conglomerate vein of the Calumet & Hecla, assert that the rock is identical in its formation. The footwall is of this jasper conglomerate, rich in copper, and is flaked by amygdaloid trap rock, a formation identical with that in the Keweenaw peninsula. The vein may be followed for twenty miles by the outcroppings. At places it is buried under debris and alluvia, but at irregular intervals, fissure veins and cross-strikes show on the surface, enabling the following of the vein.

No diamond drills have yet been put in operation, so that the depth of the vein has not been discovered. On the northern end, however, a depth of 350 feet is visible and gives indication of great depth. The vein slopes at an angle of 38 degs. toward the south, and engineers take this fact as support of their theories that the copper lode of the Calumet & Hecla has dipped under Lake Superior to continue across to the north shore.

The footwall of conglomerate and the amygdaloid trap rock are both richly mineralized. Mr. Corbett, by his electro metallurgical process has treated some of the rock in his laboratory and received excellent results. Since the first discovery, which was about a year ago, engineers and experts were quietly taken into the district and asked for opinions. All are said to have been favorable, with the result that there was a rush of those in on the know to take up claims on the peninsula. As a result, most of the land has been taken up.

Besides copper, it is said that there is gold and silver in the vein, estimated at 3½ per cent. The silver is in native state, while the gold is alloyed with the copper. At the southern end of the vein there is also a formation of a metal the character of which has not been discovered. It is unlike anything the experts have ever seen—hard as flint, scaling off in sheets and with smooth surfaces. Whether it has any commercial value remains to be seen.

Mr. Jordan and the other Duluth men who visited the field are enthusiastic over it. They firmly believe that the discovery is the greatest in a mining way in years, and are convinced that the long-sought-for continuation of the Calumet & Hecla conglomerate lode has been discovered. Those in the party were Alvin White, Prof. T. F. Phillips of the high school faculty, and E. A. Grochau.

The Band Concerts.

Another big crowd was present last night at Joyland, to hear the Rag-Time concert given by the Third Regiment band, and each number was loudly encored. By request, Mr. Jeancon sang the "Toreador" song from "Carmen." Tonight will be request night, and Director Flaaten, in response to numerous inquiries, is preparing a program ranging from the light popular pieces to the classics. Tomorrow night, Saturday, will be National Air night, and in addition to the melodies of all nations, Don M. Clark will appear in costume and sing his imitations of Harry Louder, the famous Scotch comedian. Tonight's program is as follows:

EVADING TRUCK ACT

Irish Girl Workers Are Robbed by Employment Agents.

Agents Palm Off Cheap Finery on the Sewing Girls.

Dublin, Aug 14.—It has been a belief almost amounting to the dignity of a tradition that the truck act, as the law prohibiting an employer from paying his employes in goods instead of in cash is called, was honestly and thoroughly enforced throughout the United Kingdom, but the facts which have just come to light show that it is a dead letter in Donegal.

Miss Martindale, an inspector of factories and workshops, declares that "trucking and gombeening" are as prevalent in Donegal today as in the old days before the passage of the act. Thousands of Donegal girls are occupied at home work 'Springing," which means embroidering handkerchiefs, hand and machine knitting and machining and finishing shirts and collars. The work is done for the great Belfast and Derry manufacturers, but in justice to them it must be said that they have nothing to do with the evasion of the truck act. The fault lies with their agents, who are mostly local shopkeepers, and through whom the work is distributed to the Donegal girls. Miss Martindale says that she has found that it is rare in Donegal to find a girl who is paid in coin for her work. As a matter of form the money may be handed to her, but she is expected to spend it at once in the agent's shop, and more often she never sees the money at all but receives goods which are supposed to represent the value of her work.

Spend Money at Agents' Shops.

"Continually we are told," says Miss Martindale, "that unless the money is left at the shop no work would be given, and we become accustomed to the remarks: 'Out of friendship we might be getting a little coin,' 'Surely it's only with a great squeeze we get any money at all,' and 'He's middlin' hard on coin.'

"The workers themselves seem to feel no resentment and to regard it as a matter of course that they should spend all their money at the agent's shop. 'Indeed and it's ashamed I'd be not to leave my wages at the shop' said one girl to the inspector, while another said 'I have never taken a halfpenny from Miss B., and I get a great deal of work from her.'"

One of the worst features of the system is that the money must all be spent on useless finery, as the agents are nearly all small dry goods dealers. Not one of them sells flour, bacon or meal or other necessities for the Donegal peasants.

Kilt Question Still Unsolved.

The great Irish kilt question is still unsolved. Mr. Hazelton, M. P., has written an amusing letter to Black Rod, the antiquated official who objected to the presence in the house of lords of a gentleman wearing the Irish kilt, in which he draws Black Rod's attention to the fact that the king sometimes wears his kilts and that he (Black Rod) does not wear trousers himself, but Black Rod has not seen fit to reply. The Irish members of parliament are now seriously considering the advisability of appearing in the house of commons in kilts as a protest, and Mr. Hazelton declares that he will bring several of his friends who wear kilts to the House of Lords just to see what Black Rod will do about it.

Crime Is on Decrease.

Crime in Ireland continues to decrease with satisfying rapidity. The statistics for 1907, which have just been issued, show that there were only 9,418 indictable offences before the courts in 1907, as compared with 9,465 in 1906 and 9,728 in 1905. There was a corresponding decrease in the number of non-indictable offences and it is notable that 51.4 per cent of the total number of offences dealt with by the courts were either drunkenness or the minor offences growing out of drunkenness, such as assaults and disorderly conduct. There is, however, a welcome decrease in offences of this class also.

It has just been discovered that a serious blunder was made last year by the department of agriculture, which is one of the few boards connected with the Castle government that is doing any real good for Ireland. It has been the custom of the department to supply farmers with flax seed as a reward for success in growing flax, and last year the award was earned by a large number of farmers in County Derry and in Tyronne. They got their flax seed and planted it, but when it came up it was discovered that the flax was of the kind which is only good for oil production and seeding purposes, but was no use at all as a fibre producer for linen making. As the only market for the Irish flax growers is afforded by the linen manufacturers the farmers have suffered a heavy loss and they are now calling on the department to reimburse them.

Printers Against Foreign Prayerbook.

The Dublin printers are about to appeal to the Irish bishops to put a stop to the purchase of imported prayer-books by priests as prizes for children in the schools. It is stated that this large trade has almost entirely gone abroad, while better books are produced for the same price in Dublin, and hundreds of Dublin printers are out of employment. It is also proposed to appeal to Irish Catholic trade unionists not to allow their children to accept these books unless they bear an imprint showing that they were printed and bound in Ireland.

A romance of a hundred years ago is recalled by the claim of Leslie O'Callaghan, a small farmer of Kanturk, county Cork, to the title and estates of the late Lord Lismore, who died without issue in 1898. O'Callaghan claims to be the eldest legitimate grandson of Richard O'Callaghan, first cousin of the late Lord Lismore. A hundred years ago Richard O'Callaghan fell in love with a pretty servant named Nellie O'Connell and married her in the Roman Catholic church at Colough. His father promptly cut him off, and as he was a Protestant and the girl a Catholic, the marriage, under the laws of that time, was invalid, and their eldest son was, therefore, declared illegitimate. After his birth the parents were remarried in a Protestant church, and Leslie O'Callaghan is the son of one of the sons born after this second marriage. Lord Lismore's title is now supposed to be extinct and his property has passed to Lady Beatrice and Lady Constance Butler, the daughters of Lord Ormonde.

HORSES MADE DEAF.

Geneseo correspondence Rochester Herald: An unusual incident occurred at Clark's Corners, two miles north of Conesus Lake, when this week's electrical storm passed over the place. The barn on the Bartlett farm was struck by lightning during the night, and when Stephen Bartlett went to the barn in the morning he found that the post between two of the horses stalled in the barn was smashed to kindling.

Although the horses must have been rendered senseless by the shock, they did not show any injury until after being hitched up. When Bartlett began to gee, haw and cluck to the horses they paid no attention whatever to him, but as soon as he touched his whip to them they responded. An examination showed the animals had had their eardrums broken by the crash. Both horses are now stone deaf.

ANOTHER INTERNATIONAL UNION CROSSES SWORDS WITH CANADIAN PACIFIC

Locomotive Engineers and Firemen Say They Have Grievance.

Apply to Government for Appointment of an Arbitration Board.

Claim That Enginemen Have Been Wrongfully Dismissed.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 15.—Another international union has crossed swords with the Canadian Pacific railway company. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers has applied to the dominion government for the appointment of an arbitration board. The charge is made that an enginenan on the Lake Superior division has been wrongfully dismissed on account of his activity as a trade unionist.

Twenty more Japs arrived yesterday for work in the local shops. Another gang has gone to the Crow's Nest pass division.

POLITICS WARM IN POLK COUNTY

Candidates for Representatives Are Clawing Each Other.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Polk county is in the throes of the hottest and most bitter legislative fight in its history, and the result is about as uncertain as it could be. While the fight on the surface appears to be within the Republican ranks, it is rather a free-for-all, in which voters of all political faiths participate. The present members of the legislature, Saugstad and Holton, are making a thorough canvas of the county, and are making the fight practically on one issue, county option, for which they have both declared unequivocally. They are trying to make this the only issue, and freely charge the other two candidates for the Republican nomination with being the anti-county option candidates. The Vesterheimen, which is strong in its support of Messrs. Saugstad and Holton, came out Thursday evening with a bitter arraignment of Stair, and the article was so severe that widespread interest has been aroused and the fight will be more bitter than ever before. The Vesterheimen charges Stair with neglecting his duties as register of deeds to collect to the Polk county exhibit for the state fair, and for receiving pay for such work when he is already drawing a salary from the county. It also accuses him of being furnished with campaign funds by the liquor interests.

Stair and L. E. George are running against Holton and Saugstad on the platform adopted by the Republican state convention, and are making no issue of county option one way or the other further than it was dealt with by the state convention, but are advocating continued liberal appropriations for the Crookston branch state school of agriculture, more effective publicity measures for the Red River valley, and a platform of better development generally. They have never been allied with the liquor interests in any way, but Saugstad and Holton are trying to force them to make a public declaration on the county option issue and conduct the fight on that issue alone.

It is therefore impossible to determine what the result will be, but certain it is that the fight will develop some very bad blood and will be the most bitter ever waged in Polk county, before the primaries are over.

The Anti-saloon league and the Prohibitionists are supporting Saugstad and Holton pretty generally, and W. A. Rice of Fergus Falls is devoting a great deal of attention to Polk county. He claims there will be a hot fight in every county in the Ninth district, and that every effort will be bent to defeat every candidate who does not come out openly and declare for county option. The anti-saloon element is spending more money than was ever spent in this section all put together, but thus far the liquor men have spent nothing, and have not taken any part in the fight.

JAP GOVERNMENT REPLIES TO PROTEST.

Tokio, Aug. 15.—The reply of the Japanese government to the protest of China against the arrest and killing of Capt. Kawakita, a Japanese officer suspected of being a spy by Japanese soldiers attached to the legation in Pekin, has been wired to the Chinese capital. It says that the authority of the Japanese to perform police duty in Pekin is not defined in the treaty between the two nations.

Capt. Kawakita, the reply declares, was arrested by Japanese gendarmes whom he resisted with a sword and was shot by them in self-defense.

CHILD DIES OF NEGLECT

Attempt to be Made to Have Proprietor Arrested.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the infants found in the home run by Mrs. M. Williams at 1021 University avenue southeast, Minneapolis, when the authorities succeeded in forcing an entrance to the place Thursday night, after the woman had been absent for twenty-four hours, died last evening at the City hospital. The baby was a 5-months'-old girl and its parents are unknown. It was called the O'Connor baby.

Sergeant Landy of the Humane society stated that the death of the child was undoubtedly due to neglect.

"The child was taken to the City hospital yesterday morning with another baby, both showing signs of neglect," said the sergeant. "I notified Dr. Sedgwick to keep track of the condition of the little ones and do everything possible for them. The baby's death was not unexpected and I do not think the other child can live."

It was stated by humane society officers that steps would be taken at once to have Mrs. Williams arrested either on a charge of insanity or of being responsible for the death of the O'Connor child. They endeavored to have her license revoked, but the health department declined to interfere in the case.

TAFT COACHES LUKE WRIGHT

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 15.—Mr. Taft today devoted the major portion of his time to placing Luke E. Wright, his successor as secretary of war in touch with certain important Cuban and Panama matters. Gen. Wright will remain here over Sunday. No other callers or conferences were held today with the candidate, although the two West Virginia Republican factions are still here in an effort to settle their differences among themselves. It was stated, however, that both Swisher and Scherer have refused to voluntarily withdraw their gubernatorial aspirations and that ultimately the national committee will be confronted with the question for decision.

RECEIVER ASKED FOR.

Cincinnati, Aug. 15.—Application for a receiver for Morehead & Co., the largest of the commission and brokerage firms absorbed by Bullman & Co., some weeks before the latter concern failed, was formally made in the common pleas court yesterday, and will be argued before Judge D. D. Woodmansee. The application was made by attorneys for Newgas, Morales & Co., and other correspondents of Morehead & Co.

MAIL CAR IS ROBBED

Postal Car Detached and Contents Secured by Bandits.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Only a brief report was received at the office of Second Vice President Levy of the Northern Pacific today concerning the hold-up of the westbound Northern Pacific passenger train east of Spokane at 10:40 o'clock last night.

The report says that the robbers boarded the train at Rathdrum and hid themselves about the engine. After the train had gone a short distance the engine crew discovered the men and attempted to put them off. The bandits covered the crew with guns and forced them to disconnect the engine and mail car from the rest of the train. The enginemen were then compelled to run the engine and mail car a safe distance away from the train. After this had been accomplished, the bandits then proceeded to rob the mail car. The report does not say how much booty the robbers secured. No one was injured.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 15.—Bandits held up the Northern Pacific westbound passenger train last night near Trent, nine miles east of Spokane, drove out the enginemen, uncoupled the mail car and locomotive from the rest of the train and then themselves ran the engine and mail car to Yardley in the outskirts of the city.

A special train with officers has gone to the scene. It is not yet known whether the robbers got away with much loot.

INVENTOR OF SUBMARINE BOAT AT OYSTER BAY.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 15.—Moses S. Okun, a naturalized Russian of New York, and who says he is a gas appliance manufacturer and inventor of a submarine boat which he had written to President Roosevelt about, arrived in Oyster Bay last night, but has made no attempt to go to Sagamore Hill to see the president. He said he had no intention of trying to see the president, and came here only for a vacation. A certain rich enemy he claims, has been sending spies after him, and he came here to escape them. The president referred his communication regarding the submarine boat to the navy department and received a reply that the invention was of no use to the government. Okun said he probably will leave Oyster Bay in a day or two.

BUSH FIRES AGAIN RAGE

Canadian Pacific Ranger Says the Situation is Serious.

Change of Wind will Cause Widespread Disaster.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 15.—A special from Cranbrook says: A Canadian Pacific fire ranger just in from Kimberley says the fire is in a worse condition than ever, if the wind changes. The Sullivan buildings are in danger and Kimberley by no means is out of it. Heavy clouds of smoke from that direction can be seen from Cranbrook.

Contributions to the Fernie relief fund continue to come. Total to date is $90,000. The Canadian Pacific railway wired $10,000 yesterday.

E. R. THOMAS BREAKS LEG

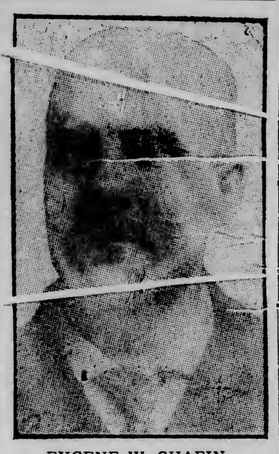
Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 15.—E. R. Thomas, former banker and race horse owner, was seriously injured here last night when his automobile struck and wrecked a carriage. The horses attached to the carriage were killed outright, the occupants of the carriage were thrown violently to the ground and Mr. Thomas and his chauffeur were hurled twenty feet to one side of the roadway.

On examination it was found that Mr. Thomas' leg was broken and that he was suffering from many contusions. The occupants of the carriage escaped serious injury except Daniel Connolly, the driver, whose collar bone was broken.

According to eye witnesses of the accident, Mr. Thomas, who was driving the car, was running at high speed.

Mr. Thomas has figured in automobile troubles before. On Feb. 12, 1903, while driving his automobile in New York he ran over and killed Harry Thies. On numerous occasions he has been arrested charged with speeding.



EUGENE W. CHAFIN,

CHICAGO REGIMENT

Ordered by Governor Deneen to Proceed to Springfield.

Will Make 2,500 Men to Preserve Order in City.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—The First infantry, Illinois National guard, was this morning ordered to proceed immediately to Springfield to assist in preserving the peace of that city.

The call to arms was immediately promulgated by Col. Sanborn and a telegram was sent to Governor Deneen stating that the regiment would leave Chicago on an afternoon train.

Maj. Gen. Young, who is in command of the Illinois National guard, received the message from Governor

TWO MEN KILLED, NEGRO LYNCHED DURING NIGHT

Assistant County Treasurer Robbed and Shot During Morning Hours.

Terrible Affair Started by the Assault on White Woman by a Negro.

Negroes Armed and Ugly, and Grave Fears Are Felt for Coming Night.

SITUATION AT SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

Mob attempts to lynch a negro Friday night, who had assaulted a white woman.

Prisoner spirited away and mob takes vengeance on remaining negroes and also demolishes business house of man who loaned auto to take alleged assailant away.

Scenes of murder, rioting and arson marked the entire night.

Prohibition Candidate Chafin attempts to protect negro and is struck in the head with a brick.

Assistant county treasurer robbed and fatally shot during Saturday forenoon.

Governor orders additional troops to the scene, making 2,500 men in all.

Negroes are well armed and ugly, and grave fears are felt for the coming night.

Springfield, Aug. 15.—Troops are being rushed to this city from all parts of the state, negroes are leaving by trains, on trolley cars and many of them on foot and the mob spirit seems still to be rampant, although the governor and military authorities claim that they have the situation well in hand.

The First infantry of Chicago was today ordered to mobilize at once and start for Springfield on the first train that could be made up to carry them. When this organization arrives, the town will be protected by three full regiments.

Despite the claim that the mob is held in subjection, there is every chance of another clash between the whites and colored people. The negroes are well armed and are showing a spirit of determination. The white people are in an ugly mood and farmers and men from adjoining towns are constantly arriving.

W. H. Bowe, assistant county treasurer, was attacked by a crowd of negroes early today and fatally wounded. This has added to the excitement and resentment, which were already tense.

A dispatch from Decatur, Ill., says that many negro men, who arrived today from Springfield, are trying to arouse the people and urging them to go back to Springfield and fight. Several of them have been arrested and weapons taken from them.

Unless the military succeeds during the day in quelling the mob much more effectually than has been done up to the present time, it is feared that the night will bring more serious trouble than has yet occurred.

Assistant Treasurer Shot.

Peoria, Aug. 15.—A special from Springfield, Ill., says Assistant County Treasurer W. H. Bowe was caught and shot this morning by infuriated negroes, after which he was robbed of several hundred dollars, his watch and diamonds. Bowe will die of the bullets that took effect in vital parts.

Negroes are swarming back into the East end, heavily armed, and a worse reign of terror is expected tonight. A newspaper man was caught going up an alley and was driven back to his office by the negroes, who were in turn driven away by a large crowd of white people.

Militia Powerless.

Officers and militia are powerless. Soldiers' arms have been taken away and appropriated to the use of the mob. Whites are also coming from the nearby country towns to help in the race war, and there are thousands of men now swarming the streets. The whole business portion of the city is just as demoralized as the East end, and many of the larger stores have closed to avoid trouble and loss by fire, raids and robbery.

Citizens are leaving, and women and children are departing on every train and interurban car for places of safety.

The blacks are just as determined as the whites, and there promises to be an awful night unless the troops show more power and restore order.

The negroes were removed from Bloomington last night on the 9 o'clock interurban bound for Peoria. They have not been located this morning, and it is thought that they have been taken off at some small town. The Illinois Traction system's cars in this place were taken away from the officials last night, and a mob started for Bloomington in them, but learned that the negroes had been removed.

Four are now dead, many whites are missing, and it is known that scores of negroes have been dragged away wounded and dying.

First Lynching at Capitol.

The lynching of Hunter the first in the history of the state capitol, occurred when the big fire which destroyed the homes of about thirty-five negro families in the negro section of the "bad lands" was at its height and just preceding the arrival of the Pekin, Peoria, Bloomington and Decatur companies. Hunter is accused of having fired on the whites and seeking protection by dodging in and out of box cars along the right of way of the Illinois Central. The negro was cornered in a stairway and shot several times, then hanged to a tree which was convenient and his body riddled.

The mob raided Loper's cafe and completely wrecked the house, furniture and the large touring car owned by the proprietor. Loper had taken Joe James, a negro accused of the murder of Clergy A. Ballard and George Richardson, accused of the assault on Mrs. Hallam, from the county jail in company with two deputy sheriffs and two police officers, raced eight miles across country to within one mile of Sherman, where a Chicago & Alton passenger train was overtaken. A special car had been provided and the negroes were taken to Bloomington and later transferred to Peoria. The attack on Loper's cafe commenced at about 8 o'clock this morning, after taking all the furniture from the rooms and burning it on the sidewalk in front of the place, only half a block from the public square in the heart of the business district.

Three Are Killed.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 15.—Two white men were killed and one negro was lynched, more than half a hundred persons were injured and two score houses, mostly occupied by negroes, were burned last night as the result of an attempt by a mob to lynch a negro, who had assaulted a white woman. After a night of riot, arson and slaughter, the state troops, called out by the governor, succeeded early today in restoring a semblance of order and stopping the fire. One thousand militiamen, including three companies from this city and companies from Bloomington, Decatur, Peoria, Pekin and Pontiac are patrolling the streets and it is believed that further disorder will be prevented.

The dead:

CHARLES HUNTER, colored.

JAMES SCOTT, white, 70 years old.

The rioting was precipitated by an assault, committed early yesterday morning, by a negro upon Mrs. Mabel Hallam, wife of a street railway conductor. While the woman slept alone in her home on a populous residence street, awaiting the return of her husband, the man broke into the house, dragged her into the rear yard and assaulted her.

Before noon George Richardson, a young negro, was arrested by the sheriff's force, charged with the crime. The victim partially identified the prisoner. Crowds quickly gathered about the jail, but Sheriff Werner's force and the police were able to preserve order, until nightfall without difficulty.

Prisoner Spirited Away.

Shortly after 5 o'clock a successful ruse was worked by the authorities and Richardson was spirited away to safety. With the assembled crowds held at bay by the officers, a false run by the fire department temporarily drew the attention of the crowd, during which time the prisoner was hurried down an adjoining alley and at the first corner was pushed into an automobile owned by Harry T. Loper, a restaurant keeper, who had been sworn in as a deputy sheriff.

Before the crowd realized what had happened Richardson was being rushed to a point north of the city, where a Chicago & Alton train was stopped and he was put aboard, with a heavy guard and conveyed to Bloomington and later was taken to Peoria.

Along with Richardson was taken Joe James, another negro prisoner in the county jail, who is accused of killing Clergy Ballard, a state mine inspector, after attempting an assault on Ballard's daughter. Ballard went to his daughter's rescue and was stabbed to death.

Mob In Ugly Mood.

Immediately after the darkness had gathered crowds assembled in the vicinity of the county jail. The mood of the masses was ugly, and appeals by Sheriff Werner were without effect. The sheriff offered to let a committee from the crowd search the jail, assuring them that both negroes were gone.

"We will all go through," shouted some one in the crowd, and the cry was taken up by hundreds.

Then some one in the crowd mentioned that Harry Loper, the restaurant man, had furnished the auto in which the escape of the prisoners had been effected.

"On to Lopers," he shouted and by this time the maddened mob was ready for anything.

A rush was made on Loper's restaurant, five blocks away. The proprietor was warned, but failing to appreciate the seriousness of the situation, did not attempt to escape until the mob was upon the place.

He was pushed by employes of the place, together with his wife, into a basement room in temporary safety.

Short Work Made of Restaurant.

Short work was made of the restaurant. The automobile in which the rescue had been effected had been left in front of the place. It was quickly turned upside down and fire was set to the machine.

While the machine blazed, frenzied hundreds poured into the cafe, tore fixtures and decorations from their places and piled them on the blaze. Even the

ST. CROIX REUNION.

Old Settlers' Club of Stillwater to Attend Celebration Sept. 3.

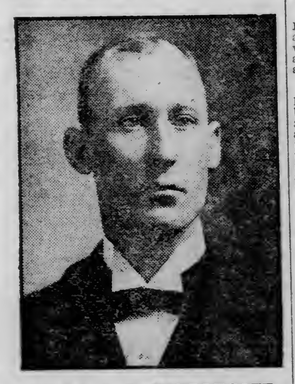
Stillwater, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The St. Croix Valley Old Settlers association held a meeting this week at the residence of Adam Marty to make plans for attending the semi-centennial celebration of the state and attend the home coming at the state fair on Sept. 3. Charles A. Rutherford, president of the association, presided.

It was decided to meet at 10:30 the morning of Sept. 3, at the brick building adjacent to the log cabin of the pioneers. Adam Marty as secretary was directed to mail invitations to be present to the members of the association, active and honorary, and to the families of such.

The active members are those who were residents of the state and of the age of 21 years in 1849. Honorary members are those who lived in the state then but under age and the sons and daughters of old settlers.

The active members in this city are but three and are E. W. Durant, Hugh Byrness and Henry McLain. Besides them there are a number of honorary members.

For Judge of Probate



JUDGE J. B. MIDDLECOFF.

I have filed for renomination for the office of Probate Judge, and again ask the voters of St. Louis county for their votes and support at the primaries on Sept. 15th.

I cannot see every voter personally during the campaign, but wish to thank you for your support in the past and assure you that if I am re-elected I will give to the office all of my time and careful consideration, the same as I have always done, and see that all business receives prompt and careful attention.

FOR PUBLIC HEALTH.

County Health Officers to Discuss Many Pertinent Topics.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 15.—The regulation and prevention of rabies, typhoid and small pox will be the subject of discussion at a meeting of the county health officials called by Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health. The meeting will be held in the capital, Oct. 6, at 10 o'clock.

It is hoped that the Minnesota sanitary conference can then be organized according to authority granted by the legislature at the last session for such an organization. An unsuccessful effort was made to form the organization a year ago. The conference will be held on the day preceeding the meeting of the state medical society, and it is expected that the attendance will be large.

The control of rabies will be discussed by Dr. Arthur Sweeney of this city. "Small pox in Minnesota," will be discussed by Dr. Bracken and Dr. J. M. Armstrong, assistant commissioner of health of St. Paul, will discuss "Quarantine of diptheria."

The Mankato typhoid epidemic will be considered by several of the board of health.

Meat inspection, hotel inspection, the care of tuberculosis patients by municipal authorities and counties will also be among the topics considered.

BIG CANADIAN MINE DEAL.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 15.—Youngs Lake Mining company, which owns copper property below the Soo on the Canadian side, has sold its holdings to a New York syndicate for $200,000. The Youngs company was organized for the development of the property by local capitalists, who only expended $6,000 when they got the offer. The deal was authorized at a meeting held here.

ARE FINDING NEW HOMES

St. Paul, Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Few departments at the capitol get letters with more heart interest, and telling more of the intimate family history of people than does the office of the commissioner of immigration. Hundreds of families in the lower Mississippi and the Ohio valleys are selling their old homesteads to find a new home on the more sparsely settled acres of the North Star state. The advertising which the department has carried on through the small daily papers and in the farm papers during the past winter has borne fruit in thousands of responses from people who are looking for a chance to better their condition by securing a farm where their families may be easily raised.

The department not only brings new settlers into the state but it also assists men to become citizens. Last week two men were taken by the arm and introduced to the clerk of the district court to take out their first papers. Others still in Austria will soon receive literature in their own language telling of the opportunities waiting for them in this state.

Why Not Raise Beavers.

Instead of permitting the shores of many of the lakes in the north central portion of the state going to the waste of dense underbrush why not raise beaver for the market? This suggestion grew out of the observation of Prof. D. Lange of St. Paul in Itasca state park last week. Three beaver were given to the park authorities several years ago and have multiplied greatly. They feed from the bark of poplar trees and live quietly in mud houses which they build in the middle of streams or in arms of lakes.

The fur of the beaver is becoming so scarce that fears are entertained that it will soon be rare in the fur shops of even the Northwest. If beaver will grow to order, it would be a profitable investment for someone to buy a few individuals and let them scamper around some of the lakes in the wilderness of some of the lake filled counties. A large area could be securely fenced far enough from shore to dissuade the beaver from leaving. They would need little or no feeding and the skins would be worth about $5 each.

Each pair of beaver have two litter of four baby beavers each year, according to those who have studied the animal in his native haunts. With a farm stocked with 600 animals this would mean a neat return on the rather nominal investment. The flesh of the animal is also accounted a toothsome morsel by those who get far enough from civilization to eat other than French fried potatoes and porterhouse steak. This would prove a profitable by-product.

Foxes and other wild animals have been raised in captivity, and it is claimed with success. There are no reports of beaver being raised for the market, but there appears no reason why the experiment would not prove a success.

RESOLUTIONS WITHDRAWN

Typographical Union Refuses to Indorse Any Political Platform.

Boston, Aug. 15.—A resolution that the International Typographical union indorse the Democratic national platform and candidates, presented at the fifty-fourth annual convention of the union in this city yesterday, developed a keen and spirited debate. The resolution was finally withdrawn by request of the president, who suggested that its withdrawal would be preferable to having it defeated, since a defeat would put the union on record as having "thrown down Bryan."

The resolution was introduced by Delegate Henry West of Birmingham, Ala. As soon as it was placed before the convention, a vigorous and determined argument started. One delegate declared that the union rules prevented the discussion of politics, but President Lynch ruled that the resolution could be discussed. An appeal was taken, but the chair was sustained. Delegate Berry of Chicago declared that the Democrats presented the best platform of the year for trade unionists and advised all the labor men to work individually for the Democratic principles. Victor Berger of Milwaukee, a Socialist, asked the difference between the Republican and the Democratic parties, declaring "one was as bad as the other."

A declaration of political principles, which contained no reference to parties or candidates, was adopted.

A resolution that the International Typographical union sever its connection with the American Federation of Labor and the Canadian Trades and Labor congress, was warmly discussed and defeated.

VIRGINIA MOB BENT ON LYNCHING NEGROES.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 15.—A mob of more than 300 men attacked Portsmouth jail at 1 o'clock this morning, bent on lynching William King and Henry Smith, both negroes, who were held on the charge of criminally assaulting Mrs. Katherine Powell, an aged white woman, last Monday. The negroes had been removed to Norfolk jail earlier in the evening for safe keeping.

At 2 a. m. the crowd had left the vicinity of the jail, and it is reported that they are congregating elsewhere and intend to march to Norfolk and attack the jail here in the hope of securing the prisoners.

IRA D. SANKEY PASSES AWAY

Well Known Evangelist Dies at Brooklyn Home, Aged 68.

New York, Aug. 15.—Ira D. Sankey, known as an evangelist throughout the Christian world, died Thursday night at his home in Brooklyn, but the news of his passing did not become generally known until yesterday. Mr. Sankey was 68 years of age. For the last five years he had been blind and had suffered from a complication of diseases brought on by overwork. But almost to the very last he worked at hymn writing. His tours throughout the country and Europe with D. M. Moody, the evangelist, brought him into world prominence. Sankey, it might be said, wrote the gospel hymns of the world. In Egypt, India, Japan, in almost every language known to man, Sankey's hymns are sung. He received a large income from his publications and leaves considerable of an estate. Among Mr. Sankey's most familiar compositions are "The Ninety and Nine" and the "Where the Mists Have Rolled Away." His songs are said to have had a circulation of more than 50,000,000 copies. He was a rapid composer and wrote book after book of gospel hymns. During the last five or six years of his life he was interested in preparing and publishing the story of the gospel hymns. At the same time he saved his wonderful voice for posterity by singing in to phonographs. The records were sent all over the world.

First Met Moody.

Sankey first met Moody at a Y. M. C. A. convention in Indianapolis. Moody was so charmed with the young man's voice that he urged him to accompany him. Sankey explained that he was married and could not give up his position. "You must come," said Moody. "I cannot get along without you. Sankey consulted his wife and they cast in their lot with Mr. Moody, they visited Great Britain from 1874 to 1875 and again in 1883 and made many tours throughout the United States. When Mr. Moody died, Mr. Sankey felt keenly the loss of his friend. From that time he tried to conduct the work alone, which they had hitherto shared between them, but the task was too great. In 1902 his physician compelled him to give up most of his evangelical engagements, although he continued for some time to compile new hymn books. Then came failing eyesight, which speedily developed into total blindness. With the blindness came also a nervous breakdown. After his retirement from public life the impression became general throughout the country that he was dead.

Mr. Sankey lived in Brooklyn for twenty-seven years and it was there that most of his songs were written. He was a singer from boyhood and his voice attracted attention in the hamlet of Edinburg, Pa., where he was born Aug. 28, 1840. At the beginning of his active life, Mr. Sankey was a Methodist, but for the last seven years he had been a Presbyterian. He is survived by a widow, Fannie V. Sankey, his two sons, I. Allen Sankey and Edward Sankey and two grandchildren.

PACKING COMPANY WINS.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 15.—The state supreme court has reversed the decision of the Minneapolis municipal court, which convicted the Hammond Packing company of violating the law prohibiting the manufacture of bogus butter. The court holds that the evidence was not sufficient to show criminal intent. At the same time the law is pronounced constitutional.

THOMAS LOWRY BETTER.

Twin City Railway Magnate is Steadily Improving.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The conditon of Thomas Lowry, president of the Twin City Rapid Transit company and the "Soo" line, who has been seriously ill at his home here, is reported as greatly improved.

Dr. Gustav Schwyzer, son-in-law of Mr. Lowry, who is in attendance, states: "Mr. Lowry is a great deal improved and his condition is very satisfactory. Yesterday he was able to sit up and favorable results are expected."

Mr. Lowry has been in a critical condition for several weeks. A year ago he went South for his health and returned greatly improved.

PASSED WORTHLESS CHECK.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A check for $10 was passed on the firm of Moorhead & McGregor here, Thursday night, which was proven to be a case of forgery. The check, drawn on the Northern State bank in favor of A. L. Buck, purporting to have been signed by A. F. Turner of this city, was turned down by the bank as forgery, the police being notified of the matter also.

The work of the forger is decidedly crude. There has been no attempt whatever to imitate the signature of Mr. Turner. Besides, he has no money on deposit in the Northern State bank.

There is no clue as to who is guilty of the forgery, as the members of the firm do not remember anything about the man who presented the check for payment.

Until Seventy Times Seven

Lisa stood on the hillside looking down the mountain road and shading her eyes with her hand the better to watch the figures of two men who were slowly climbing the steep ascent to the little Swiss farm far up the mountain side. And as Lisa watched her heart was a flutter of excitement; first because Ludovico was one of those two men and she was engaged to Ludovico and his coming meant all that could break the dull monotony of her secluded life; next because with Ludovico came his friend, Rudolph, a Bavarian and a singer of whom she had heard so much, but had never yet seen. To Ludovico, Rudolph was a paragon among men, and the good, simple-hearted Ludovico sang the praises of his friend to Lisa till she was half in love with Rudolph without ever having seen him.

Ludovico with all his erudition,—erudition which had gained for him at last an appointment in the college at Geneva—was yet so ignorant of a maiden's heart that he did not hesitate to bring this wonderful friend, whose whole atmosphere seemed to breathe of romantic charm, to stay with the vain, susceptible mountain beauty who had given all there was of her shallow affections to the earnest student simply because a marriage with him meant freedom for her. Not that Ludovico so read her assent to his ardent suit, far from it; he idealised her in all things and around her image he created a halo of fair thoughts.

It was surely an ill omen that Lisa's first look rested on Rudolph and as she noted the well formed figure, the graceful poise of the head, the classical regularity of the features, the crisp curling chestnut hair, the laughing blue eyes so full of life and pleasure she recalled the description of Ludovico when he had said that Rudolph might have sat for a model to the Greek sculptors. And from his face her eyes traveled almost reluctantly to the honest, kindly face of Ludovico with his dark eyes and olive skin and features that were almost homely save for the bright kindly smile which lightened the intense earnestness of his expression.

And then the eyes of Lisa and Rudolph met for one brief moment and the girl blushed and lowered hers with the thrill of a strange new-born fear, and the man sighed and said to himself, "Ludovico was right, she is beautiful enough to be the heroine of a poet's dream. Why, alas! is she already the promised bride of Ludovico?"

And Ludovico;—Ludovico was so happy in the great news of his appointment and all that it meant to him, that he was blind,—blind as a mole in sunshine.

So Rudolph the Singer, and Ludovico the learned (who with all his learning knew so little of the mysteries of love) and Lisa the vain coquette, restless and seeking ever for excitement that she never got, all played with fire and told themselves, each in the secret communion of their own hearts, that there was no danger, for were not Rudolph and Ludovico as brothers and was not Lisa the betrothed of Ludovico.

And then there came a long bright afternoon of sunshine which was to live in the memories of Lisa and Rudolph for ever, when those two sat under the flower-clad porch alone, with the soft pure petals of the blossoms fluttering to their feet with every passing breeze and the veil fell from the eyes of both and each knew that the other loved. And that night Lisa sat up till day broke watching the silent stars and thinking, thinking, always, as Lisa in all her frivolous life had never thought before. And Rudolph tossed and tumbled on his bed and called himself every vile name under the stars and still he had not the strength of will to break from Lisa's charms and go out into the wilderness of life without her.

And the next night there was no Lisa to watch the stars and Rudolph knew that there was no name vile enough to fit him. And Ludovico stood alone looking down the mountain road and crushing in his hand the torn fragment of a letter which was all that was left him of his dreams.

The sentry on duty was shaking himself like a big dog and stamping his feet to keep himself awake, for the hours of duty had been long and arduous and the larger half of the battalion were down with wounds or fatigue—when he sensed rather than saw a shadowy figure trying to dodge behind him and reach the hut which served as the headquarters of the commander.

"I have no countersign. I am a stranger!" said the intruder, hurriedly, and hesitatingly. "I have come to see the commander. I know him!"

A desperate hope was animating the spy's mind that the sentry, if he did not let him pass, would at least let him gain time to make a dash for liberty while they parleyed. If so, he was mistaken, for the soldier, without lowering his weapon, kicked open the door of the hut and called to someone within, and the next moment the spy was standing face to face with a man whom he little expected to find in this South African wilderness. Slowly the two men surveyed each other; like a voice heard in a dream the sentry's words fell upon his ears.

"Do you know this man, captain? He says he is your friend."

"A friend! Ah! Do I know him? Yes!"

As the sentry withdrew, the spy turned to follow him, when a detaining hand was laid upon his shoulder.

"So you came to see me at last!" His voice wavered and broke down; he longed to ask where was Lisa and knew not how to frame the words.

Rudolph laughed bitterly.

"Came to see you! If I had known you were here, don't you suppose I would rather have been shot than face you? I am stone broke, as they say out here, and the only job I could get was to act as a spy for the British because I can speak German like a Dutchman. I did not know who was here, and only thought to amuse the sentry."

"And Lisa?"

"Lisa left me long ago, when things went ill and I lost my voice. She struggled on for a time, it is true, and then she fled with another man who had money. Lisa was not made for the rough side of life; she always wanted a down cushion between herself and the rough side of things—and what is worse than poverty and a consumptive husband?"

Ludovico winced, for Rudolph's words were like a rude touch on an old wound.

Again the two were silent. Rudolph in the bitterness of his humiliation and self-reproach and Ludovico because his thoughts had gone back to the past, before there had been any Lisa in their lives, and showed him Rudolph as a bright youth all men courted and all women flattered and loved.

To Ludovico Rudolph had come as an adopted son to a lonely man, and had absorbed the parental love in which Ludovico's nature was so rich, and even Lisa herself had not been able to do more than relegate Rudolph to the second place in Ludovico's heart. And now, when Rudolph came thus out of the darkness of the night into Ludovico's hut, all that old past seemed to rise up and cry out with a thousand voices for forgiveness for that unforgivable sin.

And Ludovico rose and put his hand on Rudolph's shoulder, with the touch of the old days when he had fought the evil spirit of that bygone time and sought to turn Rudolph from some ill-ordered path.

"Don't go, old friend, friend of my early days! Don't go! It was fate, or God—call it which you will—that sent you here tonight."

And Rudolph caught the hand that rested on his shoulder and bent his head over it with no words that he could speak.

There is a grave out in the South African wilderness with naught to mark it from the many that are round, save a small stone tablet which bears only three initials and the date of death of a consumptive man who died in that far land tended to the last by one faithful friend, and below the date there are the words: "How often shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him?"

Every day all of the people who are looking for things turn to The Herald want ads. Have you anything to say to them—to the "people who are looking for things?"

Democratic County Conventions of State Praise the Present Executive.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 15.—John A. Johnson is again the choice of Hennepin county Democrats for the office of governor. He was indorsed by the Hennepin county Democratic convention and the 117 delegates to the state convention instructed to vote for him.

This was done by a convention dominated by the man who last year fought Governor Johnson's candidacy for president, and who bolted when they were unable to get a Bryan indorsement.

Ramsey County.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 15.—The Democratic county convention yesterday named delegates to the state convention, which will meet at Minneapolis Wednesday, Aug 19, was held at Federation hall today. nl place of sixty-six delegates the number accredited to the county under the apportionment fixed by the state committee, double that number were named. Though no formal indorsement of any gubernatorial candidate was made, the county delegation will be for Congressman Hammond, it is expected. This will make 122 delegates who will represent Ramsey county at the state convention, and each will be given a half vote in the deliberations. No reason was given for the extra number of delegates except that a large number wanted to go and they could not all be accommodated unless more than sixty-six were named. The resolutions adopted were laudatory of Governor Johnson, indorsing his administration and himself. William Jennings Bryan was mentioned, and his candidacy and his policies indorsed.

Polk County Lauds Johnson.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Polk county Democratic convention was a tame affair, no fights developing, but great enthusiasm was shown. Resolutions were passed lauding Bryan, Kern and Johnson, and favoring the nomination of a full county and legislative ticket. No mention of county option was made. Following is a list of the delegates to the state convention: Martin O'Brien, Crookston; A. J. Kirk, Crookston; W. E. Bland, Crookston; F. C. Kelley, Crookston; Alex Thompson, Crookston; J. E. Carpenter, Crookston; M. E. Rackley, Fosston; Victor Waugamper, Mentor; Hugh Dunlevy, East Grand Forks; Steve Burke, East Grand Forks; John O'Leary, East Grand Forks; Hugh Quigley, East Grand Forks; W. Lemen, Angus; Hans Samuelson, Climax; Gust Nordus, Fosston.

Marshall Enthusiastic.

Warren, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democratic convention held yesterday was the most enthusiastic and largely attended held in ten years, delegates being present from all parts of the county. Resolutions were passed indorsing the national platform, praising Bryan, Kern and Governor Johnson, and the sensation of the day occurred when a radical resolution was passed favoring county option. Resolutions also favored stringent laws for the control and eradication of noxious weeds and more liberal appropriations for drainage and road building. A full county ticket will be placed in the field. C. A. Tullar was indorsed for the state legislature and Kittson county will name the county candidate. Delegates were elected to the state convention as follows: C. A. Tullar, J. J. Olson, Albin Young, P. A. McClernan, H. C. Matsy for Marsh; August Lundgren, Robert Tell, R. D. V. Carr, Thomas Mack, L. M. Mithun.

Red Lake County.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democrats of Red Lake county met in convention at the courthouse in this city Friday afternoon with W. H. Furber in the chair and Fred Borchers as secretary. The delegates to the state convention are: W. A. Schreiter, Fred Borchers, Joseph Helm, John Laylin, John Morgan, Milton Forder, M. Burns, Louis Parenteau, E. M. Hoff, M. Skala.

Beltrami Wants Johnson.

Bemidji, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democratic county convention held here Friday afternoon was a very harmonious and enthusiastic affair.

L. F. Johnson, president of the Democratic committee presided and P. J. Russell, secretary of the committee, acted as secretary.

It was the unanimous sentiment of the convention that all the delegates to the state convention use every endeavor to secure the nomination of Governor John A. Johnson as the Democratic candidate for governor, at the convention to be held in Minneapolis next Wednesday.

The following were elected as delegates and alternates to the state convention: Delegates, W. R. Tait, L. F. Johnson, A. G. Rutledge, L. G. Pendergast, J. E. Cahill, A. Clavin, A. Gilmour and A. F. Ritchie.

Alternates, P. J. Russell, Otto Peterson, Carl Saterlee, W. P. Welch, Tom Tedford, Dr. Shannon, Alex Cameron, and Tim Crane.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted: "We, the representatives of the Democratic party of Beltrami county, in convention assembled, renew our allegiance to the greatest living champion of the rights of the common people against the encroachments of aristocracy, centralization and predatory wealth, William J. Bryan, Democratic candidate for president of these United States.

"We heartily indorse the able, wise and patriotic administration of John A. Johnson, governor of this state, and we pledge ourselves to use all honorable means to secure his renomination and election a third time.

"We feel that with him as our standard-bearer, the success of the Democratic state tickets, as a whole, is assured, and that his nomination will place Minnesota in the doubtful column of states for president.

"We deplore the financial condition of this county and we charge the Republican board of county commissioners and other county officials entrusted with the financial management of the county with extravagance, neglect of duty, and incompetency, in bringing the county to its present condition of bankruptcy, and pledge our support to nominees for county offices whose reputation, standing and business ability is evidence that if elected, there will be a radical change in the management of the financial affairs of the county."

Lake for Johnson.

Two Harbors, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Lake county Democratic county convention here last night indorsed the administration of Governor Johnson enthusiastically and pledged loyal support to W. J. Bryan. John Dwan addressed the convention to some length, stirring up great enthusiasm. John Spenlnack was chairman. The delegates to the state convention are: John Dwan, Martin Olson, Lawrence Glaffy, F. G. Hannon, John Marren; alternates, A. Dahlberg, James Croke, W. A. Johnston, James Walsh, M. Peterson.

Morrison for Johnson.

Little Falls, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.—The Democratic county convention yesterday instructed for Johnson for governor and elected the following delegates: George F. Moeglein, J. J. Gross, E. F. Shaw, N. N. Bergheim, J. T. Hohlt, George Armstrong, T. W. Murphy, Frank Armstrong, Henry Bentfield, E. S. Tanner, N. Zlechofek, F. X. Virnig, C. E. Vasaly.

Clay Wants Johnson.

Moorhead, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democrats of Clay county enthusiastically declared for the renomination of Governor John A. Johnson and instructed their delegates to use all honorable means to bring about his renomination.

Winona Wants Hammond.

Winona, Minn., Aug. 15.—The Winona Democratic convention to select delegates to the state convention met here at noon yesterday. The meeting was harmonious, there being no contests on. The delegates to the state convention are expected to favor the nomination of Congressman W. S. Hammond for governor.

Stearns Uninstructed.

St. Cloud, Minn., Aug. 15.—The Democratic county convention here yesterday named an uninstructed delegation, though the Bryan men were in control. Of the delegates, 14 out of 20 favor Lind for governor.

Pine Also For Johnson.

Hinckley, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democrats of Pine county in convention here not only enthusiastically indorsed the national ticket, but declared for the renomination of John A. Johnson, and instructed their delegates to use all honorable means to induce him to accept a renomination.

The delegates to Minneapolis are: D. Greeley, C. L. Eaton, Julius Doxsey, D. E. Rankin, Adam Belderman, Sam Sutliff, Henry Gander, James Jordan. The county committee elected Julius Doxsey, Pine City, chairman; J. J. Mullen, Hinckley, secretary; Charles Reinholdson, Sandstone, treasurer.

Crow Wing Uninstructed.

Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.) — The Democratic county convention selected these delegates to the state convention: John Hughes, C. D. Johnson, Conrad O'Brien, T. M. Reilly, D. C. Anderson, M. F. Ryan, M. T. Dunn, Werner Homestead. There were no indorsements or instructions on governor. Resolutions lauding Bryan and the Democratic national platform were adopted.

PROFESSOR GETS BRIDE

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 15.—The romance of Edith Ludwig, formerly of Morris, Ill., but lately of Palo Alto, and Prof. Fred H. Fitzgerald of Stanford university, had a happy climax in this city last evening, when Miss Ludwig arrived from the East on the overland train and was joined by Prof. Fitzgerald to whom she was a few minutes afterward married, thus overcoming maternal objections.

Prof. Fitzgerald was waiting at the station and immediately went to the county clerk's office, where a license was obtained. Accompanied by a few friends, the contracting parties went to the Central M. E. church, where they were united by Rev. Dr. Rodda. Both refused to talk to newspaper reporters after the ceremony. They left for Palo Alto, their future home.

The love story of Miss Ludwig and Prof. Fitzgerald is an interesting one. The troth was plighted some time ago and in a few days Prof. Fitzgerald went East for the marriage ceremony. To his surprise, when he reached Morris, his bride had been taken away by her mother, and Prof. Fitzgerald was unable to communicate with her. After remaining in Chicago a short while he disappointedly returned to Palo Alto.

Although the mother objected to the marriage, the father of Miss Ludwig did not, and when Prof. Fitzgerald returned to Palo Alto he was warmly greeted by the father, who said:

"It's all right; don't worry," and he handed the professor a telegram from his daughter telling him that she had eluded her mother and to notify "Fred" that she was coming from Chicago. Arrangements were made to meet at Sacramento and marry.

LATER REPORTS LESS HOPEFUL

Grain in Red River Valley Not Up to Expectations.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—By tonight the great bulk of the wheat in the Red River Valley will have been cut, and a close inspection of the fields that have been harvested shows conclusively that there is not going to be the wheat that was expected when the first wheat fields were cut. This comes from the fact that the early wheat which was cut first was above the average, but the later sown wheat is much poorer than was expected.

Reports from elevator superintendents, who have covered Norman, Polk, Marshall, Kittson, Roseau and Red Lake counties, together with portions of Clearwater and Mahnomen, show that the crop will be 25 per cent lighter than was estimated three weeks ago. The early wheat is fully as good as was expected, with the exception of some fields which show serious damage from black rust. One farmer, John Olbrecht, north of this city started harvesting a field of wheat Thursday, which looked good for from eighteen to twenty bushels per acre. There is plenty of straw for such a yield, but after getting into it black rust was very apparent and the field will do well if it averages ten bushels. There are many other instances of a similar character.

In Kittson county the crop is fairly good along the Red river, and fairly good between the Great Northern tracks west to the Dakota line, but between the Great Northern and the Soo the wheat is very poor, the poorest ever raised in that section, which generally produces better than the average valley crop.

A conservative traveling man, who just returned from a careful survey of that territory, stated last night that Kittson county would not average better than nine bushels per acre of wheat, and that the oat crop was exceedingly light.

Early barley was a fairly good crop and excellent in quality, but the later barley is poor, and some of it will never be cut. It is short and very thin and much of it cannot be saved because it is too short to be bound.

The best crop all through is flax, but some of it is so late that it may be caught by a frost the latter part of the month.

LABOR

POLITICS IN ASSEMBLY

Motion of P. G. Phillips Arouses a Warm Discussion.

Zenith Telephone Company Tolls Are Also Considered.

"Not once in the last half year has such a heated debate taken place at a meeting of the Trades assembly, as was started last evening by the introduction of a set of resolutions from P. G. Phillips, advocating that politics be permitted to enter into the meetings of the assembly.

The following is the communication that started the storm raging:

"Whereas, Samuel Gompers' president of the American Federation of Labor of the United States, has advised the members of organized labor of the great need of looking to the political action for the betterment of the conditions of labor;

"Whereas, we believe this question to be of vital importance and will clear the field of politics of some of its idiotic superstitions;

"Therefore, be it resolved that we take up the question of politics and discuss them thoroughly at every opportunity and invite the candidates of all political faiths to come before us and state their principles regarding organized labor."

The attendance at the Assembly was the largest of the summer and consequently the interest that followed the reading of the communication was livened. Seeing that trouble was in the air, Secretary Peters, moved that the communication be laid over for discussion until the next meeting. Mr. Phillips, the father of the communication, however, took the floor and championed its cause. He scored the Assembly, for the way in which it had put aside and neglected all such resolutions regarding the political welfare of labor. Peters' motion was put to vote and lost.

Henry Perrault, ex-president of the Assembly, followed Phillips, claiming that the Assembly had never intentionally put aside these communications, but as there was a clause in the constitution, which stated that there should be no party politics discussed on the assembly floor, they had naturally been out of order. Phillips answered him by saying that as Mr. Gomphers had often called upon the assembly to consider politics more deeply, as now is a time of crisis for organized labor, he could not see how politics could be unconstitutional. It was not so with the national organization. Mr. Perrault then said that the assembly is not a political organization, but that every member has the privilege and should attend all political meetings and listen to the speakers there, but never should politics take the place of the matters of industrial importance at the assembly.

"Though I am a Socialist," he said, "I am not trying to get a crowd of Socialists in here to speak at the meetings as you are apparently trying to so make it appear. What I want is to have speakers from every party come here and tell for our own good, what are their positions toward organized labor. But rather than have my resolutions further disgraced, if it is not out of order, I wish to withdraw it."

The communication was eventually received and filed.

Among those to speak before the assembly last evening was Walter M. Thompson of 14 West Superior street, who said he had come to the trades assembly meeting unlivited, and not in the interest of any party, but through a personal interest in Duluth affairs, and the city's welfare. He had come, he said, to speak on a matter that would be put up to the people of Duluth soon to be decided upon, and that is whether or not the Zenith Telephone company should be allowed to charge toll between Duluth and Superior.

"It is a matter of as great importance to the city as the purchase of the gas and water plant," he said. Here the speaker went into the history of the Zenith Telephone company since its organization. He told of how it had obtained its franchise, with the privilege given it by the city council of increasing the charge for telephone service on a graduated scale, $12 a year.

"To my mind," said Mr. Thompson, "it is an injustice; one of the rawest deals that has ever been perpetrated upon the residents of this city. Statistics show that the company's receipts are large, but they claim that they are hard up, and are forced to ask toll. Should they get permission, they will also raise the charge of $12 that was allowed them at the start. They look on the public as their rightful prey. I come here tonight as a citizen of Duluth, and ask that when this thing comes to a vote, that it be voted down."

At the close of Mr. Thompson's talk, when it was announced that the members of the assembly were invited to attend a public meeting to be held in the city council chamber on Tuesday evening, another discussion arose, concerning what stand the assembly should take in regard to the matter of allowing the Zenith company to ask toll. It was finally decided that the assembly's city council committee should attend the meeting, but should not take part in the discussion, but should report what they had learned at the next meeting, when it would be decided how the assembly would act.

John A. Keyes was another speaker who held the attention of the meeting last evening in a lengthy address. His talk dealt with the subject of "Labor vs. Capital." He said that in the last fifteen years organized labor had made no apparent progress towards the end which it is attempting to work. He attempted to show that President Roosevelt had accomplished nothing in his effort to solve the problem, and gave as example the cases of the Northern Security company, in the supreme court, and the Standard Oil. There has been no change, he claimed, in the ways of the Northern Security company, and the Standard Oil company has been increasing its holdings daily during this recent financial panic.

"Roosevelt failed in his work," declared the speaker. "What can be done against the combinations? It will always be the same as long as labor continues in the same channels. What the organization wants to do is to join the trusts, start a counter trust of their own, a co-operative system. But when we attempt this, people will cry we are trying to overthrow society. Look at the public schools. Men, when this form of education was first proposed, were thrown into jail. But now would you have the schools go back into the hands of private concerns?" In conclusion, he said that at the end of another fifteen years he hopeil to see it so that his children's children and theirs, would not be forced to go into the sweat shop to earn a living. He hoped that then there would be an end to fractional power and rule.

W. H. Wisner, organizer for the United Garment Workers, also made a short address, calling upon the assembly for their support in the effort to promote the sale of union goods.

• • •

At the close of the meeting, Henry Perrault made the announcement that next Thursday evening, at Kalamazoo hall, there will be a meeting of the joint lockout committee, to close up its affairs.

• • •

E. P. Peters reported on behalf of the Labor day committee that they were making excellent progress and that the work on the program had been started. The committee this year is only composed of ten members, where formerly there had been fifteen. This is due to the Structural Trades' Alliance's committee withdrawing, leaving the committees from the trades' assembly and the Pavilion association to serve alone.

TWO FACTIONS GET TOGETHER

Warring North Dakota Republicans Hold Harmony Meeting.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The North Dakota Republicans never had a more harmonious session than that held here today when the candidates for state offices, leading Republicans and newspaper men, met at the call of National Committeeman Kennedy.

It was the first session since the bitter factional quarrel before the primaries, but both Stalwarts and Insurgents expressed themselves as intending to bury the hatchet completely and to work for the election of the state ticket which is fairly evenly divided between both factions.

It was decided to have meetings in each judicial district of all the newspaper men, county chairmen and state central committeemen to work in the interests of the party.

The state central committee will be called to meet for organization Sept. 2, the day after the state canvassing board meets.

A committee was named to formulate the methods of the campaign and to report at the afternoon session, which was adjourned until 3 o'clock.

MANKATO OFFICIAL QUITS.

Mankato, Minn., Aug. 15.—Because of the charges preferred against him by Mayor Andrews, accusing him of being one of those responsible for the epidemic of typhoid fever, resulting in 350 cases and seventeen deaths, Judge J. E. Porter has resigned as president of the board of public works. Mayor Andrews preferred charges of incompetency against City Engineer M. F. Haynes and the city council, at a special meeting, adopted them. Haynes will answer to the charge Aug. 29.

CURE TO STAY CURED!

The human body is more complex than any machine or device ever invented and if anything is going wrong with any of its parts, the ends of the nerves send the message by their numerous strings up to the brain and there the danger is manifesting itself in pain, because of the inflammation, pressure or decay, which impedes upon the nerves of the suffering parts. People make the greatest mistakes in constantly drugging and doping the body in order to rid themselves of the pain. This pain is a safety valve, pointing out to us the danger certain parts of the body are in, and instead of going to doctors who know how to cure chronic diseases, they go to the drug stores and buy some dope which deadens and poisons the nerves. Meanwhile, the destructive work of the disease goes right on and the body slowly will be destroyed. That is the reason why people lived longer in olden times, when they didn't have so many drugs and pain killers. We are getting away too far from nature and that is the reason our young people are looking old and die young.

Science has made a greater advance in the last 50 years than it did in 2,000 years previously, and the method of dissolving chronic pathological lesions and diseased organs is one of the greatest achievements of medical specialists. In Duluth the Progressive Med. Specialists, on Superior St. and Lake Ave., are the only ones who practice this method. A man don't like to have steel, sharp and cutting, put into his abdomen to get rid of his gallstones or appendix. Nor does he like to have the knife or red hot iron put into his rectum to be relieved of piles or cancer, or a sharp cutting instrument put into his bladder to cut a stricture or prostatic gland. That method of getting rid of diseases is old and barbarous. This process of dissolving is the most wonderful, though natural process. There is no pain nor cutting nor blood shedding and it never fails to get results in the hands of these Expert Specialists. You can be cured by this process of cancer, RUPTURES, kidney trouble, lung and heart disease, paralysis, skin diseases, syphills, rheumatism, liver and bladder trouble, or if you are an unfortunate victim which forces you to practice that secret vice which leads you to ruin, loss of manhood and the insane asylum, you can be cured and made happy. Remember that these doctors are experts in men's diseases and can cure you of your trouble, no matter how long you may have had it. You may consult them without any cost from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. and it would pay you to have their opinion and advice free of charge.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The business meetings of the most successful annual convention ever held by the Minnesota Bar association came to an end shortly afternoon today with the election of officers.

Those who will pilot the organization through the next year are: Hon. Pierce Butler of St. Paul, president; Lafayette B. French of Austin, vice president; H. M. Farnham of St. Paul, secretary; and W. H. Yardley of St. Paul, treasurer.

Reports of the several committees were heard, and votes of thanks were extended by the visiting members to the members of the Duluth bar, and the different clubs of the city for the pleasant time given them.

This afternoon, weather permitting, the members will be entertained by the Duluth Boat club at the main clubhouse on Park Point. Tonight a banquet will be served at the Spalding hotel.

The principal address given this morning was delivered by Ambrose Tighe of St. Paul, who spoke on "Art of Legislation."

Mr. Tighe spoke in part as follows:

"American judges as a rule are pecuniarily honest. Perhaps for this present purposes, we had better narrow the territory a little, and say that Minnesota judges as a rule are pecuniarily honest. We can go further. Minnesota judges as a rule are intellectually honest in as far as they have any intellects. They do not decide cases for considerations of personal friendships, or for the effect their decisions are likely to have on their tenure of office. Not only is all this true, but people generally believe that it is. It never occurs to a lawyer in Minnesota that the issue of a lawsuit could be affected by a tip to a judge. The judge at a country term takes dinner or a drink with the lawyer on one side of a pending case, and his rival views the performance without any fear that the judge is being fixed. More than this: If a Minnesota lawyer should undertake to explain the size of his bill by mysterious suggestion that it included something for the judge, his client would not believe him.

"The use of money is not generally necessary to facilitate business relations with our state, county or city executive officers. There are more scandals in this department than in the judicial. But people expect a governor, a secretary of state, a county auditor, a mayor to be honest and disinterested, and they feel anyhow a little irritation if their expectation in this regard is not realized.

"But it seems to be accepted as a fact that our legislators are in large measure corrupt. It is assumed that if you have a matter before a board of aldermen, a board of county commissioners or before the legislature, the persuasive power of money will have to be exercised to a greater or less degree in order to achieve satisfactory results. It is assumed that the merits of a measure will not determine its fate, but that the services of an influential lobbyist with a wide circle of acquaintances among the legislators, and with a considerable expense account for entertaining, and even for bribery, will have to be enlisted. This situation is not argued or talked about very much. Like other unpleasant things it is rather taken for granted. A commission appointed by the governor proposes an absurd tax code. The hat is passed among the business and banking houses of the state. They appreciate as soon as the matter is presented to them that something must be done, and they subscribe with the same spirit of liberality with which they help the victims of a tornado or a Young Men's Christian association project. The ethical, the moral aspects of it all are not subjects of debate. The jobbers and the bankers surely do not feel guilty of any wrong doing. They do not know for what specific purposes the money is to be used, or suppose they do.

But in the hearts of how many of us does it excite deep abiding action compelling indignation? Isn't it rather true that interests which may be affected by legislation are popularly supposed to pay for protection and their contributions classed as perquisites of office, half perhaps in joke, but partly also in seriousness?

What Are The Facts?

"Now what are the facts about these things? Are Minnesota legislators usually or even frequently, dishonest? Is money commonly employed to effect or defeat legislation? If these questions are to be answered Yes, why is the legislative branch of our government corrupt, while the judicial and executive branches are not?

"In the newspaper accounts of a recent speech by Mr. Jacobson in this city, he was reported to have given it as his opinion that the extent of this evil was popularly overestimated. I think he is right, and there are several reasons for the popular overestimate. Here is one for example. A good many men hang around legislative halls who make a precarious living in a peculiar way. If they learn that you are interested in a pending measure, they will offer you the votes of certain members for so much money, your payment to be contingent on the delivery of the goods. The reputation of no member is too high to be superior to this sort of traffic. In point of fact, the barterer has no authority to speak for the member whom he is trying to sell. He has no influence with him either on an honest or a dishonest basis. He is simply betting nothing against the arguments at the same time, get their constituents to write them letters, cultivate their friendship, threaten them, cajole them, persuade them? Is it any wonder that they refuse to bother with such a program? Is there really any moral difference between playing the game in this fashion and frankly buying the necessary support or opposition? I do not say that there is not a difference. But I do say that a great many individuals and corporations think there is a moral difference and that the venal method is the least troublesome. If their interests are big enough, they secure the election of representatives who will be their men and speak for them. If they are too small to warrant this, when a matter comes up, they retain some one on the floor as their attorney and authorize them to secure the attention and affection of the jury by paying them to keep awake and vote right.

"I do not believe legislative corruption will end until methods of legislation are changed. I think the Folk scheme of forbidding lobbying is unfair and ineffective. People affected by proposed legislation have a right to be heard and will be heard somehow. I am afraid the modified form of the Folk scheme, which has been adopted in New York and Wisconsin, will not accomplish much in the long run. It requires lobbyists to register and secure a license and at the end of the session to file a schedule of their outlays. A bill of this purport was introduced at the 1907 session of the Minnesota legislature, but was defeated. Its fate is probably no great loss, because in application it would be likely to amount to no more than the corrupt practices act. I am skeptical as to the value of laws increasing the punishments for bribery or even as to price he puts on the vote. If by chance the vote goes as it is wanted, he is so many dollars ahead. If it goes the other way, he has lost nothing. The presence of this brand of cattle creates an atmosphere of corruption, which nauseates one as he sits in the frescoed ante-rooms.

"But while the number of legislators who receive money for their votes is popularly overestimated, the number who are willing to, is not. The absence of opportunities for dishonesty is very disappointing to lots of men who had been led to expect something different. I think the large majority of members go through a session untainted either by actual wrong doing, and even with their virtue unassailed. Some of them are recognized as unapproachable, and others are so stupid that it is neither safe nor profitable to deal with them. But at every session there is in each house a coterie, who use their official positions to a greater or less extent for personal gain, and who are factors to be reckoned with in legislation.

The Explanation.

"Now, what is the explanation of this situation—the philosophical explanation? Corruption in public affairs is no new thing. I have said our Minnesota judges are honest. But there was a time in the history of English law when the bench was openly and frankly corrupt—when judgments were bought instead of won. Why isn't it so any longer? Are our judges without temptation? Far from it. A country judge gets $4,200 a year, with no allowance for traveling or hotel expenses, and decides cases which may involve millions, where his findings on questions of fact are practically conclusive. Our judges are often very ordinary men. Some of them were unsuccessful lawyers, some of them are very stupid, and, with few exceptions, inertia and cupidity are as effective factors in shaping their conduct as they are in shaping the conduct of other people. But two influences combine to make them upright. The minor one is the force of public opinion. People will not tolerate a corrupt judge, and every judge knows it. The other influence, and the more important one, is this: Nowadays the methods of approaching judges and the considerations on which their decisions must be based are controlled by well-settled principles. Law has become a science.

"But the lobbyist has a list of the members of the legislature with their characteristics. He knows how to appeal to each one, knows whether it is wisest to speak to him at all, or to leave him alone, whether to use reason or fear, whether to rely on his friendship or to strive him into the opposition on the theory his opposition will be more valuable than his assistance. The whole thing becomes a wild, involved, complicated game, where considerations of actual merit cut little figure. This is true even when a measure is one of great general importance—on which there has been public discussion and expression of public opinion. It is doubly true when a measure is of no popular interest, is technical in its nature and affects mainly a limited number of individuals and corporations. How are the manufacturers of borax to convince the members of the legislature that borax can safely be used in the making of Frankfurter sausages when the members don't want to listen? Are they to buttonhole them in the hotel corridors, buy drinks for them and ply them with

"I do not believe legislative corruption will end until methods of legislation are changed. I think the Folk scheme of forbidding lobbying is unfair and ineffective. People affected by proposed legislation have a right to be heard and will be heard somehow. I am afraid the modified form of the Folk scheme, which has been adopted in New York and Wisconsin, will not accomplish much in the long run. It requires lobbyists to register and secure a license and at the end of the session to file a schedule of their outlays. Its fate is probably no great loss, because in application it would be likely to amount to no more than the corrupt practices act. I am skeptical as to the value of laws increasing the punishments for bribery or even as to the value of possible newspaper exposures.

"I make the following suggestion as a solution of the problem: The license of any member to introduce any bill he chooses, cannot be curtailed. But the rules should provide that before any bill is considered it should be subjected to a double scrutiny. First, it should be approved as to its form by a committee of experts familiar with law, who should pass on its phraseology. Second, if it has any other significance than a local one, its right to consideration on general orders on the calendar should be passed on by another committee which should be charged with the responsibility of deciding to what measures the work of the session shall be devoted."

"Brought to a severe test the machinery of law breaks down.

"The Thaw trial and other notorious trials of that stamp have done more to shake the faith of the public in our courts than any other one thing," said Judge Charles B. Elliott of the state supreme court in his address yesterday. His subject was "Law and Practice in Minnesota."

"Men in high places have stooped to critize the judiciary," said the judge, "but, a daily experience extending over many years tells me that nine cases out of every ten are decided satisfactorily."

Judge Elliott went on to say that juries are the weak point of the courts. Miscarriages of justice are nearly always traceable to the weakness of juries, which at this age are declared to be too sentimental and altruistic. He declared that strong minded and fearless jurors are always eliminated by clever lawyers by means of the twenty-one challenges that are allowed the defendant as compared with the three allowed by the state.

John B. West reported at the afternoon session for the committee on reports, citations, and decisions of the supreme court. He suggested a legislative enactment providing for more prompt publication of supreme court decisions.

Lewis E. Jones of Breckenridge uttered a protest against the tendency of the lower courts to pass up insignificant cases to the supreme court. He said that 20 per cent of the cases before the supreme court involve less than $100, and the legal points involved "don't amount to shucks." He urged the keeping of these small cases in the lower courts.

Judge Frederick V. Brown of Minneapolis was called on for a talk. He made a short speech on the problem which loose leaf ledgers used in business houses present to the courts in civil cases, where matters of indebtedness are involved.

At 4 o'clock the members enjoyed a ride around the boulevard.

GHOSTS PLAYED POKER.

How Uncle George Was Cured of Sleeping by Spook Gamblers.

"Worked for Mr. Cary in Frankfort, did you? Then you savvy a gentleman's gambling house, and what you'll have to do here. Did he have a buffet?"

White, of Black & White's Thirty-sixth street establishment, at which our best people take a whirl with chance these sultry nights, observed his new man suriously. Uncle George was a dignified, elderly negro, and he returned White's look calmly, says the New York Telegraph.

"Yassah," said he, "Ah reckons Ah understan' mah duties. Mist' Ca'y, he run a bah'r downstairs, but he didn' serve no free lunch like they do heah. Trade ain' that soht, sah. They des drink whisky, an' it's all on ohdah."

"Well, I ain't servin' the grape to all comers as I did once," remarked White. "Had to cut down a lot. You'll like it here, Uncle George, I guess. Plenty of tips and you'll pick up my ways quick. How old are you?"

"Lemme see, sah," Uncle George became reflective. "Well, Mist' White, Ah'd oughter to bote de age of Gen'al Fred Grant. Ah fit foh de No'th when he begin his fightin,' when his pappy hossed de wah. Ah ain' what An'd call young no mo'"—

"But pretty spry yet, eh?"

Uncle George began his work as doorkeeper that evening. In the intervals between rings he brought drinks to the poker players in the back room, and when they desired nothing he occupied an arm chair within call of all parts of the house.

Customers arriving from the South and Southwest dropped in to play bank at Black & White's and, recognizing Uncle George, saluted him joyously.

"He brings business," said White, laughingly. "Knows every gambler that's left on Kentucky soil, it seems. A fellow from Nashville dropped in last week and told me that George has got plenty of money cached somewhere."

"Oh, Ah ain't got nuffin' much, sar," said he. "Des bote 'nough to bury ol' Und' Cawge, an' give his grandchilden some schoolin'. T'ain't what yo' ain'd call no money."

"Well, don't, start playin' it in," advised White. "I notice you're hangin' around the wheel whenever you get a chance. "You'll be bettin' your salary next, like the rest."

"Snooze? That's all he does," complained the fat faro dealer from Spokane. "Why, I've hollered my lungs almost out a dozen times tryin' to tell him to get me a pint of water, and never a move out of Uncle. Sleeps like the dead."

White thought that Uncle George was "stalling." Black joked their aged servitor about his fondness for sleep.

"Caught you drowsing at the switch again," he chided. "I'll have to charge you room rent next, sure, if you don't stay awake, old sport."

"We'll be raided some fine night and they'll get George," chuckled the Spokane dealer. "Honest, if you don't keep awake I'll throw a rock down on you one of these nights."

"Mist' Jawn," said the rebuked George, "Ah des' strta drapped off foh mebbe a minute. No mo'. Ah'm on mah job, ge'mun. Bell don' nevah ring but what yo' all yeah Und' Gawdrge a'dunnin' wit all his might."

"I think you're a four-flusher," said Black. "You hear 'em but you're rich and lazy and won't hustle any more. Wealth has affected you."

It was July, hot, damp and enervating. Patrons were away, and those who remained in town felt too sticky and unpleasant for a bout with luck. Black had gone to Saratoga to open their "club" there. White stayed to manage the New Yor khouse.

Uncle George ceased to pretend that he had urgent reason to retire into the shadows at the rear of the hall, and instead slept openly in a chair beside the hat rack. To rouse him one must poke at him with a determined hand. Then Uncle George arose, gaped wearily, and plodded off to execute his errands.

The fat dealer had little to do. He spent most of his "shift" in dealing for his sportive confreres, who, finding no pleasure in gossiping in the empty poker room, adventured upstairs and played faro bank or roulette.

the restaurants and hotels, and by judicious purchasing of food and wine for speculatively inclined souls, succeeded in bringing some business to the house.

At midnight of a Friday, only three or four habitues were present. The fat dealer was thirsty, so he leaned over the stair rail and shouted loudly:

"Ge-orge! O-Oh, Ge-orge, bring me a quart of mineral and a long glass!"

Uncle George did not respond, so the fat dealer descended and began to search for him. George was slumbering in the poker room, his head upon a green-topped table. The lights were his only company. The dealer, observing him for a moment, suddenly giggled.

Then he hunted out the other employes, and remarked that it was time to train Uncle George to keep awake. They agreed. Very softly twelve men moved to the two tables, took several stacks of checks each strewed cards along, and commenced to talk.

"Ask George," said another.

They shook him until he returned to consciousness.

"You must decide whether a phenix beats fours or not," they called.

"Phenixe" he repeated, "yo mean dat Lexin'ton hotel?"

"No, no. Got an Arizona player here, and down there a phenix beats anything! It's a red and black full-house, and—"

"Start over by the switch," said the fat dealer.

The lights went out. The one who had operated the switch crept toward Uncle George, and finally woke him.

A great clamor began. Chips clacked, and cards were shuffled. "I'll take two," said a deep voice, "and bet twenty."

"See it, and twenty better."

In the dark Uncle George sat up and listened, then began to shiver. All the sounds of a busy poker game reached him. At times, a sobbing moan interrupted the noise of rattling chips.

"Is it midnight? I must be back in my grave then!"

A dreamful voice groaned this question.

Horrible, creepy laughter echoed. "What have you got, brother?"

"The dead man's hand!" replied the deep voice mournfully.

"Don't take po' Uncle George, Mass' Debbil," he wailed, "don' do it, massa! Dey ieanne gwan bote mah business—"

"He who sleeps always is better dead," announced the voice.

"Oh, mah Gawd!" shrieked Uncle George; "oh, Lohdy, lemme go!"

"Now," said the fat dealer.

The lights went up. Three men apparently dozed at one table. The rest had disappeared. Uncle George finally raised his head, and fearfully stood upright. His eyes were bulging.

"Mist' Jawn," he quavered, "when dem ghosteses go?"

"Dreamin' again, are you?" said the fat dealer disgustedly, "you're an awful thing. What ghosts?"

"Dat was a-playin' poker right on dis spot, sah!" asserted Uncle George, still trembling; "kin-kin Ah set by yo'?"

"Yes, if you'll stay awake, you can," replied the dealer; "but don't annoy me with any more of these ghost stories. Keep awake, and you won't see 'em."

"Ah bet yo' Ah don't do no mo' sleepin'!" said Uncle George thankfully. "Ah'm woked up foh good, roun' dis yeah place!"

GUARDING PAPER MONEY.

Chicago Record-Herald: The paper money of the government is brought in ironbound chests, locked and sealed, from the bureau of engraving and printing to the cash room of the treasury and there delivered upon receipt to James A. Sample, chief of the division of issue, in sheets of four bills each. They are complete with signature and numbers, except for the seal, which is printed upon them with power presses in a small apartment under the cash room.

These presses are worked by two people, usually a man pressman and a woman feeder or assistant. When the seal has been imprinted upon the bills, they are counted automatically, bound in packages of equal numbers by bands of paper, marked, signed by the persons who have handled them, and passed into the adjoining room, where the sheets are cut, the bills are recounted and inspected, so that the imperfect ones may be thrown out. They are then bound into packages of equal amounts and taken to the drying vault, where they lie upon the shelves for several weeks, until the ink has become perfectly dry.

Every safeguard that ingenuity can contrive is placed around these transactions, and the chief of division can tell which of his hundred or more subordinates have touched the different bills in the vaults. He knows who received them, who printed the seal, who wrapped and cut them; for every package is numbered and its history is recorded in an enormous book.

The combination of checks is so complete that Mr. Sample would know within twenty minutes if a single bill were missing, but he has never had occasion to test this knowledge except twice within fifteen years. Only two attempts have ever been made to steal the money of the government while it is in this stage of its history.

On one occasion, many years ago, a pressman passing a pile of notes upon the table of his neighbor slipped the top sheet under his blouse without being observed and carried it with him into the lavatory, where he was successful in concealing it. The theft was discovered within five minutes and it was clearly apparent that he alone could be guilty, although the evidence was purely circumstantial. No one saw him take the money. Therefore he was not arrested and was never publicly charged with the crime. But he was dismissed from the service and he knew the reason why. The bills were never recovered. He probably destroyed them, as they did not appear in circulation.

On another occasion, eight or ten years ago, a colored messenger whose business was to haul the money about on a cart, slipped a loose sheet into his pocket unobserved while passing between the printing and the counting rooms. This theft was also unseen, but the responsibility was fastened upon him. The pile of notes was complete when it left the printer, for it was counted and registered automatically in the press. When it reached the counting room, one sheet was missing and the package had not been out of the possession of the colored messenger in the meantime. Therefore he alone was responsible, and as he could not offer any satisfactory explanation, he, too, was dismissed from the service, but was not prosecuted, because there was no direct proof of his guilt.

TO BREAK UP A COLD.

From Health: One of the most efficient remedies for breaking up a cold during its earliest stage is camphor. When the eyes begin to water and there is the accompanying tingling of the nose and feeling of chilliness, place three drops of camphor on a lump of sugar and place the sugar in the mouth.

Repeat this every fifteen minutes till four or five doses have been taken. At the same time place the feet where they will become thoroughly warm. This will usually prove effectual in breaking up a cold, if the cold is taken at its very beginning. For a child but one drop should be placed upon the sugar, and five or six doses administered.

SOCIALISM AND FREE SPEECH

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."—Constitution of United States.

"We hold that these truths are self evident; that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That, to secure these rights, governments are instituted among them, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundations on such principles, and organizing its power in such form as to them may seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness—such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former system of government."—Declaration of Independence.

Socialism holds that the present system of government has become antiquated and is no longer fitted to cope with the modernized system of wealth production. That it is for the best interests of all the people to change the form of government and substitute a regulative bureau or agency that will be in harmony with the present needs of society.

We hold that it becomes a duty devolvent upon every conscious factor in society to exercise his prerogative as a citizen to help promulgate legally, an economic system that has as its base, the recognition of the right of every human being having the opportunity to be afforded the privilege of working out his existence without at the same time being compelled to depend upon private individuals for the "right to work" in order to sustain life.

Socialists have no desire to be looked upon as "martyrs" nor as demagogues. Free speech is an essential for the promulgation of our ideals. Working men do not attend hall meetings to any extent; when their day's work is over they generally try to breathe some fresh air, and as a consequence can best be reached by street corner agitation meetings. It is because the beneficiaries of the present system know the influence our principles may have upon the working class when we can reach their thoughts, that they generally make attempts to stop our meetings by dictation to the police. The police are very seldom to blame for breaking up Socialist meetings; it is always the fellows higher up, who impress upon the authorities the fact that they are the taxpayers and that therefore their interests are of primary importance in the municipality, that are the real powers behind the throne. Attempts have been made all over the country to stop Socialist meetings, but we have always fought legally for our Constitutional rights of freedom of speech and assemblage, and have invariably won out with result that all local ordinances aimed to hamper these rights have been declared unconstitutional. In this city recently several half-hearted attempts on the part of an unwilling police have been made to suppress our meetings—(the writer knows that the police in this city have no desire to be unfair). We Socialists have too serious a task upon our shoulders to allow ourselves to be summarily shut off in this illegal fashion, and shall therefore resist within the pale of the law all such attempts to suppress us.

A truth cannot be killed off by oppressive tactics. Socialism must be met fairly, honestly, legally, logically. If we are wrong, light on the subject cannot hurt its opponents. Cool, calm, impartial, dispassionate judgment is all we ask.

SPECIAL GRAND OPENING

J. P. SIMON, Pres. and Mgr.

Aug. 31, 1908

NEW ERA BUSINESS COLLEGE

TRUAX BLOCK, SUPERIOR, WISCONSIN.

Best Time to Begin

The very best time to begin is on opening day. There are many reasons why this is true. You start equal. This makes it so much easier for you to keep up with your work. Then you get acquainted with the whole school in the very start and this makes it so pleasant and enjoyable. You are not a stranger, but "one of 'em."

The students choose their companions, and in most cases keep their "chums" all through the course. Those who enter on commencement day realize and appreciate the advantages more fully when they see others coming in later. If possible, begin on the opening day, Aug. 31st.

Cheap Board and Room

On entering college, one of the first considerations is the attendant expense. The tuition is always secondary, as that is paid in advance, at the beginning. The laundry is only a small item. But board and room is the greatest of all. At Superior, to business college students, a flat rate of from $14 to $15 per month is made—This includes heat and light, bath and all the modern conveniences and comforts. No other school in this Northwest offers such a low rate. This is largely due to the general and widespread interest taken in the school by the citizens of Superior. They feel an individual and collective interest in the welfare of this great college.

Its Grand Natural Advantages

Among the many grand natural advantages in attending this school, permit us to mention just a few. The location at the Head of the Lakes is ideal. The salubrious climate, cool, bracing and invigorating, is always conducive to study without the mental effort required in any other locality. The mind is as clear as a bell, plastically impressive and very retentive, a condition of continuous absorption. Then the rapid growth of the city of Superior is wondrous. One of the great manufacturing and railroad centers of this vast, rich country. Here rail and water meet. It is a perfect beehive of industry. The ever expansion of its commerce is the commerce of the whole country. The big ships here load and unload for all ports of the world.

School Graduates Position

This school is fully justified in guaranteeing its full course graduates positions. The demand for its graduates far exceeds the supply every month in the year. All of our graduated students are now placed in splendid positions. No matter how close or hard the times may be, a graduate of this school need never be out of work, so far as his or her competency and efficiency may be concerned. They are both taught and trained. Wherever you find a New Era graduate he carries the stamp of skill in his work. The school backs its guarantee to place its students in good positions by a plain agreement to refund every cent paid for tuition upon failure to do so, in any case. This is clear, straight and honest, and there is no dodge in it; as all past graduates know.

OPEN Day AND Evening

If you are thinking of going to business college, come to Superior and investigate this school; then if you find that we have here made a single false statement, we will pay your railroad fare from your home and return, and expenses while here. This is surely fair on our part. As to our responsibility, we refer you to any business house or bank in Superior.

Students Now Coming in

The largest opening that this school ever had, will be August 31st, 1908. Students are coming in and arranging early for their boarding places. Do not defer coming for the opening later than Aug. 28 or 29; you will need a day or two to get settled. This school has certainly done its part faithfully and well, and the public fully appreciates this by its very liberal patronage in the past. Students from all the Northwestern states here enroll. Honest, conscientious work tells. The school is conducted upon the very highest moral plane. The corps of instructors composes a strong staff of thoroughly experienced, pains-taking teachers, who wield a beneficent influence upon a large body of past and present enthusiastic students. Now is the time to fit yourself for more salary.

Low Rates of Tuition.

When the good work, that is given all pupils by the teachers, the small classes and individual instruction, where necessary, is considered and the expert work that the pupils are enabled to execute, are graduating in six months, the rate of tuition is very low at $60 for the whole term. This is only an average of $10 per month for a commercial or shorthand course. Many other schools charge much more, that can not render the service that this school does. But you must remember that this is a large school, with an immense attendance, is why this can be placed at $60 for the fall term. Send for illustrated catalogue, free to all. Write today.

Pays to Attend College

The young man or woman today, who is compelled to face the world with nothing to depend upon but their bare hands, has a hard road to hoe. The hewer of wood and drawer of water has passed with the machinery of today. Now it is brains and training that are in demand. The knowing how to do something that everyone cannot do is what pays the best. The learning of something that is in demand in the open market of commerce. There is more need for bookkeepers and stenographers. The best draw the highest pay. Make up your mind to be a good one. Go to the top. There is plenty of room there, and big pay the year round. Be an expert in your line, and command the highest salary. What others have done, you, too, can do.

RESERVES' BUSY WEEK

Harbor Springs, Mich., Aug. 15.—Nearly 700 blue uniformed sailors from six ships, the Great Lakes fleet of the naval reserves, were given shore liberty here last night, having spent most of the week in the annual maneuvers, nead South Manitou Island, in Lake Michigan.

The program of the week included maneuvers in the open lake, small boat drills, maneuver boat drills, signal practice and two sham battles, one having been the frustrating of a torpedo attack of three small launches and the other an attack of a landing party upon a force posted in the woods on South Manitou Island.

GOPHER OUTSHONE OTHERS.

(By Herald Staff Correspondent .With Fleet.

South Manitou Island, Mich., Aug. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The United States steamship Gopher, manned by the officers and men of the Minnesota Naval Militia, outshone all the other four ships which followed the maneuvers of the flagship, the Wolverine, during the exercises Wednesday and Thursday, and won the highest commendation from the regular officers of the navy who are in charge of the present cruise.

"The Gopher did better than any of the naval militia ships," was the comment of Lieut. Francis S. Whitten, U. S. N., who has been detailed by the commander, Commander W. P. White, to watch the work of the Minnesota men.

Lieut. Whitten was referring particularly to the evolutions and signal work of the Gopher during the ship drills Thursday afternoon, when, with one exception, the Gopher responded and flew first of all the signals given by the flagship.

Eaton and Men Praised.

"Commander Eaton, the other officers and the men of the Gopher must be energetic and enterprising or else they would never have been able to accomplish what they have. Their knowledge and execution of naval tactics is really remarkable," continued Lieut. Whitten.

Lieut. Whitten will remain aboard the Gopher during all the days of the manuevers.

Commander W. P. White, commander-in-chief of the fleet, and who has general supervision of the manuevers, was very hearty in his praise of the Gopher's work since the exercises began.

"I'm very much pleased, very much pleased," said Commander White.

The peaceful freighters plying these waters which passed here Wednesday were edified by the somewhat unwonted sight of six warships executing line dashes, columns and other evolutions on Lake Michigan's blue expanse, their guns at their shinest, their crews in their whitest and their snowy sides glistening in a brilliant afternoon sun. Altogether, the scene resembled those depicted on the colored pictures, which were given away with Sunday newspapers and had a great vogue during the time the land was stired by the war with Spain.

Speaking of that same conflict there are two boats in this fleet which played more or less important parts therein. Detroit's ship and the one here resembling most closely a regular man o' war, the Don Juan re Austria, was one of the Spanish boats captured by Admiral Dewey at Manila bay. A part of the armament at that time, now adorns the Youtic, the Houghton-Hancock ship, lying on the extreme left of this line. The Don Juan is a very good boat. At the time of the war she was considered a first class Spanish gunboat. Although she has been considerably remodelled and rebuilt since the war, she is in many ways the same as when she hauled down the Spanish flag at Manila.

On the other hand, the Gopher was the boat which took the naval board of inquiry from Key West to Havana, three days after the battleship Maine was blown up. In the Gopher's own cabin sat Rear Admiral Sicard and the other officers of that famous court of inquiry. Because the two Michigan boats are obliged to set sail Friday afternoon, it has been decided to conclude the manuevers here then, until they will be continued up the lake, until next Tuesday.

To Maneuver Up Lake.

The Houghton-Hancock militia are short of funds and started Friday, although the Copper country people will not take the Yantic directly to Houghton. She will start on Friday for the Superior shipyards and the rest of the boats will leave then, the entire fleet maneuvering up the lakes as far as Petoskey or Charlevoix. After the Austria leaves for Detroit, the other boats will probably carry on drills, races, night attacks and the rest as originally outlined. But the boats will not come back to South Manitou; they will remain in closer proximity to the broad verandas of the summer hotels, much to the satisfaction of Lieuts. Kelly, Patton, and Engles. This gallant trio, thoroughly equipped with historians and spear carriers, have investigated the social possibilities of South Manitou, but say that the Grand hotel at Mackinac Island contains more fluffy-ruffles and Gibson girls than the South Manitou ever did.

WRITES OF THE FALL STYLES

F. G. Callan Sends Some Advance Information to Herald Readers.

Fred G. Callan of the Gray-Tallant company, who is in the East on a purchasing trip, writes to The Herald of the new fall and winter styles, as follows:

"Without doubt satin finished fabrics, especially on silks, will be the pronounced feature in dress materials for fall wear. They are all of a soft, clinging texture and very lustrous. They are shown mostly in solid colors and plain weaves, but neat jacquard and stripe effects are considered very good. Many features of the directoire gown will be in evidence in the make up of silk gowns for fall and satin finished fabrics meet the requirements and are best suited for the purpose. In fact one of the latest productions along the line is called "Directoire Satin." The fall will be another suit season, which will necessitate separate silk waists. Some clever effects have been brought out for this purpose in Persian effects, printed warp stripes, satin stripes, etc., in the shades that harmonize with the suitings.

"In wool fabrics some very new styles have been originated. There is one style having the skirt in a check and the jacket in a stripe, but in exactly the same colorings. Then there are the black striped materials, which are to be used for skirts and worn with a black jacket of satin finished prunella cloth. Both fabrics are very effective and are finding ready sale in New York right now. The fabrics though, that will have the largest demand, will be in self and fancy striped materials. They are modest, tailor effectively and are serviceable. The range of color for the coming season is quite extensive. For evening wear apricot, paon, ciel, blue, chamois, reseda, rose, raspberry and pink are to be favorites. In suitings taupe, brown, navy, Concord (purple), myrtle, peacock, wine, wedgewood will be preferred.

Everybody here is looking forward to a splendid fall season. Certainly the fabrics were never prettier and milady will revel in rich, elegant stuffs that are so dear to the feminine heart.

A HARD STRUGGLE

With a back constantly aching.
With distressing urinary disorders,
Daily existence is but a struggle.
No need to keep it up.
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you,
Duluth people endorse this claim.

Leander Sinotte, rug manufacturer and carpet cleaner, of 1701 Michigan street, Duluth, Minn., and living at the corner of Michigan street and Eighteenth avenue, says: "Some six years ago I gave testimonial in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills, because I felt so well pleased with the prompt relief from trouble with my kidneys and back which the use of this remedy brought me. I had been annoyed with constant dull pain across the loins and through the kidneys. To stoop, or to attempt to lift anything was sure to bring on sharp twinges of pain. The action of the kidneys was irregular. I tried many remedies until I got Doan's Kidney Pills, but found little relief and no permanent benefit. This remedy completely drove out the whole trouble, and as six years have passed without any return of the complaint, I consider my cure a permanent one."

FIGHTING OVER THE INSURANCE

Mother and Husband Both Claim to be Beneficiaries.

Mrs. Alice M. Kline and Clifford H. Oppel are fighting to see who shall receive $1,000 life insurance money due one or the other of them from the Modern Samaritans through the death of Mrs. Erma C. Oppel, daughter of Mrs. Kline and wife of Oppel. The Samaritans have paid the money into the district court, to be paid to one or the other of the claimants. The question appears to be one which the courts alone can decide.

Oppel married the girl in Duluth, against the wishes of her mother, it is said. He was under age at the time, and Mrs. Kline is understood to have been strongly opposed to the match. The young folks were determined, however, and she could not prevent them becoming man and wife. Shortly after the marriage, the girl changed her insurance policy so as to make Oppel beneficiary, instead of her mother.

The couple did not live together very long. According to the man, it was through the mother's influence that they were separated. The young woman left Duluth and went to Chicago, where she died the eighth day of last May. Before death came, however, a new policy was made out, again naming Mrs. Kline beneficiary. At the time the girl is alleged to have signed an affidavit to the effect that the policy bearing her husband's name was lost.

TANGLE OF BROTHERS.

The love of two brothers for the same woman resulted yesterday afternoon in one of them, Pearl Leuvry, landing in the city jail, charged with perjury. His brother claims that Pearl has been annoying his, the brother's, wife, with his attentions, even going so far as threatening to kill her unless she listened to his advances.

Pearl has been wanted by the police for the last two or three months, for freely swearing to a warrant last spring, and then getting out of town. At that time he was living with the woman, it is claimed, who, the story goes, had left her real husband. Pearl passed as her lawful husband, and swore out a complaint for the arrest of his brother and her real husband, charging him with annoying the woman with his attentions. Then Pearl disappeared, and the police have been on the lookout for him since. He probably will be arraigned in police court Monday.

CITY HOSPITAL.

Common Council Will Probably Take Up the Question Monday.

It looks as if the council meeting next Monday evening would be almost a duplicate of last week's so far as the amount of business to be transacted is concerned. Little of importance is in sight.

There is a good chance, however, that the question of a city hospital will again be taken up, and the council may order the purchase of the site the building which Mayor Haven spoke about at the meeting of the public affairs committee this week. The property in question, the location of which is still a secret, can be purchased for $15,000, and the city now has practically that amount available for the purpose.

DEMOCRATS OF ST. LOUIS COUNTY FRAME TICKET

Candidates in Field for Nearly All County Offices.

ANDREW NELSON,
Democratic County Chairman.

Congressman from the Eighth district, Charles d'Autremont of Duluth; county attorney, Andrew Nelson of Duluth; county auditor, Marcus B. Cullum of Duluth; county treasurer, W. B. Getchell of Duluth; register of deeds, Bernard Forrestal of Duluth; judge of probate, T. J. McKeon of Duluth; county sheriff, Charles Jesmore of Eveleth; members of the legislature from the Fiftieth district, Joseph Ward Reynolds and Dr. O. A. Oredson; railroad and warehouse commissioner, P. H. Nelson of Hibbing; county commissioner from the First district, Emil A. Tessman; county commissioner from the Third district, August Hagberg; county commissioner from the Fifth district, John Lowe; clerk of court, A. M. Thomson, Virginia; coroner, J. H. Jern, West Duluth.

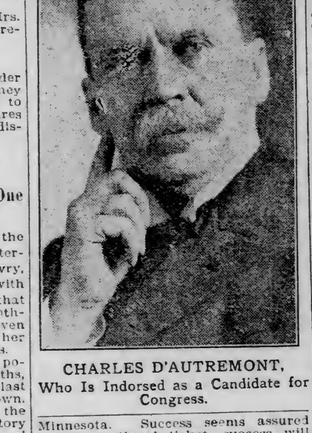
A convention that in every way was auspicious for the success of the Democratic state ticket in St. Louis county, was held at Hibbing yesterday afternoon. The enthusiasm was spontaneous, the attendance of delegates large, and the warmth of the delegates toward the county ticket recommended by the convention was of the kind that augurs well for a Democratic victory at the polls.

In his opening speech, Andrew Nelson struck the keynote of the convention. The chairman of the county Democratic committee began by saying that this was an auspicious year for Democracy. Mr. Nelson stated that the outlook for a national Democratic victory was never better. He stated that the time had come to put into execution the principles held dear by every true Democrat. He pointed out that many of the Republicans would this year vote the Democratic ticket.

Will Vote For Bryan.

"Many of the staunch Republicans are saying," said he, "that if we can't have Roosevelt, and they won't give us La Follette, we are going to vote for William J. Bryan." That's the kind of talk you are hearing from



CHARLES D'AUTREMONT,

Minnesota. Success seems assured for the national ticket, success will attend the efforts of the party and will result in the election of that tribune of the people, that fearless leader who has the ear of the people, William Jennings Bryan."

Applause greeted the mention of the name of the commoner, the kind of applause that left no doubt that the delegates gathered in the convention will go forth and wage a valiant fight for the success of the national ticket in Minnesota.

The speaker stated that reform must come to the government through the efforts of the Democratic party. He stated that the Republican party was trust dominated; that the people of this state had lost hope of securing reforms through the Republican party; that they were today thinking along independent lines, and that this desire for reform would result in the election of not only a national Democratic ticket, but would also result in the election of a Democratic governor of Minnesota.

Mr. Nelson paid a tribute to the high ideals of administration maintained by Henry Sibley, the first governor of Minnesota, who was a Democrat, and to the administrations of John Lind and the present governor, John A. Johnson.

In Office Too Long.

"St. Louis county, the Empire county of the state, must have better representives. Some of your county officials have been in office too long. Some of them have held office so long that they wouldn't know how to act if they were to go out of office. It is time for a change; it is time that the offices of the county were not confined to Duluth and a narrow clique of office holders; it is time that better representives of the people were placed in office, and it is through the efforts of the Democratic party that this change should be brought about."

In an eloquent speech, Martin Hughes of Hibbing nominated Joseph Ward Reynolds of Duluth as chairman of the convention. The nomination was seconded by P. McDonell, Mr. Reynolds being chosen chairman by acclamation.

"Mr. Reynolds is a consistent, militant Democrat," said Mr. Hughes, "who has for years been trying to lead the Republican voters out of the Egyphian darkness into the light of modern progress. He is a man that has worked hard and valiantly, and he is a man who is an honor to his party."

Mr. Reynolds Speaks.

"This is the first round of a great fight," began Mr. Reynolds, upon taking the platform. "It is a fight that will compare with some of the hardest of our friend Paddy McDonell. You all know what a valiant fighter Mr. Bryan is. I have no doubt but that Mr. Taft is a fighter, too, but we need have no fear of the outcome, for you all know the record of the Peerless Leader of the Democracy, William Jennings Bryan.

"Today the Republican party stands discredited. It stands charged with the responsibility of the great financial and industrial depression. It was the fault of bad government, the accumulated vices and corruptions that have crept in through its long tenure of office, and to seek reform the people must turn to the Democratic party.

"Roosevelt's reforms were Democratic. His party finds fault with him because he advocates the principles of Democracy. The guaranteeing of bank deposits is a Democratic measure, and this act alone is one that should assure the party of victory. Victory is within our grasp and you must go forth and preach its principals. It is said that we have no candidate for governor, but when the time comes we will, as the old saying, produce a candidate finer than the purest gold."

M. H. McMahon placed Rev. Frank Durrant of Hibbing in nomination as secretary of the convention, and he was elected by acclamation. The appointing of a committee on credentials was done away with and the appointment of temporary chairman and secretary made permanent.

A committee composed of Martin Hughes and W. E. McEwen was appointed to name the delegates to the state convention at Minneapolis. A committee composed of Martin Hughes, Andrew Nelson, Fred L. Ryan, George Neff and J. Walsh was appointed to draft the resolutions.

The State Delegates.

A recess for five minutes was taken, the following members of the state delegation being named by the committee upon the convention being called to order:

P. McDonnell, Duluth; Martin Hughes, Hibbing; A. C. Weiss, Duluth; J. W. Reynolds, Duluth; Andrew Nelson, Duluth; Bainbridge Dunlap, Duluth; Bert Fesler, Duluth; T. T. Hudson, Duluth; Charles Jesmore, Eveleth; A. N. Thompson, Virginia; E. A. Tessman, Duluth; F. L. Ryan, Duluth; August Hagberg, Duluth; Ed Kleffman, Hibbing; Brian O'Rourke, Hibbing; C. A. d'Autremont, Duluth; W. B. Getchell, Duluth; Thomas Forhan, Chisholm; W. E. McEwen, Duluth; Charles Johnson, Eveleth; M. Ryan, Duluth; George Thatcher, Duluth; M. H. McMahon, Duluth; O. A. Oredson, Duluth; James Walsh, Duluth; T. B. McManus, Duluth; Charlo Hoard, Duluth; Joe Grandmaitle, Floodwood.

T. J. McKeon, J. P. Shartel, Ed. Rudberg, Jr., Duluth; J. J. O'Brien, Charles J. Hector, B. F. Forrestal, Daniel Horgan, George Neff, T. A. Feakes, Ignatius Byenka A. F. W. Eckstein, H. Glazier, E. P. Curran, Fred White, Louis Bennett, John A. McDonnell, Charles Mork, Alex Lang, H. H. Hawkins, H. E. Webster, J. D. Conan, Ely; Harry Spooner, Ely; Fred Steineman, Duluth; Louis Rubenstein, Sparta; J. T. Riley, Biwabik; William Coss, Tower.

The Resolutions.

Martin Hughes then read the following resolutions:

"We, the Democrats of St. Louis county, in convention assembled, reaffirm our allegiance to the time-honored principles of Democracy, and enthusiastically endorse the straightforward, honest and unequivocal declaration of the principles of Democracy as enunciated in the national platform adopted at Denver.

"We congratulate the commonwealth of Minnesota upon the excellent administrations of its honest, capable and fearless Democratic governors, John Lind and John A. Johnson, and we view with special pride the enviable record made by Minnesota's native son, John A. Johnson, as governor of this great commonwealth, whose excellent administration of the affairs of our state has been heralded to the extremities of the continent, dhasgivenkncmememfmt the continent, and has given Minnesota an enviable position among here sister states.

"As the Democratic party has always been the champion of human rights, and the sincere friend of the great toiling masses of the nation, we favor the passage by the legislature of our state of an adequate employers' liability law, and we reaffirm our allegiance to the principle of the initiative and referendum.

"The primary system of nominating candidates is in accord with the fundamental principle of the Democratic party—the rule of the people. The enemies of the primary system are the Republican politicians. We pledge ourselves to the defense and perpetuation of that system, but representing, as we do, the minority party in St. Louis county, and being mindful, as we must be, of the reluctance of members of our party to become candidates for office against great odds, we feel that the circumstances justify us in drafting to the demands of good citizenship and public service those members of our party whom we know to possess the qualifications, ability and integrity needed and demanded by the people in their candidates. Therefor, indorsing the primary system, we recommend that this convention suggest the names of the different Democrats who shall be requested to file for nomination for the different count yoffices.

"We affirm our allegiance and pledge our united and enthusiastic support to our nominee for president of the United States that courageous, unfaltering leader of Democracy, that dauntless tribune of the people, William Jennings Bryan."

Mr. McEwen Speaks.

W. E. McEwen was called upon for a short address and responded.

"We are standing on the eve of victory," he said. "The full dinner pail is no longer the cry of the Republican party. The prosperity of the working man has departed. The policies of this campaign are not the policies of the past; they are hte policies of today—the policies of reform. The rights of labor is a great issue. The Democratic party has considered the rights of the laboring man, and for relief he must look to the Democratic party.

"Men fight harder for principles than they do for bread. The laboring men of this country have waited a long time for promises—promises they never received. The platform of the Democratic party has provided well for the laborers of this country, and it is in this party that they must seek relief from oppressive conditions.

"It is cheaper to be honest in Minnesota today, than it is to be dishonest. Much of the credit for this state of conditions must be given to the administration of John A. Johnson. The Republican candidate for governor has charged the present administration with extravagance. He has not taken into account the growth of the various state institutions and the natural growth of the expenses of the state. But even if the expenses were higher, it was a Republican legislature that voted this money. I don't think that Mr. Jacobson will repeat that campaign issue. Many of the members of the last legislature are already up in arms over his statement.

"This delegation wants to do its part in selecting a standard bearer who will preserve the high standards of the other Democratic governors. If Johnson would run again, he would be my personal choice. But there are many other men well qualified to fill the office. There is need of better county officials. The people should be given better candidates for the county offices, and this convention should give its support toward getting candidates who will serve the interests of the people. I believe that the next legislature will be largely Democratic, and it is the duty of the Democrats of this district to send a Democratic congressman to Washington, a man who will help carry on the reforms that will be advocated by William Jennings Bryan. The time is ripe for a great Democratic victory and we must spread the gospel of reform."

W. W. McDonnell said that Bryan would be the next president, told a funny story that set the convention in uproarious laughter, and then bowed himself from the stage.

Jacobson and Interests.

M. H. McMahon charged that Jacobson was supported by the very interests that two years ago helped to defeat him for nomination. He stated that today Jacobson was subservient to these very same interests, and if elected would serve them.

"If Bryan is elected," said the speaker, "just principles will rule the people. The people will rule in government, the rights of humanity will be observed and not the rights of property, which is the rule of the Republican party."

Rev. Frank Durrant delivered one of the most eloquent and stirring addresses of the convention. He compared four great men—President Roosevelt, William J. Bryan, the late Grover Cleveland, the first president the speaker ever voted for, and John A. Johnson. Applause that compelled the speaker to stop speaking greeted the mention of the name of Governor Johnson.

"Today is a day of reform," he said. "The thought of the nations is sweeping on to reform as never before in the history of this country. The thought that teaches reform in government is the thought of the Democratic party. It is good to be a Democrat in these days of reform."

The work of suggesting or recommending names for the county and legislative ticket was taken up. Martin Hughes suggested the name of Charles d'Autremont of Duluth as a candidate for congress. Mr. Hughes suggested that the St. Louis delegation to the state convention be instructed to use every effort to secure the indorsement of that body for Mr. d'Autremont. The recommendation of the Duluth man was made unanimous.

Harmony Shown.

W. E. McEwen suggested the name of Marcus B. Cullum as a candidate for the office of county auditor. The recommendation of Mr. McEwen was promptly seconded by Emil Tessman, his one-time political opponent. No better or more gracious illustration could be given of the complete harmony that has united the party. The recommendation of Mr. Cullum was made unanimous.

Martin Hughes recommended the name of Charles Jesmore, ex-mayor of Eveleth for county sheriff. The recommendation of Mr. Hughes was made unanimous. Mr. Tessman recommended the name of W. B. Getchell of Duluth as a candidate for county treasurer. This recommendation also met with the unanimous approval of the convention. A. N. Thomson of Virginia was recommended for clerk of court, the delegates expressing their unanimous approval.

M. H. McMahon, in a fitting tribute to the efforts in behalf of the Democratic party on the part of Andrew Nelson, chairman of the county Democratic committee, placed his name before the convention as a worthy candidate for the office of county attorney. Hearty applause greeted the conclusion of the speech.

"He is the one Democrat who can be elected to the office," said Mr. McMahon, "and if elected he will conduct the duties of the office in a manner that will reflect credit both upon himself and his party."

John Brown, a well known attorney and a neighbor of Mr. Nelson, seconded the speech and paid a neat tribute to the ability and integrity of Mr. Nelson.

Andrew Nelson recommended the name of August Hagberg, a candidate for commissioner of the Third district, and M. H. McMahon recommended the name John Lowe, as a candidate for county commissioner of the Fifth district, both names being given the unanimous indorsement of the convention.

Martin Hughes suggested P. H. Nelson of Hibbing as railroad commissioner, the recommendation was seconded and Mr. Nelson received the indorsement of the convention.

M. H. McMahon recommended the names of Joseph Ward Reynolds and Dr. O. A. Oredson as candidates for the legislature from the Fiftieth district. The recommendation was made the unanimous convention. At this juncture it was debated as to whether it would not be a wiser plan to authorize the county committee to look into the situation and then make recommendations for the remainder of the offices as to candidates or the remainder of the county offices, and also as to candidates for the Forty-ninth and Fifty-first legislative districts. After J. W. Peterson of Eveleth had recommended Dr. J. H. Joorns of West Duluth as a candidate for the office of coroner, and the convention had given the recommendation hearty indorsement, a motion conferring the authority upon the county committee to make recommendations for the remainder of the county-legislative and judicial offices, was carried.

Martin Hughes, on behalf of the people and delegates in Hibbing, thanked the members of the county committee for the honor of choosing Hibbing as the place of holding the convention. "It is an honor is justly appreciated," said Mr. Hughes, "and Hibbing feels deeply the honor of entertaining such a representative body of citizens."

On behalf of the county committee Andrew Nelson replied in kind to Mr. Hughes' gracious remarks, stating that Hibbing had royally entertained the visitors and that the delegates were deeply indebted for the kindness shown by the citizens of that city. By a rising vote the delegates of the convention thanked the Hibbing delegates and the citizens of the city for the courtesies extended to them.

The convention was then adjourned.

A meeting of the county committee was called last evening, after the adjournment of the convention. At the meeting the situation was throughly gone over and candidates for places on the ticket discussed. After carefully weighing the chances of the men who are willing to make the run for the various offices, the members of the committee recommended T. J. McKeon for judge of probate; Emil Tessman as a candidate for county commissioner from the First distric; and Bernard Forestal as a candidate for register of deeds. These were the offices for which candidates were not recommended during the convention.

In view of the fact that such an array of creditable men have filed as candidates for the legislature from the Forty-ninth and Fifty-first districts, the members of the committee decided that it was wholly unnecessary to recommend candidates for this branch of the legislative ticket. The members of the committee expressed themselves as throughly satisfied with the candidates who have filed as legislative candidates in these two districts.

On the motion of W. E. McEwen, the chairman of the committee, Andrew Nelson, appointed a committee of two members and himself to recommend candidates for any offices that may be without candidates. Mr. Nelson, James Walsh and Michael Lynch will compose the committee.

KIPLING AS GERMAN SPY

London, Aug. 15.—There has been a big "spy scare" in England recently, questions having been asked in the house of commons concerning the alleged photographing of army maneuvers and fortifications in different parts of the country. From a purely literary point of view, the "scare" developed rather interesting features recently through the amusing mix-up in which Rudyard Kipling figured. Some months ago, Kipling, with some friends, visited the east coast of England on behalf of a railway company in which they were interested. It chanced that while the author and his party were taking photographs and generally surveying the country for their railway, some army maneuvers in that district were carried on. Kipling, always interested in "Tommy Atkins," watched the military operations very closely, and, unknown to himself, was also watched by some people who took the great imperialist for a member of the German reichstag.

Joke on Authorities.

After the military operations were closed, Capt. Mitchell Innes, chief constable of Lincoln county, was deputized to conduct an investigation into the "spy" rumor, while Col. Lockwood, M.P., asked if the war secretary knew anything about a "certain party of German spies who had been photographing and obtaining information on the east coast?" Haldane replied that he had no cognizance of the facts and instructed some of his staff to obtain information. After following various "clews," both the war office investigators and the local detectives traced the supposed German spy, who turned out to be no other than the bespectacled Rudyard. Naturally, the "tableau effect" was very pronounced, and now every one is laughing over the Kipling spy scare. Kipling, at his clubs, is having volleys of questions fired at him. Aside from the amusing features of the case, a sidelight is thrown on the present activities of the famous author. Very little has been heard of Kipling recently, and it is said he is giving most of his attention to commercial affairs. This rumor has been denied by his friends, but the fact that he has been conducting investigations with a view to a new railway project adds color to the statement that he is devoting little attention to literature.

London's Queer Libraries.

London has some queer libraries, but perhaps one of the strangest is that known as "The Ocean Library," connected with the well-known Passmore Edwards settlement. This is a novel system for supplying Jack Tar with his favorite books. Parcels of books are made up and packed in strong canvas bags, which again are placed in boxes. These are shipped on board various vessels for the use of sailors at sea. Upwards of 30,000 books are thus shipped away per annum. The point of departure of this unique library is the British and Foreign Sailors' society in Limehouse causeway, east of the Whitechapel district of London. This is indeed a queer part of London in which to conduct a library. Old ramshackle buildings, dating back 200 years or more, abutt on narrow streets, down which roam sailors from the four quarters of the earth. In the "causeway" you can hear every sort of "lingo" spoken in all the tongues of Babel. Limehouse causeway is one of the roughest streets in East London, and yet it is here that "Jack's library" has its home. Sailors are great readers and they have a decided reverence for books. Capt. Custard, who keeps the library and attends to the sending of books all over the world, reports that he never has any trouble with sailors who come to the place for information or for books. Most of the volumes are sent direct to vessels. Orders come from all over the world, and parcels are constantly going out to such far-away ports as Delagoa bay, the Persian Gulf, Australia, China and the West Coast of Africa. In speaking to Capt. Custard recently I asked him what books were the favorites among the men who go down to the sea in ships.

Mark Twain's Books in Demand.

"All sorts," was the reply, "but there are, naturally, some old stand-bys. Rider Haggard's 'King Solomon's Mines' is always in demand; so are Mark Twain's 'Huckleberry Finn,' 'The Arabian Nights,' 'The Woman in White,' Dryden's poems and Kipling's 'Barrack Room Ballads,' Prescott's 'Conquest of Peru' and Motley's 'Rise of the Dutch Republic' and W. Clark Russell's tales Among the latter, perhaps 'The Wreck of the Grosvenor' is the most popular. A very popular book also among sailors is by the American writer Dana. His 'Two Years Before the Mast' is a great favorite, and you hear it very highly spoken of among seafaring men.

"Sailors are also very fond of serials," continued the old captain. "They will wait patiently month after month until we send them out certain magazines containing their favorite continued story."

"Do you ever lose any of your books which you send so far away on the floating libraries?" was asked.

"Only when the ships on which they are sent happen to go down. On the Star of Japan, wrecked on the African coast not long ago, we lost a bag of books, and also on the Brianholme. These are our most recent losses, but, in the whole time in which the institution has been going—twenty-three years—our losses of books have not been very great."

All things considered, this is one of the "queerest" libraries which London possesses. With its old-world situation and its interesting personality, Capt. Custard, it is just such a place as the late Sir Walter Besant would have delighted to describe.

SHARK ATE OUT OF BOAT.

Mazatlan (Mex.) Cor. Mexican Herald: Pursued by a nine-foot shark, which, when they abandon their boat at the shore, put his front fins on the edge of the boat and ate the fish thereon as a pig would eat out of a trough, until in its greed it swallowed a big hook thrown into the pile of fish, is the story told by several fishermen and people who saw the windup of that affair. As indubitable evidence of the truth of the story the carcass of the shark is displayed.

The fishermen tell how they were returning to port with their sloop filled to the gunwales with fish when they noticed a great fish pursuing them and rapidly gaining on them, although still about 1,000 feet away. They hurried to the pier, where in terror they scrambled out of the boat. The shark, for such the fish proved to be, followed them and immediately mounted part way into the boat, where he began devouring great quantities of fish in single mouthfuls.

The fishermen hurriedly secured a shark hook which they threw in with the fish. The shark, after a mouthful or two, took the hook into his mouth along with several fish, and swallowed it. A crowd of people had gathered by this time, and all lent a hand at pulling the monster in.

WILL PLAY TOMORROW

Free Concert at Lester Park by "Old Kentucky" Band.

Grand Musical Treat for Duluth People Arranged by Herald.

Amid the scenic beauty of Lester Park, Duluth's famous pleasure resort, the celebrated band of the "In Old Kentucky" company, will render a fine program of sacred and popular music tomorrow afternoon, under the auspices of The Herald. The concert is free to everybody and will begin promptly at 3 o'clock.

For the reason that the "In Old Kentucky" company is obliged to spend Sunday in Duluth before opening its season at the Lyceum Monday night, The Herald has been able to make arrangements with A. W. Dingwall, owner of the show, to put the band on at Lester Park in a grand open air concert, for the benefit of the people of Duluth.

The band, under the leadership of John W. Powell, popularly known as the "Black Sousa," has made a great hit at Manhattan Beach, where it has been playing this summer. The organization comprises twenty-five trained musicians, who arrived from New York this noon.

The announcement that The Herald had arranged for a free open air concert at Lester Park, by this famous band, has been received with pleasure by the citizens of Duluth, many of whom have congratulated The Herald for its enterprise in securing such a treat for the public. Mayor Haven indorses the concert, and says that no greater pleasure could have been placed before the people of Duluth than a free concert at one of the city parks, by this famous musical organization.

The street railway company will put on extra cars and give frequent service to Lester Park tomorrow, but it would be a good idea for those who intend to hear the concert to take their families and lunch baskets and start early. No better place than Lester Park can be found in the Northwest, for a day's outing. Nature is now at her best, and the opportunity of spending the day at the park, with a splendid band concert in the afternoon, is one that rarely occurs for the people of Duluth.

Following is the program for tomorrow's concert:

March—"The Promoter" .....Holmes
Medley selection—"Strains From Sterns" .....Joseph W. Stern
March—"Lake Front Park" .....Vandercook
Medley selection—"When You Know You Are Not Forgotten" .....Hager
March—"The Master Builder" ..Holmes
Medley selection—"Remick's Hits, No. 4" .....Jerome H. Remick
March—"Yours Truly" .....Jewell
March—"Slippery Sam" .....Barnard

The concert will be given, rain or shine.

HOLDING CONFERENCE.

Strike at the Allouez Ore Docks May be Settled.

A committee from the Superior Commercial club is meeting with Supt. Philbin of the Great Northern road today, at Allouez, in an effort to bring the strike of the ore dock handlers to an end.

The committee has been in session since early this morning and it was impossible to get any light on their progress made up to the time of going to press.

The idea of the Commercial club in electing the committee was to act as the go-between, between the men and the officials of the company, and settle the strike to the satisfaction of all concerned.

SCORES LENROOT.

Charging Lenroot drew a $1,500 salary from the Superior court as court reporter for some years and performed almost no services, that he accepted large sums from the state for very nominal attorneys' services, and that he voted to pass the exemption bill, cutting down the laboring man's exemption from $60 to $30, Bryan J. Castle of Madison, last evening delivered a scathing arraignment of the Superior legislator in Maryland hall. Not all of the Superior audience was in sympathy with the speaker, and questions and hostile demonstrations were frequent. Castle answered the questions and persevered to the end, however, closing with a catalogue of the virtues of Congressman Jenkins.

LAY CORNERSTONE.

The cornerstone of the $40,000 Masonic temple at Belknap and Hughitt avenue is to be laid at 3 o'clock this afternoon. H. H. Grace is the speaker of the day for the Superior Masons, and Grand Master Durgin of Racine and Grand Secretary Perry of Milwaukee will also speak. Col. J. F. Tostevin is marshall of the day. A parade was held this afternoon before the exercises.

Want Free Delivery.

A petition is being circulated by the residents of the Allouez district for a free postal delivery. This will be presented to Postmaster Anderson within a few days, and Mr. Anderson says that everything will be done to secure the delivery, and if the Washington authorities assent, it will be a fact within a few months. Fred Hertlein is circulating the petition.

Paving Contract.

Russell & Holmquist were yesterday awarded the contract for the paving of Hammond avenue from Belknap street to Twenty-first street, on their bid of $20,168.44, the paving to be tar macadam, 18 feet in width.

Lured by Bottle.

After inviting Oscar Peterson into a dark alley last night, ostensibly to get a drink, two unknown men grappled with him and rifled his pockets, taking all the money he had with him, about $3. He reported the matter to the nearest officer, but the men made their getaway.

LAKE AND RIVER EXCURSIONS

The Herald's Next Excursion Will be Run Tuesday.

The opportunities of enjoying The Herald's popular excursions on Lake Superior and up the St. Louis river may not last much longer. Now is the best period of the season to take a trip on the steamer Newsboy, or the steamer Mascotte, to Fond du Lac, or a 30-mile ride down the lake on the steamer America, returning by moonlight.

The Herald's next excursions will be run Tuesday. If you have been disappointed at any previous time by reason of bad weather, plan for next Tuesday's excursions.

The steamer Newsboy will leave Fifth avenue dock at 9 o'clock in the morning, for Fond du Lac, and the steamer Mascotte will leave the same dock, for the same destination at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The fare for this delightful ride to the old historic trading post is only 25 cents, when you go on a Herald excursion. All the privileges of of Chamber's grove are extended to those taking the trip.

The steamer America will leave Booth's dock at 4 p. m., sharp, for a 30-mile run down the lake to Two Harbors, returning by moonlight. A five-hour ride on old Lake Superior for only 30 cents. Take your family and your company on this trip next Tuesday and they will have the time of their lives.

Secure your tickets early at The Herald office, for the sale will be limited. There will be no crowding of the boat. The Herald in-ists that its excursionists ride in absolute comfort.

SHE MAKES WEDDING CAKE.

The wedding cake for most of the smart June weddings came from the kitchen of a woman who recently went into the business of baking cake for such occasions, says the New York Sun.

She is one of the rather large army of gentlewomen who nowadays find it necessary to do something for a living. When the necessity confronted her of finding something to do she remembered that she could make very good fruit cake, and to that talent her friends could bear testimony.

So when she told them that she wanted to make wedding cake and have them and their friends buy it they came to her assistance loyally, with the confidence too of getting something very good. The cake continued to taste just as well to these purchasers as it had in the past, and her business has steadily grown. Now she has so many orders for cake that she requires to keep two assistants.

But she does not leave to them any of the details that are important in the making of the cake. She knows that her own personal skill was what brought her success, and she is too grateful to her customers not to give them what they expect from her in filling their orders.

She is able to compete with the caterers to in the matter of dainty boxes and has been able to get exclusive designs. Also she is able to undersell them, although it is not so certain that she will continue to do it even if she can afford to.

No one is apt to think more highly of a store than its owner does—hence his advertising should be so big that it will reflect his belief in his store's importance—and so continuous that it will have the force of iteration.

THE COPPER SITUATION

Horace J. Stevens of Houghton, one of the best informed copper experts in the country, who is in Duluth today, enroute to Butte, Mont., says that the present bulge in copper stocks is due to a discontinuing of the higher price of copper and the presidential election. Mr. Stevens predicts a still higher price for copper and believes that the metal will go to 16 or 17 cents in the near future.

"As usual," says Mr. Stevens, "most of the cheap copper is in the hands of the foreign buyers. They bought while copper was at 13 cents. When copper was at that low figure the domestic traders refused to touch it. Yet when copper rises to a high level there is a rush among American buyers to purchase.

The copper market was quiet today with a sagging tendency under the pressure of selling in Boston. North Butte opened at $80.25, went to $80.75, dropped back to $79.50 and closed at $79.75 bid and $80.50 asked. Amalgamated opened at $75.37½, dropped back to $76, advanced to $76.50, dropped back to $75 and closed at $75.87½ bid and $76.12½ asked. Anaconda opened at $45.75, dropped back to $45 and closed at $46. Calumet & Arizona opened at $120.25, dropped to $119 and closed at $120 bid. Butte Coalition opened at $27, went up to $27.37½, fell back to $26.87½ and closed at $27 bid and $27.25 asked.

The curbs were weak in sympathy with the listed coppers. Greene-Cananea sold at $11 and $11.12½, Superior & Pittsburg at $13.25 and $13.37½. Black Mountain at $3.50, Butte & Superior at $1.06, Calumet & Sonora at $10, Cliff at $1.37½, Copper Queen at $1.25, Denn-Arizona at $3.12½, Red Warrior at $3.12½.

Butte Ballaklava was inactive at $7 bid and $7.25 asked, Carman at $3.25 bid and $3.50 asked, Mowitza at $2.25 bid and $2.37½ asked, and Globe at $4.75 bid and $5 asked.

EIGHT HUNTERS FINED AND GUNS CONFISCATED.

GRANDMA'S DESTINATION.

Woman's Home Companion: Ethel is of the mature age of 5. Recently her grandmother concluded that it devolved on her to instruct the child in religious matters.

"You must be a good girl, Ethel," she said. "Then you will go to heaven when you die."

Ethel seemed scarcely pleased with this reward for exceptional conduct.

"Don't you want to go to heaven?" asked grandma with a look of reproach.

"Oh, I don't know," temporized Ethel. "I guess not."

"Why not?" demanded grandma severely.

"Oh, yes, I should," returned Ethel with conviction.

"No," argued grandma, "you would not. Why should you want to get out of heaven?"

"Why," answered Ethel, "I guess I'd want to go and see you once in a while, wouldn't I?"

STARVING GENTLEWOMEN.

From the Quiver: Extraordinary cases of starving gentlewomen have come to light, such as superannuated governesses, widows of improvident husbands and those who in the days of their youth were able to make quite a comfortable income as clerks or otherwise.

By gradual stages representatives of all these types have sunk lower and lower, and sometimes, having sought forgetfulness in drink, have come to the lowest grade before drifting into the shelter of the institute.

Here was, for instance, a wretched looking creature, but with unmistakable signs of having once been "a lady," whose only source of income lay in her handful of boot laces which she sold to mechanics in their midday rest. She proved to be the daughter of a baronet, whose marriage had displeased her family.

Estranged from her relatives by the quarrel of early life, she had too much pride to reveal to them the poverty by which she had of late been overtaken; but, absolutely miserable, she crept about the mean streets of our vast city as successfully hidden as if living in another hemisphere, far from the gorgeous mansion, the carriages and the servants which once were hers by right of birth.

A SOUTH AMERICA INVIGORANT.

Chicago Tribune: Ceca is the South American invigorant. The shrub from which the coca leaves are obtained grows under favorable conditions to a height of about four meters. It is cultivated in Peru and Bolivia.

At the time the crop is gathered the seeds are sown in beds, when they germinate and grow, and in two months the growing plants reach a height of about a foot. The leaves, grown in the proper sunlight and shade, are yellowish, small and thick.

This is the kind of leaf that is preferred for chewing by persons using the leaf as a stimulant, fortifier and preventive of sleep and fatigue in the performance of arduous work, inasmuch as they prevent rheumatism, from which miners suffer when working in mines that contain much water. Indians who masticate the leaves of this plant can work twenty-four hours without eating or sleeping.

Coca leaves are used by the natives when engaged in long and fatiguing journeys and by soldiers when subject to hardships and privations. They may be used with all kinds of food and are said to cure dyspepsia, either taken as an infusion in the shape of tea or by masticating the leaves. The life of the plant when perfect is eighty years.

ONE OF FOUR.

"A big theater — at least for the sort of work I produce—is bad," he said. "For subtle acting and a subtle play a small stage and a small theater are preferable.

"Even big audiences have their drawbacks. Don't, indeed, all big things have their drawbacks? Wouldn't we all rather be small than big?

"On one of your surface trains the other day a very big, fat woman stood clinging to a strap. At last a thin young man rose and said in a loud voice:

BIG STORM IN COLONY

Americans in London Excited Over a Reported Engagement.

Positively Denied That Whitehouse Will Wed Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Londong ,Aug. 15.—Never in the history of social journalism in London was there such a storm as that which raged at the office of the paper which announced less than a fortnight ago the engagement of Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt and Mr. William Whitehouse of the American embassy in London. Cables were flying from Mrs. Vanderbilt, while the telegraph wires and the telephone were kept busy with contradicting messages from the embassy. Alfred Vanderbilt, who continues to be interested in his wife's movements, also sought information, the paper in question being one which is wont to boast of its authentic information and tthe infallibility of its staff. The story, it seems, originated in the United States and was copied.

Mr. William Whitehouse is at the moment the most popular American man in London and the girls and the widows on this side are of opinion that Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt would certainly be lucky in her second choice if the news were true.

In such a hurry was Mr. Whitehouse to contradict the rumor that it is now said among his intimates that his affections are centered on the young daughter of a well known and wealthy peer whom he aspires to lead to the altar at no distant date, and consequently he was in a perfect fury at the announcement coming as it did at an inopportune moment. I am told he bought on the quiet a hundred copies of the paper containing the contradiction and sent them in typewritten wrappers to his immediate circle. The girl upon whom he has set his heart is said to return his devotion, so all things point to the fact that one more American man will be added to the very limited ranks of his compatriots who have secured English women of title for wives.

Mrs. James Amory Moore will spend the autumn at Strathpeffer, where she is renting a charming house, the property of the young countess of Cromartie, who owns practially all the town. Mrs. Amory Moore has made a great name for herself as a hostess this season, her delightful parties which were usually musical, being vastly appreciated by the American contingent, who always mustered in great force. A special point was made by her securing American artists, some of whom were introduced to her notice by Mrs. Ronalds. Masquerading as a professional dancer under the name of Mlle. de Courcy, well known society woman elected to dance "a la Maud Allan" at one of Mrs. Moore's recent entertainments. Great was the enthusiasm she provoked, her artistic imitations being regarded as even more beautiful than the real thing. At Mrs. Amory Moore's final party, which took place last week, all the staff of the American embassy was present.

King Edward on Telephone.

Great was the excitement at Chieveden when shortly after 10 a. m. Sunday the king telephoned Mrs. Astor, Jr., from Taplow court, where he was staying with the Desboroughs, to inquire if he could drop in for tea that afternoon. It was a servant in the first instance who answered the telephone, and on finding that he was speaking to King Edward he flung the receiver out of his hand, and dashing wildly into where the Astors were at breakfast with their guest, shrieked, "the king, the king!" The crown princess of Sweden (Princess Margaret of Connaught that was) had an idea of the real state of the case and was so convulsed with laughter that she upset her cup of coffee into her lap. Everyone else thought the man was mad. Still gesticulating wildly, he almost dragged Mr. Astor from the room to the telephone box. Waldorf Astor's consent to the king's request if he might partake of the 5 o'clock meal was insufficient for his majesty, who requested him to summon Mrs. Astor, that he might converse with her himself. The conversation was somewhat of a trial for her, it being with the greatest difficulty that she could interpret the king's deep German accent, the telephone in this particular case intensifying the guttural notes. Again and again the lady had to demand what her august friend was saying and so nervous was she that she said afterwards it seemed as if she was deaf.

However, all went particularly well in the afternoon. Princess Margaret, as the crown princess of Sweden is still called by her Yankee friends, told Mrs. Astor of the king's weakness for sandwiches made of a certain kind of German sausage for 5 o'clock tea, with the result that Mrs. Astor sent by motor to a famous shop just off Leicester Square for the delicacy. Being Sunday, there was great trouble to get anyone to serve, but in time the thing was done and the king was regaled with his favorite delicacy.

It is a very tall feather in this young American hostess' cap to have salved the wound so long open between the king and the Astors. Directly she came to London as a bride she vowed to accomplish this, but bets were 5 to 1 against her.

Society Leaders Resent Pictures.

Consternation is the only word that explains the feelings of several well known society leaders who recently discovered that photographs of their heads had been applied to pictures of ballet dancers and others in most undignified positions. Mrs. Marshall O'Roberts, Mrs. Walter Burns, Mrs. George Keppel, the marchioness of Dufferin and Alva Muriel Wilson, the duchess of Westminster and other young and pretty women have been subjected to the impertinence. It seems it was Mrs. Walter Burns who first made the discovery. Happening to go to the servants' hall one morning she found the housekeeper inspecting a number of these pictures which the butler had brought home. On being told there was "a lady" wonderfully like herself among them she became interested. It was a shock for her to find herself dancing the can-can. She promptly took the picture to her husband, who immediately set about tracing the publishers. When he did so he gave them a very bad hour. The story goes that he carried with him a horsewhip and would have used it energetically had it not been explained to him that the picture was never intended at all for his wife." "That is all right and highly satisfactory," he answered, "but I insist upon your withdrawing it from circulation." Which has been done. Others have followed up the course adopted by Mr. Walter Burns with the result that these obnoxious pictures are no longer published. When it was found that such things were on the market there was a wild rush for them. Later when they became scarce fancy prices were offered, some paying as much as a sovereign each for them.

Lady Gwen's Awkward Position.

Rarely has a bride-elect found herself in a more awkward position than that which confronts Lady Gwendoline Bertie on her marriage with Jack Churchill. Lady "Gwen" has always been a special favorite of the duchess of Marlborough, but it will be impossible for her to invite her grace to her wedding as some of the Churchill family are at daggers drawn with the duchess.

Jack Churchill and the duchess are on quite friendly terms, but his older brother, Winston, and their mother, Mrs. George West, are the bosom friends of the Duke of Marlborough and ever since the separation have sided absolutely with him. There is no actual enmity in this quarter, but they have let it be seen unmistakably that they are on the duke's side of The hedge. The duke has of late gone out of his way to honor Lady Randolph Churchill that was and she has been the order of the day during this summer. Lady Randolph, as her intimates still call her, has often acted as hostess for the duke at these gatherings. His mother, the marchioness of Blandford, is invariably conspicuous by her absence, though his sister, Norah, occasionally puts in an appearance. Lady Blandford still stands firmly by her daughter-in-law, the duchess and she will not be drawn from her side.

ABOUT THE BENDERS.

George Evans Downer of Chicago, is not the only man who claims to know what became of the Bender family of murderers, of Labrette county, Kansas, says the Denver Post.

When he made a deposition recently to the effect that the Benders were pursued and killed by a posse, he started a discussion and never-ending argument. Everybody in Kansas is talking about it, and whenever you meet a Kansan on the streets of Denver he doubtless will undertake to tell you some "inside history" concerning the notorious case.

It must be said, however, that Downer's lurid yarn is not generally credited.

He described the Bender girl, Kate, as a being of surpassing beauty. Now comes Former Policeman S. C. Carpenter, who was acquainted with Kate Bender, and who says she had features like a big raw-boned man and was about the ugliest mortal that ever crossed the plains. He also undertakes to knock on the head some vital points in the Downer narrative, notably that concerning the alleged escape of a woman who called at the Bender place.

Carpenter talked yesterday to a Post commissioner who also obtained a statement regarding the fate of the Benders from Capt. Charles Christy, an old scout of the early days.

Christy has information that the Benders were killed at a point about thirty miles from Camp Supply, Ind. T., on Red river, by a band of outlaws, who feared that if the family were found traveling with them they, as well as the Benders, would be hanged by indignant people.

"I remember when he was missing," says Carpenter, "and the commotion that was caused by the discovery of his body. I saw the eighteen men leave Independence to hunt for Dr. York, and they all rode horseback. For years I remembered their names, but with time comes forgetfulness. Besides Mr. York and Ed were John Debuler, William Wright, Joe Davis, Pat Bennett, Isaac Davis, known as 'Red,' a Mr. Brock, afterward elected sheriff of Montgomery county, and others not in my mind at the present time.

"I saw the seven murdered men and the little girl, as their bodies were taken up and laid near the house of the Bender ranch. All were taken from a small patch of broken ground south of the house. There had been a few fruit trees planted in the ground, but only for a blind to throw people off their guard. The house was about 14 by 26 feet—built on the plan of a country schoolhouse—the front facing north. A few shelves and a small amount of goods were in the front room. A curtain formed a bedroom on the east side of the inner part of the house, leaving a hall along the west side of the storeroom to the kitchen. In the kitchen was a bed, a cook stove, an old-fashioned dropleaf table and three or four chairs.

"Downer said a woman stopped there as she was peddling through the country. Queer place for a woman or any one else to try to peddle, for houses were miles apart. He says this woman became scared and took flight in the night without shoes or clothing and jumped in a creek running near the house, wading to her chin in water. He also says he afterward followed the creek to the Bender back door.

"The Bender ranch lay on a high table land or plateau, dry as the desert, and the nearest creeks were one seven miles south—called Drum creek—and one six miles east—called Big Hill creek. There was one ten miles west called the Verdigris river, so she had a pretty good run in her bare feet and all the way through sage brush and cactus.

"Downer said he watched Kate and John come out of the back door to the pump—there was no well or pump in the back yard; in fact, there was no pump on the place. North of the house was a main traveled road, and in front of the house, across the road, was a camping ground for people traveling by teams. In this camping ground was a well with a curb around it, and an iron wheel with a rope over it to hoist water in a bucket.

"I can yet look back and see the Benders in my mind's eye just as they looked, and I never thought old Bender was a weazened-looking man. To me he appeared a powerfully-built fellow. The old woman was very large, but somewhat stooped. Downer says Kate was a beautiful girl. Well, if so I am no judge of good looks, for I thought she was about as homely a mortal as ever crossed the plains. She had features like a big raw-boned man. She had no lady-like or refined appearance. John was more refined, and did not look like any of the rest.

"Downer says D. Avery was with him. Delos Avery lived within a block of us. He was a harnessmaker, working in Tom Harrison's harness shop, and I know he didn't even stop work to go to see the Bender burying ground.

"I saw the old Dutchman hanged that Mrs. Beard speaks about. He was not hanged by a vigilance committee, and was not left hanging. By the time all the dead were taken up there were thousands of people on the ground, and they became infuriated.

"The old Dutchman lived about a mile west of Bender's house. The crowd of people tried to make him tell something about the Benders. He said he had suspected all was not right, but he knew nothing about them.

"He was hanged to a crossbar on top of his big gateposts, and after a few seconds he was let down, but again protested his innocence, and was strung up again and left until unconscious. He was again let down, and after he had been revived was told to talk. He told the crowd he knew nothing about the Benders, but he asked them to not bring him to any more, and if they hanged him to leave him hanging. They then let him go.

"My brother wrote me a few years ago saying that William Wright was dead, and on his deathbed he said they killed the Benders and sunk their bodies in Trayer lake. Whether this is so or not I won t say, but I know William Wright was with the men who were hunting Dr. York.

"I agree with Col. York when he said that if a posse had killed the Benders there would have been no secret to keep, but it would have been a pleasure to tell it to the world."

"In the year 1874 I was scouting at Fort Griffin, Tex., and one of the scouts was with me on the trail of some horse thieves, under command of Lieut. Turner. This scout told me that he happened to fall in with a gang that belonged to the Bender family, and that one of the gang by the name of Payne Macon told Floyd, the scout, that they had killed the whole Bender family and buried them in the Indian Territory, and their outfit was burned and all the iron of the wagon was thrown in the creek.

"He told me he thought they were killed somewhere about thirty miles from Camp Supply, Ind. T., on Red River. The party said the reason they were killed was because they were afraid that the Bender family would be caught and implicate them in the murder and all would be killed. Therefore, I will concur and say that the Denver tale is ro more than a dream.

"To return to the horse thieves. We found them camped on a creek called Cano Blanco, near Elk River, northwest of Ft. Griffin. We saw a smoke rising from the canon at dusk, so we unsaddled our horses and let them graze. Before daylight we saddled up and reached the canon just at daybreak. The horse thieves were all asleep. Lieut. Turner ordered his troop to fire into the camp and every thief was killed, and Floyd, the scout, said to me: "That ends the murderers of the Bender family," and I believe to this day that Floyd knew the party and was one of them. Later Floyd was captured after stealing some horses and was hanged at Albany, Tex. Now, I am positive that that gang of horse thieves that were killed were the ones that put the Bender family out of the way to save their own scalps. Such is the story told me by Floyd as to what became of the Bender family. No wonder the people hunted so long to find them."

BREAKING IT GENTLY.

Chicago Record-Herald: "I understand, sir, that you are the possessor of a swollen fortune?"

"Well," gruffly answered the beautiful girl's father, "what is that to you?"

"I merely thought that I would give you due notice of my intention to help take the swelling out of it. Myrtle and I are going to be married."

A DRAMATIC SEASON

Charles A. Marshall Talks of the Lyceum Bookings. Fewer Shows and Longer Engagements Will Be the Rule—Some Good Attractions.

"Things theatrical are in a rather unsettled condition," said Charles A. Marshall, manager of the Lyceum theater, when asked for a forecast of the Duluth theatrical season.

"With the exception of about eight nights, exclusive of Sundays, the Lyceum is booked solid until Jan. 1. The Mack-Leone players will leave us after Aug. 29. They will be gone about three weeks, and will play in Calumet, Hancock, St. Paul and Minneapolis during that time. They will then return for a short engagement and leave on Nov. 1 for a trip to the coast. On Jan. 1, they will open in the new Colonial theater of Salt Lake City for an indefinite engagement. The theater is being built for them by John Cort.

"Our regular season will open on Aug. 31, with "Comin' Thro The Rye." This will be followed by the Jefferson boys and "The Honeymooners" for three nights, filling up the first week.

"On Sept. 7, 'The Clansman' will be here, followed by Chauncey Olcot, 'Lena Rivers,' 'Checkers' and James J. Corbett in 'Facing the Music.' We will later have 'The Great Divide,' 'The Man of The Hour' and a big production of 'Way Down East.'

"The policy this year will be to play longer engagements. 'The Man of The Hour' will play here a week, and so will 'Way Down East.' Shows which have played three nights will play four, and those which have played two nights and one night will play three. There won't be so many shows but the quality will be just as good and the theater will be open more nights.

"Duluth will have only two theaters this winter, the Lyceum and the Bijou. The city will be out of the burlesque wheel this year. Whether it will be back in the circuit next year or not, is a question which will have to be worked out.

"I think you will see a decline in the popularity of the little moving picture shows. The craze will run itself out. There may be one or two continue in business, but the number I think will diminish.

"On the whole, Duluth will fare pretty well in the amusement line. We are out of the way up here in Duluth. Many of the big shows swing along to the south of us and the expense of the Duluth trip is too heavy for them to stand. Until that condition is remedied and Duluth gets to be a bigger city or more big cities grow up around us, we are bound to miss some of the best road attractions.

"The Mack-Leone company, by the way, is going to give a special performance of 'The Middleman,' on either Aug. 28 or 29 for the benefit of the building fund of St. James' orphanage. The company will turn over its services free, and the theater will be given free of charge to the orphanage people."

AT THE LYCEUM

"In Old Kentucky," the old-new play, old in years of service but new in its potency to interest and charm playgoers of today, will be the attraction at the Lyceum Monday matinee and night.

Few plays have stood the test of time like this stirring and vigorous American drama of the blue grass state. Plays popular when "In Old Kentucky" first saw the light sixteen years ago, are forgotten almost by the theatergoers of 1908-09, but "In Old Kentucky" seems to have found the fountain of perpetual youth and season after season continues to attract generous support. In freshness, in charm, and in interest, it is an unusual play. It appeals to all classes of playgoers more forcefully than nine out of ten plays, and it holds its clientele, so to speak. The long life of the play is a tribute to a discriminating public that has not been deceived by unworthy productions or incompetent casts, for a wise management has never cheapened the offering as the years went by, but on the other hand has endeavored to always maintain a high standard of excellence with "In Old Kentucky." There is a mine of interesting features in the play. The little darkeys are an amusing part of the drama as presented, and although of a fresher vintage than the original colored lads, now grown up, who disported themselves in the original production, the present pickaninny contingent is equally as clever and as entertaining. There is an exciting race scene, an intense act laid away up in the Kentucky mountains, ending in a thrilling swing across a mountain pass, a realistic fire scene and enough other stirring episodes to "pad out" a dozen ordinary melodramas.

Litt & Dingwall, who control "In Old Kentucky," are said to have found an unusually capable and talented young actress in the person of Miss Olive Skinner for the role of the mountain heroine, "Madge Brierly," for this season's tour, and Bert G. Clark and Charles K. French are still appearing as "The Colonel" and "Uncle Web," in which they are famous the country over.

"A DIPLOMATIC TANGLE."

A Three-Act Comedy of Washington Society Life.

The Mack-Leone players will present all next week, commencing Tuesday, Richard Hodge's "A Diplomatic Tangle." The play is a story of Washington society life and is laid along the same lines as "The Man On the Box," revolving around a case of mistaken identity. The play was first presented in the National theater, Washington, D. C., with Percy Haswell, Guy Standing, W. F. Ferguson and others of prominence. The production will be on the usual Mack-Leone elaborate scale and as the play contains many funny situations, it should be one of the best comedies this company has yet played.

The production will be held under the auspices of the Normanna Male chorus, which will render selections between the acts, but will take no part in the play itself. The songs to be rendered at this engagement are characteristic of the far north, written by such well known composers as Grieg, Sinding, Kjerulf, Ressinger, Paulsen and others.

Lyceum Notes.

The name Jefferson and the fame of Richard Brinsley Sheridan's fine old classical comedy, "The Rivals," are inseparably linked together. William W., internationally famous as "Bob Acres" is warmer hearted and more charmingly vain and swaggery than even the author could wish; and Joseph, as "Sir Lucius O'Trigger," is repeating the success his impersonations won years ago, when he succeeded the late W. J. Florence. Their supporting company includes a metropolitan cast of particular brilliance. The Jeffersons and "The Rivals" comes to the Lyceum in the near future.

• • •

"Facing the Music" is the title of the play in which James J. Corbett will star this season. It is said to be a highly amusing comedy, with a part worthy of the best efforts of any legitimate comedian. Mr. Corbett is delighted with it, and his manager, H. H. Frazee, has surrounded him with a particularly capable company, including Joseph Sullivan and Miss Eleanor Montell, the latter an actress of marked ability. "Facing the Music" will be one of the attractions at the Lyceum in September.

"The Call of the North" Miss Beatrice Prentice, who supported Dustin Farnum in "The Ranger" last season.

When the "Paid in Full" company opens at Weber's in New York on Aug. 17, an entirely new scenery and property outfit will be used. Four companies are soon to go on the road in this play, and in addition its London opening is announced at the Hicks theater on Sept 8.

• • •

Mme. Emma Calve will again be under John Cort's management during her American tour of thirty concerts, which begins at Quebec on Oct. 9.

• • •

The engagement of Robert Mantell in New York will begin with "King John," and will be marked by his first appearance as Louis XI, and as Wolsey in "King Henry VIII." Bertuccio, in "The Fool's Revenge," and Sil Giles, in a condensed version of "A New Way to Pay Old Debts," will both be taken up by him, in the form of a "double bill," and he will realize his desire to play Sir Pertinax Macsycophant in Macklin's "The Man-of-the-World." Next May a tour that will take Mr. Mantell by way of Australia, New Zealand and South Africa to London, has been arranged, andhe hopes in the last-named city to and he hopes in the last-named city to and Macbeth, also, will be seen in London.

• • •

Miss Ethel Barrymore is still in Paris with her brother Lionel, but she will return to begin her tour in W. S. Maugham's comedy, "Lady Frederick," at Albany, Sept. 17. Bruce McRae returns to Miss Barrymore's company as leading man.

• • •

As co-star with a well-known London actor-manager, Miss Phoebe Davies will begin her tour about mid-December, in "Mrs. Tantalus," a comedy, by Addison Enright, purchased by her while in London. This will mark her first appearance in another character since, in 1897, she first took the role of the heroine in "'Way Down East.'

• • •

"The Richest Girl," Miss Marie Doro's play for next season, written in collaboration by Caillavet and Morton, a French and an English playwright, was finished and delivered to Charles Frohman, Caillavet doing the Paris scenes and Morton the English, without enther writer seeing the other.

• • •

David Warfield has returned from Europe and it is now planned by Mr. Belasco to begin his tour at Denver a week from Monday. Thence he goes to San Francisco for a five weeks' engagement at the new Alcazar theater. The tour will then continue leisurely to New York, by way of Los Angeles, Omaha, and other Western cities. Mr.

AT THE BIJOU

Roland West and Company Will be the Feature of One of the Best Bills of the Season.

The Bijou management has one of the best shows of the season to offer next week. As a headline attraction the clever actor, Roland West, who is one of America's best known stars, will appear. Mr. West is now making a tour in vaudeville and with an excellent company of players is presenting his biggest success in vaudeville, entitled "The Criminal," a sketch with seven different characters. The scene is laid in Boyd's office, in the county jail, New York, 1897. Mr. West has presented this famous sketch in all the principal theaters of the country and it has been a record breaker.

An act that deserves considerable mention is Miss Grace Leonard, who styles herself "The Ideal Boy." She is recognized as the American Vesta Tilley. Miss Leonard has an act that is new to vaudeville and one that is different from all others.

The Havelocks have an up-to-date juggling novelty, entitled "Fun at a 5 o'Clock Tea," which is one of the best juggling acts before the public.

A lively sketch will be presented by Noble and Brooks, entitled "The Cuban Millionaire," which offers twenty minutes of solid laughter.

As an extra feature and one that surpasses all others in its line will be Hill and Sylvianna, who perform one of the most sensational and daring unicycle acts ever attempted by any riders.

Isadore Silver will sing a new illustrated song entitled "What Will Your Answer Be?"

The moving pictures for the week will be a comedy picture entitled "It Smells Like Smoke," and a beautiful picture story entitled "The Story of the Fishermaiden."

Matinees are given daily at 2:45 p. m. and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either telephone.

JOYLAND ON THE POINT

Series of Band Concerts Will be Brought to a Close Sunday---Some Good Feature Attractions Secured.

Tomorrow at Joyland on the Point, at 3 and 8:30 p. m., the concerts given by the Third Regiment band will be brought to a close, and choice programs will be rendered.

Good crowds have been in attendance and the series of concerts have been most enjoyable. Director Flaaten has a happy style of conducting, and a smile that won't come off, which makes him popular with an audience at once.

The program will consist of light and airy marching rag time melodies and plenty of free seats will be provided. In addition to the band concerts, Mr. Otto Jeancon from the "Yankee Regent" company will sing a new Eastern hit, and Donnie Clark will appear in his imitations of Harry Louder, the famous Scotch comedian. "Marveious Johnson," late of the Hippodrome, New York, will appear on the flying trapeze in feats of head, chair and table balancing.

A sensational feature will be the first appearance in Duluth of "Bunko," the highest diving dog flying today. Bunko is the only dog in the world which, unassisted and without coaxing or threats, climbs to the summit of a sixty-foot ladder and at the word of command, leaps to a net below.

The crowning feature of this big day at Joyland will be the balloon ascension and parachute jump by Bedella, Frank Bostock's $5,000 trained monkey, who during the afternoon will ascend to a height of 1,000 feet, and will make the big jump in her new red, white and blue parachute to the ground.

Tonight national airs will be played at the concert and the usual Saturday night dance will be given at the pavilion.

MINNESOTA'S STATE FAIR

MAIN OR EXPOSITION BUILDING MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

THE MANUFACTURER'S BUILDING, MINNESOTA STATE FAIR.

VIEWS OF STATE FAIR GROUNDS

To the casual visitor at the Minnesota state fair, which is to be held this year Aug. 31 to Sept. 5, one of the big "sights" is the crowded grandstand along the home stretch of the world's record mile track. A racing program, the purses for which aggregate $32,000, is supplemented by a long program of stellar vaudeville and circus features, which program is repeated in the evening, following which the grandstand patrons are treated to the great historical spectacle "Fort Ridgely in '62" with cast of 300 Indians and 600 white men, following which there will be each evening a $1,000 display of Gregory's reworks. On Saturday, Sept. 5, the fast racing machines of the country, and the fastest automobile amateurs of the Northwest will compete for prizes and participate in a special program arranged for what has now become an annual event, "automobile day."

The Minnesota state fair grandstand seats nearly 40,000, and with ordinary weather conditions is crowded each afternoon and evening of the fair in spite of the fact that large additions to the seating capacity have been made each year. This year the management is making a special endeavor to again test the capacity of this greatest grandstand between Chicago and the Pacific coast.

Although the hanging up of $32,000 in speed purses will have a tendency to center interest among horsemen in the sport of kings, there will be many thousands of those in attendance upon the state fair who are primarily interested in draft horse breeding, or who love a horse purely for the horse's sake, regardless of his speed qualities. The exhibition of high grade Percherons, Clydesdales, Normans, and other breeds of the draft class will therefore be of especial interest to a large percentage of the state fair patrons, and Geo. Atchison, superintendent of the horse department, says that in quality and number of the entries, the horse show at the Minnesota state fair this year will be greater than ever.

One of the most modern, most convenient and most popular of the many new buildings on the grounds is the manufacturers' building, which was last year especially devoted to an exhibition of the industries of Red Wing. The business men of St. Paul were to make a similar exhibit in the manufacturers' building this year, but the destruction of the old women's building left the women's exhibit without a home. The St. Paul people cheerfully waived their right to the building this year, and it will be devoted to the women's exhibits and to the educational exhibits, making a combination which those who are interested in home arts and sciences and in public school education, will find it difficult to resist.

Demonstration that the state of Minnesota is rapidly becoming a great live stock producer is made each year by the exhibitors who enter their choicest herds of fancy Hereford, Short Horn, Guernsey, Holstein, Aberdeen Angus, Jersey and other breeds of registered cattle. Thousands of dollars are expended each year in premiums for these exhibitors, and even those who are not particularly interested in this rapidly developing industry are glad to make a journey through the immense barns especially built to house these exhibits, and are interested and delighted in the big live stock parades which are among the most attractive events on the week's program. Each day of the coming state fair, the mammoth live stock pavilion will be the scene of auctions sales of registered cattle during which thousands of dollars will change hands, and among the several special features for this year will be a horse show and hippodrome each evening in this pavilion, during which there will be ample opportunity to see the bluest blooded of the blue ribbon live stock on parade.

One of the several changes made in the established custom by the board of managers has been the removal from the main or exposition building of the many salesman, venders, and concessionaires, who have formerly been given permission to cry their wares in the aisles of this largest of several exposition buildings on the state fair grounds. In former years the sale of these privileges has netted the state fair management some $3,000 or $4,000 annually, but in behalf of the larger exhibitors who have the booths beneath the dome and in the four wings of this building, the management has cleared the aisles for this season in return for which the exhibitors in the booths are paying a nominal rent. With two exceptions every booth in the building has been rented for the season, and prospective exhibitors have options on the other two. The public is interested in these changes because the new order of things will afford a much greater opportunity to examine the many exhibits which for artistic worth and educational value cannot be equaled in detail or in total at any educational and amusement institution of the Northwest.

HOLDING UP A TRAIN.

Among the new and varied scenes which will be depicted with Buffalo Bill's Wild West, which is coming to Duluth soon, is one showing the various stages of Far Western development and "The Great Train Hold-Up."

The depredations of train robbing outlaws have been a constant menace to the advance of civilization in the settlement of the prairies. With the advance of time their occupation has been made so hazardous through the viligance of railroad officials and the methods employed for their capture and punishment that train hold-ups are now, fortunately, few and far between. Along the line of the Union Pacific and its tributary roads, train-robbing has become almost a thing of the past. This state of affairs has been brought about by the good work of the "Bandit Hunters of the Union Pacific," a body of men experienced in "roughing it" and familiar with men and country, where bandits were won't to thrive. These avengers of lawlessness are provided with a special car in which their horses are stabled, ammunition is stored and all is held in readiness for immediate action in case of need. Col. Cody has prepared for his Wild West exhibition a reproduction of one of the typical train hold-ups, which were formerly a frequent occurrence. Science has provided him with a practical train, drawn by a practical engine, and the scene painter has created a rugged mountain scene, in which to present the melodrama. The maneuvers of the bandits in stopping and robbing the train are shown in detail and the arrival of "The Bandit Hunters of the Union Pacific" gives an idea of the quick vengeance which is meted out to the lawless in the still sparsely settled West. Coincident with presentations of "The Great Train Hold-Up" will be shown "The Battle of Summit Springs," as the chief feature with the Wild West. There will also be shown "A Holiday at T-E Ranch," in which the life of the plainsman is reflected, and the dangers attendant upon pioneering will be set forth graphically in "The Attack On An Emigrant Train." These Western scenes will form only a part of Buffalo Bill's entertainment. There will be rough riding, military displays and exhibitions of horsemanship, which are shown in no other entertainment now before the amusement-loving public.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Reports Irregular With the Net Results Encouraging.

New York, Aug. 15.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly Review of Trade says: Trade reports continue irregular with pronounced gains in some sections and no improvement in others, the net result being encouraging however and sentiment regarding the future growth more confident each week. Steel demand is steadily broadening, each week bringing a larger percentage of active capacity and the improvement is especially gratifying in some orders from the railroads. Export contracts are recorded in every department of the industry, from pig iron to steel rails and further improvement in this respect is also anticipated. Sales of pig iron are made for delivery during the first half of next year, and some coke ovens have also received orders covering the same period, while there is a larger movement of ore down the lakes. The lighter lines of steel continue most actively engaged, notably wire products, pipe and plates.

Textile market have been dominated this week by the second big auction sale, buyers either devoting attention to seeking bargains there or awaiting the effect on general markets. A large attendance of outside jobbers and retailers at the auction promises business is regular departments next week, although many come only to specialize in this particular line. Reports from visiting jobbers indicate low stocks of some goods but abundant supplies in other lines, which makes the outlook uncertain. Prices are almost nominal in consequence except on cash transactions for current needs, which are necessarily limited. Many cotton mills will be idle next week, pending a more definite tendency in the market. Aside from small sales of light weight sheetings to Australia, export trade is stagnant. As to woolen goods the market for men's wear is now fully opened, the feature of the past week being the offering of fancy worsteds.

For the first time this year shipments of boots and shoes from Boston were almost as large as in the corresponding week of last year. It is also gratifying to note that contracts increase, despite the fact that there are practically no buyers in the Boston market. Hence the increase is in mail orders and comes chiefly from Western wholesalers. Leather is quiet but firmly held and sales would be larger if supplies of heavy sole were more plentiful.

Something new in the way of a popular price attraction is now being rehearsed by Howard Hall of the Howard Hall Amusement company. The play is called "The Wall Street Detective," and was written by Mr. Hall himself. In its writing Mr. Hall says it has been his purpose to turn out something that would do its share toward turning the tide of lovers of melodrama back into the popular price houses. He feels that melodrama of the recent past has gone too far, and that in "The Wall Street Detective" the public will witness a new departure in this class of attractions. Mr. Hall will assume three different characters in the play; a broker, an English nobleman, and an Italian. The play will open at the Fourteenth Street theater, Boston, on Aug. 17.

In the introduction of Francis Vigneron Weaver as a vaudeville attraction next week some interesting results are promised. It is a bit of a novelty to have the piano treated seriously in such entertainments and Mr. Weaver's skill as a player will be given a test that has never before been presented his fellow artists on a variety stage. Mr. Weaver belongs to one of the old Huguenot families of France and has inherited the artistic tendencies of his ancestors. Although he has been blind from childhood, he has overcome all the obstacles incident to his infirmity and mastered his profession without asking consideration for his disability. He has a repertory of classical selections which he has in most cases memorized, as to notes and expression, from a single reading by his assistant. Although still in his twenties he has, in addition to his musical studies, made himself acquainted with the best literature and is so well up in history and other studies that he is a charming conversationalist and delightful companion.

Writing from the manager's office of the Garrick theater, Chicago, to the dramatic editor of Record-Herald, Eugene Walter, author of "Paid in Full" and "The Wolf," remarks in expostulation:

"Somewhere in the wilderness of brick, asphalt and mortar of some big city, struggling through the intricate paths of journalistic demand, there must be another Eugene Walter, fair-haired, incompetent and with an impediment in his speech—a young man with a great deal of inherent force, a latent power that is quite irresistible, and a predilection for the fascination of Socialistic doctrines. This must be so, because J. M. Allison says it's so. While I do not know Mr. Allison personally, I am assured by his friends that he is a man of unimpeachable veracity. In a very beautiful tribute which he wrote for your paper he describes me as having been a reporter on the Cincinnati Enquirer when he occupied an executive position on the staff.

"I am very sorry to say that I never worked on the Cincinnati Enquirer. I am not fair-haired and as far as having an impediment in my speech, my friends find the fault that I talk too much. Seven or eight years ago I undoubtedly might have pleaded guilty to Socialistic tendencies. Socialism today affects the youth of the country much the same as the measles. Nearly every boy gets it, but most of them get over it.

"As for his accusation of my being a bad reporter I gracefully bow in humble acquiescence. My career in the newspaper world is one of particular and peculiar distinction. I have worked on twelve papers, covering the territory from Seattle to New York, and I never suffered the cruel pain of modesty and regret contingent upon tendering my resignation. Every city editor for whom I have worked always had that sense of delicacy—a sympathetic and telepathic intuiton that I desired to be on my way—and told me first that the psychological moment to move had arrived. I thank Mr. Allison for his kind words, and I hold out my hand to encourage the youth with the fair hair, the impediment in his speech and the power that everyone felt but the city editor. Faithfully yours,

"EUGENE WALTER."

MINNESOTA CREWS WIN

Representatives of St. Paul Boat Club Take Two Events.

Intermediate Eight Has a Hard Race With Detroit.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 15.—The seven races rowed on the Connecticut yesterday on the first day of the national regatta were almost all hotly contested. The honors of the day, as far as clubs were concerned, rested with the Minnesota Boat club of St. Paul, which captured the intermediate fours and eights; the St. Mary's Athletic association of Halifax, N. S., which won the association singles and the senior international fours, the West Philadelphia Boat club, whose oarsmen finished ahead in the intermediate double sculls, and the intermediate pairs; and the Springfield Boat club, whose pair, Bennett and Warneck, won in the senior doubles.

It was expected that the association singles would prove the feature of the day, but John O'Neill of Halifax had no difficulty in keeping ahead of his four competitors after the turn was made.

The senior double sculls, the international fours and the intermediate eights, furnished the principal excitement of the afternoon.

Four crews started in the senior doubles, the Springfield, the New York Athletic club, the St. Alphonso of Boston and the St. Louis. The start was a good one and for the first quarter the New York team lead by a length. Springfield was strong, but Warnock began to break at the brush and Bennett won the race practically alone, by ten feet.

The senior international double sculls was pulled a straightaway, the crews starting far down the river. St. Mary's led by a scant length at the half, with Minnesota, Vesper and New York making a grand fight for second place. St. Mary's spurted and at the line managed to open up clear water ahead of the other, but a good sized blanket could have been spread over Minnesota, Vesper and New York.

The intermediate eight-oared race was practically a double event with Minnesota and Detroit fighting it out for first place and the local Rock Rimmon crew struggling with the youngsters of the Boston Athletic association for third position. At the finish Minnesota had a lead of less than a length over Detroit, while Rock Rimmon was half a length over Boston.

The best filled event of the day was the intermediate double sculls, eight pairs getting away at the gun. The first half was a pretty contest between West Philadelphia, Nassau and New Rochelle. Coming home Philadelphia drew away and crossed the line rowing easily, although behind New Rochelle, Nassau and the New York Athletic crews had a hot fight for place, finally crossing in the order named.

The river conditions were matchless, while the weather was warm enough to suit all spectators.

C. S. WILSON, IN THE CAR IN WHICH HE MADE HIS RUN FROM DETROIT TO DULUTH.

A run of 1,386 miles from Detroit to Duluth via Chicago without an accident except two tire punctures, in a little more than a week, was the record made by City Attorney C. S. Wilson and party last week, in Mr. Wilson's big six-cylinder, 75-horse power Welch car, with Mr. Wilson at the wheel. Mr. Wilson's driver accompanied him, but did none of the driving on the road. Mrs. Wilson and Charlotte Wilson made up the rest of the regular party of four, but during a large part of the journey the car was loaded to its limit of seven passengers.

The remarkable part of the trip, says Mr. Wilson, was the excellence of the roads from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Duluth. They shipped the car to Pontiac, Mich., about twenty-five miles from Detroit, and were dreading the run from the Twin Cities here on the return as the worst part of the trip. Instead of finding this to be the case, however, they found the roads from St. Paul to Duluth to be the best they encountered. The route they took required 198 miles of running. They left Minneapolis at 7 o'clock in the morning last Monday and drew up in front of Mr. Wilson's home at Lester Park at 5:45 that evening, spending an hour for lunch. The roads, owing to the long dry spell, were excellent, and while Mr. Wilson does not recommend attempting the run after wet weather, he says there are no better roads in the country in the condition they were in last Monday. This means that they made the trip in little less than ten hours actual runnig time, and Mr. Wilson says that they made no effort to smash records.

The first day of the run was from Detroit to White Pidgeon, Mr. Wilson's boyhood home, 152 miles. Spending Sunday in White Pidgeon, they drove to Chicago next day, another run of 152 miles. Tuesday afternoon they drove to Milwaukee, 103 miles. The next day's run was from Milwaukee to Madison, 96 miles, and on Thursday they drove from Madison to La Crosse, a distance of 169 miles, over the worst roads of the trip. Here the hills were so steep that the water spilled out of the radiator top, and in spite of brakes and reverses, the car coasted slightly on the grades.

Friday the party drove from La Crosse to Faribault, a distance of eighty miles, making the run in the morning. The afternoon they spent in Faribault, and here sustained the first accident, a puncture. The next was in Minneapolis, where they spent Sunday, coming to Duluth on Monday.

LINING UP CANDIDATES

Duluth Will Have Great Football Team This Year.

Coach Colton Expects to Sweep the State Easily.

Coach Chauncey C. Colton of the Duluth Central high school football team is busy lining up his men for the coming season and as soon as school starts, the candidates for the team will be trotted out to Athletic park and put through their paces in preparation for the hardest season a high school football team has had in Duluth in a good many years.

Duluth will have a football team this year that the supporters now expect will sweep the state without any trouble. The only men of last year's star lineup to be lost are Coventry, Caulkins and Paine. Helmer who played guard last year, will be moved to center and he will fill Coventry's place acceptably. Jefferson, who showed good form last year, will be used at tackle and Pat Boyle, who played two years on the Indianapolis Mechanic Arts team will go to high school here and will play quarter, replacing Caulkins. Boyle is a man of about 160 pounds and he is expected to make the hardest quarter Duluth ever had.

The backfield will be unchanged, with Cook at full and Cummings and Bowen as halves. Ostergren and McFadden, who both played last year, will take care of the ends and Bill Crawford and Jefferson will be in the tackle positions.

The new suits for the boys have arrived and the boys will be well equipped in that respect this year. The suits will be paid for by subscription and no trouble is expected in raising the necessary amount of money. With an early start in practice and good coaching, the boys expect to defeat everything for Duluth this year.

It will take a train of flat cars and an extra engine to bring "Tad" Langford and "Jim" Denegre of St. Paul home from the effete East, and the "Junk" will follow on a special.

Langford is the coach of the Minnesota Boat club, an old college oarsman, and Denegre is the father confessor of the club and also an old oarsmen himself. The two never fail to attend a regatta, and there is nobody who likes to win a race quite so well as Langford, unless it is Denegre. St. Paul, two years ago, was given the treatment that Duluth received this year, and did not win a race at Minnetonka. Last year they made a better showing at White Bear lake, and this year at Winnipeg they swept everything before them. Now they have grabbed the highest honors open to amateur oarsmen outside of the colleges in this country by winning the intermediate eight-oared race at the national regatta at Springfield yesterday. The junior crew, by its victory at Winnipeg, was made an intermediate crew for the remainder of the year, becoming a senior eight next year. If the St. Paul senior eight does as well today in the senior eight-oared race, the St. Paul oarsmen will probably bring back small sections of the town of Springfield as souvenirs.

The Duluth men are also much pleased at the outcome. It verifies a sneaking suspicion they held that they were defeated by a very fast crew at Winnipeg, and outside of this fact, the St. Paul men proved themselves good sportsmen. The victory demonstrates conclusively the fact that the crews entered in the Minnesota and Northwest Canada regatta are as fast as any in the country, with the possible exception of the college crews entered in the New London and Poughkeepsie races. The Minnesota men got everything they went after on the first day, with the exception of the senior double sculls in which they drew second place with five crews entered. They won the two big events, the eight and four-oared races.

BALLOON IN GOOD FLIGHT

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 15.—The balloon North Adams No. 1, with A. D. Potter of Greenfield as pilot and A. Holland Forbes and daughter, Natalie, aged 12 years, as passengers, and owned by the North Adams Aero club, undoubtedly won the cup offered by Mr. Forbes in the first point to point race ever held in this country. The race was started from North Adams yesterday afternoon. The North Adams No. 1 landed at 2:50 o'clock on the farm of Lyman Sander at West Whateley, about five miles from its previously declared destination, Haydenville. This was the first balloon to get away, starting at 1 o'clock. The Greylock, owned and piloted by Dr. Roger M. Randall of North Adams, and having Clarence Wildman of this city as passenger, landed at 2:30 o'clock at the Bryant farm in Ashfield, fully twelve miles from its desired destination, Leeds.

The third balloon to start, the Heart of the Berkshires, owned by the Aero club of Pittsfield, was also the last to land, coming down at 3:40 o'clock at Amherst with 6¾ miles of Whateley station, its destination.

The conditions of the race were that, previous to the race, the occupants of the balloons should designate some place at least thirty miles from North Adams, where they would attempt to land, that they should land within ten miles of the postoffice of the place, and that the balloon landing nearest the announced destination should win the cup. Further, the winner should hold himself open for six months to a challenge for the defense of the cup.

Charles J. Glidden of Boston was to have made the fourth competitor with the balloon Boston, owned by the Aero club of New England, and having as passengers Mrs. Helm Clayton, wife of the meteorologist of the Blue Hill observatory. Mr. Glidden did not desire to start until late in the afternoon, but the committee decided that the contestants must be ready to start at 1 o'clock. Mr. Glidden would not consent to go up at that time, so he was disqualified from competing.

The sky was cloudless and a light wind of about six miles an hour was blowing when Mayor F. D. Stafford gave the word for the North Adams No. 1 to start.

As each balloon got away, it ascended to about 3,000 feet without veering much from a vertical line and then floated lazily away to the eastward.

The landings were made without incident and all the contestants declared the trip a splendid one in every respect.

NOTES OF PUGILISM

Terry Mustain, a light heavyweight who has been showing pretty good form of late, meets Joe Willis of Valley for a twenty-round bout at the latter city Aug. 16. A Sunday afternoon contest.

* * *

Tommy Murphy has made over $20,000 since he has been in the ring. He has a beautiful home at Flatbush, also where he lives with his wife—also chickens. Murphy purchased a home for his parents with the money he has earned in the ring and still has a snug little bank account.

* * *

Since Leach Cross has been in the ring he has made $5,300, the biggest purse he received being $867 when he fought Dick Hyland at the Grand Union club. Cross was knocked out twice, once by Jack Doyle and once by Frankie Madden. He also lost a decision to Jack Goodman.

* * *

Kid Murphy is on the job again. This time the Kid wants to get Young Britt in the ring with him, thinking he is entitled to get first chance since he beat Britt in four rounds. The Kid is in business at 401 Lamberton street, Trenton, N. J. Watch the mail now, Kid.

* * *

Jack Caley, the well known Portland, Me., promoter, has postponed his Rochester, N. H., meeting until race week, which comes late in August. In the meantime Caley is willing to match his man Tom Sawyer against Jack Killeen, the Irish champion, or any of these 150 pounders.

* * *

Billy Neall, lookout man for Tommy Burns, is slowly dying of consumption in Los Angeles. Neall was to have joined Burns in Australia and look after Tommy's business, but he admits he has not long to live and the news will hit Burns pretty hard when he hears of it.

* * *

The clubs find it pretty hard to get good preliminary bouts just now. The boys have formed a sort of boxers' union, having become tired of being handed anything that came in the promoters' minds for their services. In most cases the preliminary boys have made better bouts than those staged for the feature event.

* * *

The board of supervisors of San Francisco granted the October fight permit to the Pacific Athletic club, of which Luke Marisch is manager, and for November to Jack Gleason's Occidental Athletic club. The December date will very likely be given the Aerial Rowing club.

* * *

Rudolph Unholz, who made such a miserable showing in his six-round bout with Fighting Dick Hyland, will probably not get another chance to fight a main bout at any of the clubs, as every club matchmaker who saw him perform announced after that bout that he would not think of putting him on in a star bout. Unholz says he has made close to $8,000 fighting this year.

* * *

Eddie Graney, who refereed many important fights out in California and then quit the business, has practically been selected to referee the lightweight championship fight between Joe Gans and Battling Nelson at Jim Corbett's open-air fight club at Colma, Cal., on Admission day, Sept. 9. Ben Selig, manager of Gans, has agreed to Graney, and Willus Britt, manager of Nelson, is also in favor of him.

HIBBING WINS IN ELEVEN INNINGS

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Coleraine team, with Freeman pitching, gave Hibbing a close argument yesterday afternoon, and it took Brady's men eleven innings to win by a score of 7 to 6. Gilligan and Freeman were both hit hard, but they were good in pinches, and the game was interesting for the spectators.

GRAND CIRCUIT MEET.

Track Heavy and Slow on First Day of Buffalo Meet.

Buffalo, Aug. 15.—After having been postponed three times because of rain, the grand circuit meeting opened yesterday at Kenilworth park. The weather was favorable, but the track was heavy and slow. The attendance was very small. The three races on the card were stake events. The feature was the Dominion of Canada 2:11 pace for $5,000. Seven horses started and Fel, the Canadian favorite, took the event in straight heats. He paced the second heat in 2:06¼. Spanish Queen, the winner of the Merchants' & Manufacturers' stake at Detroit won the 2:24 trot in straight heats. Copa d'Oro, the California horse, won the 2:06 pace. The first two heats he took handily. Darkey Hal took the third heat. Major Mallow won the last heat, Copa d'Oro finishing third, after getting away last.

FLANAGAN MAKES RECORD.

Queenstown, Aug., 15.—John Flanagan, Irish-American Athletic club, while giving an exhibition on the Promenade Quay here Thursday night, threw the 16-pound hammer from a 9-foot circle for a distance of 181 feet, 8 inches. This breaks all previous records and particularly the one made by M. J. McGrath, New York A. C., at the Gaelic Athletic meeting held at Nenagh, Aug. 9. McGrath then threw the hammer a distance of 176 feet. Flanagan's previous record was 175 feet, 11-3 inches.

DRAWINGS ARE MADE.

Several Champions Pitted Against Each Other at Newport...

Newport, R. I., Aug. 15.—The drawings for the national lawn tournament at the Casino here, beginning Aug. 18, were made public yesterday by the officials of the United States Lawn Tennis association. The entrants aggregate 145. In only a few cases are players of acknowledged championship material pitted against each other in the opening round. Among them are R. D. Little vs. W. J. Clothier, R. L. Agassiz vs. Charles E. Sands, T. R. Pell vs. J. S. Jones and B. C. Wright vs. M. J. Chase.

EASY FOR WELSH.

Los Angeles, Aug. 15.—Freddie Welsh, the English lightweight champion, was awarded the decision over Johnny Murphy of San Francisco at the end of the twenty-fifth round in the Jeffries A. C., at Vernon last night. The fight afforded the greatest exhibition of gameness ever seen in a local ring. Murphy reeling through fifteen rounds in a groggy condition under a rain of blows that cut his lips and nose to ribbons and closed both eyes.

KING JAMES WINS.

Saratoga, Aug. 15.—King James easily won the handicap at one mile at Saratoga yesterday. He ran the distance in 1:38 flat, which is the fastest mile of the meeting. Sir John Johnson and Royal Tourist raced close together until the stretch was reached when King James came strong under a drive, took the lead and won easily by four lengths.

EASTERNERS WIN.

Wright and Little Defeat Emerson and Wardner in Tennis Doubles.

New York, Aug. 15.—The Eastern champion pair in tennis doubles, Beals C. Wright of Boston and Raymond D. Little of New York, earned the right yesterday to challenge Hackett and Alexander, the national champions in doubles and will play them for the national championship in the tournament at Newport, R. I., to begin Aug. 18.

Wright and Little won this right by beating the Western doubles champions, Nat Emerson of Cincinnati and Louis H. Waidner of Chicago in the second round of the national lawn tennis doubles preliminary. They won in straight sets, 7-6, 6-4, 6-3. The Westerners proved formidable opponents and the Easterners were forced to play their utmost throughout the match.

KELLY IS AFTER MORE

Burns Would be Favorite for Fight With Ketchel.

Milwaukee, Aug. 15.—Hugo Kelly, the Chicago middleweight, like Billy Papke, is after another battle with Stanley Ketchel, not being satisfied with his knockout at the hands of Ketchel last week at San Francisco. Kelly was put to sleep in the third round, while Papke went the ten rounds with Ketchel in Milwaukee and lost the decision. In the battle with Papke the Grand Rapids boy nearly put Billy out in the first round, but Papke's wonderful endurance and recuperative powers enabled him to go the ten rounds. In the case of Kelly the latter set the pace for the first two rounds and really had the best of the going, but he bumped into three straight lefts in the third round, and that ended the battle, for Hugo could not respond. Kelly claims that the straight lefts he was caught with were the result of a sudden shift on the part of Ketchel, and that he was caught off his guard. He is liable to be caught the same way again should they meet. The trouble is that the Ketchel boy is a remarkable fighter, and is away better than most of the fighters imagine.

He is not only clever in a way, but he carries a knockout punch in either hand—something that very few of them have. Ketchel has a peculiar shift when fighting that puzzles his opponents and he makes good use of it. He also has a habit of leading with his left and then following with his right and still again with his left, so that should he miss the first one he is very liable to connect with either one in the follow-up.

He is certainly entitled to the crown worn by Bob Fitzsimmons—the middleweight championship—but the indications are that he will have to go out of the middleweight class before long and enter the light heavyweight, or become an out and out heavyweight.

Should he do this he will go after a match with Tommy Burns for the championship of the world, and there are several clubs in the Far West only too anxious to bid for a match of that kind; in fact, they would prefer it to a match between Burns and Jack Johnson. Ketchel and Burns on the coast would pack any arena that could be secured. It would be a great match, but at this time Burns would no doubt have the call in the betting.

Stanley has defeated all the legitimate middleweights and will have to give away weight now if he wants matches, unless he goes into the heavyweight class. On Labor day Ketchel is matched to again meet Papke at Los Angeles, and the dope says he should win. If he does win, Hugo Kelly will no doubt endeavor to get a return bout also.

JONES' PLACE HARD TO FILL

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 15.—Yale's football candidates will report for practice on Sept. 15. Coaches L. H. Biglow, captain of last year's team; "Tad" Jones all-American quarterback, and Capt. Robert B. Burch of Cincinnati will be in charge of the work. From last year's team Yale loses Quarterback Jones; tackles, Biglow and Paige; ends, Alcott and Jones; Bomar, right halfback; Dines, substitute quarterback, and E. C. Congdon, center. The regular players remaining are W. A. Goebel and Carroll Cooney, guards; Fred Murphy and Arthur E. Brides, halbacks; E. H. Coy, fullback. The greatest work will be to train a quarterback to take Jones' place, and the candidates will be Kilpatrick, fullback, and captain of last fall's freshman team; Fred Daley, the Andover captain two years ago; Steve Philbin, substitute halfback last year, and H. M. Wheaton, also a substitute.

Andrus and Hobbs, relegated to the second team last year on account of their studies, will probably take the places of Biglow and Paige. Capt. Burch will take Alcott's place at right end, and Logan or Haines, formerly of Andover, will be on left end. Coy will be back at fullback, and Murphy will be one of the halves, with Brides at the other, if he does not go back to guard. Cooney will leave the position of left guard to go to center again.

WOLVINS VS. BOARD.

The Board of Trade and Wolvin building teams will meet this afternoon in the most important game of the Commercial league season. The game will be played after the regular game at Athletic park and will start about 4:45 p. m. The Wolvins will tie the grain men in the race for Commercial league honors if they win. If the Board wins, there will be nothing to it but the Board of Trade for the championship.

The teams will line up as follows:

Board of Trade.	Position.	Wolvins.
Withrow	c	Staudt
Murphy	p	Lowe
Falk	1b	Loranger
Pease	2b	Powers
McCauley	ss	Stevens
Sellers	3b	O'Donnell

SHOOTERS WILL HOLD TOURNEY

Central Gun Club Will Invite Cracks to Shoot Soon.

The trap shooters of Duluth are busy sweeping everything before them. The members of the Central Gun club have arranged a tournament for Sunday, Aug. 23, at their grounds at the foot of Sixty-third avenue west, and have invited all the trap shooters of Northern Minnesota to attend. It is expected the entries will be the heaviest in the history of the club, and some good shooting is promised.

Last Saturday the Duluth club defeated Virginia in a match shoot by ten birds. Last Sunday Duluth shooters took all the big prizes at Winton, Sotrey winning first, Berry second and Hugo third. Nelson and Webb finished fifth and sixth.

The Northwestern Gun club has had a very successful season. Last Sunday the final shoot of a series was held and prizes awarded. The clubhouse is under construction and is expected to be completed by the time cold weather sets in. The club will be active all during the winter, and some good times are in prospect.

YACHTS START FOR LIPTON CUP

Chicago, Aug. 15.—The largest fleet of twenty-one foot cabin yachts that has yet sailed for the Lipton trophy, started in the initial race of the 1908 series today. Eleven of the twelve entrants were on hand for the contest, although up to the last few hours it was doubtful if Little Shamrock would be taken across the starting line. The fight, owned by the Detroit Boat club, failed to appear for the race, leaving Cleveland, candidate of the Cleveland Yacht club, the only out-of-town entry. A possible exception is La Rita II, which sailed last year as the Raven, under the colors of the Royal Hamilton Yacht club of Ontario. The list of starters, with their skippers, follows:

Spray, F. A. Price, skipper; Chicago Athletic association.

I. A. C., C. T. Bailey, skipper; Illinois Athletic club.

Chicago, A. G. Cuthbert, skipper; Chicago Yacht club.

Jackson Park, C. W. Kraft, skipper; Jackson Yacht club.

New Illinois, Harry A. Aronson, skipper; Illinois Athletic club.

Queen Sabe, G. M. astVine, skipper; Columbia Yacht club.

Cleveland, John Barth, skipper; Cleveland Yacht club.

The yachts sail twice over a course following the lines of an equilateral triangle, whose sides are two miles in length, or altogether twelve miles.

RAILROAD MEN WIN PENNANT

Season of Commercial League at Crookston Brought to Close.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 15.—By defeating the High school team Thursday evening the Great Northern team of the Crookston Commercial Baseball league won the 1909 pennant which was duly presented to Manager Percy Wood by President Thomas R. Brown, Jr., after which the championship team paraded the downtown district of the city followed by a band of 500 cheering fans, including a big following of Great Northern employes, who have backed the team faithfully and rooted out several victories.

The Crookston Commercial league will continue next year, but instead of four teams, the Great Northern, High School, Press and Co. I teams there will also be the Bankers and the Pirates, an organization not connected with any particular institution. The standing of the clubs at the close of the season is as follows:

Great Northern	13	8	5	.615
High School	13	7	6	.538
Press	12	6	6	.500
Co. I	12	4	8	.333

THE FLEET SAILS.

The American Battleships Leave Auckland Bound for Sydney.

Auckland, Aug. 15.—The American Atlantic fleet departed for Sydney at 8:15 o'clock this morning.

The weather was fine and large crowds were ashore and afloat to bid farewell to the Americans. Excursion craft loaded to the rails dotted the harbor.

As anchors were hoisted and the flagship pointed her nose toward the mouth of the harbor pandemonium reigned. The shore batteries belched forth parting salutes, which were answered by the American ships and the whistles and sirens on the excursion flotilla resounded across the harbor and were re-echoed by the distant hills. The American ships were kept busy dipping their flags in answer to the salutations of the New Zealanders.

The fleet steamed with precision of alignment out of the harbor and many of the excursion craft followed it far to sea.

REQUIREMENT FULFILLED.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Capt. Baldwin yesterday fulfilled the second requirement for the acceptance of his military dirigible balloon by making two successful trials at Fort Myer. A week ago the airship was accepted as far as construction is concerned, and tomorrow it is expected that the endurance trial will be made. Capt. Baldwin is allowed three flights to fulfill the endurance specifications.

LANGFORD IS WONDER

Cannot Get Matches Because He Has Become Too Good.

New York, Aug. 15.—Sam Langford, like a black tornado, has swooped down on New York again, and the fans who failed to see him in the battle with Tony Ross or his previous battles here will probably have plenty of time to be sorry, because there is no prospect that he will be matched at any of the local clubs in many months. He has commited the fatal error of getting too good.

With the possible exception of Jack Johnson, Langford is the greatest fighting machine in the world, and he has made the mistake, like Johnson, of demonstrating it too thoroughly. Nobody will fight him now and no one cares to see him fight the few remaining second-raters that might be lured into the ring with the promise of a few hundred-dollar bills to take a certain and terrible beating at the hands of the invincible black.

After seeing Langford fight it must be admitted that Tommy Burns' apologists have some ground for their position that a white man should not fight a negro. We would not like to see any white man that we valued at all get into the ring with Langford. A squadron of heavy cavalry might make a good showing with him, but there is no white in the fighting business today that he could not stop in ten rounds

Langford could not be anything else but a great fighter. No man ever carried the marks of his trade more prominently in face, head, and build than the negro heavyweight. At a glance Jeffries might be a weight thrower, Jim Corbett a lawyer, Jack O'Brien a young business man, but Sam Langford was always intended for a fighter, and could not have been anything else.

His outline roughly resembles a peg-top. He is about five feet eight or nine inches tall, and he has a back, street and shoulder structure that a man six feet four might carry with pride. Great wads and balls of muscle form and shift over his ribs and shoulder blades and upper arms with every movement. His arms are as long and powerful as a gorilla's. Put this magnificent framework on a pair of tapering and comparatively slender legs, color the whole a brownish black, and you have the nearest approach to a perfectly proportioned fighting mechanism ever built.

Some tenants are as bad as fire. Herald want advertise for the sort who have consciences.

STAGGERED BY BLOW ON JAW

Magistrate's Fist Brought Into Action After Court.

New York, Aug. 15.—One knockdown, in which Magistrate Higginbotham's strong right arm figured, a small riot and panic in the courtroom, and the arraignment of High Priestess Elizabeth Robinson, for criminal contempt, marked the hearing of the case against the thirty-two men and women, Holy Rollers, in the Bedford avenue court, Brooklyn.

When Magistrate Higginbotham left the bench, after holding all the Holy Rollers for trial, Howard Dunwiddie, one of the sect, stepped him in the courtroom and tried to talk to him.

"I will have nothing to do with you," said Magistrate Higginbotham, as he tried to pass by to his private office. "I know what you are."

Dunwiddie struck at the magistrate, the blow landing on Higginbotham's shoulder. The latter's right arm shot out and his fist landed on Dunwiddie's jaw. The Holy Roller staggered back ten feet and fell.

In an instant the courtroom was in a panic, and the police caught Dunwiddie and subdued those who ran to his rescue.

Magistrate Higginbotham returned to the bench and held Dunwiddie in $1,500 bail for assault.

Previous to the row "Bishop" Robinson was arraigned for contempt, charged with declaring that while in his office "Magistrate Higginbotham tried to hug and kiss me."

Two reporters and a court attendant swore they were present when the "Bishop" visited the magistrate, and nothing of the sort occurred.

The magistrate denounced the woman and declared he would hold her in $1,500 bail for running a disorderly house and $5,000 bail for contempt. The other members of the Holy Rollers were held in $100 bail each for trial.

Among them were the bishop, high priestesses and high priests and deaconesses of the strange "church," which the police say is only a cloak for immoral practices. Yesterday's court scene was the result of a raid on the meeting place of the sect three weeks ago.

EVENT TO BE NOVEL

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Utica, having emerged from the political obscurity of years, is to make the most of its opportunities, the first shining one being due next Tuesday, when James S. Sherman is to be notified of his nomination for the vice presidency.

There has been nothing just like this Utica plan of celebration in the whole history of notification doings. Cincinnati as a notifying center must sit far back in the shade of the Hamilton county trees. The hills here already are reverberating with the noise of the hammer of preparation, and today the early arriving guest casts his eye on a huge banner to learn that "Utica Is the Home of Statesmen."

Appealing Feast Is Prepared.

For secretary of State Elihu Root, for Senator Julius Caesar Burrows and for the other visitors of rank and distinction the citizens of Utica have prepared an appealing feast. After Mr. Sherman has been told what happened to him at Chicago, he will lead his statesman friends to Utica park, and there will arrange them by the right and left flank, dressing on himself as center. Then things will begin. The memory of the happenings will linger long and an example will be set for all nomination festivities of the future.

Monkey in Balloon Ascension.

First, "Prof." Phillips of McConnellsville will stir the staid Root and the stalder Burrows with a balloon ascension, a trapeze performance and a parachute drop. The next statesman-stirring act as described by the Utica Daily Press will be conducted thus:

"Another balloon act will be presented by Miss Maggie Murphy of Chicago, who is a very remarkable monkey. She will go up in a balloon to a height of 800 feet and then drop from a parachute which will be separated from the balloon by a time fuse lighted when the start is made. This act has been a great sensation in Chicago, St. Louis and other Western cities."

Will Dive Into Hogshead.

"Professor" Seymour next will thrill the assembled celebrities and those of lesser fame. The "professor" is not related to the late Horatio, the Democrat of the same surname who lived his days in this Mohawk valley town. From the official program as printed in the Press it is learned that the "professor" will make a wonderful dive from an elevation of ninety feet into a hogshead containing three feet of water."

Darktown Race a Feature.

The notification day celebration at Utica park will continue from 2:30 to 6 p. m. As given with official sanction the remaining features of the day's doing are these:

The Haydns, the Philharmonics and the Maennerchor, three well-known singing societies of Utica, have been invited to render selections, and there will be a concert by the massed bands engaged for the day.

The baseball game between the Scranton and Utica state league teams will be an important feature.

In addition there will be a free-for-all trotting race, a mustang race and a Darktown trotting race open to colored men only, driving mules to sulky. There will also be several automobile races.

Altogether a lively and enjoyable afternoon at the Utica park is assured.

James S. Sherman is a loyal Utican. He has submitted to the pleasure-making program of his fellow townsmen, and thus has made certain his right to be called "Sunny Jim."

TWO MEN KILLED BY LEAKING GAS MAIN.

New York, Aug. 15.—Two men were killed and nearly a dozen others were overcome in a manhole of the Empire City Subway company yesterday by gas from a leaking main.

The dead men, Michael Muldoon and Peter Collins, employes of the company, while hunting for a leak entered the manhole, and when they failed to send up word after a reasonable time, the foreman started down the manhole to find out the reason. He was quickly driven back by the fumes and shouted for help.

Police reserves, firemen and ambulances were summoned and eventually a dozen or more persons tried to rescue the two men. But all efforts were unavailing. Each man in his turn was overcome and soon had to be drawn back by the rope to which he was attached.

A few of those overcome by the fumes were revived on the spot, but the majority had to be taken to a hospital. The bodies of the two men were recovered after the gas at that point was shut off.

Food and Exercise.

It is as impossible to lay down rules for exercise which shall be applicable to all men as it is to prescribe the exact amount of and kind of food. In both these respects a man must be a law unto himself. In general it may be said that men eat too much and exercise too little. A glass of golden grain belt beer at mealtime will aid digestion, steady your nerves and build you up physically. Keep your home table supplied with this delicious food drink. Order of Duluth Branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The fifth trial at Floyd courthouse of John Richards, the Floyd county school teacher charged with the murder of his rival in love, Maurice K. Francis of Roanoke, Va., ended Friday in acquittal.

Following closely his recovery from a protracted illness which nearly proved fatal, Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., of Massachusetts was operated upon Friday for appendicitis at the Charles Gates hospital. The operation was pronounced successful by the surgeons and the governor's condition is said to be most satisfactory.

Edwin Hawkins was hanged Friday afternoon at Tucson, Ariz., for the murder of Albert C. Leonard. The condemned man walked to the scaffold at 1:35 and the trap was sprung at 2:06.

Because no one entered an appearance for Harry K. Thaw when his petition in bankruptcy was called before Referee William R. Blair at Pittsburg, Pa., Friday, the fixing of the date of the first meeting of the creditors was postponed indefinitely and it is said, will not now be considered until his attorney or some one else interested makes application to have the time fixed.

State Bank Examiner, W. E. Gordon has discovered a shortage of approximately $15,000 in the accounts of Thomas M. Reynolds, the missing cashier of the bank of Afton, Oklahoma. The state banking board has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of Reynolds. The bank is operating under the state depositor's guaranty law.

In a ten minute session Friday in New York, the Democratic state committee adopted a resolution which endorses the candicacy of W. J. Bryan and John W. Kern, and commends the platform adopted at the Denver convention, and voted to have the Democratic state convention which will nominate a state ticket meet at Rochester, Sept. 15.

M. B. Stein, 25 years old, of Des Moines, Iowa, and Miss Hester Porter, 50 years old of Loudonville, his mother-in-laws' sister, are dead as a result of a mysterious tragedy at Miss Porter's home Friday afternoon. It is believed Stein shot Miss Porter and then turned the weapon on himself although no motive is known.

AMUNDSEN (AT LEFT) AND THE CREW THAT MADE THE NORTHWEST PASSAGE WITH HIM.

By JOHN S. HARWOOD

A LIST of the eminent—and otherwise—explorers of today proves conclusively what the geographers say: Most of the world, leaving out of the question the Arctic and Antartic regions and the deserts of Asia, Africa and Australia, is fairly well mapped, despite the fact that the maps of all the continents, except that of Europe, show blank spots or broken lines, indicative that the explorer has not yet finished his work in, say, the extreme interior of Texas, between the rivers that empty into the Amazon from the south, in Upper Canada, below the arctic Circle, in Arabia; not yet in Central Africa, since Stanley's time the objective point of exploring expedition after expedition.

From the view point of the geographer, this has been the condition of the world's maps for a decade now, with certain blank spots, of course, growing smaller or disappearing altogether, year by year. For during the decade, all the explorers, big and little, a veritable legion of them, self-supported, syndicate-supported and government-supported, attacked the spots with their well-known intrepidity. Today they are still hard at work, with the more famous ones, with one or two exceptions, working in the Artic and Antartic regions and the deserts of Asia, where the chances of securing additional fame are best. And when these blank-spot erasers of today are gone there will be plenty of blank spots left to erase. It is no easy task to explore in detail what others have discovered in a general way. And it is detail discovery that is occupying the days of the greater number of present-time explorers.

Probably no one will question the statement that the four foremost living explorers are Peary, Nansen, Abruzzi, and Hedin, claimed, respectively, by Uncle Sam, Norway, Italy and Sweden. Two of this pre-eminent quartet of blank-spot erasers are now at work in their specially chosen fields—Peary in the frozen North, on what he fondly hopes will prove his successful dash for the Pole, and Hedin on the "Roof of the World."

To one of these men belongs the unique distinction of having revealed to his fellow men many of the centuries-guarded secrets of Tibet. The other three have held, in turn, the record of furthest North. Peary holds today the record for the Western Hemisphere, with no prospect of either Nansen or the Abruzzi ever attempting to wrest this honor from him; for the royal Italian's mind is just now very much occupied with the problem of taking unto himself an American heiress as his consort, while Nansen, when Norway separated from its southern neighbor, became a diplomat, and now represents his country in a ministerial position at the court of St. James', where his fame as one of the world's intrepid discoverers, and the fact that his queen is a daughter of Edward VII, have made him a favorite in the royal family and the court.

The Abruzzi, it has been said, went to the north and went to the south—where, under the equator in Africa he discovered and climbed the snow-capped Mountains of the Moon—in the hope that his deeds of daring and resultant fame would win a "Yes" from Holland's queen, then husbandless. Because Eva Sars refused to become his wife until he had won a large name for himself, Nansen, when a few years passed his majority, turned explorer, and when the eminent Norwegian singer finally became Mrs. Nansen in 1889, when her husband was 28, the latter had become the world's foremost authority on Greenland. He spent the year immediately preceding his marriage in crossing that ice-capped island, the first white man ever to perform this hazardous feat.

As a boy Peary was fascinated with stories, real and imaginative, of the Arctic, and he registered a boy's vow some day to conduct explorations in that forsaken portion of the globe. He was on naval duty in Washington in 1885 when he registered a man's vow to the same end. One afternoon, after the navy department had closed, he went into a book shop, and, browsing about, came across an article on Greenland's ice cap. One reading of it was sufficient to awaken in him his boyish love for the Arctic and the man's vow to explore that region followed speedily. About a year later Peary was 100 miles in the interior of Greenland, studying its ice cap at first hand. And from the time of that little reconnoissance to the present day he has dreamed of one day planting the American flag at the spot where the Pole ought to be, and has planned and labored accordingly, much of the time under great difficulties.

Sven Hedin, too, had his boy's dream of becoming a great explorer, and it grew with him as he grew—never once did he lose it. From the time he could read about travel and geography he planned to be an explorer; he shaped his studies to this end; and until he was in a position to begin his series of explorations, to whatever he turned his hands, and mind was with the idea of making this count in his ultimate work.

By the men who went to school with him when he was still under his teens Hedin is still known by the nickname of "Explorer." In Sweden, it seems, the school youth of the land, when they are around the age of 10, must tell their teachers whether they will tackle mathematics or the classics for the remainder of their school days; and the boys are expected to add voluntarily what line of work they intend to follow when they reach man's estate. In Hedin's class the answers as regards ambitions were the stock ones until it came Hedin's turn to reveal his dream. Then, when he announced that he was going to be an explorer, the whole room, the teachers included, was convulsed with laughter. Thus the nickname which Hedin, by sticking doggedly to his boyish purpose, has converted into an honorable and world-famous handle, for it is no longer "Explorer" Hedin, but Hedin, the explorer.

All of these four men snatched international fame while they were still in the flush of young manhood. Hedin was 32 when he reached the outposts of civilization after concluding his first and most famous expedition in Tibet. Then he flashed like a meteor across the world's eye, for until it learned of his wonderful feats in that then mysterious country the world generally had not taken cognizance of the existence of a Swede named Sven Hedin.

By crossing Greenland when he was 28 Nansen not only won the answer he longed for from Miss Sars, but also Scandinavian fame, and made his name known among the geographical societies of the world. Not until he was 35, however, when he attained what was then furthest north, did the whole world acclaim him. Peary was a year older, when, in his first real expedition to the north, he determined the insularity of Greenland and made other highly important discoveries that brought around him the plaudits of the hemispheres. The duke of the Abruzzi was but two years past his majority when he scaled Mount St. Elias, 27 when he outdistanced Nansen in the race for the pole and 33 when he found the legendary Mountains of the Moon to be grim, snow-capped realities. He almost could be called a boy explorer. Peary is the oldest of the quartet, being a couple of years past the half century mark. Nansen lacks four years of it, and Hedin is three years Nansen's junior.

Equally as interesting as these statistics of early secured fame is the fact that every member of the quartet was what is called well born. Peary comes of stanch old New England ancestry. The duke of Abruzzi, as practically every American learned last winter, is of royal blood and close to the Italian throne. Nansen is the son of a well known Norwegian advocate; Hedin himself, like the duke, is still single. If ever he had a love romance he has been successful in keeping the details from the public, a feat which the conqueror of Mount St. Elias vainly tried to do.

Another coincidence connected with this eminent quartet is this—each man started in life well educated. Peary, Nansen and Hedin are college graduates, while the Abruzzi received what amounted to a college education from numerous tutors. Among their educational accomplishments, the duke and Nansen number that of languages; each is proficient in four. Hedin is master of an unusual list of languages. Besides speaking English, French and German fluently, he is at ease in Russian. Tartaric and Persian, these tongues being picked up by him when he was a tutor at Baku on the Caspian. Later on when his travels carried him still further away from the fjords of his native land, he got a good knowledge of Chinese and Tibetan, and there is not a dialect spoken in or around the deserts of Asia of which he remains ignorant.

When Hedin went down to the shores of the Caspian to be tutor to the children of the brother of the late Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite and founder of the Nobel prizes, he had formed no definite idea of just what portion of the earth he some day would explore. But he had not been teaching long before he awoke to the realization of the fact that, though Asia is popularly supposed to have been the first continent to behold man and his works, great stretches of it were unexplored. Hedin at once saw his opportunity and began to prepare for grasping it by studying Russian and the native languages of Western and central Asia. Then as he traveled further and further east through central Asia, making the great deserts peculiarly his own, Hedin naturally came under the spell of Tibet, and was not content until he had penetrated to the very heart of that long guarded land of the Dalai Lama.

Hedin was a mere youth in years when he went on his first exploring expedition, being only 20. He financed the expedition, which went through Persia and Mesopotamia, with his savings from his position as tutor. This sum amounted to less than $200. At Kermanshah, about 450 miles to the south of Baku as a bird flies, Hedin found himself penniless, and sought out the English agent in Persia, a wealthy Arabian merchant, for assistance. Incidentally, he told the old fellow that he was a countryman of Charles XII. Now, all Islam knows of the deeds of that great Swedish king, so no sooner had Hedin spoken his name than the Arabian began showering him with honors. He put his house at the young Swede's disposal, ministered lavishly to his smallest need, and when the time came sped him on his journey of discovery with a bulging sack of silver and a picturesque guard of honor.

The duke of the Abruzzi is said to have spent a fortune on his three great exploring expeditions; their combined cost having been set down at a quarter of a million dollars. Hedin, on the other hand, has opened the great deserts of Asia and Tibet to the knowledge of the world with singularly little cost. No other modern explorer, it is safe to say, has achieved such startling results with so small expenditure of money. The expedition that made him famous, which lasted four years and took him across Tibet for the first time, was carried on at an annual cost of only $7,000 a year. A large portion of the money spent by Hedin on his various expeditions has been secured by him from his savings and through his books and articles on his travels and discoveries.

Peary's passion for Polar exploration is well known to his fellow-Yankees. Hedin, too, is an apparently chronic victim of explorer's fever; he has acknowledged that he is happiest when he is sleeping in a tent pitched somewhere—preferably in a desert—where the maps show a blank, or, at best, broken lines, indicating unexplored territory. It was his passion for Tibetan exploration that caused him to slip into that country a short time after England and Russia had entered into an agreement to keep all explorers off the "world's roof," this agreement following the so-called opening up of Tibet by the English punitive expedition under Col. Younghusband, which reached Lhasa, the capital city, four years ago. Hedin slipped into Tibet just after the treaty was ratified, and he has recently told the world of a hitherto unsuspected chain of mountains discovered by him on this trip.

While Hedin is a man of one purpose, Nansen, his Northern brother, is veritably many-sided. Before he turned explorer he had made of himself a zoologist, and through the still authoritative book that he wrote on the nervous system of animals he received an offer from a college in the Middle West to be its professor of zoology. He hesitated, finally declined the chair, and the world gained a noted explorer, for it was shortly after the American offer came to him that Nansen set out in earnest on his career of discovery.

As a mathematician Nansen has been brilliant from his youth up. While still a youngster he succeeded in solving certain problems in conic sections which previously had defied the mathematical intelligence of the world; and Nansen has the satisfaction of knowing that these solutions are in use today all over the collegiate world. Sketching and painting are two pastimes that he turned to good account when he was in the Arctic; he once dreamed of being an artist, but finally turned from the brush to the study of animal life. He is a champion of outdoor sport, and largely through his efforts that distinctive Scandinavian sport—ski jumping—became popular in Norway. Before Nansen and his brother, racing on skis down the hill near their parental home, discovered that one could jump from a height on skis, sail through the air and land safely, the Norwegian snowshoe was looked upon by the better-class Norwegians as a contrivance of use only to the peasant.

But it is as a patriot that Nansen is affectionately known in Norway today. He was one of the handful of leading Norwegians who took a prominent part in the movement that resulted in the separation of Norway and Sweden, and arouse Norwegian public sentiment for separation than any other's. His sturdy insistence for Norway's rights made him a public idol, and from time to time there was plenty of talk of making him president in case a republic should be established. Nansen, however, was for a monarchical form of government, and would not listen to the importunities of his friends to declare for a republic, even when, at a giant mass meeting in Christiania, the capital, he was hailed by a partisan as the nation's standard-bearer and cheered long and enthusiastically by the crowd, which apparently wanted to make Nansen really what the partisan called him. Today Fridtjof Nansen is not only Norway's minister at the court of St. James, but one of its leading public men; and no man in Norwegian public life has a larger following.

Hedin is small of stature; the biggest thing about him is his indomitable will. Nansen, on the other hand, is big both in will and body. His friends tell all sorts of wonderful stories of his truly phenomenal strength, but none is stranger than the display of his muscular power which he gave shortly after his return from "furthest north." Otto Sverdrup, now an Arctic explorer on his own hook, had been Nansen's captain in the Fram. Nansen desired that full credit should go to the burly captain for his share in the success of the expedition, and while telling his hearers that the expedition would have been a failure without the presence of Sverdrup, he grabbed the latter in one hand and literally held him aloft that all might get a good look at him.

A native of the little dot of an island called Heligoland, away up in the North sea, and the only distinguished person among its 2,000 inhabitants, Sverdrup

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

NEW MONTANA DISTRICT

Butte, Aug. 15.—During the past few weeks considerable interest has centered in the Seven Mile, an unorganized mining district eight miles west of Helena, on the main line of the Northern Pacific railroad, and the recently organized Pittsburg & New York Copper Mining company, which has secured a group of claims in the new district, it is said, is in posession of one of the richest gold propositions in the state. The company is strictly a Butte organization and is capitalized for 1,500,000 shares of the par value of $1 a share. Jerry Mullins of this city is president of the company. The new camp is assuming a lively appearance and the ground is said to be staked out for miles around.

The group of claims is known as the Umatilla, and consists of eight quartz claims, a millsite and two timber claims. It is an old mining property on which very rich ore was mined and milled many years ago. According to reports more than $100,00 was taken from the old workings, and it has never been worked to a greater depth than 4 feet. No mining of any magnitude was ever done, and the values were taken by gophering.

On the property there is a five-stamp mill and a 5-ton cyaniding plant. The water right is sufficient to operate a 5-stamp mill. It is the intention of the Pittsburgh & New York company to prosecute the development of the company on a large scale, and work in this direction has already been commenced. On the Mae claim, one of the group, a shaft has been sunk to a depth of 15 feet and a crosscut has been run to tap the Umatilla vein. It is estimated that the vein will be reached at a distance of another 50 feet. A vein 12 inches in width has been intersected, the values going from $40 to $80 to the ton. Another section of the property, also on the Umatilla vein, has opened up a body of ore from two to five feet in width. An open cut has been run on this 150 feet, and there is a large amount of high-grade ore in sight. Both tunnel and shaft are producing ore, and within a day or two the mill will be in operation to full capacity.

One hundred tons of free milling ore are on the dump, having been taken from the new workings, and this assays about $25 to the ton. In one place an 18-inch streak of ore was encountered 10 feet below the surface, and it is reported that it carries free gold of the value of as high as $300 to the ton. The face of the tunnel is said to carry the same streak, which is widening out. While the high assays show from $236 to $313 to the ton, there is an immense amount of low-grade ore which, it is said, will run from $20 to $30 to the ton. The richer ore is now being sacked. Some of the ore is on exhibition at the offices of the company in this city and the pannings show astonishing values in free gold.

RUSH TO BRITISH COLUMBIA

Rich Strike Made on One of Islands in Queen Charlotte Group---Good Pay Ore in Glacier District of Alaska.

Seattle, Aug. 15.—There is a great rush of prospectors to Tasso Harbor on the southwest coast of Moresby Island, Queen Charlotte group. A big camp has come into existence, and there is excitement over the character of the ore struck and the extent of surface showings. One old Kootenay prospector, Arthur Gowing, has made twenty locations on a big lead, which in places shows an outcrop 100 feet in width, samples from which give returns as high as 17½ per cent copper and $8 in gold.

The mines of the Kootenay-Boundary region shipped 45,129 tons of ore last week, and the smelters in the same time treated 45,031 tons.

The news from Phoenix is that the Snowshoe mine is to resume operations after a shutdown of nine months. The Snowshoe was one of the most important copper producers last year, operated under lease by the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company of Canada. An aggressive campaign was carried on at the Snowshoe group, and the ore shipments for the nine months previous to the closing down were 135,000 tons. The ores last year were shipped to either the smelter of the British Columbia Copper company at Greenwood or to the company's own smelter at Trail, about 120 miles distant. It is understood the shipments hereafter will largely be to the Trail smelter, where the ores are a good flux.

The ore now being shipped from the War Eagle and Iron Mask, two of the Consolidated company's properties, at present is of more than ordinary high grade, running as high as $43.22 to the ton.

A big body of ore has been uncovered on the Kootenay Chief, which is under lease and bond to J. A. Whittier and associates.

An arrival from the Glacier district in Alaska reports that good pay ore has been found on the benches of Sixtymile by W. R. Miller. He has been working here five years, and has six miles of ditches. The ground is being worked by the hydraulic process. This pay is some distance above the pay worked by the French syndicate.

Coarse gold has been struck on No. 32 below Discovery on Black Hills by the Cassidy brothers, James and Arthur, old-time Dawsonites. They have been working on their claim but five weeks. At the bottom of one shaft they took from it three by four bedrock space one and three-quarter ounces of gold.

The depth, surface to bedrock, is only seven feet, with two feet of sand on top and five feet of gravel. Cassidy Bros. also own Nos. 31 and 32A, and intend to work the ground with hydraulic open cutting.

Good pay also is being obtained on No. 58 below. The ground there is sixteen feet deep. On the upper end claims are working, but these two claims are the first to develop the pay so far down the creek.

Samuel Kean, president of the Bering Shore Mining company, who is in Nome, says that his company is ready to put in a hydraulic plant between Hastings and Golden Gate creeks, where water was started on Sept. 10 last. Mr. Kean said that he had interested sufficient capital in Philadelphia to carry the work to completion.

Jack Horn, owner of Nos. 13, 14, 15 and 16, below Discovery on Bonanza creek, is the heaviest individual operator on the famous old creek this year. Horn has thirty-five men open cutting.

ARIZONA COMMERCIAL BONDS

Nearly Half a Million Assured From the Sale Will Be Used to Build a Smelter and Improve the Mine.

Bisbee, Aug. 15.—Owing to the demand for underwriting of the $500,000 Arizona Commercial 6 per cent convertible bonds, allotments have been cut down to but 30 per cent of the subscriptions. It is expected that stockholders will take practically the entire issue. As the company is now assured of $475,000 from the sale of these bonds, plans are already being drawn for the building of a smelter with an initial capacity of 300 tons and a site has been practically decided upon. Previous to deciding upon the building of a smelter, an expert examination of the property was secured. In submitting this report to the eastern management General Manager Bennie says:

"Personally I have never seen a vein or shute of ore that looked better for fine high-grade ores at depths. Judging from the depth of the oxidized zone, the area of secondary enrichment should be great."

The report, which is confined to the Black Hawk group, describes the property and developments to date as follows: Two shafts have been sunk to develop the vein—the Black Hawk and Eureka. The Black Hawk shaft has reached a depth of 560 feet on the incline of about 500 feet vertically. It was started on the outcrop of the vein, but at a steeper angle than the vein, thus throwing it farther into the foot wall as depth was gained. At every hundred feet a crosscut was driven to prospect the vein. On the first three levels the vein was opened by drifts for about 135 feet. In each case the vein was strong, running high in iron but low in copper. Should the company build its own smelter this vein matter might become valuable as a flux.

On the 400-foot level the vein widens very materially, showing strong vein matter for a width of 45 feet, with an additional 40 feet carrying some vein matter. The copper values on this level are also higher. In the drift driven 90 feet east of the shaft crosscut, the vein carries from 2 per cent to 4 per cent copper and an ounze of silver.

In drifting east on the vein at the 500-foot level higher copper values were encountered than on the 400-foot level. A winze was sunk below the level, and with the increasing depth better copper and silver values were found. At about fifty feet the permanent water level was reached and sinking was discontinued until pumping facilities could be arranged. A stope was opened in this winze and also one for twenty-five feet above the 500-foot level.

During the last five months 4,300 tons have been shipped to the smelters from these two stopes, giving an average return of 6.38 per cent copper and 2.3 ounces of silver.

The lower grade ore is coming from the stopes above the 500-foot level, while car load lots from the bottom of the winze ran from 10 per cent copper and four ounces silver. The ore as taken out of the two stopes averaged twenty feet wide. This ore was classed as oxide, the copper occurring chiefly as malachite, but near the water level some high grade sulphides are found, indicating that the sulphide zone is but a short distance below the water level. In driving west from the shaft crosscut on the 500-foot level, the foot wall of the vein has been followed after the first 100 feet. The vein matter in this drift is very similar to that of the 400-level east. There was no chance for crosscutting the vein here without interfering with the plan for development.

This 500-foot level has opened the Black Hawk vein for 800 feet, showing it continuous without a break, and mineralized the entire distance. From the enrichment in depth as shown by the winze below this level there is every reason to expect rich ore bodies will be opened below the water level.

The Eureka shaft is a vertical three-compartment shaft located about 500 feet west of the Black Hawk shaft. It was started well over in the hanging and will cut the vein at about 550 feet. At present its depth is 533 feet, but as soon as the connection with Black Hawk 500-foot level has been made, a station pump installed, sinking will again be continued.

No crosscuts were driven from this shaft to cut the vein until the 500-foot level of the Black Hawk was reached. The plant at the Eureka has been laid out with the idea of permanency and economy of operation. It would seem advisable to prepare to sink the Eureka to a depth of 1,000 feet, taking off crosscuts and levels every 100 or 125 feet. Since the Black Hawk shaft is too small for making a large production, it would seem best to open the east part of the mine by means of winzes and raises on the vein, rather than continue the shaft, thus developing the ore and securing ventilation at the same time.

As soon as the vein is sufficiently drained, the 500-foot level winze should be continued to the 600-foot level.

CHAFEY, THE NEW BONANZA

Claimed That Most Important Gold Discoveries in Nevada Have Been Made There—New Camp is Said to Have Eclipsed Tonopah and Rawhide in its Rapid Rise.

Butte, Aug. 15.—According to reports from Chafey, Nev., the new gold camp of the East Humboldt range, William Benyon, popularly known as "Shorty" Benyon, until a few months ago a resident of Butte, and well known in this city among mine workers, has struck it rich in the new Nevada camp. He is operating one of the richest leases in what is said to be the richest gold camp on earth, even surpassing the famous properties of Goldfield. It is said that he has at least $100,000 in sight and susceptible of realization during the next few months.

The phenomenal riches of the East Humboldt range have been demonstrated by the disclosure, in the Lee & Benyon lease, on the Mae Miller claim, on Monroe hill, of an eight-inch streak of gold ore, which carries $25,000 per ton values. The formation is decomposed quartz and iron and porphyry, and scarcely a fraction of an inch of the surface but contains free gold, visible to the naked eye. The three-foot vein, wherein this bonanza streak is exposed, all puns the precious yellow metal to such an extent that it will all be sacked and shipped. The Mae Muller claim belongs to E. S. Chafey and William M. Sims, who acquired it along with several other propreties they acquired a few weeks ago, after having found the bonanza five-foot ore body on the Mayflower claim, which lies north of the Mae Muller and is divided therefrom only by one claim's length. The same gigantic porphyry dykes traverse all three claims, parallel to one another, and constitute a continuous ore-bearing zone that can be walked upon for 3,000 feet and is discernable through other indications than outcrops for more than a mile.

It is conceded now to be undoubtedly the most important gold discovery in Nevada, regardless of the preceding bonanzas that have been disclosed throughout the last six years. The modern prospector has claimed a victory here, where his predecessors failed through lack of mineralogical knowledge and insufficient lives.

The prospecting of the region on modern lines, started last August at Tiptop, three and one-half miles south of the location of what is now known as Chafey camp. This in turn is the new name by which old Dun Glen camp, nine miles east of Mill City and eighteen miles southwest of Winnemucca, is known. Two months ago there were all signs of Tiptop camp becoming the center of the district's rejuvenation. There were upward of 200 people there. The prospects were responding favorably to the efforts of the miners, and all signs pointed to an immense stampede into Tiptop during the fall and winter; but now Tiptop has lost its population to Chafey camp, because early in June E. S. Chafey found the Black hole, from which he immediately began shipping. He sent two to three cars per week out of this mine, beginning at the surface, where a tunnel was driven on a five-foot vein. Shipments have been continuous from this source, also from a shaft sunk just sunk just in front of the tunnel portal on the vein, and which has now been driven fifty feet deep. Chafey is sending out daily this month thirty to forty tons and expects to ship during an aggregate of 1,000 tons, worth an average of $100 per ton, by the first of September.

Lessees were awarded several blocks on the same vein system on Monroe hill, and among these are William Beynon, otherwise known as Shorty, and W. F. Lee. Beynon is formerly from Butte, Mont., and Tonopah. Lee came from Yerington, Nev. Both arrived here broke less than two months ago. Their work on the lease consists of extension of an old tunnel forty feet. This completed the task conceived and partly carried out by preceding operators who worked many years ago. With the tunnel thus extended it taps a veritable mint of gold at 160 feet depth. James Hendra, son of the pioneer here who dreamed of the wealth these hills contain, and which is beyond contemplation of the most avaricious man in its large amount, says:

"For five years I have been trying to induce United States Senator Nixon to drive that tunnel forty or fifty feet further. Until it was sold recently to Chafey and Sims the Mae Muller claim belonged to Senator Nixon and the Hendra estate. I almost knew the high-grade was there, but the senator never could see it that way. He has lost what I believe to be one of the largest mining fortunes in the state to Lessees Lee and Beynon, and other lessees on the same vein, and who will soon cut into vast ore bodies of the same high-grade character."

Among the other lessees are Elihu Palmer and F. M. McBee, whose block adjoins that of Lee and Beynon, and who are sacking high-grade for their first shipment of $100 ore which will go out in a couple of weeks. On Jack Bishop's lease there is exposed through an open cut 350 tons worth $100 per ton; and from which shipments are just being inaugurated. The other lessees are in line for shipping ore equally high in value within the next month.

The town of Chafey is the center of 500 population already, though but five weeks old. A big hotel, postoffice building and several other permanent substantial improvements are under way. A telephone line will be in from Mill City next week.

Two stage lines ply between Chafey and Mill City; one is running here from Winnemucca, and a second will be inaugurated next week from the latter point.

Altogether, therefore, the quick rise of Chafey camp, its wonderful yielding capacity, the extraordinary high character of its ores, the very large width of its true fissure veins, and the vast extend of its gold deposition stamp this district as one of the most remarkable mining history makers in all Nevada, in fact, eclipses Goldfield, Tonopah and Rawhide in the comprehensive scope of its pyrotechnic, romantic discovery and capacity for transforming men from povrt affluence with lightning-like rapidity.

NO LET-UP AT CRIPPLE CREEK

July Output of the Camp Was $1,345,037—The Utah Copper Company Dividend—Three Pueblo Smelters Are Closed—Salt Lake Smelters Not Busy.

Colorado Springs, Aug. 15. — The Cripple Creek July production record was 65,022 tons of ore, worth gross $1,345,031. This is an increase over June in bullion and value. The August production will be increased by the starting of new mills.

The Golden Cycle mill treated 26,676 tons of ore, worth $533,520, and the United States Reduction & Refining company 16,241 tons, worth $341,061. Smelter treated 3,920 tons of $65 average value. The Ironclad cyanide mill's 3,100 tons averaged $1.75 each, the Isabella's 3,875 tons, $3 each. The Wild Horse, Jo Dandy and W. P. H. mills treated 3,000 tons, averaging $4, $8 and $5 respectively, making approximately 10,000 tons of oxided ores treated by cyanidation.

The working force at Cripple Creek exceeds 3,500 men, although the camp is operated largely by leasers, either individual or in small firms. The monthly pay roll is the largest in the camp's history.

Forty sets of lessees are producing ore from the Stratton estate mines in Cripple Creek. In July 100 cars of ore were shipped to mills and smelters, the value averaging $25 to $30 a ton. The Lucky Gus mine has the richest ore, with the American Eagle and John A. Logan next. The Roosevelt, or Gatch Park, deep drainage tunnel is in 2,873 feet from the portal. In July 203 feet was driven. The intermediate shaft is down 553 feet, 100 feet being July's record. Work may be completed on the shaft by September, when work on the tunnel will be driven from two additional breasts. Cripple Creek mines generally are awaiting the completion of the tunnel with much interest.

The Utah Copper company of Colorado Spring and New York has declared its initial quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on 735,000 outstanding shares out of 750,000 capitalization. The sum of $367,500 will be disbursed on Oct. 1 to stockholders of record on Sept. 20. Charles MacNeil is president and Spencer Penrose secretary-treasurer. John Hays Hammond is mining engineer. The company owns a large area of outcropping 1⅜ per cent pure ore in the Bingham district. The company's profits for the quarter reached $495,694.07. The gross production of copper was 11,568,390 pounds, the total for the year being 33,568,390 pounds. Of the ore treated 34 per cent was mined by "cave in" process and 66 per cent by steam shovels. This latter per cent is increasing. The Garfield mill is running on 5,000 tons daily capacity. By Oct. 1 an available working capital of $2,000,000 will be in the treasury, it is said.

Colorado roads are handling more ore now than during January, February and March, but did not handle as much in July as in June. Three or four smelters at Pueblo are closed and others are running on decreased capacity. At Salt Lake the smelters are doing less business than usual. With the price of silver and lead as low as at present there is small incentive for smelters to operate. Where cyanidation is used on the low grade oxidized product, as in Cripple Creek, the plants are generally busy treating the product at the mines.

The Cripple Creek roads are taxed to transport the mill grades to Colorado City and Florence. This camp's yield shows a steady advance from month to month, with the possibility that 1908 will eclipse any other year in this century, if not in the camp's history, both for tonnage and value.

The aerial tram connecting the Cresson mine with Eclipse Gulch, Cripple Creek, is successfully transporting ten tons of ore hourly at a maximum cost of 5 cents a ton, which is a saving of $1,000 a month. The mine is outputting 225 tons of $25 ore monthly. Ore is coming from a 70-foot body on 700-foot level.

The Smuggler mine in Moon Gulch, Rollinsville, recently shipped a carload of ore which returned $70.53 a ton. A vein in the main shaft at 100 feet depth yields $90 in gold and 3½ ounces in silver a ton, while concentrates taken from this week's run on milling ores assays 6.72 ounces in gold and 3.10 in silver, or a total of $136.10 a ton. A five day run on the mill returned a gold retort weighing 53 ounces, which was paid for at $19.82 an ounce. Decatur, Ill., capitalists are in charge.

The Hardy lease on the 555-foot level of the East Notaway mine, Central City, has received returns of 27.98 ounces in gold, 5.18 ounces in silver and 4.80 per cent copper, or a total of $554 a ton.

The McLean group of mines in Park county has been reopened by Messrs. Duncan & Foorbes, lessees. A tunnel already started will be put in repair. Much of the group's acreage contains lime deposits in which pockets of sulphurets and native silver are found. The lime is valuable for flux for smelters.

The Johnson lease on the Anchoria-Leland mine, Cripple Creek, is in a 3-foot vein of $40 to $60 ore. Five sets of lessees on this property are shipping.

F. D. Aller, purchasing agent at Antofagasta, Chile, for the American Smelting & Refining company, who is revisiting Colorado, says the Bolivian silver mines maintain a regular output. The product formerly shipped to Pueblo, Colo., is now consigned to Tacoma, Wash., and Perth Amboy, N. J.

The Gilpin-Boulder Consolidated Mines company, $1,500,000 capitalization, with Frank F. Wise of Chicago and R. H. Adams of Denver among the incorporators, has bought the Ragged Top group of mines on Sugar Loaf mountain, including Song Bird and Lafayette lodes, and will develop them.

The local or camp mills at Cripple Creek have treated a larger tonnage during July than for any past month.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Situations Shows Little Change This Week—Shipments Disappointing When Compared With Last Year—Much Development Work is in Progress.

The mining situation in the Lake Superior iron region is without material change. Shipments latterly have increased somewhat. However, compared with last season the outgo continues disappointing, and conditions at the mines have shown little, if any, betterment. There is not that degree of activity predicted for the closing months of the summer period. Sales of ore are distressingly slow. Mining work is not being prosecuted briskly anywhere. Idle shafts remain closed, and idle steam shovels are to be seen in open pits.

There is hardly a mine that is employing its normal force. Some big stockpiles of ore have scarcely been disturbed. But for all this there is much preparation for the future. Stripping work on the Mesaba has rarely been attended with a greater degree of activity. On the old ranges the larger operators are adding to their underground reserves. There is an absorption of promising mineralized acreage, and there is a great deal of exploration. It seems to be the consensus of opinion that ore will be in urgent demand in the year to come, and the shipments will approximate the record-breaking tonnage sent out last season.

Estimates of this year's requirements are still in the neighborhood of 25,000,000 tons, of which amount about one-third has now been forwarded, the fleet having moved seven and a quarter million tons up to the first of the present month. Cargoes are so scarce that with many vessels out of commission, instances are noted where boats upbound with coal have been forced to return to the lower lakes, light, or with only partial loads. To discharge crews while held up in port is a method of curtailing expenses to which some vessel masters are resorting. With this as the situation, labor troubles in these days of depression in the carrying trade seem rather surprising, still ore handlers on docks have latterly struck for higher wages, both at Marquette and Superior.

The Lake Superior region has been much interested in the announcement of the intention of Corrigan, McKinney & Co. of Cleveland, to erect two modern blast furnaces in that city. The concern ranks with Pickands, Mather & Co. and the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company as one of the leading independent miners of iron ore in the North country, and that it plans to use much more of its own raw material in stacks of its own, is believed to give assurance of more stable conditions in those mining fields in which it is interested. It is understood that the two furnaces will have a combined capacity of 400,000 tons of pig iron annually, and with the necessary docks and recoiving plant will represent an investment of not far from two and one-half millions.

Considerable of Corrigan, McKinney & Co.'s ore is now smelted in stacks in which the concern is interested, but materially the greater bulk of the product of the mines is sold in the open market. As a consequence it is not possible to keep the various properties in steady operation, such being the case now, when with the demand for ore of meagre proportions mines of the company are idle on the Menominee, Mesaba and Marquette ranges. The decision of the Corrigan, McKinney & Co. to embark much more extensively in the manufacture of pig iron, serves to draw attention to the fact that the source of ore supply for the furnaceman without mining affiliations is gradually becoming more restricted in the Lake Superior region. Even now the great bulk of the ore reserves is in the hands of the big consuming interests, and there is no mistaking the tendency toward further concentration.

Very little ore is moving from the stockpiles of the Corrigan-McKinney mines in the Crystal Falls district of the Menominee range, and with more than half of the properties inactive at present there is apprehension it may be necessary to add to the idle list. This particularly applies to the Dunn mine. None of the ore mined at this property last winter has been moved, and latterly shipments direct from the shaft have been suspended, all the product now going to the stock-pile. At the company's Armenia mine, a new shaft and crusher house has been built. Other improvement work has been done, but there are no evidences that it is intended to resume ore production in the near future. The fact that the Armenia is idle is hampering the development of the adjoining North Armenia property, where the Huron Mining company is at work, as well as making the pumping charges exceptionally heavy. Water is seeping through, and in forking it out the Huron people have already lowered by several feet the surface of the big reservoir formed by the Armenia pit.

The Mineral Mining company, of which George D. VanDyke of Milwaukee is president, has quit work at the Nanaimo mine at Iron River, Menominee range, and because the pumps have been taken out it is apparent the shutdown it to be of considerable duration. The property includes the old Beta mine, one of the pioneers of the field. It is economically operated, but the ore—a red hematite running rather high in phosphorus—is of a grade not in particularly good demand just at present, and, besides, the company has opened a better mine in the James property. The Nanaimo has a considerable amount of ore in stock, which doubtless will not be sold this season. The Sipchen tract, across the river from the Nanaimo, is being drilled by the Buffalo & Susquehanna furnace people. The same interests are testing the ore body at the Hiawatha mine, where a diamond drill is being used from the bottom level. The Spring Valley Iron company, controlled by Eugene Zimmerman and associates, has developed a good mine on the J. S. Kinney tract, near Iron River, and it is expected that fairly good-sized shipments will be made this season. The property has lately been provided with railroad facilities.

Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Hemlock mine at Amasa, Menominee range, is now forwarding its entire daily product. However, the property is not being wrought in vigorous fashion, and the shipments amount to only about eight carloads a day. Part of this is going all-rail to the Northwestern Furnace company, of Wisconsin. Ogleby, Norton & Co.'s big Bristol mine at Crystal Falls continues in idleness and it is not expected that a resumption here will take place this year. Of the large amount of ore in stock when operations were suspended in the spring, only 25,000 tons have yet been shipped. The Saginaw mine at Norway, which is understood to now be controlled by the Algoma Steel company of the Canadian Sault, has resumed shipments. Both the daily hoist and the ore in stock are going to the docks at Escanaba. The movement had been suspended since the closing of the Algoma Steel Works some weeks ago.

MONTANA MINING MATTERS

Helena, Mont., Aug. 15.—Rumor has been rife for several days that splendid uncoverings have been made on Bald mountain, near Marysville, and some have gone so far as to predict that even the Drum Lummon will be outdone.

P. J. Gilroy, formerly clerk and recorder of Silver Bow county, in an interview states that he is highly impressed with the future of the district between Butte and Helena, especially Basin, Corbin and Lump gulch. He said, after a recent trip over this territory, that good progress is being made on the Alta group of mines near Basin. The announcement has been made that a shaft will be sunk 1,000 feet. At the head of Lump gulch the Gold Crown Mining company had an expert mill man examine its property to see about the erection of a concentrator to treat the ore. It is expected to perfect the arrangements for the installation of a plant within a few days. About 75 per cent of the ore, it is reported by the expert, can be concentrated and the remainder will be shipped to the smelters for treatment.

John Kern, who has been prospecting and mining in the Old Highland district of Silver Bow county for more than forty years, has uncovered another large nugget in his diggings, which are located at the head of Foodle Dog gulch. The nugget, it is estimated, is worth $200. Kern last January washed out a nugget weighing sixty ounces, valued at $1,186.95, which is the largest nugget, with one exception, ever found in that district.

A crew of men has been placed at work in the tunnel of the Idaho Spring Gulch Mining company's property near Saltese. The property is opened up by a shaft and other surface workings for a distance of fifty or sixty feet along the outcroppings.

The Butte Willow Creek Mining company has purchased the Mountain Meadow mine on Cataract creek, about two miles west of Pony. This is an old property which has been idle for several years. It is a gold proposition and contains from one to four feet of milling and shipping ore.

Because of the failure of water supply, the American Gold Fields company, operating a placer proposition in Goodrich gulch, Madison county, has suspended operations for the season. In order that some of the difficulties may not be encountered in the future, a dam will be built.

A strike is reported in the Grebil mines on Gird creek in Granite county. The ore is rich in lead and silver, identical with that of the famous Coeur d'Alene mines. The property is owned by J. F. Grebil and Thomas Higgins, and is bonded to State Senator Donlan of Missoula.

OLD DOMINION CUTTING COST

Another Year Will See An End of the Extraordinary Expenditures at the Mine. New Shaft is Started.

Bisbee, Ariz., Aug. 15.—The Old Dominion management is gradually getting down its costs and it is believed that this year will see the end of the extraordinary expenditure which, for the past few years, have made the Old Dominion one of the highest cost producers in the country.

The Old Dominion is not only materially reducing its costs but it is paying off its floating debts, which on March 31, amounted to $750,000. The management expects to be entirely clear of debt by Oct. 1.

While detailed figures of costs for June are not at hand it is understood that by receiving 12.67 cents per pound for that month's production, the company netted a profit of two cents per pound. Net earnings, therefore, were about $70,000 which compares with $40,000 for May.

For July the company will receive an average of from ¼ to ⅜ cents per pound above the June figures, while the output should be about the same. Every cent per pound increase that the Old Dominion receives for its copper on the present output adds $1.25 per share to the earnings. Present copper costs are 10½ cents per pound and this figure includes from 1 to 1½ cents per pound for dead work.

A new and important development at the Old Dominion is the starting of a new two-compartment shaft about 600 feet west of Pinal creek, in territory which has never before been considered mineral-bearing. This action was taken with a view of opening the west country ore body which was found so expensive and rich until the water prevented further exploration. There was no outcropping or any surface indications of ore west of the creek, but underground conditions would indicate that the ore runs into this country, and the Old Dominion management will seek it at a distance of about 1,000 feet from the present known limits of the ore body.

BUYING UP GLOBE MINES

Globe, Aug 15.—Interest in the section immediately surrounding the Miami Copper company's holdings has grown to such proportions as to dwarf, temporally, at least, mining operations in other parts of the Globe district. Transfers of mining claims in that locality have been numerous during the past several weeks, and negotiations have been so quietly conducted that their significance has not been generally realized. The bonding of the Montezuma group for $150,000, announced in the Silver Belt of July 31, is the largest transaction since the Newman option on the Keystone property was confirmed in June but there has been a number of smaller deals involving the transfer of single claims and small groups, some of which were bonded, while others were cash transactions. In fact, a large part of the mineral ground around the Miami property has been tied up. There are, to be sure, notable exceptions, such important properties as the Inspiration, Eureka, Live Oak and others of less note which are held at stiff prices ranging from $1,500,000 down to $10,000 or $15,000, negotiations for some of which are now pending.

The important movement in that locality foreshadows a tremendous expansion of copper mining here that is bound to come within the next few years and which will make the Globe a rival of Butte, Montana, as a center of copper production.

A small force was put to work on the Keystone property last week making roads and trails to facilitate the moving of machinery and supplies, and grading sites for drilling rigs. It is proposed to prospect the ground by sinking a series of holes, 600 feet deep and 600 feet apart, with churn drills. This method of prospecting the ground has been adopted upon the theory that the Keystone property carries the continuation of the immense sulphide deposit opened in the Miami and Inspiration. Prospecting with churn drills is both cheap and expeditious, and should also prove effective in extensive ore deposits such as is being developed on adjacent properties.

Although very little has been published of late regarding developments at the Gem and Mallory shafts of the Montgomery mine of the Warrior Copper company, yet the work at both has gone ahead without a halt, and at the Gem with encouraging results. The Future Copper lead has been drifted on 300 feet east and west, on the 1,100 foot level of the Gem, and crosscuts driven into the vein every hundred feet. The sulphide ore body carrying about 3 per cent copper, and from 25 to 30 feet wide has been continuous in both drifts, and the ore opened by the last crosscut in the west drift shows heavy strata of sulphide, better than the average of the vein. The ground is loose and holds considerable water. General Manager McCarthy thinks the conditions are favorable for the occurrence of bodies of good oxidized ore between the 1,100 level and the surface, which is all virgin ground.

The Gem vein has been drifted on fifty feet, toward the west, and shows about 2½ feet of concentrating sulphide, assaying 4 per cent copper.

The south crosscut from the Mallory shaft has been driven over 800 feet and stringers of rich chalcopyrite one and one-half to two inches thick are now coming in. This crosscut should scon encounter the Taylor, or one of the several other leads in that vicinity. Altogether, recent developments on the property of the Globe Consolidated are very encouraging.

Changes at this property have not been important. The stope on the 450 foot level of the Great Eastern looks as good as ever and the output of ore is well maintained. Shipments to the smelter were irregular last week, owing to a scarcity of cars, for July, but they should show a corresponding increase in August. Drifting is still in progress east and west from the bottom of the winze below the 450 level and the ore is uniformly rich in copper and silver. The Gardiner shaft is down about 278 feet. Sinking is slower than formerly, owing to the hardness of the lime formation penetrated.

DULUTH'S TAX RATE.

As nearly as we can make out, the morning paper, because The Herald has presumed to speak for the taxpayers and to urge upon the tax-levying authorities of Duluth the need of keeping in mind the city's requirement of a tax rate as low as it can be made without running from the extreme of extravagance to the other extreme of false economy, feels obliged to come out for a high tax rate. If it chooses to occupy that position, that is its own affair; and its silly charge that the demand for a lower tax rate is "politics" is not worthy of consideration, in view of the fact that there is no municipal campaign in progress.

Discussion of the tax rate isn't politics; it is business, and mighty important business. Duluth has many needs, and one of them is that its tax rate shall attract investors and not scare them away. This need is more important than any other connected with the making of the tax rate, though that does not mean that the city authorities should pile up future costs and injure the city's credit by reckless slashes in the city estimates.

In making the levies, as The Herald has repeatedly said, a clear line must be drawn between the things which the city must have and those which it would like to have. That is real economy; and to cut out things that are really needed is false economy.

Duluth is growing and its needs are growing with its business and population. Its expenditures must be expected to increase, but they cannot increase faster than the city's ability to pay taxes without working harm to the city and its people. It is the duty of the city authorities to keep down expenses so that the tax rate, already too high, will not be increased; and if they can lower the rate without resorting to false economy, they will be doing their community a great service. With a stationary expenditure, an increased valuation based on real increases in actual values of property means a lower tax rate. With a stationary valuation, an increase in expenditures means a higher tax rate. The proper condition is where the valuation and the expenditures keep pace with each other, maintaining a stationary tax rate that is fair to all interests. There will be some increase in valuations this year, and that means that this year's tax rate repeated next year will bring more money, or that this year's expenditures repeated next year will produce a lower tax rate. We can see no reason for an increase in the total tax levy, and Comptroller McCormick's estimate would indicate that it is possible to make a decrease.

It must not be overlooked that every department head is anxious to make a showing, and that the natural tendency of such officials is to ask for more money with which to make a better showing. The city conference committee must see to it, looking to the best advantage of the entire city, that these requests are kept within reason and that the taxpayers are not called upon to pay more than they should. Neither should it be forgotten that the schools, over which the city authorities have no control, took 40 per cent of the money demanded of Duluth taxpayers for this year's taxes.

HELPING THE FARMER.

The view that because the farmer has free delivery and telephones, there is no need for the commission recently appointd by President Roosevelt to find out what can be done to make the farmer's lot better, is superficial and unworthy of notice. The farmer's life has been vastly improved in recent years, and he is by no means an object for charity or crocodile tears of affected sympathy; yet to say that his conditions are all that they should be because progress has given him some of its choicest benefits is to overlook a great deal that should not be overlooked.

Of course the commission which the president has entrusted with this work will find that a great deal is already being done for the farmer by the government. For instance, it will find that farm sanitation is a very much neglected science; that because the farm is out in the pure, free air of the country it is assumed to be wholesome and healthful, while water is being drunk from wells too close to sources of contamination and disease germs are thriving in ill-ventilated rooms. Yet in the bulletins of the department of agriculture will be found all the information necessary to make the farm thoroughly sanitary and wholesome. It will be found that the average farmer is not making the most of his opportunities; that he is in too many cases overlooking the value of silos, that he fails to do with his soil what a scientific soil survey would tell him to do, that in some cases he is impoverishing his land by thoughtless and unscientific methods. Yet the department of agriculture stands ready to help him on all these things if he will but ask its aid.

The commission will find, however, that the problem of farm help is a pressing and a vexing one, and if the president's appointees can solve it they will confer a lasting benefit upon the farmer and the country. It will also find that too many farmers' sons and daughters leave the farm; and that something ought to be done to keep them there and prevent their increasing the congestion of the cities in which, for most of them, there waits only a hard and profitless struggle against bitter circumstances.

In short, the commission will find plenty to investigate, and its report cannot fail to be profitable and useful.

Aside from agricultural and social problems, there are economic problems also which the commission will do well to consider. It will find that to the rural free delivery and the rural telephone should be added the parcels post and the postal savings bank. It will find that there is need of convincing the farmer—if he is not already convinced—that the tariff does not add a penny to his profits so long as prices of farm products are fixed in the world's markets without regard to tariff walls and international boundaries; and that while he is supporting the tariff under the mistaken apprehension that it benefits him, he is paying an unholy toll to the trusts through the prices charged for his farm implements and supplies.

THE INSIDIOUS FIRST STEP.

A new auditor for a financial institution in the East recently taught one of its oldest and most trustworthy employes a lesson that he needed, and a lesson that is worth while.

The institution in which this man was employed was one of four similar institutions, all controlled by the same corporation. The officers of the controlling corporation decided that as an additional measure of safety they would employ a high-priced accountant permanently as an auditor, and give him authority to enter any of the banks at any time and to demand of any official in charge of property of whatever nature, his books, assets and vouchers for the purpose of examination.

One day the new auditor appeared before the cashier of one of the banks, an old and tried employe during whose regime not a penny had been lost. The auditor looked over the cashier's books, and pronounced them all right. Then he looked over the securities, and found them to be correct. Next he announced that he would count the cash, and though the cashier said that he had just done that, and showed him the correct totals, the auditor insisted upon doing his own counting, and he did it. During the count he laid aside two packages of money, and when he had finished he said to the cashier: "I find two notes mixed in with your cash that have not been passed upon by the loan committee of your board of directors."

"Impossible!" said the cashier. The auditor then showed a package of bills, marked "$100." "I find this package a dollar short," said the auditor, "and in place of the dollar is an I. O. U. reading 'Borrowed—A. B. C.'" The old cashier laughed. "A. B. C.," he said, "is one of our receivers, and he took the dollar, with my consent, for his luncheon."

"Notwithstanding," said the auditor, "it is a loan not passed upon by the committee, and I decline to pass this bundle as $100 when it contains but $99." Then he showed that there was a similar shortage of $5 in another package, and the cashier explained that he had taken the money, substituting an I. O. U., for his personal use. The auditor insisted that this, too, was a loan not passed upon by the proper authorities, and declined to vouch for the totals. The cashier said that he was heavily bonded, and that his I. O. U. was as good as cash; but the auditor insisted that it was not, and refused to pass the cash account until the missing sums had been replaced. Then he read the cashier a lecture.

"I want to say right here," he said, "that this is the practice that makes embezzlers; the taking of little amounts which can be replaced, and then larger amounts which cannot be replaced. Stop it at once. It is not business."

The cashier thought the auditor was technical and over-officious, but he wasn't; he was absolutely right. You will notice every time that the trusted employe who embezzles trust funds is a respectable and tried servant in whom his employers put perfect trust; otherwise he would never have the opportunity to embezzle. Furthermore, you will notice, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, that the first sums stolen were small, and were usually replaced. The habit of taking trust funds for personal use once formed, the road to embezzlement and disgrace is easy. This cashier's lesson is one that all who are similarly situated should take to heart and consider well.

THE SENATORIAL PRIMARY.

The experimental nature of the primary nomination of United States senators, and the fact that it is at best but a poor substitute for the popular election of senators, are vividly shown in the case of the recent Republican contest in Illinois for the seat of Senator Hopkins of that state, who is "the most mechanical of machine politicians," and a most unyielding example of the old type of corporation conservative senators which is being gradually replaced.

It was very desirable that Hopkins should be beaten, and beyond question the people of Illinois wanted him beaten. Yet his machine is powerful, and he never could be beaten before a legislature nominated in the old way. So when Illinois adopted the primary election system, and included United States senators in it, the people thought they had him. The election is over and they haven't got him yet; but they may, even yet, hang his calloused hide upon the political fence.

He was opposed by Congressman Foss, and Former Senator "Billy" Mason, who is an honest man but a joke as a statesman, also got into the race. He managed to split up the opposition so that though Hopkins received about fifty thousand less votes than Foss and Mason, he still pulled through by a narrow plurality.

His victory had not lessened the desire to beat him, and a new plan is proposed. It is suggested that though Hopkins got a plurality of the votes, a majority of the Republican legislative districts gave pluralities to Foss. If each member of the legislature decides that he shall be bound by the vote of his own district, instead of by the vote of the entire state, Hopkins may yet be beaten; and reputable citizens and conscientious newspapers in Illinois are urging this view. There is, perhaps, a basis for it. The member of the legislature whose district went for Foss, even though the state went for Hopkins, will not be doing an unpopular thing if he disregards the instructions of the voters of the state and considers only the instructions of the voters of his own district. If the legislators reason this way, Foss may yet win.

Yet, bad as Hopkins is and desirable as it is that he should be beaten, it is questionable whether it ought to be done that way. The election of a United States senator is a matter in which the entire state is interested, and the evident object of the primary election law was to ascertain the sentiment of the people of Illinois. That sentiment, on the face of the returns, is for Hopkins, because he got more votes than anybody else, even if he did get many less than were cast against him.

Nearly everybody would be glad to see a man like Hopkins retired, but it should not be done at the cost of straining to the breaking point the new primary election law. If it is strained in behalf of a good man and against a bad one, a precedent is established for straining it later in behalf of a bad man with a big campaign fund and against a good man without any at all.

It will make all these things much simpler if the senate will submit an amendment providing for popular election of United States senators.

A MEASURE OF JUSTICE.

The law passed by congress last winter providing for compensation for employes injured in the government service went into effect Aug. 1, and while it is yet too early to tell how it is going to work, its operation will be watched with interest. It is important not only in itself, but because the government is thus setting an example of generosity and consideration that corporate and private employers should follow.

Under previous laws, compensation for injuries is paid to employes in the railway mail service and in the life saving service. The new law applies to persons employed by the government as artisans or laborers in the following services: arsenals, navy yards, river and harbor construction, fortification construction, hazardous employment in the reclamation service, hazardous employment under the Isthmian canal commission, and government manufacturing establishments.

According to a rough estimate made by the department of commerce and labor, about 75,000 government employes will come within the provisions of the law. Compensation will be paid under it only for such injuries to an employe as occur in the course of his employment and cause inability to pursue his employment for more than fifteen days. Compensation is not paid, of course, if the injury is due to the negligence or misconduct of the employe injured, and the act applies only to injuries received after Aug. 1, when the law became effective.

The compensation consists of a continuance during the period of disability, but not over a year, of the same pay which the employe was receiving at the time of injury. If the employe is killed or dies from the effects of an injury, and leaves a widow or children under 16 years of age or dependent parents, the same amount of compensation is paid to the relatives until the completion of the twelve months' period.

This measure is one of the results of President Roosevelt's campaign to remove from the shoulders of the dependent employe the burden of carrying the risk of employment and to place it upon the employer, who is able to bear it and who should be made to bear it. It is a complete reversal of the universal rule that has been maintained for an indefinite period, and it establishes a precedent of justice that will, it is hoped, be carried out ultimately into all branches of employment both public and private.

BREAD ON THE WATERS.

Several years ago a working woman of Plymouth, Mass., was able to give a cup of coffee and a few tender cares to a New York woman who was passing through the village and was taken ill at the station while the train stopped. It wasn't much, and the humble working woman was glad to do it, and she thought no more of it after the train had passed on except to hope that the sick woman would quickly recover.

She did recover, and the other day, according to a dispatch from Plymouth, her benefactor received from her a gift of $3,000 in good substantial cash. It wasn't a legacy, either; the grateful city woman did not wait until her death to recompense the good woman who had helped her in her hour of need, but gave while both were living and able to appreciate the amenities of the situation.

This sounds like a Sunday school book story of requited benevolence, or like the tale of the good girl who gave a cup of water to a hideous hag, only to find later that the hag was a fairy in disguise who afterward returned with a hand full of gifts.

The New York Sun is reminded of the following legend in one of Thackeray's papers: "We have all heard the story of the gentleman of the last century who, when a crowd of young bucks and bloods in the crushroom of the opera were laughing and elbowing an old lady there—an old lady, lonely, ugly and unprotected—went up to her respectfully and offered her his arm, took her down to his own carriage, which was in waiting, and walked home himself in the rain—and twenty years afterward had ten thousand a year left him by this very old lady as a reward for that one act of politeness."

Such stories—and there are plenty of others, if we may believe them all—make very pleasant reading, and are very encouraging to true courtesy; yet it is to be hoped that if they induce young men and women to be polite to their elders and inferiors it will not be with a speculative eye upon possible outcomes of this nature. That would spoil it all, for true courtesy is not actuated by the hope of reward.

In neither of these cases was the good deed done with any thought of reward. To the gentleman of the seventeenth century—and he was a real gentleman, whether he bore a title or not or whether he wore a court costume or a workman's clothes—the woman he befriended was merely a woman in distress, and the possibility that she was rich and would reward him with a legacy had no more influence with him than the fact that she was old and ugly. Any young man would have jumped at the chance of serving her if she had been young and beautiful, but there are not enough of the sort of young men to whom unprotected womankind is always an appeal to the best that is in them.

It is the lackey and the born servant who is courteous with the hope of reward; and it is the real gentleman and the real lady who is courteous to all alike, whether they are rich or poor, in silks or in rags.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"I guess there must be something to that story that the Lake Superior air does not agree with race horses the first year," said O. L. North of Grand Forks, N. D., at the McKay. "An instance of this was brought to my notice the other day. Do you remember Kittie Birchwood? The name is too attractive, of course, to belong to anything but a horse.

"Kittie Birchwood was brought to Duluth by J. J. Colt, who resides on Garfield avenue, I believe. She was reported to be rather fast, and he expected great things of her. The animal proved to be a disappointment, however, and the best she could do, so far as I can gather, was to make a mile in four or five minutes, or thereabouts.

"Mr. Colt finally became disgusted with her actions, so much so, in fact, that he took advantage of an opportunity to trade the horse to a North Dakota man, who took a fancy to her. In exchange he got a driving horse, worth a good deal less than the price paid for Kittie. I understand that he felt well satisfied with his bargain to begin with, although later on his new possession developed certain tendencies not altogether agreeable. Meantime Kittie Birchwood was taken to Dakota. The Western air evidently agreed with her. I heard just before leaving home that in work outs she had stepped a mile in 2:15, and later in 2:10. The report came from what I consider a reliable source. If true, it certainly speaks well for the bracing atmosphere of North Dakota, so far as horses are concerned. Personally, a minute of Lake Superior air does me more good than a week of Dakota's finest."

"The habit people have in the country and in smaller towns and villages, also in some of the larger ones, of raising a racket around the house of a newly-married couple, doesn't appeal very strongly to me," said G. E. Martin of Saginaw, Mich., at the Spalding. "I don't know just what I would do if any one tried it on me, but rather believe I might be induced to use a shotgun on the mob. However, if really placed in that position, I probably would submit gracefully, and produce enough coin to provide drinks or eatables for the crowd, thus bringing to a peaceful ending something that cannot usually be settled very well any other way.

"An amusing incident came up in connection with one of the affairs down our way a year or two ago. A crowd of fifty or more gathered around the home of a farmer, who had just married a second time. He was a thrifty soul, and had the reputation of being very close. The people through the district knew how badly he hated digging down for the coin, and thought it would be a lot of fun to get together and raise a racket until he dug up. The bunch gathered in the usual way, with bells, whistles, old tin pans and every other instrument that might be expected to make a noise when blown on, pounded or kicked.

"It so happened that about two years before the farmer in question had lost a cow bell. He always felt that someone had stolen the bell, but never had any proof of the fact. He had a good memory, however, and believed that he would recognize the sound of the thing if he ever heard it again. Now, in this crowd around the house there was one man from a distant part of the community who had a cow bell whose peculiar clang could be heard above all the rest.

"'By gosh, Mandy,' said the groom to his bride, 'I hear a bell out yonder that was stolen from me nigh onto two years ago. I am going after it.'

"True to his word, he slipped out of the back door, and then by a circuitous route through the darkness, came around into the crowd. It was pretty dark, and no one recognized him, until he suddenly pounced upon the individual tinging the peculiar-sounding cow bell. There was more or less excitement, and a good deal of good-natured joshing as the result of the farmer's accusations, but it was agreed that if he should prove ownership by giving identification marks before the bell was taken into the light, he should be given the instrument. He proved ownership, all right, and was so pleased over the affair that he shelled out $10 cash, and the crowd departed on its way rejoicing."

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

•••Mrs. M. M. Berg has returned from a visit to Southern Minnesota.

•••Olaf Hoglund, editor and proprietor of the Evenska Folkert, a Minneapolis paper, was in the West end yesterday, visiting his friend, J. F. Erickson.

•••Dr. A. F. McKay has decided to move his family from West Superior to Chicago, where he expects to make his headquarters for some time, superintending the publication of his monthly magazine.

•••Walter Fitch was married in Eau Claire yesterday to Miss Florence Harper. The newly wedded couple arrived in Duluth today and will reside here most of the time in future. Mr. Fitch is a member of the insurance firm of Kaufman & Fitch.

•••Mrs. W. W. Allen, Mrs. W. M. Wilson, Mrs. Frank Campbell and son, Miss Ada Young, Miss Emily Young, Miss Lizzie Young, Miss Harriet Lyon, Miss Anna McCall, Miss Mary Crittenden, Mrs. George Edwards, Miss Mary Edwards, Miss Luella Mather and Miss Lizzie Brown arrived today on the steamer Japan and will remain in Duluth a few days, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Seeley, 219 Second avenue east.

•••Hugh Mathson, an insane logger working at Nelson's lumber camp on St. Louis bay, tried three days ago to commit suicide by drowning, but was frustrated in his attempts. The last time, jumping into shallow water he obstainately held his head under water and made a severe struggle before he could be taken out. Mathson is well known in West Duluth, where he has worked for several years. Since the Cloquet boom broke, he has been working for the Nelson Lumber company. About two weeks ago he developed symptoms of insanity, and lately would not answer questions put to him by his companions.

•••C. D. Blanchard, inspector of the customs district of Marquette, that formerly took in Duluth, has been removed for political acdivity, and C. M. York of Houghton has been appointed in his place.

•••George Cook was arrested by Officer Smollett in the cupola of an elevator where he had taken refuge from a mob in pursuit of him for attempting to assaut a little girl in a box car at Rice's Point. He dentes that he tried to injure the child in any way.

•••County Commissioner Heisler has returned from St. Paul, bringing with him the plans for the new jail, approved by the state board of corrections.

THE WEATHER.

Rather earlier than usual, though something of the sort usually comes toward the end of September, a northeaster started in yesterday, continued today, and is likely to last into tomorrow according to the weather man. This morning, though the wind was not strong, the lake was its source and the sky was covered with clouds from which came a cold, drizzling rain. Yesterday's highest temperature was 56 degs, and last night's lowest was 51 degs. The weather man expects cool northeast winds and showers tonight and probably tomorrow.

A year ago today it was warm, clear and fine.

The sun rose this morning at 5:05 and sets tonight at 7:19, making 14 hours and 14 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "During the past twenty-four hours showery weather continued in the Rocky mountains, Arizona, New Mexico and the Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys as a result of slight barometric depressions overlying Kansas, Arizona and the region north of Montana. Falling pressures in western Canada are attended by rising temperatures there and in the western Dakotas, while in Nevada, Utah and Arizona a rise in pressure has caused cooler weather. The barometer continues high in the Lake region. Indications favor further showers in this locality tonight and probably Sunday.

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Hot Weather Religion.

How have your faith, hope and love stood the test of this extraordinarily warm summer? Have you been quite as pleasant and considerate as you are under less trying external conditions? A frank answer might embarrass some of us. It must be admitted that the fierce and prolonged heat is exceedingly trying and that it makes severe demands upon one's stock of patience and good cheer. And yet why should exceptional weather conditions affect one's inward state or outward behavior? The martyrs in the early Christian centuries found it considerably warmer, especially those who went to the stake, and if we once allege as an excuse that the mercury is lingering in the 90s, we at once make conformity to high moral standards, a matter subject to the prevailing climate. On that principle you would not expect a person dwelling near the equator to exhibit the virtues and graces that we should expect in a man dwelling in the temperate zone or even in the Arctic.

Then, again, when we lower our flag because the weather is "nasty" or otherwise not to our liking, we practically go back on the fundamental principle of our religion, which is that it creates and maintains in the soul an attitude toward life that makes one superior to the fluctuations of the weather and to the outward environment in general. As the poet put it long ago:

'The mind within itself can make

Modern thought is dwelling much upon the power of the mind over the body. Some say that it can, to a large extent, control and perhaps eliminate disease. We may not go as far as that, but if we have any conception of what the spiritual life is as that life has been described and illustrated by the great poets, prophets and seers of the human race, we ought to realize that in what Mathew Arnold calls "unwardness" is the secret of quiet, composed and joyous living in the world.

Certainly, if religion is good for anything, it ought to be good the year through, and to be able to stand the tests of one sort and another that are sure to arise as the weeks sweep on. If you have no religious life in the winter and spring, you are not likely to have any in the summer; but if you have sought to do justice, love mercy and walk humbly with your God in January and March and May, you will not find it difficult so to do in July and August.

Why not carry the war to Africa and welcome the extraordinary chance the summer gives to be patient, kind, forbearing, helpful and hopeful? Even the tedious waits at the stations, even languor and physical depletion, even hot days and hot nights, even unpleasant surroundings and uncongenial companions may furnish the best opportunities to witness to our power of self-control and of self-sacrifice. As some one has well said: "Character is what a man is on his vacation."

I happen to know a young woman who, at the beginning of this summer, quietly said to herself, having in mind unfortunate experiences in other years, that she would strive to register a real moral advance before autumn. If I am any judge of character, she is doing it, without any palaver or fuss, but simply by trying to be her best self, however hostile the circumstances, however strong the temptation to selfishness.

THE PARSON.

ON THE FUNNY BONE.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Jones—Is that cheese good?

Shopkeeper—Good! Why, it's unapproachable.

Washington Star: "Have you made any important discoveries this year?"

"I have," answered the scientific searcher; "I have discovered a new financial backer."

Baltimore American: "What made Jones speak so dryly to Miss Betty about her misfortune?"

"Because she was worried about getting her bathing suit wet."

Cleveland Leader: "Tiresome preacher, that Dr. Ninthly."

"My goodness, yes! Why, the vestrymen had to advertise for somnambulists to act as ushers."

Philadelphia Press: "The path of true love is running smooth enough for us," fondly remarked the young wife, as she kissed first her spouse and then their lovely babe.

"Perhaps so," replied the young husband, doubtfully, as he eyed the waiting cradle, "but I must confess I see rocks ahead."

Washington Star: "Prisoner," said the judge sternly, "it looks a little suspicious when you hesitate before telling the court your name."

"Well, your honor," answered the man who was arrested for speeding, "I have been pretty busy learning all the numbers on my automobile. A man can't remember everything."

Chicago Tribune: Ripson—Take your umbrella out of my eye, you blundering idiot!

Snortz—Move your eye away from my umbrella, you lazy hound!

Baltimore American: "I do not think," said the syndicate director to his associates, "that we ought to call this place where we meet to join our interests against competition, a meeting or a board room."

"I should call it our poolroom."

Progress in Turkey.

New York Tribune: Turkish women are promptly unveiling. Perhaps they will soon be organizing "suffragette" demonstrations under the windows of the Yildiz Kiosk.

WILLIAM F. VILAS

By SAVOYARD.

AT THIS writing William F. Vilas is dead, or dying, at his summer home in Wisconsin at the age of 68. There were giants in those days when Vilas was a paladin of the Democratic party, the Girondists of a big political epoch. Who but admires Vergniaud and who but hates Marat? Yet, in politics, a force like Danton will ever defeat and overthrow a sentiment like Lafayette. Like Stephen A. Douglas and Matt Carpenter, Vilas was born in Vermont, and he makes a third, with Carpenter and Carl Schurz, as Wisconsin's contribution to the elite of America's political intellectuality. As orator, lawyer, thinker, statesman, he was of the front rank of his day.

was a paladin of the Democratic party, first time I ever heard of Vilas, when I read a speech of some 12,000 words he made on the then political situation. What a master of "the tongue that Shakespeare spake" was he! How perfect was every sentence! What a force of argument it was with which he assailed the error that all of us Democrats then felt, as well as knew, to be the fallacy of all Republican peachments!

In 1884 Vilas was permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention that nominated Grover Cleveland for president, and in our convention history no abler speech has ever fallen from the lips of a convention chairman. It was the keynote of the campaign, and it inspired all of that vast concourse who heard it. That was a time when the Democratic party was Democratic—when it believed something, when it could expound the faith that was in it.

the Girondists of a big political epoch, tively he chose Vilas as one of his cabinet, and he had no wiser counselor, not even Bayard or Lamar. He was the first Democratic postmaster general since Joseph Holt, and the office never knew an abler chief. There is one quality without which every man, whatever his station, whatever his gifts, is dross—faithfulness to obligation, expressed or implied. Vilas knew his party was pledged to "civil service reform," as it is called, and he stood the hazard of the die as cast by the Democratic convention of 1884. That made him unpopular.

Some day, in the not very remote future, history will tell the truth, extenuating nothing and setting down naught to malice, about the two administrations of Grover Cleveland, twice president of the United States. Here is what John C. Carlisle, a Democrat of the straightest sect, predicted the verdict of history would be:

"Gentlemen, I shall forbear to say anything on this occasion concerning the recent Democratic administration of national affairs, except to assure its friends and its enemies alike that, from the president down to the humblest who co-operated with him in the excercise of the executive authority, every member of that administration is content to submit all its acts to the severest scrutiny, and wait patiently the verdict of the impartial history. When the passion and prejudice, the personal animosities, and the personal grievances of these disordered times have passed away, and the public mind is prepared to consider administrative measures and domestic and foreign policies on their real merits, the last administration of Grover Cleveland will need no champion to vindicate its wisdom and patriotism before a just and generous people."

Whenever fell from orator statlier words? When was the language ever made simpler? And when did the race produce a man whose dignity was also the excitment couched in this, the last public utterance of John G. Carlisle in a political assembly—the pasage I have quoted?

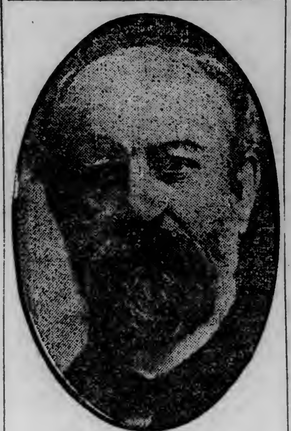
Vilas, though not of the cabinet, was a part of that administration. Perhaps its most trusted counselor in the United States senate, and certainly it had no abler champion in that body than he. He always made the galleries full when he was heralded for a speech, but he was not an attractive orator to my taste. He had a harshness of voice and some attitudes of mannerisms that I did not like. In this respect he was like Bailey, of Texas, and yet crowds, better judges of such things than I, hung on his words as they do on Joe Bailey's. To my mind, Bailey's speeches are the ablest of any man now in public life. I never fail to read every word of them; but I do not love to hear him, as I did to hear Frank Hurd or George Vest, or Zeb Vance, or Ed Carmack, or John Sharp Williams.

I could listen, and with delight, to Hoar or Turner for hours; but to my taste, Matt Carpenter was the greatest orator I ever heard, and I have listened to Beecher and Ingersoll. Ben Hill had mannerisms like Bailey and Vilas, but his every sentence weighed a hundred pounds when the lion in him was aroused, and in action. Conkling was a very great orator, but he, too, had mannerisms that drove me out of the gallery, yet if you would see a wizard of our tongue, get his speeches in combat with Carl Schurz on the "French Arms Sale." There is the mosaic of language, tongued and grooved, and yet how different from the simple statement of John G. Carlisle or the sledge-hammer argument of Allen G. Thurman. I heard Blaine frequently—how inspiring he was! How fluent! How like a chicken cock he looked! How provocative he was! and yet there was a matter of the flippant and the superficial and the harlequin in what he said, but the way he spoke it recalled Saint-Simon on the Regent Orleans:

For I am Philippe le Debonaire.
Philippe le Debonnaire.

And that is what made millions who never saw him throw their caps in the air as they never cheered the name of "the man from Maine," and he was not half as great as George Evans, before him, or Tom Reed, after him, at that.



WILLIAM F. VILAS.

• • •

As a sample of erudite and ornate English, few speeches the United States senate ever heard equal that of Vilas on Father Marquette. About forty years ago, the spirit of mischief got into Justin S. Morrill, a senator from Vermont, and he was instrumental in establishing what they call "the national Valhalla." It is in the old hall of the house of representatives, where John Randolph of Roanoke was the fiercest of debaters and where John Quincy Adams fell in his death swoon. It was provided that each state might send statues of any two of its, at any time, citizens, who were dead. Vermont sent a big chunk of granite that it calls Ethan Allen, Ohio sent two chunks of marble, one named James A. Garfield and the other William Allen. All three of these, along with many of the others, ought to be carted to the limekiln, for that is all they are fit for. Illinois sent a bronze statue of an Irishman, James Shields, and a marble effigy of a woman, Miss Willard of the temperance union.

• • •

Wisconsin sent the finest work of art in the entire collection, a marble image of the French Catholic priest, Father Marquette. Vilas, no doubt a descendant of some Hugenot refugee, made the oration in the senate presenting to the nation the statue of this Catholic priest, and it is a gem unsurpassed in congressional eloquence. He seemed to do with the language whatever he saw fit.

• • •

A few days afterward I accosted in the rotunda a Republican member of the house from Wisconsin, an A. P. A. Sometimes it is good to pester folks, and I asked him if he had read Vilas' speech presenting to the nation the statue of Father Marquette. He got surly at once, as I expected, and as I wished, and said he had not, and, what was more, he did not intend to read it. I then asked him when he intended to present the statue in the house, whereupon he damned himself if he intended presenting it at all.

I then dropped my disputatious mood and represented to him that a sovereign state spoken through its legislature, and that as the legislature of Wisconsin had by solemn enactment nullified the act of congress, approved by a president of the United States from Bufalo, N. Y., it was now meet that, or that monstrous sin, the Wisconsin delegation in congress should proceed to carry out the direction of the legislature of Wisconsin ratifying an act of congress, touching which no question of its constitutionality or immorality, could be raised.

He answered me with a look of ashen rage and in the language Gen. Hawley used in reply to kindred interview with "Sunset" Cox, "go to h—l," and so he left me, and to this day the statue of Father Marquette has not been presented to the nation at the south end of the capitol.

• • •

The last speech Vilas made in the senate was worthy of old Ben Hardin. The Republican platform of 1896 had a plank to catch gudgeons—that is, the Republican party would invite Europe to help the United States swindle the entire debtor world by adopting 16 to 1. Wolcott of Colorado, brought in a bill to carry out this absurility, and the bill passed, but not until Vilas picked every feather of it and laid naked the pusillanimity, the absurdity, and the hypocrisy o it. As a triumphant argument I never heard it surpassed in either house o congrfess.

• • •

But, lor', the little finger of a pigmy like Jerry Simpson is thicker in Democratic council than the loins of a giant like William F. Vilas.

And that is what is the matter with the Democratic party.

WISCONSIN ABSTRACTORS HAVE ELECTED OFFICERS.

Marinette, Wis., Aug. 15.—At the annual convention of the Wisconsin Abstractors held here, J. T. Kenney of Madison was re-elected president; W. H. Hardy, Jr., of Waukesha was elected first vice president; Alman Smith, Crandon, second vice president; A. L. Anderson, Racine, third vice president; W. J. Tubbs, Elkhorn, secretary, and Miss Fisher of Ashland was made treasurer.

Miss White was hostess at dinner last evening at the Country club in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. William Dalyrmple, who will leave in the autumn for Minneapolis to make their home. Nasturtiums were the decorations used.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

The first of the musical events of the late summer was the testimonial concert which was held Wednesday evening at the Pilgrim Congregational church in compliment to Miss Lausetta Reitz. The program was of musical interest, not only because of Miss Reitz, but in view of the fact that the Tyler Operatic Quartette was heard for the first time, and Miss Gladys Reynolds was presented to a Duluth audience. The other numbers were by prominent musicians whose names are met with gladly on concert programs. The opening number was a duet by Messrs. Koneczny and Suffel, who sang "Pescatori" by Gabussi in Italian and was a good example of tthe Tyler Italian method of phrasing. Mr. Koneczny was heard in a solo "Queen of the Earth" by Pinsuti, and while from a slight hoarseness his number was much enjoyed, Mr. Suffel also sang the dramatic "How's My Boy" by Homer and was well received.

Miss Reynolds who sang a group of two songs, is one of the young singers who will be watched with interest by Duluth. Her voice is a soprano of splendid promise and she sings well with a breadth and fine appreciation that promise much for her during the next few years of study.

Miss Fleming's "Goodby," and Mr. Fred G. Bradbury who is always welcome on a program, presented two violin numbers "Serenade" by Schubert and "Seranade Radine" by Gabriel-Marie. The closing number was the Tyler Operatic Quartette, composed of Misses Reynolds and Fleming and Messrs. Koneczny and Suffel. Although the number presented was a pretentious one, the quartette from Verdi's "Rigoletto," it was sung in a manner compare favorably with many professional quartettes and the organization will doubtless be heard with much pleasure during the coming winter.

Miss Reitz, whose voice is a mezzo-soprano of full rich quality, exceed the expectations of her friends in the Schubert, "Who is Sylvia" and a group of two "Love in a Cottage" by Ganz and "Bowl of Roses' by Ronead. Miss Reitz will leave in the autumn to study at Chicago and her friends here will watch her progress with interest.

The accompanist for the evening was Mrs. Fred G. Bradbury.

Rustic Musicale.

Mrs. D. H. Day and George L. Tyler have issued invitations for a rustic musicale to be given Friday evening of next week at the Yacht club. The program will be presented by the advanced pupils from Mrs. Day's and Mr. Tyler's classes. The ushers will be Miss Irma Hartley, Miss Julia Morrow, Miss Marjorie Morrow and Miss Nathalie Smith. After the program an informal dance will be enjoyed by the guests. The program is as follows:

PART I.

A.—"Melody," ..... Schumann
B.—"Rider Story," .....
Miss Alice Lang.
Waltz in A-minor ..... Chopin
Miss Martha Linner.
"Cavatina," Faust ..... Gounod
John Koneczny.
"Norwegian Bridal Procession,"..Grieg
Miss Jeannette Gornberg.
"Prayer,"—La Tosca ..... Puccini
Miss Gladys Reynolds. ..
"Berceuse," (Cradle Song) .....Chopin
Miss Maud Gilbert.

PART II.

"Cycle of Life," .....Landen Ronalds
Miss Marie Clark.
"Rondo Capriccoso," .....Mendelloha
Miss Alyda Flanders.
"Eri Tu," Ballo in Maschera .....Verdi
George Suffel.
"Tarantelle" in G-flat .....Moszkowski
Mrs. F. W. Schneider.
Quartette—"Rigoletto," ..... Verdi
Tyler Operatic Quartette.
Miss Reynolds, Mr. Koneszny,
Miss Fleming, Mr. Suffel.

LARGE WHEAT CROP.

New York Expert Discounts Wail of Calamity Howlers.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Oscar K. Lyle, statistician for the New York produce exchange and a noted crop expert, who has been covering the Northwest in the interests of Eastern people, was on the Minneapolis exchange Friday.

Mr. Lyle puts the wheat crop of the three Northwestern states at 165,000,000 bushels for the minimum production. This is 10,000,000 bushels larger than last year. In speaking of the rust visitation, the point was made by this expert that the crop was remarkably early and the rust unusually late.

LEASE ST. CLOUD COMPANY.

Plant Taken Over by Light and Water Company.

St. Cloud, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lease of the St. Cloud Water Power company to the Light & Power company of this city for mill power from the dam, together with an assignment by the latter to the Union Power company, has been filed with the register of deeds.

According to the paper the company is to take twelve mill-power horsepower from the company, with the privilege of using sixteen whenever necessary.

The terms of the lease say that after it becomes effective on Oct. 1, 1908, the power company may erect a hydro-electric plant on certain lots near the dam. The dam company must then erect structures on the main canal or head race leading to the proposed plant and inlet, and also in the tail race between the outlet and the head race, to protect the plant of the electric company and for the maintenance thereof. If necessary, the dam company shall place at the outlet of the main canal an additional gate with proper piers to drain the head race, and also when asked, to construct proper sluiceways from the gates to the Mississippi river which shall lie outside of the line of the head race and tail race used in connection with the plant. These improvements will be made in the near future.

HORSE THIEVES SENTENCED.

Campbell, Minn., Aug. 15.—The two horse thieves, Frank Evand and Frank Smith, who recently stole a team of mules here and were arrested at Foxhome, eight miles northeast of here, were sentenced to one year in the Stillwater penitentiary by Judge Flaherty.

Phillips, secretary; J. Nimius, treasurer; executive committee, E. E. Greeno, H. W. Barrett, R. B. Greeley, J. L. Cross, C. J. Johnson, R. W. Robinson, J. L. Mahoney, H. C. Miller and E. A. Kelley.

The club indorsed the Chicago platform, pledged its support to all Republican candidates and indorsed the record of Congressman Lindbergh.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Crookston—Secretary G. H. Becker of the state board of barber examiners has notified Alderman Snyder that the next meeting of the board would be held in Crookston on Thursday, Sept. 10.

Middle River—Nels Johnson has commenced operations scraping out the basin for the lake that is to be formed in Middle river by damming up the river. The dam will be on First street, and from two to three feet of dirt will be excavated from the river valley, between the dam and the foot bridge, thus making a lake a block long by about 175 feet wide.

Princeton—John Stadden, one of the earliest settlers of Spencer Brook, died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anson Howard in this village on Tuesday afternoon from a general breaking down of the constitution, the result of old age. Mr. Stadden was almost 88 years of age and had been ailing for about ten years.

Crookston—G. P. Whitesel of Fanny has filed as a candidate for county commissioner from the Fifth district, on the Public Ownership ticket. He will have no opposition on that ticket.

Warren—During the fair here the homes of Charles Wittenstein and a Mr. Johnson were broken into and valuables stolen. Mr. Wittenstein lost $140 in gold and the home of Mr. Johnson was robbed of a large amount of jewelry. One other man was touched up on the streets for $42, and Dr. Carrels of Argyle had his watch stolen out of his pocket while coming home on the train.

Little Falls—Considerable excitement was stirred up at the county jail Monday morning when a man, giving his name as John Doyle of Kansas, attempted to kill himself by knocking his head with a cuspador. Earlier in the day he tried to cut his throat with a piece of glass. He was detected in both acts before he accomplished the desired end.

Anoka—Mrs. Hersey, whose illness assumed such a critical stage last week that death was expected, has undergone a surprising change for the better, and her son, Mel Hersey, who was called here, has therefore returned to his work in Duluth.

Ada—Some early threshing has been reported this week, machines being in operation on the Storey farm adjoining town and Neukom farm in Lake Ida. Some threshing was also done at Hadler the first of the week.

Perham—Mrs. Anton Wilkowski, 48, whose home was just south of town, died Tuesday from blood poison, caused by a slight injury to her foot.

New York Mills—A pretty home wedding took place here Wednesday evening, at 8:20, at the home of the bride, when Miss Ora Moine was united in marriage to Charles Ovren of Billings, Mont.

Moorhead—Dr. and Mrs. D. C. Darrow and their guest, Miss Shephard of Exeter, England, returned on delayed No. 2 Wednesday afternoon from their tour of the Yellowstone National Park. They covered the park thoroughly and were fortunate enough to see Old Faithful, Grand and Giant geysers in full play.

St. Cloud—Louis Dueber, clerk at the office of the county auditor, has made a settlement through his attorneys, Messrs. Stewart & Brower, with the Great Northern Railway company, for injuries received in a runaway at the crossing of the St. Joseph road, west of the city.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

MINNESOTA

ARE FILING UPON LANDS

Action Taken Under Circular From United States Land Office.

Cass Lake, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The land seekers, who have been gathered in front of the United States land office for the past month have resigned their positions and have proceeded to settle on the lands. In accordance with circulars of instruction received at the land office, it is understood that the lands are now open to settlement, but the date for filing is Sept. 15.

The lands to be filed on Sept. 15 are, 3,741.72 acres in the former Leech Lake reservation, classified as agricultural land under the act of Jan. 14, 1889; 13,924.37 acres of agricultural lands selected and reserved for further selection by the forestry department of agriculture, under the act of June 27, 1902; 28,959. acres of cut over lands (land from which the timber has been cut) open to homestead entry under act of May 23, 1908.

All the lands in Winnibigoshish, Cass Lake, Leech Lake and Chippewa of the Mississippi Indian reservation not included in national forest created thereby are open to homestead settlement as fast as the timber is removed.

The circulars further states that none but actual settlers will be permitted to file.

AGED MAN'S HARD LUCK.

Stricken With Paralysis, While Alone, Nearly Dead When Found.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ten days alone in the woods, paralyzed and with practically no food, Chris. Bergland was brought to the city yesterday afternoon and taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where his condition is serious. Bergland, who is 62 years of age, homestead near Bayfield and is without relatives in this country, so far as he knows. He says that ten days ago he had a stroke of paralysis and from then until Thursday night he was alone in the woods and all that he had to eat was corn cakes which he manged to make from ground corn and meal. He was unable to move about, and had not another homesteader happened along and found him he would have perished. He is almost a dwarf. His back is terribly humped and when he stands erect he measures less than five feet in height. His exact condition has not as yet been ascertained.

A part of the time Bergland subsisted on uncooked meal, but when discovered he was too weak to crawl to the meal chest and had given up to die.

SEVENTH VICTIM CLAIMED BY STRANGE DISEASE.

Eau Claire, Wis., Aug. 15.—The strange illness attacking children in this city and which appears to be a form of spinal meningitis, claimed another victim when Frank, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Felton, passed away after having been ill hardly more than a day.

This makes seven deaths that have occurred in the city from the disease so far.

Over twenty-five cases have been reported to Health Officer Farr and he states that there are possibly more which have not been reported.

WISCONSIN

WRITES OBITUARY TO SUIT HIMSELF

Manitowoc, Wis., Aug. 15.—To be sure that his death notice should be to his liking S. A. Wood, who died yesterday, wrote it in advance and arranged for its publication without alteration. He was 87 years of age and a bachelor.

In writing his own obituary, Mr. Wood followed out a custom that he had followed with the newspapers in the last few years. He was peculiar in that respect, desiring that they publish contributions from him to the minutest detail of punctuation.

After giving the date of his birth and making a brief reference to his early life, Mr. Wood said in his autobiography:

"Detesting the corrupt practices of politicians, Mr. Wood was never politically ambitious and his public promotions were limited to those of village clerk, village president and postmaster. He regarded law as among the noblest of the learned professions —as one in which the requisite legal attainments, qualifications and moral integrity, a man may render greater, better and more valuable service to his fellow men in the ways of uprightness, loyalty and good citizenship than can be the result from the practice of most other professions. In short, he believed in the anomaly—an 'honest lawyer'—and on that basis had a successful and honorable practice of a decade or so.

"But the character of most of the pioneer litigation the trival and revengeful causes from which most of it sprang, the usually full expectations of the clients that a lawyer must espouse, and exhibit all the hatreds and animosities which they cherish for their opponents led to such a distaste for the practice that he finally lapsed into a strictly real estate business that continued in diminishing degree to the time of his death."

UPPER MICHIGAN

MEDICAL SOCIETY WILL MAKE FIGHT

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—In an endeavor to wipe out tuberculosis in the Copper country, the Houghton County Anti-Tuberculosis society is about to organize the first tuberculosis class ever formed in Northern Michigan, and, aided by a woman worker from the Emmanuel tuberculosis class of Boston, Mass., will from now on wage an active campaign against the white plague.

At a meeting of the society this week steps were taken toward enforcing the ordinance intended to prevent the spread of tuberculosis, and other plans were formulated, which, it is believed, will have a tendency to check the inroads which the disease has made in this region during the past few years.

LABOR DAY AT HANCOCK.

Unions of Copper Country Planning Fitting Celebration.

Hancock, Mich., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Labor day, Sept. 7, will be observed by the trade unions of Houghton and Hancock this year in a most auspicious manner.

Folowing the usual custom this year's celebration proper will be held in Hancock, the last one having been held in Houghton. There will be a monster parade of all local unions in the morning, ranks being formed at Kroll's and store and the line of march being west to the bridge, across the lake and thence west to Hancock to the park where the exercises of the day will take place. There will be a number of addresses made at the park, after which dancing and other forms of amusement will be provided.

Mr. Stewart of the Carpenters' union will act as president of the day and Albert Rouleau, president of the Moulders' union, will be grand marshal. His aides will be Jesse Barnes of the Painters' union, Frank O'Dill of the Printers' union and James Kelly of the Carpenters' union.

At the park there will be one or more dancing contests, for which handsome prizes will be awarded, and there will likely be some athletic sports arranged. The unions that will participate in the parade and the day's observance will be: Printers, Painters, Carpenters, Cigarmakers, Moulders, Barbers, Lathers, Stonemasons, Brick Layers and Longshoremen.

Hancock—Residents in the vicinity of the city hall are registering vigorous objections to the use of the vacant space in its rear as a slaughter pen for the dogs which are captured without tag or muzzle. They declare that practice is anything but edifying to adults, and that its effect upon little children who witness it is demoralizing.

Houghton—Dr. J. L. Gibson of Republic who has been in Houghton for a few days' visit has returned. He announced while here that he intends to remove to British Columbia to practice dentistry.

FOUR SETS OF TWINS ARE BORN TO ONE FAMILY.

Arbor Vitae, Wis., Aug. 15.—Four set of twins and five single births in fifteen years of wedded life is the record John Eschenbauch and his wife have established. The last twins arrived Wednesday. Ten of the children are living. Mr. and Mrs. Eschenbauch are about 35 years old.

TWIN CITY EMPLOYES OPPOSE HOSTILE LAWS.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 15.—Twin City railroad employes in all branches of the service will hold a monster mass meeting at Bowlby hall Sunday afternoon, to take steps to oppose proposed legislation claimed to be hostile to the railroads that is likely to result in measures seriously affecting the interests of employes.

The purpose of the meeting is to organize employes of all branches of the service to fight hostile legislation from its inception, and the movement is expected to have considerable influence at the party primaries Sept. 15.

DAKOTAS

HARVESTING IS QUITE GENERAL.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—While harvesting is now general throughout the state there is as yet considerable grain which is quite green, and which needs favorable weather before it will be properly matured. In the valley districts harvesting has been under way the past week, and indications are that there will be a good yield. There seems to be little straw this year in comparison with past seasons, but the heads are said to be of good size and well filled. Except for a short period, the weather has been very good.

Hail storms have lately wrought considerable havoc in different parts of the state. A heavy storm in Pembina county laid a great deal of grain low. In Burleigh and Morton counties another big storm did immense damage this week, this storm extending to Emmons, Dickey, LaMoure and McLean counties. The storm was the most extensive that has visited the state this year. In the immediate vicinity of Grand Forks, very little damage has been done by storms this year, only a little hail being reported.

Reports by Counties.

In Billings county the conditions have been rather stormy with high temperatures prevailing. Heavy winds without rain have visited the county.

Fair weather has prevailed in Foster county, a heavy rain having recently fallen over a good portion of the county doing much good.

In Logan county there has been fair weather, but no rain.

In McIntosh county rain is badly needed. The weather has been quite hot, and the ground has become very dry.

Rain has been needed for some time in Ramsey county. The deficiency in precipitation since March 1 being 5.42 inches.

In Ransom county there has been hot and dry weather, no rain having fallen for some time.

In Stark county heavy rains have been experienced during the past week.

In Towner county the temperature has decreased. High winds marked a portion of last week.

In Williams county the conditions have been very favorable. The early part of the week was bright and warm. Some rain is needed.

GOV. JOHNSON TO SPEAK.

Huron, S. D., Aug. 15.—Beginning here on Sept. 7, and continuing five days, the South Dakota State fair will take place. Each day brings new requisitions for space and practically every county in the state will have a creditable exhibit. Thirty-five of the leading manufacturers and representative business interests of Sioux Falls have agreed to contribute to the display of Sioux Falls manufactured products. Tuesday, Sept. 8, will be a big day of the fair, Governor Johnson of Minnesota being the orator of the day.

EXTENSIVE LAND DEAL.

Jamestown, N. D., Aug. 15.—One of the largest transfers of land that has been made in this county for some time was recorded with Register of Deeds Peterson, it being the sale of nine sections of fertile Burleigh county land in the northeast part of the county known as the Linden ranch. The land was sold by J. G. Linden of Iowa to P. M. Joice of Lake Mills, Iowa, the consideration being $84,400.

LARIMORE COUPLE DIVORCED.

Larimore, N. D., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—A divorce was granted Wednesday afternoon by Judge Templeton at Grand Forks in the case of Cora Sweeney against John Sweeney, both of Larimore. The couple were married Nov. 21, 1902, at Rugby. The plaintiff was given the custody of the child.

SEARCHING FOR DULUTHIAN.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chief Grant received a long-distance message from Duluth Wednesday evening from the brother of Warren West, a Duluth man, who is believed to be in the Dakota harvest fields. West's wife is seriously ill, and he is needed in Duluth. The police are endeavoring to locate West.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—Rev. Dr. Danford of the Broadway Methodist church of this city, has left for Mott in Hettinger county, where he will conduct the dedication of the first English speaking church ever opened in that county.

Minot, N. D.—Charged with shooting fourteen ducks on A. P. Slocum's farm a few miles north of Minot, James Morris was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Sheriff Lee.

Fargo, N. D.—Hon. Frank R. Crumpton, the mayor of the city of Superior, Wis., has been here displaying the slogan, "Superior Delivers the Goods," and showing how rapidly his home city is developing.

Grand Forks, N. D.—C. E. Danforth, at one time engaged on the linotype force of the Evening Times, and who went from this city to Philadelphia, is now engaged in the linotype department of a Washington, D. C. job office.

Grafton, N. D.—Frank Linhart threshed his winter and on ten and one-half acres secured fifty-one bushels. The sample was fine. He also threshed barley last week and it turned out a good sample. Mr. Linhart says he is convinced that winter wheat can be profitably raised in this section and is pleased with his experience.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Brusella Frazier, a 15-year-old girl, who is the state's principal witness in the case of the state of North Dakota vs. Ebner Brown, in which the defendant is charged with the crime of rape, is being held at the Grand Forks county jail.

Bismarck, N. D.—Papers in voluntary bankruptcy were filed Tuesday with Clerk of the Federal Court Montgomery by William Hutton, a farmer of McLain, Cavalier county, Hutton places his liabilities at $1,300, while his assets are $65, all of which is exempt.

Jamestown, N. D.—The Northern Pacific depot, which is now being moved to a new location, has been moved several times, though slightly. This is the original building which was erected when the road was built to Jamestown early in the '70s.

Larimore, N. D.—A disastrous fire which originated in the barn in the rear of the Larimore Steam laundry at 1:45 Thursday morning consumed three barns and considerable other property before it was gotten under control. The barn in which is originated was entirely consumed and two horses which were in the barn were barely gotten out in time to save them.

SOCIETY

THE most interesting event of the coming week will be the garden party Wednesday afternoon and evening, at which Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Adams will present their daughter, Miss Esther Adams to Duluth society. The garden at the Adams home at 2010 East Superior street is one of the most charmingly planned in the city and at Wednesday's affairs it will be the scene of a delightfully pretty coming-out party. Miss Adams girlhood has been passed in Duluth, but the last several years she has been much away at college and traveling abroad. Wednesday afternoon, from 5 to 6:30 o'clock, Mrs. Adams and her daughter will receive, and the calling hours during the evening will be from 8:30 on. During the week, Mr. and Mrs. Adams will have as their guests, Mrs. Adams' mother, Mrs. R. H. Bennett of Minneapolis, and Mrs. Russell Bennett and Misses Fanny and Charlotte Passmore, all of Minneapolis.

The other event of the week that promises to be most interesting will be the lawn fete, which will be held Thursday evening at the Spirit Lake branch of the Boat club. The affair was first planned for Wednesday evening, but was changed to Thursday. Special trains will leave the union station at 7:15 and 8:15 o'clock, and returning will leave the clubhouse at 10 and 11 o'clock. The feature of the evening will be a concert by the Third Regiment band. The first number will be played after the arrival of the last train from the city. The grounds of the club, which are beautiful without extra decorations, will be atwinkle with lights, and the designing of the decorations is in the hands of Frank Libby, who designed the gondola for the Venetian fete. A committee of the club members have the decorations in charge and it is expected that the affair will exceed all of the past efforts.

The most interesting events of the past week were the annual ladies' day at the Yacht club last Saturday evening and the Venetian carnival at the Boat club Monday evening, and both affairs were beautiful and enjoyed by several hundred guests.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Broughton entertained at dinner Thursday evening at their home, 727 East First street, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William Bradford Dickson of Chicago. Covers were laid for ten.

Mrs. William White entertained at a reception Monday afternoon at her home, 1427 East Superior street in compliment to Miss Whisler of Calumet, who is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. John Panton. Oriental poppies and nasturtiums were used in profusion throughout the rooms, and during the calling hours Flaaten's orchestra played. In the dining room Mrs. Morton Miller and Mrs. William Dalrymple presided and were assisted by Miss Dorothy Dowse and Miss Melville Silvey. At the punch bowl Miss Margaret Panton and Miss Beatrice Oie presided. Mrs. Ward Ames, Jr., and Miss White assisted about the rooms. About eighty of the younger society girls called during the afternoon.

Prof. David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford university, who was a guest in the city during the week, was entertained informally during his stay. Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Bohannan were hosts at dinner Saturday evening in compliment to Mr. Jordan. Covers were laid for six. Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Bert Fesler entertained at a dinner of eight covers at which Mr. Jordan was the guest of honor. Tuesday a luncheon was given at the Spirit Lake branch of the boat club to Prof. Jordan and his party.

Mr. Smith and his bride left on the North West for a lake trip. The following account of their wedding from the Minneapolis Journal of Tuesday evening will be of interest to many here, as Mr. Smith is well known in Duluth:

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Queal issued cards today announcing the marriage of their daughter, Zella Zee, to Lindsay S. Smith, which was quietly solemnized last evening at their home on Park avenue. Only the relatives and half a dozen of the near friends of the young people witnessed the service, which was read by Rev. Theodore Payne Thurston.

Although the wedding arrangements were very simple the decorations were charming and the bridal couple, with their one attendant, little 3-year-old Jane Foote, stood in a bower of green, the foliage of palms and ferns relieved by clusters of white Japanese lilies. The mantel was a tangle of green in which the white blossoms were held captive. Japanese lilies were the only flowers used and in the hall and reception room the white blossoms gave place to pink.

A string orchestra, screened by palms in the upper hall, played the "Lohengrin" briday chorus as the bride, preceded by her little niece, carrying the ring in a basket of white sweet peas and wearing a crisp white frock, descended the stairs. Her father met her at the foot and led her to the altar, where the bridegroom was waiting. Miss Queal wore a dainty gown of white silk on which pale pink rosebuds were embroidered, and which was made empire fashion. Her shoes were of pink, and she carried a shower boquet of white sweet peas and orchids. Her ornament was a bracelet of diamonds and sapphires, the gift of the bridegroom.

After the service a wedding dinner was served and the twenty-five guests were all seated at one large table, which was adorned with white Japanese lilies and ferns. The place cards had the letters in gold and water color sketches of white roses. The orchestra played an appropriate program during dinner.

Mr. Smith and his bride left on the late train for Duluth and they will take the lake trip to Buffalo on the North West. On their return they will occupy the Queal house on Park avenue, while Mr. and Mrs. Queal are in California.

The Tailored Modes of a New SEASON

Practical Modification of the Directoire

One of the important questions which the tailors and modistes in Paris are now asking themselves and each other is, will the American woman take up the Directoire fashion in its entirety? The answer which is given by many of the American tailors and dressmakers is that she will not. They declare, out of the wisdom of their experience in endeavoring to please her, that she will not, as a class, harbor any of the extremes. They say, however, that here, as everywhere else in the civilized world, there are women who will carry the fad to its uttermost limits. Nevertheless it is the consensus of opinion that the American woman is not adapted either by figure or nature for these extreme modes. She walks too quickly and takes steps that are too short. The sheath skirt demands a leisurely, gliding gait and its long-tailed coat does not accord with a jerky movement of the hips.

The Modified Types.

There will be Directoires, of course, but of greatly modified type. In these the coats are of first importance in that they are the most noticeable feature of a tailored walking costume. Almost without exception they are between 40 and 50 inches long, sometimes only at the back and sides and cut off in front above the knees and often at the waistline. Their sleeves are of medium size, generally shirred or side plaited into the armsize, but invariably of full length, and often finished with a broad turned-back cuff. On most of them the incroyable collar appears either in the shape of a straight, high band terminating just in front of the ears or in one almost closing beneath the chin.

Trimming of Two Types.

These modified Directoire suits are trimmed in two distinct ways. On many of them, particularly those of the plainer sort, are the long popular bias satin bands. These are of about half inch width and there seems to be an almost hard and fast rule in their application. Black satin is usually put on black, navy blue and dark gray, while the other colors carry their own shades. All sorts of fancy braid trimmings are employed, but the popular fancy appears to run particularly to very wide Hercules and the simpler of the basket weaves, of course aided and abetted by soutache wherever it is possible to place it.

Ways of Waistcoats.

Some of the waistcoats which are used, or, rather, are a part of the new coats, are strikingly like those known as the Continental that was brought out last autumn. They are exceedingly long, semifitting and ornately trimmed with soutache embroidery, with Persian bands or with gold bullion. These vests are intended primarily to afford additional warmth to the coats that are cut away from the bust, and are a positive necessity during the winters of this climate. Another sort of waistcoat, however, which is rather more new—considering the subject from the viewpoint that the Directoire is a novelty—is cut straight across at the waistline, is double breasted and V necked. Either of these types is immensely smart in conjunction with the modified Directoire coat seen at the present writing on this side of the Atlantic.

Short-waisted Effects.

The short-waisted effect at the back of the tailored coat is one of the features which gives it the right to lay claim to the title of Directoire. This shortening process is gained in two ways. The model most in evidence has the short appearance at the waistline, simply because the back forms are slightly widened at that point, giving the entire garment a loose appearance. This effect is frequently accentuated by the arrangement of the braid trimmings or satin bandings, which are so placed as to shorten the line between the nape of the neck to just below the shoulder blades. While a coat of this cut would fit—in the sizes from 36 to 42 bust measure—any normally shaped woman, it is not nearly so susceptible to successful alterations as one which is cut in two sections, the upper like an Eton coat and the lower like the attached hip pieces with which we were familiarized in the garments which came into vogue shortly after the production of "A Lady of Quality" and known at that time as the Julia Arthur coat.

The Alteration Problem.

These two distinct types of Directoire modifications in coats are of immense importance to the woman who must always get her tailored ready-made suit altered. The coat, cut all in one piece, not including the sleeves, of course, would be liable to suffer greatly in grace of outline were the back and side forms to be tampered with. The other model, on the contrary, while not so close to the Directoire originals, could readily be altered, as the hip sections need only be a trifle drawn above or below the short-waisted line and the trimming readjusted.

The Sheath Skirt.

The burning question of the hour is, naturally, the sheath skirt. Will the American woman adopt it for evening, afternoon, shopping and business? Will she put it on when she goes out to teach school, to write shorthand, to report society functions and suffragette meetings? And if she does adopt it, will it cling like a postage stamp from waistline to knees and will it have an actual opening at the left side calculated to reveal a silk stocking and kid shoetop? The tailors, anxious to have on hand sufficient stock to promptly meet the demands of their customers whenever that momentous query shall be answered, are meanwhile experimenting with the skirt and developing what, in their opinion, is the one proper for the American woman to wear.

Solving the Problem.

To solve this problem they are making a skirt which has the appearance of being split but actually is joined, and one that seems to be whole but in reality is split—and worn over a taffeta drop of an exactly matching color. In that event the split garment becomes merely a tunic to which even the society for the prevention of vice could not reasonably take exception. The sheath skirt, which is actually joined all round, is an ideal model for ordinary walking purposes, as it is four inches from the ground, untrimmed and finished around the bottom with a rather broad hem. Necessary fulness is given to the back by means of an inverted double box pleat. Where the seams are opened at either side similar pleats are set in, so that when the two edges are drawn apart by the movements of the skirt's wearer, pleats instead of silk stockings are to be seen. The outer skirt, which is supposed to be worn over a drop, consists of four sections arranged in pleated gores.

It Will Not Sag.

The point most in favor about the American sheath skirt as at present developed is that it is superior to the gored or flare type, in that it is unlikely to sag at the sides. This is something that the woman who does not order a tailormade costume with every new moon considers of prime importance. Seams directly at the back and on each side of a cloth skirt, unquestionably hold it in position, and if, in addition to this feature, such skirts are relieved from all strain by the presence of a set of inverted pleats at back and sides, they are safe to keep their shape under ordinary conditions. This rule, of course, applies wholly to the walking length skirt, for the question of sagging is not of vital importance where a long skirt is concerned.

The Twin Skirt Idea.

To have two skirts for one coat is by no means a novel scheme, for it has long been the custom of the woman who aims to dress smartly on a limited income to order annually one expensive tailored coat and with it a short or walking skirt, as well as one that is trained and intended solely for conventional occasions, thus making the coat do duty for two purposes, on the principle that any coat will outwear two skirts. Since the long skirt has again come into general vogue, however, tailors are realizing that by making up handsomely trimmed and moderately priced three-piece suits of this character that women will gladly buy them. In most instances the two skirts are of broadcloth, diagonal or hard-finished worsted matching the coat, but if the outer garment is elaborately trimmed with black, the long skirt may quite properly be of black satin. This has the raised girdle, and when it is mounted upon a black or white lace or net "holster" bodice it practically becomes a second dress with nothing about it suggestive of a makeshift.

The Autumn Tints.

With the vogue of coats and skirts pertaining to the olden times there has been revived a fancy for those quaint old hues seen in the scraps of ancient silk, poplin and ribbon which form pieced bedspreads, crazy quilts and sofa pillows dear to the hearts of our grandmothers and maiden aunts—probably because of the recollections which they renew of past times, faces and pleasures. The shade which the owners of the patchwork blocks still call "prune" bears a strange resemblance to the modern wisteria, and that fondly referred to as "magenta" is marvelously like mulberry. Then there is a queer brownish pink that has the look of the rose leaf pot pourri and the lavender that was years ago regarded as the only proper shade for first relief to the black and white of second mourning or for a woman to wear when undertaking matrimony for the second time.

Blue Best of All.

In the autumn tailor suit tints there is numbered a new blue bearing the honored name of Edison. This is also among the faded shades; that is, so soon as it is put into juxtaposition with navy or peacock. At first glance it seems to be of the electric family, as naturally it should be, but it is much more dull, a fact which does not seem quite just to the great modern magician whose name it bears. At any rate, this new blue seems to take with woman generally, and bids fair to be tremendously popular for the simpler type of tailormades. One reason is that navy has been used for so long and that peacock is rather startling and has a way of swearing at any other tint of azure with which it is combined. As blue of a dull tone is always a practical shade for year-round utility wear, it is the best of all colors for the woman who, greatly against her natural inclination, must make one costume do duty for a variety of occasions.

Ultra Smart Tailormades.

An ultra smart type of the tailormade autumn costume, but one which will be distinctly out of date when the Directoire fad has died the sudden and violent death which many people predict for it, consists of a gored-pleated walking skirt with "make-believe" split sides trimmed with black silk braid military ornaments, and an attached high girdle, also elaborately braid trimmed, and so shaped as to greatly shorten the apparent length of the waist. The coat has all of the fascinating features of the extreme Directoire mode and none of its eccentricities. There is the waist length, back and front tight-fitting little jacket, with the elongated side tabs, the short, turned back revers, the ornate waistcoat of the French dandy, the big fancy buttons, the high turnover collar and sash. But there the resemblance ends, for the sleeves, while long and small, are not so close as to make the arm look like dangling, useless plus, and the shoulders are cut in wide effect, rather than in a manner calculated to give the narrow-chested appearance of the eighteenth century dude. It is just a wee bit theatric, this little imitation of the Directoire, and only to be essayed by a modest-looking and slenderly built woman, who would carry it naturally and not with an assumed swagger. But the coat is eminently practical in that it would accord well with a long skirt of satin or cloth of precisely the color of the suit.

Because of its soft and clinging characteristics, velvet and velveteens are suddenly coming into vogue, especially for the more elaborate order of tailormades, although they will be worn in short severe suits during the winter by girls who are within several years of making their initial bow to society. For afternoon reception costumes, those in chiffon and Lyons velvet will, of course, have the long skirt slightly trimmed with chenille, jet or gold bullion, and coats of any length from 36 to 52 inches, usually bearing Directoire earmarks, and always with full length sleeves. When velvet is employed solely as a material for a street suit, its trimming will be simpler and of the satin band or fancy braid order, as was the case last season with the comparatively few costumes worn of that fabric.

Tailormade Suit Accessories.

Much of the smart effect of any tailormade suit depends upon its accessories. Needless to say, anything savoring of the Directoire should not be accompanied by a linen collar and a stiff little tie. These belong to what is known as the English type of street suit, meaning the severely tailored box or semi-fitting coat and gored or pleated skirt, minus trimming. With the French model there should be a high lace collar or a chiffon stock—giving the desired soft effect about the chin—and the frilly lacey front, in addition to the wrist ruffles, which should be of finest handweave or hand embroidery immaculately white.

Paragraphs.

The correct thing this summer is to have a bathing corset, whether or not the bather be thin, for the princess frock now worn into the sad sea waves must fit quite as smoothly about the hips as does any that is designed for land use. These bathing corsets are patterned somewhat after those usually worn, save that they are of white batiste or coarse lawn, fitted with wide sheaths for the boning, which should be removed when the little accessory is to be dried. They are fitted with hose supporters and brassieres of wash ribbon. The best of this fashion is that any industrious woman may contrive the shapemaking outfit herself, providing she has plenty of leisure and the energy to employ it.

One easy way for the summer girl to catch a beau is to wear a ribbon in her coiffure. There is something irresistibly fascinating to the average man in a hair ribbon and the vogue of the hour is to have ribbon tied into big clusters and loops and to weave them in and out of the braids, which are now arranged rather low at the back of the head. These ribbons should be of precisely the shade of the hair, providing it be distinctly black, brown, golden or yellow. Formed into six broad loops, it will acceptably take the place of the string of false curls and puffs which at this season look burdensome, especially before it is time to don an evening gown.

When making a dainty little kimono of some filmsy material make a detachable lining of albatross, which may be tacked on when the days grow cooler.

Fashionable Fabrics for Fall.

Fashionable fabrics for fall are of infinite variety. In fact, it would seem as though the manufacturers had been trying to outdo each other in the matter of stripes, checks and plaids combining two tones of one color or several colors of widely contrasting hue. Yet so artistically blended and eye-satisfying are these shadings that the beholder wonders why it had never before been done by anyone save Mother Nature, who mixes her colors in the most helter skelter fashion and, invariably, with pleasing results. But then cloth and silk manufacturers are only poor human creatures, however rich and influential the demand for sartorial embellishments may have rendered them.

The bordered worsteds which attained so much popularity last winter are again to the fore and bid fair to be taken up with renewed enthusiasm by the women who appreciate the fact that while such materials are a trifle more expensive at first cost, there is usually a tremendous saving in the matter of trimmings. This season the borders are somewhat deeper, owing, probably, to the interest in the classic or sheath skirt, which should not be applied trimmed, but should carry ornamentation woven into the material, as was the case with the fabrics worn when Greece was making history.

For simply tailored suits, comprising a short skirt and a 30-inch coat or a long coat, the most practical of all materials are the worsteds in invisible checks and stripes of mannish design and finish. If the materials used for this class of costume have borders they should be made to form a finish for the skirt and the sole material for the waistcoat, the collar and the cuffs. If the border is too narrow for this purpose, it would better be cut off and used in the form of panel edgings. If, as is frequently the case, the bordering is supplemented by a band running through the main portion of the material, the skirt must absolutely be pleated, for to gore it satisfactorily would be impossible.

Some of the novelties in wools, and especially those designed for small girls' school frocks, show what may be termed depressed clan plaids, for all of the shades seem somehow to be of a duller, deeper tone than the original colors, yet lightened almost startlingly by a fine line of red, yellow or white. Setting away from these, however, the tendency is decidedly for gloomy shades. This is particularly evidenced in the diagonals and smooth-faced cloths which hold so high a place in the estimation of practical tailors who believe that a plain fabric never loses its hold upon the feminine fancy. In all these cloths there are many charming tints which have not been in common use within the recollection of the younger generation. One of these is bronze brown which combines so well with the chamois shades employed to lighten, if not illuminate, an otherwise dull-looking costume. Then, too, green has again come to the front, the olives leading and the stone tints making a good second. For the tendency is ever toward unobstrusive tints rather than to the sharp bright shades, although peacock must be admitted as an exception to this general rule.

Every woman who aims to be smartly dressed is interested in the vogue of smoke-gray and the fashionable mole shade, better known—and often mispronounced—as taupe.

All of these shades are often seen in the quarter-inch stripe smooth-faced cloths which are in many instances made up in chevron effect. So charmingly do the olives and grays and browns blend that in novelty stripes all of these fashionable tones are sometimes brought together.

Velvets and velveteens were never lighter of weight or more serviceable-looking. It is said that some of the new weaves are absolutely noncrushable, a quality which, more than any other, will aid in restoring the soft fabric to feminine favor. The striped velvets are especially good as a trimming for cloth tailormades, notably in the form of pipings, as they aid to bring into prominence the best lines of the garment which they adorn. Quite new are the Persian printed velvets, which show all the oriental shadings, and also the slender line of gold bullion woven into the fabric. These, of course, are chiefly employed for waistcoat, collar and cuffs of demi-Directoire coats.

Pompadour colorings figure prominently on the borders of the delicately-tinted silks and chiffons designed for evening gowns. These will contend for favor with the sheer, satin-striped voiles and chiffons in one tone, and the wondrously flexible silky worsteds which are so much liked for college girls' dancing frocks.

The tailor-made girls of the current summer who go in strongly for the severely finished linen coat and skirt costumes of unobtrusive character are making such suits smart with black and white striped pongee, or linen, widely turned back cuffs and high turnover collars. They supplement this touch of contrasting shades by replacing the ordinary buttons on the coats, with huge affairs covered with the same material as that forming the collar and cuffs. Several trifling changes to be made in the ordinary linen coat of ordinary length and reasonably clever tailoring will aid immeasurably to smarten it and bring it up to date. Besides making the foregoing alterations in neck and wrist finishings, the lower portion of the coat may have its seams slashed almost to the waistline, one side to be fabric-covered, button-trimmed and the other provided with neatly worked big buttonholes, which, however, need never be used.

If a woman of limited means cannot afford to have new gowns, or even to have those which she already has on hand made over, she may herself do many things to bring them up to date. One of these is to alter the sleeves, especially of evening gowns, as some of the smartest of the recently imported costumes of that class have so-called arm-coverings which are scarcely more than trellis works of jet or ribbon bands mounted upon the thinnest of muslin, which, after the sleeve is actually made, is cut away from underneath. Chiffon sleeves in evening gowns are of the typical angel type—so wide that they flow away from the elbow instead of pretending to cover any portion of the forearm.

Suiting Novelties for Fall

OUR YOUNG FOLKS' PAGE

DONT'S for BOYS who CAMP OUT

Don't think it "smart" to make raids on farmers' corn fields and melon patches. If you want fresh vegetables in your camp, go to the farmer and buy them. The produce from his fields is his stock in trade, and taking from him without his knowledge and consent and not paying the price named by him is as bad as to enter a merchant's store during the night, taking from the shelves what goods you may desire and leaving no pay for them.

Don't be rude to chance passersby at your camp. Often boys become almost unbearable when out in the wilds camping, forgetting that good breeding and good manners count for as much in camp life as in the school or home.

Don't fish and hunt wantonly. If you desire game and fish to eat, it is all right to catch it; but if hunting and fishing are engaged in for mere pleasure, learn to look at the other side of the question. Take no life without good cause.

Don't swim in very cold, deep water too long at a time; many a fine swimmer has been taken with cramps on account of the coldness of water and drowned before help could reach him. Use discretion and common sense in regard to the swimming hole.

Don't play in a rowboat. Often a sudden movement by a boy or girl during a jest or hilarious and thoughtless argument will cause a boat to capsize. While on or in the water use precaution and good judgment. Above all things, remember where you are.

Don't pitch your camp too far from some human habitation, for in the case of snake-bite, hornet-sting or sudden illness it is wise to be within call of some grown-ups who can minister to you at once.

A Glimpse of Hindu Child Life.

The home life of the Hindu is very different from our own. In the first place their houses are crude and extremely simple, and the families are often very large, containing members from the third and the fourth generations of the blood. In nine hundred and ninety-nine families out of one thousand there are children. Indeed, a childless couple is not only disgraced in this life on account of not having children—I should say sons, for girls do not count for anything—but are punished accordingly in the next life—a punishment lasting over a million years. Such is the Hindu belief.

When a son is born the friends of the father eagerly congratulate him, and the father of several sons is to be greatly envied. Not only is he honored in this life, but in the life to come he will find it easy sailing. The Hindu mother is never considered, therefore I merely mention the father. But if a daughter is born there are no congratulations pouring in on the father, for his friends—men of his own caste—remain silent on the subject or tender him their sympathy.

The Hindu father is a doting one, humoring and spoiling his sons. And occasionally a daughter—that unwelcome one—finds her way into his heart; but never for long, for while she is still a child she is married off and leaves the father's home forever, becoming a mere slave in her husband's house instead of in her father's. Usually the Hindu girl is married at the age of 11 or 12, and it is very rare to find one single at 14. It is a disgrace on her parents if they do not provide her with a husband while she is still very young.

The children of India have no native games. The English have introduced cricket and football, but the native boy does not take to these sports with any enthusiasm. Also, the Hindu boy and girl have very few toys, and their play is mostly about the house in a very indifferent way. True, they gambol about as little tots, for it is the child nature to do so, but as soon as they have reached the age of 11 or 12 they are supposed to be too matured to play. The girls are then married and become mothers instead of children. The boys are put to trades or professions, and before they reach their twentieth year are also married and have the responsibility of a family.

The Hindu Boy Snake-charmer.

Good Enough for Him.

A country lad was invited by a town friend to attend a concert with him. As they were on their way to the concert hall the boy from the country suddenly stopped and asked the price of admission.

"Well," replied his friend, "the front seats are 50 cents each; the back seats, 25 cents each, and the program 10 cents each."

"I'll sit in a program," said the country lad.

Helpful Hints For Our Young Artists.

Tabby's Many Strange Adventures.

BY MAUD WALKER.

Tabby awoke one morning to find herself alone in the big house. All the day before she had seen the members of the family with whom she lived very busy moving and packing furniture. And in the evening she had wondered when she saw great wagons at the front door, and many men—in rough clothes—loading boxes and trunks into them. And again she had wondered, when she came in from hunting grasshoppers in the hedge, and found no one in the great echoing, empty rooms. I say "echoing," for when Tabby found herself alone she began mewing very lustily, trying to bring some of her friends to the lonely scene. And how the walls did echo her cry, causing Tabby to stand perfectly still and to hump up her back, for she thought another cat was somewhere about, and she was making ready to fight in self-defense.

But after looking about her and finding no intruding cat present, she decided it was time for her to take a nap.

"The folks have just gone out for the evening," she thought to herself, "and will soon be home again. But—I wonder what they mean by sending all the things—chairs, tables, beds—everything—away. They'll have to sleep as I do—on the floor, or on the grass in the back yard."

And then tabby went off upstairs into a cozy little room where a dear little girl had always slept. And this dear little girl's name was Daisy, and Daisy had petted and loved Tabby very tenderly, calling her her own dearest, funniest Tabby-Cat.

And so the night passed away, with Tabby so full of her supper of fresh grasshoppers that she slept the sleep of the just, only waking once in a while to stretch herself in a new position and, then sleep again.

But with the dawn she awoke, and seeing the lonely condition of the great empty house, she began to feel that she had been deserted. And what could it mean? Would Daisy—dear, sweet, flaxen-haired Daisy—go away and leave her in this deserted place? And what should she find to eat? Ah, of course, there were plenty of grasshoppers, and little birds flitting through the hedge, too, for that matter. But Tabby had never caught a bird for dinner, for whenever she was in the way to do so Daisy would invariably see her and run to the bird's assistance, frightening it away, and then, slapping Miss Tabby pretty sharply, she would say: "Naughty Tabby! Don't you ever dare to catch a sweet little bird. You may help yourself to grasshoppers, for they destroy our garden and flowers, but you shall not harm a bird, for a bird never does harm to anyone."

"Well, I suppose I've got to hustle for my breakfast," Tabby thought to herself. "No plate of fresh milk, and no nicely beaten egg stirred into it for me." And then she went into the yard and began catching grasshoppers as fast as she could, for she was very hungry.

And as she hunted and hunted she wandered far from the grounds of her home, a new desolate and deserted place. And soon she found herself in very deep grass and weeds, with here and there a fine big shade tree. And then she came into a wide, dusty road. Here Tabby paused, for she knew she was in a strange part of the world, and she hardly knew what to expect—what to fear.

"Well," she thought, "they all went off and left me and there's nothing for me to do but find a new home. It was not the right thing for Daisy to do, either, this deserting me without a final good-by stroke of the back and a kiss on the tip of my ear."

And in a sad mood Tabby stepped boldly into the wide dusty road and followed its windings. Across a bridge that spanned a creek she went, and then she saw a house in the distance. "I'll go to that place and find a new home," she thought. After several minutes she came to the fence that surrounded the house and was about to leap over the closed gate when a huge dog sprang up from beneath a shrub close to the gate and barked at her. Instantly she raised her back and her eyes flashed fire as she spat at the great menacing animal—whom she knew to be her natural enemy. But as he seemed in the notion to come over the fence at her, she ran to a nearby tree and went up its trunk at a very rapid gait. Once perched in a comfortable bend of a bough, she watched the great dog, who was still barking furiously at her, but who did not venture outside the fence.

But after half an hour or so the dog seemed to grow tired of barking and went towards the house. Then, feeling that it would be wise to make her escape during the enemy's absence, Tabby hurried down from her perch and went on down the wide road.

How long she traveled she had no way of knowing, but after a tedious journey she decided to stop and rest. She was very tired, hungry and thirsty, but she had no way of quenching thirst or satisfying hunger; but she could rest her weary body. So she sought out a shady place near to the roadside. But hardly had she done so, when along the road came several great horned animals, kicking up the dust as their immense heavy hoofs dug into the soft, dry soil. Tabby had never seen such beasts before and, naturally, was very much frightened indeed. Tabby thought they were some sort of beasts that might devour her alive, should they chance to catch sight of her, and straightway she darted off through the corn field as fast as her poor tired little legs could carry her. Nor did she stop to rest again till the shadows of night were thickening about her. Then she wondered if she might find a place where a saucer of milk and a night's lodging might be had.

"Hi-yi! A cat! Hist—catch 'er!" It was a boy's voice, and close at hand. Tabby was frightened almost out of her wits, and turned—back up and tail fuzzy—to spit at her possible enemy. "Hi-yi! See her there? Git a-holt of 'er, Jim!" And then two boys came bulging through the waving green corn, making directly towards Tabby.

But Tabby was too quick for them, and before they had time to say Jack Robinson she had disappeared in the depths of the field, and the boys had to abandon the search, as it was getting too dark for them to see far away from their noses.

"Mercy, it's awful to be a poor, homeless, stray cat!" mused Tabby to herself. Then her thirst getting the better of her, she decided to risk all danger and find some sort of house where she might obtain a drink of plain water if no milk was to be had.

She wandered out of the cornfield and came to a road. She followed it for quite a little distance, and to her great delight she saw lights gleaming through the darkness. Then, as she drew near to them, she discovered a tall house and several outbuildings and pens and sheds.

As she approached the house she heard human voices coming from the finely-kept lawn which spread about the house like a soft green carpet, and which was plainly visible now that the moon had come out.

Tabby boldly entered the yard and approached the group of people she saw seated there in lawn chairs and hammocks. She was a bit uncertain as to her reception, but hunger and thirst forced her to run any risk to obtain relief from physical suffering.

But the child's voice suddenly stopped, and in another minute a little girl had sprung from a hammock and was bending over Tabby. "Oh, it is—it is Tabby as sure as I'm alive! Why, how on earth did she get here? Our man John just went to town this evening with instructions to get her. Well, he'll not find her, for here she is. Now, isn't that most curious, mamma?" And Daisy—for she it was who had come to grasp Tabby in her arms—lifted the tired, travel-worn Tabby up for her mother's inspection.

"Well, I declare, it is Tabby-Cat for sure. Isn't it wonderful the instinct of animals? Now, she doubtless followed us last evening when we left town, and has just now come to show herself. Well, it was awfully careless of John to forget her, after we had cautioned him, too, and had provided him with a good cat-basket to carry her in. But, poor dear, she looks so hungry and thirsty. Go, Daisy, darling, and fix her a nice plate of milk and a beaten egg. Dear, old Tabby—and so she wouldn't be left! Ah, she's a cat worth having."

"Yes, and the next time we move I shall carry her myself, and not leave her to be the victim of a forgetful servant like John. But it will just serve that absent-minded fellow right when he reaches the old house to find no Tabby there. He'll feel pretty badly, for he'll know that it was his carelessness that caused her to be left. My, won't he be worried, though, when he fails to find her?"

And Tabby was as happy as a cat can possibly be. Somehow, her lucky star had led her to her own dear friends—her family, as she called them in her mind and heart. And as she lapped the egg and milk she looked her thanks at Daisy, who sat on the floor beside her, saying:

"Poor, dear Tabby-Cat. What an awful time you must have had coming so far on foot. But here you are, and here you stay."

Places of Interest in Foreign Lands

Middleburg, Holland, is one of the cleanest and thriftiest cities of that little country of windmills. A local proverb runs thus: "Goed roud, goed Zeuwsch," meaning, "Very round, very Zeelandish." And so it is very round, indeed. According to an old-time writer it "is a round-faced city." Its inhabitants are thrifty and happy, and nowhere else in all the world will one see healthier and rosier faces than flock the streets of Middleburg.

In structure the town is round, its streets curving and its houses made to fit the streets. Even the abby is curved. And everywhere is roundness and curves, the people particularly being rotund and buxom.

Each springtime sees the painters of Middleburg busy, for it is the unwritten law that the houses must have a fresh coat every year. This adds to the attractiveness of the city, giving to it a perpetual clean, fresh and happy appearance. And the cleanliness and freshness are reflected in the inhabitants, whose bright faces and picturesque garb make a pleasing whole.

"Middleburg's best museum is itself. Its streets and houses are a never-ending pleasure. Something gladdens the eye at every turn—a blue and yellow shutter, a red and black shutter, a turret, a daring gable, a knot of country people, a fat Zeeland baby, a milk can rivalling the sun, an old woman's lace cap, a young woman's merry mouth. In two respects only is the town unsatisfactory, and both are connected with its streets. The liberty given to each householder to erect an iron fence across the pavement at each limit of his property makes it necessary to walk in the street, and the paving of the road is so rough as to cause no slight suffering to anyone in thin boots.

"The town has a municipal museum, too largely given over to shells and stuffed birds, but which contains also such human relics as the wheel on which Admiral de Ruyter as a boy helped his father to make rope, and also the first microscope and the first telescope, both the work of Zacharias Jansen, a Zeeland mathematician."

Buster Binks' Hammock Party.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

Buster Binks was five years old on the day of which I am going to tell you. And Buster's mamma decided to give him a "Hammock Party." Now, do you know what a hammock party is? It is a party in the open, under the trees, and there are hammocks enough to go round, which means that each little guest is provided with a seat in a hammock. Of course, many little ones must sit huddled together in one hammock, but who ever saw little folk—on friendly terms—that would object to that?

Well, the party was to be held at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and Buster Binks was in his best white linen suit and white stockings and shoes. And his hair (which everyone but his mother called red) was combed so sleek that you could almost see your image in it at the crown where it was damp and glistening.

Buster was out in the big, shady yard long before a single guest arrived, and was so nervous waiting for the party that he couldn't sit still, but kept running from the front gate to the side one, looking for his guests.

But pretty soon, and just as the clock struck two (half an hour before the party was to begin) came Minnie and Gracie Long. They apologized for not having got there sooner, explaining that their mamma would not permit them to start till 10 minutes before 2.

"Oh, that's all right," declared Buster. "For you're a lot too early as it is. You shouldn't have come till half past two."

"Then we can go away again and come back after while," suggested Minnie. But even as she said this she climbed into a hammock and began swinging merrily. Then her sister Gracie climbed in beside her and they sang and swung as happily as two little guests at a hammock party could.

Then several other guests arrived, Tommy Peters, Fred Grayson, Lily Moore and Ethel May Thompson. Ethel May Thompson was dressed all in snowy white, with a pink ribbon sash. She told the other children that they mustn't touch her frock with their "dirty hands." This order from the vain little Ethel May Thompson caused an argument. "My hands are as clean as yours," declared Lily Moore, running up beside Ethel and laying both chubby hands on her white frock. "There, I touched it, and didn't leave any dirty spots, either, Missie!"

"Don't you dare to do that again," commanded Ethel angrily, putting out her lips at Lily.

"Well, you shouldn't have come if you are so fine that nobody can touch you," declared Minnie Long, jumping down from her seat in the hammock. "If you're too nice for the rest of us you'd better go home."

"I'll stay just as long as I want to," replied saucy Ethel, flirting her skirts and tossing her curls.

"You can't stay after 4 o'clock!" cried Buster, watching with interest the outcome of the little wrangle. "My mamma says the party must be over at 4 o'clock. So, you see, Ethel May, you can't stay longer than the others. You all must go at the same time."

"I don't care," wailed Ethel May, now beginning to cry into her pretty pink handkerchief. "It's not a nice party, anyway. There isn't a thing to eat. I never saw such a party, I never."

"Oh, cry-baby, cry-baby cry! Stick your finger in your eyes!" sang out Tommy Peters, laughing and swinging in a hammock.

"You mind your own business, smarty," wailed Ethel May, glaring through her tears at Tommy, who only laughed the louder.

"I'd be ashamed to come to a party and start a fuss," said Gracie Long, turning her back on Ethel May and speaking to the other little girls present. "Come, let's swing." And she led the way to a hammock, taking for herself the best seat in the middle and allowing the others the ends.

But just at this point Mrs. Binks came upon the lawn carrying a big tray filled with little glasses of pink lemonade "Here, my dear little ones, is a cooling drink to quench your thirst and prepare your appetites for the luncheon, which will be served here on the lawn in 10 minutes."

And then all was peace again, even Ethel May Thompson forgetting to act ugly or hold resentment against her little comrades who had dared to offend her. She split some of the pink lemonade on her pretty frock, and when Lily Moore said "Oh, Ethel, you've stained your pretty dress!" she only laughed and said: "It'll wash out all right." And then she and Lily sat beside each other in the hammock and whispered secrets in each other's ears. And pretty soon Tommy Peters, forgetting completely his part in the little unpleasantness of a few minutes before, asked to serve the little girls with more lemonade which they gladly accepted.

And then came Mrs. Binks and the funny fat cook, Bridget, carrying white linen cloths, which they spread on the ground for a picnic table. And as they were doing this the gate opened and in came the "late" guests. "Just in time for the luncheon!" cried Buster, running to greet them. There were Ned Sanders, Billy Blake, Agnes Graves and Sadie and Maggie Arthur, all arriving at exactly 2:30 o'clock.

And then followed the luncheon, which was enjoyed to the fullest by every little one present. And after the last crumb of cake and the last spoonful of ice-cream had been devoured the little folk engaged in games, Mrs. Binks assisting in the fun.

"Say, Mamma," whispered Buster, just as the clock was striking 4, won't you allow them to stay another little while? We're having such dead loads of fun—and this is my first five-year birthday."

And of course Buster's mamma had to say "Yes," and the party lasted till every little guest had played himself tired and sleepy, and was glad to go home for a nap before supper. And as they went they pronounced Buster's "Hammock Party" the greatest success, declaring that they'd never had so good a time in their lives before.

Boys, Take Warning.

Little Johnny Miller
Was put to work one day
In the new-mown meadow
To stack up stacks of hay.

But Little Johnny Miller
(Who wasn't very old)

Didn't like to work a bit,
(So I have been told:)

So Little Johnny Miller
Schemed a scheme that day
As he worked reluctantly
In the field of hay.

Little Johnny Miller,
With his hand to head,
Hurried home to Mother
And very sadly said:

"Your Little Johnny Miller
Is suffering from the heat,
And shouldn't have to work at all,
But just play round, and eat."

Then Little Johnny Miller's
Mother softly said:
"If you are sick, my sonny,
I'll put you right to bed."

And Little Johnny Miller,
In room so dark and still,
Was put between the covers,
And made to take a pill.

And Little Johnny Miller
No dinner had that day,
For when a little chap is sick
He mustn't eat, they say.

And Little Johnny Miller,
Suffering Pill's and Hunger's pain,
Declared that after this he'd work,
And ne'er play sick again.

Our Puzzle Corner

LETTER ENIGMA.

My first is in ear, but not in nose:
My second is in garment, but not in clothes:
My third is the same as my first, you see:
My fourth is in merry, but not in glee:
My fifth is in glad, but not in sorrow:
My sixth is in yesterday, but not in tomorrow:
My whole spells a word
To busy children applied,
And to them 'tis always
A sense of great pride.

HIDDEN-NAME PUZZLE.

By taking the initial letter of a one-syllable word from each of the following seven sentences, and writing them in the order in which they come, you will have spelled the name of a once famous French painter:

There is often too much ado about nothing.
If at first you don't succeed, try, try again.
Always look before you jump.
Love is the deepest emotion of the human heart.
Always lend ear to good advice.
Tears do not always signify grief.
Never hesitate to turn over a new leaf when necessary.

BEHEADINGS.

(1) Behend the sum paid to a laborer for work and leave the condition of a man of 70. (2) Behead a small article of wearing apparel and leave a term of strong affection. (3) Behead a sombre color and leave a shaft of light.

CURTAILINGS.

(1) Curtail a powdered substance used in the making of baking powder and leave a certain kind of earth. (2) Curtail a kind of shoulder wrap worn by old ladies and leave a part of a sailor's uniform. (3) Doubly curtail the making of one's attire and leave laborious work.

RIDDLES AND ANSWERS.

(A Candle.)

Formed long ago, yet made today;
Employed while others sleep;
What few would like to give away,
And fewer still to keep.

CONUNDRUMS.

Because it is a representative.

What relation is a child to its own father when it is not its own father's son?

A daughter.

On your nose.

What table has no legs to stand upon?

The multiplication table.

If a tough beefsteak could speak, what English poet would it mention?

Chaucer (chase, sir!).

The boy saw a snake running through the grass and is now trying to find it. He thought it swam into the water. Did it? It is to be found in the picture if you will look for it.

SOME of DULUTH'S PALATIAL HOMES

BEAUTIFUL NEW HOME OF GEORGE SPENCER.

There has not been much noise about the process, but during the last two or three years, Duluth has been developing a residence district in the East end which bids fair to rival the best in the country, and which already compares very favorably indeed with Lowry Hill in Minneapolis, Summit avenue in St. Paul, or the famous Euclid avenue of Cleveland. Duluth does not boast a single street decorated with fine homes, but the district between Twentieth and Thirtieth avenues east, located on the rise there, which gives an unsurpassed lake view, is fast becoming truly magnificent in its beautiful mansions.

Duluth has boasted of having a larger percentage of millionaires among its population than any other city in the country, and the city's wealthy men have not been slow in adding to the beauties of the city in the erection of handsome homes.

As the pictures which accompany this show, there is a magnificent display of taste as well as a showing of wealth in the big houses of the fashionable residence district. Every one of the structures is a credit to the designing architect, the landscape gardener, and the taste of the owner who selected. Additions are being made constantly to the list.

Chester A. Congdon's estate will be unrivalled in the Northwest when complete. Terraced gardens lead down to the lake short, each solidly walled with concrete. A big breakwater extending over a hundred feet out into the lake insures calm water close to the shore, and a quiet landing for launches and yachts. Fountains will play in the center of the gardens, when complete, and nothing will be left undone to make the extensive grounds a dream of beauty. And in the midst of all this magnificence stands the imposing residence, which when completed will be unsurpassed by anything in the West, to say the least.

The new home of J. Uno Sebenius, farther down the lake shore, is also a tribute to the taste of its owner. Odd in the extreme, it still possesses a charm and artistic merit which cannot be denied.

In short, Duluth has been more than fortunate in the palatial and elegant homes which have been added to her list of residences in the last two years.

is a true son of the sea, having gone down to it in ships since he was 17; today he is in his fifty-third year. Newspaper dispatches began containing his name nearly thirty years ago, when, as mate of a ship wrecked off the west coast of Scotland, his work saved the entire crew from a watery grave. Next, his name turned up in the news when he accompanied Nansen on his trip across Greenland. Then he was Nansen's captain on the dash to the pole; and he came very much before the public eye when he himself took the Fram into the Arctic ice and, in the four years that he remained there, made important land discoveries.

Explorers of today in Sverdrup's class of fame, which, with propriety, might be called secondary, are rather numerous. Prominent among them is Dr. Frederick A. Cook of Brooklyn, now searching for the north pole. Even now he may be making his dash for it, as he planned to do this some time this summer. Dr. Cook has the unusual distinction of being a searcher for both poles; he was a member of the expedition that went to the Antarctic night. Dr. Cook's present expedition is the result of a hunting trip taken with his backer on the latter's schooner yacht. When the hunting party reached polar waters, polar fever claimed the doctor, and the upshot of it was that his guest agreed to back him financially in a dash—and a short time after that the intrepid Brooklynite was off. Next to Peary, he is doubtless America's best known living explorer.

Only 29 when, five years ago, he planted furthest south the Union Jack given him for that purpose by Queen Alexandra, Lieut. Ernest H. Shackleton is again in the Antartic, with the avowed object of making a dash for the South Pole next month. On this dash he hopes to carry his provisions in a motor car, a queer contrivance which has skis in front and ice-gripping wheels in the rear. Shackleton is the only Irishman of any prominence among today's explorers, and when first in the Antartic he showed an Irishman's pluck by allowing himself to be harnessed to a sledge while suffering from snow blindness. Thus laboring and in this condition he attained furthest south with the party. Had Shackleton performed his heroic deeds in the Artic and there made furthest north, his name would doubtless have become as familiar as Peary's or Nanson's.

Dr. Jean Charcot, who headed the first French expedition ever to winter in the Antartic, and is planning another trip to that region, like Peary had a boy's desire to become an explorer. But his father wanted him to follow in his footsteps and become a great scientist. He had won quite a reputation as a medical scientist when his father's death occurred; then immediately he gave up his scientific work and turned explorer. Charcot's initial Antartic trip was undertaken for the purpose of rescuing the Otto Nordenskjold expedition, which left civilization behind in 1902. The Argentine Republic's expedition, however, got to the Norwegians first; and then Charcot and his expedition spent their time in making explorations, many of which were important.

Henryk Arctowski, one of the leaders of the Belgica Antartic expedition, and who is planning to return to the Antartic next year, should prove interesting to Americans by reason of the fact that his wife is an American girl, who was studying music in Paris when she and the Belgian fell in love with each other. Adrian de Gerlache, who was Arctowski's superior in the Antartic, is Belgium's leading explorer, and he and Arctowski, when they returned to Brussels, were loaded with honors, their expedition being the first in years to accomplish anything worth while in the Antartic.

Roald Amundsen, who recently traveled across this country, after locating the magnetic pole and making the Northwest Passage; Mikkelson and Leffingwell, now in the frozen wastes of the north; Walter Wellman, Anthony Fiala and Evelyn Baldwin, who led the two Ziegler expeditions polewards, and the Duke of Orleans, who has to his credit important discoveries in and about Nova Zembla—these are among the more important Arctic explorers who are heard from, as explorers, from time to time.

Another explorer with royal blood in his veins is none other than the noted anarchist, Prince Peter Kropotkin. To him the entire world is deeply indebted for the mapping of great portions of Manchuria and other regions in the Far East. He, too, made important discoveries in Finland, and, altogether, was well started on a career of exploration that might have made him world-famous when he became a convert to anarchism—after which he spent several years in Russian fortresses, escaped, was pursued from one country to another for his views and at last took up his residence in England, where he has lived in comparative peace ever since.

To look at Kropotkin no one would ever take him for an anarchist, and his voice and every action, when he is met socially, are as mild as his physical appearance. Indeed, every inch of him looks what the reference books call him—a geographer, and not the bloodcreeping thing the world calls him. He is now 66, as firm in his unorthodox views as ever, and is leading the life of a very well behaved country gentleman and erudite scholar.

The ore average from $2 to $12 per ton and are low grade oxidized cyanide material. The profit derived therefrom is possible only because the ores are treated on the mines without cost of transportation. Chlorination ore, worth $20 per ton, is shipped with smelter grades. Of these the tonnage consigned to outside plants approximates 56,000 tons.

The Waldorf Metals company has purchased the Huckleberry group of five claims in West Argentine district, Clear Creek, Colo., including a ten-years lease on the Independence, Wheeling and part of the Commonwealth mines in East Argentine district, all the properties being the holdings of the Waldorf Consolidated Mining company.

The new fifty ton-daily capacity mill of the Linn Consolidated Mining & Milling company, Georgetown, has been started on ore from the Mineral Chief. An aerial tramway 3,000 feet long runs to the mill from the sixth level of the mine, where there are reserves sufficient to keep the mill running for several years.

The streak recently opened on the 500-foot level of the Shiveley mine, Brown mountain, Georgeton, is four inches wide and growing wider. Assays show 985 ounces silver.

Briar Hill shaft of the Cambria Steel company's Penn group in the Norway-Vulcan district of the Menominee. The shaft is being enlarged, and from top to bottom it is being given a lining of concrete. Six by eight feet in dimensions, the Briar Hill was opened to a depth of 800 feet, both by sinking and raising. It is now being transformed into a circular shaft of about fifteen feet in diameter. A section of fifty feet is cut to the required size, and the concrete lining is then built up to a connection with that previously done, the rock broken being dropped to the bottom and trammed thence to the old opening of the mine for disposal. The concrete work is now finished to a depth of 170 feet, and enlarging and stripping the shaft for the installation of another sectio nof the lining are under way.

Preliminary to the construction of a railroad extending from the site of the new plant near Lake Antoine to the center of their Section Thirty-One property, the Jones furnace interests of Iron Mountain have organized the Iron Mountain Short Line Railway company. Section 31 contains very large deposits of low grade mineral, such as the new furnace, now nearing completion, is designed to smelt in the processs of making steel direct from iron ore, and it is proposed to develop the tract on an extensive scale. The railroad wil be only a mile long, as now projected, but eventually, as additional properties are opened, it will serve materially greater territory. The Jones furnace is attracting much interest, in the East as well as in the Lake Superior country, and latterly it has been inspected by a number of expert metallurgisas. It is being erected after years of experimentation by its invention, John T. Jones, who has long been a prominent figure in Lake Superior mining and metallurgy, and that capital has faith in it is evidenced from the heavy expenditure now being made in the connection. It is a revolutionary practice that will be used at the stack, but there seems no lack of confidence it will be entirely successful.

The old Conrad mine, west of Ishpeming, Marquette range, is being reopened after an idleness of twenty years. The shaft is being deepened, and a new equipment of machinery is being inetalled. The Independent Ore company is doing the work.

What is probably the largest hoisting cage in the iron region is that installed in the new "C" Ludington shaft of the Steel corporations Chapin mine at Iron Mountain. It is of steel, double-decked, and has accommodations for fifty-six men at a lift. The shaft is 1,500 feet deep.

SWAMP LAND DECISION IS NOT SO VALUABLE.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The claim of the state officials that they have won a great victory in the recent swamp land decision in Washington is not well founded, according to a statement made in St. Paul today by Chauncey E. Richardson, an attorney of Washington.

Secretary of the Interior Garfield's ruling awarded to the state of Minnesota land and timber on the ceded portion of the Chippewa Indian reservation, valued at about $1,500,000. This ruling resulted from the claim made by the state on "swamp" lands on the reservation. But Mr. Richardson, who is the attorney for the Indians at Washington, say the field notes made in 1875 and 1876 showed the so-called swamps include high and heavily timbered land. This land comprises railroad cuts from eight to thirty feet deep, which would, of course, be impossible to dig in swampy ground.

MANY LETTERS OF CONGRATULATION

Fairview, Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 15.—Telegrams and letters of congratulations on his speech of acceptance have been pouring in on William J. Bryan, the Democratic candidate for president. These are not only from men prominent in the councils of the party but from persons in the ordinary walks of life. One dispatch in particular pleased him very much. It came from a number of newsboys of Omaha.

Mr. Bryan and the Democratic national committee, working in conjunction are making arrangements for the campaign tour through Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. While nothing definite has been determined on in the way of cities Mr. Bryan will visit, it tentatively has been agreed that shortly after the speech at Peoria, Sept. 9, he will enter the state of Ohio and speak at several of the larger points, before touring Illinois, Indiana and New York. It is expected that before long, announcement of the speaking program will be made by Chairman Mack.

GIBBONS SAYS FAREWELL.

Rome, Aug. 14.—Cardinal Gibbons had his farewell audience with the pope today in the latter's private library. The cardinal thanked the pontiff for having granted him all that he had asked for, both from the propaganda and the Vatican, and the pope replied that where the interest of the church in America was concerned, nothing ever would be denied.

Ten Years in Bed.

"For ten years I was confined to my bed with disease of my kidneys," writes R. A. Gray, J. P. of Oakville, Ind. "It was so severe that I could not move part of the time. I consulted the very best medical skill available, but could get no relief until Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me. It has been a Godsend to me." Sold by all druggists.

SPRINGFIELD WOMAN ATTACKED BY NEGROES.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 14.—Mrs. Earl Hallam, wife of a conductor on the Springfield Consolidated Railway company, who resides at 1153 North Fifth street, was dragged from her bed at midnight last night by a negro, who then dragged her into a garden in the rear of the house where he assaulted her. Mrs. Hallam was badly bruised about the neck and body. She was unconscious for some time. Her husband is on the owl car and does not get home until 2 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Hallam says she can identify her assailant as there was a light burning in the room. Five negroes were arrested today on suspicion but proved not to be the men.

ANOTHER BALLOON FLIES.

Two Harbors

Two Harbors, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Agent James Beatty of Allen Junction was in town Friday on business.

One business continues at the same gait, about twenty-four crews still being engaged in the service and no immediate prospects of any increase.

The usual routine matters were occupied the attention of the city council Monday evening. Upon the request of Messrs. A. H. Clark and William Roleff the license tax on certain dogs was reduced. Upon representations by Mr. Howard, agent for the Austin Western company, it was decided to purchase a road grader for use of the city and bids for it have been called for 8 p. m. Monday, the 31st inst. The matter of awarding the contract for the storm sewer was laid over for another week. Charles Falk was granted permission to lower his building on Cedar street to grade, to connect the sewer across the street with a sewer running to Swanstrom's building, lot 1, block 9, and to use part of the street for building material for a short time. Property owners in block 33, Sixth avenue, were given permission to build a 10-foot parking along the avenue until Sixth avenue is graded. Property owners in blocks 10 and 14, Third avenue east, petitioned for lateral sewer abutting their property. Property owners of lots 11, 12 and half of 13, in block 15, petitioned for cement sidewalk construction. The placing of a lower board on the railings of elevated sidewalks to prevent children falling under railing and of placing barbs on the top rail to prevent people sitting on the railings was ordered. The I. O. G. T. lodge, through Peter Larson, trustee, requested that arrangements be made so their hall could be connected with the sewer system, the hall being lower than the lateral sewer on Fifth avenue.

One is Shocked Beyond Measure by Numerous Cases.

Washington, Aug. 15.—One is shocked beyond measure at the innumerable cases of unfaithfulness on the part of husbands who have hitherto been reckoned among honorable members of society. A recent instance, if the newspaper reports be true, is especially sad. A member of a prominent Philadelphia family married a beautiful young woman eight or ten years ago. Two children are the fruit of this union. There has not been a breath of scandal against this lovely wife and mother. Now it is stated that the husband has become enamored of another woman, that he deliberately proposes to settle $100,000 upon the mother of his children and give her one of the children if she will take up a residence in North Dakota long enough to obtain a divorce from him and leave him free to marry the woman who has robbed him of every sense of honor and decency. The fact that the wife has gone to North Dakota to live for the time being would indicate that the report is correct.

If it is true, this wronged wife has made a mistake. No woman, so betrayed and abandoned without provocation on her part, should for one moment consent to anything that carried with it freedom to her faithless husband. This is the one weapon she has for her defense, and she should hold fast to that for her own and her children's sake, and she might eventually see her husband recover his senses and witness his keen remorse for his cruelty.

Such examples of infidelity by persons in high places have been followed by others in the lower walks of life. It seems worse for men who find it difficult to make comfortable provision for his lawful family to undertake to gratify the wicked caprices of sirens, who have beguiled them from the paths of rectitude and honor. The wives of such men have usually been loyally devoted to their husbands and children, self-denying and economic in their domestic affairs, accepting their fate with cheerful resignation, rarely knowing for a long time that their husbands were leading idual lives.

That which is the most astonishing in such cases is that men of intelligence and self-respect can be attracted by women of the character they must be who would attempt to wean them from their families. And yet, when they are exposed, they talk with perfect effrontery of their escapades and of the "outrage" of anyone interfering with their "private business," affirming that their relations are based upon the love they have for each other, boldly declaring that when they are freed from the matrimonial bonds which forbid them to commit bigamy, they will hasten to be married.

Take the late case of one Hobson. When caught in New York with Mrs. Pyle, the wife of another Washington man, he is reported to have said: "Mrs. Pyle and I found we cared for each other some time ago, and so, when I was forced to make this little business trip, she came with me. We had both left our homes before we met each other, and we didn't consider either her husband or my wife as any hindrance to our happiness."

Mrs. Pyle was inlignant because her trip to New York was referred to in the newspapers as a lark. "There's no lark about it," she declared. "This is the most interesting and important event in my life, and upon the outcome depends my future happiness."

An interview with the abandoned wife of Hobson revealed the fact that she and her two little children under five years of age had not known of the husband's whereabouts for weeks, or received a cent from him for their support.

Instead of such offenders against society being ostracised, they are treated with leniency and many excuses are made for them, and in all too many instances the inoffensive wives and husbands are accused of all kinds of inhumanity and heartlessness. It is incomprehensible that the authorities are both to punish these violators of the laws of the sacred institution of marriage, which is the foundation of morality and the most holy relation of life. Nine times out of ten the unhappy abandoned partners are unable to get any kind of redress and are left to spend the remainder of their days in melancholy reveries over the sacrifice of the best of their lives upon the altar of matrimony.

INTERESTING EVENT EXPECTED.

Apeldborn, Aug. 15.—It is announced that an interesting event is expected in the Dutch royal family. Queen Wilhelmina is now staying at the royal castle, Het Loo, near here.

THE GOVERNMENT WILL INTERVENE IN STRIKE.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 15.—It was learned last night that the Dominion government, through the railway commission, will intervene in the strike now on in all the mechanical trades on the Canadian Pacific railway. The prospects are for an amicable settlement of all differences between the company and the men within the next forty-eight hours. J. R. McVety, who is in charge of the local strike, left for the East on last night's train on a secret mission. The greatest possible serecy is observed as to where he has gone or what is his mission. J. Clark, inspector for the railway and commissioner of accidents and rolling stock, was sent here by the commission in consequence of representations made to the department of railways. Clark desires to have a conference with Mr. Whyte, second vice president, and held a long conference with the men's executive. In consequence of the report sent East by Clark, McVety has been called to Ottawa to confer with the government with a view to an early settlement of the difficulty.

DAY CURRENT TO PROVE WELCOME

Eveleth Will Hail Improvement in Electric Power Service.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—By the first of the month day current will be installed at the Eveleth electric lighting plant, by means of the new improvements that are being made. The day current will be of great aid to the two printing shops and other plants that are now being run either by gasoline or by hand. Much is due to the efforts of the present manager, H. W. Irwin, a practical engineer, who has taken hold of the plant and inside of two years has placed it in the first rank of range electric plants. Recently the office of the company was moved to the Miners' National bank, and the time for the allowing of discounts extended from the 10th to the 21st of the month.

TRACK CLEARER KILLED.

Marco Irylic Loses His Life at Coleraine.

Coleraine, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Marco Irylic, a young Austrain, employed as track clearer at the Canisteo mine was instantly killed yesterday by being run over by the second section of a steamshovel train, which he did not see. Three cars passed over his body severing his legs and crushing his chest. He was 19 and has a brother working in the Canisteo mine while his mother and two sisters live in Austria.

STRUCK BY TRAIN.

Peter Johnson Hurled Through Air Yet May Live.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Johnson, who is employed at the Utica mine, was struck by the incoming Great Northern passenger train and hurled quite a distance landing in a nearby lot, yet he may survive after his thrilling experience. He was picked up and taken to the hospital where he is getting on nicely.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local lodge of Red Men has appointed a committee of three, consisting of A. E. Bickford, J. P. Chalmers and J. Schroeder to arrange an athletic exhibition which will be given in the near future. Some interesting events are promised.

The funeral of William Gray, the well known character about town, who died Thursday morning, was held yesterday from the Catholic church. Friends of the dead man saw that he was given a Christian burial.

GRAND RAPIDS BUILDINGS.

Work on Several Structures Progressing Nicely.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Aug. 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The building operations on the site of the old south side villa property of the Itasca Paper company are progressing finely. The residence destined for F. G. Becker is nearly ready for plastering, and the foundation of that to be occupied by Supt. Jorgenson is rising rapidly. The stone work on both was and is in the hands of Edward Hashey, and, like all of his work, does him credit; the carpentry work being under the supervision of Len Hofer—which is only saying, in other words, that it is and will be a first-class job.

MURDER, RIOTING AND ARSON AT SPRINGFIELD

sideboards and kitchen were stripped, and all the tableware and dishes piled upon the fire.

The fire department which had been called out half a dozen times in efforts to disperse the crowds, again made a run to the restaurant, but was powerless. Every line of hose that was stretched was cut before a stream of water could be forced into the fire. The restaurant was stripped clean by the mob, which worked without hindrance until its work was nearly completed.

The local companies of militia, consisting of a company of infantry, a troop of cavalry, and a Gatling gun section, which had been ordered out by Governor Deneen early in the afternoon, was busy with the situation in the vicinity of the jail, and the local authorities had no men to spare at the scene of the Loper rioting. Finally in a desperate effort to restore order, the cavalry troop was dispatched to the restaurant.

Serious Rioting Breaks Loose.

Then the rioting broke loose in serious form. Shots were fired and the air was filled with missiles. Many fell in the melee and it was here that Louis Johnson met his death. After the mob had moved to other scenes, Johnson's body was picked up in the rear of Loper's place.

After nothing of Loper's place remained for the infuriated crowd, a rush was made for the levee, which is usually populated with negroes. But most of them had disappeared.

Attacks were made upon several store buildings in which it was believed negroes had been secreted. Entrance was forced to these places and stocks of merchandise turned topsy-turvy in the search for refugees.

Shortly before midnight the mob broke into Fishman's pawn shop and secured a quantity of rifles, shotguns, revolvers and ammunition. With these they armed themselves and started to march the streets in absolute control of the situation.

Chafin Struck by Brick.

"Stand back, gentlemen, or I'll shoot everyone of you who touches this man," were the words of Eugene W. Chafin, Prohibition candidate for president, who faced a mob that had attacked a negro while Mr. Chafin was delivering a public address on the East side of the square last night.

For his act Chafin was struck on the left side of the face with a brickbat hurled at him by a member of the mob.

Chafin was well along in his speech when a negro, pursued by a mob, came toward the speaker's stand from Fifth and Washington streets, where he had been pulled from a street car.

The crowd closed in on the negro and had him on the ground, beating him with their fists and clubs. The negro finally got away and jumped on the platform.

It was at this point that Mr. Chafin stepped to the front of the mob, put his hand to his hip pocket and threatened to shoot anyone who touched the negro. Mr. Chafin's threat had the desired effect, although he had no weapon.

During the fight the negro pulled a knife from his pocket and slashed several white men. Mr. Chafin was not seriously injured. James Scott was struck by a stray bullet and almost instantly killed.

Negro Lynched.

After burning many houses in the negro quarter the mob, which became more and more desperate as the night passed finally gratified its thirst for blood this morning at 3 o'clock, when a negro was lynched at the corner of Twelfth and Madison streets, right in the heart of the so-called "bad lands."

Troops arrived at the scene too late to prevent the lynching. Some of the members of the mob declared that the negro lynched had shot two white men. They said that in a fight with the whites the negro was forced into a corner at the saloon and grocery on the corner of Twelfth and Madison. When retreat was cut off, the negro is said to have opened fire, wounding two. Then came the cry "get a rope."

All themembers of the mob eagerly took up the cry. The negro was caught and dragged to the street. Here he was beaten and shot five times, and then a rope was swung around his neck and the other end of the rope thrown over the limb of a tree in front of the store. With a cry of satisfaction, the negro was swung high off the ground. He was dead in a few moments.

Body Riddled With Bullets.

After riddling the body with bullets, the mob commenced to dance around the tree. At this point a company of troops from Decatur arrived and commenced firing, causing the rioters to disperse in a hurry. By daylight the streets had practically been cleared and the troops were in control of the situation.

Harry Loper, owner of the restaurant destroyed, said:

"I have been through one riot in Cincinnati in '83, the greatest in this country, when 100 men were killed. It was to avoid loss of life that I took those men out of town. I did not favor the men; I have no interest in them whatever and would go just as far to punish them as anybody, but after going through the Cincinnati riot and knowing the sheriff as I do, I knew he would be killed first before he would let the jail be taken. I thought I would save lives by removing the colored men.

"I would not shoot a single man to protect my place and I only shot into the crowd when in personal danger. I would not kill a single man to save my place."

The Wounded.

Caldwell, John, shot in stomach by militia; may die.

Hanen, Louis, shot in chest and chin by militia; may die.

Oakley, Robert, negro, former policeman and leader in resistance to mob attack; shot in eye, chest and ear; will die.

The majority of the others were shot in the legs or feet by the soldiers who dispersed the mob.

Hay Fever and Summer Colds.

Victims of hay fever will experience great benefit by taking Foley's Honey and Tar, as it stops difficult breathing immediately and heals the inflamed air passages, and even if it should fail to cure you it will give instant relief." The genuine is in a yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

Deneen at 9 o'clock and afterwards talked with the governor over the long distance telephone.

"The governor told me that the situation at Springfield today was well in hand, but in order to guard against any further riotous demonstrations, he thought it well to make an imposing display of military forces," said Gen. Young. "The First Illinois will take a special train in time to arrive at Springfield this evening. We are proceeding on the theory that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. With the arrival of the First Illinois, there will be at Springfield three regiments of national guardsmen numbering about 2,500 men and officers."

Diarrhoea Cured.

"My father has for years been troubled with diarrhoea, and tried every means possible to effect a cure, without avail," writes John H. Zirkle of Philippi, W. Va. "He saw Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy advertised in the Philippi Republican and decided to try it. The result is one bottle cured him, and he has not suffered for eighteen months. Before taking this remedy he was a constant sufferer. He is now sound and well, and, although 90 years old, can do as much work as a young man." Sold by all druggists.

DR. MITCHELL

THE GREAT SPECIALIST

More than ten thousand cured during the past ten years proves that his method of treatment is a godsend to suffering humanity. Diseases that have baffled the skill of physicians are lost vitality, varicocele, nervous debility or nervous torubles of any kind, no matter whether caused by overwork or worry, and no matter whether you are young or old, you can be made strong and well by Dr. Mitchell's treatment. Dr. Mitchell cures cancer in less time and with less pain than any other method. He cures all female troubles, piles, fissures, fistulas, skin diseases, dyspepsia, hip-joint disease, consumption, catarrh, deafness, blindness, sore eyes of all kinds, constipation, neuralgia and every other disease after every other treatment fails.

Mr. Andrew Henderson of Two Harbors, Minn., came to Dr. Mitchell crippled with rheumatism, could not walk without a cane. Cured in a few treatments.

Miss Inga Hessness, 524 Twenty-third avenue west, Duluth, had one limb drawn back and locked in the knee, straightened by Dr. Mitchell.

Mrs. E. T. Lorning, 517 Twenty-third avenue west, Duluth, was a cripple, in bed, with rheumatism, cured by Dr. Mitchell.

Mrs. Halquist, 2628 Huron street, Duluth, was so deaf in one year that she could not hear a watch tick, cured by Dr. Mitchell.

Mrs. J. Marris, Wagner, S. D., had a fistula of many years' standing cured in a short time by Dr. Mitchell.

If you are sick and looking for a treatment that will cure you, be sure and consult Dr. Mitchell. He is the only specialist in his line at the Head of the Lakes, and his treatment has stood the test of time. He is glad to see all those suffering and not getting well under present treatment. He will give them his valuable advice free of charge.

WEST END

COMRADES AT FUNERAL

Young Friends of John Benson Spend Pennies for Flowers.

Newsboys Grieve Over Sudden Death of Their Chum.

Grieving for the sudden and terrible death of their little chum and fellow-worker, John Benson, whose life was crushed out by a falling tree while berry-picking Thursday afternoon, The Herald newsboys of the West end branch yesterday took up a collection to purchase flowers for their comrade's funeral. They are planning to attend the funeral this afternoon in a body.

The lad has been selling Heralds since he was 9 years old, and was well liked by all the boys at the West end distributing station. He was 14 years of age, and had just graduated from the eighth grade of the Lincoln school. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the residence to the Lutheran cemetery.

REORGANIZE TEAM.

The Crescent football team, which earned such an enviable reputation on the gridiron last year, will reorganize this year, and hope to repeat last year's performances. A number of the boys have left the city, but there seems to be a wealth of new stuff that can easily be worked up.

The Crescents are planning on a number of trips this season, among them being Hibbing, Two Harbors and Virginia. Last year, at more expense than they could well afford, the boys brought the Virginia team here, with the understanding that a return game in Virginia was to be played. When it came time to play, the Virginia boys backed out, and promised to give the boys a trip this year.

Oscar Helm of 2624 West Seventh street was elected captain of the team, at a meeting held last night.

TRAMPS NUMEROUS.

Professional Beggars Are Annoying West End Housewives.

Tramps are becoming too numerous in the West end for the comfort of the residents. They are of the kind that mark the houses, and when the kind-hearted housewife feeds one she is kept busy.

They are, it is said, professional tramps, who make no pretense of working, and graft their living from people foolish enough to listen to their tales of woe. Some tell stories of the wife and eight children variety, while others have a very sore arm, hurt recently in a railroad accident and just out of the hospital.

G. E. Emerson, who lives on West Third street, met one of these fellows as he was going into a house today and after listening to his story offered to bet him $5 against nothing that the arm was in no way disabled. Mr. Tramp would not bet.

ASK APPROPRIATION.

At the meeting last night of the West End Hillside Improvement club a committee of five was appointed to wait on the members of the conference committee and urge the appropriation of the $6,000 that is needed to put Piedmont avenue in shape to extend the street car line. The club hopes to have the line extended the same year that the appropriation is made.

A resolution was passed thanking the members of the school board for their action in choosing the old site for the new school building, also for renaming the school the "J. D. Ensign." The old name "Horace Mann" was generally disliked in the West end.

The club indorsed the candidacy of John Sundeen for the office of county commissioner for the Third district. The club also decided to get actively into politics again, and will at the next meeting indorse its candidates for the several offices.

West End Shortrails.

The West End Juniors will tackle the West End Sluggers Sunday on the Twenty-fifth avenue grounds.

Fred Bujold was taken to Brainerd yesterday, where he will enter the Railroad Men's sanitarium, to be treated for blood poisoning.

Miss Harriet Shannon, 1123 West Third street, who has been for the past two weeks visiting friends in Stillwater, has returned home.

Robert Kennedy of 618 North Forty-seventh avenue west will leave tonight for the Brule on a fishing trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry Fisher have returned from their wedding trip and are at home in the Miller building.

Morris Friedman, who has been playing baseball with the Ashley, North Dakota, team, is home. The Ashley team has disbanded.

R. G. Sloane of the Sloane block, has returned from Canada.

The Young People's society of the Swedish Mission church will meet Sunday afternoon in the church parlors.

The funeral of Dora, the 3-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Norton was held today from the family residence in the Green block. Rev. J. A. Anderson of the Swedish Methodist church, officiated. Interment was at the Lutheran cemetery.

John Wagner has gone to the Twin Cities, where he will visit friends and relatives for a few days.

Men Past Sixty in Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottle of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old." Sold by all druggists."

A Perfect Malt Extract

Digesto is a combination of the highest grade imported hops, the choicest selections of barley, and pure artesian water. Digesto MALT EXTRACT is not only a most efficient vitalizer and producer of new blood and tissue but the absence of that sweet taste, common to most Malt Extracts, makes it extremely palatable as well.

It is invaluable to convalescents, nursing mothers, business men, tired out women, and workers of all kinds.

The continued use of Digesto is productive of the best results.

SWINDLED ON A POOL GAME

Detectives Claim Young Men Got $20 From Farmer.

Charged with swindling Wallace Lapp, a farmer from North Wisconsin, out of $20 by the latest accepted city methods, Roy Nichols, Bert Moore and B. Shive were arrested this afternoon by Detective Irvine and Shuite.

It is claimed that Nichols and Moore had Lapp bet on a pool game, one of them holding the money. They told him he had lost, and at this juncture, Shive is claimed to have appeared and represented himself as a detective, attempting to frighten Lapp into silence.

The real detectives then appeared upon the scene and took all three young men to headquarters.

A CASE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

Jacob Hope, whose phonographed school for parrots in Philadelphia has given him a deep ornithological knowledge, was praising the gray African parrot.

"It is the cleverest of the parrot family," he said, "and the best talker. You hear some remarkable tales about it, tales that make you think it must have a mind like your own. A Nicetown man came in the other day to tell me of a gray African parrot I had trained for him. He said that they kept the bird in the nursery, where it showed the most remarkable liking for the baby. It was especially interested in the baby's morning bath. All through the operation of filling the little tin tub, undressing the tiny child, scrubbing it and so on, the parrot on its perch squawked and flapped its wings in the greatest excitement and delight.

"Well, one day, the parrot was removed to the kitchen while the nursery was being papered. It passed several hours in the kitchen quietly; then, all of a sudden, it uttered a succession of ear-piercing shrieks.

"'Oh, the baby! Oh, the poor, dear baby!' it screamed, over and over again, in accents of terror and despair.

"The entire household rushed to the kitchen. The parrot on its perch flapped its wings and tugged at its chain, while it watched with frantic eyes the cook preparing a little sucking pig for the roasting pan."

WORKSHOPS AT HOME.

The latest development in workmen's dwellings is to be found in a house just built in Paris by the Societe Phlianthropique. The money for it was provided by a legacy left by Mlle. Marie Souvestre, daughter of the novelist Emile Souvestre, says the New York Sun.

The feature of the house is that each apartment in addition to the living rooms includes a workshop, so that the head of the family and perhaps his children can earn their livelihood at home. The workshops all have bay windows running from ceiling almost to the floor and occupying the entire side of the room. Each contains a two horse-power electric motor.

Of course the tenant pays for the power himself, but the use of the motor and running gear is included in the rent of the apartment, and this varies from $120 to $140 a year.

The living apartments consist of two large rooms and a kitchen. There are free baths in the cellar, and above the roofs proper there are supplementary rooms. Part of the space is enclosed for laundries; the rest is an open roof garden in which the clothes can be dried in fine weather. There is a drying room for bad weather, and in summer the roofs are lit up at night so that the tenants can take the air up there.

Among the tenants are a metal polisher, a toolmaker, a diamond cutter, a printer, a candy maker and a shoemaker. If the house is a success others like it will be built.

BIRDS ROBBED MAIL BOX.

Lewiston Journal: A remarkable story of bird intelligence is told by Henry Babb of Bowdoinham, whose mail box is on the rural free delivery route. One side of this box is broke, and some time ago Mr. Babb found a bird had built her nest in the box, going in through the hole made by the broken place. The bird set up housekeeping in the novel home, and now there are five young birds and the mother.

Several times the mail carriers have tried to drive the bird away, and at first they took out the nest and threw it away, but every time the bird returned, and after the young ones came turned, and after the young ones came they gave up trying to dislodge them. Last week Mr. Babb found the signal set on the box and looked for mail, but found none in the box.

This happened a number of times, so often that he decided that some one had tampered with the box. So he asked the neighbors to watch out. One day when a neighbor, Geo. Hackett, drove by he saw a bird flying from the box with something in its mouth. He followed the bird to a tree some distance away, and there the bird stopped and after dropping the article she carried flew away.

Mr. Hackett went under the tree and found four letters addressed to Mr. Babb. Each one had been brought apparently by this unusual messenger. Just why the same tree was selected every time seems strange. One theory advanced to account for the removal of the letters is that their presence in the box interfered with the domestic arrangements of the feathered lodger, who took this way to get rid of them.

ANTS AS WEATHER PROPHETS.

Chicago Tribune: Ants as weather prophets afford new testimony to the cleverness of these small animals. When you go out on a spring morning and find the ants busily engaged in clearing out their nests and dragging the sand and bits of earth to the surface you may be sure that no matter how cloudy it is there will be no rain that day and the probabilities are for several days of good weather.

If, however, you see the ants about the middle of a spring or summer afternoon hurrying back to the nest and a sentinel trotting out in every direction looking up stragglers and urging them to go home as soon as they can get there, you may figure on a rain that afternoon or night.

When the last of the wanderers is found the picket hurries in and the nest is securely sealed from the inside to keep out the water. It is seldom that ants are taken by surprise by the approach of a shower.

ASSESSOR'S FIGURES ARE DISCARDED BY BOARD

Declaring that Assessor Jackson had overthrown ten years' work in assessing and adjusting values in the city of Duluth by his assessment this year, and that the assessment was so faulty that no satisfactory conclusion could be reached with it as a basis, the county board of equalization this morning decided to discard this year's assessment and work from the 1906 figures.

A resolution was adopted making the old figures a basis. It provides for the addition of 25 per cent to the figures of the board of review on buildings and improvements, bringing these portions of the real estate assessment back to the original mark set by Assessor Jackson this year. He did not materially change building values during this assessment. This gave the board about $2,500,000 margin for reduction, without reducing the aggregate assessment of the county.

On land the 1906 figures are taken as a basis. The resolution makes certain exceptions, however, where raises in values have been unquestionable.

The resolution, as drawn up by W. J. Stevenson and introduced by County Auditor Odin Halden this morning, with the list of changes from the 1906 assessment, is as follows:

"Resolved, that the valuation of each and every tract and lot of real property within the city of Duluth be and hereby is reduced to and fixed at the amount, which is in our opinion the true and full valuation thereof, viz:

"First, the assessor's valuation of all structures and improvements within the said limits is increased 25 per cent of the respective amounts fixed and assessed by the city assessor and as modified by the city board of review.

"Second, the value of each and every such tract or lot exclusive of structures or improvements is hereby reduced to and fixed at the valuation of each of said tracts and lots exclusive of structures and improvements as assessed and equalized for the year 1906, except specific instances as hereinafter specified, and it is the purpose of this resolution to so equalize and reduce the assessed valuation of each and every one of said tracts and lots and structures and improvements as fully as if each piece or parcel of property were herein specifically described, and the respective valuations as herein determined, set opposite to each of said descriptions."

The Exceptions.

The exceptions made by the board, where, in the opinion of the committee which had charge of the work, real increases in value have taken place, are as follows:

First street—Tracts and lots south of the alley between First and Second streets and north of the alley between Superior and First streets, and between Mesaba avenue and Fourth avenue east, increased 20 per cent.

Superior street—Both sides of the street, between Mesaba and Washington avenues, increased 25 per cent.

Lake avenue—All lots btween Michigan street and the canal, increased 15 per cent.

Vicinity of steel plant—Platted portions of Fond du Lac and East Fond du Lac, New Duluth First and Second divisions, Smith's addition, Manufacturers' addition, Riverside Park addition, Brace's addition, Everett Park addition, Rosedale addition, Springfield addition, Spirit Lake addition, Minnewaukan addition, Lenroot's addition, Ironton Fourth and Second divisions and unplatted tracts in sections 1, 2, 3, 9, 10, 11, 12, Township 58, Range 15, and in section 23, except the west ½ of the NW¼, and in sections 24, 25, and 26, and the SE¼ of section 27, the east ½ of section 34, and all of sections 35, 36, in township 49, range 15, increased 100 per cent.

East End Residence District—Wooster, Longview, Sterling, New Endion and part of Willard's divisions, part of Harrison's division, part of Highland Park division, Endion Park division increased 15 per cent.

While these increases are material they are considerably under the figures made by City Assessor Jackson. For instance the assessor increased values in the vicinity of the steel plant 500 per cent as compared with the 100 per cent increase deemed just by the board.

Real Estate Men Pleased.

Real estate men throughout the city express themselves as very well satisfied with the board's action this morning. The 1906 assessment is regarded as a much more rational basis to work upon than the city assessor's figures of this year.

"That is a fine assessment," said C. P. Craig, "they have put the increases on where they belong, and where they can stand it. I am sure that it will be perfectly satisfactory throughout the city."

"The assessment is far better than the other," said Luther Mendenhall of Mendenhall & Hoopes. "I regard it as just to all."

The committee which made the assessment from the 1906 figures this morning, and decided where the increases must go, was composed of County Auditor Halden, Attorney for the County Board W. J. Stevenson, Mayor Roland D. Haven and Deputy Auditor Marvin. They spent the greater part of the morning drawing up the resolution and the exceptions to the 1906 figures and presented them to the board just before the noon adjournment. The vote to pass the resolution was unanimous.

The resolution meets most of the objections offered to Mr. Jackson's 1908 assessment. Property owners in outlying districts, who were doing the most strenuous kicking, are satisfied, and the general reduction affects everybody.

It is thought that the $2,500,000 gained by raising the building and improvement assessment to Mr. Jackson's first figures will be sufficient to cover the drop in land values. If not, the board has a comfortable margin of over $2,000,000, which it increased the range in mine assessments to protect it.

This afternon the board is considering certain reductions asked for by mine owning companies for a number of mines which are not being worked at present.

INTO THE UNCANNY.

The Tatler: R. W. Stead is busy explaining the strange phenomena that have appeared in Carmine Villa. I am free to confess that I know nothing about these things, and at the moment do not care. If some ghost lounges up against me in a graveyard at midnight I shall be prepared to modify my views and to betray an interest in the subject which at the present time I cannot pretend to. But the persistence of life after death is present in the minds of most of us.

The evidence, so far as I know, is quite inconclusive. The Psychical Research Society has some hard nuts to crack, but upon the other hand, the Spiritualists have as yet nothing definite. At most they only possess a working hypothesis.

I have heard many uncanny stories in my time, warranted to set me thinking furiously. Here, for example, is the story—and a true story at that—of a man who was dead and did not know it. A friend of mine in the midlands had a nephew. This nephew had a friend. They were hearty young fellows, and in a spirit of adventure went to sea together. They sailed to Rio happy and expectant. Now it happens that my friend's wife is a medium. Please do not ask me what are the qualities that constitute a medium, because I cannot tell you. In the general way, I presume, a medium is so nervously organized that the spirits can beat a tattoo on some nerve plexus to the consternation of unbelievers. Well, the ship in due course (this always happens) there was an epidemic of yellow fever. The nephew's friend caught the yellow jack, died and was buried—all unknown to his friends in this country. A few days later in the middle of the night my friend's wife woke from her slumber, telling her husband that there was some message to deliver. The dead young man spoke through the living medium. He said: "Please cable the authorities; they think I am dead; they have put me in a great big box and have buried me."

My friend cabled out, and was informed that the young man had undoubtedly died of yellow fever and had been buried. Clearly he did not know that he was dead.

Every family of any importance—and we are all highly connected, aren't we?—believes that Providence takes especial care of its members. My family, anyhow, has always gone nap on providential protection. In proof thereof I would tell this story. A great-aunt who was of a masculine turn of mind. She not only farmed her own land, but went to market and sold her produce, haggling with the best of them. On one occasion her trap was broken, as she drove to market with a neighboring farmer, returning in the late dusk with a bag of gold, the proceeds of her industry (industry is a characteristic of our family). Her house stood back from the main road about 200 yards. To save her farmer friend trouble, she alighted on the main road, taking a short cut over a stile, thence across a small field to a rustic bridge which spanned a little river. On the other side of the bridge was a hedge through which my aunt would have to pass before reaching her house. This is fearfully involved, I fear, but you must try to picture the scene or you will not realize how Providence was on the qui vive. The farmer said "Good night;" my aunt got over the stile, and to her surprise was met by a great mastiff dog. She had never seen the animal before, nor did she know of anybody possessing such a creature. The mastiff walked solemnly beside her as she crossed the field, kept her company over the bridge, and as she was about to pass through the hedge suddenly sprang in front, and the next thing my aunt heard was the gurgling sound of a man who was choking. And so it was. A man was waiting behind the hedge with an ugly-looking bludgeon, but the dog settled his hash, and my aunt saved her money and led him downstairs into a homely kitchen, and was never seen or heard of again.

Now for a clerical experience. A new incumbent had settled in a little vicarage on one of the Yorkshire moors. He went to bed one night and had a strange dream. He dreamt that he heard the house bell ring, and on going downstairs two men asked him instantly to proceed to a certain house three miles off to administer the last rites to a dying woman of great age.

It was a bright moonlight night and a three-mile walk was agreeable enough. He could clearly distinguish the faces of his two companions, who were silent and saturnine. Finally they left the main track, striking across a rugged country, quite unfamiliar to the clergyman. At length they reached a lonely house, the clergyman being shown upstairs into what he assumed to be the bedroom of the dying woman. Instantly the men set upon him and he found himself fighting for dear life.

At this point in the dream he awoke and began to wonder what he had had for supper.

He had not been awake five minutes, having hardly decided whether his supper had been harmless or not, when actually the bell did ring. Dressing quickly he opened the door, and, lo and behold, there were the very two men of whom he had dreamt. They told him of an old woman who was dying and who wanted his services.

What was he to do—believe in his dream and forget his sacred office? He asked them to wait a few minutes and withdrew to another room, where he debated with himself what should be done. There was no friend near and time was pressing. The obligations of his office weighed too heavily upon him to be ignored. So off he trudged with the two men. Every detail of the dream journey was now realized in fact. He noted the same points in the landscape, wondering in a far-off sort of way whether he should see them again. He came to the thicket surrounding th house; he passed through the door, which was left ajar; he was shown up the staircase exactly as before into the room as he had seen it in his dream, but this time a dying woman lay there in her bed anxiously waiting for spiritual help.

There is, however, a sequel. One day the bishop passed that way. After lunch the bishop and the incumbent fell to swapping experiences (they do it in every trade), and in this manner the bishop knew that he was being entertained by an angel. So it came about that a little later on, when a good, fat living was available, the bishop remembered the man away out on the lone moor and gave him promotion, because his sense of duty was greater than his dread of the weird and the fearsome.

THE MCKINLEY MOOSE.

Los Angeles Times: During President McKinley's administration a party of government employes were cation from Valdez establishing telegraphic communication from Valdez, Alaska, to points inland. Owing to the remoteness of the new, untamed country supplies were hard to obtain, and the party, wisely or unwisely conceived the idea of transporting an ordinary milch cow, which was to accompany them enroute. About every twenty-five of thirty miles there was a station, and during the progress of the work the cow traveled withe the men up and down the line.

The Siwash Indians had never seen such an extraodinary creature, the nearest approach to it being their native cow-moose. They gathered from far and near, and asked all manner of questions in regard to this strange and wonderful animal. "Where you come from? Who your chief?" were the first questions.

"McKinley is our chief," was the answer.

The Indians conceiving that McKinley owned all things, departed to tell their brothers and sisters and grandmothers who in turn came to see the remarkable cow—the "McKinley moose" they named it. The white man took it up, so the name has come to stay, and a cow is no longer a cow in Alaska. In sections it is somewhat of a curiosity yet, for ween the winter snows are ten feet on the level, and hay retails as high as $500 a ton, few can aford to keep a "McKinley moose."

WOMEN IN OFFICE.

Kansas City Journal: The appointment of Mrs. Levi Cooper as probate judge of Mitchell county by Governor Hoch and the discussions that resulted from this appointment have developed the fact that nearly every kind of voice in the state except state offices has one or more woman occupant.

Mrs. Cooper is the only woman in the state who is serving as probate judge. However, there is one woman county attorney in Kansas. Miss Oala Heimline is serving her third term as county attorney of Seward county.

Western Kansas has had several women county attorneys, but the custom never appears to have become popular in the eastern part of the state. In Norton county Kate Johnson has just completed a term as county treasurer. There are half a dozen or more county registers of deeds in the state and probably thirty women county superintendents of schools.

So far as is known there are no women in Kansas serving as clerks of district courts or county commissioner However, several have served as mayors of cities. In several instances there have been women candidates for state superintendent of public instruction, but they were not elected.

The Socialists at their recent convention in Topeka nominated a Girard woman for state superintendent in spite of a strong speech made against it by her husband.

WOMAN OPERATES MINE.

Seattle Post-Intellingencer: On the west coast of Prince of Wales island, Alaska, little travelled and off the beaten paths of sea commerce, is a copper mine which for several years has been operated under the management of a woman. It has been a successful venture, made so from careful management, and the owner, Tola Wyman, is perhaps the only woman in Alaska who is shipping ore out of that territory. For two years she has been sending her product to the Tacoma smelter.

Mrs. Wyman is of middle age, with ruddy cheeks and with health enough for half a dozen city women. She keeps as much track of copper market and the copper situation as any other miner.

WHEAT IS OFF AGAIN

The Little News That Comes is Rather Bearish.

Flax Has an Advance, Trading is Very Light.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 15.—Wheat was off again in the American markets today, largely through the operations of speculators. There was little news to affect the market, but the speculators made the best of bearish reports and sent prices down. The losses were small in all markets and the situation was not at all discouraging to those on the long side of the market.

The December option was ⅞c off in Duluth, 1-1⅛c off in Chicago, 1¼-⅜c off in Minneapolis, 1c off in New York, 1c off in St. Louis, 1-1⅛c off in Kansas City, 1¼c off in Winnipeg.

Car receipts of wheat were 19 against 14 last year, and at Minneapolis 65 against 95 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 84 against 119 last year. Chicago received 163 against 228 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 775,000 bus, last year 896,000 bus. Shipments 594,000 bus, last year 459,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 574,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 379,000 bus, last year 430,000 bus. Shipments 257,000 bus, last year 331,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 1,552 bus.

Wheat closed unchanged in Liverpool and Berlin. The exchanges were closed at Budapesth, Antwerp and Paris on account of a holiday. Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a steady undertone to the speculative wheat market at the opening and values were unchanged to ⅛d higher, as a result of the late firm cables from America yesterday and the predictions of the light world's shipments for Monday. Following the opening and during the remainder of the session the market was under heavy selling pressure, with free liquidation in the September option, this option showing a decline of ⅝d while the distant month declined only ⅛d on the forecast of large shipments to Liverpool. At the close the undertone to the market was steady and values unchanged to ⅝d lower than yesterday.

"Corn was steady and unchanged. Offerings were light, prompted by the strength in parcels and small offerings."

Trading was very quiet on the floor of the Duluth board, though flax recovered some of the losses of yesterday. September wheat opened ¼c off at $1.02⅞ bid, dropped to $1.02¼, advanced to $1.02½ and then to $1.03⅜, dropping to $1.01⅞ at the close. December wheat opened ⅝c off at 98⅝c, dropped to 98c and closed at 98⅛c.

September flax opened unchanged at $1.30½, advanced to $1.32¼, went to $1.32½ and closed at $1.32¼. October flax opened ½c up at $1.28½, went to $1.29 and closed at $1.29 bid. November flax closed 1¾c up at $1.29¼ and December flax closed ¾c up at $1.26¾ bid.

Durum wheat was unchanged in the Duluth market and cash spring wheat 16⅛c over September. Oats were 1c off at 45c and rye ½c off at 73-75c. Barley was unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Active and Easy at Opening, Weak Cables Being Factors.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—The wheat market was active and easy at the opening today, weak cables being the factor. September opened ⅛@¼c lower, to a shade higher at 93⅞c to 94⅛c and sold at 94¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 247 cars against 281 cars last week and 337 cars a year ago.

Heavy sales by several of the leading longs caused a severe slump in the last half of the session, prices declining more than 1c from the high point of the day. September broke to 92¾@⅞c. The market closed weak with September down ⅞@1c, at 93⅛c.

Corn was active and weak. More rain and the Illinois crop report were the bearish factors. The crop report showed an improvement over June 20, of four points. September opened ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c lower, at 76⅝c to 76¾c sold at 76⅞c and then declined to 76¼c. Local receipts were 160 cars with 51 of contract grade.

The slump in wheat and a break of more than 1c in the price of the cash grain imparted additional weakness later in the day. September sold off to 75½c. The close was weak, September going down 1⅛c@1¼c, at 75⅝c.

There was only a moderate trade in oats and the market opened active and weak with corn. September opened ⅛c to ¼c lower, at 46⅝c to 46¾c and held within that range. Local receipts were 204 cars.

The provision market was dull and firm on a 5 to 10c advance in hogs. September pork opened 10c higher, at $15.05; lard opened 5c higher, at $9.50 and ribs were up 5c at $8.70.

Close: Wheat—September, 93⅛c; December, 94⅞c; May, 99c. Corn—September, 75⅝c; December, 63¾@⅞c; May, 62¾@⅞c. Oats—September, 45⅞@46c; December, 46⅝c; May, 48⅝@¾c. Pork—September, $15.07½; October, $15.22½; January, $16.07½. Lard—September, $9.30; October, $9.40; January, $9.17½. Ribs—September, $8.70@8.72½; October, $8.80@8.82½; January, $8.10. Rye—Cash, 78c. Barley—Cash, 62@65c. Timothy—September, $3.60@3.75. Clover—October, $1.25. Cash wheat No. 2 red, 94½@95c; No. 3 red, 93½c; No. 2 hard, 94¾@96; No. 3 hard, 93½@95c. Corn—No. 2 and 3, nothing doing. Oats—No. 2 new, 46½c; No. 3 new, 46@47c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 15.—The week ended with the lightest stocks of wheat Minneapolis ever known at a like date, the decrease of 364,727 bus., for the period having pulled down the total to 815,202. Receipts today were 65 cars against 95 and in Duluth 19 against 14. There was a sprinkling of new spring wheat and 12 cars appeared today at market opened strong on the rains. The heavy rainfall was at Des Moines and other points in the corn raising country and spring wheat harvest fields got only a drizzle. The prediction of showers for tonight and tomorrow kept the trade nervous and some shorts covered. Prices advanced a good cent early and near the close there was a decline to ½c under yesterday. September opened $1.02⅞; high, $1.03¼@¾; low, $1.01¾; close, $1.01⅝. Old September opened $1.04; high, $1.04¼; low, $1.02¾@⅞c close, $1.02¾@⅞c; December opened $1.00⅞c; high, $1.00⅞c; low 99c; close, 99⅛c; Old December closed 99⅝c. New wheat was offered more freely in the cash market but there was excellent demand for it. Prices heard early for No. 1 northern were $1.23 and for No. 2, $1.20. Later there were sales at $1.25 for No. 1 and $1.21 for No. 2, new No. 1 northern to arrive, sold at $1.10; No. 3 wheat, will bring as high as $1.16. Close:

No. 1 northern, $1.23@1.25 spot, $1.08⅞ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.20@1.21 spot, $1.05⅞ to arrive; No. 3 wheat, $1.14@1.16; No. 3 yellow corn, 78@½c; No. 3 white oats, 43⅞c; No. 2 rye, 72¾@74¼c.

New barley is coming more freely, and today the receipts were 38 cars. Prices were about steady with yesterday. Close, 52@62c.

Flax—Receipts 3 cars. Elevators are paying Duluth September price for choice No. 1, and crushers are out of the market. Close, $1.32.

Bran in bulk quoted by millers at $19.50@20. The firmer figures resulting from lighter output and a moderately improved demand. Brokers quote 50c a ton lower.

Flour is quoted unchanged with a moderate demand. Shipments, 29,900 barrels. First patents, $6.15@6.25; second patents, $6@6.15; first clears, $4.35@4.45; escond clears, $3.50@3.60.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

Prices are unchanged today.

The blueberry season is about over and it is only now and then that a straggling case is received on the local market. The berries have not been very plentiful this year, and the price has been the highest in years.

FORECASTS HEAVY CROPS

Expert Thinks Minnesota and Dakota Crop Will be Big.

Predicts Total of 172,000,000 Bushels—155,000,000 Last Year.

"I think three states will raise more wheat than last year," said George Le Count of Finley & Barrell, Chicago, one of the best known wheat experts of the West, who was in Duluth today.

"There have been no bad reports from Minnesota except in the southern part, where there was damage from floods in June. Though I have not seen much of the Minnesota crop, I have reason to believe they will nearly, if not quite, equal last year's crop of 67,500,000 bushels.

"At the end of my trip over North Dakota, ending July 24, the prospect was for a general average over the state of twelve bushels, indicating a yield of 70,500,000 bushels.

"While I was in the vicinity of Fargo and Grand Forks, this week, I could see there has been some deterioration, but not to exceed a bushel per acre. Now we will assume the entire state sustained the same loss per acre. We still have a prospect of 64,500,000 bushels. I have not been in South Dakota since the hot weather and rust, but think the crop was too far advanced to be greatly injured by either, and I believe the state will raise about 40,000,000 bushels.

"My estimate for North and South Dakota is 104,500,000 bushels, and if Minnesota has 67,500,000, the total for these three states is 172,000,000 bushels, against 155,210,000 bushels for last year."

JUST WARMING UP.

A man who has lived in the Dutch West Indies for years came back to New York last fall. After two decades of sizzling in the tropics, life in the North promised to develop into one long, grand chill. Only recently, when the spring sun has begun to get really busy, has he shown any symptoms of thawing out, says the New York Sun.

"It isn't that I'm exactly warm now," he explained the other day; "it's just that I begin to hope that I will be some time. I feel a good deal like the darky who migrated from a right hot spot down in Florida and settled in Boston.

"The old fellow hadn't dwelt long in that atmosphere of cold reason and east winds before a mortal chill assailed him, body and spirit. Winter came on. The northeast gales and the lecture season were at their bitterest and the darky got colder and colder and stiffer and stiffer.

"First he couldn't walk. Then he couldn't talk. Then he couldn't eat. Finally he lay stark and cold and dead.

"The family prepared to dispose of his remains. When he first reached Boston, before he froze up so that he couldn't get out, he had passed a crematory one day and had been enchanted with it. It appealed very warmly indeed to him, and he had requested his relatives to see that his remains were cremated when he should come to die.

"So they carried his body off to the crematory and handed it over to the persons in charge. They were told that it would take about two hours to reduce the body to ashes, and were invited to remain or to return at the end of that period to witness the opening of the furnace.

"At the end of the two hours, therefore, in the presence of the assembled friends, the door of the furnace was opened, whereupon a hoarse voice from within called out irritably:

"'Shut dat door! I feel a draf' on my feet!'"

HOW HE FOOLS THE BEES.

Jasper (Ind.) Cor. Indianapolis News: Forest Anderson, a well known farmer, is doing his plowing by night, several stands of bees near where his plow is running being too demonstrative in the day time. Both Mr. Anderson and his horses were severely stung, so he is taking advantage of the moonlight to work undisturbed.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

Closing Was More Active With a Rally in Progress.

New York, Aug. 15.—Prices were on the downward grade at the opening today, but the losses were confined to moderate fractions and selling was not a large scale. Union Pacific, American Smelting and Amalgamated Copper lost ⅝ while the Rock Island stocks gained as much.

Bull operators took hold of the market immediately after the opening and marked up the various leaders sharply in an effort to drive in the short interests. The high prices invited realizing and short selling again and the entire market fell back to the opening level or below. Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha preferred broke 7 points.

The market closed active with the rally in progress. Heavy selling of American Smelting was resumed in the second hour and sold down to 90¼, a loss of nearly 3 points. The break in this stock had a sympathetic effect on the general metal group, particularly for United States Steel, which dropped to 44. The general railroad list, however, showed some resistance to the movement, losses there being confined to about ¼@½, although Union Pacific relapsed a point. In the final dealings there was a heavy covering movement all around.

Stock Gossip.

Miller & Co. to F. H. Merritt:

A vindication of the old adage that history repeats itself was had in this morning's market inasmuch as the tactics employed, were the old familiar ones of depressing a certain group with the view to facilitate covering throughout the entire list.

Liquidation was conspicuously absent throughout the session and at the close the short interests were nervously bidding for stocks. Yesterday's reaction has immeasurably improved the technical position of the market, and our firm belief is that the advance, interrupted yesterday, will be resumed. The bank statement shows an increase of $2,000,000 in the cash item, which is unusually good, considering the proximity of the crop moving period.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Aug. 15.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 4 points on scattered covering. Prices eased off some 4 or 5 points right after the opening, but the market rallied again during the middle of the morning, with October selling at 9.21 or the highest price since the break of last Wednesday. The demand seemed to come chiefly from shorts, probably evening up for the week end. Later reports are that only 600 bales of yesterday's spot sales in Savannah are to come to New York for delivery on August contracts.

Futures closed steady. Closing bids: August, 10.00; September, 9.33; October, 9.24; November, 9.04; December, 9.06; January, 9.02; February, 9.04; March, 9.08. Spot closed quiet, 10 points lower; middling uplands, 10.50; middling gulf, 10.75; sales, 68 bales.

Bank Statement.

New York, Aug. 15.—The statement of the clearing house banks for the week shows that the banks hold $57,618,025 more than the requirement of the 25 per cent reserve rule. This is a decrease of $1,605,650 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with last week. The statement follows: Loans, $1,790,031,600; increase, $14,392,030; deposits, $1,385,928,500; increase, $17,411,800; circulation, $55,696,800; decrease, $306,800; legal tenders, $79,464,800; increase, $903,100; specie, $324,635,900; increase, $1,744,200; reserve, $404,100,700; increase, $2,745,300; reserve required, $346,482,075; increase, $4,352,050; surplus, $57,618,825; decrease, $1,605,650; ex-United States deposits, $59,924,525; decrease, $1,608,650.

The statement of banks and trust companies of Greater New York, not members of the clearing house, shows that these institutions have aggregate deposits of $1,025,423,000; total cash on hand, $100,861,200, and loans amounting to $918,097,100.

SPRINGS AT BOTTOM OF SEA.

Chicago Tribune: Bahrein Island, in the Persian Gulf, is said to be the hottest place on earth. It is usual there to find the thermometer af 140 degs. Fahrenheit. On the coast of this island, where practically all of the people live, there is no fresh water, which is needed above all things in so seething a temperature.

And it is to be had from the bottom of the sea. Here and there scattered over the floor of the harbor of Bahrein are springs of pure fresh water. These waters well up through the sand to mingle with the salt water of the sea. It would seem a difficult task to find these threads of fresh water amid the ocean's volume, but the thirsty islanders are thought to have found them ages ago and to have passed on their location from generation to generation.

A diver equips himself with a water bag made of skins, the mouth of which is closed, and descends to the bottom of the harbor at a point where one of the springs issues. The bag is carefully inverted over the current of fresh water as it flows up from the sand, the mouth is opened, the skin is filled, then the mouth is shut fast and the diver returns to the boat awaiting him on the surface.

One scientist gives it as his belief that at some period in the shadowy past that which is now the harbor's bottom was not touched by the sea. The springs were then on the shore and ready for the islanders' needs. Little by little the sea encroached on the land, but the location of the wonderful springs was not forgotten.

DEAF MUTE PUPILS SUCCEED.

A feature of the eight-ninth annual report of the New York Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, which has just been submitted, is a description of the work of the trades school. It is recorded that since the school was established less than 4 per cent of the graduates have failed to make their way in the world, says the New York Sun.

The trades taught include carpentry, cabinet making, cooking, dressmaking, gardening, house and sign painting, printing and tailoring. The pupils are so well trained that the demand for them when they leave the school exceeds the supply.

The work of the class in printing is an example of what the trade pupils accomplish. The class last year numbered forty-one, and they not only did all the work of getting out the annual report of 130 pages, but printed all the institution's stationery and published a weekly four-page, seven-column newspaper. This work would have cost the institution $2,236.25 outside.

The sixty-three pupils in the classes of carpentry and cabinetmaking made all the desks, tables and other pieces of furniture in use in the institution, their completed work for the year being valued at $4,159.45. Nine pupils in the classes in house painting and glazing did all the work in the building, the money value being $4,690.45.

Sixty of the older girls accomplished the following work during the year: Girls' uniforms, 178; Sunday dresses, 20; day shirts, 565; night shirts, 519; balmorals, 81; white aprons, 154; gingham aprons, 60; pillow cases, 223; napkins, 1,029; towels, 2,440; tablecloths, 151; sheets, 596; dresses repaired, 134; boys' waists, 156.

Cooking was taught to both boys and girls, and the forty-five girls and twenty-four boys who took the course are able to do plain cooking for family needs and to handle both coal and gas ranges. There were only four pupils in the art class, while only one boy wanted to be a tailor.

PEACE OF THE HAREM.

With women of all countries clamoring for the parliamentary franchise it comes rather as a surprise to find one woman writer who goes to the other extreme and speaks enthusiastically of the quiet delights of the Oriental harem.

Myriam Harry is a novelist and has written some powerful studies of Oriental life; she is herself of Eastern origin. She suggests in the Paris Matin that women will presently grow tired of their attempts to rival and surpass man; that they will relinquish their ambition to become lawyers and members of parliament.

They will realize that this is a spurious freedom; that the real freedom, freedom, that is, from the absurd worries of an everyday existence and the strain and stress of modern social life, resides in purely domestic and retired surroundings. Mme. Harry does not specifically recommend the harem, but through the lips of an Oriental princess she sings of its perfect modesty.

The princess in her conversation shows how incomprehensible to her is the attitude of the Western man who allows his wife, whom he professes to cherish, to go unveiled in the street. Does a man cast away a precious object, an object he prizes, allowing it to be in the street, she makes the princess ask.

This seems a somewhat singular argument for a woman who has conquered a place for herself in contemporary fiction which presumably would not have been hers if she had lived in a harem!

The trading on Butte & Superior broke all records today. The whole country is buying the stock and bids are coming in for thousands and thousands of shares. The stock is one of the very biggest traders in the country and I look for it to easily advance to $2 a share. If this heavy buying continues it will sell much higher than that. You can sell any amount of this stock on a moment's notice.

Ballaklava will soon have its day, and then you will see a stock that can advance several points in a day.

Calumet & Sonora also looks good to me. This one should have a big advance. Buy Shattuck, for it is a cinch.

Lonsdale Building.

VERY, VERY VAGUE.

Booker T. Washington, Tuskegee's famous head, said recently in New York that he thought the closing of the saloons of the South would be a good thing. And to an objection he replied, with a smile:

"A youth of 20 or so, he celebrated Easter in the unclosed saloons by drinking large quantities of eggnog.

"The next morning he came home to breakfast red-eyed and pale. He ate nothing. He only tried, with many grimaces, to swallow a cup of coffee.

"'John,' said his mother severely, 'what time did you come home last night?'

"The vague youth answered:

"'Bed time'."

PRESIDENTIAL YEAR LULL IN REALTY CIRCLES

Real Estate Men Expected It, However—Some Inquiry From Outside Capitalists for Speculative Investment—Division of Maitland-Fitch Property

The quiet of a summer before a presidential election is upon the Duluth realty market, but the real estate men are anything but discouraged. The situation is about what has been expected all along, and, in view of the fact that traces of last fall's money tightness are still upon the market it is, in fact, in a more healthy condition than might be expected.

While no speculative buying is in progress there is plenty of it in prospect. Parties from Chicago and other outside points were in the city this week looking up real estate for speculative investment. Earnest money is up on a couple of sales. September, October and November will probably be active months, according to most of the dealers.

A number of sales are rumored of quite valuable residence lots in the East end. One deal involving $11,000 for a residence lot on which a handsome home will be erected in the near future, was put through during the week, which the parties do not wish made public as yet.

W. F. Maitland and George F. Fitch, holders of the whole of the stock in the Alliance Security company which owned the Manhattan and Palladio buildings, divided their property this week, Maitland taking the Palladio, with a $65,000 mortgage, and Fitch taking the Manhattan, subject to a $70,000 mortgage, both mortgages being held by the New York Life Insurance company. Both buildings are worth upwards of $200,000. Most of the realty men consider the Palladio much the better of the two, both from the fact that it is a corner lot, and on its merits as an office structure.

Lots 7 and 8, block 11, Portland division, on the upper side of Superior street between Eighth and Ninth avenues east, was sold by E. A. Gilbert to H. H. Harrison for $5,250. Stryker, Manley & Buck completed the sale.

Through the same agents, W. H. Bradbury purchased a 50-foot lot and frame dwelling, between Seventh and Eighth avenues east, from Carrie Tufte, for $6,500.

Stryker, Manley & Buck also completed the sale of a residence at 811 Lake avenue north from George M. Wilson to Axel Hagstrom, for $2,000.

• • •

N. J. Upham & Co. report the sale of a lot on First street and Fifteenth avenue west, from Samuel A. McElroy to Joseph Kaminski, for $350.

• • •

The Hanford Investment company sold one of the attractive little bungalows which they have been building to C. D. Reno for $2,100. This building is located at 614 Eighteenth avenue east. There are three similar structures there, and negotiations for the sale of all of them are on.

• • •

Mr. Caulkins also reports the sale of 160 acres of land at Lakewood to John Berd of Iowa, and the sale of a cottage at 1018 East Sixth street, to Miss Ross, for $2,000. He reports that he was forced to return earnest money on several other deals, in which the owners held out for higher prices.

• • •

The northwest corner of Seventeenth avenue east and Jefferson street, 100 by 102 feet, was sold to E. Downie by Pulford & Howe. Mr. Downie will improve the property this fall or winter. The price was $3,500.

• • •

George H. Ebert & Co. have sold a tract of 280 acres of hardwood lands in Carlton county to R. A. Johnson of Duluth. These lands are in Section 28-46-18, being about seven miles east of Moose lake and near to the new "Soo" railroad now building to Duluth.

The same firm has also sold for Gunder Fostvet eighty acres in 66-18, St. Louis county.

This house is distinctly a house of gables, the whole being treated in the English style of building. It is intended as a suburban house suitable for a small family with no servant.

The materials—brick, stucco and half timbers work, are employed to the best advantage, the exterior surface being broken up in a most pleasing manner.

The plans are compact, and a special feature has been made of the staircase and the living room. The nook under the staircase is an inviting place, with its large plain brick fireplace of ample dimensions and the floor harmonious in color with both brick and plastered walls of the living room. It is suggested that the plaster in the living room be of rough cast, tinted burnt orange and the ceiling beams and other wood work should be simple in line, stained a deep reddish brown. The furnishings should be of a simple design suggestive of the craftsman, giving the room, as a whole, a quiet and restful appearance.

The dining room is fitted with a tile fire-place and china cabinet at one end. Opening from this end of the room is the sunbay or conservatory being especially attractive from the dining room. The light casement windows secures privacy and admits an abundance of light and air; this room being designed with a feeling of modern English and the furnishings should be accordingly. The pantry is fitted with cupboards, pastry table and small sink, and the kitchen, which is well lighted, is to be fitted with a portable range, sink and cupboard for pots and kettles, etc., ample space being left for the refrigerator. The floor of the kitchen, bath room and pantry may be of monolith instead of wood; which is durable and easily kept clean. The grade entrance will be found to be a convenience to both the kitchen and the basement. On the second floor are four good bedrooms with closets off each, one room of which may be used as a sewing room or den. The bath room is large and well lighted and is convenient to the plumbing below.

Two or three years of garden development and "weathering" will enhance the effect of such a place as this very materially, as flowers and shrubbery if properly massed make a homely vicinity, and the house, however well designed, seems bare without garden accessories.

The brickwork should be a dark paving brick laid flemish bond, and the woodwork stained a reddish brown, in a pleasing contrast to the white cement plaster which is given a hard smooth finish.

To build a house as above described would cost $7,500.

MARINE NEWS

IS HARD ON THE SEAMEN

Many Who Shipped on Day-Work Contracts Hard Up.

Some Vesslemen Fear a Strike as Result of Conditions.

One of the greatest hardships of the dull shipping season on the lakes, falls on the men employed by the steamship companies at day labor. At the beginning of the season, while the masters, and owners refused to sign union agreements, they were not averse to signing up their old men, as a means they say, of assuring the men of their jobs.

In view of the dull season more than three-fourths of the men were glad to be taken on any sort of conditions, and they promptly signed contracts to different jobs, one of the conditions being that the work was to be done and paid for by the day.

The season has been much duller than was even expected, and a great number of the men have as yet got very little time in. They cannot accept other jobs as they are already employed, and waiting for their boats to get busy.

Some of the men have just had one trip this year, others more, while others have not been on board the boat to which they were assigned. The little money that has been earned has been spent for living expenses during the summer, and many of the men are asking themselves "How about this winter?"

The men say that the whole affair is very unjust, that the engineers, whether working or not, are being paid just the same. Some of the boat companies are paying their men half time while the boats are laid up, but for the most part there is no provisionn made for them whatever.

A lake captain said this morning that the whole affair is likely to kick up the biggest strike ever held on the lakes.

"When the times get good and men are in demand the boat companies will find themselves up against it good and hard," he said. "You can't blame the men. They can't accept other jobs becauso they have already signed contracts, and the jobs they hold are worse than no jobs at all."

LOADING AT ALLOUEZ.

Five boats were loaded at the Great Northern docks at Allouez yesterday and three today. The labor agents of Duluth have supplied 120 men, and, contrary to the reports that the green men were very unsatisfactory workers, Supt. Morrell says they make excellent workmen and do almost as much as the regular workers.

Everything is quiet at the docks, the old men have not raised any disturbance, and police protection that was started soon after the strike, has been discontinued.

No pretense has been made of loading at night as yet, but, according to Mr. Morrell, night work will be begun on Monday.

The whole affair has dwindled down to a waiting contest, and the men say they can wait as long as the Great Northern can get along without them.

A great part of the men have accepted jobs at other places for the time being.

Stocks Are Low.

The elevator stocks are getting low and shippers will have to wait for the new crop before much business is done. The receipts are falling off greatly so that business in this line of trade will not be large until after the new crop begins to arrive.

A rough estimate taken yesterday shows that a decrease of 95,000 bushels of wheat and 25,000 bushels of flax.

Three ships went under the spouts yesterday, they were Lackawanna, which took 50,000 bushels of flax; Superior which took 15,000 bushels of wheat; and the Sacramento which loaded 80,000 bushels of wheat.

Towed to Bay City.

The steamer Orinoco of the Davidson line was taken from her winter quarters yesterday and towed by the Sacramento of the same fleet to Bay City, Mich., where she will undergo repairs.

Sevona Brought Here.

The wrecked steamer Sevona, which was bought some time ago by the Duluth Iron and Metal company, was brought into the harbor yesterday.

A Faithful Friend.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since it was first introduced to the public in 1872, and have never found one instance where a cure was not speedily effected by its use. I have been a commercial traveler for eighteen years, and never start out on a trip without this, my faithful friend," says H. S. Nichols of Oakland, Ind. T. When a man has used a remedy for thirty-five years he knows its value and is competent to speak of it. For sale by all druggists.

Even a timid, or "scared', advertiser' is not in much harder plight than an indifferent one. No store will thrive in the hands of either!

BREAKING AN OLD CUSTOM.

Reynold's Newspaper: An authentic story is told of one famous club in St. James' street where a number of ancient members made it a law to themselves to reject every one without exception who had offered himself as a candidate.

This practice of blackmailing was long held an imperative and unbreakable rule, but was at length evaded by a stratagem. At one election a number of a newcomer's friends were in attendance, but outside at a distance from the clubhouse. No one appeared in the committee room and it was generally supposed that there would be no quorum. The malcontents therefore abstained from voting.

But when only a few minutes of the legal time for balloting remained and the servants were at the point of removing the ballot boxes when an overwhelming number of the candidate's friends rushed in and elected him before the slightest opposition could be organized. After this the absurd system of blackmailing was dropped and the club today is still alive and prosperous.

A WOMAN'S APPEAL

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbago, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address Mrs. M. Summers, Box R, South Bend, Ind.

ALL BOATING PARTIES CAUGHT IN SUNDAY'S BAD STORM ACCOUNTED FOR

MEHMED ALI BEY, Turkish Minister to the United States, Who Has Been Recalled by His Government.

Scores of Yachts and Canoes Have Narrow Escapes.

Life Saver Says Storm Warning Should Have Been Heeded.

By a miracle or good luck, there were no casualties on the bay, lake or river during last night's severe storm, although several boats were caught in the squall, and there were numerous narrow escapes. No serious damage was done to the boats except that sails were torn to shreds in two or three instances.

In the neighborhood of Spirit Lake a great many trees were blown down, and the ice house belonging to the Duluth Ice company, located on the shore of the lake, was tipped over by the wind. It was empty at the time. Cries for help were heard coming from Spirit lake during the height of the storm, but no one was reported missing this morning, and no drifting boats or canoes were discovered by searching parties. It is thought possible that a boat might have been overturned, and that the occupants were later able to right it and proceed on their way, for the lake is not very deep, except in certain places.

Farrell Party Escapes.

Frank Farrell of 561 East Fifth street, with three women and two other men on board a 32-foot sailboat, had a harrowing experience. Their boat was driven ashore on the bay side of Wisconsin point, and was not found until early this morning by the life saving crew, which towed the craft to the Yacht club, arriving there at 3:40 o'clock. The life savers were out on the bay from 8 o'clock last night until 4 o'clock this morning.

Friends of Farrell and his party were much worried. Nothing was heard of the missing boat in Duluth until it arrived at the Yacht club just before 4 o'clock, and it was feared that the little vessel had been overturned, and its occupants drowned. The boat was well down the bay when the squall struck, and there was nothing to do but run before the wind. The party was driven ashore on Wisconsin point, and was able to land without mishap. They made themselves as comfortable as possible until the arrival of the life boat. One of the launches from the

DISCUSSION IS SHIFTED

Van Cleave Has Not Confined Himself to Original Topics.

Bryan Says He Will Reply to Criticisms in Speeches.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 17.—When his attention today was called to the statement of James W. Van Cleave, president of the Manufacturers' association, printed this morning, in which Mr. Van Cleave for the second time within a month sets forth reasons why the business men of the country should not vote for the Democratic candidate, Mr. Bryan would not enter into any lengthy comment regarding the matter, but he charged Mr. Van Cleave with shifting the discussion to other questions instead of defending what he before said:

"Mr. Van Cleave issued a statement appealing to business men to defeat the Democratic ticket on account of the labor plank," said Mr. Bryan.

"I replied to his appeal. Instead of defending what he said before he now attempts to shift the discussion to other questions. It will not be necessary to answer what he says. I shall during the present month, discuss the question which he lays special emphasis upon—the tariff question, at Des Moines, and the guaranty of bank deposits to Topeka."

Not Heard of Story.

Mr. Bryan's notice also was directed to a telegram referring to a sensational story printed in Pittsburg this morning

CERVERA WANTS TAFT ELECTED

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 17.—The speech he is to make to the Virginia Republicans who are coming here Friday next was the engrossing subject with William H. Taft today. The address is to be the first political utterance of the candidate since his Cincinnati speech of acceptance, and will be the only speech of its character he will make until his campaign opens in Cincinnati the first week in September. Although it is quite common for Mr. Taft to receive letters from the Philippine islands expressing a desire for his political success, he was somewhat surprised today to receive one written by Admiral Cervera of Spanish war fame, expressing the same sentiment.

"I pray for the election of Senator Taft for president," writes the admiral. "I should have written you a letter, but have not had time. I know very little personally about the United States, and cannot, for that reason, give an opinion of my own concerning the election. But there is no doubt, from what I hear, about his election, because he is a very distinguished man."

PRESIDENT SPENDS DAY IN ENTERTAINING.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 17.—President Roosevelt spent a considerable portion of his time today with visitors who came to Sagamore Hill.

At luncheon the president entertained Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou, who came over from his summer home at Huntington; Congressman Fassett of Elmira, N. Y., Senor Quezon, a prominent Filipino, and his interpreter, Senor Escamillo, and Stephen H. Olin of New York, a member of the executive committee on international conciliation.

Later in the day Assistant Secretary of the Navy Newberry and Charles Sheldon will be the guests of the president.

SIGHT OF WOUND KILLS A MOTHER

New York, Aug. 17.—The shock caused her by the sight of the mangled hand of her son is thought to have caused, indirectly, the death of Mrs. Robert A. Howie, 50 years old, of East Orange. Her son, Alexander A., hurt his hand, and the mother set about the task of dressing the injured member.

She remarked at the time that the sight made her feel faint and queer. She went upstairs to her room, and in a few moments the members of the family heard the sound of a fall. They found Mrs. Howie unconscious on the floor. Physicians were summoned, but they failed to revive her. It is thought that concussion of the brain was the cause of death.

SACRIFICES LIFE FOR LEPER WIFE

Gen. David Wardell Dies in Quarantine Cabin at Tombstone.

Bisbee, Ariz., Aug. 17.—Gen. David M. Wardell died in his quarantine cabin at Tombstone at 4 p. m., Saturday, having given up life to be with the leper wife whom he abducted from a Los Angeles hospital and with whom he tried to reach Mexico. He had been unconscious except at intervals for twenty-four hours. In his last lucid moments, Gen. Wardell begged his attendants to put forth every effort to have his wife tenderly cared for.

In his delirium, the old man continually raved about incidents in his stirring life. Frequently he talked about the First Bull Run fight, when Gen. Ellsworth's Zouaves, who were holding Rickett's battery, broke and ran through the Fifth Massachusetts regiment and Wardell, who was in command, charged and took possession of the battery.

He had nurtured his dread of separation from his wife, with threats of vengeance against those who might seek to send her from him.

The scene was pathetic as the hero died, surrounded only by hospital attaches. In the adjoining room his leper wife, tied to the bed, screamed and struggled for freedom.

Gen. Wardell will be buried in Evergreen cemetery, Tombstone, by Burnside post of the G. A. R.

BRIG. GEN. PETER C. HAINS, Father of the Two Young Men, Who Are Held for the Murder of Publisher Annis.

Vessel Blown to Pieces Hurling Passengers in Water.

Feared That a Dozen or More Have Been Drowned.

Traverse City, Mich., Aug. 17.—One is known to be dead, a dozen or more are missing and supposed to be drowned, two are fatally injured and a number are seriously hurt, as the result of the blowing up of the steamer Leelanau on Carp lake today.

The steamer which plies between the resort on Carp lake was on the way from Leeland to Fouch, on its early morning trip. Between thirty and forty passengers were on board. At 7:30 the boiler of the steamer blew up, hurling many into the lake, and scalding others. The upper works were entirely blown to pieces.

Following is a revised list of dead and injured.

The dead:

MRS. ISABEL LABONTE, 35, Traverse City.

Ten others are slightly hurt.

Among the missing are Mr. and Mrs. August Getzer.

A panic followed the explosion and for a time little help could be given those who were thrown into the water. It is thought that a number of these perished by drowning.

DEMOCRATIC CONFERENCES

Looking to Perfecting Campaign Plans Held in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Conferences looking to the perfection of detailed plans for the campaign in the Middle West were held throughout the day by Chairman Mack, with heads of the various bureaus of the Democratic national committee and prominent Democrats who called at headquarters. During the day Mr. Mack, Former Governor Dockery and Congressman Clark of Missouri, together with Col. Moses C. Wetmore of St. Louis, head of the committee of finance, discussed at some length the raising of funds for prosecuting the campaign in Missouri and contiguous territory. Speaking of the situation in the Middle West Congressman Clark said:

"Since the Denver convention I have been traveling continuously in eight states, Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Kentucky, Ohio and Illinois, and find that the drift is undoubtedly toward Bryan. Missouri will give Bryan 40,000 plurality and the Democrats will elect fifteen out of sixteen congressmen, elect a Democratic legislature which will select a successor to Senator William A. Stone and will elect the state ticket from the governor down.

SUNDAY TOO HOLY FOR POLITICS.

Sycamore, Ill., Aug. 17.—Robert M. La Follete spoke three hours last evening before an immense crowd at the Sycamore Chautauqua. He said that no day is too holy for politics, and he declared the corporations are demoralizing the government.

BLACK HAND MAN TRAPPED

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Vicenzo Cranpa, a Sicilian believed to be the author of threatening letters demanding $1,000 from V. Benedetto, a wealthy Italian grocer at 7737 Greenwood avenue, was arrested today by detectives in a clump of bushes near Eighty-seventh street, where he had directed Benedetto to leave a box of money.

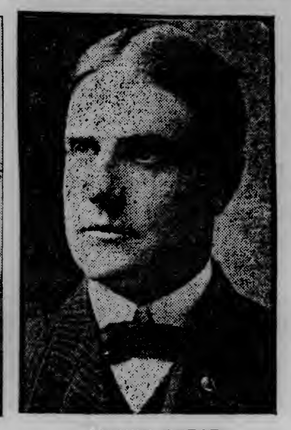
The letters received by Benedetto purported to be from the "Black Hand" society. Cranpa was trapped by a ruse arranged by the police and Benedetto by which Benedetto was to wave a red handkerchief when he approached the secluded spot where he was to deliver the money.

At the appointed time two detectives took the place of the Italian grocer and arrested the Sicilian.

INSTIGATORS OF RIOTING AT SPRINGFIELD TO BE INDICTED

TWO MEN WHO WORKED HARD TO SUPPRESS RIOTS

GOVERNOR DENEEN, Who Promptly Rushed Troops to the City of Springfield.



MAYOR REECE, Who Exhausted Every Resource Before Calling on Governor.

The State Militia Has Full Control of the Situation.

Grand Jury Begins Work of Investigating the Outrages.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 17.—The race war which began here last Friday night, is believed to be a thing of the past. Last night passed without untoward incident and it was confidently asserted today by those in charge of the situation that no mob of any size will form from now on. Sporadic cases of disorderly conduct may, and probably will, claim the attention of the militia, but it is not anticipated that the troops will be confronted by any serious task.

Springfield today entered upon the second stage of riot history—the investigation of outrages and the arrest of the guilty. A special grand jury was summoned this morning by Judge James A. Creighton of the Sangamon county circuit court, as the result of a conference held yesterday afternoon between Governor Charles Deneen and State's Attorney Frank Hatch. Both of these officials were of the strong opinion that this step should be taken.

The grand jury will be held in session as long as mob violence is threatened. Evidence will be submitted to the body from day to day by officers and soldiers and indictments returned as soon as a case is made against an individual.

Many Citizens Implicated.

A large amount of evidence, implicating many citizens of this city, has been obtained during the rioting and this will be submitted to the grand jury. Suspects have been arrested each day during the reign of terror and will be held awaiting the deliberations of the official body.

Headquarters have been established at 114 North Seventh street, just opposite the county jail, by State's Attorney F. L. Hatch. The evidence

BIG LAND DEAL ON CUYUNA RANGE

Northern Pacific Interests Have Acquired Over 12,000 Acres.

Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two important deeds have been filed for record here. One is from J. M. Elder to the Northwestern Improvement association, covering 2,708 acres, and the other from the Minnesota Park Region Land company to the Northwestern Improvement association for 9,570 acres. The consideration in each case was "$1 and other valuable considerations." The purchasing company is the holding corporation of the Northern Pacific Railway company, which has made several extensive purchases of iron lands and has a number of drills at work in the Cuyuna range. All parties to the transaction refuse to talk, but it is thought the real consideration is well up in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. Men posted on the iron situation look upon the transaction as one of the most significant in the history of the Cuyuna range.

NEGRO SHOT IN THE BACK BY CHICAGO POLICEMAN.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Walter Allen, 21 years old, colored, with a number of companions, resisted arrest last night for jeering a white man and after attacking the officer was shot and seriously injured in the back.

Allen and his companious refused to heed the command of the policeman who ordered them to move on. After the shot which injured the negro his friends ran away.

MURDERER ARRAIGNED

Case Adjourned One Week at Request of Counsel.

New York, Aug. 17.—Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., U. S. A., who shot and killed William E. Annis on Saturday at the Bayside Yacht club, was today arraigned in the first district court in Long Island City before Magistrate Matthew J. Smith. Arraigned with the captain was his brother, T. Jenkins Hains, who kept back the crowd with a revolver while his brother carried out his vengeance on the man who, he asserted, had ruined his home. The two men were yesterday taken from the Flushing police station, where they had been confined during the night to Long Island City. In court the brothers showed little concern over their predicament. As counsel for the men had not arrived, the hearing was postponed until today, and in the meantime the Hains brothers are being kept in the Queens county jail.

T. Jenkins Hains, who was first held on a charge of attempted felonious assault, was later charged with being an accessory to the killing of Annis. Before the arraignment today, Harvey G. Rockwell, who had been a close friend of William Annis, the slain man, turned over to the district attorney of Queens county a package of letters received recently by Annis, in which he was warned that his life was in danger. It was said that the last letter he received cautioned him against visiting the Bayside Yacht club on Saturday.

Brother Had Killed a Man.

Since the shooting it has been learned that T. Jenkins Hains was tried in 1891 on a homicide charge, when he was 29 years old. He was accused of having shot Edward Hannegan, a friend, to death, while the two were out in a boat off Old Point Comfort. Hains

DANISH BARK A BAD WRECK

New York, Aug. 17.—Capt. G. A. Neilson, a sturdy Danish skipper yesterday brought to anchorage off Clifton, Staten Island, his bark, the Emilie, scarred from her encounter with the recent West India hurricane and nearer a wreck than any vessel that has come through the Narrows in the last ten years. A stump of a foremast, from which a single yardarm seemed to barely hang, a jury rigged mizzen mast and the bowsprit and jib boom was all that was left of the towering masts and sjars, with their maze of rigging that were swept from the bark in an hour's time on the afternoon of Aug. 1.

Capt. Neilson came on shore to bargain for spars that would enable the Emilie to go on to Havre, France, with her cargo of mahogany logs. Below decks the bark is tight as the day she was built.

STORK MAKES VISIT DURING AN ACCIDENT.

Pittsburg, Aug. 17.—While John Robsik was driving home with his family from a christening yesterday the horse became frightened, ran away and upset the carriage. When Robsik picked up his wife after the accident he found the stork had reached her during the mix-up and had left a fine baby boy in her care. Both were driven home uninjured by their experience.

NEW MINISTER OF WAR.

Constantinople, Aug. 17.—Osman Na Nizami Pasha has been appointed minister of war, to succeed Rodjeb Pasha, who died suddenly yesterday of apoplexy.

AMERICANS IN BALLOON TESTS

Several Have Entered in Contests at Berlin Oct. 10 and 11.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—The American entrants in the international balloon competition, to be held at Berlin, Oct. 10 and 11, are Lieut. Frank P. Lahm and Capt. Charles de F. Chanler of the signal corps of the United States army, and Maj. Henry B. Hersey of the weather bureau. Besides these there are twenty other entries for the race for the James Gordon Bennett cup, among them Prince Cipio Borgese of Italy; Dr. De Quervain, the Zurich meteorologist, and Capt. Kindelain, adjutant to the king of Spain. There are thirty entries in the international endurance contest, representing the principal states of Western Europe, and it is probable that more than sixty balloons, large and small, will participate in the air cruises. Arrangements are being made to accommodate a quarter of a million spectators on the starting field, near the gas works, at the suburb of Schmargendorf.

EDITORS FROM MANY STATES

Gather at St. Paul to Hold Meeting of National Association.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to the Herald.)—Editors from all parts of the United States are here to attend the annual meeting of the National Editorial association, the first meeting of which was scheduled to begin this morning in the old capitol building. The session this morning was principally one of welcome by Governor Johnson, Mayor Lawlor and others. President Henry B. Varner of Lexington, Ky., delivered his preliminary report and named the committees, after which the visitors were taken in special trolley cars to Stillwater, Minn., where the state's prison was inspected.

Three business sessions will be held, Tuesday. President Varner will give his annual address. Former President E. W. Stephens of Columbus, Mo., will describe "The World's Newspaper." J. Newton Nind of Chicago, president of the National League of Trade Press associations, will discuss "Relations of the Trade Press to Newspapers and Promotive Publicity.' Will E. Curtis of Kewanee, Ill., president of the Inland Press association, will give his idea of "A Proper Building for a Daily Paper and Job Office."

A paper by W. L. Jones of Lebanon, Ill., will initiate a symposium on the future of the association. After W. B. Prescott, secretary of the International Typographical Union commission on "Supplemental Trade Education," has disposed of the question of "Educating the Printer," Congressman Bede will speak on "Observations and Experiences." In the evening W. E. Pabor of the Florida Farmer and Fruitgrower, Jacksonville, Fla., will read the annual poem.

HER DEATH IS SUDDEN

Mrs. Elizabeth Withrow Dies at Home of Daughter.

Arose From Breakfast Table and Fell Unconscious to Floor.

Mrs. Elizabeth B. Withrow, mother of Mrs. Margaret Forgy, assistant humane agent, died very suddenly this morning at her daughter's home, 30 Washington avenue. She was 82 years old, and had lived in Duluth for about twelve years.

Death was entirely unexpected, and came within fifteen minutes after the old lady had complained of feeling ill. She has not been altogether well for the last two days, but the complaint was thought to be nothing serious, and she was up and about the house this morning, and seemed in such good spirits that Mrs. Forgy left for her work, thinking her mother had entirely recovered her health.

Mrs. Withrow and her niece, Mrs. S. S. Cone of Peoria, Ill., who is visiting here, were at the breakfast table, when Mrs. Withrow complained of feeling ill. She said she thought she would go to her room a moment and lie down. She started for the room, and her niece went into the kitchen, returning in two or three minutes to find her aunt lying unconscious on her bedroom floor. She picked the older woman up and placed her on the bed. Fifteen minutes later she died, without regaining consciousness.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made. Mrs. Withrow had a large circle of friends in Duluth, and was very much respected. The news of her death comes as a decided shock to her friends.

MILWAUKEE'S NEW HABIT.

Milwaukee Sentinel: If you see G. Andrew Whatawad, president of 'Steenth National bank, director in the steel trust and a pillar of the First Methodist Episcopal, coming out of a saloon, don't start a run on the bank or tell the man who works at the next desk that G. Andrew has fallen from grace and is going to the bow-wows. No, don't do it. Undoubtedly you have a mental impression of the big man strolling up to the ornate bar of polished mahogany, becoming real familiar with the man in white behind it and soon interested in a glass of something generalized by the temperance folks under the head of the demon rum. You lose. He doesn't do anything of the kind.

He walks in with the air of a man of business to whom time means money. He lays a coin on the bar and a moment thereafter is taking observations through the bottom of a glass which had contained—

Buttermilk!

If you don't believe it, ask that man in white.

"Sure," says the dispenser, "he comes in here four times a day regular, twice in the forenoon and twice in the afternoon. Wouldn't take anything stronger on a bet. Likes to have his cash. What's yours?"

And that's a fact. Milwaukee business men are acquiring the buttermilk habit. They say it's great. One of them remarked yesterday afternoon that it had done more for his stomach than all the physicians in the city. He was surely troubled with dyspepsia.

"We average buttermilk sales to the amount of thirty gallons each day," said a bartender in one of the largest downtown buffets, "and all other good shops can say as much. A glass of cold buttermilk is about as good as anything, and I'm gettin' the habit myself."

THE TEACHER'S REWARD.

The Pathfinder: A school teacher, after spending forty-five strenuous moments explaining the mysteries of physiology to the primary class sounded their intelligent attention by asking the definition of "vertebrae." A small and anxious boy on the back seat arose and delivered the following:

"The vertebrae is a long, wavy bone. My head sits on one end of it and I sit on the other."

VALUES ARE UNCHANGED

The St. Louis county iron mines are valued by the assessors at within $3,000,000 of their total voluation last year. Figures prepared by Deputy Auditor Marvin from the individual assessments passed upon by the county board of equalization last week show a total assessment of $162,720,317 for the ore producers of St. Louis county. This does not include any of the prospective mines or unworked bodies of ore, but simply the actively producing mines. The board of equalization made an increase in value of $3,334,334 from the figures compiled by the town assessors and submitted to them.

Last year's assessment figures total over $176,000,000, but this includes at least $10,000,000 of unworked and prospective lands, so that the assessment for actual working mines amounts to agout 1$65,000,000.

The auditor's force is busying itself preparing the books on the city assessment. Assessor Jackson's books for this year have been discarded and a new set of books prepared from the assessment for 1906. The books have to be submitted to the tax commission not later than the fourth Monday in August, but County Auditor Halden is sure that he will have them ready by that time. Complete totals on the real estate assessment of the city will be ready in about ten days.

EXCURSIONS ARE VERY POPULAR

Thousands Have Been Enjoying Herald's Lake and River Excursions.

The Herald's next excursions will be run to Fond du Lac and Two Harbors tomorrow. The steamer Newsboy will leave Fifth avenue dock for Fond du Lac, at 9 o'clock in the morning and the steamer Mascotte will leave the same dock for the same destination at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The steamer America will leave Booth's dock at 4 o'clock for a 30-mile run down the lake to Two Harbors, returning by moonlight. The fare on The Herald's Fond du Lac excursions is 25 cents and for the lake excursion the fare is 30 cents. Tickets are now on sale at The Herald office.

Send the family for a picnic and a day's outing at Fond du Lac. There is no more delightful place in the country. The Herald's excursionists will have all the privileges of Chambers' grove, an ideal spot for picnics. Take the children and the lunch basket and spend a day at Fond du Lac before the summer excursion season ends.

If you were disappointed about taking the lake trip Saturday afternoon, on account of the northeaster, arrange to go on the America tomorrow afternoon. A more delightful and inspiring ride would be hard to imagine. The Herald offers the people of Duluth a five hour ride on the most magnificent body of fresh water in the world, an hour's visit at Two Harbors and a return trip by the glorious moonlight at the nominal price of 30 cents. Is it any wonder The Herald's excursions are popular?

ESPERANTISTS

Dresden, Auug. 17.—The fourth international Esperanto congress was formally opened here today with 1,800 persons in attendance singing the Esperanto hymn. The delegates were welcomed by representatives of King Frederick August of Saxony and the municipality. Dr. Zamenhof, the inventor of the Esperanto language made an address on the ideals of Esperanto. The United States is represented at the congress by Maj. Paul F. Straub of the army medical corps.

MOVEMENT TO HELP NEGRO REFUGEES.

Bloomington, Ill., Auug. 17.—Crowds of colored refugees from Springfield are coming to Bloomington for shelter among people of their own race. Most of them walked a long distance and also have been helped through by crews of the interuban lines. Most of them are penniless and all their possessions are carried in small bundles. A movement has been started to give them assistance.

DECISION BY FRIDAY

Supreme Court Will Pass on Legality of Bond Issue.

Officials Anxious for Decision as Delay Means Loss of $10,000.

The last batch of decisions from the state supreme court this term is due to be handed down on Friday next, and with them will probably be the decision as to the constitutionality of St. Louis county's $600,000 courthouse bond issue. This is the test case brought by Whitney Wall to determine the constitutionality of the special act of the legislature authorizing the issue. It is expected hat Judge Elliott will write the decision.

It is quite important that the decision should be filed not later than Friday as the county receives a $10,000 premium if the bonds are delivered before Sept. 1. Even if a decision is filed Friday, it will be necessary to get the bonds out in printed form, to be followed by engraved bonds later. But little fear is felt on the part of the county officials, but that the decision will affirm the constitutionality of the issue.

The action brought by Whitney Wall was not an unfriendly one, and arose merely from a desire to determine without a doubt the legality of the issue.

PUBLIC MARKET OPENS FRIDAY

Farmers Will Display Their Goods at the Armory.

In past years the market has been a success, but it is believed it will be more so than ever this season. The object is to provide a place where the farmers and truck gardeners may show their goods to the public, and sell directly to the consumer.

The lower floor of the Armory and the street will be allowed for farmers to congregate in and show what they have to sell.

EVIDENCE SECURED

Camden, N. J., Aug. 17.—Evidence was discovered today by Coroner Fithian and County Detective John I. Smith, which has led them to believe that the trunk found in a ravine near here yesterday by picnickers contained the partly decomposed body of a man with a bullet wound in the abdomen was placed there on the night of March 10 last. Jacob Hendrickson and Josiah Budderhow, two farmers who live within 100 yards of the place where the trunk was found, were questioned today and both tell of a mysterious occurrence in March which may have had something to do with the case. Hendrickson says he was returning from Camden about 11:30 o'clock on the night of March 10 and saw a team attached to what appeared to be a milk wagon standing near the place where the body was found yesterday. He called to the men who were with the team, but received no answer. Budderhow told the detectives that he had seen the men prowling around with lanterns about this time but inasmuch as it was another man's property he had not investigated their strange movements.

Even a timid, or "scared', advertiser' is not in much harder plight than an indifferent one. No store will thrive in the hands of either!

HE OBEYED ORDERS.

Forest and Stream: A ranchman living in that locality noticed a small bunch of teal that were in the habit of using a pond not far from his dwelling. He requested Legrand to try his luck with them the next morning when they could be easily found. Legrand, however, was short of ammunition, so the ranchman gave him a shell, which he jokingly remarked was enough for a good shot, and he expected him to come back with the whole bunch, numbering six. On the ensuing day, Legrand departed before sunrise, but returned to breakfast empty handed. "No ducks, Legrand?" He shook his head. "No ducks." The next morning the result was the same. "No ducks, Legrand?" "No ducks."

The third morning a shot was heard. Legrand returned with three beautiful blue winged teal hanging from each shoulder.

"Legrand, how did you manage to have so much luck all of a sudden when you were not able to get anything the two preceeding mornings?"

"Today," he replied, "was the first time I could get them lined up so that I could bag them all at one shot."

TOO MUCH FURNITURE.

Good Health: Most people have far too much furniture in their houses, and certainly the majority indulge in too much textile fabric. Too many curtains, too many antimacassars, too many mats and cushions. Al these things collect and hold dust, and curtains shut out fresh air and sunshine. Carpets, especially in the rooms we sleep in, I would abolish.

The bedroom carpet is a snare, and the sooner it makes its final exit the better for the family health. That great artist and critic William Morris once said: "Have nothing in your house that you do not know to be useful or believe to be beautiful. This is counsel many women might take to heart, thereby making their homes much more healthy, a very great deal more beautiful, and undoubtedly, far easier to keep clean and orderly."

SELF DELUSION.

Many People Deceived by Coffee.

We like to defend our indulgencies and habits, even though we may be convinced of their actual harmfulness.

A man can convince himself that whisky is good for him on a cold morning, or beer on a hot summer day—when he wants the whisky or beer?

It's the same with coffee. Thousands of people suffer headache and nervousness year after year but try to persuade themselves the cause is not coffee—because they like coffee.

"While yet a child I commenced using coffee and continued it," writes a Wis. man, "until I was a regular coffee fiend. I drank it every morning and in consequence had a blinding headache nearly every afternoon.

"My folks thought it was coffee that ailed me, but I liked it and would not admit it was the cause of my trouble, so I stuck to coffee and the headaches stuck to me.

"Finally, the folks, stopped buying coffee and brought home some Postum. They made it right (directions on pkg.) and told me to see what difference it would make with my head, and during that first week on Postum my old affliction did not bother me once. From that day to this we have used nothing but Postum in place of coffee—headaches are a thing of the past and the whole family is in fine health."

"Postum looks good, smells good, tastes good, is good, and does good to the whole body." "There's a Reason."

HIS STORY PATHETIC

William Woodruff Breaks Parole and is Returned to Prison.

Engaged to be Married, Leaves State to Find Work.

After being compelled to leave his native state to find employment, and while trying to live an honest and upright life and attempting to blot out the past by working hard to raise money with which to provide a home for the girl he loves, William A. Woodruff of Peoria, Ill., was arrested in Cloquet, Minn., yesterday, and brought to Duluth by Chief of Police McSweeney. An official from the Illinois state penitentiary will arrive this evening to take him back to prison, to serve out his sentence, because he broke his parole by leaving the state.

The story is a pathetic one. Woodruff is only 25 years of age, and is a bright, promising looking young chap. He is a machinist by trade. It is said that he was always regarded with the highest esteem by friends and neighbors in Peoria, until he became mixed with the wrong kind of a crowd of young fellows. To pay a "debt of honor," resulting from a game of cards, he became involved in a swindling deal, being used as a tool by older hands at the game, was arrested, found guilty and sent to state's prison, to serve a two-year term. He was engaged to be married at the time, and thought the conviction would put an end to all his dreams of happiness, but the girl in the case stood by him, and said she was ready to become his wife as soon as he could provide an honest home for her after his release.

Thus encouraged, Woodruff says he determined to lead an exemplary life in prison, and by so doing got his time in jail reduced. He carried out his determination in this respect with such good effect that at the end of a year he was paroled for good behavior. One of the conditions of the parole was that he should not leave the state until the time of his original sentence had expired. This will not be until next spring.

The young man thought the condition would be easy to comply with. With a light heart he set about for work in his native town. Work was scarce, and two or three jobs which he thought were landed slipped from his grasp when the prospective employers found that he had just been released from prison. Giving up finding work in Peoria, he visited other towns in the state, but was unable to find permanent employment in any of them. His prisan record lost him three or four more jobs, and finally he concluded his only salvation was to seek work outside of Illinois.

As long as he lived a decent life, and was honest in his dealings with mankind, Woodruff could not see that it made any difference whether he remained in his native state or sought work elsewhere, and so started West, without first securing the consent of the state authorities. He worked in different towns, but still unable to find permanent employment he drifted to Northern Minnesota, finally landing in Cloquet, where he got a job fixing cash registers. While thus employed an agent of the company recognized him as the man who was wanted in Illinois for breaking his parole, and reported the matter to Chief McSweeney. The latter arrested Woodruff and brought him to Duluth, whence he will be taken to Illinois.

"I don't see why they cannot let me alone," said Woodruff, despair in his eyes. "I have done nothing wrong. I have been leading a decent life. No man can say that I have done anything wrong since leaving prison. It looks like persecution to me."

LIGHTNING STRIKES STEAMER NEAR BAY CITY.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 17.—When lightning struck the passenger steamer State of New York out on Saginaw bay last night, consternation reigned among the passengers for a few moments. The cooler heads prevailed, however, and there was no panic. The steamer's flag pole and a portion of her rail were torn away. The New York was carrying a moonlight excursion from Bay City.

BALDWIN'S BALLOON MEETS REQUIREMENTS.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The army airship board today decided that Capt. Baldwin's dirigible balloon had met all conditions, entitling him to the amount agreed upon for its purchase. The board calculated that the airship had maintained an average speed of 13.75 miles per hour while in the air 2 hours 1 minute and 50 seconds, this being slightly more than the required 70 per cent of the maximum speed of 19.61 miles per hour.

Capt. Baldwin will receive $5,737.50, which is 15 per cent less than the amount he would have received had he reached a maximum speed of twenty miles.

CUTTER BEAR BRINGS IN JAP SEAL POACHERS.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 17.—Cable advices from Valdez state that the United States revenue cutter Bear has arrived at Unga, Alaska, bringing seventy-five Japanese seal poachers from Seal island, the prisoners being a part of the crews of two Japanese schooners recently captured. The Bear has sailed to bring the remainder. United States Commissioner Duffield has ordered twenty-five prisoners held to the federal grand jury for examination. One of the captured schooners was rigged to resemble the cutter McCulloch.

SUPERIOR NEWS

NO AGREEMENT REACHED.

Strikers at Ore Docks Will Not be Taken Back.

All hope of adjusting the difficulties between the striking workmen and the officials of the Great Northern road have been given up by the committee from the Commercial club which met with Supt. Philbin Saturday.

Mr. Philbin offered to take back forty of the men at $1.75 per day, the same amount they had been getting before the strike. The men refused to go, and Mr. Philbin refused to offer a new proposition.

There are now 120 men working on the Allouez docks, and forty more are needed in order to divide the crews and work one at night. Mr. Philbin says that the old men will not under any consideration be taken back now. He said he was willing to fill the vacant places with the old men, but that even though the men decided to come back now at the same rate of pay, he would not discharge the men now working.

The men now working on the docks are Austrians, and according to the officials of the road their work is satisfactory.

Supt. Morrell of the docks says the work is going on the same as before the strike.

Use Voting Machines.

For the first time the voting machine will be used by the electors at the coming primary election in Superior. The first day of registration will be on Auug. 25, and the election will be held one week later and the electors can register and vote on that date.

Aug. 25 Last Day for Filing.

All cases that are to be tried in the September term of the superior court, must be filed before Aug. 25. This is according to a notice issued by Clerk of Courts Seguin. So far only two cases have been filed. The jurors for the coming term have been drawn and the deputy at the sheriff's office is serving notices upon them that their presence is required at the court on Sept. 2. The court will convene the first of the month.

Will Open Sept. 8.

The public schools of Superior will open on Sept. 8, with a corps of about 132 teachers, among which are very few new ones. The lists were completed Saturday by Supt. Maddock. Mr. Maddock says that there will be fewer changes made this year in the old staff than is usual.

Carpenters Return.

The carpenters, who struck Friday on the building of the Wisconsin Central freight and passenger stations, have returned to work at the old scale of wages. The trouble was over the wage scale. The carpenters claimed that the contractors, Schmidt Bros. & Hill, were paying off at the rate of 25 cents per hour, when they agreed to pay 45 cents. The carpenter's union's executive board took the matter up, and notified the contractors, that to avoid a general strike of all the union carpenters of the city they would have to pay the wages agreed upon. The contractors conceded to their wishes.

CONDITIONS IMPROVED.

Arizona Man Says Price of Copper Will Gradually Advance.

W. A. Lawton, of Globe, Ariz., who is at the Spalding today, who has recently been appointed manager of the Miami copper mine of Globe, says that indications point to a rise in the price of copper, men who are well informed on the market conditions believing that it will soon reach 15 cents.

"At the present time almost every mine at Globe is running at full capacity," says Mr. Lawton. "The Miami is running under full operation, as is the Globe Consolidated, a mine in which a number of Duluth men are interested. The Old Dominion, one of the largest mines at Globe, is another mine that is at the present time operating under full capacity. More money is being invested in the mines than at any time since the financial depression of last fall. Mining men and capitalists who have invested capital in the mines of Arizona are inclined to look upon the bright side of things and predict a steady improvement in the condition of the copper market."

AS IN JONAH'S DAY.

"The late Bishop Fowler," said a Buffalo Methodist, "had the happiest knack of illustrating, with one luminous sentence, traits of character, faults, villainies, etc.

"Once, I remember, talking of gambling houses and the little mercy shown ruined players, Bishop Fowler with a grim smile said:

"'The men who took Jonah's money were the same, remember, who threw him overboard. Things like that still happen.'"

We are Showing Things Pronouncedly Fashionable for the Coming Season

Our Messrs. Gidding, who have for some weeks past been in the Eastern markets, with assistant buyers, are daily sending shipments of the newest and best garments that the high priestess of fashion has sanctioned, in both Europe and America.

While our stocks are not yet complete, still the liberal representation well portrays the marked difference between the Passing and the Coming Season's styles, which are this year, a more wholesale change than we have experienced for some time. Prices are from $25.00 to $70.00.

HER DEATH ACCIDENTAL

Grand Rapids Woman Falls in Dark; Fatally Cuts Herself.

Mrs. Adelaide Cochran Meets Tragic End While Alone.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Saturday night, at about 11:20 o'clock, when Ben and Mike Lieberman and Chris Enghausen were passing the home of Mrs. Adelaide Cochran, they heard moans coming from a woman apparently in distress and going in the direction of the sound, found Mr. Cochran lying in her front dooryard. Upon asking what was the matter she said she was dying. They carried her into the house and rendered what assistance they could, but before medical aid could be procured she died. The coroner, sheriff and county attorney's office were notified, and an investigation was at once begun. It was found that the front room of the house was in great disorder, a large stove being thrown to the floor and her belongings scattered about, while a great deal of blood was found. There were upon her person a severe cut on the right knee and a scalp wound in the head, but no other marks of violence.

It looked as if her death were the result of foul play, and a pair of bloodhounds from Superior were sent for. A further search Sunday morning showed a trail of blood leading from an ice wagon belonging to Leo Betts, a son-in-law, in the street, about a block and a half from the Cochran house, along a sidewalk and through an alley and to the garden at the rear of the house. A small quantity of oats was found by the tongue of the wagon, and near by a large clot of blood. Later a pail of oats mixed with sand was discovered in the house. The mystery was thus solved.

Fallen and Cut Herself.

It was evident that in coming from Betts' home, where she obtained a pail of oats for her chickens, she had fallen over the pole of the wagon, cutting her knee on the pail or some other article as she fell to the ground. Not thinking that she had sustained a severe injury, she tried to pick up what oats she could and to reach her home. She set the pail down on a chair near the door when she entered and later carried it to the door between the front and the rear room. Setting down her pail she went to the cot in the other corner of the room to examine the extent of her injuries. Probably appalled by the quantity of blood which gushed from her wound, she became demented and knocked over the stove and other articles in the room, including a lamp, in some way she dragged herself to the yard, where she was found later. She had left Mr. Betts' at about 10 o'clock, and the nature of her wound was such that she could have bled to death, or the excitement may have been sufficient to have caused it.

The affair has naturally created much excitement, but it has abated since it was learned that all the circumstances pointed to nothing more than an unusual accident.

Mrs. Cochran was about 50 years of age and is survived by her husband, a son Harold, and a daughter, Mrs. Betts. Both her husband and son, who were at Hibbing, arrived today to attend the funeral.

ODD FELLOWS TO ERECT BUILDING

Three Linkers of Two Harbors Favor Plan—Other Events.

Two Harbors, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local lodge, I. O. O. F., has started the movement to erect a hall and business block on its property at the corner of Fifth avenue and Cedar street. The plan of a stock company is favored.

The steamer Marigold was here a few days last week supplying the local lighthouse with its winter requirements.

While a smaller acreage than usual has been planted, the present indications are that the potato crop this season will be the best in years.

A branch lodge of the Modern Brotherhood of America will be instituted here Saturday evening next, the 22nd, with a membership of nearly seventy. J. J. Goar, district manager, and R. B. Brundage, district deputy, will be installing officers.

The Svea club concert at the opera house yesterday afternoon was largely attended and was an excellent entertainment.

The eleventh annual picnic of the Iron Range employes at Lester Park Saturday was attended by about 1,200 persons and was a success in every particular. Sports and dancing were enjoyed during the afternoon and evening. The attendance would have been considerably larger had the weather been more favorable.

The barge Redington cleared yesterday with a cargo of 700 cords of pulpwood. There are about 1,000 cords yet to be forwarded to complete the season's shipment of 17,000 cords, all of which went to the Hammermill Paper company of Erie, Pa.

The ball game yesterday between the locals and the Wolvins of Duluth was won by the latter team by a score of 6 to 5.

CONSTABLE IS UNDER ARREST

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Constable William Burke of Missabe Mountain township, who has been waging an aggressive warfare upon persons who indulge in indiscriminate shooting, blew his whistle several times Saturday night, claiming that he encountered four fights in one saloon and needed help from the city force.

Local policemen ran to the saloon, but when they came there found nothing to attract their attention. They asked Burke why he was continually blowing his whistle and they were told that he could call them whenever he thought necessary. One of the Eveleth policemen who had run four blocks for nothing, arrested Burke because he was exceeding his authority. Only the local police are supposed to make arrests in town, and when any prisoner is brought to the local jail by the location officers an Eveleth policeman must be called to open up the jail. This has often resulted in having prisoners waiting on the outside for quite a time.

FIRE DESTROYS RESORT.

Lucy Le Roy's Place Near Sparta Goes Up in Smoke.

Sparta, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The resort of Lucy Le Roy, near Ely lake, not far from here, was put out of business Sunday morning by fire. The inmates escaped in scant attire, as the rapid progress of the fire after it was discovered gave them little chance to gather up their belongings. The fire started in the kitchen, whether accidentally or through incendiarism, is not known. The loss is estimated at about $5,000, with no insurance.

FINE HOMES AT ADAMS.

Mining Company Employes Are Very Well Housed.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Adams location boasts of the fine houses that the miners live in, which are kept up with the greatest care. The Oliver Mining company is making some improvements on the location. About twenty houses are owned by the mining company on the location, the rest of the 250 houses being owned by the miners themselves. The mining company will build twenty-five houses west of the No. 4 shaft. The location houses are on such land as is good for raising vegetables and garden stuff and the miners take advantage of this fact and some have their own potatoes, tomatoes, raspberries, currants, blackberries and other fruits. The walks from the city proper to the location are being improved and are lights have been placed from the city limits to the railroad track by the board of supervisors.

GILBERT PROGRESSING.

Four Pumps Being Installed and Mining Development Advances.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three compound Prescott pumps are to be installed at the Gilbert under the direction of Master Mechanic Knight, one of which will be 12 and 22 by 10 by 18 compound, which will be put into the No. 2 shaft, while the other will be installed in No. 1. The pumps will each be able to handle about 1,000 gallons a minute. It is possible that auxiliary pumps will be placed in No. 2, but none in No. 1. At the No. 1 the station is cut in the shape of a T, the pumps heading towards each other and discharging into a 15-inch pipe. Work on the discharge pipe is going on now.

The work at the Gilbert mine is going on as nearly perfect as possible and with the least loss of time. This is due to the fact that before any actual mining was undertaken the steel company had a complete knowledge of the ore body, which will help toward taking out the ore in the best way possible. The open pit and underground mines are being worked at the same time, the underground mines taking out the ore that is too deep for open mining. When the ore in the open pit gets too deep shafts will probably be sunk there, as the ore body is very deep at the Gilbert.

FIRST RANGE MEETING.

Duluth Epworth League to Meet in Hibbing This Week.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first meeting of the Duluth district of the Epworth League ever held outside of Duluth will convene here Friday next, Aug. 21, at the M. E. church and continue in session Saturday and Sunday, erroneous statements having been made it was held here last week.

The program for the three days follows:

INSPECT HEATING PLANTS.

Hibbing Men Look Over Twin City Properties.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—E. E. Hunner, director; R. Geary, treasurer, and T. J. Godfrey, clerk, of school district No. 27, spent a portion of last week in St. Paul and Minneapolis and other points, where they investigated heating plants and other necessaries to modern building. The school district will soon erect another large school building here and the board is gaining advanced ideas for use at that time.

AURORA WINS BOTH GAMES PLAYED WITH GILBERTS.

Aurora, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Corwin Colts won two games of baseball from the fast Gilbert team Sunday. The first resulted 2 to 0. Spalding and Beecroft were the battery for Aurora and Andrel and Hasklns for Gilbert. Aurora got three hits and Gilbert two. This is the third shut out for Spalding this season.

The second game resulted in a score of 9 to 3 in favor of Aurora. Jennings and Beecroft were the batteries for Aurora, and Andrel and Hasklns for Gilbert.

Next Sunday the Ely team will play here for two games. A special train will be run by the Iron Range road.

ENLARGE ELBA SCHOOL.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—An extra room has been built to the Elba McKinley school by local Gilbert parties. This will help materially in relieving the crowded condition in the other rooms. The new room is placed near the roof.

Services were held at the Swedish Mission church. The Norwegian Lutheran church service was conducted by J. I. Fadum.

Alex McDonald, the owner of the local department store, left Saturday for the Soo, being called by the death of W. F. Ferguson, with whom he was associated in business before coming here.

WILL IMPROVE ROADS.

Sparta, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supervisors of Missabe Mountain township, Thomas Trengrove, F. Helps and D. M. Mouser, have examined the roads in the district with a view to widening them. The inspection satisfied the supervisors that this should be done. The owners of autos and others have urged that the roads in this township be widened.

FIRE IN ADAMS SHAFT DOES LITTLE DAMAGE.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work in the No. 4 Adams shaft was suspended for a time on Saturday because of smoke that was found issuing from an old chute in the third level of the No. 6 mine. Supt. Hearding was called and started the fight against the smoke from the No. 4 shaft. The fire was under control by noon. No damage was done to speak of.

The strike of 1907 on the iron ranges is being looked into by Dr. G. O. Virtue of the Winona normal, who has been here last week, looking up the sociological side of the strike. The results of the investigation will probably be given to the public through publications of the department of commerce and labor.

HAS CHILLY NAME.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—In casting about for a novel name for the new town in which John Kieffman, Martin Hughes, J. B. Connors and other local people are platting, on the shores of a fine lake, a mile from the new town of Calumet, it was decided to bestow upon the place the name of Snowball. Great predictions are made for the future of Snowball.

HIBBING SPECIAL ELECTION.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The voters of School District No. 27, Hibbing, will decide tomorrow by special election which the district shall be changed from a common to an independent one. There appears to be little opposition and it is expected the proposition will carry easily.

ITALIANS HAVE PARADE.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A parade through the city to the fair grounds and a picnic were participated in yesterday by Italian Tyrolese society of this locality. A program was carried out at the picnic grounds in which dancing was a prominent feature.

FINN PAYS COSTS.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—By paying the costs of $7.40 after pleading guilty to a charge of trying to induce witnesses to leave rather than testify in the circus robbery case, Louis Finn was allowed to go by Judge Carey, the assistant county attorney suggestting sistant county attorney suggesting it was believed the accused man was unsound mentally and therefore largely irresponsible.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—"In Old Kentucky."
BIJOU—New vaudeville bill.

"In Old Kentucky."

"In Old Kentucky," that perennial favorite, will be seen at the Lyceum this evening with the famous pickaninny band.

Dramas may come and dramas may go, but "In Old Kentucky" goes on forever, apparently, and each year sees the company stronger and newer-looking than the last. The famous racing act, the many exciting climaxes, and the specialties introduced by the band of colored boys never seem to grow stale, and "In Old Kentucky" draws better and larger audiences as the years go by.

The Mack-Leones.

The Mack-Leones will open tomorrow night in "A Diplomatic Tangle," a story of life in Washington.

Vaudeville.

The new vaudeville bill for the week will open at the Bijou this evening.

FOUND BISMARCKERS EASY.

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 17.—Charlie Mandell, a local cook and crook, is in jail charged with the forging of two certificates of deposit for $90 and $137.61 on the First National Bank of Glendive, Mont., and a buncoed policeman is tearing his hair.

The case with which Bismarckers were relieved of this amount of money, if generally known, would draw all the sharks here. Over a week ago a man named Olson lost by theft several certificates of deposit on a Glendive bank while visiting Billings, Mont., and stopped payment on them. Tuesday a stranger struck town and soon got intimate with Mandell. The outcome of which was that he handed him the $90 certificate and induced him to try to cash it at a bank. This was easily done at the Merchants' State bank, and the money, so Mandell says, was turned over to the stranger, who had taken post in a box car.

Mandell then got a certificate for the larger amount and tried to cash it at the First National bank, but it would not go without an indorser. Presently he returned with one of the policemen, who indorsed the paper, and the roll was taken back to the box car by Mandell, who says it was the last he saw of the stranger, but before leaving the two worthies exchanged clothes. The certificates were returned unpaid and the signature declared a forgery. As a result Mandell is behind the bars.

SAY WHISTLE DIDN'T BLOW.

Soo Train Strikes Meeker County Rig, Killing One Occupant.

Eden Valley, Minn., Aug. 17.—Soo line train No. 104, eastbound, killed John Webber, an Eden Valley saloonkeeper, and possibly fatally injured John Ludwig, a liveryman, who were crossing the track one-half mile west in a single buggy Sunday. Ludwig was taken to St. Mary's hospital, where it was found that the man was cut severely over the eye and internally injured.

Webber and Ludwig had driven to a farm to look up some horses. As they were crossing the Soo tracks on their way back the engine struck between the horse and the buggy, killing the horse and throwing the men 150 feet from the track. The buggy was carried two rods on the pilot. When the train reached the station the engineer noticed the blood on the pilot, but said he didn't know where it came from. Persons who saw the accident said that the whistle was not blown for the crossing, and that because of the buggy top the men did not see the train.

Webber had been married about eight months. Ludwig is a single man.

WANTED FOR BURGLARY.

Two Oshkosh Suspects Are Arrested in Ashland County.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Harry Colley and Victor Bloom, wanted at Oshkosh for burglary, were captured by the under sheriff of Ashland county, and will be taken to Oshkosh by Sheriff Rhymer. A long series of burglaries at Oshkosh resulted in the arrest of one of the Colley boys on the charge of receiving stolen goods, and Harry and Bloom fled. The last robbery was from a jewelry store, and also of some nets and fishing apparatus, which were sold at Appleton and Fond du Lac. Bloom and Colley were located in a house with four other men, in the forest west of Ashland.

CIRCUS TRAIN WRECKED.

Bellingham, Wash., Aug. 17.—The first section of Ringlings' circus train was wrecked at Fort Kells, B. C., on the Great Northern railroad, thirty miles north of here, yesterday afternoon, and a half dozen attendants are reported hurt.

LIGHTNING DESTROYS ELEVATOR.

Denhoff, N. D., Aug. 17.—The Lyon elevator here was struck by lightning and burned to the ground, being a total loss. It contained 5,000 bushels of grain, part of which was saved. The elevator will be rebuilt at once.

DISCUSSION SHIFTED

to the effect that the followers of James Kern had promised the Democratic candidate $200,000 as a campaign contribution for his influence in ousting Col. James M. Guffey, who for many years was the Democratic national committeeman from Pennsylvania, but that Mr. Kern had not kept his alleged promise. "I have never heard of any such offer or contribution," said Mr. Bryan, "and I do not believe there is any truth in the report. But the proper persons to consult would be the committee on credentials and the delegates, as they were the ones who decided the Pennsylvania contest."

In regard to the report that a movement was on foot to organize Bryan and Kern clubs composed of depositors who had lost money in banks which had failed, Mr. Bryan said he had not heard of any organization on that plan, but he would be pleased to have Bryan and Kern clubs organized on the Denver platform, on the whole, or any part of it.

life saving station made three trips down the bay in search of Farrell and his party before locating the boat. The night was very dark, making the work of rescue extremely difficult.

About the most exciting experience befell E. B. Herrell and party of five women and two young men. They were caught out in the lake, two miles from shore, when the storm broke. Merrell was the only practical sailor in the party, and he had difficulty in handling the 22-foot sailboat. Unable to get his sails down in time, he was forced to run down the lake before the wind. After running several miles he was able to swing the craft around and make for shore, arriving safely. It is considered remarkable that the boat, with all sails set, was not overturned.

On their return the Newsboy hailed them and offered assistance, but it was not needed.

W. L. Irvine, who was alone in a sail boat opposite the boat club, was overturned. W. S. Telford hastened to his rescue in his speedy launch, and picked the unfortunate man up and towed the boat ashore.

Local boat club and yacht club launches were busy for two hours towing in row boats, sail boats and canoes that were in distress. The life savers scoured the bay all night, and did good work in locating missing craft and towing them ashore.

There was a good deal of excitement at the boat club branch on Spirit lake. Several canoes and row boats were out in the storm, but managed to get ashore safely. Half a dozen launches between the branch and Duluth had a stormy passage, but managed to get through in safety.

Big trees were bent to the ground by the fierce wind, but only two or three of them were blown down on the boat club grounds, although farther back in the woods the destruction in this respect was greater. A large tree fell between Dr. Taylor and his wife, who were standing scarcely three feet apart. Had either one been hit death certainly would have resulted.

Cries For Help Heard.

George Ball, assistant superintendent of the Interstate Traction company on Park Point, says he heard cries for help from a point on the bay just opposite the car barns when the storm broke. He could see nothing owing to the darkness and rain, and the severity of the storm made it impossible to launch a boat for rescue. It is presumed the parties in distress were taken in charge by one of the launches scouring the bay for that purpose.

Frank Bonham and a small party of friends were out on the open lake in a sail boat. They were driven by the wind and waves onto the stone wall at the pumping station, Fifteenth avenue east, and were able to land.

R. McDonald and two friends from Superior were in the sail boat Allouez. They were unable to handle the boat and the sail was torn to shreds. The wind drove her on shore at Allouez and the occupants were able to land in safety. Supt. Dodge of the Yacht club later towed the boat to the club, with the club launch.

August Fitger and a party of friends were out in a sailboat and were towed in by the club's launch. Dozens of other small boats had trouble making shore in safety. Dozens more, taking warning by the dark bank of clouds coming over the hill, made shore before the storm broke.

Even to the rankest landlubber there seems to have been no excuse for any boat being caught in the squall. For two hours before the storm broke a cloud bank, black as night, was rolling up from the west. Even the people on the piers made their way up town and gained shelter before the wind and rain came.

"That anybody should have been caught in the storm was utterly without excuse," said Capt. McLennan of the life-saving crew. "The most inexperienced should have taken warning in plenty of time to reach safety. For fully two hours before the storm broke it was evident that we were going to have a bad storm, and any person with the sense of a chicken should have been able to see it. I cannot understand how anybody was foolish enough to remain on the bay or lake after all the warnings they had. It is almost inconceivable, particularly here in Duluth, where there have been many fatalities in the past from just such storms. Of course, in some cases, a man experienced in observing weather conditions is able to scent a storm before anyone else, but last night the storm was so plainly evident that the very dogs in the streets could hardly fail to notice it and take warning."

that will be submitted to the grand jury will be collected at this place. The purpose of establishing headquarters at this place is to facilitate matters in gathering the evidence from the police officers, deputies and soldiers.

The confidence of Gen. Young that his force is sufficient to render abortive any attempt at mob violence is fully shared by the negroes. Many more of them from the residence districts of the city came to the arsenal today, swelling the number now being sheltered by the state to 400. None of them have left the place since they entered.

It feared that their very presence would incite a riot and they are guarded as closely as is the ammunition kept in the building. None are to be seen through the open doors of the armory and no negroes go in or out of the building. The colored people are fed from the kitchens of the militiamen, which are located just across the alley from the west entrance to the building.

Negroes Comfortably Quartered.

They are comfortably quartered and apparently satisfied. It is estimated that 1,500 negroes have left the city since Friday, some of them never to return. The exodus has taken them to Chicago, St. Louis, Peoria, Decatur, Bloomington, Lincoln, Carlinville, East St. Louis, and Jacksonville. Some have left the state and the states of Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky, and even Louisiana will be expected to furnish new homes for the refugees.

Troops A, C, D, F, and I, of the First Cavalry arrived from Chicago today on a special train. They brought with them sixteen horses and full camp equipment. By 6 o'clock their tents were pitched at Ninth and Jefferson streets, and the odor of steaming and frying bacon soon arose to tantalize appetites sharpened by hard work and a night's ride.

The troops and wagons are what Adjt. Gen. Scott calls his "Shafter cavalry." It is declared soldiers in sufficient numbers to handle any situation can be hustled to any part of the city in time to prevent serious damage to property.

HELPED LYNCH NEGRO.

Former Volunteer Says He Believes He is Going Insane.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 17.—"I am one of those who helped to lynch William Donegan at Springfield, and I believe I am going insane," was the statement of Charles Gadwin at the office of the superintendent of the Bartonville asylum last night. "We stamped him in the face; we cut his throat, and then put a rope around his neck. That's what it took to kill him."

Gadwin said that he formerly was a member of the Thirty-second United States volunteers in the Philippines and had a sister at the asylum. He was placed under guard.

Two More Deaths.

Springfield, Aug. 17.—Two deaths from injuries received in previous mob fights, the attempted cutting of the fire alarm wires, the exoneration of Private J. B. Klein, Company A, First Illinois infantry, by a court of inquiry for the killing of Earl Nelson at Kankake, and the pursuit of a mob by guardsmen, were the chief developments in the race war in Springfield.

The attempt to cut the telephone and fire alarm wires leading into the city hall was not successful. A policeman saw three men on top of an outbuilding trying to reach the lines overhead. He turned in an alarm to the headquarters of Gen. Wells, commanding a provisional brigade, and the latter despatched a wagon load of soldiers to the scene. They arrived before the trio had done any damage. The would-be wire cutters fled, leaving their nippers behind. They escaped.

The court of inquiry which considered Private Klein's case was composed of Major James Miles, Captains J. Judson and S. F. Hight and Lieut. F. A. Guilford, all of the First Illinois.

After sitting all day they reported to Adjt.-Gen. Scott that Klein's act was performed in the strict line of duty.

Scare at Headquarters.

A genuine scare was caused at the headquarters in the arsenal last night after a squad had been sent to disperse a crowd at Allan and Spring streets. Five minutes later a report reached Lieut.-Col. Eddy that shots had been fired in the threatened district. He immediately sent a full platoon to the place to reinforce the squad. When the additional soldiers appeared the crowd broke and ran. The soldiers pursued for several blocks, and the district, which is near the scene of the recent lynching, was in an uproar for a few minutes.

The arsenal was crowded last night with negro refugees from Springfield and surrounding towns. About two hundred men, women and children sought shelter in the building and slept on the floor or in chairs. Most of these people were old and infirm, but they endured the hardships of their quarters rather than face the prospect of passing the night in their homes, beset with momentary fears of attack.

was acquitted by a jury on the plea of self-defense.

Gen. Peter C. Hains, father of the young men, was in court today looking after the interest of his sons.

Yesterday young Mrs. Hains, who, it is said, had been on terms of close friendship with Mrs. Annis, wife of the slain man, came hurriedly to New York from her home in Winthrop, Mass., and went to Fort Hancock, on Sandy Hook, in an effort to get possession of her three children, who have been living with Gen. and Mrs. Hains. Mrs. Hains did not succeed in her mission, and it was believed that she left the city for her father's home in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Annis was completely prostrated by the killing of her husband, and is under the constant care of physicians.

Capt. Peter C. Hains was arraigned before Magistrate Gilroy on a charge of murder, and his brother, T. Jenkins Hains, on a charge of being an accessory before the fact. Mr. Percy, counsel for the brothers, asked for an adjournment of one week, in which time he desired to prepare for a hearing. District Attorney Darren agreed and the case was put over for one week.

While this brief proceeding was going on Gen. Hains, father of the two brothers, found a seat in the courtroom. The general nodded to his sons, but had no opportunity to talk with them, as they were hurried out of the courtroom. The two brothers were handcuffed together and were required to walk all the way from the magistrate's court to the county courthouse a mile away. They were followed by a crowd of men and boys. During the walk to the county jail the brothers kept their hands in their coat pockets, apparently to conceal the handcuffs.

Acting Police Commissioner Baker today ordered Borough Inspector Flood of Brooklyn to take the Hains brothers to Brooklyn headquarters to be photographed and measured for the police records.

District Attorney Darren said later that he had decided to make application for a special grand jury to take up the case. His plan is to have the brothers brought to trial early in September if possible.

BALLOON FALLS.

Berlin, Aug. 17.—As the Parseval dirigible balloon was approaching its landing place here today it was forced suddenly downward by a current of air while at a height of 60 feet. The gondola of the ship struck the ground violently, breaking the left arm of Capt. Von Krogh.

EXCESS OF COMMON LAW

Judge Morris Criticises Appellate Courts for Injury Decisions.

Judge Page Morris of the federal court delivered the principal speech at the big banquet at the Spalding which brought the session of the State Bar association to a close Saturday night. Judge Morris criticised the circuit courts for their too rigid application of old and out of date rules of common law in the matter of contributory negligence in injury suits, and he support Pierce Butler's advocacy of a law which would make society bear the cost of injury to working men. Judge Morris said:

"So far as the federal courts, at least, are concerned, the questions which are coming up now for decision are more important than any that have ever confronted any court in any country. We are entering into a new region of the law, where we are without the slightest precedent to guide us. We are confronted with questions which involve deep constitutional research and the highest judicial wisdom.

"I think in view of this, that the bar should raise every possible question that can be raised in order that our problems may be finally solved and determined for all time.

"After a lawyer has exhausted his industry and intelligence in behalf of his client, his duty as a citizen begins. In the solution of these questions it is not only the province of the law to find and remove difficulties, but it is also the highest duty of the lawyer citizen to see that the finest and most complete legislation shall thereafter be enacted.

"There has been a change of late in the bar sentiment toward certain questions. Our courts are loaded with injury actions. In an opinion, which I wrote some time ago, and which I observe the circuit court apparently regarded as 'Obiter Dicta,' I had the temerity to suggest that certain rules of the old English common law had outgrown their usefulness, had outgrown the conditions under which they arose, and needed change. I recommend some legislation to remedy this.

"The courts have gone far, and the circuit court of our own Eighth district has gone as far as any in applying old doctrines of contributory risk where they ought not to be applied. I do not wish to be understood to say that a trial judge should fly in the face of decisions, nor should any trial judge fly in the face of a decision of his own circuit court, yet I do believe that like other citizens, all judges have a right to their own opinions as to the rules of law.

Human Wreckage.

"The time has come when the harsh rules of contributory negligence should be modified to suit modern conditions. The lawmakers should declare that the calamities which bring injuries of so dire a nature to the workingman, and which are so necessary in modern business in spite of every precaution, should be borne by the public, not by the individual. I have been convinced that in the dangerous employments, railroading, mining, etc., human wreckage should be paid for in the same manner as material wreckage. The great railroad company figures loss of engines and rolling stock as a part of its expenses. The same should apply to the human wreckage. The public should stand the burden in the same manner, through increased rates. But a few years would elapse before we should have tabulated statistics like the life insurance company's tables, which would show the average expense from such losses, and rate commissions could use these in fixing rates.

"They are passing laws which require that in certain dangerous employments certain precautions should be taken by the employer for the safety of his men. The appellate courts have held that the man assumes the risk of the position even when his employer does not comply with the precautions prescribed by law. I agree most emphatically, however, with him who is to be the next president of the United States, when he says that this is wrong in every way.

"Within the next few years there will come before us the great question of rebate and rate. These must me approached, not from the side of the man who has to ship goods, nor from the standpoint of the transportation agent, but from the side of the great public, which ultimately will have to pay the rates.

"In solving all these great questions we must not do violence to the Constitution. Let no man suppose that any Federal judge will ever consciously see that great instrument violated. It is the duty of every lawyer and judge to see that the Constitution is guarded from the attacks of not only the plutocrat but the proletariat as well. It is just as criminal for the laboringman to tie up and ruin business by strikes, boycotts and other means, for his own personal advantage in an unjust cause, as it is for the rich man to prey upon the common people. It is my sincerest hope that the members of the bar and bench will see to it that through future legislation, and through future interpretation of the law, these things shall become impossible."

Judge Cant Talks.

Judge W. A. Cant's speech was also warmly applauded. His subject was "The Bench." He paid a tribute of respect and admiration to the men who have in the past sat upon the St. Louis county bench and to his colleagues of today. Judge Cant maintained that the case where justice has been attained through bad law was not so much of a menace as it appeared, as the decision was usually good law, but simply reached through a wrong course of reasoning. He suggested that human experience is not usually so complicated but what existing laws may be applied with a just result. He pointed out the necessity, however, for constant revision, by interpretation, and by legislation, and said that it should be the glory of the bench that the law is a living, growing, advancing organ.

Thomas D. O'Brien, S. T. Harrison and Judge Quinn of Fairmont, had humorous topics and kept the merriment at a high pitch throughout their talks. Mr. O'Brien talked on "Nil Nisi Bonum." Mr. Harrison waxed eloquent and broke into poetry several times on the subject of "Good Times." The capacity of a lawyer to enjoy himself was unequalled by the rest of humanity, said Mr. Harrison. Judge Quinn told several amusing experiences of the country bar and bench.

Pierce Butler, the newly elected president, was limited in time, as the train which a number of the delegates were to leave on was due to pull out ten minutes after he began his talk. He expressed bright hopes for the future and effectiveness of the bar association and promised to do his best to make the coming year a most successful one.

"Cordie" Severance acted as toastmaster and was fully equal to the occasion.

Mr. Blackburn, "The man behind the pills," has adopted the distinctive colned name, Cascn-Royal-Pills, for the sweet, little pills heretifore known as Castor-Oil Pills. The ingredients are the same.

WAITERS' STRIKE THREATENS FEAST

Spalding Employes Went Out Just Before Lawyers' Banquet.

A strike on the part of the waiters at the Spalding, Saturday night, just before the big lawyers' banquet, delayed the big feast about half an hour and threatened the success of the affair for a time.

Just before 7 o'clock, the hour the banquet was to begin, one of the waiters appeared and announced that they would not work without extra pay. More money would have to be forthcoming, or the attorneys would have to wait on themselves, he said.

The Spalding manager sat down on this proposition very quickly and hard however. He told them that they would have to serve the meal, without extra pay or quit, and, with their bluff called so decisively, the waiters decided that discretion was the better part of valor and went back to work.

PUBLIC MEETING

Notice is hereby given, that a public meeting will be held in the council chamber, in the City Hall, on Tuesday, August 18th, at 8 o'clock p. m. to consider and discuss the proposition to allow the Zenith Telephone Company to charge a toll for Superior connections.

All interested citizens are requested to be present.

SAW BIG SIGN, USED FIRM NAME

Forger Tells Judge Story and Gets Light Sentence.

Advertising pays generally, but there are instances where it has disadvantages. Stone - Ordean - Wells company's big sign on their building was the thing which caused Louis Crouteau to select their firm as a victim for the six small forgeries, which he committed on lower Lake avenue about two weeks ago. This is what he told Judge Dibell in the district court Saturday afternoon. He told a straight story of his career, admitting the forgeries, and altogether made such a good impression on the judge that he got a very light sentence. Two years at hard labor were allotted to him, but by good behavior he can get out after a year, on parole.

Crouteau told a plain hard luck story that had all the earmarks of being true. He had a wife and baby in Western Canada, had gotten out of work, and come to Duluth to look for it. He failed to get anything to do here, and had resorted to forgery to get enough money to get back to Canada.

To Detroit and Return for $12.

The South Shore has announced its popular fall excursions to Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and Buffalo. Excursion will leave Duluth 5:30 p. m., Sept. 9th, 11th, 16th and 18th.

BOYS' CAMP WAS "THE BEST EVER"

Nothing Happened to Mar the Two Weeks' Outing.

After spending two weeks camping in the woods near Deerwood and having the time of their lives, forty-eight boys of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. returned last night, in charge of Norman D. Mcleod. Mr. McLeod says, and the boys agree with him, that the outing this year was the best ever.

Fishing was good, the water fine, weather fair, and there were ball games, long tramps through the woods, and, best of all, the camp fire and the story-telling hour just before bedtime.

Mr. Mcleod will leave the latter part of the week for Silver Lake, N. Y., where he will attend the boys' conference which will be held there next week.

Backus Retires.

A dispatch received in this city states that E. W. Backus of Minneapolis, interested in the water power development company at International Falls, has withdrawn from the project and that the future operations of the company will be backed by Eastern capital. It is said that the work of construction on the plant, which was interrupted by the money depression of last fall, will be resumed when materials and men can be brought to the site of the plant, between International Falls and Fort Frances.

COLORADO NOT BADLY INJURED.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The cruiser Colorado, which ran aground at Mouble Bluff in Puget Sound, Saturday, was not seriously damaged, according to a telegram received here yesterday by Rear Admiral Pilsbury, chief of the bureau of navigation, from Rear Admiral Sigsbee, commander of the second division of the Pacific fleet. The Colorado was floated at high tide and taken to the Bremerton navy yards to go into dry dock for examination. The vessel is not leaking, according to navy department advices.

EFFORTS OF LANGLEY

In Investigations With Heavier Than Air Flying Machines.

Some Results Accomplished Are Given to the Public.

Washington, Aug. 17.—At this time when general interest has been stirred in things aeronautical by the airship tests at Fort Myer, Va., and elsewhere, the Smithsonian Institution has brought together and published, to meet the consequent demand, four papers by the late S. P. Langley, issued originally, two in 1897, eleven years ago, and the others in 1902 and 1905, which tell concisely and accurately just what was accomplished by him and his associates in the construction and testing of an actual flying machine.

Prof. Langley was admittedly the pioneer investigator and experimenter with machines heavier than air that were supported in flight only by their own mechanical energy. He designed and built several small models, and a quarter size model of a larger man-carrying machine, which repeatedly made successful flights of over half a mile each, keeping in the air as long as fuel lasted. The first of these long flights were made on May 6, 1896, over twelve years ago. The three small aerodromes, two driven by steam and the third by gasoline engines, have for some time been on exhibition in the United States national museum.

Machine Never Launched.

The later large machine, built not long before Mr. Langley's death, has never been launched, a break occuring in the launching apparatus at each of the two trials, Oct. 7 and Dec. 8, 1903—a fact that was evident to the officials of the war department and to other close witnesses.

A few figures relating to the large machine, given by Mr. Langley, are interesting in view of the present tests:

"The flying weight of the machine complete with that of the aeronaut was 839 pounds; its sustaining sruface, 1,040 square feet. It therefore was proded with slightly greater sustaining surface and materially greater relative horsepower than the quarter-size model, which flew successfully. The brake horsepower of the engine was 52; the engine itself, without cooling water or fuel, weighed approximately 1 kilogram to the horsepower. The entire power plant, including cooling water, carburator, battery, etc., weighed materially less than 5 pounds to the horsepower."

The underlying principle of Mr. Langley's experiments, worked out through years of exact scientific study, is explained in one of these papers, published originally in 1897:

The Aerodrome.

"What is popularly known as the 'flying machine' is literally a machine, without gas to support it, in no way resembling a balloon, and which its inventor has called the aerodrome. The aerodrome (from words signifying "air runner") is, then, the name given to this apparatus by Mr. Langley to indicate the principle of its action, which in no way resembles that of a balloon that floats, because it is lighter than the air, while the aerodrome is hundreds of times heavier than the air. The weighty machines owes its support to another principle—that is, to the rapidity with which it runs over the air, like a skater on thin ice. This machine, built almost entirely of steel, is far heavier in relation to the air than a ship of solid lead would be in relation to the water, and could not remain in the air if still.

"The essence of its action, then, is in its motion, without which it could not remain suspended. It is moved rapidly by a steam engine, carrying its own fuel and its water supply, by which it can be kept indefinitely, while it is also, and by the necessity of its own action, rapidly advancing.

"This may all be admitted as probably true in theory, but it is not generally known that this has been actually done."

Although some of Mr. Langley's models had flown short distances before, he preferred to consider this, which on May 6, 1896, over twelve years ago, referred to above, as the first really successful ones. The model used was No. 5 measuring about twelve or fourteen feet from tip to tip, weighing with fuel aboard about thirty pounds, and driven by a steam engine of a little over one horsepower. Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, Frank G. Carpenter, and others were witnesses on this occasion. The model flew on each flight a distance, estimated by Dr. Bell at about 3,000 feet, or at least more than half a mile.

Just what Mr. Langley and his work stands for in the scientific world today is very briefly summarized in the introduction to this reprint of his papers, which is as follows:

The Fame of Langley.

"The international fame of Samuel Pierpont Langley rests primarily upon his epoch-making researches in solar physics, but for the last ten years of his life his name was best known to the world at large by his experiments in mechanical flight.

"Mr. Langley was the first to produce a machine heavier than air which, supported and propelled by its own engine and possessing no extraneous lifting or sustaining power, actually made an independent flight for a considerable distance, this being accomplished for the first time on May 6, 1896. He afterwards constructed other models driven by both steam and gasoline engines, which made frequent, successful flights, and was thus the first to demonstrate by actual experiment the possibility of mechanical flight.

"In addition to building various models and machines, most of which are now on exhibition in the United States national museum, Mr. Langley recorded his studies and experiments in two technical works—Experiments in Aerodynamics, published originally by the Smithsonian Institution in 1891, and the Internal Work of the Wind, the original edition of which was issued by the Institution in 1893. The copious and painstaking notes made by Mr. Langley in connection with his latest experiments in mechanical flight are now in course of preparation for publication and will be issued by the Institution on completion, thus forming the third volume of this more technical series.

"Mr. Langley also wrote a few occasional, popular papers relating to this same class of experiments, which were published in the Smithsonian reports, and elsewhere, the former editions of which are now quite exhausted. I norder to meet the ever-increasing demand for information on a subject which is now claiming universal attention, and in which Mr. Langley was the pioneer, some of these less technical articles are here brought together and reprinted under a single cover."

Educates Poor Boys.

A. P. W. Kinnan, a capitalist of New York, is at the Spalding. Mr. Kinnan is the executor of the estate of the late Loyal L. Smith of New York, who left $200,000 and the interest to provide free education for the deserving poor boys of Clinton county, New York. Mr. Kinnan says that Mr. Smith never enjoyed any of the advantages of early education and it was one of his wishes that the poor boys of Clinton should enjoy the early opportunities that were denied to him. The terms of the will provide that boys eligible to its conditions shall receive a three-years' preparatory course and a four-years' college course. They will be provided with clothing and other necessaries during their school and college courses.

Mr. Kinnan is accompanied by his son, Morris, and John H. Selmes and wife of New York.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A party of picnickers while seeking water in a ravine near Mount Ephriam, N. J., Sunday, came across an old trunk, tied with ropes and half buried in the undergrowth. On raising the lid the body of a man tightly wedged in the trunk was found. A wound in the breast indicated that the man had been shot.

John J. Forester, a Coney Island lifesaver, was the winer of a swim of thirteen miles, from under the Brooklyn bridge to Coney Island, held yesterday by members of the United States volunteer life-saving corps.

In the presence of several thousands of spectators at the Clifton Cycle stadium at Patterson, N. J., William "Sonny" Bridge, a motor cyclist and former light weight pugilist, was thrown from a motor cycle which he was testing on the track, and was instantly killed. Bridge had been scheduled to ride a 20-mile race with James Moran.

Ignatz Wandrack, 41 years old, a deaf mute of Cincinnati, was struck and instantly killed by an automobile owned and driven by John J. Ryan, a turfman on the outskirts of Covington, Ky., Sunday night.

Fire Sunday evening threatened heavy damage to the huge coal docks of the Canadian Pacific railroad at Fort William. At 10 p. m., however, the fire was gotten under control.

Bloodhounds have been sent to Burton, La., where a posse is in pursuit of a negro who attempted to criminally assault a 12-year-old white girl. If captured, the negro will probably be lynched.

Announcement was made Sunday in the Shreveport Times of the sale of the paper to the Times Publishing company, which is headed by Robert Ewing, owner of the New Orleans Daily State.

R. L. Williams, white, 50 years old, owner of a bottling works in Summerville, Ga., is under arrest charged with assault upon the 9-year-old daughter of Mrs. Hanson. Anticipating trouble, the sheriff took Williams to Rome, Ga., for safe keeping.

Governor Pindall has been asked to send troops to Truman, Ark., to protect negro employes of the Springfield Lumber & Cooperage company, and prevent a clash between the races.

Miss Lucy Berry and Miss Sarah Disasway of Plattsburg, N. Y., and Miss Elizabeth Disasway of Brooklyn, N. Y., were drowned while bathing in Lake Champlain, Sunday.

Arthur Jenkins, a young United States seaman at the Norfolk naval training station, has been arrested by order of the secretary of the navy and placed in the brig on the receiving ship Franklin, awaiting a preliminary trial on the charge of having sent an obscene postal card to President Roosevelt at Washington.

WHISKY AND CONSUMPTION

"Too much whisky and consumption" was the coroner's verdict.

The man dropped dead in Jake Mattson's saloon at 340 Lake avenue south about 9 o'clock this morning.

Nobody appears to know anything about him, except that his name was Victor Emerson. He was dressed like a woodsman, and it is claimed that he has been hanging around the Lake avenue saloons for some time. The county took charge of his body, and another grave will probably be added to the list in the Potter's field.

PHILLIPS BEGINS SENTENCE.

Convicted Promoter Now Doing Time at Stillwater.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 17.—"It is a pretty hard dose after living so long on the fat of the land, but I will make the best of it."

Thus Samuel A. Phillips philosophically accepted his fate when he bid goodbye to his office friends here last Friday evening when called on by Deputy Sheriffs Hanson and Blonick in his offices on the sixth floor of the New York Life building to be taken to the state prison at Stillwater to begin his sentence of seven years.

The former promoter of the Chicago-New York Electric Air line was quietly taken on a Stillwater electric car to the prison city Friday evening and entered among the prisoners in the usual manner. There he is to serve seven years at hard labor for grand larceny in the first degree. He was convicted of retaining $2,693.40 belonging to the Hancock company of Boston, for which concern Phillips was agent. The evidence showed that he had made three sales which he failed to report to the company.

Phillips is 42 years old and his hair is a trifle gray. Twenty years ago he came to St. Paul from his parental home at Mazeppa, Minn., near Zumbrota, and became a newspaper reporter. From that he drifted into the business of selling stocks. He has been at St. Paul off and on ever since. He has a brother and other relatives living at Mazeppa. He is single.

Phillips is also under federal indictment on the charge of using the mails to defraud. The trial has been set for the October term of the federal court.

COULDN'T STAND HER LOSS.

Distracted Lover Kills Himself Because Fiancee Was Doomed.

Manitowoc, Wis., Aug. 17.—Told that the girl he loved and courted and hoped soon to make his wife, could not survive an operation which she underwent recently, Harry Goodhue, aged 28 years, of Reedsville, employed at Cato, committed suicide by taking paris green in the barn, death resulting instantly. The tragedy was followed an hour later by the death of Miss Mary Hargrove, the young man's sweetheart.

Goodhue was employed on the farm of the girl's father and the two had been lovers for three years and had planned to wed early in Septembre. Illness came and the girl was taken to Milwaukee for an operation and when she returned last week, doctors said it was impossible for her to live.

For Sore Feet.

"I have found Bucklen's Arnica Salve to be the proper thing to use for sore feet, as well as for healing burns, sores, cuts, and all manner of abrasions," writes Mr. W. Stone, of East Poland, Maine. It's the proper thing too for piles. Try it! Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 25c.

REAR ADMIRAL EVANS TO RETIRE ON TUESDAY.

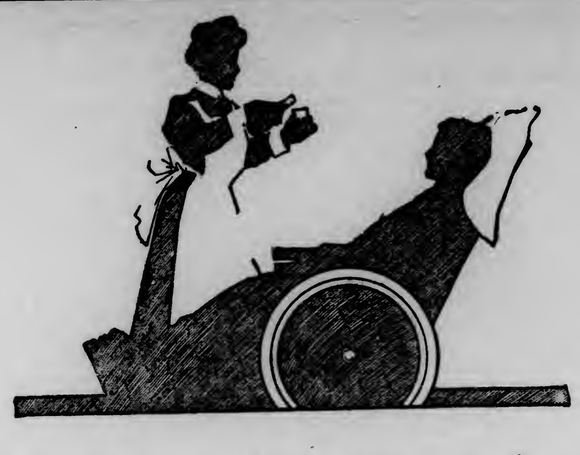
Mohonk Lake, N. Y., Aug. 17.—On Tuesday evening Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, "Fighting Bob," will have concluded forty-eight years of service in the United States navy, and being then at the age of 62, he will go on the retired list. The admiral and his family are spending the summer at the Lake Mohonk house. The guests of the hotel are planning a celebration befitting the official close of a remarkable naval career. Elaborate exercises have been planned for the occasion.

J. Edward Simmons, president of the New York chamber of commerce, will preside and deliver an address, and Aldrew S. Draper, commissioner of education of the state of New York, on behalf of the guests, will present to Admiral Evans a magnificent loving cup provided by popular subscription. Letters from the president of the United States, many admirals and other distinguished men will be read.

MURDER IN CHICAGO.

Religious Fanatic, Excited Over Race Troubles, Kills Colored Woman

Chicago, Aug. 17.—The negro residence district of Chicago was thrown into a state of excitement yesterday by the murder of Mrs. Lucy Briggs, 65 years of age, colored, in her home at 2312 Dearborn street, by Clayton N. Williams, also colored. Williams beat the woman to death with a rocking chair after dragging her into a bedroom off the kitchen, where she had been preparing a meal. He was arrested a few minutes later after a desperate resistance. As nearly as the police were able to learn, Williams was a religious fanatic, and had become excited over the race troubles at Springfield. He became possessed with the idea that Mrs. Briggs, with whom he boarded, was controlled by evil spirits, of which he decided to rid her. The chair with which he brained the woman was found splintered and bloodstained when the police broke down the door behind which Williams had contrived a barricade of furniture.



THE DOCTOR says "drink beer" to the weak and the convalescent. To those who need strength—need a food and a tonic. If it is good for them, isn't it good for you?

The virtue of beer does not lie in the alcohol. There is only 3½ per cent. of that.

It lies in the malted barley—a digested food. And in the hops—a tonic and an aid to sleep.

It lies, too, in the fact that the drinking of beer flushes the system of waste. So would water, of course, if one drank enough of it. But you don't drink water like beer.

When beer is pure there is nothing more healthful. And Schlitz beer is pure. It brings no after-effects, no biliousness.

But better go without beer than to drink the wrong beer. That is why the Doctor generally says "Drink Schlitz."

Ask for the Brewery Bottling.
Common beer is sometimes substituted for Schlitz.
To avoid being imposed upon, see that the cork or crown is branded Schlitz.

PROHIBITIONISTS TO WORK IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—National Chairman Charles R. Jones of the Prohibition party announced yesterday that it had been decided to make a vigorous fight for the South Dakota vote for Chafin and Watkins, presidential and vice presidential candidates of that party. Mr. Jones held a conference yesterday with Quincy Lee Morrow, secretary of the South Dakota Prohibition committee, concerning the situation there. Plans were made to have both candidates make a number of addresses in the state during October.

FOSSTON CREAMERY LEADS.

Fosston, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The official report of the state creamery butter contest for the month of August places the name of our local creamery buttermaker, H. A. SPENT NIGHT ON ISLAND

Girl and Young Man Have Harrowing Experience in Canoe.

Rescued by a Launch Which in Turn Goes Aground.

During the gale that raged in Duluth last night at about 9 o'clock, a Duluth young man and a girl were stranded on the Wisconsin shore opposite Zenith island, in a canoe, where they were picked up nearly an hour later, drenched to the skin, by the Thomas Paine, a small steam launch owned by Superior people.

But the young people's rescue was not complete then, by any means, for in the darkness that followed the storm the launch ran aground, broke its propeller, and was stalled there for the night.

The girl in the canoe was the only woman in the party, so, rather than have her suffer in wet clothes all night on the river, her companion again set out with her in the canoe. They landed on Zenith island, where they spent the remainder of the night at a farmhouse.

This morning they were carried to West Duluth by C. C. Salter in his launch. The names of the young people were not learned by Dr. Salter. Their experience in the frail craft, while the storm was raging, must have been most harrowing. After the wind had lashed the surface of the river into white caps, and the storm clouds had cast an impenetrable darkness over everything, their predicament grew very serious. They had no idea where they were, and even if they had, the wind was so strong that it was impossible for them to guide the canoe. They were blown across to the Wisconsin side, where they went aground. Even then their plight was a sad one, for they did not know where they were, and were afraid to leave their boat to hunt shelter. They were very thankful when the searchlight of the Thomas Paine hove in sight.

BURGLAR ARRESTED.

Police Capture Man Suspected of Stealing Jewelry From House.

The West Duluth police Saturday at midnight were notified that the home of H. G. Schmit of 327 North Central avenue, had been broken into and over $100 worth of jewelry taken. At 12:15 just fifteen minutes later, Patrolman Peterson arrested a man answering the description of the one suspected of having committed the robbery, at the Central avenue Northern Pacific station.

Mr. and Mrs. Schmit conduct a restaurant beneath their home, and at about 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening while they were engaged downstairs, the upper story was ransacked and several articles of jewelry taken, including several rings, a gold watch, some stickpins and some silverware. The things were not missed until later in the evening, and upon investigation, it was learned that one of the roomers had seen a strange man in the house about supper time. He thought at the time it probably was some of the other roomers' friends, so did not mention the matter. When the things were discovered missing, he told what he had seen and gave a fairly good description of the stranger, which later enabled Peterson to make the arrest.

At the police station the man under arrest gave his name as Frank Johnson, said he was 21 years old, a barber by trade, who had just arrived in the city that morning from Cleveland. He denied any knowledge of the theft. On searching him, however, one of the missing stickpins was found in his possession, and later the rings and the rest of the pins were found on a window sill in the depot, near where he had been sitting at the time of his arrest. It is believed that after he entered the house and made the haul, he went to Duluth and disposed of the watch, then doubled on his tracks and came back to West Duluth to take an outbound train. One was due at the time he was arrested. A search is being made today for the watch in the different pawnshops of the city.

Surprise Party.

A very happy surprise party was given Helding J. Gradin of 1506 Fifty-fifth avenue west, Saturday evening. About forty of Mr. Gradin's friends composed the party, who dropped in on him most unexpectedly, while he was sitting propped up in a chair, recovering from an operation which was performed on his arm a short time ago, and presented the young man with a large bouquet of flowers and a purse containing $116. A. J. Bergstrom and others made short addresses, explaining the object of the visit. Pearle L. Bergstrom recited a poem. The remainder of the evening was enjoyed at games and music. Refreshments were served.

Blackened Wife's Eyes.

This morning James Dass, 59 years old, was arraigned in the municipal court, on the charge of assaulting his aged wife. He was found guilty, and his sentence postponed until Oct. 17, giving the old man a month in which to repent and make amends for his cruelty. In a family quarrel yesterday, he struck her in the face, blackening both her eyes. They were so swollen today that Mrs. Dass could see only with great difficulty.

APPROVE ASSESSMENT.

West Duluthians Well Satisfied With Action of County Board.

With all of the West Duluth divisions set back at the mark of 1906 with no raise except on buildings, and that inconsiderable, West Duluth property owners are more than satisfied with the action of the county board in fixing the assessment.

The only increases in the western end of the city are the 100 per cent raises on the divisions comprising the vicinity of the proposed steel plant. As these have easily increased in value this amount, there is no objections to the raise.

West Duluth Briefs.

Miss Louise Bertum of 609 South Sixty-fourth avenue west, left yesterday to visit friends at Moose Lake.

Mrs. F. P. Macauley and daughters, Abbie and Maggie, who have been stopping at the Phillips hotel, left yesterday for their home in St. Paul.

Mrs. Belle Morrison and son, John of Ashawa, are guests at the home of Mrs. W. A. Pond of 1231 North Fifty-seventh avenue west.

Mandal Solomon, the 3-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Bolands of Fifty-sixth avenue west and Bristol street, died yesterday morning.

Edward Allen of 210 North Sixty-first avenue west, died this morning at 9:30 o'clock after a lingering illness.

Freeman Randall, who was operated on two weeks ago at the Duluth hospital for appendicitis, was removed to his home on Forty-sixth avenue west yesterday. He is rapidly improving.

John R. Miller, who is visiting relatives and friends in West Duluth, expects to leave for his home in Mankato, Minn.

Miss Julia McNulty of 124 North Sixty-third avenue west, is visiting relatives for a month in Ishpeming and Marquette, Mich.

John Bouchey has moved his family from Ironwood, Mich., to West Duluth and is now residing at 219 North Fifty-first avenue west.

The funeral of John, the 4-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rowe of 215 North Fifty-third avenue west, was held this afternoon from the residence. Interment was at Oneota cemetery.

Tonight is the opening night of the Woodmen's carnival, which will continue every night this week in West Duluth. The grounds where the exhibitions will take place are on Central avenue between Nicollet and Gosnold streets. Tonight's free attractions are: The cycle whirl, looping the gap, the cloud flying act, and the high dive. The members of Old Hickory camp, 1555, under whose auspices the carnival is being given, are very much elated over the fine weather for the opening night.

RUNNING DOWN PARTICIPANTS

Springfield Police Having Difficulty in Discovering Leaders of Riot.

Springfield, Aug. 17.—Rumors that A. Rayner, the St. Louis man who was arrested for alleged participation in the lynching of William Donnegan on Saturday night, had confessed to the police, could be only partially verified today. Rayner denies that he was concerned in the actual killing of Donnegon, saying that he was across the street when this took place. He gave the police the names of several others who, he declares, were guilty of participation in the outrage. No one of these persons are known, however, and it is thought Rayner has imagined the identity of his companions in order to escape further experience of the "third degree."

Rayner and Kate Howard, the latter accused of participating in the wrecking of Loper's restaurant, are the only prisoners whom the police claim to have damaging evidence against. The Howard woman has been released on bail. The explicit charge against her is grand larceny. She told the police that she entered the restaurant merely for the purpose of securing souvenirs of the day's riots. One of the souvenirs the police say was a pail of lard weighing 20 pounds.

The police today are meeting with the usual difficulties in their attempts to discover the leaders of the riot. Every person arrested claims that he or she was present merely as a spectator, and the prisoner can always produce several friends to substantiate this claim. Then there is the plea of the patrolemen that they "couldn't recognize" any of the rioters.

Refugees at Arsenal.

Among the refugees in the arsenal is Mrs. William Donnegan, the white widow of the aged negro, who was strung up on Saturday night and whose death yesterday followed.

"I left my sons to take care of the house," she said, "for I was afraid to stay there any longer."

It is because of her marriage to Donnegan that the mob feeling against her husband is believed to have been aroused.

"I am here and am going to stay here till this thing blows over," he said. "I had my run for life yesterday. I was driving a team in the outskirts of town yesterday afternoon, when a crowd of white men got after me. There were about eight of them, and all were on foot, except two, who were on bicycles. They stoned me and said, 'Let's get this nigger,' but I whipped up my horses and escaped."

Goernor Deneen, who has been working almost incessantly, night and day, was up at 7 a. m. today ready for the day's work. Before noon he visited the refugees and listened to their stories of distress. He had a word of encouragement for all.

FOUR NEW CARRIERS

Additions Made to the Duluth Free Delivery Service.

Two Deliveries a Day in Greater Part of City.

The efforts of Postmaster Eaton have not been in vain, for on Sept. 1 four new carriers will go on the force, giving Duluth sixty-two mail carriers in all.

Mr. Eaton wanted five, but the department told him he would have to be satisfied with four for the present.

In every part of the city now with the exception of the extreme outskirts there will be two deliveries a day. Up to this time it has been impossible to do this on account of the limited number of carriers.

New parts of the city which are being built up, and who up to this time have not had the service, will get one delivery a day.

See Wink tomorrow!

THE LINE IS STILL GROWING

Twenty-One Applicants and Only Twenty Full Claims.

And still they come.

There are only twenty farms in the Fond du Lac reservation and there are twenty-one persons lined up in the halls of the federal building waiting to file when the opening takes place Sept. 1.

"It will be impossible for each one to get the customary 160 acres," said Receiver Morrison today, "for the reason that some of the land is badly cut up with swamps."

A settler usually gets 160 acres, and those who are the first to be served will get the usual allowance, but those toward the end of the line will have to be satisfied with from 60 to 80 acres, according to their number in line, and the way the land lies.

OLD INDIAN FIGHTER HERE

Maj. John M. Burke is a Famous Scout of Pioneer West.

A lot of western color blew into town yesterday. A memory of the days of Indian fighting, of Buffalo hunting, and of the days when the cowboy and the bad man were making frontier history was vividly called back to remembrance by the presence of Maj. John M. Burke, ex-Indian fighter, rider of the plains in the early days, adventurer and all round good fellow. Let it be known that Maj. Burke is in advance of the Buffalo Bill show, and also let it be known that he has lived through the days which the Wild West show so picturesquely depicts.

Maj. Burke is about as breezy as any gust that ever blew up the Sweet Milk country or the Bitter Root valley. He has a lot to say and he says it well. When he gets through telling of the early days on the plains, like Oliver Twist, you ask for more. He is just as picturesque as the scenes he describes, and he links the chasm between the jerked meat, wagon trial days with the Pullman car, juicy steak days of the present.

There is no possible chance of any one confusing the major of copying some president or presidential candidate in the cut of his mustache. It resembles more a cowcatcher of a standard engine, fringed and turned upward. It slopes gracefully, describing a slight curve in the descent, and then flows outward and upward, a la Kaiser Wilhelm, only more so.

Maj. Burke knew G. A. Tomlinson when he was one of the original rough riders with the Buffalo Bill show. He has been an Indian fighter, scout, adventurer and globe trotter. Today he is doing the press work for what he describes as the best show of its kind on earth. He says Buffalo Bill is with the show this year, despite reports to the contrary, and time has wrought little change in his appearance. Of course, the major would rather talk about the Buffalo Bill show than any other topic. But if you insist he will tell you that he fought the Indians, along about the time when Bill Cody was winning his spurs in the West, that he was one of the commissioners that arranged for the surrender of the Sioux, after the Ghost dance war in South Dakota, in 1890, and that he has been actively connected with events that have made history in the West.

Thomson Girl Dies.
Mamie Homer, aged 14 years, died Saturday at the home of her uncle, Mike Saikia, at Thomson. A. J. Homer, the girl's father, lives at 522 West Superior street, and she is also survived by two sisters and a brother, living at Ely. The funeral will be held at Thomson.

Dies of Diphtheria.
Agnes, the little daughter of William F. McDonald, died at St. Mary's hospital yesterday of diphtheria, after a short illness. The funeral was held privately yesterday afternoon.

Will Visit His Farm.
W. T. Bailey has gone to his farm at Hillsboro, N. D., where he has a large farm. He has 3,600 acres in wheat and 400 acres in oats, and the crop is said to be very heavy.

Former Resident Returns.
C. S. Murray, formerly engaged in the lumber business in Duluth, has returned after about a year in the South looking over timber interests. He is a guest at the Spalding.

Outing of Jobbers.
The August meeting of the Jobbers' Credit association will include a dinner and outing tonight at the Spirit Lake branch of the Duluth Boat club. The members and their friends, including members of the office forces of the different houses, will assemble at the union depot and take the 5:30 train to Spirit Lake this evening. The return trip will be made by boat. Dinner will be served at the branch and there will be dancing in the new pavilion.

Begins Sentence.
David Mattich, convicted of manslaughter in the second degree for implication in the killing of Rodi Donjonevich, April 26, for which he was sentenced to serve twenty years in the state penitentiary, was taken to Stillwater yesterday by Sheriff Bates.

Two Men Injured.
Constance Dalley and C. R. Kell were injured in a premature explosion of a dynamite charge on the Wisconsin Central work at Eleventh avenue west Saturday. The injuries were not very serious in either instance, Dalley was taken to St. Mary's hospital with a badly mangled arm, and Kell was removed to his home in the west end. His injuries are of a minor character. Several other workmen had narrow escapes from flying pieces of rock.

Railroad Men's Picnic.
The railroad men's picnic at Lester park Saturday was largely attended. About 700 employes of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad spent the day at the park. A special train brought them down in the morning from Two Harbors, the return trip being made at 11 o'clock at night.

Prospects Bright.
J. M. Hannaford, vice-president of the Northern Pacific railroad, who was in the city Saturday, states that the prospects for a good Northwestern wheat crop are very good. Mr. Hannaford also states that he believes that the prices will be good. The official says that the westerly movement of coal is light, not comparing with the volume that had been moved at this time last year. He says that dealers may be caught unprepared unless they place their orders in the immediate future.

Diplomat Here.
F. Von Stumm, third secretary of the German embassy at Washington, was at the Spalding last evening en route to the Yellowstone National park. Mr. Von Stumm has just paid a visit to the mines on the Mesaba range and expressed himself as surprised at the magnitude of the operations. He stated that he had never seen anything approaching the tremendous industrial operations and that he was sure that no place else in the world carried on mining on such a scale.

Change of Venue.
Arguments for a change of venue in the case of Anton Gleissner vs. Percy Christopher, a restaurant keeper, were heard before Judge Ensign today. Gleissner wants the case taken before the Ramsey county courts.

Ask For Reversal.
The attorneys for the Pitt Iron Mining company and John Eastman, co-defendants in the suit brought against them by Tony Pintar for $25,000 damages, filed notice with the clerk of the district court today that on next Saturday, at the special term of court, they would appear to argue for a verdict in favor of the defendants, in spite of the verdict for $7,000 rendered for the plaintiff by the jury. The erroneous admission of certain evidence is argued as a reason for the judgment asked.

Ordered to Pay Himself.
W. A. Cant today filed an order authorizing W. W. McMillan to pay to himself $500 for services rendered as assignee of the American Carbolite company, insolvent.

Herald Excursions Tomorrow.
Up the river on the Newsboy at 9 a. m. and on the Mascotte at 2 p. m. Down the lake for thirty miles on the America at 4 p. m. Tickets for the three excursions are now on sale at The Herald, and must be bought in advance, as the number to be sold is limited.

Must Leave Town.
Marcel Devel, a young French woman, was arraigned in police court this morning on a statutory charge. She was fined $50 and costs, or sixty days in jail, but was allowed to go under suspended sentence on condition that she leave town immediately.

Examination Thursday.
Ray Nichols, Burt Moore and Byron Shreve, arrested on a charge of swindling a Wisconsin farmer out of $20 in a local pool hall Saturday, were arraigned in municipal court this morning. They asked for an examination, and it was set for next Thursday, at 10 o'clock in the morning.

City Flag Design.
A letter containing much bad grammar and poor spelling, suggesting the design for a city flag, was received by Mayor Haven from Phillips, Wis., this morning. No name was signed to the communication. The writer suggested a circular group of the flags of all nations against a field of red and white stripes, and said, such an emblem would attract attention from all the "Wourld."

Burned Wheat Responsible.
An investigation conducted by the city authorities has shown that foul odors in the neighborhood of Garfield avenue recently come from the burned wheat on Rice's point, and not from the city incinerator, as was at first reported.

Garbage Collection.
Mrs. Baldwin, health inspector, today reported to Mayor Haven that she found people in her district anxious for a systematic collection of garbage, either by the city or under its directions, and says the public generally is willing and glad to pay a reasonable amount for such service. The mayor will have his new garbage ordinance ready for the council next Monday.

Petition for Sewer.
Property owners interested, this morning petitioned the board of public works for a sanitary sewer on West Third street, from Thirty-ninth avenue west to Thirty-fourth avenue west, then down Thirty-fourth to First street, and east on First street to the outlet sewer on Thirtieth avenue west. The estimated cost of the improvement is $10,242.

Albenberg Buys It.
M. C. Albenberg has bought the Spalding haberdashery and it is closed today, a force of clerks being busy taking inventory.

Breol Drops Action.
The case against Ferrante Cassimir, charged with abduction, was dismissed in police court this morning. Cassimir is the man who eloped with Rose Breol, a 14-year-old Italian girl, two weeks ago. The father of the girl says he is reconciled to the marriage and will trouble the young people no longer.

Knights to Picnic.
The joint annual picnic of the Duluth and Superior councils of the Knights of Columbus will be held Wednesday at Fond du Lac. The members and their friends and families will go up the river on the Newsboy, leaving the Lake avenue dock at 9 a. m. The officers of the Duluth lodge, who have charge of the arrangements, are Dr. E. W. Fahey, Frank O'Brien, John Murray, Justin Zuger and W. L. Smith.

PERSONAL

L. J. Hopkins is in the city from Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hunter have returned from a very enjoyable lake trip. They visited relatives in New York, Buffalo and Toronto.

O. G. Olson, president of the board of public works, is spending a few days at Isle Royale.

Dr. W. H. Magie, W. E. Morrow, E. H Windom and E. L. Leithhead, returned from a fishing trip to Trout lake.

SPAIN TO RESTORE FORESTS.

Chicago Tribune: Spain needs trees and purposes, if suggestions are executed, to grow forests of pulpwood and other quick growing specimens of forest timber. Spain is as large as Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia, Virginia and North Carolina, but its forests have but one-fourth the extent of West Virginia alone, and much of these are only scrub thickets of poor kind.

The country's population is thought not to exceed one-third what it once was and could be again. Much of the denuded land is absolutely barren, with a red rock laid bare where agriculture once flourished. Hills whose rounded forms indicate they once supported forests are bald and dry now and without inhabitants.

In some localities peasants with hammers pulverize rocks and make little patches of soil for gardens. At present the most valuable forest product is cork, the annual output being 30,000 tons. The cork forests are going the way of all the other Spanish forests, and for the same reason, want of care.

Foresters declare there is no reason for Spain not being able to do what her next door neighbor, France, has done, cover her barren places with groves and thus restore the soil, abate floods, mitigate droughts, provide employment for many and furnish raw materials for factories.

OWLS TO KILL OFF SPARROWS.

Philadelphia Record: They have discovered a way to thin out the obnoxious English sparrows in Erie. Two owls which had taken possession of one of the squirrel houses in a tree on the courthouse lawn at Erie have launched forth into the sparrow eradication business.

Janitor Avery noticed that the number of birds was rapidly diminishing and Monday discovered the secret when he had occasion to look into the squirrel house. He found the place literally filled with bones and feathers which formerly had constituted parts of the anatomies of sparrows.

NICELY OUT OF A BAD MESS.

City Assessor Jackson seems to be aggrieved by the indirect attacks that have been made upon his assessment of the city of Duluth, which has been rejected by the county board of equalization. Perhaps he has been over-abused; there is no harm now in saying so, anyway, as the city is comfortably extricated from its recent embarrassing dilemma.

Mr. Jackson's fault consisted in his dogged persistence in pursuing the delightfully absurd plan of lowering everybody's taxes by raising everybody's assessed valuation; a plan which, in view of the fact that not only would just as much money be drawn from the tax-payers for city purposes, but that the increased valuation would make the people of Duluth pay $50,000 or $60,000 more of state and county taxes, is very much like raising yourself by your boot straps or making yourself rich with stage money. This plan was pursued in spite of the fact that it was repudiated by practically all Duluth interests. The entire amount of city revenue raised by taxation is about $400,000, and it was absurd to add to this $60,000 more by an increase in valuations and imagine that taxpayers were being benefitted. As The Herald has often said, the only right way to lower tax rates is by reducing expenses; though where particular pieces of property are put on the tax rolls after being omitted, or are given legitimate raises after being under-assessed, those who have been bearing an unfair share of the burden are relieved. In this case no such thing was done. It being impossible to make a proper reassessment of Duluth property, arbitrary raises were made, and many of them hit the homes of workingmen in the West end and West Duluth.

In taking the figures of two years ago, and providing proper increases in the business districts, on the water front, in the fancy residence portions of the East end, and in the steel plant sections, where there have been real increases in values, County Auditor Halden and the county board of equalization did the very best possible thing, and they are to be congratulated upon their good judgment and skill in getting the city out of a very bad hole

All of which emphasizes once more the fact that Duluth needs a complete revaluation of its property. This will take time and will cost money, but it will be worth both time and expense. In order to be complete and just, it should be begun at once, or as soon as may be, and provision should be made for giving the city assessor competent expert assistance.

No revaluation of Duluth property can be made from the assessor's office; and any attempt to bring the city's valuations to a proper level by arbitrary increases over wide areas in particular sections, such as was attempted in this case, must involve serious injustice.

What Duluth needs is a complete revaluation of all its real estate, from one end of the city to the other, a thing that has not been done in years, in spite of the many changes that have taken place in the city as a whole and in particular sections. Until such revaluation is made, a thoroughly just and completely satisfactory assessment is absolutely impossible. Providing for it, therefore, is one of the most important duties before the city authorities.

AN UNWORTHY APPEAL.

In the southern part of the state a member of the last Minnesota house of representatives is making an appeal for re-election upon the ground that he had a large part in defeating the demands of Northern Minnesota for a reapportionment of legislative representation, which would have reduced the representation of Southern Minnesota and increased that of Northern Minnesota if it had gone through.

As The Herald has shown before, Minnesota is greatly in need of a reapportionment. Since the last one was made Southern Minnesota has not increased greatly in population—parts of it have decreased—while Northern Minnesota has increased amazingly. Yet there has been no change in representation, and the southern third of the state, a minority both in area and population, elects a majority of both branches of the legislature.

This incident in Southern Minnesota indicates again the need that Northern Minnesota send to the legislature the very strongest men it can induce to run. What it lacks in numerical strength must be made up by an increase in the individual capacity of its representatives. Reapportionment is a crying need, but it will never come about unless Northern Minnesota sends men who by their personal weight can make such a fight for it as to overcome the voting strength of the southern third of the state.

The country newspaper in which the candidate referred to makes his appeal for re-election upon the unworthy ground that he fought and defeated a proposal to deal fairly and justly with the northern part of the state puts the case frankly. It says: "The census of 1905 shows great increase in population in the large cities and in the northern and western parts of the state, while in this county—Fillmore—and in Southern Minnesota there has been a marked decrease; so much so that it the state were now to be reapportioned according to population the counties of Houston and Fillmore would, together, have but one senator and Fillmore but one representative." Then this newspaper goes on to show how Burdette Thayer, member of the house from that district, fought reapportionment to the last ditch, and won. While Mr. Thayer no doubt did his part, others assisted him, and the failure of reapportionment was due not only to his opposition, but to the opposition of other senators and representatives from Southern Minnesota, and, disgraceful though it is, to the opposition of senators from Northern Minnesota who feared that their terms would be cut in two if there were a reapportionment.

The ideas expressed by this candidate and his newspaper supporter do not, we believe, fairly express the sentiment of the people of Southern Minnesota; but they do show what kind of injustice Northern Minnesota has to contend with in the legislature: injustice so great and so prejudiced that it often seems as though Northern Minnesota were not actually a part of Minnesota, but some far-off colony, to be drawn upon for as much taxes as possible and to be given as little as possible in return.

Northern Minnesota can successfully combat this injustice only by sending to the legislature its strongest men. If it neglects to do this, if it contents itself with the mediocre talent that usually offers itself in many districts, it will fail again at the next session of the legislature, and it will be its own fault.

THE NEW SENATE ATMOSPHERE.

Recently The Herald published a dispatch from the temporary Republican national headquarters at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., near the golf links, which called attention in a striking manner to the wakefulness of the people, and to the manner in which the rank and file of the parties, with the notable assistance of primary election laws which include advisory popular nominations of United States senators, are improving the complexion of the United States senate.

In nearly every recent instance in which the people have had any show at all, reactionary and standpat senators have been defeated and progressive men put into their places, or nominated for their places. The most conspicuous failure was the indorsement of Senator Hopkins, a notorious reactionary, by the Republicans of Illinois; but even here there is yet hope for his defeat. His plurality was small, and the combined vote of his two opponents was many thousands greater than his. Besides, an attempt will be made to carry the fight into the legislature on the ground that Hopkins' plurality was secured in Democratic districts that will not return Republican member of the legislature. The sympathies of the people are thoroughly enlisted, in this fight, against Hopkins.

The defeat of Senator Long by Bristow in Kansas; the defeat of Senator Kittredge in South Dakota by Governor Crawford; the prospective election of Cummins in Iowa to take the place made vacant by Senator Allison's death; the nomination of Brown in Nebraska and the turning of Senator Burkett of that state from standpatism to progressiveness: the presence in the senate of Bourke of Oregon, Beveridge of Indiana and Borah of Idaho, all progressives: these things point a tendency of the times that is going to bring about a marked change in the senate.

These are all Republicans, and since the Republican machines in nearly all of these states have always been strongly influenced by corporations, the success of independent men is particularly comforting because it marks the decline of the power of selfish interests. The people are interested in legislative and executive results. They do not care a fig, when you get right down to it, whether these results are secured by men calling themselves Democrats or men calling themselves Republicans. What the people want is results, and they are learning how to vote for the men that are likely to get results instead of selling their independence and becoming mere cogs in the machines that have controlled both branches of congress under the Republican rule. If Republicans will do the right thing, this country will remain Republican; if the Republicans fail, Democrats will be called to their places; and if the Democrats then should fail results will still come if the people have to form a new party or take up the Hearst or the Debs party as a more promising implement.

Every exchange of a progressive for a reactionary in the senate, whether they are Republicans or Democrats, is a distinct victory for the people and an encouragement to carry on the fight for a rule of the people in the people's interests.

IS THE "LID WAVE" WORLD WIDE?

A few days ago in London the earl of Bessborough, presiding at the annual meeting of a hotel company, made the statement that the receipts from the sales of wines and liquors in the great chain of hotels owned by the corporation had decreased one-half within the last three years.

What does this mean? Has the temperance wave, which has been so conspicuous in this country in the past few years, become a thing of world wide scope? Is the population of the world turning from the wine when it is red or any other color, and flocking to find seats upon the waterwagon?

No "lid" movement, no sumptuary laws, no local or county option or prohibitory laws are responsible for this British decrease in the consumption of drink. The company's hotels are scattered all over the United Kingdom. They are found at most of the fashionable watering places and in the city of London, and they represent the largest amount of capital anywhere employed in such enterprises. If the bars are losing patronage it is not because of the operation of the law, but because the patrons are not drinking so much as they used to drink. Included in the traveling public which used to swell the bar receipts of these hotels, and which has lately cut them in two, are many Americans. Indeed, Americans are in a very large proportion and are counted upon for more than their proportion of the profits. So it may be, after all, that this European condition is a mere reflection of the reign of soberness that has been visiting this country.

Yet at the same time it has been made reasonably clear in the past few months that the wave of reform that shut so many saloons in so many different states in this country has reached its height, if it has not begun to subside. Such movements are always wave-like; and like waves, they may disappear, or seem to disappear. They have their culmination, and after that they break and subside; though the next wave may be bigger and more destructive still. But the defeat of prohibition in several states has shown that the movement is certainly not so strong as it was. If it had kept on at its old gait, beyond any question all but a small fraction of the states would have been dry inside of five years.

Of course the whole thing is experimental. Prohibition that does not prohibit is infinitely worse than license; anybody on either side of the controversy will admit that much. Under license saloons are legally recognized and regulated, and they contribute revenue needed for that purpose. Under futile prohibition, they are not legally recognized, too often they are not regulated, and they yield no public revenues. The question of whether or not prohibition will prohibit depends upon public sentiment. If sentiment is strong for prohibition, it will be as effective as any law; if sentiment for prohibition is weak, the law will be disregarded, and evils worse than those under license are inevitable. It is yet to be determined whether the people have reached the stage where they will see that prohibitory laws are enforced, and if they have not, many of those already adopted will be repealed.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Did you ever notice the effect music has upon eating?" asked an elderly man with gray side whiskers, at the St. Louis last evening, during the dinner course when the orchestra was playing a classical selection. No one at the table seemed to know the precise effects of music upon the digestion, so it was up to the elderly gentleman to explain.

"In the first place," he began, "ragtime music is very bad for the digestion. I think an international petition should be circulated asking that ragtime music be forbidden until after the coffee or liquor is served. Its effects upon the national temper and nervous system cannot be overestimated. Everybody has an inclination to keep time to music. Well, when the orchestra plays ragtime the diners usually keep time with their jaws, with the result that we have developed a ragtime digestion.

"See that man over there," and the elderly man pointed in the direction of an individual whose mind was absorbing the music and whose fork hand was keeping time with the lively strains of the music, "that chap is eating to ragtime. His fork is moving faster than it should, and his digestion is keeping pace with the lively maneuvers of the fork hand.

"Now, suppose the orchestra played a Strauss waltz. You see the result would be changed quite materially. The digestion would be given an opportunity to work between thrusts of the fork, the measured rytlum of the music allowing a gentle, undulating, waving movement of the fork hand, and consequently allowing the digestive organs to work in a calm and effective manner.

"Then there are other effects of music upon diners. Ragtime music makes one want to move, dance or cakewalk. Eating is the last thing one thinks about, unless he is awfully hungry, when a good, lively, ragtime tune is struck up. But we have what we call the hungry music. That's the kind of music cafe managers should have the orchestra play as a prelude—if they are charging a la carte.

"You see, back in the days when composers and authors belonged to the garret-dwelling class, these people lived mostly for their art. You know, of course, that some of the greatest books and some of the greatest compositions were produced by men that were actually in want of the necessaries of life. You have, no doubt, read great novels where people starved almost to the last chapter. That was the natural feeling of the author reflected. It's the same way with music.

"I have listened to music that made me feel ravenous. I didn't understand the thing at first, but finally, after deep pondering over the matter, carefully studying the music and my own feelings, then looking up some history on the music and the chap who wrote it, the light burst in upon me; it was that starved feeling that had crept into the hungry chap's music.

"The picture came to me, quite complete. Here I was, sitting at a table, not hungry but eating because habit is strong and man loves company. Suddenly the strains of a peculiar, pathetic piece is struck up by the orchestra and the craving of the appetite begins to be felt. Then I have a mental picture of that starved, long-haired chap, in the days of long ago in his attic, with the proverbial crust of bread eaten, pouring his starved soul into that composition. That piece always makes me hungry. I should be collecting royalties, or commissions rather for my services in telling several cafe managers of the peculiar charms of that composition.

"But it is really so. The mental attitude of the author is passed on to the diner. Ragtime music is an outburst of the fullness of living, the joy of the senses. It should be played with the after dinner cup of coffee. The fancy, hungry music, that comes from the soul of the starved man and sings the song of want, acts upon the appetite. That is the kind of music that will promote a heartier national appetite, will sweeten the national temper and will be much better for the digestion that the ragtime line of music."

Wagers are already being made at the Lenox hotel on the automobile race that is to be pulled off this week. Henry Ribenack is entry clerk and he promises to have a good field of starters lined up when the starter's gun send the chug wagons on their race for the loving cup offered by the Lenox boniface.

The race is open to Ford cars that do not exceed $1,000 in cost. They must be the regular cars, not stripped. The race will probably be for three miles, although some of the prospective contants, who believe that their machines go better after they get their second wind, are holding out for a longer distance.

Hunter C. Stallings, who drove his Ford runabout from Minneapolis to this city in state record time, will be one of the entries. M. M. Cohan of St. Louis, who accompanied Mr. Stallings on the Minneapolis-Duluth trip, will drive Henry Ribenack's car. Four or five more entries are in sight and the race promises to be a very exciting contest.

The lady at the cigar stand has—well, a lot of money and more promissory notes in her keeping, that is to be placed on the several contestants. The very air smells of gasoline. They are ready for the race, and every man in Duluth who owns a Ford cannot afford to miss entering in the races.

THE WEATHER.

Queer weather. Saturday to Monday. Saturday night the northeaster was still on, and it rained part of the night and was damp and foggy in the morning. Sunday forenoon the clouds vanished, and it turned uncommonly hot, with the temperature up to 80 degs. and made worse by humidity. In the evening a very appalling squall swept over the city from the north, rather an unusual quarter; and a strong wind, copious rain and brilliant lightning came with it. This morning it was clear, clean and cool, a fresh westerly wind tempering the sun's rays. The weather man looks for fair and cooler weather tonight and tomorrow.

A year ago today it was clear, cool and fresh.

The sun rose this morning at 5:08 and sets tonight at 7:16, making 14 hours and 8 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "During the past twenty-four hours a low pressure area of moderate strength moved its center from Manitoba to Eastern Ontario, its easterly advance being attended by thundersqualls and light to copious showers in the Lake region, Upper Mississippi valley and New England states, and high temperatures in the Ohio Valley states. Light rains also resulted in the Southwest in connection with the depression central over Arizona. A high pressure area overlying the Dakotas is attended by cooler and generally clear weather over most of the Northwest. Fair weather is indicated for tonight and Sunday."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Appleton Press (Rep.): "Divided responsibility" may be a good topic for campaign talk, but we don't think there is much in it. Every officer's duties are clearly outlined, and he can not shift the responsibility, and there is much less liability of corruption where the different officers of the state are in the hands of men from different political parties. How well "divided responsibility" works when divided between two such able and patriotic men as Governor Johnson and Attorney General Young is strongly exemplified by the vigorous administration of the law which the state has recently enjoyed.

Royalton Banner: How about furnishing every country paper in the state with weekly budgets of the bills introduced in the next legislature? Someone has made this suggestion, and it looks good to us. Such a course would arouse the public to an interest in what was being enacted by the solons and make the latter a little more careful in their deliberations. The dailies are now the only source of such knowledge, and their reports are often colored to suit the "powers that be."

Anoka Free Press: "And they (the Independent Republicans) have the impudence to assert that their individual judgment as to the best man is better than that of all the rest of the Republicans in the state."—J. F. Jacobson in his "keynote" speech at West Duluth last week.

As if "all the rest of the Republicans in the state" had anything to do with the fixing up of the slates to be voted for! Or as if the voter did not have the right to exercise his "individual judgment as to the best man" without being insulted by some impudent office-seeker who is thick-headed enough to imagine that a nomination carries with it a mortgage on the "individual judgment" of the party voters.

New Ulm Review: Candidate Jacobson complains that Minnesota spends more on its schools than any other Republican state in the Union. And then to think that in a commonwealth where so much is spent for education the great Republican party should have to tolerate "Jake!"

Anoka Union: The Republicans in several of the congressional districts in Minnesota had best take care who they nominate for congress, or the Democrats in the general election in November will defeat the Republican candidate.

Willmar Tribune: Joel Heatwole believes that the county option issue will survive, in spite of the fact that the Republican state convention sat down on it with all the weight of the brewery agents and corporation tools present in the aforesaid gathering. Joel is right. When the people really want a thing they will get it, though the interests and their political henchmen may delay action for some time. There is a mighty host of temperance men in Minnesota who want county option and who are more for that issue than for party name.

Albert Lea Standard: The action of the bankers at their recent convention at Duluth in adopting resolutions against the guarantee of bank deposits and against postal savings banks is being widely criticised, and is condemned as being narrow, short-sighted and unprogressive, and subservient to the demands of the big Eastern banking octopus which insists upon extending its enormous privileges and powers at the expense of the smaller banks, of depositors, and thus regardless of the interests of the country at large. It certainly is to be regretted that any bankers of this state have been led mistakenly to antagonize not only their own interests, but that of those they faithfully seek to serve.

Hibbing Tribune: What's the matter with the Minneapolis Journal that it does not cut a few didos over Bob Dunn's connection with the nomination of Jacobson.

An Independent Year.

New York Sun: So far as the Republicans are concerned, and leaving out of consideration the participation of Democrats in Republican primaries for the purpose of putting up candidates easy to beat, the Illinois situation is not without value for admonition and reproof and in a large and impersonal sense of encouragement. The fierce heat of rage between Deneenites and Yatesites may be thought to make the chances of the Illinois state ticket doubtful and give hope to the Bryanites, probably without reason. The more work for the Illinois Republicans and Mr. Hitchcock. It is clear, however, that when Republicans are ready to fly at one another's throat, even though a national election is coming, there is no absorbing interest in the national issues. The abstention of such numbers of voters of the primaries enforces the same conclusion, whatever unfavorable light it may be thought to throw upon the primary system itself.

The considerable vote received in Cook county by the ridiculous Billy Mason for Senator, the evident fact that Congressman Foss, had begun his campaign earlier, would undoubtedly have had a majority over Senator Hopkins, who was never any thing but one of the most mechanical of the machine politicians; these things seems to show that in Illinois as elsewhere the machine is tottering and the instinct of political independence is strong.

These tendencies are to be found in a greater or less degree in most states. They are especially salient in New York. Pre-eminence of local issues or candidates, very mild and far away dispassionate concern for the national election—too early for that, to be sure—a contempt for bosses and a sort of passion for voting as you please.

"Yes," answered the promoter absentmindedly; "especially investors."

Chicago Herald-Record: "How long does your wife expecte to remain away?"

"Well, she took six trunks with her, so I suppose she will be gone about a month and a half."

Philadelphia Press: "My dear," began Mrs. Spenders, tentatively, "would you consider an opal unlucky?"

"I would," replied her husband promptly, "if I got a bill for one and had to pay it."

"O," she exclaimed, "I'm so glad I ordered a diamond instead."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Hub, you drink beer in summer to cool you off, and in winter to warm you up. I call that inconsistent.

"You have no criticism coming to you eh? Don't you wear a peekaboo all the year 'round."

Houston Post: "Son, I am afraid your wife is a little bit extravagant, is she not?"

"Nope, not a little bit."

"But $200 for one dress! Don't you consider that a little bit extravagant?"

"Nope, not a little bit."

Cleveland Plaindealer: "Here's a fellow who thinks he has discovered that love stories never start in the winter time."

"That's easily understood. It would never do to say the heroine had cold feet."

Chicago Tribune: "Have you got any—any typewriter exterminators?" asked the small boy.

"What!" exclaimed the salesgirl, aghast.

"Typewriter exterminators, I think that's what they told me to get. Anyhow it was something that—"

"Do you mean typewriter erasers?"

"Well, maybe that was it, but what's the difference? Ain't they the same? I want a dime's worth of 'em'

Love's Language.

How does Love speak?
In the faint flush upon the tell-tale cheek
And in the pallor that succeeds it; by
The quivering lid of an averted eye—
The smile that proves the parent to a sigh
Thus doth love speak

How does Love speak?
By the uneven heart-throbs, and the freak
Of bounding pulses that stand still and ache
While new emotions, like strange barges, make
Along the channels their disturbing course;
Still as the dawn, and with the dawn's swift force,
Thus doth love speak.

How does Love speak?
In the avoidance of that which we seek
The sudden silence and reserve when near—
The eye that glistens with an unshed tear—
The joy that seems the counterpart of fear,
As the alarmed heart leaps in the breast,
And knows, and names, and greets its god-like guest,
Thus doth love speak.

How does Love speak?
In the proud spirit suddenly grown meek—
The haughty heart grown humble; in the tender
And unnamed light that floods the world with splendor
In the resemblance which fond eyes trace
In all fair things to one beloved face;
In the shy touch of the hands that thrill and tremble
In looks and lips that can no more dissemble.
Thus doth love speak.

How does Love speak?
In the wild words that, uttered, seem so weak
They shrink, ashamed, to silence; in the fire,
Glance strikes with glance, swift flashing high and higher,
Like lightnings that precede the mighty storm;
In the deep, soulful stillness; in the warm
Impassioned tide that sweeps through throbbing veins,
Between the shores of keen delights and pains;
In the embrace where madness melts in bliss,
And in the convulsive rapture of a kiss.
Thus doth love speak.

Training the Audience.

Everybody's Magazine: The enterprising manager of a little lyric theater in Northern Pennsylvania believes in profiting by the misfortune of others. One day he displayed the following sign in his house:

Do Not Smoke.
Remember the Iroquois Fire.

So great was the efficacy of this that before the end of the week he put up another:

Do Not Spit
Remember the Johnstown
Flood.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

MRS. M. HURD IS LOCATED

Runaway Grand Forks Woman is Found by Crookston Police.

Trying to Support Self and Child, and Refuses to Return.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 17.—Mrs. Mabel Hurd, wife of H. D. Hurd of Grand Forks, who disappeared from her home last Thursday night with her 14-months old baby, causing something of a sensation was located in this city yesterday by Chief Eck. Her husband arrived Saturday evening in a search for her, and reported the case to Chief Eck and a short search located the missing woman and her child at the home of Mrs. Zeb Lusien. The woman with her child arrived here Friday, and the first night was spent at the Columbia hotel, after which she applied to Mrs. Lusien, stating that she was out of funds and wanted a place to sleep for a few days till she got work. She was also accompanied by a young girl 13 years of age, who secured a position in the Golden Grain Cracker factory, and the two figured they could eat on $5 a week if they had a place to sleep.

Mr. Hurd is heart broken. The young woman was located Saturday night but as the house was dark Chief Eck advised him not to arouse them. Sunday morning he called and his wife, who is a handsome young woman not more than 20 or 22 years of age saw him. He pleaded with her to return but she was obdurate. Finally in despair he asked her for the child, but she said she would drown herself and the child before she would allow the little one to be taken back if Hurd's mother was to be given the custody of it. She finally agreed to allow him to take the baby on his promise to give it into the keeping of his aunt at Grand Forks and he departed Sunday evening with the little babe for his home at Grand Forks.

Rumor claims there is a man in the case and some color is given to his story from the fact that Mrs. Hurd asked Chief Eck to locate a certain Grand Forks man, who had been here a short time ago. The woman will be closely watched and Hurd's course will be determined by the manner in which she conducts herself.

SECRET DIES WITH HIM.

Victim of Brutal Attack Dies Without Regaining Consciousness.

Little Falls, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.) — William Golnik, who was attacked Thursday night while in bed and beaten into insensibility by intruders who were presumably after money, died without regaining consciousness. His skull was crushed in with some sharp tool. It is thought by the physicians that the instrument used was either a hatchet or riveting hammer.

No arrests have been made, but suspecion falls heavily on three people, and an arrest will probably be made tomorrow.

The murdered man was born in Germany fifty years ago and has lived here for nearly twenty years. He is survived by six children and a widow.

It was hoped that Golnik would regain consciousness so as to throw some light on the question and tell whether the parties implicated in the affair demanded money or not. He was never able to speak, however, after the affair, and died yesterday.

ENGINEER KILLED.

Barnesville, Minn., Aug. 17.—Frank Goodrich of this city, an engineer on a Great Northern work train, was killed near Moorhead Saturday night when his train collided with a switch engine. His fireman, Ed Murray, also of this city, was severely injured. The engineer of the switch engine received slight injuries.

TWO BIG EXCURSIONS.

International Falls Will Do Honors to Visitors.

International Falls, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to the Herald.)—During the next few weeks International Falls is going to be called upon to entertain two bodies of men who are in a position to give the town much valuable advertising. The first will be the Minneapolis real estate board, who will arrive here on the 19th on a special train and who will spend two days in this vicinity. The other will be the National Editorial association, which will hold its annual session in St. Paul and then tour Northwestern Canada, passing through here over the Rainy Lake road on the 25th. Nothing definite is known as to how long a stay the latter will make, but it will probably be but a few hours, and all of the entertainment they will require will be a committee to meet them and show them the falls and dam development.

MENOMINEE FAIR TO BE SPLENDID

Vice President, Several U. S. Senators and Other Attractions Booked.

Menominee, Mich., Aug. 17.—No efforts will be spared to make the coming county fair in this city the greatest event of its kind ever held in the upper peninsula. The various committees are now busy perfecting the plans.

Vice President Charles Warren Fairbanks has accepted the invitation of Editor R. M. Andrews of the Menominee Herald-Leader and will be present with United States Senators William Alden Smith of Michigan, Isaac Stephenson of Wisconsin and Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana. Governors Fred M. Warner of Michigan and Davidson of Wisconsin will also be present.

One of the features of the fair will be a competitive drill between Company L of this city, Company I of Marinette and Company M of Oconto. Brig. Gen. Robert Bates of the Michigan National Guard, with staff, will review the companies and will have as guest some of the high military officers of the Wisconsin National Guard, including Quartermaster General Hodgins and Lieut. Col. Greene.

The Upper Peninsula Press association will hold their annual meeting in this city at this time. The Upper Country Press club has also signified its intention to be present, and it is possible that the Upper Peninsula Improvement association, backed by many of the prominent residents of Northern Michigan, will be organized and elect officers.

The races will be the greatest ever held north of Milwaukee. Two thousand five hundred dollars in prizes are offered and entries are made daily by some of the fastest horses in the country.

POLK WANTS JOHNSON.

Although Uninstructed, Delegates Strong for Executive.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—While Martin O'Brien, who heads the Polk county delegation to the Democratic state convention, will without doubt do all that he can to stem the tide of popular sentiment that is demanding the nomination of Governor Johnson for a third term, asked to do so by the governor, he will be unable to handle the delegation, which is practically unanimously in favor of Johnson's renomination.

While the delegation was not instructed, the men selected are practically every one enthusiastic Johnson men, who believe that he is the only man who can lead the Democratic forces to victory against Jacobson, and practically the entire Ninth district will be lined up in the same way.

FLESH TORN FROM ARM.

Bindery Man Sustains Serious Injury in Runaway.

Hillsboro, N. D., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—While driving a binder for Anton Solberg, who lives about nine miles northwest of Hillsboro, Gust Melum was thrown off the seat onto the platform of the binder, and the flesh of one arm was badly torn and cut by the sickle.

There were three binders in line. Melum was driving the second one in line, and Solberg was on the third binder, Solberg touched one of his horses, a young colt, with the whip, and the team started to run. The driver, being unable to hold them, tried to turn them out of the way of the team ahead. The end of the platform hit Melum's rig with such force that both drivers were thrown from their seats, but Solberg escaped with a few slight bruises. Both teams ran a few rods farther and stopped. The binders were in running gear and made so much noise that Melum could not hear Solberg shout to him to look out. The injured man is now resting easily in the hospital.

MURDER, NOT SUICIDE

Latest Theory Respecting Death of Babe Wright.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—That Beulah Wright, nicknamed "Babe," was poisoned by Mrs. Mary Wright, her adopted mother, in a fit of anger and jealousy, is the theory of State's Attorney Siver Serumgaard of Ramsey county, who is investigating the death of the girl on the farm near Derrick. Much depends on the analysis of the stomach of the deceased at the University of North Dakota medical department. The stomach has arrived from Devils Lake and Prof. Babcock will be able in a few days to tell what caused the death.

After a verdict of suicide had been found by the coroner's jury, State's Attorney Siver Serumgaard went to the King farm to look up the case. It was found that while the girl's lips had been burned by carbolic acid the inside of her mouth, back of the teeth had not been burned and a further investigation showed that none of the carbolic acid had been swallowed. The state's theory is that death was due to the girl having swallowed a narcotic or aconite.

AFTER ILLEGAL HUNTERS.

State Game Warden Smith of North Dakota is on Alert.

Minot, N. D., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—State Game Warden Smith has notified the deputy game wardens in Northwestern North Dakota to go the limit in enforcing the laws against shooting ducks and chickens out of season.

Although the season will open in the short time of two weeks, some of the people in Northwestern North Dakota are already getting anxious, and some arrests have been made already.

Game Warden Smith has a large force of deputies in the northwestern part of the state, where the game is exceptionally plentiful, and more arrests are expected daily.

BADGER STATE BANK CHANGED ITS OFFICERS.

Badger, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A change has taken place in the management of First State bank of Badger. Harold Thorson, vice president, sold out his stock in the bank to Israel and Peter Sjoberg, his associates, and the Sjoberg brothers became owners of all the stock. The new officers of the bank are: President, Peter Sjoberg; vice president, Israel Sjoberg; cashier, G. I. Brandt; directors, Israel Sjoberg, Peter Sjoberg, Laura Sjoberg and Christina Sjoberg.

The bank has increased its capitalization from $10,000 to $13,000, by creating a surplus fund of $3,000.

RESTORING PYTHIAN SHRINE.

Work at Eagle Harbor to Commence This Week.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The work of restoring the old schoolhouse at Eagle Harbor, where Justus H. Rathbone many years ago wrote the ritual of Pythianism, is to be started this week. Ira E. Randall of this city, the man who founded the Rathbone Memorial fund, and who has always been deeply interested in the restoration and preservation of the old schoolhouse, has been instructed by Grand Chancellor Carlton of Sault Ste. Marie to proceed with the necessary repairs.

Mr. Randall has engaged a prominent Houghton carpenter to go to Eagle Harbor and all of the material used will be shipped out of Houghton. Labor will be procured at the site. The plan is to reshingle the roof and repair the clapboards, while shutters will be placed on all of the windows. The cost of the repairs will amount to several hundred dollars, the expense to be borne by the grand lodge of Michigan, which is now the custodian of the schoolhouse.

MINOT PROHIBITS FIGHTS.

Minot, N. D., Aug. 17.—Lovers of the fistic sport in Minot are doomed to see no more pugilistic battles in the Magic city. City authorities have refused absolutely to sanction a battle between Curley Ullrich of Superior and Walter Whitehead of Duluth, who have been endeavoring to get a match here in the near future.

Sportsmen of the city brought the matter to the attention of the city officials in an endeavor to arrange for the battle, but were turned down hard and all action in regard to arranging the bout has been stopped.

LESS FISH IN LAKE SUPERIOR THAN IN LAKE ERIE.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lake Superior, although much larger, contains fewer fish than Lake Erie. This is the assertion of Prof. David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford university, who as a member of the international fisheries commission, is now concluding a tour of investigation of the Great Lakes region. Lake Superior is of exceptional depth, and its water is cold. Quite the contrary, Lake Erie is comparatively shallow and its water is comparatively warm, the conditions being such that it forms a vast spawning ground. The whitefish of the two lakes are of different varieties, Prof. Jordan says.

GIVES WIFE HIS PROPERTY.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Aug. 17.—George B. Earley, a former well known Wisconsin lumberman, against whom his wife recently began action for divorce, has deeded to her practically all his real estate in Wisconsin, located in Chippewa, Price, Sawyer, Rusk and Douglas counties. The deed contains the provision that his wife shall have two-thirds and his daughter one-third of the property. Mr. Earley resides in Los Angeles, Cal., having left his wife two years ago.

GIANT SNAPPING TURTLE.

Appleton, Wis., Aug. 17.—What is regarded as the largest and heaviest snapping turtle ever pulled from waters of the Fox in this vicinity fell victim to Edwin Hauert and Orville Oesterreich, who are camping near the Strobe resort. The boys discovered the turtle enmeshed in a set line and towed it to shore, where Otto Stroebe dispatched it with a rifle bullet. The turtle weighed a trifle less than fifty pounds and measured twenty-two inches across its shell.

EXPECT DULUTH PARTY.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. J. Wessinger of Duluth, chief engineer of the Oliver Mining company, will arrive in Houghton early this week, with a party of friends for a visit in the Copper country. Ten rooms have been engaged at the Douglass House for their accommodation.

CHILD KILLED BY MATCHES.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Following the recent death of a Copper country child, as a result of phosphoric poisoning, a fatality of identical kind is reported from St. Ignace. The latest little victim was the infant daughter of L. Healey. In both cases the children sucked the heads from a number of matches.

RAILROAD MEN ARE ORGANIZED

Join Hands to Oppose Candidates Who Are Against Railroads.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 17.—Three hundred railroad employes met in this city yesterday for the purpose of organizing an association to fight legislation hostile to the railroad interests. The men are of the opinion that by standing by the railroads in their fight with the people, they will be benefitting themselves. The meeting was the result of a call by John Lynch, an employe of the Chicago Great Western railway. Six representatives of the Nebraska State Railway Employes Protective association were present and explained the plan of organization and work. It is the intention to support only those condidates in the coming election who are favorable to the railroads.

After considerable discussion an executive committee was selected, with two members for each railroad, which will form locals on each railroad in the state. John Lynch will act as temporary chairman of this committee until the committee selects a permanent chairman. The committee is as follows:

Wisconsin Central, George Philipps, Frank Luxon; Burlington, M. A. Benedict; Omaha, John F. Collins, Fred Garner; Northern Pacific, H. H. Harris, J. H. Taylor; Great Northern, F. H. Devine, W. P. Mayer; Chicago Great Western, John Lynch, Ben Hodler; Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, George Voorhees, C. A. Lang; Minneapolis & St. Louis, C. H. Barton, C. E. Fitzgerald; Duluth & Iron Range, M. H. Blake, G. J. Miller; Duluth, Missabe & Northern, Fred Watson, George Dixon; The Soo line, I. Morrill.

The Nebraska railroad men who were here to assist in organizing the association will hold a similar meeting in Des Moines, Sept. 6 for the purpose of forming an Iowa state association.

"MERRIMAC" HOBSON WILL LECTURE IN CALUMET SEPT. 2.

Calumet, Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.) — Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson, hero of the Merrimac escapade, and congressman from Alabama, will speak in Calumet Wednesday evening, Sept. 2, under the auspices of the Calumet Women's club. He will lecture at the Calumet theater and it is expected that the house will be taxed to its capacity to hear the former well-known officer of the American navy. The subject of his address will be selected in a few days.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Crookston.—The Northern Pressed Brick company is at the present time erecting another big kiln which will greatly increase the capacity of the plant. This will be the second large kiln that the company has erected the present season and it will be able to turn out more bricks than almost any other company in the Northwest.

Long Prairie.—It has been decided to hold the county fair on Friday and Saturday, September 11 and 12. It was at first planned to hold the fair in August, but certain attractions that were wanted could not be secured. The idea of holding two days' fair is being tried for the first time this season. It has been usual to have the fair last three days.

Warren.—Miss Anna Rosengren of Stockholm, Sweden, has arrived for a visit at the home of Mrs. Lewis Westman of this city and Mrs. Zherold of Viking, the latter being a childhood friend of Miss Rosengren is a teacher of drawing in a school of technology at Stockholm.

Pine City.—Mrs. Carrie E. Green, district president of the W. C. T. U., will be in Pine City Wednesday, Aug. 19, for the purpose of organizing a union here. A meeting will be held at the Presbyterian church at 1:30 p. m. and a short program given.

Fosston.—The one vacancy left in the faculty of the Fosston schools for this coming year has been supplied. Miss Claire Judge of Fargo, a graduate from the advanced course of the Moorhead Normal, will have charge of the grades formerly under the instruction of Miss Grace Walker.

Walker.—A. L. Hamilton, editor of the Aitkin Republican and candidate for the legislature from this district, arrived in town Thursday evening accompanied by his wife, and will enjoy the lake here for a few days, stopping at the Lakeview hotel.

Mankato.—City Engineer Haynes still refusing to resign, the council has taken steps to impeach him. The preliminaries were completed, and if the charges made are sustained, the office will undoubtedly be declared vacant.

Little Falls.—The street fair this year promises to be the best ever held in this part of the state. The amount of money and merchandise subscribed is large, which will insure prizes of very good proportion and an entertainment program that will be a hummer.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Houghton—Mrs. Annie Stockett, widow of the late John Stockett, and for upwards of forty years a prominent and highly respected resident of Houghton, died Thursday evening at her home on Quincy street, after an illness of several months. The deceased was 55 years of age and is survived by three sons and two daughters.

Hancock—Oscar Mondoux has been engaged as day clerk at the Hotel Scott, and assumed the duties of the position. Mr. Mondoux is from Chicago and was also connected with the Douglas house in Houghton for a time.

Laurium—J. E. Terry of Marengo, Ind., began a series of meetings for the Church of Christ Sunday evening at the Finnish Temperance hall. Mr. Terry has been in the Copper country before and his work has been greatly appreciated.

Hancock—Mrs. D. R. White and child of Winnipeg have arrived here for a visit with Mrs. White's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ruhl. Miss Lydia Wieder, who has been visiting Mrs. White at Winnipeg, returned with her.

Houghton—John J. Michels has been awarded the contract to erect the new Swift building on Shelden street. The contract price is said to be in the neighborhood of $25,000.

Calumet—Contractor Anderson has completed the work of excavating for the new Florida school, and the foundations are now being rushed. The carpentry work will be started this week.

Hancock—Eneas McCaulley was again honored by the state lodge of the Ancient Order of Hibernians at Marquette on Thursday by being reelected to the office of state secretary, in which capacity he has served so long and faithfully.

Calumet—The Calumet Gas company is making big preparations to increase the capacity and the quality of the gas service in Calumet at the present time. The company will likely succeed in its desire and will be able to provide for Calumet by early fall a gas service which should meet the needs of the community for years to come.

Hancock—Miss Emily J. Hackett, manager of the Western Union Telegraph company's local office, departed for Canada Saturday in response to a message announcing the serious illness of her mother.

Ontonagon—The annual picnic of the Methodist Sunday school was held in the pine grove. It was well attended, and all had a good time. After dinner had been served games were played, including a baseball contest.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Green Bay—The Twelfth regiment's annual reunion will be held here next Wednesday and Thursday, the arrangements being in charge of Lieut. O. Howe post, No. 124, G. A. R. A camp fire, boat ride and picnic supper are on the program.

Beaver Dam—The Rev. Neal Dodd, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church at Beaver Dam for the last year, and a graduate of Nashotah house, class of 1907, has just been appointed head master of the school maintained by the church at Honolulu by the Right Rev. Henry Bond Restrick, and will depart for the islands early in September.

Manitowoc—University day will be celebrated at the summer institute of teachers Aug. 13. Friday S. Y. Gillan of Milwaukee addressed the meeting. In the evening the teachers attended the Manitowoc County Historical society meeting. Prof. Frost of the University of Wisconsin will give a lecture on "Tuberculosis" on university day and will also have with him the tuberculosis exhibit.

Manitowoc—Liquor dealers were today notified that they must after Sept. 1 remove screens from windows and doors of saloons at midnight and not replace them until 5 o'clock in the morning. They must leave lights burning in their saloons in order that a view of the places can be had from the streets.

Albany—Mrs. Huldah Bell, aged 81 years, one of the oldest settlers in Green county, died here recently. Mrs. Bell was a personal friend of Senator La Follette, having known him from the time he was a baby.

Ashland—For the past week, Former Congressman Pratt of Iowa has been in the city, spending his vacation at Ashland and in the vicinity. Mr. Pratt is here to enjoy a vacation, and consequently he has avoided publicity, and has spent a considerable of his time on the water, and among the islands.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Minot, N. D.—Charged with assaulting a man who did not have any money to loan him, C. E. Solie was fined $15 and costs by Judge Murray.

Jamestown, N. D.—At the meeting of the county commissioners the following propositions were ordered submitted to a vote at the general election this fall: County fair appropriation, $1,700; herd laws; $20,000 for a county asylum for poor.

Grand Forks, N. D.—A message received from Mrs. George A. Bangs states that Mr. Bangs, who was operated on in Chicago, still continues to improve and is perhaps nearing recovery as rapidly as could be expected.

Bismarck, N. D.—Jack Wilson, a route agent, died in Glendive, Mont., as a result of the wreck of No. 2 recently near that point. He formerly lived in Bismarck and boarded with Mrs. McConville on Third street. His death in the accident was a shock to his friends in this city.

Grand Forks, N. D.—O. K. Waxvik has closed a deal for the purchase of a lot on South Fourth street, next to the Sorley block and just off DeMers avenue, from Mrs. Wittelshofer. The consideration was $6,500. Mr. Waxvik will build a handsome new block just as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made.

Minot, N. D.—It develops that William Barasenwic, the Russian who was shot by his son near Max, was killed in Ward county, not McLean county, as previously supposed. It is said that the shooting took place in Section 21, Township 151, Range 82. No warrant has been issued in Ward county, as far as is known.

Max, N. D.—A rural free delivery route, running north and east of Max, has been allowed by the postoffice department, and service on the same will be started in a short time. The route is thirty miles long and ninety-six patrons will be served.

Fargo, N. D.—A movement has been started to get a pardon for Frank Lake, the Fargo man who was sentenced to five years in the state prison for shooting a man named Chas. Mitchell in the leg about three years ago.

ITS ATTACK IS FUTILE

Torpedo Fleet Unable to "Capture" Ships of Naval Reserve.

Lively Incident of Maneuvers in Which Gopher is Active.

(By Special Staff Correspondent on Board The Gopher.)

South Manitou, Mich., Aug. 12:—(Special to The Herald.)—With every light extinguished, except the powerful searchers on the wheel-house, the torpedo boats made an attack on the steamer Gopher, Dorthea, Hawk, Don Juan de Austria and Yantic of the naval militia fleet Wednesday night, but it failed. The guns of the fleet drove the attacking forces off beore they had done any damage.

Of course, it was only a mimic engagement, but it was fought with enough excitement to satisfy a melodrama patron. The sight of "prop" men-of-war blowing each other to pieces are familiar enough sights on the stage, but itis something more thrilling to see real warships on a real sea blazing away, even if there are no bullets involved. The noise and the smoke are there.

Some of the boats used only one gun, but the entire battery on one side of the Gopher was fired and it was hard to realize that the flashing, smoke-surrounded fighter of tonight, was the same white, peaceful craft that lies at anchor most all summer off Park Point.

Watch For Torpedo Attacks.

Sundown this evening saw every vessel in the fleet lying idly at anchor, the officers smoking on the after-decks and the men bathing at the booms at the bow. At 9 o'clock, almost every light in the bay had been extinguished and alert human beings on every ship were waiting for the snippy but dangerous (in real warfare) torpedo boats to attack. The searchlight, on the very boat were playing here, there and everywhere.

At the guns, the men stood ready to fire at the moment of command and on the outer decks, stood the honest hands with Krag-Jorgensons, eager to open up on the foe. The command to fire did not come to them but gunners were pretty busy at two different times during the evening.

Commander Eaton and Lieut. Commander Scully directed the operations on the Gopher and in command of the different guns of the ship were Lieutenants Williamson, Kelly, Smith, Anderson and Ensign Nelson. Every man was at his post and the Minnesota boys acted splendidly during the engagement, which lasted more than an hour.

They handled their guns well and altogether made a showing which was in keeping with their performances ever since the maneuvers began.

This afternoon, the Minnesotans again distinguished themselves to the discomfiture of the other boats in the fleet. The occasion was the "man overboard' drill and took place during the general manuevers.

All the afternoon, the fleet waited for the signal, from the flagship, to launch their life-boats and go after the buoy. In exactly forty minutes from the flagship's signal, from each vessel.

The Gopher's life-boat crew, in command of Lieut. Kelly, was the first in the water and the first to regain its buoy. In exactly forty minutes from the time the signal came, the Gopher's boat had secured the buoy and in two minutes and twenty-five seconds from the time it left the ship's quarter deck, it was back there again, making the drill in quicker time than any other crew in the fleet. The Hawk, Cleveland's boat was a close second, although that boat promptly backed up to pick up its life boat, whereas the Gopher merely stopped her englines and waited for Mr. Kelly and his stalwart boatsmen.

"The Gopher made the best time," was the message which was flashed from the flagship this evening, regarding the "man overboard" drill.

This morning was spent in boat drills, nearly every gig, whaleboat and dingy in the fleet taking part in the evolutions and making a glorious sight for the fleet and the honest villagers who assembled on the shore to view the spectacle, by heck!

These manuevers furnish greatest excitement South Manitou has enjoyed since 1894, when a passenger steamer was wrecked on her shores.

"These here battles beats everything I ever see, even a circus I went to onct, over to Frankfort," observed a prominent club man and man about town of South Manitou, when interviewed in front of the "pustoffice," this evening.

"Guess that's about right," allowed another prominent citizen.

South Manitou is having quite a tmie entertaining the fleet. The metropolis is unable to spare more than six loaves of bread a day and these, the busy paymaster and commissary of the Gopher bargained for when the boat first came. But the fleet is not suffering from a lack of food. Hordes of small craft pester the eating departments of the different ships nearly to death, trying to sell them everything, from postal cards to whitefish. And by the way, the whitefish are very good.

South Manitou Hospitable.

But, what she lacks in "bread to spare," and other estables, South Manitou makes up in general hospitality. The local pool hall and soft drink emporium has a sign calculated to arouse to patronage of the sailor ashore. It enumerates the good things to be had there, and concludes with, "Come one, come all.'

The main street of the city is handsomely decorated. The visitors are given an opportunity, directly in front of the postoffice, to throw base balls at a colored person made of wood.

If successful in hitting the dusky one, the thrower is presented with a "Honey Boy" cigar, manufactured by the Lake Michigan Cordage company, ship chandlers. They are having a great vogue in South Manitou.

A party from the Gopher went ashore tonight and took in the South Manitou sights. Six prominent citizens met the Minnesotans at the dock, and "I swanned" and "by gummed" all over the place when they viewed Commander Eaton's gig, which is by all odds the trimmest small boat in the fleet.

At the postoffice, N. F. Hugo asked the postmaster whether the South Manitou Commercial club exchanged courtesies with the Duluth organization of the same name, but the postmaster's apprentice said the only organization of the kind which flourished in the place was the Ladies' Thursday Thimble Bee.

But South Manitou's lack of liveliness is not noticed in the general excitement and interest which the fleet exercises are provoking. There will be plenty of pleasure and amusement for officers and men after the Gopher leaves for Harbor Springs Friday afternoon.

They have worked hard ever since the maneuvers began and have made a better showing than any other militia ship, according to statements made at several different times by the commanding officer of the fleet, so when the "shore leave" comes at Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Charlevoix or Mackinac Island, the Duluth folks will take it with a feeling that they acquitted themselves nobly in the competitions with the Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland and Copper country militiamen.

Remember Duluth Girls.

In idle moments during the cruise, however, the Gophers have been thinking of the hotel verandahs and summer girls at some of the summer resorts mentioned above. They are singing a parody on a song from "The Ham Tree," however, the concluding line of which should allay the fears of the Duluth maidens who waved farewells from the piers and the aerial bridge last Saturday. It runs something like this:

"Mollie in Chicago,
Bessie in Toledo,
Bashful Nan from Harbor Springs,
In Mackinaw, Mollie Brown;
Pet from old Petoskey,
Hancock girls are frisky,
Sailors have sweet hearts where 'ere they roam,
But here's to the girl at home."

Two ships of the fleet will be inspected tomorrow morning, and in the afternoon there will be fleet maneuvers and boat races. The sham battle on land will take place Friday morning, and in the afternoon the entire fleet will set sail for Harbor Springs. The Gopher will probably spend Sunday there. What the movements of the fleet after that will be have not been announced yet from the flagship. The Yantic and Don Juan de Austria will leave, however, the Yantic going to the Superior ship yards to be overhauled.

Excellent Health Advice.

Mrs. M. M. Davison, of No. 379 Gifford Ave., San Jose, Cal., says: "The worth of Electric Bitters as a general family remedy, for headache, biliousness and torpor of the liver and bowels is so pronounced that I am prompted to say a word in its favor, for the benefit of those seeking relief from such afflictions. There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of." Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c.

MOTOR BOAT RUN DOWN; THREE PERSONS DROWNED.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Three persons were drowned in the Niagara river yesterday when a motor boat was run down by a pleasure barge. Mrs. Williams Pagels, Mrs. Charlotte Meyers and Raymond Pagels, 10 years old, were drowned.

Henry Shcauss, at the wheel of the motor boat, thought he could pass under the bow of the barge. When it was too late he tried to turn.

C. P. ROAD LOSES BY FIRES.

Winnipeg, Aug. 17.—The Canadian Pacific railroad's engine house and four locomotives at Minnedosa, Man., were destroyed by fire last evening. Minnedosa is 100 miles northwest of here on the Yorkton branch. The freight office, rolling stock and elevators were also destroyed. Minnedosa is a divisional point, and the fire occurring at this season of the year will seriously affect traffic.

HERALD BAND CONCERT DRAWS A RECORD-BREAKING CROWD TO LESTER PARK

PART OF THE BIG CROWD AT LESTER PARK SUNDAY.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

A meeting of the building committee for the new building of the Young Women's Christian association was held this noon at the association rooms. The members of the committee, Mrs. J. A. Watterworth, Mrs. Fred White, Mrs. J. D. Titcomb and Messrs. C. A. Claypool, W. A. McGonagle and A. W. Frick lunched at the rooms and the bids for the heating and lighting were considered. The steel and brick for the building are expected within a short time and the work will go on rapidly. One car of the brick has been shipped and is expected within a few days.

HOME WEDDING.

Miss Addie Blodgett Becomes Bride of P. C. Trumbull.

The wedding of Miss Addie M. Blodgett and Perry C. Trumbull took place this afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James Hanks of 808 East Third street. The wedding service was read at 2 o'clock by Rev. Alexander Milne of the Pilgrim Congregational church. The bride was attended by Miss Meinhart and the groomsman was Earl Hanks. The bride wore a gown of blue silk and carried American beauty roses and Miss Meinhart wore white and carried pink roses. Only members of the immediate family were present for the wedding. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Harriet Blodgett and is well known in Duluth. Mr. Trumbull and his bride will leave this evening on the Huronic for Detroit, where they will be at home.

Visits Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Considine are in the city today. Mrs. Considine was formerly Miss Bertha Hayden and is remembered to Duluthians as the charming little prima donna who sang here with the Northwestern Opera company several years ago. Mr. Considine is manager of the "In Old Kentucky" company and with his wife visits Duluth annually.

Return From East.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Pearson returned today from the East, where they have been several weeks. Mrs. Pearson was called there because of the serious illness of Mr. Pearson who suffered a stroke of apoplexy early in July, due to the intense heat and overwork. There was much concern among the scientists in the East over Mr. Pearson's condition as his investigations during the last few years along geological lines have attracted wide attention. He is slowly recovering.

Cotillion.

A cotillion will be danced at the Northland Country club Friday evening, at which the guests will be the members of the young married set. The cotillion will be led by E. P. Towne and the committee in charge is composed of Messrs. George Stone, William Dalrymple and Morton Miller.

Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Gauld have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Glenn Gauld to Edwin H. Windom of this city. The wedding will take place in the early autumn. Both Miss Gauld and Mr. Windom are well known in the city, Mr. Windom being with the Duluth Missabe & Northern railroad as claim agent.

Rustic Musicale.

The invitations for the rustic musicale which will be given Friday evening of this week at the Yacht club by pupils from the classes of Mrs. D. H. Day and George L. Tyler will be issued tomorrow.

Birthday Party.

The EVENING STORY

A Vengeance

By Frank M. Spaulding.

(Copyrighted. All Rights Reserved.)

When Pietro Borsini quarreled with his cousin Botta, Botta killed him in the manner of the Italians, and Fusell sent the barber Fusell to tell the news to Papa Borsini. And Fusell came away in fright when he saw the blazing eyes of old Dioniglo.

"Gentle Dioniglo," they called him, because he had a tender heart. He kept a wine shop near the Municipal bridge, and was known for his charity to the little boys at the orphanage of the Holy Father. All the loafers of the quarter loved him and cursed Botta for his evil. "How stupid to hurt the feelings of such a fine old fellow," they said to one another.

As they came from the funeral, the people stole glances after the bent, white-haired form of old Borsini, and whispered: "He will die of grief. It is a great pity that he is too old for vengeance."

When they passed the shop and found the shutters closed day after day, with Nicola Davio's puppies playing on the steps and the dust blowing into the corners, they said:

"Poor old Dioniglo, his heart is broken."

And all the while Botta swaggered and grew fat with glory.

But one day the shutters were opened, the puppies sent away and the door left ajar, so that one could see the mirrors and the kegs of rum, and more than all, Gentle Dioniglo himself, with his towel in his arm, and his fresh white apron. And the word went from one to another, until one by one all the topers came—all but one, and he was Botta. All day they came and went, and lounged and talked, and stole quick side looks at Papa Borsini, but not one thing could they learn. When the shop was closed they walked away, saying: "His heart is too gentle. He does not dream of vengeance."

And so it was for a week, when Botta himself came smiling and insolent and showing no fear. It was then that the old rum seller's lips grew white, and as he glared he snarled:

"Smile now, Botta, so that you may look pleasant when your time comes."

Botta laughed, but his eyes grew white underneath and his hand shook as he drank.

Again Botta came, laughing and jesting with his cronies, and winking when Gentle Dioniglo was not looking. But he grew silent when his uncle turned to him and said softly:

"Take care, my nephew; God has told me to kill you within two weeks."

And, on the night after two weeks, Botta was there again. And now, when his uncle came toward him, he drew back in affright and put a chair before him as a shield.

"Have no fear," said the old man, "I would have killed you last night, but God came to me in a dream and said, 'One week longer, Dioniglo.'"

All the evening Botta sat with his glass undrained, thinking sick thoughts, with sighs and furtive glances at gentle Dioniglo. For he was afraid. As he went home he said to himself, "It is not right that he should bring God into this business. Why does he not try to kill me, as any one else would do? I could defend myself then. As for his dreams—dreams—bah! But why does he speak of God?"

He did not appear at the wine shop for a long time, but stayed in his room whittling the carvings that he sold on the streets on the daytime. One day he stopped, for he found that always his figures took the look of old Borsini, and leered and laughed at him under the lamplight, and chilled his limbs.

In time the shadows in the room drove him to the wine shop. He drew courage from thinking, "Old Dioniglo has forgotten. He lies when he says that God is against me."

And when he came he grew bold, laughing and jesting as in the other times. In defiance, he waited until the others had gone, and then swaggered to the door. When old Dioniglo tapped him on the shoulder he turned in an instant, his knife in his hand. He thought, "It is now!"

But Dioniglo was looking upon him with eyes as soft as a nun's.

"Listen, Botta," he said, "God is merciful to you. On the night before your doom, he came to me in my sleep and said, 'Dioniglo the murderer of your son must live until the day of the Holy St. Peter. Until then he must live.'"

"But why do you not try now?" stammered Botta, the knife trembling in his hand. "Now!" and he clutched his uncle's arm.

"No!" said gentle Dioniglo, flinging Botta from him. "God has taken your strength from you and I could slay you now, as you slayed my poor Pietro. But God's will shall be done, and you must live until the day of St. Peter."

For a long time the topers did not see Botta.

"He stays locked in his room," said one. "And I saw him peering out one day with the look of a mad dog."

One day the barber, Fusell, came into the shop and said, "Have you heard the news, Papa Borsini? They have sent Botta to the insane asylum; you have lost your vengeance."

"Bah! What a blockhead you are!" answered gentle Dioniglo, and his eyes shone with triumph.

At the end of the week he sent 500 francs to the odphanage of the Holy Father.

"In the name of God, the avenger," he said to himself.

CONTRIBUTIONS COMING SLOWING

Only $3 Added to the Clinton Relief Fund.

Herald	$25.00
G. A. Fay	2.00
Unknown	1.00

The Herald's appeal for aid for the Clinton, Minn., sufferers, who were rendered homeless and destitute by the recent cyclone in that section of the state, has not been productive of very good results thus far. G. A. Fay sent in $2 and an unknown friend handed in $1 to be applied to the fund. The Herald heads the list with a subscription of $25.

All subscriptions to the fund sent to The Herald will be taken in charge, acknowledged through the paper and forwarded to the committee in charge of the distribution of relief.

The cyclone devastated Clinton some weeks ago and the first appeal for aid was almost unproductive. Governor Johnson personally sent out the second appeal, which is couched in urgent terms. The Herald is anxious to help kindly disposed Duluth people place their offerings in the proper hands for wise and effective use, and contributions should be sent in immediately to relieve the needs of the sufferers as soon as possible.

WEST END

BABY DIES WHILE FATHER IS IN JAIL

West End Man is Arrested for Threatening His Wife.

While Isaac Isaacson of 16 North Fifteenth avenue west was in jail charged with having threatened to kill his wife with a razor, his little son died last evening.

The father was arrested Saturday evening by Sergeant Toewe and Patrolman Root. His wife says that she was compelled to flee from the house, and she found the policemen after she had run ten blocks.

On his way to the West end station, Isaacson threw a razor into the gutter, but it was recovered by the officers. He denied having threatened his wife with it.

Mrs. Isaacson told the police that he tied twice to cut her throat, and that the first time she took the razor from him. She says he secured another somewhere and again threatened her, and this time she was forced to run from the house. He will be given a hearing this afternoon.

John Oluf Benson, the West end newsboy, who was killed Thursday by a falling tree, while picking berries on the hills back of the city.

Picnic at Lincoln.

The Commercial Travelers' picnic at Lincoln Park Saturday was a great success in spite of the weather. There was a good program of sports arranged, the big attraction being the ball game between the U. C. T. and the Cigarmakers. After nine swift innings it was found that the Cigarmakers had the best of it by the score of 11 to 10.

Jack Desmond won the pig, which was offered for the best hitter. He landed hard on the ball every time up.

Laura Elizabeth, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Mason, won the prize for the most beautiful baby under 4 years of age, and Ted Barker was given the prize for being the homeliest man on the grounds.

There was a dance in the evening.

West End Shortrails.

Mrs. J. L. Mires of 15 North Twenty-fourth avenue west has as her guests Mrs. F. A. Collins of St. Paul, Mrs. Charles Jaggar of Minneapolis, and Miss Marie Pate of Hibbing.

Misses Emma and Inga Olson and brother, Edward, of 420 North Twenty-second avenue west, left Sunday for their future home in Portland, Or.

A. B. Anderson of 2505 West Fifth street returned Sunday from a visit at Detroit, Minn.

Fred Hanson ha returned from Hibbing, where he has been visiting with friends.

F. O. Narveson of Chicago, is visiting with his father, N. O. Narveson, of 2201 West Fourth street.

Miss Nettie Lutz, accompanied by her aunt, Miss Charlotte Lutz, will leave tomorrow for Milwaukee for a short visit with relatives.

Miss Edith Leonard of 2511 West First street left Sunday for Moose Lake, Minn., where she will spend the rest of the summer.

Mrs. Gertrude M. Johnson, aged 28, died this morning of tuberculosis, at her home, 117 Twentieth avenue west. She is survived by her husband, Albert M. Johnson, and one child. Her father, Mr. Beekman, and sister, Mrs. Jackson, reside at Independence, Minn. The funeral announcement will be made later.

HEAVY CROP.

E. H. Houghton Says Canadian Wheat is Ripening Fast.

E. H. Houghton, formerly agent of the Pittsburg Steamship company in this city, but at the present time a vessel agent at Winnipeg, states that the Canadian wheat crop is maturing well this year and at the present time is about even with the Minnesota crop, as regard ripening. They have been cutting for a week in some places in Western Canada, according to Mr. Houghton.

Mr. Houghton says that there will not be a great yield per acre in this year's crop, but that there is a greatly increased wheat acreage and there will be a much heavier volume of wheat than usual. He predicts that the Canadian roads will be congested with wheat and that more than the usual amount of wheat will be shipped via this city.

Praises Duluth.

R. S. Pattee, dean of the law department of the University of Minnesota, who was in Duluth attending the convention of the Minnesota State Bar association, takes a deep interest in Duluth from the fact that there are about sixty graduates of the law department of the university practising law here. Mr. Pattee stated that in Duluth there are many advantages for the young lawyer that are not to be found in other cities of the state. The dean expressed himself as gratified over the success that many of his former students were making in their chosen profession. Dean Pattee stated that in every city he visits, from coast to coast, he is sure to find a graduate of the university. There are about 1,800 practising graduates of the law department of the university.

"Housekeeping," says the mere observer, "is so unexciting."

The recent housewife with a scarlet burn on her tender arm and an agitated mind, refrains from explaining that for true excitement and joyous uncertainty, housekeeping is the one occupation for which one may with willing mind discard all others.

What greater thrill could one want than the delightful palpitating uncertainty that lodges one in after a pie is in the oven. Will it come out a miracle of tender crust and luscious filling, or will it come not sweetened enough and bound around by a covering which will require all the carving utensils of the household to cut?

Will the angel food, which should be a fluffy mouthful of beaten air, be that, or will it be a slightly soggy impossibility that stands as a monument to eleven eggs wasted? Will the veal loaf allow itself to be cut in smooth, adhering slices, or will it crumble into rich pieces?

But these daily excitements are as nothing compared to the annual agitation of whether the jelly is going to "jell" or not. The simple process as described by the experienced one "you take your sugar and your fruit juice, a cup of each—" "Oh, never," objects another experienced one; "you take a cup and a half of juice to a cup of sugar, and you boil it until it jells." Until it jells! Who has not undertaken to do that simple thing, and boiled it and boiled it and boiled it and boiled it; and then quit for a while; and then boiled it and boiled it and boiled it and boiled it; and then cried for a while; and then boiled it and boiled it and boiled it and boiled it; and then swore for a while; and then boiled it and boiled it and boiled it and boiled it; and then decided to get a divorce; and then boiled it and boiled it and boiled and boiled it; and decided to go on the stage for a living; and then boiled it, only to have it turn into a molten mass of jelly before it was placed in the glasses?

Housekeeping not exciting? Well!

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

FARGO WINS TWO GAMES

Barnstormers Take Sox Into Camp in Exhibition Contests.

Sunday Double Header is Divided by Close Scores.

Duluth fans—the few who went to Athletic park Saturday and Sunday, saw a shadow of Northern league ball cast by the Duluth and Fargo teams, erstwhile members of the league. Both teams played indifferent, exhibition ball, Fargo winning two of the three games. Saturday's game went to the Tramps by a score of 6 to 4 and yesterday the teams broke even in a double header, Duluth taking the first game by a score of 4 to 3 and Fargo the second by 3 to 2.

There was nothing at stake in any of the games and the teams didn't play the kind of ball they did when fighting for the pennant, nor such as they would if there had been any rivalry. Spectacular features didn't spectacularize. Everybody played pretty good baseball, but there was something lacking in the games as entertaining exhibitions.

The Fargo team was somewhat changed from what it was on its last appearance here. Pitcher Cook has gone to Brandon and Perce to Fond du Lac. Catcher Lynch and Outfielder Siner have also gone to the Wisconsin-Illinois league, so that Manager Al Williams had to fill in the vacant places with Duluth talent. The games were the last to be played by the Fargo outfit as they disband today.

Saturday's game was played under threatening clouds on a muddy diamond. Brandt didn't have a thing and the Fargo men bunched their hits on him and won easily. Waldorf pitched fairly good ball for Fargo and had fine support, Al Williams and Clevenger starring. The Tramps practically broke it up in the seventh inning, when three scores were sent across the plate for a commanding lead.

In the first game Sunday Cook, a local boy, went in the box and gave the Sox some trouble. He was in pinches time after time, but pulled himself out until the ninth inning, when the Sox filled the bases and he gave Murray, batting for Winters, a pass, forcing in the winning run.

In the second game Murray was wild and ineffective and the Browns got to him in the seventh for three hits in a row, scoring two runs and winning the game. Waldorf pitched again and he had the Sox going all the time, though good fielding pulled him out of some bad places.

The Sox go to Hibbing tomorrow to open a series with the range team, playing three games and opening with Hibbing here next Friday.

The detailed scores of the games follow:

BRANDON WINS LONG CONTEST

First Game of Post Season Series Goes Thirteen Innings.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the first game of the post-season series between Winnipeg and Brandon, the two leading teams of the Northern league, Brandon won Saturday by a score of 3 to 2, in thirteen innings.

The game was one of the finest exhibitions at Happyland this year. Both teams played errorless ball and the game was nip and tuck all the way. Two ex-Fargo pitchers opposed each other, Clark for Winnipeg and Cook for Brandon. Clark outpitched his opponent and Cook was relieved by Smith in the sixth inning. Smith held Brandon runless for the remainder of the game.

In the thirteenth inning, Summers was hit by a pitched ball, was sacrificed to second and, with two down, Mills singled, scoring the Brandon man with the winning run. Score: R. H. E.

COLERAINE EASY FOR HIBBING

Brady's Men Win Saturday and Sunday by Good Hitting.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hibbing won from the Coleraine team Saturday and Sunday by good hitting. Saturday's game started out to be a good one, but in the sixth Brady, Coleraine's pitcher, hit Calligan in the jaw with the ball and lost his nerve. The Colts made four runs off him in the sixth and six more in the seventh, the game ending with the score 11 to 1.

Sunday's game was brought home in the first inning when, with two men on bases, Gilchrist hit for a home run, scoring three runs. One other was added during the game, while Coleraine could only get two scores across.

Eveleth Loses Saturday and Sunday by Big Margins.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Virginia made it three straight from Eveleth by taking both the Saturday and Sunday games. Saturday, Schanze, a young pitcher from Freeport, Ill., pitched for Virginia and was strong all the time, the home team winning 7 to 2. Sunday, James Haney was hit hard, while Currie let Eveleth down with four hits, Virginia winning, 7 to 1.

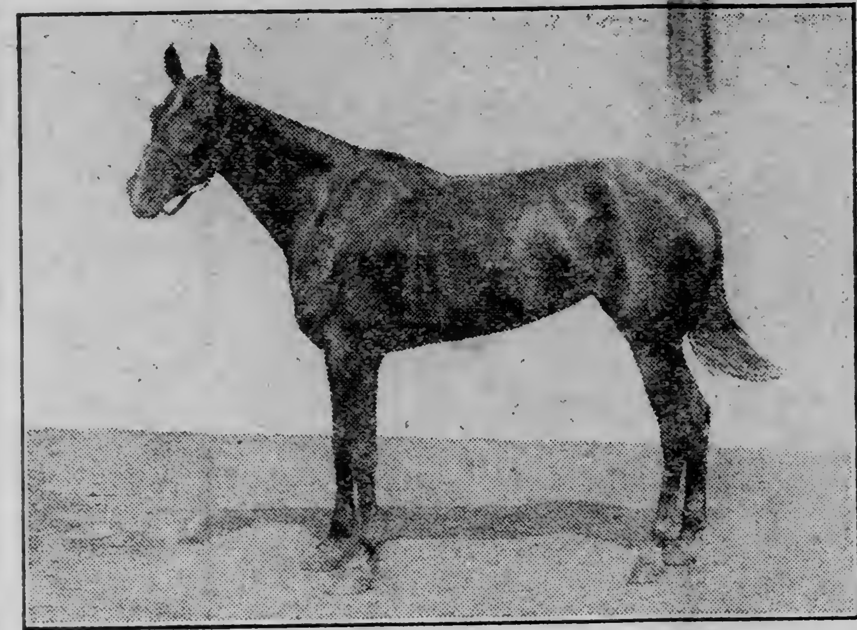
DULUTH MARE WILL RACE AT MINNESOTA STATE FAIR



Capt. James Sullivan's Green Mare, Lady Linton.

Lady Linton, a green mare, owned by Capt. James Sillivan of the Board of Trade Livery company, is one of the Duluth horses, which will receive a tryout in the Minnesota state fair races, the week beginning Aug. 31. Lady Linton is at Hamline now, under a competent trainer and is said to have shown good bursts of speed. Her performances in the state fair rases will be watched with interest by Duluth followers of the sport.

BIWABIK WINS TWO GAMES

Fargo Team Disbands.

The Fargo baseball team has disbanded and the players have scattered to different leagues and independent clubs. Some of the best players go to the range, Al Williams and Outfielder Godfrey going to Eveleth and Brookins to Hibbing. Toot Thompson will finish the season with Duluth, probably holding down third base.

AUTO BOATS WILL RACE

Handicap Event Will be Pulled Off Next Saturday.

Robert B. Defeats Buster in Short Speed Exhibition.

The failure of the motor boats to get away in the handicap event at the Duluth Boat club Saturday afternoon was disappointing to the large number of followers of motor boating, who are anxious to have the question of the supremacy of the harbor settled. The rain and wind had kicked up quite a sea in the bay, so the boat owners decided not to start.

So as not to entirely disappoint a crowd, which had gathered, the Robert B. and and Buster gave a speed exhibition, which could hardly be called a race, as neither was running at full speed on account of the rough water. They went for quite a distance, the Robert B. finishing first.

Next Saturday, the big race will be pulled off, with about fifteen motor boats entered. The North Butte will not be among the number, it is said, but the Doman, Robert B., and Buster, all of which are speeders, will start from scratch. The other boats, such as the Mollie, Ona O., and other smaller launches will be given handicaps, according to their recognized speed and the arrangement should make a pretty race.

SCUD IS WINNER OF CUP EVENT

Voyageur Wins Last Race, But Scud Has Most Points.

The Scud, owned by George Holland, is the winner of the Commercial club cup in the series for 28-footers at the Duluth Yacht club, finishing second in the final race of the series at the club Saturday afternoon. There were eight entries and they sailed over the No. 1 course. The boats got away at 3:15 under single reefed mainsails and storm jibs.

The race was close and exciting all the way, the principal contest being between Kennedy's Voyageur and the Scud. The Voyageur finished in front, crossing the line 13 seconds ahead of the Scud, with the Viking following closely. There was only a few seconds between each of the yachts as they finished the course.

The yachts finished in the following order:

Yacht.	Skipper.	Finish.
Voyageur	Kennedy	4:30:10
Scud	Holland	4:30:23
Viking	Brewer	4:31:08
Lark	Fisk	4:31:25
Peter Pan	Parker	4:32:45

SHERIDAN IN TIE.

American Athlete Breaks Even With Kiely in Ireland.

Dungarvan, Aug. 17—The weight contest here yesterday between Martin J. Sheridan of the Irish-American A. C. and Thomas F. Kiely, the Irish jumper, for the championship of Ireland, resulted in a draw. Kiely won the hammer throw and the 56-pound weight event, while Sheridan won the 16-pound shot put and the 25-pound weight event.

KRICK LOSES OUT.

Ashland Players Fail to Support Pitcher, and Ironwood Wins.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ironwood defeated Ashland yesterday afternoon on the local grounds in one of the most exciting games of the season. Krick of the Duluth Northern league team pitched for Ashland and held Ironwood to four hits. Errors at critical times, however, lost the game for him. Belfast also pitched a good game for Ironwood.

BEMIDJI BASKETBALL.

"Big Bemidji" Team Reorganizes for Season of 1908-09.

Bemidji, Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bemidji will be in the field with a basketball team again during the coming fall and winter, and will go out for the championship of Northern Minnesota, the title, which was claimed last year. At a meeting held last week, Leo Heffron was again elected manager of the team, and he will get to work immediately lining up his men. Every young man in Bemidji, who thinks he can play the game, will be asked to get out and try for the team and veterans and new men will be given an equal chance.

Small Riot at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Aug. 16.—With the game all but won the locals yesterday threw the ball around the lot in the fifth, allowing two Louisville men to score. Louisville came back in the next inning for two more, enough to take the game. Both Gehring and Putnam pitched good ball, but were given indifferent support. Umpire Kane was nearly mobbed after the game. Police and players escorted him from the field amid the jeers of the spectators. Kane was struck by stones that were thrown by spectators. Score: R. H. What is more enjoyable, after a hard days work, than to sit at your own fireside and drink a glass of

Fitger's Beer

It, too, affords you supreme satisfaction, to offer this delicious, sparkling beverage to your friends who stop in of an evening. Its delicious flavor is not all—the food and tonic values derived from choicest barley malt and Bohemian hops build up wasted tissue and give you vim and a clear brain. For health and hospitality, keep a few bottles in your cellar.

YOUNG AMERICA AT MINNETONKA

Yacht Club Members Will See Inland Lake Regatta Events.

Members of the Duluth Yacht club are off for the Inland Lake Yachting association regatta, which opens on Lake Minnetonka today. The Young America, the only yacht to represent Duluth, was shipped to Minneapolis and the crew, headed by J. A. Roth, left yesterday. A number of other members of the club will go down today and will see the Young America in competition tomorrow.

Yachts from Oshkosh, White Bear, Duluth and Minnetonka are entered at Minneapolis, and some of the best races ever held in the lake are expected. The Duluth club is in the association this year for the first time, and the members are anxious for the Yopng America to make a good showing.

The coming week will be a quiet one at the club on Park Point, as interest centers entirely in the events at the regatta. It is possible that the tie for the rear commodore's cup between the Frolic and Freckles will be sailed off some time during the week.

WAR IN LEAGUE.

Wolvins Claim Forfeited Game and Board Says Not.

There is war to the knife in the Commercial league, as a result of the non-appearance of the Board of Trade team at Athletic park Saturday for the game with the Wolvin building nine. The Wolvins were on hand and lined up on the field after the Duluth-Fargo game was over, but there wasn't a green suit in sight. The umpire awarded the game to the Wolvins, who now claim a tie with the Board for the championship of the league.

The members of the Board team claim that they notified the Wolvins early in the morning that they would not play on account of the unfavorable weather. They say the notice was sufficient and they deny the validity of the forfeiture.

The matter will probably be brought before the executive board of the league for a decision. If the forfeiture holds, the Wolvins must only win one game from the Board to have the title. Otherwise, a victory would only create a tie. Until the matter comes before the league board, the Wolvins will stick to their claims of a tie and the entente cordiale between the baseball enthsiasts of the two buildings will be strained.

Wizards Win Twice.

The Wizards won two games yesterday on the chooting range grounds, defeating the Hill Tops by a score of 10 to 9, and the Zeniths by a score of 10 to 1 in six innings. In the last game, Wallen of the Wizards did not allow anything that looked like a hit, and the Zeniths scored their only run on errors.

Events Postponed.

The program, which was arranged for the entertainment of the members of the Minnesota Bar association at the Duluth Boat club Saturday afternoon, had to be postponed on account of the unfavorable weather. Some of the events were pulled off, but the boats did not start in the big motor boat race, and the other aquatic events also had to be postponed.

CROWD BROKE ALL RECORDS

Immense Throng Listens to Herald's Free Concert at Lester Park.

A record-breaking crowd attended the free, open air concert provided by The Herald at Lester Park yesterday. The concert was rendered by the "In Old Kentucky" company band of twenty-five pieces, under the direction of John W. Powell, the "Black Sousa."

The crowd, which is estimated at from 10,000 to 12,000 people, began gathering early at the park and by 2:30 and 3 o'clock, the Lakeside cars were running on a one and one-half minute schedule, as frequently as the company can operate them on the line to Lester Park, and were filled to the guards. In some instances men and boys rode on top of the cars, unable to get inside.

The cars were rapidly filled in the downtown districts and, by the time they reached the East end there was no room for other passengers. It is claimed that a large number of people, living in the East end district, were unable to get to the park in time for the concert, crowded cars passing them at nearly every crossing.

The street cars did not carry all the people, however, for the aggregation of automobiles and rigs was the greatest that has ever before been seen at the park. For hours yesterday afternoon there was a steady stream of teams and automobiles on London road, going to and from the park.

The program rendered by the celebrated Pickaninny band of the "In Old Kentucky" company was a novel one and the selections were well received. Music has its charms, and the concert, together with the splendid weather of yesterday, formed a combination that the people enjoyed to the utmost. Many of those who went out to the concert remained until evening, the street railway traffic being heavy until about 9 o'clock, with the cars running at frequent intervals.

The Meaning of Words.

Many words which are spelled alike and pronounced alike have different meanings. The word "rare" is an example. It may mean scarce as used to denote something not usually found, or it may mean choice. This is the meaning when we say that golden grain belt beer is a rare beverage, highly prized for its wholesome qualities and its tonic properties. It should be kept in every home, where health is a thing to be enjoyed. Order of Duluth Branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

AMERICAN PRELATES TO BE CALLED MONSIGNOR.

Rome, Aug. 17.—Cardinal Gibbons left here yesterday for Switzerland. He was accompanied by Monsignor O'Connell, bishop of Washington, the Rev. Monsignor Germano Strantero, who in 1886 as papal delegate brought him the cardinal's red hat. A number of friends were at the station to see the cardinal off. Just before leaving he was informed that the pope had granted his request and had appointed the following ecclesiastics as domestic prelates to the pontiff, entitling them to be called "Monsignor:"

Rev. T. S. Lee, rector of St. Matthews, Washington, D. C.; Rev. James F. Makin of St. Paul's, Washington; Rev. George Devine of St. Johns, Baltimore; Rev. William E. Starr of Corpus Christie, Baltimore.

A high honor, is was announced, has been reserved for the Right Rev. C. B. Corrigan, vicar general of Baltimore.

This being the fortieth anniversary of the consecration of Cardinal Gibbons as bishop, Cardinal Merry Del Val, papal secretary of state, sent him a telegram from Cactel Gandolfo, warmly congratulating him on the memorable day.

S.S.S. MAKES A LASTING CURE

There are certain mineral medicines which will remove the external symptoms of Contagious Blood Poison, and shut the disease up in the system for awhile, but when the treatment is left off the disease will surely return. Then the loathsome symptoms of ulcerated mouth and throat, copper-colored spots, falling hair, sores and ulcers, etc., are usually worse because the disease has made rapid progress on the internal members, and weakened the constitution and general health of the sufferer. S. S. S. is the only remedy that can be used with perfect safety in the treatment of Contagious Blood Poison, and with the assurance that a lasting cure will result. This medicine, made entirely of roots and herbs of recognized curative and tonic value, antidotes and destroys the powerful virus of the disease, and by purifying the blood of every particle of the poison and enriching and strengthening the circulation, removes every symptom of the trouble. S. S. S. does not hide or cover up the disease in any way, but drives it entirely out from the blood, leaving not the slightest trace for future outbreaks. Home treatment book with valuable information and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

A PREMIUM ON PERJURY

Assistant Assessor Says Present Tax Laws Are Faulty.

Urges Need of Non-Political Board of Assessors.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Permit me space to give a few ideas, as they have occurred to me from time to time, while I have been employed in the assessor's office, trusting that I may be of some value to our growing city and especially to the taxpayer who always comes to the assessor's office and makes a complaint about his taxes after they have been levied, and when the time for action has expired and the matter is completely out of the assessor's hands.

First. It matters very little whether the taxpayer pays a high rate on a low valuation, or a low rate on a high valuation. The city has to have about so much money, the schools so much, and the county so much, and the people who have the property, must pay this money to support the local institutions.

Second. The essential thing that is demanded of the assessor or his office is to see that all property is assessed justly and fairly. To the average person this seems an easy matter, but after several years of experience in this office, I have come to the conclusion that there is no one person in this world who is capable of making such an assessment. I have learned that there are all kinds of people to contend with—the man who is fair and anxious to pay his proportion of taxes to support the public institutions, and then there is the man who never wants to pay any taxes at all, and who considers all such payments as entirely lost to his personal welfare.

The fair man comes in the office and makes a fair return of his personal property and then tells the assessor what his real property is actually worth in the open market. This information, coming from such a man, has a great deal of weight with the assesser, who is bound by his oath of office and sworn bond, to carefully consider such figures as a basis to work from in making up his valuations.

Now, the assessor is bound by two well established rules that are laid down in all cities for the assessors to work from—commercial or business values of real estate and community values. The value of commercial property is or should be easy to determine, while the value of residence or home property is established by community interests.

The value of residence property, while established by community interests, is very hard to determine, and while the published records of sales will have more or less bearing on the same, the owners themselves fix their values, and while such values may be high, yet the intrinsic values is really only a small proportion of such established values.

The value of structures is a difficult matter to determine. I have in mind a gentleman here in this city, who has expended an enormous sum on his home, part of the expenditure being for a suitable foundation. In erecting his home he encountered quick sand, and for a time he simply dumped his money on the foundation, but finally got control over it and before his wife were in sight, he has spent more than he had planned his home would cost when completed. This additional expenses did not make his home one bit better than the neighbor across the street, who encountered no such difficulties and soon had his home in a good course of construction.

The size of the home, the thickness of the walls, the kind of finish, the interior decorations, and other items must all must be taken into account and to do this the building has to be viewed and examined all the time during its construction.

The assessor here in Duluth has been handicapped for the past several years by not having enough money at his command to employ sufficient help to make such examinations and such valuations, and then watch the older houses and see that they are properly decreased in value as the proceeds and wear and tear diminish the value of the structures.

In all this work there is a great opportunity for errors, as our city is builded upon peculiar lines, many divisions and sub-divisions, so that in connection with the topography of the city, we have the hardest city in the entire United States to justly, fairly and correctly assess.

I desire at this time to call the attention of the great army of taxpayers that just now is the right time to make complaints about your taxes, not at the office of the assessor, not at the county auditor's office but at the ballot box.

I look about and fail to see hardly a single business man who pays any attention to the heavy disbursements he is certain to be called upon to pay, until the time for such attention has gone by and then he jumps up and blames the assessor, the mayor, the chief of police, the auditor, the county treasurer, and even the governor. Now, all these gentlemen are simply your agents, men whom you have placed there to carry out the intent of the law. Do not place so much blame upon them. They have done the best they knew how, but have carried into effect vicious laws.

A Premium on Perjury.

I claim, from years of close experience and observation, that the tax laws of Minnesota are very poor. Take our personal property tax laws. This system is simply a premium on perjury. The ruling of our state tax commission in forcing all to swear to their schedule, or else lose their legal exemptions, is a hardship upon the poor man. He is forced to either swear to a falsehood, or else increase his personal assessment, while the man of much means pays no attention to the assessor, who assesses all that he can see, which is a small proportion of the personal effects, and then when the little legal exemption is not aiken off, the wealthy man simply smiles and says to himself: 'I am glad they could not see the inside of the safety deposit box,' and walks up to the treasurer and pays his little sum and has a clean sheet for another year.

After studying taxation methods, not alone here in Duluth, but all over the country, I am of the opinion that the best way to avail ourselves of a poor state law is to establish a commission, and to do that it is neecssary that the taxpayers and voters at this time give this matter their earnest attention. Irrespective of political parties, we should select good competent men to go to the next legislature and see that the state laws are so changed that the city of Duluth, at least, can have a board of assessors, such board to be composed of three competent men, who will be appointed either by the mayor or district court, to be nonpolitical, and paid a salary sufficient so that they will have to look nowhere else for a respectable living. Such board should consist of not more than two men from any political party, and their term of office shall be at least six years, arranging it so that every two years the term of only one member shall expire.

This board will be placed in such a position that they will ask no favors from any political party or local administration. Such members shall devote their entire time to their duties, or in studying taxation matters.

The first benefits that I can see will result from such a board will be that the office is placed on a solid, steady basis, and that all assessments will be made in a careful, conservative manner, after a careful study and a discussion by the board. Secondly, there will be no extreme changes in values, unless the actual conditions warrant such changes.

Thirdly, it will take the office, or the department entirely out of local or general politics. Now, after we have created such a board of assessors, the laws should be so amended that the city board of review would be totally abolished. I claim that the men who make a study of taxation matters and assessments are the best judges of equality and fairness between man and man, between property and property, not men who are holding elective positions and whose tenure of office depends upon their popularity.

Think of the difficult position you, Mr. Reader, would be placed in if you were holding an office of trust in the city and, as a member of the local board of review, a friend comes to you and makes a complaint about his taxes.

Would you turn him away, or would you try to give him the reduction that he is asking for, thereby keeping his friendship, and later on secure his vote for your personal gain. There is not one man in a thousand but what would do what they could for their friends, and their friendship will lead and assist you to believe that they have been taxed unjustly. You have no time or means, under present laws, to make a careful examination of the complaints that come before you, and the result is that a great injustice has been done, not to your friend, but to the other taxpayers who did not come to you. Now, see that laws are made so that the city board of review will be abolished, or that the board of assessors shall act as such board of review, and all will have more justice.

Mr. Haven, our present mayor, has accused me of saying that there was politics in the city board. I still say it, and maintain that this city board of assessors is worse than any other city board that ever existed. It is impossible to keep politics out of it, try as you may to do the best that you can. He is human and liable to err, so are all men, and when you or any man holding a purely political position tries to eliminate politics from your duties, you are attempting the impossible.

Now, sir, Taxpayer, open your eyes, look about you and see what other cities are doing. You do this in your business, why not do it as a city?

Look at our fire department. Can you remember the time when we had no commissioners? Look at our park board. Can you find any politics in that institution? I challenge you to show me any. Look at the manner the funds are handled. You in your own business could do no better.

Lok at our water department. Would you like to see this department placed in political hands? God forgive the day when that comes.

Now, if a commission is a good thing in one department, why not extend the bounds and make is cover the entire city? Look at Galveston, Tex.; Houston, Tex.; Des Moines, Iowa. There you will find that a city which is governed by a commission is cheaper to the taxpayers, and at the same time I find that they have better streets, cleaner streets, better lights and water departments, no bonds, no debts, therefore no interest charges to meet every year, and, all in all, the city is better morally, financially and physically. Can you see the point of my article? Get some one to check up a "Comanission Governed City;" draw your plans for the same here in Duluth, so that when the next legislature meets in St. Paul, we can go down there with a clean bunch of "commission" boosters and put this city of ours in the first ranks of a municipality and the leader of all the great Northwest.

If we fail in all this, at least place the assessor's department in the hands of a board of assessors, the same as many other cities of our class, and the result will be that your taxes will be lower in the place of being higher, for a board will call upon those to pay who should pay.

Thanking you kindly for the indulgence, and trusting that I have been of some value to our burdened taxpayers, I am, sincerely yours,

J. H. DAVIS.

INDUSTRY NEGLECTED

United States Should Profit by Demand for Willow Baskets.

Chicago Merchant Advocates in Germany for a Million.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The fact that a Chicago merchant is advertising in German trade papers for a million willow clothes baskets is pointed to by experts on willow culture in this country as evidence of our neglect of a profitable industry.

Climate and soil are as favorable for willow culture in this country as in Germany or anywhere else, and the market for willow of the better grades is the best in the world. Generally speaking, land that will grow wheat will grow willows. Their cultivation is not difficult, and profits are usually good. But up to the present time Americans have not taken hold of the matter in earnest, though both interest and production have been on the increase of recent years as a result of the efforts made by the department of agriculture to inform the public of the opening which willow growing offers.

Weaving Taught in Schools.

The Germans handle the business well. They have industrial schools where basket weaving is taught. Many of these schools grow their own willow rods, cut them, and peel and prepare them for use. To the mutual advantage of both pupils and proprietors, arrangements are made to allow pupils to work part of the time in the "bolts," as the willow fields are called, belonging to the schools, and in that way earn enough to pay their tuition and board. They then become familiar with all parts of the business, and when they graduate they are competent to take places as overseers of willow farms or foremen in wickerware factories. The schools profit by getting much of their work done without paying cash for it.

American willow growers and manufacturers of willow-ware must meet that competition; but those who have investigated conditions here and abroad feel confident that the American has advantages which will enable him to compete successfully if he takes up the business with characteristic American energy.

Many Manufacturers.

There are more than 160 manufacturers of willow-ware in the United States. One-tenth of them grow their own willows, and about an equal number grow part of their stock. More than a dozen varieties are cultivated in this country, in seventeen states, and many manufacturers assert that the home-grown rods are equal or even superior to the imported. Good bolts pay a profit the first year, though the profits of later years are much greater. The average price of unpeeled rods last year was about 1¼ cents a pound, and of peeled rods about 3 cents. A well-managed willow bolt should average 2,500 pounds of rods to the acre yearly, and the cost of growing and harvesting the crop is comparatively low. It is a crop which requires comparatively little labor, so that the small grower, if able-bodied, can be pretty independent in the matter of hired help.

Instructions for the growing of basket willows are sent out by the forest service, upon request, together with a statement of the returns to be expected. The service is devoting special attention to testing every known variety of basket willow in order to find the best varieties for home growers. In the early spring time cuttings from all approved basket willows are sent gratis to applicants who desire to establish willow bolts.

GOVERNMENT OWNS BALDWIN AIRSHIP.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The Baldwin airship landed at Fort Meyer Saturday after making a flight which broke all records for aerial navigation in this country. For two hours and five minutes the big military dirigible flew back and forth over a course nearly five miles in length in the official endurance trial.

The air ship is now the property of the signal corps of the United States army, a few formalities only remaining to be gone through with before Capt. Baldwin turns the craft over to Gen. Allen, chief signal officer. The members of the board of signal officers who have conducted tests were elated over today's showing. The airship had successfully withstood every test required of it.

It is believed that the board of signal officers which will meet on Monday will figure the average speed at twenty miles, thus entitling the aeronaut to the full contract price, $6 750.

KILLED BY AN ANGRY HUSBAND

William Annis of New York Shot by Capt. Hains.

Bay Side, Long Island, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Capt. Peter Conover Hains, Jr., U. S. A., son of Brig. Gen. Peter Hains, U. S. A., retired, fired seven bullets from a revolver into William E. Annis of New York, owner and publisher of the Burr-McIntosh Monthly and other magazines, late Saturday on the landing stage of the Bay Side Yacht club, Flushing, and Annis, whom Capt. Hains had accused of having been improperly attentive to the captain's wife, died in the Flushing hospital a few hours after the shooting.

Capt. Hains, accompanied by his brother, Thornton J. Hains, well known as an author and amateur yachtsman, walked to the landing stage of the club, as Annis and a club member named Harway were disembarking from a boat, and at once opened fire upon Annis. Annis attempted to get behind Harway, but Capt. Hains reached under Harway's arm and fired at his enemy.

Immediately there was commotion on the clubhouse veranda. Mrs. Annis fainted and a dozen yachtsmen rushed to the float to the assistance of Annis. Before they could get to the side of the wounded man, however, T. J. Hains, the captain's brother, whipped out a revolver and threatened to shoot the first man who interfered.

"This is an affair between these two," he said calmly.

Capt. Hains and his brother, neither of whom appeared in any way disturbed, awaited the arrival of the police on the club float and surrendered themselves.

Brig. Gen. Hains, father of Capt. Hains, reached here Saturday night and was immediately conducted to the cell to which the captain and his brother had been committed, and the three had a long consultation together. The general then left for New York, refusing to make any statement.

Mrs. Claudia Libbey Hains, wife of Capt. Hains and the indirect cause of the tragedy, when seen in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Libbey, in Winthrop, Mass., expressed utter amazement over the deed.

"There must be some mistake," she exclaimed. "It cannot be that my husband would do such a rash thing as that. He must be crazy."

Mrs. Hains was too agitated to comment further on the shooting or the alleged incidents leading up to it.

Mrs. Hains met Capt. Hains, then lieutenant, eight years ago, when he was stationed in Fort Banks, near Miss Libbey's home. She was then but 16 years of age, in her second year in the high school, and married Hains within a year in the Libbey home in the presence of her family and a few intimate friends.

THE APPROPRIATE FLOWER.

"The late Senator Proctor," said a Burlington man, "hated these international marriages where a titled foreigner marries an American girl with four or five millions. I heard him say once in Burlington that he'd believe in the sincerity of such marriages when he saw an English duke or an Italian prince marrying an American girl who was poor.

"Then he smiled grimly and ended: "'If I were a millionaire and were giving my daughter and a dozen millions to some young count or earl, I'd have the church decorated only with marigolds'."

WAR VETERAN MARRIES CHILD

Westchester, Pa., Aug. 17.—A pink-cheeked girl, not yet out of the short-skirt period, walked into a local newspaper office and asked to see the editor.

"I have been married," she faltered, blushing. "Can I have a notice in the paper about it?" I'm awful happy. My husband is a hero, you see. And it is better to be an old man's darling than a young man's slave."

The "girl" was Mrs. John McKnight, aged 15 years, bride of a Civil war veteran aged 72 years. They romantically slipped out of this state last Tuesday and were married at Wilmington, Del., where the girl was able to satisfy the officiating clergyman's doubts by showing him a note from her "mamma," giving her permission to marry.

Mrs. Pinkerton, her mother, remarked today that she felt safe about Frances because McKnight is a fatherly old fellow and will take good care of her, "as he is such a nice man."

The couple had a little reception tonight and received many gifts. Some of these were from the children"—old man McKnight's sons and grandsons. One of these grandsons is the husband of the bride's aunt.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

D. E. H., Aug. 17, 1908.

"FOR two stolen ties during your sale," was the message written on a piece of paper which came in our mail the other day, with stamps for the amount. Make your own comments. And we gave away real fifty-centers for fifteen!

Saturday was a banner day, just as we predicted—perhaps the biggest of any August.

The 98-cent Shirt Sale was a hummer. It's all over. Moral: Be on time if you want the benefit of Columbia specials.

The new shirts will be in by the end of the week.

The new and old commence to commingle. New Suits are in the basement. Sold some already.

But the dog days are here now and our main task is still to push summer suits off the tables and throw profits to the dogs.

So we still say $11.85, $11.85 and keep saying $11.85.

It's a dubious-looking Cheap John price, but here you can get the best in the land for it. Dozens were sold last Saturday. It's a bitter pill to sell suits for $7 and $8 less than they cost at wholesale, but it's sweetened with a bunch on which the wholesaler swallowed the emetic.

Last night's sudden storm drenched many a good suit. If anything happened to yours while getting to shore, see what a high-tone vacation suit $11.85 buys here now. Stein-Bloch's and others.

Trousers still at one-legged prices — $1.95, $2.95, $3.95 and $4.95. The finest Paragons included.

FIND BODY AT FOXBORO

Erick Young, a Settler, Believed to Have Been Murdered.

Two Suspects Brought to Superior by Sheriff.

Charged with the murder of Erick Young, a settler and logging camp employe who had been living near Foxboro, Matt Kramer and August Sletten were brought to Superior this afternoon and are being held pending an investigation into Young's death.

Young had been living with Kramer in the cabin about thirteen miles south of Foxboro. A short time ago he disappeared. John Johnson, who lived in the vicinity, about two weeks ago, ran across a decomposed arm and leg protruding from the ground near Kramer's cabin. He asked Kramer about the find and told the latter that he ought to take better care of the body. Kramer is said to have responded that Johnson "had better keep quiet or he would get the same."

The body was later removed to another grave, and Johnson then informed the authorities at Superior regarding it.

The sheriff went to Foxboro this morning, found the grave and the body, and placed Kramer and August Sletten, who was living in the cabin with him, under arrest.

Kramer refuses to talk regarding the crime. He denies that Young lived with him for any length of time, and says he spent but one night in his cabin. Sletten has been there but two weeks, and it is not believed that he had anything to do with the murder.

Coroner Dudley left for Foxboro this afternoon to take charge of the remains, and an inquest will be held this afternoon.

It is the belief of the Superior police that Young and Kramer either quarreled, or that Young was murdered for his money.

PEOPLE PAY NO TAXES IN CHILI

Expenses of Government Paid by Exports, Says Duluth Visitor.

Thomas M. Hamilton of Santiago do Chili, at the Spalding hotel today states that the financial depression has resulted in the lowest rate of exchange in the history of Chili. This condition, though, has not resulted in any serious depression in the country, according to Mr. Hamilton.

"Chili is one of the countries of South America that has no thought of a revolution," says Mr. Hamilton. "There has not been a revolution in the country for fourteen years and there is no prospect for one at the present time.

"The people of Chili don't pay any government taxes. It is the only civilized country in the world that I know of, where the people are not compelled to pay some tax. The expenses of running the government are provided for by exports. The government also pays for a railroad that is a losing financial proposition, by the revenue accuring from certain mineral exportations. These minerals are owned by the government."

AUSTRALIAN CLAY EATERS.

London Standard: In the Northern Territory, that vast subtropical section of Australia which is to be opened up for settlement now that it has been taken over from South Australia by the commonwealth government, some of the natives have a curious custom of eating a certain kind of white, powdery clay.

Investigation does not indicate any particular fondness on the part of the aboriginals for this particular diet, but the clay would appear to serve a useful purpose in between whiles by way of staving off hunger when game is scarce.

COPPERS HIGHER IN ACTIVE MARKET

North Butte is Feature, Though Dividend is Same as Last.

The copper market was strong today, with better prices all along the list at the opening and an improvement during the day. The declaration of a quarterly dividend of $1 in North Butte, the same as last quarter, strengthened that stock up despite disappointment over the failure to increase, and made it the feature, closing $2.62½ over the opening price. At the metal exchange in New York all grades of copper were reduced ¼c, taking some of the strength from the market, which absorbed the reduction nevertheless. Lake copper was down to 13½c bid and 13⅝ asked; electrolytic 13⅜c bid and 13½c asked, and casting 13⅛c bid and 13¼ asked.

North Butte opened at $80, which was the low mark for the day. The fluctuation was by small stages, with $83.50 as the high mark and it closed at $82.62½ bid and $83 asked. Amalgamated opened at $76.50, went to $77, dropped back to $75.87½ and closed at $77.12½ bid and $77.25 asked. Anaconda opened at $46.12½, went to $46.37½, dropped back to $45.75 and advanced at the close to $46.50. Butte Coalition opened at $27, went to $27.37½ as a high mark, fell back to $26.50 and closed at $26.87½ bid and $27.12½ asked and Calumet & Arizona opened at $119.50, went to $120 and closed at $119.50 bid and $120 asked.

Prices were better in the curb market, with an improved tone. Greene-Cananea, sold at $11.25, $11.50 and back to $11.37½, Superior & Pittsburg at $13.37½ and $13.50, Black Mountain at $3.62½, Butte & Superior at $1.06, Calumet & Sonora at $9.87½ and $10, Carman at $3.37½, Cliff at $1.37½, Denn-Arizona at $3.25, Globe at $4.87½, and Red Warrior at $3.12½. Butte Balaklava was quiet at $7 bid and $7.25 asked, Copper Queen at $1.25 bid and $1.37½ asked and Mowitz at $2 bid and $2.25 asked.

Walker's Copper Letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial says:

"Copper has been stronger until within the last day or two; but it is showing signs of weakening. On Monday lake sold at 14 cents and electrolytic at 13¾ cents per pound. Later in the week there was a break in the London speculative metal markets, and the decline in the domestic stock market brought some pressure to sell copper just at the moment when consumers ceased buying. It is understood that sales were afterwards made at a recession of ⅛ to ¼ of a cent. Domestic consumers have ceased buying and the metal market is very dull and heavier in tone.

"I am satisfied that the remarkable strength of the stock market was largely responsible for the advance in the price of coper to 14 cents per pound. While the business situation is improving, the recovery is exceedingly slow. Though 14 cents is by no means a high price for copper, there certainly is nothing in the business situation to warrant heavy buying at 13¾ to 14 cents now by those consumers who persistently refused to take care of their advanced requirements a short time ago when copper could be had at 13 cents.

"The business situation is not sufficiently promising to warrant the belief that the price of coper will go on advancing steadily until it reaches 15 cents. After election business should begin to show a marked improvement, and it is certainly probable that copper will sell at 15 cents by the end of the year; but for some little time to come the metal market should be dull and reactionary.

"While there are now practically no surplus stocks of copper in existence, the market is by no means back to its old normal basis. When the copper situation is healthy consumers buy their suplies from two to three months ahead, and in that way copper in the smelters and refineries is sold while it is being prepared for delivery. It is safe to say that producers now own practically all the copper they have in process, and some of them have small stocks in addition.

"There is every reason to believe that the world's business will experience a considerable revival during the coming twelve months, and that the demand for copper will again exceed the supply. Eventually we are going back to a 15-cent copper market, and it is not improbable that the metal will sell at 16 or 17 cents before the end of next year. Everything depends upon the state of business confidence, industrial activity and progress."

BEAUTY SPOT OF NORTHWEST

Lumbermen Say Lake Nebagamon Will be Popular Resort.

F. L. Wilkins and A. H. Angus, lumbermen of Lake Nebagamon, who are in the city today, state that the beauty spot of the Northwest lies just thirty-three miles from Duluth. This spot, they say, is none other than Lake Nebagamon. It wasn't so long ago that Lake Nebagamon was primarily a lumbering point. Practically all of the lumbering operations have been terminated at the spot where visitors stop, and both of the gentlemen say that for fishing, bathing and canoeing no spot can surpass Lake Nebagamon.

"Some time ago there was a large number of cottages built for lumbermen," said Mr. Wilkins. "There is, of course, no use for these houses now, and any one desiring a summer cottage can buy one of these houses for less money than it would cost for the mere labor of building a cottage. This is an ideal spot for summer homes, and when the people of Duluth become acquainted with it I am sure that we will have a number of cottagers there every summer.

Mr. Angus says there are twenty-six miles of beach at Lake Nebagamon, ideal for bathing and boating. There is a canoe stream twelve miles long that runs from Lake Nebagamon into the Brule river. This is one of the most picturesque canoe trips in the Northwest, according to Mr. Angus.

The gentlemen are planning on having an excursion to Lake Nebagamon, to show the people of Duluth some of the beauties of a spot that is little known here.

ROMANCES OF CHAPEL ROYAL.

The Scene of Royal Weddings and Christenings.

The Chapel Royal, St. James's palace, where Miss Reid, daughter of the American ambassador, was married to the Hon. John Ward, Lord. Dudley's brother and equerry to the king, is little known to the vast majority of Londoners.

Visitors to the metropolis who make a point of seeing all the historic buildings to which they can obtain access, says the London Daily Mail, well know the unostentatious position of the chapel, which is entered from what is called the Color court of the palace. But to how many ordinary Londoners who wend their way through the courts of the palace, past the sentries who keep watch and ward beneath the Henry VIII gateway, as a near cut from Pall Mall to Belgravia, does the large window to the right of the portal mean more than a mere window?

Yet inside the edifice lighted by it kings and princes have been married and have worshipped for hundreds of years and many babies of high degree have been baptized. It was in that chapel that King Charles I attended service before walking through the park to the headsman's block in Whitehall.

It is a mark of great honor to receive permission from the king to be wedded in the Chapel Royal, which is one of the "peculiar" and "extraparochial" places of worship in the realm, and not often is the little edifice used for the celebration of the nuptials of a subject. Queen Victoria and Prince Albert were marriod in the Chapel Royal, St. James's, and their daughter, the Princess Royal, was wedded there to the crown prince of Prussia, afterward the Emperor Frederick. The present prince and princess of Wales were also married within the small precincts. In former reigns Prince George of Denmark and the Princess Anne (afterward queen), Frederick Prince of Wales and the daughter of the duke of Coburg and George IV, and Queen Caroline were united there.

Of recent years several infants of aristocratic lineage have been baptized in the Chapel Royal, and among the most recent were the twin sons of Lord and Lady Dudley, the brother and sister--in-law of the bridegroom of today, to whom the king and the prince of Wales stood sponsor.

It is commonly reported in descriptions of the Chapel Royal that it is uninteresting in appearance, small and devoid of beauty, save for the Holbein ceiling, with its exquisitely colored panelling, among which a short description and the date, 1540, with the name of Henry VIII, are discernible. Small it is—it measures only sixty-two feet long and seats only about 200 persons—but so well proportioned, despite its galleries, that the ultimate impression conveyed is that of stateliest dignity. The royal gallery faces the altar; at one side is the organ gallery, and there are galleries for peers and peeresses, members of parliament and other privileged persons.

On the floor of the chapel there are old-fashioned pews, and the quaintest are those reserved as seats of honor at the sides of the altar. Even for morning service the chapel very frequently has to be lighted throughout, and when from each sconce a candle gleams the effect is very beautiful. More so is it when to the candles flowers are added in glorious profusion. For a royal wedding the pews are removed and low seats take their place. This was done for the marriage of the prince and princess of Wales. When Queen Victoria was married so elaborate were the preparations necessary that the sum of £10,000 was spent upon them.

Bishop Burnet "lodged a complaint" in his day to the Princess Anne (afterward queen against the "ogling and sighing which was ever being indulged in at the Chapal Royal," begging that the pews might be raised higher and made into closets, as in fact they afterward were.

It was Queen Anne who in the first year of her reign ordered "the Yeoman of her Majesty's removing wardrobe" to provide three umbrellas for the Chapel Royal and two for the Ante-Chapel.

Curious royal warrants and orders in connection with the conduct of services and attendance in the Chapel Royal are extant. In 1622 it was decreed by James I, that:

"Noe man whatsoever presume to wayte upon us to the Chappel in bootes and spurs."

Charles II, ordered for the chapel through Lord Sandwich, "Master of our Great Wardrobe," the following articles, connected doubtless with the upholstery and heating arrangements of the sacred edifice, as well as with the services:

"Item—two bare hydes of oxe leather.

"Item—three thousand of tenterhookes, three hamers, one fire shovle, one pare of tongs, three black jacks, three gispens, two brushes, one perfuming pan o firon, six houre glasses, and a paire of strong iron andirons; and that you content and pay for making the premises."

In explanation of these curious appliances it may be added that black jacks were large mugs made of leather, used in those days for the serving of small beer, and that a gispen was a small pot or cup, also made of leather. The perfuming pan of iron would be used for the incense burnt upon special occasions in the Chapel Royal, and the hour glasses probably to regulatte the length of the sermons.

In the days of long sermons George III, who was a regular attendant at the services, used to be left alone at the conclusion of them, according to an old story, with his equerry and the parson "to free it out together," the queen and the royal family having dropped out one by one from the chapel. It is narrated of the same monarch that he used to beat time with his music roll while the anthem was being sung, and incidentally bang the powdered polls of his pages when they were inattentive.

There is a record of the continuance of very long and emphatic sermons in later years in a repartee uttered by Queen Victoria during the first year of her reign, who upon being asked by Lord Normanby whether she had not found the chapel very hot, answered, "Yes, and the sermon was very hot too."

The choir of the Chapel Royal adds to the pictorial attributes of the edifice, as well as to the exquisite beauty of the services there performed. It is composed of the "gentlemen" and "children," and the children, or boys, are clad in the old fashioned royal uniform of gold and scarlet, with white ruffs and bands, knee breeches and stockings.

They are boarded, clothed and educated under the supervision of the master of the children or master of the song, an office that can be traced back as far as the reign of Edward IV.

Their musical training is given to them by the organist of the Chapel Royal. Nothing more beautiful in sound can be imagined than the pure and lovely voices of this unique choir, mingled with the mellow tones of gentlemen and the harmony of the extremely fine organ. It can best be likened to the singing at Magdalen college, Oxford; indeed, the analogy between the Chapel Royal and a college chapel is close.

Among hte names of past children are those of Orlando Gibbons, Henry Purcell, Sir John Goss, Samuel Sebastian Wesley and Sir Arthur Sullivan. When their voices break in the children are awarded as an acknowledgment of their good behavior the sum of £30 from the Lord Chamberlain and a Bible and prayer book from the bishop of London, as dean of the Royal Chapel. The children take part in state concerts, appearing in the handsome Old World costumes already described.

HIRED HEADGEAR.

London Daily News: In a little shop near Clement's Inn there lives a veteran hat maker of 82 summers who hopes that the day of the top hat will come again this year.

Piled against the panes of the window fronting Houghton street are rows of silk hats of varying shapes and degrees of glossiness. In front two handbills, bearing the imprint of an old-time printer of Bouverie street, announces that Christopher Clarke has for sale a variety of silk hats, ranging in price from 4s to 10s 6d each. On a circular board hung over the door it is stated that silk hats may be "hired for weddings and funerals."

"Trade is nothing like what it was," he confided yesterday to a member of our staff, "and orders for silk hats are not nearly so plentiful as they were when I started in the business in 1834. A good hat doesn't wear out every day, and it can be remade quite equal to new."

The lending of hats, he added, is not a very important or lucrative branch of the business, and it was only adopted three or four years ago to assist in retaining some of the trade that was slipping away. One shilling per day is charged for the loan of a smart up-to-date hat for use at a wedding or other social function.

THE TAXPAYERS' DIGNITY.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: "Many a time," said a policeman in the southern part of the city, "when arresting men, especially intoxicated men, I have been told by my prisoner that he was a taxpayer and that he helped pay my wages.

"I always regarded this sort of back talk as merely drunken insolence and never paid much attention to it until about a year ago, when I bought a house and lot and became myself a taxpayer. I had always rented before and never gave a thought to taxes, but as soon as I moved into my own house I began to appreciate the feelings of men who resented arrest because they paid taxes.

"There is certainly a considerable addition to the dignity of the man who helps support the government. He feels a degree of responsibility that a renter or roomer never understands, and my idea is that every man in the country ought to become a taxpayer as soon as he can, and the mere fact that he does help support the government and bears his share of the expense makes him a better citizen. Habitual criminals are rarely taxpayers. They know they may have to run any day and perhaps never come back, so they do not buy real estate, but are roomers and lodgers all their lives."

WOMEN'S CONGRESS IN FIGURES.

The following statistical summary of the recent women's congress in Rome is given by the Gazzetta di Venzia. There were assembled, the paper says, 447 congress members, of whom 446 delivered speeches. The one who did not was the representative of the deaf and dumb institute of Lombardy. In all, 628 speeches were made, most of which were improvised.

Of the women 26 were married, 28 widows and 302 spinsters. To ascertain the ages of the fair members seems to have been an impossible task, for the compiler contents himself with stating that only two were under 20 and 378 over 50.

He says ruthlessly that 113 women wore spectacles, 107 eyeglasses and 184 made use of reading glasses. Twelve women sported the latest creations in the now fashionable bell shaped hats, 28 wore rococo bonnets, 337 juvenile hats and 39 old fashioned grandmother caps.

There were also to be seen, adds the indiscreet reporter, seven wigs, four sets of false teeth, and eighteen snuff boxes in continuous use. During the congress the members dispatched 3,112 telegrams, with a total of more than 240,000 words, and they also sent off 140,000 picture post cards.

MISSING WILL IN OLD BOOK.

From the London Globe: A curious story of a missing will comes from Paris.

In 1906, M. Frossard, director of the Mont de Piete at Dijon, a bachelor, died without heirs, leaving a fortune of about 100,000 francs. He had previously announced to his intimates that he intended to remember them in his will, but on his death no will could be found. The fortune then went to three distant relatives.

During the last few days a German book collector, passing through Dijon, bought a lot of old books which had formerly belonged to M. Frossard. In one of them the collector came across the lost will, in which one of the oldest friends of the dead man was appointed residuary legatee.

The collector sent the will to this gentleman, and the aid of the French courts will now be invoked to distribute the property in terms of the will.

BRAZIL'S HIGH TARIFF.

Baltimore American: "Outside of a few cotton factories that are making good headway Brazil has very few infant industries to boast of," said Mr. H. W. Sapp, an American engineer who has lately visited that country.

"But in the name of fostering its industries the Brazilian congress has levied enormously high duties on imported goods. I met a fellow American in the state of Sao Paulo, who told me that a buggy he brought in from the United States was taxed $240 by the customs officials, although he paid for it here only $85."

You may know more about real estate hereabouts in half an hour from now—if you spend that time reading the ads.—than anybody else who has not read the latest ads.

WHEAT OFF IN DULUTH

Heavy Selling and Good Crop Reports Cause Decline.

The Erratic Flax Market Takes Another Big Dip.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 17.—Good weather reports, heavy selling by the bears, especially in Duluth and Minneapolis, and selling by the country elevators during the past week sent wheat down in all the American markets today, Duluth and Minneapolis leading in the decline. The movement was largely speculative and was based largely on operations in Minneapolis and Chicago, it is claimed.

There is a feeling that the decline has no bearing on the crop situation, but is purely the result of liquidation. Some of the big traders are overstocked, with the time for the delivery of the new crop approaching, and they unloaded their holdings on the market in too great a quantity for the prices to hold up.

The September option was 2½c off in Duluth, 1¼-⅝c off in Chicago, 2-2½c off in Minneapolis, 1⅜c off in New York, 1⅜c off in St. Louis, 1⅜-½c off in Kansas City. The December option was 1⅞c off in Duluth, 1⅜-½c off in Chicago, 2⅛c off in Minneapolis, 2c off in New York, 1½-⅝c off in St. Louis and 1⅜c off in Kansas City.

Oats were ⅜-½c up and corn ½c off. Cables were weaker and wheat closed ¼d off in Liverpool and ⅝c lower in Berlin. Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"As a result of the weakness in the American market on Saturday offerings of wheat in this market were larger with pressure to sell, and values at the openings were ½d lower. During the early morning, however, steadiness developed and prices showed a sharp advance, the near by month gaining ½d and the distance ¼d. The support was the result of the small shipments from the Danube. At midday, the market was firm and unchanged to ⅜d lower from Saturday.

"Corn was unchanged and neglected."

On account of the Canadian holiday, the visible supply was not published in full, no reports being received from Canadian lake ports. Exclusive of them, the visible supply was reported to be about 12,800,000 bus. Wheat on passage was reported to be 24,192,000 bus, against 23,720,000 bus a week ago, and 28,192,000 bus a year ago. Corn on passage today was reported at 11,570,000 bus, against 14,478,800 bus a week ago and 16,664,000 busa year ago.

Car receipts of wheat were 15 against 25 last year, and at Minneapolis 140 against 156 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 155 against 171 last year. Chicago received 177 against 848 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,066,000 bus, last year 1,058,000 bus. Shipments 683,000 bus, last year 445,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 533,871 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 519,000 bus, last year 531,000 bus. Shipments 591,000 bus, last year 534,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 1,262 bus.

World's shipments of wheat and corn for last week, the week previous and the corresponding week a year ago follow:

Trading was very quiet in the Duluth market, though heavy offerings of both wheat and flax sent prices down. One of the most remarkable features of the market was the demand for old cash wheat, which sold at 17⅜c over September wheat, while the new cash wheat sold at but 5c over September. The new wheat is unsuited for milling purposes at present, while the old crop is dry and hard, and the consumers are so hard pressed and stocks so low that they are bidding the price up in an effort to secure a sufficient stock to keep them going until the new wheat is fit for use in the mills.

September wheat opened ⅞ cents off at $1.01, dropped off to $1.00½, advanced to $1.00¾, fell off to 99⅜c, advanced to 99¾, fell back again to 99¼c and closed at 99⅜. December wheat was almost inactive, opening at 97c bid, 1⅜ cents under Saturday's closing price, and closing at 96¼ cents. Durum wheat was unchanged.

September flax opened ¼c up at $1.32½ asked, dropped to $1.31 rallied to $1.31½, fell off to $1.29½ and closed 3c off at $1.29¼. October flax opened at $1.29½ asked, against Saturday's close of $1.29¼, dropped first to $1.28 and then to $1.27¼, closing at $1.27 bid, 2¼c off. November flax opened ¼c off at $1.29, fell to $1.28¼, then to $1.27, rallied to $1.27¼ and also 2¼c off at $1.27 bid. December flax opened ¾c off at $1.26, dropped to $1.24½ and closed at that figure, 2¼c off.

Durum wheat was unchanged. Oats to arrive closed ½c up at 45⅜c and rye was unchanged. Barley closed at 50-61c against Saturday's closing price of 50-62c.

Close: Wheat—No. 1 hard on track, $1.18. On track: No. 1 northern, $1.17B; No. 2 northern, $1.23B; No. 1 northern new, $1.04¾; September, 99⅜cA; December, 96¼cB. Durum on track: No. 1 durum, 94c; No. 2, 92c; September, 88cB; October, 87cB.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Selling by Commission Houses Results in Break in Wheat Prices.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Weakness of the wheat market at Liverpool had a depressing effect on the local exchange today and induced free selling by several of the leading commission houses, which resulted in a 1c break soon after the opening. Later the market rallied considerably on covering by shorts. September opened ⅛@¼c lower at 92⅞c to 93⅛c, declined to 92⅛c and then advanced to 92⅛@¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 332 cars, against 452 cars last week and 530 cars a year ago.

The market became still weaker later in the session, owing to heavy selling by local longs and cash interests, prompted chiefly by sharp declines at Northwestern markets. For September the low point was reached, 91¼c. The close was weak, with September down 1¼@1⅜c, at 91¾c.

Additional rain in the corn belt brought out a large number of selling orders in the corn pit. Demand was comparatively slack, and as a result the market was weak. September opened ½c to ⅛@⅝c lower, at 75¼@¼c, to 75¼c and sold at 75@⅛c. Local receipts were 238 cars, with 94 of contract grade.

A firmer tone developed toward the middle of the day, when September advanced to 75⅝c, but the weakness of wheat soon caused another decline. The close was weak, final quotations of September being off ½c at 75¼c.

Oats opened easy, owing to the weakness of wheat and corn, but became firmer on covering by shorts. September opened at ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c lower, at 45⅝c to 45¾c. Local receipts were 188 cars.

General demand for provisions due to a 10c to 20c advance in live hogs, caused firmness in that market. September pork was up 10c at $15.17½. Ribs were 7½@10c higher, at $8.80.

Close: Wheat—September, 91¾c; December, 93⅜@½c; May, 97¾@⅞c. Corn—September, 75¼c; December, 63½c; May, 62⅝@¾c. Oats—September, 46⅜c; December, 46⅞@47c; May, 49¼c. Pork—September, $15.07½; October, $15.22; January, $16.02½. Lard—September, $9.27½; October, $9.37½; January, $9.10. Ribs—September, $8.77½; October, $8.87½; January, $8.07½. Rye—Cash September, 77c. Barley,—Cash, 62@66c. Timothy—September, $3.65; October, $3.55. Clover—October, $11.75. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 93¾@94½c; No. 3 red, 92¾@93½c; No. 2 hard, 93⅝@95c; No. 3 hard, 92@93½c; No. 3 spring, $1.05. Corn—No. 2, 77½@78c; No. 3, 77@½c. Oats—No. 3, new, 46c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

September Wheat Opens Below Dollar Line, But Soon Rallies.

Minneapolis, Aug. 17.—Good weather generally over Sunday in the spring wheat country and a prediction for fair weather, eliminated the wet harvest scare that had some effect last week. Receipts, however, were small, 140 cars against 156 a year ago and 15 against 25 in Duluth, the local elevator stocks decreasing 75,000 bushels for two days, as the local supply situation is stronger than ever. The Liverpool market was dull and listless and unchanged to ¼d lower. The pit sold the new September below the dollar line, but it was supported at that price and rallied. September opened $1.01; high $1.01¼; low, 99¼@⅜c; close, 99½@⅝c. Old September, $1.02; high, $1.02⅛; low, 99⅞c; close, $1.00⅛. December opened 98½c; high, 98⅜c; low, 97c; close, 97c. Old December closed, 97¼c.

Cash wheat was in good demand at $1.23 and $1.20 for No. 1 northern and No. 2. New No. 1 northern to arrive is 7½c to 8c over new September to arrive and 10c over to arrive by Aug. 25. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.22@1.23; spot, $1.06 to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.19@1.20 spot; $1.03 to arrive; No. 3 wheat, $1.13@1.15; No. 3 yellow corn, 77¾@78¼c; No. 3 white oats, 44¼c; No. 2 rye, 72¾@73¾c.

Barley receipts, 79 cars, all new but two or three cars, put the market 1c to 2c lower, but at the decline there was a good demand. Most of it sold between 56c and 58c with extremes at 53c and 60c. Close, 52@60c.

Flax receipts, 7 cars. No. 1 quoted Duluth September prices spot and 2c under to arrive. Close $1.29.

Millstuffs steady, unchanged and quoted by millers on basis of $19.50@$20.00 fgor bulk bran.

Millers did a litle flour business on new crop, but only a little. They are trying to get buyers into line. When prices get adjusted to the price basis of the new crop, increased milling activity is expected. Meanwhile prices are firm, in line with the cash wheat scarcity and trade is dull. Shipments, 37,041 barrels. First patents, $6.00@6.25; second patents, $6.00@6.15; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

New York Grain.

New York, Aug. 17.—Close: Wheat—September, $1; December, $1.01¾; May, $1.04¾. Corn—September, 85⅜c; December, 74½c.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Aug. 17.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 48 points on August and 5 to 8 points higher on later positions. The big August gain was on purchases of 300 bales, presumably for belated shorts, but at the advance considerable was offered for sale and the prices quickly reacted also, with the general list about 2 points net lower to 2 points higher during the middle of the morning. The market was very nervous and local traders were rather aggressive sellers on the opening advance.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Cedar Rapids, Iowa., Aug. 17.—John B. Bover, a pioneer banker of this city, died here today.

Small Point, Maine, Aug. 17.—Orville D. Baker of Augusta, a former attorney-general of Maine, died suddenly here last night of heart failure. He was 60 years old and unmarried.

STATUES TO WOMEN.

Woman: In the streets of London there are only five statues to women. Four of these are queens and the fifth is Mrs. Siddons, whose statue as the tragic muse is in Paddington Green.

In the matter of memorial tablets women fare no better, as out of fully 100 affixed to houses where celebrated people dwell only four have women's names upon them. These commemorate Fanny Burney (Mme. D'Arblay), Joanna Baillie, Elizabeth Barrett Browning and Mrs. Siddons.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Started Out Higher and Closed Strong and Active.

Best Prices of Session Recorded in the Final Trading.

New York, Aug. 17.—The stock market opened strong today on a fair volume of business. The Western stocks were in best demand, particularly the Hill group. American Smelting sold 2 points higher; Northern Pacific 1¼, Canadian Pacific 1 and most of the other important stocks from ½ to ¾.

Profit-taking sales caused a slight setback, but when new purchasing orders appeared the list advanced to a higher level than before. American Smelting preferred improved 1¼ and Reading, Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis, Great Northern preferred, Amalgamated Copper, National Lead and International Pump 1.

Business grew small at the high range of prices, but when liquidation began in New York Central, it started a general selling movement which made trading lively for a spell. American Smelting was sold heavily and relapsed to ⅝ below Saturday's closing. The generally active list ruled fractionally under last week's final prices. New York Central broke 2 points to 104 and was without any apparent support. Bonds were irregular.

A small portion of the forenoon decline was recovered, but after prices had reached a parity with Saturday's closing business, became intensely dull.

A steadier tone prevailed during the latter part of the day, but business continued very restricted. Railroad stocks were quoted at about their best prices. American Smelting was again lifted over a point. Canadian Pacific gained 2, Louisville & Nashville, 1¼ and Illinois Central and Wisconsin Central 1. Tennessee Copper fell 1½. An abrupt decline of 1¼ in Reading at 2 o'clock carried the market off again.

The market closed strong and active. St. Paul was bid up a point in order to offset the effect of Reading's weakness while the general market stiffened in sympathy, but renewed selling of Reading prevented the rally from making much progress. Subsequently Reading, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting and a few other stocks were bought in large amounts as prices rose in a spirited fashion to the best of the day.

New York stock quotations furnished by Fred H. Merritt, 328 West Superior street.

Closing prices are bid.

APPLIES LID TO THE BOOM

Governor Johnson Says Positively He Will Not be Candidate.

Feels Grateful for Sentiment, But His Decision is Final.

St. Paul, Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—If a third nomination is forced upon Governor Johnson by the Democrats of the state at the convention to be held Wednesday in Minneapolis, the convention will have to do its work over again. Tho St. Peter man so declares, and adds that his position in the matter is final. He says the press and those who are his friends cannot make it too plain for him to those who now seem bent on making him the sacrifice.

Following a ten days' lecture trip, Governor Johnson returned to the capitol at noon and without delay again proceeded to apply the lid to the boom launched in his favor. He was emphatic to a degree in his stand.

"The situation has not changed in the least," said the governor. "I have given my views on this matter before and I want to repeat them.

"I am not a candidate and I will not accept the nomination if it is tendered me. Now that is final and" turning to the newspaper men assembled, "you can make that just as emphatic as you please."

Grateful for Sentiment.

"I cannot but feel grateful for the sentiment and well wishes that is behind this movement to again place me at the head of the ticket, but inasmuch as I have expressed myself vigorously against the third term of elective offices and have declared that I would not be a candidate, to accept in the face of this would be to stultify myself.

"I owe it to the party, to the state and to myself not to accept and therefore I cannot and will not. This I will have to say, is final, and I hope my friends will accept my wishes to the extent that I will not be compelled to again declare myself."

Mayor Armson of Stillwater, now has the lead in the Democratic gubernatorial nomination muddle. Governor Johnson's emphatic statement today that he would not accept the nomination under any consideration practically leaves the Stillwater man the only candidate available. Congressman Hammond of St. James, in a letter to John Lind, declares that he will not permit the use of his name unless the tender is unanimous, and this at the present stage of the game, is looked upon as impossible. Hennepin county, which has indorsed Governor Johnson, will not stand for Hammond, according to the leaders.

Charles Hoyt Dies.

News of the death in Spokane of Charles W. Hoyt, a former resident of West Duluth, was received in the city today.

He was 48 years old and left West Duluth in 1896 to locate in Spokane, where he has made his home since.

AUGUST 17, 1908.
Again we had a big lot of trading in the local curbs. Butte & Superior was the leader. This stock should easily advance to $1.75 or $2.00 a share. It closed $1.12½ bid strong, and this office can take care of thousands of shares at this level. Buy it to a standstill, for it is sure to at least double in a short time. Ballaklava is strong at $7.12 bid. Only a few weeks more and this should be one of the greatest moneymakers in the country. Ballaklava and Shattuck are as good as gold dollars at 25c apiece. Copper Queen holds well at $1.37½, and on a strong market this one should be one of the first to respond. Greene-Cananea at $11 should be safe. Superior & Pittsburg at $13.50 should also be a good one to put away, but when you get right down to business, and think of the possibilities of the Ballaklava and Shattuck mines, then you will surely buy them. It is true they do not go in spurts, but they are safe. Butte & Superior, while it is a low-priced stock, has a broad market, and if you get two for one in a short time, that is probably better than you can do on any of the others for at least 60 to 90 days.
Our wires reach from coast to coast. We can give you the best of service. Give us your business.

CONGRESSMAN TO BE TRIED FOR LARCENY.

Norwalk, Ohio, Aug. 17.—Congressman Lanning was ordered tried on charges of embezzlement and larceny, in a decision handed down by Judge D. A. Doyle, in common pleas court this morning. The judge refused the plea of abatement made by the indicted banker's attorneys. The indictments charging Lanning and James G. Gibbs with obtaining money under false pretenses, and the indictment brought under the free banking act of 1851, charging misapplication of $56,864.43, was dismissed. The judge held that the latter indictment is not good, because the Ohio Trust company, of which two men were the heads, was not doing business under the law.

Gibbs, therefore, goes free, while Lanning must face trial, under the indictments which charged him singly with embezzlement and larceny.

DID NOT HAVE TYPHOID.

North Dakota Professor Gave Doctors Scare for Few Minutes.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—With his system filled with bacteria accumulated while conducting experiments in the agricultural laboratories, Prof. Bassett was hurried to the hospital under the impression tthat he had typhoid. When his case failed to respond to treatment it was discovered that he had other different germs and is now rapidly recovering.

Prof. Van Es, of the North Dakota Agricultural college has commenced the manufacture of vaccine to cure hog cholera. This will be distributed among the farmers of the state without charge, so any swine can be quickly treated and epidemics of the disease be prevented.

MARINE NEWS

DOWLING IS BURNED

The Ill-Fated Tug is a Total Loss at Ashland.

Three Firemen Just Escape Drowning in the Hold.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The tug Tom Dowling caught fire while tied at the dock at midnight last night, burned to the hull, turned turtle, and sank, nearly carrying down with her three city firemen who were in the hold fighting the fire.

This is the third time the Dowling has sunk during the last nine months. While breaking ice near Washburn last fall she went down, but was later raised, and repaired in Ashland. Shortly after being repaired she again sunk, carrying down with her, her owner, Albert Ceal, who was nearly drowned. On this occasion it is said that some one opened the seacocks, with the deliberate intention of sinking her.

She had just been repaired, and inspected, and would have been put in commission this morning had not this last accident happened.

FREIGHTER RUNS ASHORE.

Grounds on Park Point During Fog Early Sunday Morning.

During the thick fog of Sunday morning the steamer Mahoning missed the canal entry and ran on the beach of Minnesota Point. The boat was moving slowly at the time of the accident, feeling her way into the harbor. She ran on the sand, and was released without much difficulty by the tug Inman of the Union Towing & Wrecking company. She was uninjured.

This is the second mishap that has happened to the Mahoning this month. On Aug. 2, while passing the Van Buren street bridge in the Chicago river, one end of the bridge fell on her, smashing off her foremast, but doing no further damage.

The steamer Mahoning is owned by the Anchor line, and is engaged in the package freight business.

MORE BOATS FITTED OUT

Three More Tomlinson Vessels Are Put in Commission.

"Trade Will Boom in Two Weeks," Predicts Owners.

That business activity on the Great Lakes is on the upward trend is beginning to be realized by vessel agents. In order to care for it, boats are being fitted out and full crews sent aboard.

The Sonoma and Ball Brothers of the Tomlinson fleet are being fitted out, and the Saxona of the same line, has already been put in shape and has left Buffalo for Duluth.

Two of the Wolvin boats were fitted out and put into commission last week, and a number of the independent boats that have been laid up since last fall are being shifted to the Superior shipyards for extensive repairs, preparatory to a busy fall season.

G. A. Tomlinson of the Tomlinson Transportation company said this morning that lake trade is certainly on the increase, and that the fall trade will be lively enough to satisfy all vessel owners.

"It's been a long time coming, and the season so far has been unusually dull," said Mr. Tomlinson, "but after the next two weeks lake trade will be on the boom."

A glance at the marine list today will show that trade is the best this season. Coal is arriving in great quantities, ore is going down the lake much faster than before, and the merchandise trade is good; about the average lumber business is being transacted, and very few of the large boats are going down or coming back light.

RAILROADS

ROUTE WHEAT VIA DULUTH

Rainy Lake Officials Negotiate for Shipment of Canadian Grain.

Roy Hall, traffic manager of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway, is at the present time guring on shipping tariffs for the routing of Canadian wheat over the D., R. L. & W. railway to this city, whence it will be shipped by the lake route to Buffalo, or by rail route to the eastern seaports.

It is generally believed that the great volume of wheat will so congest the Canadian lines that they will be unable to take care of it. It is estimated that 120,000,000 bushels will be produced by Canada this year, and it is not believed that the Canadian roads will be able to take care of this unprecedented yield.

In the event of Canadian wheat being shipped via this city it is probable that the South Shore would ship some of it east. The strike on the Canadian Pacific, if not settled before the wheat movement starts, is liable to further congest the wheat movement. It is probable that the Canadian Pacific would seek to ship some of the wheat east over a line in which it is heavily interested—the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic.

Mr. Hall believes that the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg will gets its share of the Canadian wheat.

Fall Excursions.

The annual autumn excursions of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway to Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and Buffalo will take effect September 9, 1, 16, and 18 via the South Shore to St. Ignace and the Detroit and Cleveland steamers.

The fare to Detroit and return will be $12, which also includes Cheboygan, Alpena, Harbor Beach and Port Huron. The fare to Toledo and return will be $12.50; to Cleveland, $13.50, and to Buffalo, $14. The tickets will be good until three weeks from date of issue.

WOMAN KILLS HUSBAND AND SHOOTS HERSELF.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Mrs. Mary Cassidy, while temporarily insane, today shot and insatntly killed her husband, John Cassidy, and then shot herself through the body. She was taken to a hospital, where her condition was said to be precarious. She had been previously an inmate of an asylum, from which she was released about three months ago.

PLANS FOR A FIRE TUG

Mayor Receives Design for One That Would Cost $90,000.

Believed Harbor Interests Will Raise the Purchase Price.

Mayor Roland D. Haven has received a design for a fire tug suitable for Duluth from the Racine Boat Manufacturing company of Muskegon, Mich. A friend of the mayor's, who is employed by the Michigan company, told his employers of the needs of Duluth, and they furnished the design as a suggestion, without request from the city.

The tug is almost an exact counterpart of one now being used in Milwaukee, which has given great satisfaction. The vessel designed for Duluth would measure 118 feet in length and would cost in the neighborhood of $90,000. It would measure 26 feet in width, and would have a draft of 10 feet 6 inches.

The equipment would consist of two large Scotch boilers, with three double-acting, vertical duplex crank and fly wheel pumps, with a capacity of 3,000 gallons each per minute, or a combined capacity of 9,000 gallons a minute. Their pressure is 170 pounds to the square inch.

If a more expensive tug is desired, the company recommends that the city get in communication with W. I. Babcock of New York, designer of two modern fire tugs ordered for Chicago. These tugs are more powerful and more complete than the one designed by the Racine company, and would cost about $125,000.

The Commercial club committee is looking up the matter of a fire tug for the city, and will be ready with a report inside of three or four weeks, possibly sooner. In view of the fact that the city will be unable to stand the expense, an effort is being made to get all the interests that would be benefitted by such an improvement to contribute towards the cost of the tug. Thus far, a general willingness has been expressed to contribute, and it is believed the plan will meet with success. The saving in fire insurance would in a few years pay for the cost of the tug.

Mayor Haven has recommended that if the craft is secured, arrangements be made so that it can be connected with the city mains, to provide a high pressure in case of fire emergency. The idea is to run a pipe from the Michigan street main to the bay front, where a hose would connect it with the fire tug, both summer and winter. When a high pressure was needed, the tug could start its pumps working and by pumping into the mains would accomplish the desired result. This would do the work of the fire engines, and do the work quicker than they could in certain districts.

HARMONY WILL RESULT.

Republican Factions of North Dakota Pulling Together.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are no more factional differences in the North Dakota Republican circles. Representatives of both former opposing elements of the party have said so. The harmony is the result of t the meeting that was held here Saturday. Harharmony is the result of the meet - meeting; it was the keynote of all addresses.

The meeting had some secondary objects, chief of which were to effect a preliminary organization and to make tentative suggestions for the state central committee. The organization of the latter is delayed under the primary law and will be held at Bismarck, Sept. 2. The recent conference decided to name a committee to draft tentative platforms that may be submitted to the state central committee.

STRIKE IN THE INDIANA COAL FIELDS SPREADS.

Terra Haute, Ind., Aug. 17.—With today's action by the various mining fields of the state, none of which will give notice until after 1 o'clock the fate of the strike in the entire Indiana coal fields will be finally determined. With the exception of about 500 men still at work in the Evansvill field the strike in District 11 is now complete. This district includes Brazil block field. The Evansville and Brazil men are expected to take final action before night. Near Linton two of the mines of the Vandalia Coal company are idle.

INJURED MAN SHOWS REMARKABLE NERVE.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—A remarkable exhibition of grit and nerve was witnessed today when George Nagle, 22 years of age, carrying his left arm, which had been severed by a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul train, staggered up to a policeman and then fainted after telling his story. Nagle had carried the grewsome bundle of mangled flesh for two blocks in an effort to find a physician's office. He had attempted to board a passing freight train, but had slipped on the wet rungs of the ladder and fallen beneath the trucks. He was taken to a hospital.

ADVERTISING MAN QUITS UNION PACIFIC.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 17.—Alfred Darlow, advertising agent of the Union Pacific, has placed his resignation in the proper hands, effective Sept. 1, by which time he will have completed twenty years' service with that company. He leaves the field to devote his entire time to personal business. Mr. Darlow is one of the most prominent and widely known railroad advertising men in the country, and has perhaps the most extensive acquaintance among newspaper men and publishers.

WOMAN INJURED WHILE TRYING TO SAVE CHILD.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Fannie Dudovitz, 590 Temperance street, lies at the city hospital unconscious from serious injuries suffered while endeavoring to save her child and herself, by leaping from her window in her burning home early Sunday morning.

Fire originated from an explosion of a gasoline stove in the kitchen of the home where Mrs. Dudovitz was preparing a meal for her son.

FIRING ON SENTRIES AND RETURNING SHOTS CAUSE UNREST AT SPRINGFIELD

MISS EVA BOOTH,
Commander of the Salvation Army of the United States, Was Overcome by Heat at Winona Lake Conference After Delivering a Speech Monday Night. She Was Much Improved Tuesday.

Flying Bullets a Source of Uneasiness to the People.

As Far as Known No One Was Hurt by the Shots.

Many Negroes Taken From Cornfields and Sent to Arsenal.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 18.—An attack upon pickets and the forced hegira of 150 negroes from cornfields on the outskirts of the city to the state arsenal, kept the militia busy this morning. The firing upon the sentries, and their answering shots, occurred less than two blocks from the headquarters of Gen. E. C. Young, at the county jail. No one was injured in the affray, but the flying bullets from the militia caused consternation in the district.

The trouble followed an attempt to set fire to a factory on Eighth street, between Jefferson and Madison. A negro, who had been ordered away from the place several times during the night, was discovered lurking in the shadow by Private George Howell of Troop "E," First cavalry. Howell again ordered the man to move on, but the negro's reply was a shot from a revolver. He dashed down the street, disregarding the commands of other sentries to halt. As he turned into an alley, Corporal Adelman and Private H. L. Owenstein, both of Troop "E," fired at him. The shots went wild, but they aroused the headquarters, two blocks away, and Company "E" of the First infantry was sent to the place on the double quick.

The alley and adjacent houses were searched, but no trace of the fugitive was discovered. The affair happened shortly before daybreak and was the third occasion of the night in which attempts had been made to assassinate militia pickets.

Clearing of Cornfields.

The clearing out of the cornfields southeast of the city was the result of successive nights of terror in Harvard park. An inspection of the cornfields, late yesterday, showed that at least 150 negro refugees had camped therein. The presence of the negroes is thought to have been responsible for the disturbed conditions in the suburb. Both last night and Sunday depredations by starving refugees had caused the trouble. At daybreak today Company "E," First infantry, under Capt. Jacob

HAVE CAUGHT N. JOLECICH

Embezzler, Wanted at Bovey, is Taken Near Milwaukee.

Puts Up Desperate Fight With Detectives Before Being Arrested.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nikola Jolecich, who is wanted in Bovey to answer to the charge of embezzlement, is under arrest at Milwaukee, according to advices received by Sheriff Hoolihan, and will be brought here as soon as the necessary extradition papers can be secured. Application has been made to Governor Johnson at St. Paul for a requisition upon Governor Davidson of Wisconsin, and as soon as the papers arrive from St. Paul, Sheriff Hoolihan will start for Madison to present them to Governor Davidson and secure a warrant for the removal of Jolecich from Wisconsin. Jolecich was employed

IMMIGRATION IS FALLING OFF

Figures for July Show a Great Decrease of Newcomers.

Washington, Aug. 18.—A decided falling off in the immigration from all countries to the United States for the month of July last is shown by figures compiled by the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization which were made public today. The total immigration to the United States for the period mentioned was 27,570, against 97,132 in 1907, a decrease of 72 per cent. The greatest decrease in any country is shown for Russia, the figures being 6,198 ,compared with 23,971 in 1907, a decrease of 74 per cent.

The total number of debarred from all countries was 35, compared with 1,241 in 1907, a decrease of 57 per cent.

Immigration from all countries for the six months ended July 31 last aggregated 193,006, against 786,667 for the same period in 1907, showing a decrease of 75 per cent.

The total number of immigrants debarred was 3,498, against 6,299 in 1907, a decrease of 44 per cent.

The total immigration from Russia for the same period was 32,284, compared with 144,531 in 1907, a decrease of 78 per cent.

LONE DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE

For Governor in Michigan the Only One to File.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 18.—Yesterday was the last day for the filing of petitions under the primary law. While the work of checking over petitions has not been entirely completed, it is evident that the following names of candidates will be certified to as entitled to places on the primary ballot:

For governor, Governor Fred Warner, James B. Bradley and G. S. Earle, Republicans; Lawton T. Seemans, Democrat; John W. Gray, Prohibition. For lieutenant governor, Patrick H. Kelley, Republican. No Democrat qualified.

For members of congress, all Republicans: Second district, Charles Townsend; Third district, Washington Gardner, E. N. Dingley, C. M. Barry; Fifth district, G. J. Diekema; Sixth district, Samuel Smith; Seventh district, Henry McMoran; Eighth district, Joseph W. Fordney, John W. Fitzgerald; Ninth district, James C. McLaughlin; Tenth district, George A. Loud, Frank L. Edinborough, L. G. Dafoe; Eleventh district, F. M. Dodd, George G. Covell.

Lawton Seemans is the only candidate on the Democratic ticket for governor and is in fact the only man nominated for any office by the Democracy on that ticket s ofar as officially known.

NOTIFICATION TO E. W. CHAFIN

That He is Prohibition Candidate to Occur Tuesday Evening.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—The meeting at which Eugene W. Chafin of Chicago will be formally notified of his nomination as the Prohibition candidate for the presidency will be held in Music hall here at 8 o'clock this evening. The notification address will be by Prof. Charles Scanlon of Pittsburg, general field secretary of the temperance committee of the Presbyterian church of America. Following the notification by Mr. Scanlon, Mr. Chafin will deliver his speech of acceptance, in which he is expected to outline the policies for which the Prohibitionists will make a hard campaign this fall. A number of the leading members of the Prohibition party arrived in the city today to attend the notification.

SEATTLE WANTS THE CONVENTION

Washington City Working Hard for Editorial Meeting Next Year.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The editors, who are here attending the national editorial convention got down to business today. Much interest is already being shown in the contest between the cities that desire the next meeting of the association. Invitations have been received from Toledo, Cincinnati, Seattle, Atlantic City, Put-in-Bay, Ohio, Chattanooga, and Chicago.

Seattle is making the strongest fight for the convention in 1909. William A. Steel, treasurer of the association is from Seattle. He feels confident that the Washington city will get the next meeting.

"We invited the association to meet in Seattle in 1909 two years ago," said Mr. Steel. "Our exposition takes place next year and we want to get all the conventions we can. We renewed our invitation last year and now we are ready to press our claims. We feel certain that we will have no difficulty in getting the convention, although the other places will of course get a few votes."

It is a little early in the convention to forecast the election result, but as yet no opposition has appeared to the present officers who desire re-election. Will H. Mayer, who is now first vice president, is conceded to be the choice for the next president. The second and third vice presidents, A. N. Pomeroy and R. E. Dowell, will probably be advanced one step. This will leave an opening in the position of third vice president. As far as is now known, this is the only position to which an entirely new officer will have to be chosen.

"FIGHTING BOB" EVANS REACHES AGE LIMIT AND RETIRES FROM ACTIVITY

ADMIRAL EVANS,
Who Retired From Active Service Tuesday, Having Reached the Age Limit.

Famous Name Removed From Active List of the Navy.

Admiral Began His Fighting Career With the Civil War.

Has Been Known as the Reliable Man in Emergency.

IMPORTANT EVENTS IN LIFE OF ADMIRAL EVANS.

Born in Floyd county, Virginia, Aug. 18, 1846.
Educated in the public schools of Washington, D. C.
Appointed to naval academy Sept. 20, 1860; graduated in 1863.
Made ensign Oct. 1, 1863; lieutenant, July 25, 1866; lieutenant commander, July, 1878; captain, June 27, 1893; rear admiral, Feb. 11, 1901.
Participated in attack on Fort Fisher Jan. 15, 1865.
During the war with Spain he was commander of the Iowa, taking active part in the destruction of Cervera's fleet, July 3, 1898.

Washington, Aug. 18.—The name of as gallant and efficient an officer as ever wore the American naval uniform was removed from the active list today, when Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, known the world over as "Fighting Bob," was retired for age. Admiral Evans took the great Atlantic battleship fleet around Cape Horn last winter and his official career virtually ended with the arrival of the fleet at San Francisco. Since that time he has been on leave of absence and has been sojourning at various health resorts in an effort to conquer a bad attack of rheumatism, an ailment from which he has suffered for a number of years.

With the single exception of Admiral Dewey, "Fighting Bob" Evans was undoubtedly the best known and most popular officer the American navy has known since the heroes of the Civil war period, passed from active life. Admiral Evans in recent years has been known as the reliable man of the navy, for there was always assurance that he would discharge his duty with courage and patroltism, and with tact and diplimacy should his mission become a delicate one. Throughout his career he was adored by his men,

EARTHQUAKES AT EUREKA, CAL.

Two Sharp Shocks Do Some Damage to Old Buildings.

Eureka, Cal., Aug. 18.—Two sharp earthquake shocks were felt here this morning, the first at 3 o'clock and the second at 5:45. The first was the heavier and did some damage to the walls of old buildings, but no one was injured. Crockery in many houses was broken and the sleeping inhabitants were startled into wakefulness.

It is not believed that any serious damage resulted in the town, although the walls of the courthouse were slightly cracked.

Eureka is in Humboldt county, Cal., on the coast, 215 miles north of San Francisco.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 18.—The weather bureau here has no report of earthquakes anywhere except at Eureka, which seemed to have been a local disturbance of slight severity.

COMMANDER EVA BOOTH IS OVERCOME BY HEAT.

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 18.—The condition of Miss Eva Booth, commander of the Salvation Army of the United States, who was overcome by the heat and collapsed at the Winona Lake Bible conference following her address last night, was improved today. The patient, in charge of friends, started for her home in New York city.

SHERMAN HEARS THAT HE IS TAFT'S RUNNING MATE

JAMES S. SHERMAN,
Republican Nominee for the Vice Presidency.

Official News Communicated to Him at His Utica Home.

Thousands of People Participate in an Elaborate Program.

Candidate Outlines His Policies in Speech of Acceptance.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 18.—In one of the briefest speeches ever delivered by a candidate for so high an office, James Schoolcraft Sherman at noon today accepted the nomination of the Republican party for the vice presidency. He spoke from a flag decked stand erected in front of his home in Genesee street and was surrounded by party leaders from different sections of the country and by an enthusiastic non-partisan crowd of friends and fellow townsmen. The nomination was tendered by a committee appointed at the Chicago convention in June, Senator Jullius C. Burrows of Michigan, being the chairman and spokesman. There were brief addresses also by Secretary of State Root, by President M. W. Stryeker of Hamilton college, from which Mr. Sherman was graduated; by Mayor Thomas Wheeler of Utica, and by Charles S. Symonds, chairman of the local reception committee.

Senator Burrows Speaks.

Chairman Burrows spoke as follows:

Mr. Sherman: The unanimity with which you were nominated was a fitting tribute to you as a man, and a just recognition of your long and valuable services to the party and the country.

Five times during the history of the country has the vice president been called upon to discharge the duties of the president of the United States, and if in the mysterious dispensation of Providence such responsibility shall fall upon you, your long experience in public life and familiarity with public affairs, your mature judgment and patriotic impulses, would insure the continuance of a wise administration and the safety and well-being of the republic.

Mr. Bryan, in his recent speech of acceptance to the committee notifying him of his nomination as the candidate of the Democratic party for the office of president, presented what he regarded as the paramount issue of the campaign in the question, "Shall the people rule?"

This declaration is a thinly veiled criticism of the Republican party, in that the impression is sought to be made that under a Republican administration the rule of the people is suppressed. In spite of this declaration, Mr. Bryan charges that publicity for campaign expenses by political parties is generally desired, and that the Republican congress refused to enact such a law. Mr. Bryan does not state the whole truth. It is true that the Republican committee of the house of representatives reported the measure providing for the publication of all campaign expenses incurred in the course of an election, and such a measure was considered by the house.

REAR ADMIRAL LAID AT REST

Body of James K. Cogswell is Buried at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 18.—The body of the late Rear Admiral James K. Cogswell, retired, was interred in the Cogswell lot as Forest Home cemetery here this morning. Funeral services were held in St. Paul's Episcopal church, conducted by Rev. Henry S. Pateley, with the full surpliced choir. The funeral was civil in character and the pall bearers included the old schoolmates of the rear admiral, namely: Lieut. Gen. Arthur Mac Arthur, United States army; Gen. Charles King, George W. Peckham, James Sawyer, W. S. Seaman and James S. Prentiss, all of this city.

The first intimation of any serious illness of Rear Admiral Cogswell was a telegram from Jacksonville, received last Friday announcing his death.

Rear Admiral Cogswell was born in Milwaukee, 64 years ago and was reared here. He is survived by his widow, a son and daughter.

AWAITING THE FLEET

City of Sydney, N. S. W., Will Give Americans Great Reception.

Plans Are Being Worked Out on Elaborate Scale.

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 18.—Sydney is awaiting the arrival of the American battleship fleet on the tiptoe of expectancy, and the seven days that the vessels will be here will witness a series of entertainments more elaborate than has ever been given in New South Wales.

Sydney is filling up with an enormous influx of visitors from the country, and the transportation facilities have been taxed to their utmost. The decorations have been carried forward on an elaborate scale. The principal streets have been converted into picturesque avenues and the commonwealth, state and civic buildings are beflagged and festooned in complimentary designs. At the customs house there has been erected a naval device representing the Mayflower and inscribed with the words "To the kinship of the Mayflower."

Over the land office there is an immense boarding, bearing the words, "Seas do not divide us," and there are other striking displays on Mac. Quarie street, George street and Martin place. On the section of Pitt street entitled "American avenue" there has been erected a handsome pavilion for the official reception to the American officers by the representatives of the state and in addition many of the public, business and private buildings of the city have made preparations for an elaborate illumination.

The program includes receptions, dinners, balls, garden parties, excursions inland, baseball and football matches, a military review, fireworks, theater parties, concerts and a church parade.

There is great interest in the forthcoming fight between "Tommy" Burns, the American pugilist, and "Bill" Squires, of Australia. Burns came out from London for this encounter. A record gate of $75,000 is expected.

TOWN MARSHAL FATALLY HURT

Mountain Lake, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—This town was thrown into a frenzy of excitement yesterday afternoon, when in a fight with four strangers, who were supposed to have robbed a local meat market, J. Lewis, village marshal, was stabbed in the abdomen and fatally injured.

The quartet were just getting away from the scene of their alleged crime when discovered by Marshal Lewis. He immediately gave chase and a desperate battle was fought in the vicinity of the Omaha stock yards on the outskirts of the town. One of the men used a knife to advantage, inflicting injuries on the marshal which were expected to cause death.

Having disposed of the officer the strangers attempted to escape, but a posse of citizens soon overtook them and after another lively encounter all were arrested and lodged in jail.

Feeling is strong against the prisoners. They refused to give their names or any information concerning their personality which might lead to their identification.

FEARED PARTY MAY BE DROWNED

Great Anxiety Felt for Young People of Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 18.—Great anxiety is felt here at the non-arrival of three well known young people who went in a sailboat from Winnipeg Beach to Whytewold Beach, a distance of four miles yesterday afternoon, but who were caught in a squall and carried out into Lake Winnipeg. It is believed they were drowned. A searching party was out hunting for them with launches in every direction last night and today. Some of the searchers went across the lake a distance of sixty miles.

The missing are Edith Turnock of Grove street, D. McGifford of Cumberland avenue and F. Lambert of Whytewold Beach.

ALL LINES WANT HUNTERS.

Steamship Companies Anxious to Learn Route Roosevelt Will Take.

New York, Aug. 18.—Although it will be many months before President Roosevelt and his party start on their hunting trip to Africa, the question as to what route he will take is already agitating the big steamship lines whose steamers leave this port. The president's business, as the steamship men call it, is eagerly sought, and the steamship lines are willing to go to almost any length to have the honor of transporting the president across the North Atlantic. A steamship man said yesterday that the lines were watching for the first inkling of the party's plans. Two lines, it is said, have written to the president offering inducements and asking for the honor of carrying the hunting party.

TO SPEAK IN MINNESOTA.

Governor Hughes Expected to Deliver Speech at St. Paul.

Washington, Aug. 18.—When Governor Hughes is renominated at Saratoga next month, it is the plan of the Republican national committee to arrange for him a campaign trip of about two weeks. During that period it is proposed to have Governor Hughes speak in twelve states and Minnesota is on the tentative list. But one speech will be delivered in each state and, if Minnesota's date is arranged, the address of New York's governor will be delivered in St. Paul. Notwithstanding the opposition of many leading representatives in New York, including National Committeeman Ward and State Chairman Woodruff, Governor Hughes' nomination seems inevitable.

WEATHER—Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday; warmer.

CHARLES W. HOYT'S DEATH.

He Was Found Dead in His Room at Spokane.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles W. Hoyt, formerly of Duluth, an attorney and theatrical manager, was found dead in his room at the Baldwin house here the night of Aug. 13. The body was discovered by the landlord, J. E. Rodenhader. The probability is Mr. Hoyt had been dead at least twenty-four hours when found.

The early indications connected with Mr. Hoyt's death pointed to probable suicide, but subsequent developments lead Coroner Witter to form the conclusion that Hoyt died from natural causes.

The last person who saw Hoyt alive was Jimmie Durkin, Democratic candidate for governor, for whom Hoyt sent Wednesday morning. Durkin says Hoyt complained of being unable to sleep and was almost a nervous wreck. Durkin took Hoyt to the German bakery, procured for him a glass of hot milk and a newspaper and then sent him back to his room.

One of the bartenders in Mr. Durkin's place, who knew Hoyt well, says he had not drank anything in six months.

Investigation of Hoyt's room showed a glass partly filled with water on the dresser and a bottle which had contained antiseptic tablets, in one of the dresser drawers. Coroner Witter has had the water analyzed, showing that it contained no poisonous substance. The bottle is believed to have been left there by some former occupant of the room.

Those who have suggested possible suicide in connection with Hoyt's death base their suggestions on his recent domestic troubles and heavy financial reverses in his amusement enterprises. Hoyt and his wife separated some months ago, but were reunited. A few weeks ago a second estrangement occurred and Mrs. Hoyt and her children went to the home of her mother in Illinois, where she is at present.

Hoyt came to Spokane from Duluth, seven years ago. Prior to coming here he had practiced law. After coming to Spokane he formed the law partnership of Hoyt & Dicks, with offices in the Rookery, which continued until three years ago. Hoyt, about this time, was interested in a big roller rink at Natorium park, which burned in the fall of 1906. Subsequently he promoted the open air theater at Natatorium, which proved to be a money loser. His connection for a time with the Coliseum roller rink caused financial loss, all of which misfortunes, coupled with his domestic troubles, tended to make Hoyt despondent at times. Three or four weeks ago he sold his home for $4,000. His family residence prior to the departure of his wife was at 801 York avenue.

The body was taken to Smith & Co.'s undertaking parlors, and an effort will be made to communicate with his wife. No funeral arrangements have been made.

FIRST SENIOR CLASS.

Irving High School Will Offer Full Course This Year.

For the first time in the history of the Irving high school, there will be a senior class conducted there this fall.

The high school course at the Irving school, is but three years old. Each year a class has been added to their course. The class of 1909, which four years ago entered the school as freshmen, will be the first high school graduating class ever sent out of the Irving building. In 1905 the school started with but one class in the high school department. Each year as that class has entered the year ahead, a new class has started on its high school career. This fall will see four full fledged high school classes in the West Duluth school.

School opens this fall in all Duluth schools on Sept. 8, and the Irving pupils who will have the distinction of being the members of the first class to graduate from the Irving high school, are making the most of their last summer's vacation before they enter on their final school year.

In order to paint and repair the manual training department of the Irving school, the summer manual training school, which has been conducted there by the Women's council for several weeks, was yesterday brought to a close.

The summer course was a marked success. It was well attended and the pupils were very much interested in their work. The school was in charge of Mrs. J. F. Killorin, and she is very much pleased with the success it has met with. The manual training work was taught by A. A. Brenniman, former instructor of that department at the Irving school.

West Duluth Briefs.

A camping party, chaperoned by Miss Annie Morgan, left yesterday for the Wisconsin shore of the St. Louis river, where they will spend a week outing. The party is made up of Clara Randall, Delina Gauthier, Zella Melrow, Ella Brassord, Abbie Randall, Hugh Dorothy, Caleb Ives, Floyd Smith and Wilson Cummings.

J. L. Trueblood of Jackson, Miss., is spending a few days in West Duluth.

Christ Foss of Rainier, Minn., who has been visiting in West Duluth, has returned to his home.

Mrs. J. R. McKinnon of 5308 Main street has as her guests Miss Blanche Sutherland of Virginia and Miss Helen Jackson of Saginaw, Mich.

Mrs. Frank Olin and Mrs. A. Hegland have returned from a trip to Sweden, where they visited their parents for three months.

The funeral of Edward Allen of 210 North Sixty-first avenue west, will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock from the St. James' Catholic church.

Miss Lilly Ness, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank for the past week, has returned to her home in Minneapolis.

Miss B. Frank and Elden Frank have gone to Colfax, Wis., for a few weeks to visit with relatives.

Annie Gradine and William S. Johnson of St. Louis county were married yesterday afternoon at the West Duluth police station by Justice of Peace J. B. Flack.

August Hickey, formerly of West Duluth, now of Chicago, arrived in West Duluth yesterday with his wife and daughter. They will visit Mr. Hickey's parents at Hermantown. Mr. Hickey has recently started a broom factory at Chicago.

Carnival at West Duluth all week.

Edward Warner, of 209 Fifty-sixth avenue west, has as his guest his mother from LaCrosse.

Miss Laura Pearson, of 3 South Fifty-eighth avenue west, has as her guest Miss Ella Schwandt of Milwaukee.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Asbury M. E. church will meet in the church parlors tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for a short business session.

Word was received in West Duluth last evening that Vincent, the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Method, died at Bemidji yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Method were residents of West Duluth until about two weeks ago, when they moved to Bemidji. The death of their little son was very sudden. Mrs. Joseph Brotherton, sister of Mrs. Method, left for Bemidji last evening to attend the funeral of her nephew.

Hugh Vina went to Scanlon yesterday on business.

Big crowds attended the Woodmen's street carnival last evening and every one seemed well pleased with the attractions. Tonight they put on a new show, a minstrel show, which is said to be one of the best attractions. Tomorrow afternoon there will be a matinee.

Mrs. Minnie Govett this morning at 11 o'clock became the wife of James Medland. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride, 711 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, by Rev. W. J. Lowrie, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church. Mr. Medland is a half brother of Mrs. Govett's former husband, Thomas G. Govett.

RAILROADS ARE READY FOR WHEAT

H. E. Still Says Western Lines Have Plenty of Cars.

Gradual Movement to the Grain Fields Has Begun.

H. E. Still, assistant general freight agent of the Northern Pacific railway, who is in the city today, states that the roads of the West are prepared to handle one of the largest wheat crops of recent years, and handle it in a manner that will leave little complaint on the part of the shippers. The fact that there is at the present time about 200,000 surplus cars in the country is the reason why Mr. Still believes that the Western lines will experience little difficulty in handling the wheat crop, however big.

"The Northern Pacific is in excellent shape to handle the wheat crop," said Mr. Still. "I may say that our cars are in excellent shape, that we have enough cars to handle the crop, and that we anticipate no car shortage this fall. From what reports we have received we are led to believe that the crop will be fully as heavy as the crop of two years ago. There was a car shortage then, if you remember, but the conditions are radically different this year.

"Two years ago was one of the worst years in the history of the roads. There was a tremendous car shortage. President Roosevelt wielded the big stick in an effort to compel the roads to move the crop. Then he found that he could not do this, and he shifted the burden on to the shoulders of the interstate commerce commission. Then Providence butted in with a big snow storm that tied up traffic and prevented cars from being moved.

"This fall conditions are very much better. There are plenty of cars, I believe, to move the crop. At the present time we are gradually dropping the empties into the wheat territory. You see, the Western traffic is heavier than the Eastern traffic, and while we are not hauling empties to the wheat territory, we are not hauling empties from the points where the wheat will be located. At the present time there are a number of empties at the points where wheat will be loaded.

"The general movement of cars toward the wheat states has not begun as yet, but there will be plenty of cars on hand when the loading time arrives. I may say that the roads are in the best shape they have been in years to handle the wheat crop."

EDITORS COMING.

Special Will Bring Big Party Here Next Sunday.

Two hundred members of the National Editorial association will come to Duluth in a special train over the Northern Pacific, Sunday afternoon. From this city the members of the party will go west, probably over the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg. Two days will be spent in Duluth.

The National Editorial association is composed of writers and editors on the large dailies of the country. This is one of the annual trips of the association. Plans are being considered by the Commercial club for the entertainment of the visitors. Just what form of entertainment has not been decided upon yet.

The visitors will leave St. Paul at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, reaching Duluth in the evening.

No Special Rates.

It is practically decided that Duluth will receive no special rates for the Minnesota state fair. Officials of both the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern roads are opposed to the idea of granting special rates, and it is not probable that the northern part of the state will enjoy the privilege that has been granted by some of the roads in the southern part of the state.

NOTICE

TO KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

The Third Annual Picnic will be held Wednesday, Aug. 19, at Fond du Lac. Steamer Newsboy leaves Lake avenue dock, at 9 a. m.; Superior at 9:30.

THE APPEAL WAS UNHEEDED

No More Contributions to the Clinton Relief Fund.

The appeal for aid for the Clinton, Minn., sufferers, who lost their homes and property in a cyclone several weeks ago, has gone practically unheeded in Duluth, no more contributions for the relief fund being received by The Herald.

The amount in the hands of The Herald totals $28, $25 of which was contributed by The Herald. The other $3 was sent in by people who are anxious to do their little for the relief of the stricken people.

An appeal has been sent out all through the state by Governor Johnson and the officials of the devastated city. The situation there is really serious and the people need food, clothing and other forms of relief until they can rebuild their homes and restore the town to its normal state. Everything possible is being done to relieve their sufferings and help them in their efforts to repair the damage done by the cyclone, but the relief committee is hampered by lack of funds and, in the meantime, there is suffering and destitution among the people.

SUIT AGAINST SWAN TURNBLAD

Isaac Ekberg Claims He Illegally Sold a Swedish Paper.

St. Paul, Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Swan J. Turnblad has been made the defendant in a suit in the Hennepin county courts by Isaac Ekberg, in favor of the Swedish American Publishing company of which Ekberg is a stockholder, for a sum which, with interest, will amount to over a million dollars.

Ekberg claims that there has been an illegal sale of the Svenska Amerikan Posten, which was owned by the Swedish-American Publishing company, and that Turnblad has appropriated the profits to his personal use. The stockholders knew nothing of the sale until Turnblad refused to open his books for inspection. Although it is claimed by Turnblad that the paper was making but little money, the plaintiff asserts that since 1889 the profits have amounted to $910,000.

MAN MISTAKES CAN OF LYE FOR OYSTERS.

St. Paul, Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Sam Nessler, a farmer residing near Colman's Lake, accidentally swallowed a goodly portion of lye before he discovered his mistake.

Nessler hurriedly went to the pantry of his home, with the intention of procuring a can of oysters, but owing to the darkness took up a can of lye that stood on the shelf. Without waiting to investigate the contents, Nessler scooped up a large tablespoonful, and the next instant the lye was burning its downward course through his anatomy.

Realizing that he was in danger, the victim hastily drove to this city and was treated by Dr. J. Edwin Olander, who later had him removed to the Lutheran hospital.

MORRIS KAPLAN ARRESTED.

Refused to Move On When Ordered by Minneapolis Police.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 18.—Morris Kaplan, a Duluth grocer, who is active in the Socialistic movement, was arrested here last night for refusing to move on when so instructed by the police. He was released on bail of $15. Kaplan was attending a street meeting of Socialists that was being addressed by J. G. Phelps Stokes of New York. The crowd, numbering about 700 people, was scattered by a high pressure wagon, used for street flushing purposes.

SITUATION EXPLAINED

Bridgeman & Russell Co. Throws Interesting Light on Milk Question.

Firm Courts Investigation of Its Plant and Methods.

The milk situation in Duluth has been much discussed both in official circles in Duluth and among the people generally. In view of the agitation over the city's milk supply and intimations that have been made time and again concerning the poor quality or grade of some of the milk it is probable that some of the statements made have been more or less misleading, according to the source of information of the persons or firms making them. The Herald has received a communication from the Bridgeman-Russell, company, which firm is recognized as one of the largest concerns dealing in milk and dairy products in the Northwest, and which will be read with interest ,bearing as it does on the local milk situation.

The letter follows:

Editor of The Herald:

If you will grant us space we will try to explain the true conditions of the milk situation in Duluth; at the same time answer some erroneous statements made by some parties who were ignorant on the question.

There are about 6,000 gallons of milk sold in Duluth daily. Of this amount we sell about 2,400 gallons, or about 40 per cent. There were shipped into Duluth during July an average of 1,061 gallons daily, or about 18 per cent of the total amount sold. We bought daily during July about 1,300 gallons of milk that was produced in the Duluth district and delivered to our place of business by wagons. This milk that is shipped in is in no sense in competition with home milk. It is brought to Duluth to fill the shortage, as there is not enough produced in the suburbs of any large city to supply the demand. Therefore, enough must be shipped by rail to take care of the shortage. We are bringing this milk from the best farms tributary to Duluth by rail and it is equal to Duluth milk in every sense, the cows being fed on pure farm produce.

Better Pastures Needed.

When the country surrounding Duluth is cultivated so that cows can graze on good timothy and clover pastures; also when the home dairyman can raise fodder corn for his cows, Duluth will have better milk. Ninety-five per cent of the cows in Duluth pasture on uncultivated land where weeds of all kinds grow in abundance. They are fed on wild hay and at least 90 per cent of Duluth dairyman feed malt, and have been allowed to do so by our city officials while the Minnesota statutes say it is a criminal offense.

Willing to Co-operate.

If Duluth continues to grow and become a large city, the milk supply in part will be shipped in. We have always worked for a better milk supply, and have shown our willingness to co-operate with every board of health Duluth has had. We have been silent during the several weeks the council has been debating over this milk ordinance, not because we favored or opposed it, but because we think that no company or individual in the milk business should oppose a milk ordinance where the health of the infants of Duluth is at stake.

It is our desire that the aldermen and board of health get together and frame the best ordinance they can, considering nothing but the health of the people of Duluth. We believe the health department can work with the different dairies and improve conditions, and as 98 per cent of our milk is produced in Duluth, the board of health is in a position to watch these dairies closely.

What Firm Has Done.

We believe we are the only firm in Minnesota that has secured refrigerator service on the passenger trains. We have had refrigerator service daily on both the Omaha and the Northern Pacific lines for several years. These refrigerator cars are cleaned and iced daily by the railroad companies.

We have expended a large amount of money in buildings and equipment, installed the most modern machinery, and the methods we use in handling our milk are recommended by the most noted physicians and scientists of the world. We are not boasting when we say that we have as up-to-date equipment for handling milk and cream plant as any in the United States, one that the people of Duluth should look upon with pride.

The better the milk is when we receive it, the better milk we can put out.

Will Contribute Salary.

If the board of health of the city of Duluth or the common council will appoint a man to remain constantly in our dairy to inspect the conditions of the milk and cream when received, also to watch the handling of same, we will pay $50 per month toward his salary.

If the common council of Duluth can not pass an ordinance where the health of infants is at stake without some aldermen letting politics influence him, it is a bad state of affairs. We want a square deal—nothing more.

Invites Investigation.

We invite the board of health, the common council, every physician in Duluth, the press and public to inspect our plant as often as possible. We also invite the board of health of Duluth to visit the dairies in the country that ship us milk; also our creameries that supply us with cream.

We have been indirectly accused of trying to influence city officials in framing a milk ordinance favorable to us. We have been in this business twenty years and defy any man that ever was a city official of Duluth to state we ever asked his aid in any respect. We are not catering to the city officials.

Caters to the Public.

We are catering to the public and are trying to build up our business on business principles. We believe our customers are our friends and have confidence in us.

Our firm does not operate a dairy farm. We buy all our milk and will be more than pleased to receive the aid of the board of health in trying to improve conditions.

The above statements and figures are plain facts, and we believe we can prove them if they are disputed.

Thanking you for giving us this valuable space, we are very respectfully yours,

BRIDGEMAN-RUSSELL CO.
Per H. Bridgeman, Pres.

Certify to Conditions.

As an evidence of its good faith and to back up the statements that the firm has made regarding its refrigerator service in bringing milk to the city, the Bridgeman-Russell company has secured and attached to its communications the affidavits of L. M. Dickerson, local agent for the Chicago, St. Paul Minneapolis & Omaha Railway company, and A. E. Eddy, local agent for the Northern Express company. Both agents state that their respective companies have furnished the Bridgeman-Russell company, refrigerator car service for the past seven or eight years, for the exclusive purpose of bringing milk and cream to Duluth during the spring, summer and fall months, and that the cars have been iced daily and kept in a clean and sanitary condition.

SAMARITANS WILL PICNIC

Annual Affair Will be Held at Lester Park.

The Modern Samaritans will hold their annual picnic at Lester Park on Thursday of this week. Plans for the big affair are now complete and if the weather man provides a pleasant day a most enjoyable affair is anticipated.

Samaritans from all over the state are already arriving for the affair, several getting in last evening. The visiting delegates will be treated to a ride around the boulevard on Thursday morning, and will be taken out to Lester Park, where a Hungarian lunch will be served at 1 o'clock, in the pavilion. During the afternoon a fine program of sports will be run off, a chicken chase, after an unusually active chicken, being one of the features. Supper will be served in the pavilion, and there will be dancing in the evening.

ROASTS THE PAPER TRUST

President of National Editorial Association Says It's a Murderer.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—President H. B. Varner of the National Editorial association, in his annual address, stated that in spite of the frequent charges of corruption against t he press, it was the newspaper that first cried, "Stop thief," and was chiefly responsible for the awakening of the public conscience. Mr. Varner severely arraigned the paper trust for forcing its product upon the newspapers at its own prices.

"The paper trust is a murderer, and not a hero," said President Varner. "It is a criminal and its tendency is to undervalue human life."

Mr. Varner urged an active, strong organization to combat the paper trust and establish the justice of the newspapers' demands. He urged that they organize on a business basis, through the central direction of the association.

"Relations of the trade press tone was newspapers and promotive publicity," was the subject of an address by J. Newton Nind, president of the National League of Trade Press Associations. Mr. Nind stated that trade papers hae been leaders and promoters of our country's industries.

SCORES PRIMARY LAW.

Grand Forks Judge Says North Dakota Act is Vicious.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The North Dakota primary law was a vicious piece of legislation, according to Judge C. F. Templeman, in ruling on a demurrer filed by the state's attorney to the petition of E. R. Montgomery and R. J. Purcell, candidates for office, for a writ of mandamus requiring the county auditor to show cause why he should not file their nominations, despite the 30 per cent requirement of the act. The court sustained the demurrer, but said he would have ruled differently if the question of the constitutionality of the act had come squarely before him. An appeal to the supreme court will be taken.

Judge Templeman characterized the primary law as a most vicious piece of legislation, "one of the most damnable that has ever been placed on the statute books."

He paid particular attention to the fact that under the provisions of the primary election law as it now reads, no new parties can be formed, and it is impossible for Prohibitionists, Socialists or the Independence league to get their state tickets on the ballot. He declared that had the question come squarely before him he would have ruled that the entire preliminaly election law is unconstitutional.

the EVENING STORY

No. 13 Joy Street

By G. W. Lavayea.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

Although they had been in the cottage only three days, the whole neighborhood was interested, not to say alarmed by the mysterious couple that had rented No. 13 Joy street. Never before had the quiet country town so thrilled with the delicious nearness of a scandal. Mrs. Josiah Perkins of No. 15 told the Sewing Circle she just knew he was a green goods man, for he had a lot of trunks. Mrs. Eli Brown, who lived opposite in No. 14 and had a more direct view, was perfectly sure the woman had some terrible contagious disease, leprosy most like, if not smallpox, and that the man was a brute. The treasurer said that no respectable woman could live in a house three days and not be seen or not speak to anybody, and that prooves they were bad, bad, and the man looked as if he had had a past. Miss Cynthia Kates sniffed patheticallly and said she hoped the ladies didn't blame her for renting her cottage to the strangers.

"What did he say to you?" asked Mrs. Brown.

"Nothing much," answered poor Miss Cynthia. "He just admired everything, my new silk rag curtain, and all. He paid me in advance and said his name was Eliot. I asked him how many in the family, and he said, kind of queer like, 'My own, one other, two.'"

"I am going to take them over a mite of cake tonight. That will be real neighborly, and I just guess I'll find out the whole thing if I have to walk right in. I ain't afraid," said Mrs. Brown.

Mr. Eliot had first aroused the indignation of the town by taking possession one night at the unheard of hour of 2 a. m. The hack driver said he had a young woman with him. The next morning it was only by closest watching that Mrs. Brown could catch even the faintest glimpse of a feminine figure moving about the house. Once the figure appeared in the yard for a second, but a huge pink sunbonnet hid the face within. Just before noon the neighbors heard a queer shriek, like that of a woman or child in pain, and the house was silent, but a curious pungent odor of something scorched or burned filled the air. Later, when Mr. Eliot went down street, Mrs. Brown hurried over to say good-morning, but although she knew positively that some one was within, no one answered her repeated rings. When Mr. Eliot returned, she introduced herself and said she was coming to call.

"My wife," he stammered, "she doesn't wish to see anyone just now. I don't allow her to have much company, anyway."

He crossed the street and banged the door.

Although the neighbors waited anxiously for Mrs. Eliot's appearance, they were disappointed. One night the Perkins family were aroused by the loud tones of a man's voice, evidently in anger. Excitement on Joy street increased and the stories of the mysterious couple spread through the village.

The evening after the Sewing club Mrs. Brown, true to her promise, called at No. 13 with her offering of cake. Mr. Eliot opened the door and she walked in quickly, without waiting to be invited.

"I'll take this right in to your wife. I haven't met her yet. I guess I hear her in the kitchen."

Congratulating herself on having the strength of her convictions, she pushed open the kitchen door, only to catch a glimpse of golden hair and a white dress fleeing into the bedroom beyond, and a stout door, swinging shut. She returned to the parlor, just to give that young man a piece of her mind as she afterwards told Miss Kates, when she saw Eliot walking peacefully and unconcernedly down the street. Thus defeated, Mrs. Brown returned to her own home and decided to appeal to the pastor, who certainly ought to take the matter in hand.

The next morning the neighbors saw Eliot and a young woman in white go from the cottage. Although Mrs. Brown went down the street immediately, a provoking sunbonnet and a thick chiffon veil completely hid the woman's face from her anxious gaze. Mrs. Brown, furious at the failure of her repeated efforts, told her dearest friend that the woman in white was not a woman at all, but a boy, Eliot's accomplice, dressed up like a girl.

A week slipped by and no one ever saw the face of the woman in white, for either the veil or a parasol tilted just right circumvented the closest scrutiny.

Just as Mrs. Perkins was tucking the last Perkins in bed one night, she heard loud shuffling and pounding and a final crash in No. 13. Fear overcame curiosity, and she left the little beds only long enough to securely bolt the doors. The next morning the people on Joy street were electrified by seeing the face of the woman in white. She stood in the garden with her sunbonnet discarded and radiant golden hair shining in the sun, and her pretty face exposed to all who wished to see, and there were many. Mrs. Brown's chagrin at having advanced the theory of a boy disguised was quite obliterated by her pride when the lady in white walked limpingly straight to her house and thanked her most cordially for her delicious cake. She was so glad that the limp escaped her notice at Mrs. Perkins say it and knew instantly that the awful brute had been abusing the lady in white. She called in her oldest daughter, Tinabelle, and told her to beware of handsome men like Mr. Eliot, that changed their clothes every day.

The pretty lady in white worked in her garden the entire morning, which greatly increased Mrs. Brown's popularity. Eliot appeared at his cottage door and yelled: "Come in instantly, Dorothy!" with a roar which brought all the visitors to the Brown porch. The little lady in which shook with fear before them all, covered her face with her hands and limped painfully into the cottage. A few moments later Eliot and the lady in white walked out together, but she was carrying a huge suit-case, while he swung a stout cane airily. A superstitious person might have said that he occasionally pointed it at the Brown house. This last exhibition of Eliot's cruelty was so public that the good ladies felt they could not conscientiously leave the ultimate action in the hands of Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Perkins, so they decided to hold an afternoon session at the latter's house.

The Sewing circle gathered in the afternoon and compared data. Miss Kates created the greatest sensation when she told them that that very noon she had seen the couple in the grove, sitting peacefully and apparently contentedly on the grass, and that Eliot had his arm around the lady in white.

"Cynthia Kates," said Mrs. Perkins, "be you sure you saw it and didn't just imagine it? Ain't that awful, now, after him beating her last night. He is trying to make up to her now, and she as pretty as a flower and letting him do it, and forgiving him, most likely. These city men! I always tell my Tinabelle to beware of city men."

For two hours the club discussed Mr. Eliot and his sins, but could decide on no definite plan of action. They were so engrossed in the subject that they did not see the big touring car come steaming down the country road until just as it was slowing up in front of No. 13. Mrs. Brown was sure it was the sheriff coming to arrest the Eliots. A stout, middle-aged man, dressed in a leather cap and coat, and breathing forth prosperity and gasoline, sprang from the tonneau and ran up the steps. The lady in white flew to meet him, and, throwing her arms around his neck, kissed him.

"There," said Mrs. Perkins decidedly, "is our chance to find out all about them, for here is somebody that really knows them. If he is any relation of hers, we ought to tell him how that man treats her. I guess I will go right over now and have it over with."

"I guess I'll go and help you," said Mrs. Brown.

"As it is my cottage, I really ought to go too," sighed Miss Kates.

"Well, let's all go," cried the treasurer, and the entire meeting, without waiting for adjournment, followed Mrs. Perkins.

They squeezed themselves into the tiny parlor, while Eliot and the lady in white looked on with amused tolerance.

"This lady," said Eliot, introducing Mrs. Brown to the stout gentleman, "has taken a very kind interest in all our affairs. I dare say she can tell you anything you might like to know about what he have done since we came here, even to the number of times we have gone out to walk."

"Yes, I know them, and I ain't a mite afraid of him, either. I can't stand by and see him abuse that girl any longer, and—"

"Abuse that girl!" ejaculated the stout gentleman, "why they are—"

"It is my duty to tell you, if you are any relation of hers, that this man here is treating her something awful, and is a perfect brute, and if she was my daughter I would take her right home." As she rattled on with the details of Eliot's iniquities, the stout man's eyes grew larger and larger with amazement. Finally he burst into a roar of laughter and laughed until the good ladies feared a stroke of apoplexy. He regained a measure of composure and shook hands with Eliot and told him he was a credit to the family. In the meantime the Sewing Circle squirmed under Eliot's beaming smiles and the stout gentleman's noisy levity. Evidently their efforts were not being appreciated and they shrank back into the corners of the room.

"Ladies," said the gentleman, "this young chap here is my nephew, and this girl here is his bride, bride, I say. I told him everybody would know they were bride and groom the minute they saw them, but if they could deceive people for two weeks I would leave them half the money I have. I think they must have earned it from what you tell me, madam," he added, bowing to Mrs. Brown.

One by one the ladies of the Sewing Circle slunk out in spite of Eliot, who insisted upon shaking hands with each one and urged them to remain.

"You have done me an inestimable service," he said. "I shall always be grateful. Stay and we will celebrate. You have been very kind to me. Thank you so much."

THE VICTIM OF JOKERS

Isle Royale Camper is Is Kept Busy Making Explanations.

His Home Was Advertised as a Summer Hotel.

The practical joker has been the bane of C. S. Tooker's life this summer. Nothing very serious has happened to him; he has neither lost any property nor had any destroyed, but he has been placed in some decidedly embarassing situations by the man, who likes his little joke. Fortunately he takes it all good naturedly and the amusement of his friends hasn't spoiled his temper nor given him any sleepless nights.

Mr. Tooker, who is a commission merchant of Minneapolis, with a brauch office in Duluth, has a summer place at Rock Harbor, Isle Royale, and this year he undertook to erect a rather pretentious bungalow. The size and appointments of the structure inspired the first joke, which has brought down on Mr. Tooker's innocent head the wrath of equally strangers, who fail of accommodations they expect on trips to Rock Harbor.

Somebody informed a News-Tribune reporter during the course of construction of Mr. Tooker's bungalow that a large, well appointed hotel was being erected by the Minneapolis man. The fact was promptly and properly published here and was also given publicity in Twin City papers. The beauties of Rock Harbor, the excellent accommodations to be secured at the Tooker house, the fishing, boating and bathing were dilated upon, so that there was a small sized rush for Rock Harbor. The pleasure seekers didn't fail to spot Mr. Tooker's home immediately on their arrival. They disembarked from the boats at his dock, called to his sons to take their luggage up to the house and brusquely asked for accommodations. Explanations weren't always entirely satisfactory to the dupes of the joker, who were forced to go across the harbor to secure accommodations at the regular hotel.

Another means of "stringing" the unsuspecting was also operated through the newspapers with marked success. In the harbor just out from Mr. Tooker's home is a small island, also owned by him. It is nothing more than a rock rising above the surface of the water, with a little grass and a few small shrubs maintaining a precarious hold upon its surface. The place was named "Hawk" Island.

Two of Mr. Tooker's friends, members of the Roosevelt club in St. Paul, paid him a visit not long ago, and he gave them permission to pitch their tent on the island. The tent and a rowboat, drawn up on the beach, just about covered the island, and the men had to double up to keep their feet from hanging into the water when they slept, so the report goes.

Shortly after the two campers took up their position on the island, advertisements began to appear in Twin City papers, urging summer resorters to visit "Beautiful Hawk Island," which rises majestically from the waters of Lake Superior, near Rock Harbor. The waters of its streams and the surrounding lake abound in fish; shady and secluded nooks provide ideal camping spots; the sandy beach is the finest on the north for bathing; launches, rowboats and canoes are for rent at reasonable prices, and the searcher for an ideal spot for an outing will fail short of his ideal unless he visits Hawk Island. For terms and further information, write to Blank and Blank, Hawk Island, Rock Harbor, Isle Royale." Fellow Roosevelters had been getting in their work.

In the course of time the summer resorters began to write and arrive. They searched about for the majestic isle, only to find that the speck on the surface of the water, which was almost completely covered by one tent, was the "ideal camping place." They, in company with the would-be visitors to the Hotel Tooker, took themselves across the bay to the Rock Harbor hotel and made the best of it.

The Refrigerator.

The refrigerator should be in the vestibule. The ice man can then fill it without entering the kitchen. One lined with tile and built in is preferable. Be sure it is large enough to contain a good supply of golden grain belt beer, so that a cool bottle of this delicious beverage is always ready for the table or evening refreshment. MARRIED IN DULUTH.

Lake Trip Proves Too Much for Romantic Port Arthur Couple.

Beautiful, quiet Lake Superior, the appeal of the moonlight and the calm impressiveness of the rocky north shore proved too much for the romantic souls of Arthur Lalonde and Olive Patnaud of Port Arthur, who came to Duluth on one of the Booth line boats yesterday, and Miss Patnaud consented to marry Lalonde when they arrived at this end of the trip. The excursion which started as a pleasure trip, pure and simple, developed into the romance which culminated in Judge Middlecoff's office this morning, when they were made husband and wife. They will return to Port Arthur on one of the Booth line boats in the near future.

RECORD TRIP

Made by London Business Woman to New York.

London, Aug. 18.—Miss C. A. Grace, an employe of a London business firm, alleges that she made a record trip from London to New York and return. She was pledged to be in New York Aug. 6, and was obliged to return at once to London to free her colleagues for vacation.

She left Southampton on the Adriatic July 29 and reached New York at 11 a. m. Aug. 6. She left the customs house at 11:05 a.m., arrived at Eleventh street at 11:10, completed her interview at 11:20 and was back at the White Star dock at 11:25.

She boarded the Baltic for the return trip with thirty-two and one-half minutes to spare. The customs officers helped and cheered her. She reached London Aug. 14 at 10 p. m.

HOUGH COMING BACK.

Des Moines Commission Man Not Frightened by Threats to Shoot.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 18.—Louis R. Hough, the missing bankrupt commission man, who was located in Chicago, today sent word that he will return to Des Moines for a meeting of his creditors on Tuesday, despite the threats of Henry Wagner, one of his victims, to shoot him on sight. It develops that Mrs. Hough joined him in Chicago on Saturday, having forgiven him for his alleged elopement with another woman. She will not file a divorce case, as she declared.

Your Fall Suit?

Of course, you'll want the best!

And when you think of the best you will naturally think of The S. & B. Co.

Your Fall suit need not necessarily be a high-priced creation, but a practical suit of intrinsic worth, dainty and charming in appearance, but nevertheless with that sturdy character descriptive of all The S. & B. lines.

Veneers in garments? Yes! On every hand you'll see them, in every publication their exploitation meets your eye; garments sightly at a distance but what a disappointment in wearing qualities.

'Tis not how great a superficial showing can be made for a price, nor yet the covering up of the tailoring defects with flashy trimmings that constitute style and quality! Not at all!

The most forcible illustrating of the S. & B. prestige is found in the garment that has given the wearer long and satisfactory service and which still holds its graceful lines. Yes, it came from Silberstein's.

Carry discrimination to the testing point and you'll find that in selecting correct interpretation of fashions and fabrics, suitable to represent the name, The S. & B. Co., will please the critical woman, the woman who knows—

We are ready with a comprehensive display of new tailored suits, embracing original and exclusive adaptations, those to which fashion has given cognizance.

A pleasing feature is the initial low prices.

PLAY DAYS ABOUT OVER

Duluth Children Will Soon Go Back to School.

Work Will Begin Soon on New Ensign Building.

Just three more weeks of this glorious free and open existence and then, "school." That's the wail of the small boy these days.

After playing "Injun," building shacks, and going swimming with the "gang" all summer it does seem tough luck to think of clean clothes, school books and long hours spent inside.

And the time looks so long until Christmas, and that's the first vacation to look forward to.

With every building in the best possible condition the fall term of school will begin on Monday, Sept. 7. Every building has been repaired, cleaned and painted from top to bottom.

There were 12,153 school children in Duluth schools last year, and the school authorities are making room for several hundred beginners this year.

A special meeting of the board of education will be held Friday night, at which bids for the construction of the new Ensign school will be opened and the contract let.

Work on the new building will be commenced as soon as the contract is let, as that is one of the contract conditions. The new building will replace the Horace Mann school which burned down some time ago. The name was changed at the suggestion of the people of the West end.

SHORTHAND SCRIBES MEET AT MILWAUKEE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 18.—The National Shorthand Reporters' association began its first day's session here today, this being the tenth annual convention. Sessions will be running through Friday.

The address of welcome on behalf of the city of Milwaukee was delivered by Mayor David S. Rose, and responded to by Kendrick C. Hill, secretary-treasurer of Trenton, N. J. The welcoming address on behalf of the bench and bar was made by Hon. W. H. Timlin, justice of the supreme court, with response by Charles Currier Beal of Boston. Then followed the president's annual address by William Whitford, Chicago.

FAST TIME MADE IN AUTO RACES

Five Roadsters Compete for Lenox Hotel Loving Cup.

One of the most exciting automobile contests that has been held in Duluth in a long time took place yesterday afternoon on the New Duluth road, between five Ford roadsters.

The race was for two loving cups, offered by Henry Ribenack of the Lenox hotel. Both prizes were captured by Hunter C. Stallings, who negotiated two and one half miles in 2:53. M. M. Cohen of St. Louis, driving Henry Ribenack's car, took second place, his time for the distance being 3:04.

The course was laid out between New Duluth and West Duluth. Henry Coxe and a newspaper man acted as timers, B. H. Richards acting as judge. Three other cars entered the race. They were driven by Mr. Cohen, Henry Ribennack and A. D. Johnson. The time of the three cars outside the money was 3:10, 3:27 and 3:35, respectively.

The cups are known as the Hotel Lenox prizes and are heavy silver loving cups, engraved with the date and the occasion of their offering. Mr. Ribenack arranged the race, to try out the merits of the Ford roadsters owned in this city. The conditions of the race were that only cars costing $1,000 or less could enter the contest. The cars were not stripped, nor specially wired, so that the time made by Mr. Stallings is considered very good. One mile was reeled off in 57 seconds flat.

DENIES MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL

Judge Dibell Holds McAlpine Evidence Insufficient for Rehearing.

Judge Dibell yesterday filed an order denying the motion of John McAlpine for a new trial in the case of McAlpine vs. Millen. In his memorandum, the judge states that the evidence submitted by Mr. McAlpine as justification of a new trial is defective on several counts.

The case came up for the first time two years ago in the district court. McAlpine and Millen had been partners in the lumber business. The court was asked to settle differences arising upon a dissolution of the partnership, Mr. McAlpine claiming that Mr. Millen was getting the best of him. The firm's holdings consisted of several million feet of timber, most of which was being cut by the St. Louis mill at West Duluth.

The new evidence submitted by Mr. McAlpine was in the form of affidavits from different mill men, which stated that nearly 2,000,000 feet of logs in the big boom at the St. Louis mill were lost by the boom breaking in June, 1903. Judge Dibell, in considering this evidence, points out that at that time the mill was sawing the logs almost as fast as they came in, so that an accumulation of this quantity of timber was impossible. Most of the logs which broke away on this occasion were brought back to the mill by tugs, according to evidence sumbitted in the first trial, which is also mentioned in the memoranda of the order.

The trial took four weeks of the session two years ago, seventy-five witnesses testified and thousands of pages of documentary evidence were piled up. A re-trial would require even more complicated proceedings.

This evidence should also have been submitted while the case was still before the supreme court last January, says Judge Dibell.

GRANT'S COUSIN A PAUPER.

Cincinnati, Aug. 18.—James Grant, aged 77, a cousin of Gen. U. S. Grant, was taken to Cincinnati hospital yesterday as a charity patient. The old man's principal ailment is old age. He has for a long time occupied a tumbledown shanty at Manhattan Beach, a suburb on the Ohio river, and gained a meager living doing odd jobs in the neighborhood.

LOSES LOVE WITH MONEY.

Young Westinghouse's Marriage to English Woman is Postponed.

Pittsburg, Aug. 18.—That the man whom she learned to love in overalls because he had millions will not do now since he stands to lose some of those same millions is a mild charge being made by Pittsburg society women against Miss Violet Brocklebank, an aristocratic young woman of England, who was engaged to marry George Westinghouse, Jr.

Pittsburg hears that the Brocklebank-Westinghouse wedding has been declared off for all time. Whether this is true has not yet been proved, though friends of Westinghouse admit that the wedding has been "indefinitely postponed." The excuse is given that there recently has been a death in the family.

Chronic Diarrhoea Relieved.

Mr. Edward E. Henry, with the United States Express company, Chicago, writes: "Our general superintendent, Mr. Quick, handed me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy some time ago to check an attack of the old chronic diarrhoea. I have used it since that time and cured many on our trains who have been sick. I am an old soldier, who served with Rutherford B. Hayes and William McKinley four years in the Twenty-third Ohio regiment, and have no ailment except chronic diarrhoea, which this remedy stops at once." For sale by all druggists.

CROKER TO AID BRYAN.

Will Return to Assist Nebraskan in the Campaign.

New York, Aug. 18.—While Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany, made a statement in Dublin yesterday to the effect that he would not go to America until November, a report from good sources reached New York last night, saying that Croker would come to America next month to lend his influence to the effort to elect William J. Bryan president. He will, it is said, leave Queenstown for New York on or about Sept. 18.

Mr. Croker's plan is in line with a promise made by him to the Nebraskan when the latter left Ireland on the last lap of his recent world tour. Mr. Croker accompanied Mr. Bryan to his ship and assured him that if he was nominated by the Democrats, Mr. Croker would do everything in his power to bring about his election. Further than this, while Mr. Bryan was in New York in the early summer, Croker sent a personal message to him expressing the hope that the Democrats again would nominate him.

In announcing his intention to come to New York to aid Mr. Bryan, Croker is reported to have said that he had no intention whatever of taking any part in the New York political game, except such as was necessary to aid Mr. Bryan. Other phases of the situation, he said, he had no intention of interfering with and would return to Ireland as soon as he had accomplished what he could do to further the interests of the Democratic nominee.

EXPLODING COFFEE URN LEADS TO HOTEL BURNING.

Devils Lake, N. D., Aug. 18.—The Windsor hotel, a large frame building, was totally destroyed Monday, causing a loss of $5,000, and on contents about $3,000 more. The building was insured for $3,000, and the contents for $1,900. The furniture belonged to R. A. Young, and the building to Jane Nimme of Minneapolis. The fire was caused by an explosion of a coffee urn.

AMENDMENT INTRODUCED

Council May Grant Telephone Company Toll Privilege.

Big Increase Shown in Surplus Earnings of Water Board.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Gave first reading to ordinance amending Zenith Telephone franchise so toll may be charged on Duluth-Superior lines.

Received resolution from public affairs committee asking that city take steps to secure a contagious disease hospital.

Received resolution from public affairs committee recommending that the license fee of circuses be raised from $250 to $500.

Received report of water board showing substantial increase in surplus earnings.

Stating that it was merely to put the question in concrete form before the people for discussion at the mass meeting to be held at the city hall this evening, Alderman McKnight, at the council meeting last night, introduced an amendment to the telephone ordinance which would allow the Zenith company to charge 10 cents for every call between Duluth and Superior, with a flat rate of $90 a year to patrons for unlimited service, which is an increase of $40 over the present rate.

At the first public meeting held for a discussion of the question, the attendance was light, and the charge was made that the affair had not been given enough publicity, although it had been repeatedly advertised in every paper in the city, with the date of the meeting. To avoid the same complaint in this instance, Alderman McKnight and the other city fathers are taking advantage of every opportunity to remind the people that such a gathering is to be held. The council has no intention of taking any action in regard to the matter until public sentiment has been obtained. The amendment last evening was given its first reading. No action was taken on it.

According to the semi-annual report of the board of water and light commissioners, submitted to the council last evening, Duluth's municipally-owned water plant shows an increase of $26,278.91 in earnings for the first half of the present year, as compared with the first half of 1907.

The entire expenditures of the board during the period covered by the report amounted to $241,448.80, of which $67,300.53 was expended for construction; $152,648.67 for operation, maintenance and interest, and $21,499.60 for service extensions.

The gross receipts were $213,263.30. The operating expenses exceeded those of the first half of 1907 by $1,136.20. The surplus earnings for the first half of 1908 were $23,000 and for the whole year $86,000. The surplus earnings for the first half of 1908 are $38,000.

• • •

A resolution was received from the public affairs committee of the Commercial club asking that the license fee of circuses be raised from $250 to $500. Another resolution asked the council to take immediate action in securing a site for a contagious disease hospital.

• • •

The Commercial club and business men in the block interested entered a petition requesting that the street railway company be asked to remove the switch located between Fourth and Fifth avenues west, on Superior street, almost directly in front of the Commercial club building. The claim is made that the switch is never used, and that cars passing over it at the rate of three a minute make such a noise as to interfere with business conversations. By rather an odd coincidence half a dozen cars, waiting for the theater crowd used the switch shortly after the council meeting adjourned.

• • •

A resolution recommending an appropriation of $2,000 out of next year's levy be for a fire hall on Park Point was introduced by Alderman Shartel. He also requests that the fire board make a levy of $1,000 for its maintenance next year. The matter was referred to the proper committee.

• • •

The action of the board of public works in awarding the contract for grading Sixth street and Vista street, and constructing a sewer, to G. R. King for $8,957.80, was approved. The work will extend on Sixth, from Wallace avenue to Twenty-fourth avenue east, and on Vista street, from Twenty-fourth avenue east to Woodland avenue. Several small sewer contract awards were also made.

• • •

City Attorney Wilson recommended the settlements of claims for damages resulting from the overflowing of sewers on Fifth and Seventh streets, between Eighth and Ninth avenues east. The claims range from $33 to $200.

• • •

The application of W. C. Bloodsworth of the Esmond hotel, West end, for a saloon license, was held up for further investigation. The license is asked for at 28 South Twentieth avenue west.

• • •

A resolution was adopted directing condemnation proceedings on private property on the southerly side of Waseca street, from Sixty-second avenue west to the dock line at Sixtieth avenue, for the purpose of opening up a new slip.

• • •

The meeting was one of the shortest held in several months. It adjourned at 9 o'clock.

CLOQUET BOYS TO LEAVE WEDNESDAY

Delegation From Y. M. C. A. Going to Camp Along Rush Lake.

Cloquet, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A party consisting of about twenty members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. will leave tomorrow morning on the Duluth & Northeastern railroad for Rush lake, about thirty-eight miles north of here, where they will camp for nine days, returning the evening of Thursday, Aug. 27.

Each boy will be attired in heavy marching togs and will carry a box in which will be a blanket, fishing tackle and other articles of necessity. No fire arms will be taken. The association will provide sleeping quarters, which will be in one of the lumber company's logging camps, blankets, dishes, cooking utensils, a cook and the boats. To cover the railroad fare and the cost of the food each boy will be taxed $4.

The three leaders will be Hanford Cox, Frank Skemp and Physical Director Lewis, who will have the camp in charge. The boys will be divided into three companies, and one from each company will be chosen as captain. Two canvass canoes in addition to the three already at the lake have been secured, making a flotilla of five boats, which will probably add greatly to the pleasure of the trip. A "hike" of nineteen miles will be made to Island lake, where there is reported to be fine fishing.

This is the first Y. M. C. A. camp from Cloquet, and indications point to its being a great success. The location is ideal, being on the shore of a lake where good boating and swimming are to be had at all times, and in the heart of the pine forests.

The ladies of the Catholic Order of Foresters will give a lawn social at the home of Mrs. John O'Brien, Thursday evening.

The new pump has been installed at Spring lake and water pumped into the new tank and filled all the mains now finished. There appears to be a great sufficiency of water at the lake, since there was scarcely a noticeable change in the height of the water when all was filled.

GOPHER'S GIG IS REGULATION ONE

Consequently Minnesotans Could Not Win Against Irregular Craft.

BY GEORGE C. COWING,
The Herald's Staff Correspondent on the Gopher.

South Manitou, Mich., Aug. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two exciting boat races filled the hearts of the Minnesotans with pride last (Thursday) evening and this (Friday) morning, as Gopher crews made great showings in the straight gig race lest night and the officers' race this morning.

The boat races last night were regular events of the manueuvers, but the officers' race this morning was a somewhat impromptu festival, although it attracted as much attention as anything that has transpired in the fleet.

In both contests the Gopher boat came in second, the Wolverine taking first. The Gophers' gig crew came in last night half a boat length behind the Wolverine, and the same gig, manned by officers, including Commander Eaton, stroke, was an easy second in the officers' race this morning.

In both races it was not the prowess of the Wolverine oarsmen which grabbed victory for them, but it was the fleet qualities of their gig, which is not a regulation craft.

The Gopher's gig is easily the handsomest gig in the fleet, but it is strictly regulation.

FARMER IS LOST; MURDER FEARED

Wisconsin Man Disappeared at Small Station in Oregon.

Portland, Or., Aug. 18.—When Ephraim Hedberg, a retired farmer of Cumberland, Wis., stepped off the Overland at Umatilla, Or., to get a cup of coffee and a sandwich, his daughter, Elina, waiting in the train, had no thought of danger for the old man, though he carried in his pocket some cash and drafts for $1,800 on the State bank of Cumberland.

The Hedbergs were on their way to Ashland, Or., where the father intended to buy orchard property along Rogue river. When the train started, the daughter thought he would follow on the next passenger. This was the night of Aug. 5. She went on to Ashland, 450 miles distant by rail, and Hedberg never arrived.

Umatilla is an O. R. & N. junction point, small of permanent population, thick with hobo transients, dumped by train crews. To some of these the disappearance of the Wisconsin traveler is ascribed. A few rods off runs the broad, deep Columbia, whose current would soon wash the body miles away, in case of tragedy.

G. H. Hedberg of Ashland, a nephew, has been here searching railroad yards, river bank and other possible places of concealment of a corpse. He got no clew save that of the hobos. Hedberg was 63 years old and of small stature.

DOCTOR ADVISED USE OF CUTICURA

After Other Treatment Failed—Eczema in Raw Spot on Baby Boy's Face Lasted for Months—Cried with Pain when Washed.

ECZEMA WAS CURED AND HAS NEVER REAPPEARED

"Our baby boy broke out with eczema on his face when one month old. One place on the side of his face the size of a nickel was raw like beefsteak for three months, and he would cry out when I bathed the parts that were sore and broken out. I gave him three months' treatment from a good doctor, but at the end of that time the child was no better. Then my doctor recommended Cuticura. After using a cake of Cuticura Soap, a third of a box of Cuticura Ointment, and half a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent he was well and his face was as smooth as any baby's. He is now two years and a half old and no eczema has reappeared. I am still using the Cuticura Soap; I think it is the finest toilet soap I ever used. I keep my little girl's hair and face cleansed with it too. I am so thankful for what Cuticura has done for us. Mrs. M. L. Harris, R. F. D. 1, Alton, Kan., May 14 and June 12, '07."

PROMINENT MASON DEAD.

Alex C. Mather, Old Resident of North Dakota, Called.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alex C. Mather, an old resident of North Dakota and one of the state's most prominent Masons, is dead here. The funeral will be held tomorrow or Thursday, the exact time not having been decided upon.

He was born in Edinburg, Scotland, sixty-four years ago and came to this country shortly after reaching manhood, landing at Boston, where he lived a short time, coming to North Dakota, then the territory of Dakota, twenty-seven years ago, on the advice of his physicians, who thought the climate would give him relief from his chronic trouble—asthma. He was unmarried and leaves of his near relatives only one brother who resides in Edinburg, Scotland, and four nephews and nieces who reside in Scotland and England. He was a thirty-third degree Mason and had been recorder of the commandery in this city since its organization. He was also grand treasurer of the grand commandery of the state, and his work was well known to the Masonic fraternity throughout the state.

NOTED SCOUT DEAD.

Alex Charlebois Who Was on Red River Expedition.

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alexander Charlebois, who was a prominent figure in North Turtle Mountain Indian reservation, Dakota in the pioneer days, is dead. He has resided for many years on the Turtle Mountain Indian reservation, holding the position of farmer-in-charge up to two years ago, when ill-health made his resignation necessary. He was born in Germany May 30, 1844. The family removed to the United States in 1848, settling in Boston. After a common school education, he became a page to Governor Banks of Massachusetts, and later to Governor Andrews, his successor. Later he was employed with Gen. Banks as a scout, shortly afterwards joining him in the memorable Red River expedition, when he first came to this state. In 1868 he went to Fort Totten, then newly established, remaining there until 1882, when he filed on a homestead. In 1887 he received the appointment of farmer-in-charge of the Turtle Indian reservation.

COLORED CHILDREN REMOVED.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Thirty Evanston children who are members of the Loyal Temperance legation refused to appear in an exhibition drill before the Lincoln Temperance Chautauqua assembly until eight colored children had been taken out of the procession. The trouble occurred on Sunday afternoon, but was kept secret until yesterday when the children talked about it and their parents admitted that it was true.

ACCEPT CARNEGIE OFFER.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 18.—At the special meeting of the taxpayers of the Portage township school district, the acceptance of the offer of $15,000, made by Andrew Carnegie, and the expenditure of $1,500 per year by the school board for the maintenance of the same, was authorized. Dr. L. L. Hubbard and John T. McNamara were both afraid that the Laird o' Skibo had strings of various sorts attached to his gift, but were convinced to the contrary.

SONS OF HERMANN ELECT.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 18.—The Michigan grand lodge of the Order of the Sons of Hermann has elected officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, Paul Kempter, Grand Rapids; vice-president, Louis Mueller, Owosso; Joseph Schulz, Menominee; secretary, Charles Borst, Hancock; treasurer, William Wass, Hancock. Next year's convention will be held at Saginaw.

ARREST ACCUSED BANKER.

Deadwood, S. D., Aug. 18.—United States Marshal Seth Bullock of South Dakota has one to Sioux Falls with George Horras, the young Hot Springs banker, who is charged with wrecking a bank there by the embezzlement of $25,000. Horras will be arraigned before Judge Carland, and is prepared to plead guilty and accept a penitentiary sentence. His wealthy father in Iowa did what he could to aid the son, but the restitution of funds could not save him.

WOULD SET ASIDE SALE.

North Dakota Land Deal Attacked in the Courts.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The recent sale of the Houston farm in the northern part of this county for $93,000 will be set aside if the petition of one of the heirs is granted. D. H. Houston, a breeder of seed wheat and inventor of the kodak, died a few months ago. His heirs, on equal shares, were his widow and son. As administratrix of the estate, Mrs. Houston recently sold the farm for nearly $100,000. The son petitions the court to have the sale set aside on the ground that the estate was undervalued.

MILLIONAIRE SOCIALIST WILL SPEAK AT FARGO.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Fargo Socialists are to be addressed this evening by J. Phelps Stokes, the wealthy New Yorker, who makes socialism a fad.

FRANCHISE HERE NOT AFFECTED

Street Railway Company Asks State for 50-Year Extension.

The fact that the Duluth Street Railway company yesterday presented articles of incorporation to extend fifty years from date at the office of the secretary of state in St. Paul, has no bearing whatever on the franchise granted the company by the city of Duluth.

Whether the extension of time on articles of incorporation is granted or not will not affect the local franchise, and the city will have a right to reject or allow an application for a renewal of the local franchise regardless of the action of the state, for that has purely to do with the franchise of the corporation, and does not affect the local franchise for operating car lines.

The street railway company evidently thinks it has a good thing here, and wants to keep it as long as possible. It has a franchise as a corporation which runs for fifty years from 1853. Thirty years is the usual length of life of corporations in this state and this one has twenty-three years yet to run. Officials of the company, in applying for a fifty-year extension, paid the state treasurer $775 as a fee for incorporation, but Julius Schmal, secretary of state, sent them to the attorney general's office. The St. Paul and Minneapolis street car lines have incorporated for thirty years each, and the secretary of state says he cannot see why Duluth should have a longer term.

NOT WASHBURN-CROSBY.

Makers of Gold Medal Flour Not Concerned in Minneapolis Receivership

It should be understood that the Washburn-Crosby Co., makers of GOLD MEDAL FLOUR, are in no way concerned with the recent Minneapolis flouring mill receivership. The slight similarity in names has led to some confusion.

One need have no fear that the GOLD MEDAL housewives, whose pictures have adorned the magazines and newspapers, will cease to appear. We shall see them the same as ever. And the Washburn-Crosby Co. continue to be the largest milling concern in the world.

Therefore, while the receivership in question is most unfortunate, it does not by any means concern all Minneapolis flour mills. The Washburn-Crosby Co., makers of the widely-advertised GOLD MEDAL FLOUR, shipped 8,000 cars last year more than their nearest competitor. And they are flourishing still.

OUR decorating is not to be measured merely by the gallons of paint used—but by the skill with which it is applied. By the art of design, skill of execution and exquisite taste portrayed in the choice of colorings and materials used.

Our representative who is now on his Eastern buying trip will spare naught in the attempt to bring to Duluth homes, all that is newest and best accepted in decorative art.

Imported Wall Coverings, Art Nouveau Fresco Painting and Fine Wood Finishing are among our specialties.

TUG BURNS IN HARBOR

Watchman Morris Flynn Has Narrow Escape From Death.

Vessel Was One of the Old Time Harbor Tugs.

The tug Sarah Smith, one of the oldest in the harbor, and owned by the Osborn Tug company, burned to the water's edge at an early hour this morning, nearly taking down with her Morris Flynn, the watchman.

Flynn, who was asleep in his quarters forward, was not awakened until almost hedged in by the flames, and it was with difficulty he escaped without being burned. Even after gaining the deck he stuck to the burning vessel in the hope of attracting the attention of some one to help him save the boat. When he saw that she was bound to go, he escaped in a lifeboat.

The little boat had made a trip to Superior yesterday afternoon, and instead of coming home, anchored out in the bay so as to be near her work in the morning.

The craft was one of the best known in the city. She has been about the local harbor for the past twenty years and was known to every boatman in the harbor. The boat had recently been overhauled and refitted for work, after a period of inactivity.

She has changed hands more times than any boat in the harbor.

Diarrhoea Cured.

"My father has for years been troubled with diarrhoea, and tried every means possible to effect a cure, without avail," writes John H. Zirkle of Philippi, W. Va. "He saw Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy advertised in the Philippi Republican and decided to try it. The result is one bottle cured him, and he has not suffered for eighteen months. Before taking this remedy he was a constant sufferer. He is now sound and well, and, although 60 years old, can do as much work as a young man." Sold by all druggists.

IDENTIFIES THE SUSPECTS

Farmer Boy Who Was Swindled, Says He Recognizes Sharps.

Wallace Lapp, the Wisconsin farmer boy, who claims to have been swindled out of $20 in a pool game by Ray Nichols, Bert Moore and Byron Shreve Saturday, was taken up to the county jail this morning. He identified the trio positively, even when he saw them in their shirt sleeves and without hats, and was doubly sure of his identification when they were dressed as he saw them Saturday. He spotted Ray Nichols as the man who got the money. Nichols appeared considerably worried by the boy's positive identification of him.

The three prisoners are stylishly dressed and have been posing as college men. Lapp said that Nichols offered to teach him a new game of pool without it costing him anything. Lapp lost one game, and then the other two strolled around and wanted to get into the game. Lapp lost several games and then wanted to quit. They told him he owed them $30. He had only $20 with him, and he gave them that. They told him if he did not get the other $10 they would get the police. Lapp was going to his room to get the money when some kind hearted bystander told him he was being fleeced, and he reported to the police station. The arrest of the three by Detectives Irvine and Schulte followed. They will be given a hearing Thursday.

WANTS $3,000 FOR TEETH.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, Aug. 18.—Are a man's teeth worth $3,000? This question must be answered by the courts, and if they are the Rock Island road must pay Earl Mozena that amount. While at work in a car on the defendant's road, unloading tile, a switch engine humped into hte car and threw Mozena to the floor of the car. He alleges that his teeth were knocked out and that he sustained other sprains and bruises.

WEST END

YOUNG BOY IS DROWNED

West End Lad Steps Off Raft Into Deep Water.

His Young Friends Were Unable to Rescue Him.

While playing on a raft in the bay, at the foot of Fourteenth avenue west yesterday afternoon, Alphonse Le Tourneau, age 11, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Le Tourneau, was drowned.

The boys were paddling the raft when it struck a snag, and no amount of pushing would get her free. The Le Tourneau boy thinking it had gone aground, stepped off with the intention of pushing it off, when he fell into deep water. His companions were unable to swim, and he drowned there, before their eyes.

Life savers dragged the water for two hours before finding the body, which was taken to the undertaking parlors of M. J. Fillatrault in West Duluth.

Coroner McCuen decided that no inquest was necessary, as death was accidental.

The funeral will be held Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock from the St. Jean Baptiste church. Interment will be at Calvary cemetery.

EARLY SETTLER DIES.

George Woods, Well Known, Passes to the Great Beyond.

George Woods, 64, a pioneer resident of the city, died yesterday morning at the home of his son, James, of 205 Nineteenth avenue west. He died from a complication of diseases.

He leaves a family of eight sons and two daughters, all of them being present at his bedside when the end came. George, Jr., lives in Hancock, Mich., while the other seven, who are Fred, Alex, Peter, William, James, Ernest and Earl, live in Duluth. The two daughters, Effie and Frances, also live here.

Mr. Woods leaves many friends in Duluth. For the past six years he has lived on a claim near the Cloquet river, and has entertained many Duluth hunting parties. He had the name among sportsmen of being the most hospitable man in the north woods.

The funeral will be held from the St. Jean Baptiste French Catholic church at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Storm Does Damage.

A large amount of damage, such as the blowing down of trees, was done in Lincoln park by the wind storm that was in general all over the city Sunday evening. The natural part of the park is the part that suffered. Trees were blown out by the roots and a large number broken off. A great number of the trees set out this spring on the hill above Sixth street were blown over, but with the careful attention of the gardner they can be saved. The public end of the park was unharmed, the storm taking its fury out on the thickly wooded portions.

Mrs. Albert Johnson Dies.

Mrs. Gertrude M. Johnson, aged 23 years, wife of Albert Johnson of 117 North Twentieth avenue west, died yesterday morning of tuberculosis. She leaves, besides her husband, one child and her father, F. A. Beckman of Independence. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from Forward's undertaking rooms, at 1:45, and from the First Swedish Lutheran church at Sixth avenue east and Third street at 2:30.

Rev. Carl Solamanson will conduct the services.

West End Shortrails.

Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Porter and son, Albert, and daughter, Dorothy, came in on the steamer Huronic yesterday, after spending a very enjoyable two weeks with relatives near Toronto.

Mrs. Bertha Restev, the oldest member of the Ladies' Aid society of the Zion Norwegian church was pleasantly surprised at her home in Lakeside yesterday afternoon by a number of her West end friends.

Ole Wick is erecting a large blacksmith shop at 2010 West First street.

Mrs. J. M. Grimes of 1721 First street has returned from a trip through Iowa, Illinois and Indiana.

Mrs. J. T. Cullen and son, Marvin of Clinton, Iowa, and Mrs. John Garvey and daughter, Blanche of Minneapolis, are guests of Mrs. J. M. Grimes, 1721 West First street.

Miss Claudia Cox of 1713 West First street will return today from Cadotte, Wis., where she has been visiting friends.

Ben Hastings of Owatonna, Minn., is visiting with his mother, Mrs. H. M. Hastings of West Third street.

DELEGATES LEAVE.

St. Louis County Representatives Off for the State Convention.

The majority of the St. Louis county delegates to the Democratic state convention, which is called tomorrow afternoon, left this afternoon. A few of the delegates will leave on the night train. Most of the delegates are going to the convention, but few of the alternates being called upon to fill the places of the regulars. The great interest that is being taken in the convention accounts for the full attendance of first call delegates from this county.

St. Louis county is strong for John A. Johnson. That much was shown at the Hibbing convention. However, most of the members believe that the governor will not change his opinion on the third term idea, so the strength of the delegation will be thrown to either Hammond or Armson.

The present delegation is one of the most representative that ever attended a state convention from this county.

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—The Mack Leone Players in "A Diplomatic Tangle."

BIJOU—Vaudeville (see notice below).

"THE CRIMINAL."

Clever and Novel Acts Heads Strong Bill at Bijou.

"The Criminal" is the name of an act given at the Bijou this week by Roland West, and it is well worth paying a visit to the pretty little theater to see, even if there were no other attractions on the program.

The little playlet, which is a clever mingling of comedy and tragedy, is specially constructed for Roland West. It contains seven characters. His lightning changes are marvelous, and he seems to step as quickly from one character to another as he changes his clothes. It is a very clever piece of work and something new in vaudeville, as far as Duluth audiences are concerned, at least.

Miss Grace Leonard is known as the American Vesta Tilley, and Vesta Tilley should have no reason to resent it. Her act is known as "The Ideal Boy." She makes a very natty, charming little boy, and her songs made a big hit with the audiences yesterday.

"Fun at a 5 o'clock Tea" is the title of a juggling act by the Havelocks. The title of the act describes it, although it does not tell what expert jugglers the Havelocks are.

Hill and Sylvianna have a unicycle act. It is a short turn, but the team discards most of the regulation stunts that other performers use as time fillers, and there is something doing every minute that they are on the stage. Some of their feats well deserve the term sensational.

"The Cuban Millionaire" is the title of a sketch by Noble and Brooks. It is comedy laid on with a trowel. There is no lack of action to the sketch, and the audiences seemed to enjoy it.

The moving pictures show a comedy film and a pretty picture story, and Isadore Silver warbles "What Will Your Answer Be?" with some very classy colored illustrations.

"IN OLD KENTUCKY."

Old Time Favorite Pleases Large Audience at the Lyceum.

Perennial as the pines that grow in the mountains of "Old Kaintuck," fresh and wholesome as the breezes that stir the slumbers of the Blue Grass region, tender as the Southern charity and forgiveness—is "In Old Kentucky," that opened its seventeenth season at the Lyceum last night.

One of the best audiences of the season filled the house. The climaxes of the play were applauded, the comedy was laughed at, and the little touches of pathos were in some instances the signal for the appearance of the feminine handkerchief. "In Old Kentucky," is the kind of a play that moves people and it is the kind of a play that lives for years.

Burt G. Clark, as the old Kentucky colonel, was the best characterization in the play. Miss Olive Skinner as "Madge," the mountain girl, who rides Queen Bess to victory, was adequate. Charles K. French as the old negro servant was excellent and furnished many a laugh. The remainder of the cast was fully up to the usual standard.

A Diplomatic Tangle.

The Mack-Leone company will open this evening in "A Diplomatic Tangle" a comedy of life in Washington.

MORE NEGROES IN FARGO.

Fargo, N. D., Aug.—Fargo is threatened with an invasion of the negroes and the citizens fear this town may get in the black belt. For years there were only half a dozen families here, but recently the number has been increasing, and this summer there are more than usual. While the total is perhaps not over 1 per cent of the whites, the recent additions have made them more noticeable.

BREAKING CLOUDS.

Nowhere of late has it appeared so clearly that the people of this country are becoming more and more appreciative of the duty that society owes to its more or less dependent individuals than at the recent meeting of the Minnesota State Bar association.

The consensus of the papers and speeches heard at this meeting, typified by the speech of Judge Morris reported in The Herald last evening, is that humanity has rights which property is bound to respect, and that there is need that legislators, judges and lawyers turn a less heedless ear to the appeal of mankind for protection against the oppressions of insensate property.

For instance, in his speech Judge Morris said: "The time has come when the harsh rules of contributory negligence should declare that the calamities which bring injuries of so dire a nature to the workingman, and which are so necessary in modern business in spite of every precaution, should be borne by the public, not by the individual." This is doctrine that would have been startling a few years ago, and that is by no means commonplace now; and it is encouraging indeed to hear it from an occupant of the bench, even if it is obiter dictum.

In the old days the injured workman was well nigh helpless, and justice, if he obtained it, was a matter of good luck rather than a matter of course. Under the contributory negligence rule, strained oftentimes in the interests of property, he found himself saddled with blame that belonged to his employers; under the infamous fellow servant rule, the employer escaped because the concrete blame was placed at the door of an employe whom the injured man, perhaps, never saw or heard of; and under the doctrine of assumption of risk it was presumed that no matter how great the employe's need, no matter how much depended upon his keeping his place, perhaps the only one open to him, in going to work he assumed all the risk of employment. That doctrine, cruel, unjust, mother of a thousand iniquities, is going out of fashion; today the people are beginning to realize that the burden of the risk of employment belongs to the employer, and that it is society's duty, not to pay the cost directly—though it does pay it indirectly in any event—but to see that the employer pays it.

"I have been convinced," said Judge Morris, and in saying it he illuminated in a telling phrase the modern conception that humanity is at least as deserving as machinery, "that in the dangerous employments human wreckage should be paid for in the same manner as material wreckage. The great railroad company figures loss of engines and rolling stock as a part of its expenses. The same should apply to the human wreckage. The public should stand the burden in the same manner, through increased rates."

In the past, be it noted to the shame of the nation, the rules of law and practice have enabled employers to avoid giving consideration to human wreckage. Though machinery and tools cost money, human life is cheap. If a machine is wrecked, a new one must be brought. If an employe is hurt or killed, a new one can be hired for nothing but his wages, and the claim for damages of the injured employe can be fought in the courts. If there is less chance for the employer to rely on the law and the courts, there will be less of such business and more real justice.

ROMANCE OR MIRACLE?

The current issue of the Saturday Evening Post contains an amazingly interesting article by a Minneapolis writer, O. F. G. Day, describing a new variety of wheat which a Western farmer stumbled upon in Alaska, and which it is claimed will go as high as 222 bushels to the acre. If the story is half true the facts in it would constitute one of the greatest wonders of the period, for the possibilities of wheat that would go a couple of hundred bushels to the acre are enormous. It might even be, if the story were true, that the time would shortly come, as soon as there is seed enough to go around, when for once in its life the world's population would have enough to eat; something that has not, unfortunately, happened up to date even when there has been enough to go around.

From the Saturday Evening Post story it appears that this Western man, exploring in Alaska, came across a little patch of enormous wheat—enormous in every way. The birds had robbed its ears of nearly all the grains, but he found one nearly perfect ear and took it back home with him. There he planted it, and the yield was something frightful. He had it tried in other sections, and it grew prodigiously there, too. He took it to an agricultural experiment station, and was told that it would make the best kind of flour. At last accounts the progeny of that single ear of wheat had grown to stupendous proportions, and there seemed no way out of it but that the world was about to be blessed with a new variety of wheat that would solve the problem of feeding humanity by growing 200 bushels to the acre instead of a trifling twelve or thirteen bushels.

But just about the time people had read of this new wonder came a dispatch from Washington containing an "official statement" from the department of agriculture that sent humanity's hopes shivering down into humanity's boots once more. The department says it is simply a "freak;" that it has been known both in this country and in Europe for many years; that it has been tried at several experiment stations, but that it nowhere yielded enough to attract attention; that though it has been grown to a limited extent on certain heavy, undrained soils in France for many years, and in such locations it does rather better than ordinary wheat, it is one of the poorest wheats known for making flour.

Dr. B. T. Galloway, chief of the bureau of plant industry of the department of agriculture, added to the official statement the information that this same wheat has been referred to in reports as far back as fifty years ago, when it was called "miracle" wheat. He describes it as a freak wheat, and says that it could never be made valuable commercially.

There is one thread of hope—a very slender thread indeed—still remaining. Perhaps the functionaries of the department of agriculture are so bitterly jealous of Mr. Day of Minneapolis and the Saturday Evening Post of Philadelphia, for getting a "scoop" on the department of agriculture in giving this message of encouragement and promise to the world, that they are vengefully seeking to belittle what is really a great discovery. But we mustn't pin too much faith on this hope. The Day story, brilliantly promising as it is, is altogether too good to be true; and the statements of the department of agriculture are very much more like what we are accustomed to finding out about such tales.

A MISTAKEN OUTSIDE VIEW.

The St. Peter Free Press, taking note from afar of the recent controversy in Duluth over the absurd proposal to lower the city tax rate by increasing the valuations, leaps to a completely erroneous understanding of the situation and proceeds to larrup Duluth and The Herald, the latter for opposing the increase in valuation and the former for dodging its fair share of state taxes.

This is a misunderstanding that should not be allowed to go unchallenged, and the St. Peter paper is respectfully informed that Duluth and St. Louis county have never dodged a penny of state taxes, and that they stand ready at any time to compare figures with any other part of the state on the amount contributed to the support of the state. Before any increase was made in the valuations of Duluth—and a very substantial increase has been effected—the investigations of the state tax commission, based upon actual transfers recorded in the office of the register of deeds, showed that the city was assessed, upon the average, at 44 per cent of its actual value. These figures, be it remembered, could not include large areas where property is, at present, not being sold; and if these sections are taken into consideration it will be found that Duluth was assessed at practically 50 per cent of actual value upon the average. Since then several millions of dollars have been added to the city's assessed valuation, covering lands that have actually risen in value. St. Peter is in Nicollet county, and the average assessed valuation of the land in that county is $14.98 per acre. The county is one of the richest in the state; and this assessment can hardly exceed 25 per cent of the actual value of the lands.

There has been no protest in Duluth against a fair increase in valuations, proportionate to the actual increases in values that have come about. The opposition was to a proposal to reduce the city's tax rate by an enormous increase in the assessed valuation, the idea being not only to raise more money for city purposes, but to make the tax rate look better to investors. No question of a fair assessment was involved, as the assessment of Duluth will compare with that of any other part of the state. The St. Peter paper should bear in mind that with the exception of certain property which had increased in value, and which has since been advanced in assessed valuation accordingly, Duluth was already paying its full share of state and county taxes. The increase that was proposed would have added to the obligations of the taxpayers of Duluth $50,000 to $60,000 more than their proper share, and that is why The Herald and others opposed the increase, which was so great in some cases that it would have made taxes confiscatory, and they would not have been paid; the result being to encumber the delinquent lists with a vast amount of property and to throw the burden of taxes they should have borne upon the remainder of the property in Duluth.

Duluth and St. Louis county are not given to shirking their fair share of state taxes, and the county contributes today nearly a third of the total revenues of the state.

GOVERNMENT EXTRAVAGANCE.

With all his faults and his virtues—and the people love him quite as much for the faults as they do for the virtues—President Roosevelt has made one great mistake: he has given too little attention to economy, and the result is—though congress is quite as much to blame as he—that the Republican administrations of recent years stand accused of extravagant expenditures, to which charge they will find difficulty in returning a convincing defense.

No doubt President Roosevelt figured, subconsciously if not actually, that this is a rich country, able to afford gigantic expenditures that are in keeping with the immensity of its population, its area and its resources. This is true enough; but it should be remembered that the greater part of the nation's richness has passed out of the hands of the average man, and has gone into the hands of a few; and that taxes—and all public expenditures are out of funds raised by taxation of some sort—are still distributed so that the poor man bears an undue share of the burden. In other words, expenditures in keeping with the nation's wealth would be just if the taxes were derived from the people in proportion to their ability to pay taxes; but it does not work out that way, and in the interests of that oppressed carrier of the burdens of others, the average man, the government should be governed economically.

The Herald has heretofore suggested that there might be some method in the extravagant madness of congress. Interests that wish the tariff to remain about where it is would surely be glad to see the government become so expensive that it would be impossible to lower the duties without cutting off too much of the nation's revenues It would be perfectly logical, from the standpatter's viewpoint, to work for big appropriations so as to set a backfire against the danger of tariff revision. The Herald does not believe that President Roosevelt is a party to this plot, if plot it is, but there is something significant about the alacrity with which the standpatters in recent congresses have given their sanction to projects involving immense expenditures. Yet it must be remembered that reducing the tariff will not necessarily mean reducing the revenues; for in many cases present duties are prohibitive and produce no revenues at all, and a substitution for such duties of schedules that are just to all the people would bring about a sudden increase in the revenues.

Whatever the reason, congress has been recklessly extravagant. The expenditures of the last session were $1,008,397,543.56, the greatest total ever reached by this country in time of peace. The country was amazed and frightened when a single congress, in two sessions, spent a billion dollars. Yet now we find this record doubled, and a single session of congress costing the country as much as two sessions did when Speaker Reed ventured as an excuse for the billion-dollar congress that this has become a billion-dollar country. The appropriations during the last four years have amounted to $3,428,000,000, or $33,900,000 more than during four years of civil war. It is something to think about.

After all the people run the only political steam roller that counts.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Thomas M. Hamilton of Santiago de Chili, who was at the Spalding hotel yesterday, is authority for the statement that there is at least one of the South American states that is not in immediate danger of being thrown into war, however trivial that war may be. He refers to Chili, which he states has not had war for the past fourteen years, and which, according to the statement of Mr. Hamilton, will not have a revolution for the next fifty years.

The people are prosperous and law abiding, if the opinion Mr. Hamilton has formed of the citizens of Chili is correct and they are not affected with Castroitis, the revolutionary germ that has made the subjects of the fiery Castro about as peaceful as a gin-filled negro.

There is another fact about Chili that will strike the average citizen as peculiar. The people are required to pay no government taxes down in the country with the Mexican food dish name. The government very kindly says nay, when the good citizen would fain dig into his jeans, or whatever they wear down there, and pays the taxes out of some fund that they have created for that very nice purpose. The exports of government minerals and other raw materials, pay the taxes of the government and leaves something over.

They have government ownership of railways down there, too. That is, the principal railroad of the country is owned by the government. This railroad is not a paying proposition. The conductors either knock down an occasional defenseless dollar, or the government traffic officials are not jerry to the way to run a railroad or they keep the rates too low, but at any rate the government digs up for the cost of running the railroad. It never murmurs over the deficit at the end of the fiscal year, but it goes ahead, year in and year out, operating that road at a heavy loss.

Minerals and beef, according to Mr. Hamilton, are two of the principal products of the country. He says that the beef is not exported from the country as there is sufficient demand for it in Chili to furnish a good market to the cattle raiser. The minerals are exported from the country and are the means of providing revenuesufficient to carry on all departments of the state.

Mr. Hamilton says that the financial depression has been felt down Chili way, but so far with no very grievious results. Money is somewhat scarce, but the industries of the country have not been seriously retarded by the blighting hand of business depression. The business of the country is upon firm basis, according to Mr. Hamilton, for Chili has passed through the experimental stage, being a staple government with prosperous citizens and sane government officials, something that was thought impossible in a South American government some few years ago.

Mr. Hamilton says that the most cordial feelings exist toward the United States. The people entertain the most friendly feeling toward this country, and Mr. Hamilton says there is no time like the present for the United States to extend its commerce to South America. He says markets await American manufactured products there, and should the United States pursue a systematic course in the matter of cultivating the markets of South America, it could greatly increase its foreign commerce. He says the time is ripe for the United States to make a great effort to find markets in South America, for if this country does not avail itself of the opportunity offered, Mr. Hamilton says that Germany and other countries of Europe will soon control the markets in that productive field.

"Sweetheart, I love you truly" floated over the lobby of the Lenox hotel yesterday afternoon. Men lowered their papers, two or three women looked inquiringly toward the place where the sound came from, and even the languid bellboys looked inquisitive for a moment. Every one seemed interested.

The words of the tender melody came from the golden throat of B. H. Richardson, an insurance man, who sells policies against accidents that might result from just such chances as Mr. Richardson took yesterday. Again the words floated onto the air, penetrating to the far corner of the dining room and bringing a red headed waitress to the door, in her anxiety to see who was the owner of such a voice—of such a voice!

Mr. Richardson was not exactly singing a solo. He was warbling through the telephone to a maiden. He was putting his soul into the song and his mouth into the transmitter. It was not known how the girl at the other end of the wire took the song, but one man who had delayed reading Bryan's acceptance speech for several days, in an impulsive moment grabbed on inkwell and drew back his arm Cool heads prevented serious trouble.

Finally the song ended. "I'll meet you at the old bridge," fairly shouted the insurance man through the telephone. Again he repeated "at the old bridge," so it is gathered that his voice made a hit with some one and that the end justified the desperate chances he took in making a hit with the maid.

Burt G. Clark, who plays the part of Col. Sandusky Doolittle in, "In Old Kentucky," is not a southerner by birth, but has acquired the southern drawl and accent through years of association with the part of the Kentucky colonel. Today, Mr. Clark talks of the stage with just as much of a southern accent as the most unsophisticated of the Kentucky mountain whites. He has played the part so long, lived the life of the old southern colonel so throughly during these many years, that at last he has taken on the mannerisms of the part and has become in actual life not unlike a real old colonel of the Blue Grass region.

THE WEATHER.

These are assuredly ideal days Yesterday's highest temperature was 70 degs., and last night's lowest of 54 degs., made it great for sleeping. This morning it was clear, fine, cool and fresh, though a trifle warmer than yesterday. The weather man expects fine weather tonight and tomorrow, and says it will be a little warmer tonight. A year ago today a severe thunderstorm oonthued all day. The sun rose this morning at 5:09 and sets tonight at 7:34, making 14 hours and 5 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Low pressure areas are central over New England states, Manitoba and North Pacific districts, with high pressure overdying Iowa, Montana and Alberta. During the past twenty-four hours these conditions caused light to copious showers in the Ohio valley, North Atlantic and West Gulf states and the Southwest. Temperatures are somewhat cooler in the lake region, Ohio and Southern Utah and warmer in the New England states and the greater portion of the Northwest. Pleasant weather is indicated for the Head of the Lakes tonight and Wednesday."

Honest!

Philadelphia Record: When Mrs. Bateman was dressed, he noticed a difference in the appearance of her mohair wrap.

"Isn't that lace something like that you found in the street the other day?" he asked.

"Yes," she said, "it is the same piece."

"I thought you took it back," said Bateman.

Mrs. Bateman blushed. "I did," she said faintly. "But I—I got it again. I couldn't give it up. I went to the lost and found department the next day and asked for it myself."

"Oh!" said Bateman.

What of Jacobson?

Waseca Herald: Mr. Jacobson, candidate of the Republican party for governor, has heretofore held a high position in the estimation of the people of this state as a genuine reformer, and not a demagogue. His candidacy before the holding of the late Republican convention was hailed by honest men of all parties as evidence of a growing sentiment of reform throughout the state.

It was not expected, however, that the wholesale liquor dealers, liquor manufacturers, saloonists or the railroad and other combine "interests" would support "Honest Jake," either before or after the convention. Hence it is that honest Republicans, as well as honest independents, are asking one another—"How does it happen that the liquor leagues, the railroad interests, and the corporation combines generally were unanimously in favor of Mr. Jacobson's nomination?"

"Has the leopard changed his spots, or can or will he?"

Thus far these questions have not been answered, either by Mr. Jacobson or by the "interests," including the Morgan-Rockefeller-Carnegie, Iron Range and Standard Oil interests.

It is time for Mr. Jacobson to take a stand one way or the other upon the county option issue and the other questions that are of public interest.

This is important, for much depends upon the fact of who is backing the candidates for office these days.

Will "Jacob" give us light?

What $10 Did.

Durand Courier: Mr. Brown keeps a boarding house. Around the table sits his wife, Mrs. Brown; the village milliner, Mrs. Andrews, Mr. Black, the boarder; Mr. Jordan, the carpenter, and Mr. Handly, seed and lumber merchant. Mr. Brown took $10 out of his pocketbook and handed it to Mrs. Brown with the remark that there was $10 toward the $20 he had promised her. Mrs. Brown handed the bill to Mrs. Andrews, the milliner, saying, "That pays for my new bonnet." Mrs. Andrews in turn gave it to Mr. Jordan, remarking that it would pay for the carpenter work he had done for her. Mr. Jordan handed it to Mr. Handley, requesting his receipted bill for lumber. Mr. Handley gave the bill back to Mr. Brown, saying, "That pays $10 on my board." Mr. Brown passed it to Mrs. Brown, saying he had now paid her the $20 he had promised her. She in turn paid Mr. Black to settle her bread and pastry account. Mr. Black handed it to Mr. Handley, asking credit for the amount on his flour bill. Mr. Handley again remarked that it settled for that month's board, whereupon Mr. Brown put it in his pocket, remarking that he hadn't supposed a greenback would go so far. But suppose Mrs. Brown had sent to a mail order house for a new bonnet, then that $10 would have gone out of town and never come back.

There is a moral to this: Spend your money with home merchants.

Not New, But Determined.

Boston Transcript: The new radicalism of the West was the one most striking exhibit of the recent conventions. This impression has been strengthened by Bristow's defeat of Long in Kansas and by Cummins' reasonable assurance of succeeding Allison in Iowa. What would he the Republican chances of success today had they nominated a candidate of "the allies" on a platform essentially checking the Roosevelt policies? Too small to be worth mentioning!

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

•••The Minnesota Democrats have nominated Eugene M. Wilson of Minneapolis for governor. Charles d'Autremont of Duluth was nominated for attorney general.

•••The oarsmen of the Duluth Boat club will hold their first full series of races tomorrow afternoon. The program is as follows: Steamboat race for the Benient cup, now held by B. F. Myers—John Chisholm and B. F. Myers, Duncan McLeod and Ed Howard, W. E. Perry and Tom Moore. Single scull race for the club championship—H. W. Pearson and W. B. Silvey. Four-oared race—One crew consisting of F. D. Banning, stroke; W. B. Silvey, No. 3; C. C. Cochran, No. 2; H. S. Mahon, bow; the other comprising Dean Burke, stroke; H. W. Pearson, No. 3; F. A. Lewis, No. 2; W. B. McLean, bow. Single scull race, open to novices of 1888—L. J. Hopkins, Raymond Moore and W. B. McLean. Double scull race—L. J. Hopkins and H. S. Mahon against H. D. Pearson and Raymond Moore. D. G. Cutler will be umpire and H. H. Myers and Fred Reynolds starters and judges. The races will be one and a half miles with a turn.

•••It is now estimated that Minnesota and Dakota will yield this year between 95,000,000 and 105,000,000 bushels of wheat, slightly in excess of the yield of last season.

•••The ladies of the Second Baptist church have organized a missionary society with the following officers: President, Mrs. W. M. Hubbard; vice president, Mrs. Cressy; treasurer, Mrs. E. S. Bronson; secretary, Mrs. A. H. Ballard. Mrs. M. S. Frazer and Mrs. John Campbell were appointed solicitors.

•••James Kane has leased the Nicollet house at Old Superior, and J. A. Stockbridge will engage in the hotel business at the West end.

•••Palmer & Hall are drawing plans for stores and flats to be built by A. M. Kilgore on Fourth street and Fourth avenue west.

•••Judge Martin climbed the hill to East Sixth street last evening for the purpose of uniting in matrimony Carl Long and Miss Josephine Austin. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's parents.

•••P. H. Kershaw, who has been on the Duluth board of trade for a year, leaves tomorrow for Tacoma, Wash., where he will go into the lumber business.

•••The Republican electors of the Forty-sixth senatorial district will meet in delegate convention at Verndale, on Sept. 19, to place in nomination a candidate for representative. There will be twenty-five delegates, and according to the apportionment made by the committee, St. Louis county will have only seven.

•••Ralph W. Baker, former secretary of the Duluth board of trade, is very seriously ill. His disease has reached a critical stage.

•••John T. Condon has sold out his line of boots and shoes to M. A. Phillips of the Model shoe store.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Aitkin Republican: The Walker Pilot suggests that Jacobson does not eat pie with a knife, but he eats peas in that manner. Jake hasn't made any denial of this campaign roorback.

Fairmont Sentinel: What we wish to impress upon Mr. Jacobson is the weakness of his bill of particulars. It is up to him to try it again. In what respect, Mr. Jacobson, has Minnesota retrogressed and lost since it "fell under Democratic government?" Give us your bill of particulars. Minnesota surely looks good and has given every indication of moving strongly forward, notwithstanding its "Democratic government."

Sauk Center Herald: "Jake" made quite a lengthy speech at Duluth the other day, the first time for months that he has opened his mouth. If "Jake" wants to make a winning run for election he will do well to let the other fellows do most of the talking.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: The time to have defeated Mills was in the state Republican convention, but the rank and file of the Republican party permitted the opportunity to pass.—Browns Valley Tribune.

Brother Gordon presents a mighty poor argument. He admits that Mills should not have been nominated, but thinks he ought to be elected because the Republican party nominated him. This is partisanship gone to seed. The voters are likely to take a different view and are not going to vote for any man whose nomination was forced upon the Republican party by the "interests."

Albert Lea Standard: Let's see. J. F. Jacobson, two years ago indulged in tirades on the stump against the railroads while at the same time he was enjoying the benefits of free passes. Is he turning the same trick this year?

New Ulm Review: The nomination of Jacob F. Jacobson for governor puts the Democratic party in a hole from which it will not be able to extricate itself for years to come.—St. James Plaindealer.

Oh, come off. That's exactly what you said two years ago when you nominated Cole.

Walker Pilot: If every man's wealth was judged according to his church contributions, the per capita of the most of us would look about like 30 cents.

St. Peter Herald: Irving L. Lenroot, speaker of the Wisconsin legislature at its last session, is making a campaign for congress on the Cannon issue. He pledges himself to vote against Cannon for speaker, and further promises to represent the people, regardless of the attitude that may be taken by his party. Lenroot is an enthusiastic La Follette man, and seems to have absorbed the independence of his leader.

Paynesville Press (Rep.): J. F. Jacobson delivered the initial speech of his campaign at Duluth last week. According to the newspaper reports his talk consisted mainly of attacks on Governor Johnson and the Democratic state administration for extravagance in the administration of the state's affairs. If tirades of that kind are to be the tone of his campaign he will find a very cool reception. Governor Johnson is not an issue in this campaign and the people understand that the state has had a Republican legislature that has not made a brilliant record for economy.

The Mosquito.

When all the world is calm and sweet
And sunset sends her rosy glow,
'Tis then the pesky skeeter comes
To wander madly to and fro.
He sees you as you sit at ease
Beneath the friendly portico,
And buzzing softly, settles down
To sting you where your shoes are low.
Then swells a burning, itching bump
Quite like a camel's shaggy hump.
—Chicago Journal.

Speaking Frankly.

Syracuse Post: No matter how much a woman loves her husband, she would not be happy if she thought he was having anything but a miserable time while she is away on a vacation.

Coffee County, Ga., News: A man will wait on a bank four hours for a fish that doesn't intend to bite; but he won't wait five minutes for his wife to get ready for church.

Clinton, Mo., Democrat: It is one of the cold facts extracted by the wisdom of the nineteenth century that there are four things a woman can't do—sharpen a lead pencil, throw a rock, keep a secret, and root intelligently at a ball game.

Uvalde, Tex., Press: Mother, it won't be long before that pretty little bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked girl of yours is a young lady. She is 10, 11, 12 years old. What a charming little lassie she is! What have you done for her? Dressed her like a doll, dawdled her like a lap dog, sent her to school, but taught her nothing at home? Don't you think that you had better teach her to bake bread, boil beans, and roast beef?

Chickasha, Okla., Journal: "A clever woman can sometimes make a fool of a man, but it takes a fluffy little thing with a baby face and no brains or morals to speak of to make him make a fool of himself," says a Chickasha spinster.

Housekeeping Hints.

Atchison Globe: During the absence of their wives, George Rowe and John O'Neil are keeping bachelor's hall at the home of Mr. Rowe. They agreed that whoever dropped a dish and broke it should mark it on the wall. Last night Mr. Rowe kicked; he said there were so many marks that the wall paper was being spoilt. When Mr. O'Neil washes dishes now, he sits on the floor; thus, when he drops a dish, it doesn't break.

SAID IN FUN.

Cleveland Leader: "I never had any luck."

"Why, they say you were born with a silver spoon in your mouth."

"Yes, and it blamed near choked me to death."

Houghton Post: "His trip to Denver broadened him greatly."

"Yes, he got in the way of the steam roller."

Philadelphia Ledger: "But you must concede that women are the intellectual equals of men," said the suffragette.

"Never," replied the man firmly; "never, until they have learned not to get off a street car backwards."

Chicabo Tribune: Miss Mayme (on vacation)—Oh, auntie, it's such a luxury to have nothing to do but just loll in a hammock with my precious Shelley or even the Vicar of Wakefield!"

Elderly Relative—Child, if I hear of any more such scandalous doings I shall write to your mother.

Washington Star: "I hope you are not going to sulk in your tent."

"No, sir," answered Senator Sorghum. "No sulking in a tent for me. I shall take care to provide myself with a four-story house and an income to run it before I undertake to do any sulking."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "We were awfully disappointed in our summer outing."

"How was that?"

"Why, it wasn't a bit as the comic supplements picture it. The farmer had no whiskers and he used very good English, and the butter and eggs didn't come from the city, and we weren't overcharged the tiniest bit."

Judge: "Even though you are my brother's son, I am obliged to discharge you. But I am sorry for your mother's sake."

"Oh, that's all right, sir. Mother says she don't see how I've put up with you as long as I have."

Baltimore American: "Is Bings in a wheat speculation now?"

"No; he has found something better."

"What is it?"

"He has a corn affair on foot."

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: A woman is known by the acquaintances she cuts.

Even the prude isn't averse to sitting in the lap of luxury.

Pride and prejudice make an unsatisfactory pair to draw to.

Waste quickly makes way with the fortune of a fast young man.

Marriage is a poor eye opener for those who are blinded by jealousy.

Speaking of marble hearts, it is more satisfactory to give than to receive.

Women may come and women may go, but the bargain-counter habit goes on forever.

Even a strong-minded female dislikes the idea of standing up for herself in a street car.

One difference between a man and a mule is that the man does the most of his kicking with his mouth.

You may have observed that an office seeker is a man who shakes the voter's hand before the election and shakes the voter afterwards.

Her Superb Disdain.

Chicago Tribune: But there was one young woman in the box party at the theater who took no part in the noisy clatter and giggle.

With her gaze fixed upon the stage she watched the progress of the play, indifferent to the gayety around her, except that her delicate, aristocratic, finely chiselled features bore a look of weariness and a scornful smile curled her lips.

At last, however, she turned her head slowly and looked at the other members of the party.

Then she spoke to the elderly matron sitting by her side.

"That girl in the blue kimono," she said, "thinks she's the whole custard!"

Tilling the Soil.

Maxwell's Talisman: At the bottom of many a dazzling fortune lie dishonor, infidelity, falsehood, robbery, betrayal of a friend and the wreck of the possession of the unwary. What the farmer gains is laden with sweet sunshine, the zephyrs of spring and the fostering love of all nature's gentle ministry. So that when one takes account of the compensations, mental and spiritual, that come to him whose daily bread comes from honest toil, over his who lives by his wits or is the Robin Hood of society, the balance throws high into the air the one who lives by speculation or adventure.

Terrifying.

Washington Star: "A wheelbarrow," said Uncle Eben, "ain' nigh as dang'rous as er automobile, but it's terrifyin' to a heap mo' people."

Money in Safe Deposit.

Bismarck, N. D., Tribune: The Grand Forks Herald is guilty of perpetrating this: A McHenry boy swallowed a silver quarter the other day. Late reports of his condition indicate that there has been no change.

WRITES NOTE THEN SHOOTS

Farmer Near Nielsville, Polk County, Ends Life Rather Dramatically.

Pens Lines to Companion Then Blew Out His Brains.

And with a heart that is true,
I'll be waiting for you,
In the shade of the cottonwood tree.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 18—(Special to The Herald.)—With this attempt at poetry, Jacob Mogdal, a young farmer, living near Nielsville, Polk county, closed a few lines he had written to his friend, Thorval Stromstad, some time Sunday, then blew out his brains in a clump of cottonwood trees, near the house on his farm. The body was cold when found, and the coroner decided it was a clear case of suicide.

The note, found by the body, was written on ordinary wrapping paper, saying in part:

Dear Thor—I have now lived to see the last glimpse of hope, and what is now done can never be done over. Thor, you think this is awful, but you know I vowed—— Now you take half the crop as usual, and my work shall be acknowledged, and the time is too gruesome, and I cannot do any more, so I thank you all for your kindness. And my last words shall be, Father forgive me and let me out of my misery.

Jacob lived but a mile from his brother Mickel, and boarded with him most of the time, taking his dinners on his own farm, which he worked with Thorvald. He came to Nielsville in 1895, from Norway, and had been of an industrious and sunny disposition till a short time ago, when his love affairs went wrong and he started brooding. He had intimated that he might do something desperate, but both Thorvald, who was his bosom companion, and his relatives, did not take the threats seriously.

CREAMERY NEAR FOSSTON.

Another Butter Factory is Promised Polk County.

Fosston, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Another new and strictly modern creamery is in process of construction by the Hill River Creamery association of Eastern Polk county, near here, of which C. J. Matson is president and A. J. Matson, secretary. The creamery will be equipped by the most modern machinery and will be in operation inside of a month. A. J. Matson is putting up a 1,500 barn for a dairy herd, which is but an illustration of what the farmers are doing to advance the dairy industry in this section.

MOTHER'S GUIDE

When a young girl's thoughts become sluggish; when she has headaches, dizziness, faintness, and exhibits an abnormal disposition to sleep; dislikes the society of other girls; then the mother should come to her aid promptly, for she possesses information of vital importance to the young daughter.

At such a time the greatest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the coming change, and has helped to bring three generations safely from girlhood to womanhood. Read what has accomplished for Miss Olson.

Miss Ellen M. Olson, of 417 North East Street, Kewanee, Ill., in a letter to Mrs. Pinkham says:

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of backache, sideache, and established my periods after the best physicians in Kewanee had failed to help me, saying that an operation was necessary."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

SOLWAY LIVERY BARN DESTROYED

Beltrami County Town Sustains Fire Loss of About $1,000.

Solway, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.—Solway was visited by another fire yesterday which completely destroyed the livery barn of A. B. Palmer and contents. It is presumed that matches in the hands of small boys found near the barn at the time, were responsible.

Everything possible was done to save the building, but in less than an hour it was a total loss, the firemen having hard work to save the adjoining buildings.

At one time it was thought that the saloon building and ice house of Mike Wold could not be saved, but by hard work the firemen succeeded in controlling the flames.

Mr. Palmer's loss is estimated at $1,000, which is partially covered by insurance.

HUM OF THRESHER HEARD IN VALLEY

Farmers in Red River Valley Reporting Pretty Good Yields.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—By the latter part of the present week a reliable estimate can be made of the wheat, oats, barley and rye crop of the Red River valley. Nearly all the threshing machines in this vicinity have started, and by the middle of the week they will all be running.

F. M. Slyter finished threshing his earliest field of wheat yesterday and it averaged 25¾ bushels per acre and graded No. 1 northern, netting almost $25 per acre. Several other farmers have threshed early wheat, and it is all yielding well. This does not give a reliable basis to estimate the total crop on, as it is only the early wheat that is excellent. The wheat sown fairly early is a fair crop and the late sown wheat will bring the average way down. The perfect weather for harvesting and threshing is making the grade of the wheat excellent.

H. A. Tofsley finished his barley threshing and reports a yield of a trifle over 60 bushels per acre, of first quality.

Bert Cochrane had a yield of thirty bushels of barley per acre and practically his entire farm was seeded to barley.

The collection of the Polk county exhibit to the state fair demonstrates that there was some of the most magnificent crops grown this year that Polk county ever produced. Nels C. Hanson has brought in several loads of exhibits.

HAS AN ANCIENT MEDAL.

Munising Man Possesses Relic of Early Michigan Days.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—An ancient medal, one of the number presented to the chiefs of the Chippewa tribe, Aug. 6, 1826, is a cherished possession of Andrew Herron of Munising. It was given him by an Indian, a descendant of one of the original recipients, ten years ago. It is of exceptional size, and is of silver.

The medals were conferred upon the chiefs as symbols of the ratification of the important treaty of Fond du Lac, negotiated by Col. T. L. McKenny, U. S. A., and Gen. Lewis Cass, territorial governor of Michigan. On the face is a likeness of the nation's executive at that time, partly surrounding which, in a semi-circle, are the words, "John Quincy Adams, President of the United States," together with the year of issue, 1825. On the reverse side is the motto, "Peace and Friendship," between the words of which are a tomahawk and a pipe, one crossing the other, and two clasped hands, one that of a soldier, the other that of an Indian.

IT INDICATES GOOD TIMES.

Prompt Manner in Which Houghton Taxes Are Being Paid.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A sure indication of the prosperity of a community is the manner in which it pays its taxes and Houghton is in pretty good financial condition at present because the people are coming into the treasurer's office with unusual promptness and paying up. At least there is more than the normal amount of money in the treasury at the present time.

Oliver Marion, ex-village treasurer and assistant to Village Treasurer Weir, says that the tax collections are better now than usual at this time of year. The fact that Mr. Weir does not agree with him may not mean much as this is Mr. Weir's first year in the office. He thinks business is bad but Mr. Marion says that he is a pessimist.

LEFT FAMILY HERE.

Former Inmate of Insane Asylum Dies Near Pine City.

Pine City, Minn., Aug. 18.—Fred Wilson, a recent inmate of the hospital for the insane at Fergus Falls, died at the home of Alex Johnson, six miles southeast of Pine City, Wednesday morning. The cause of his death was acute nephritis, contributary to acute mania and chronic insanity.

The authorities assert that the man made his escape from the hospital about two weeks ago.

He leaves a wife and family residing in Duluth. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon, with interment in the Lutheran cemetery.

PINE CITY TEACHERS.

Supt. Oleson Announces Who Will Instruct Youth There.

Pine City, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Pine City public schools will open Sept. 7. Supt. Peter Oleson announces that the following will teach during the coming school year: Peter Oleson, superintendent; Ada B. Kuntz, principal, Owatonna; Oliver D. Billing, science and mathematics, Cannon Falls; Frances Harrington, 8th grade, Sioux Falls, S. D.; Alexa M. Garvin, 7th grade, Le Sueur Center; Adelaide Lewis, 6th grade, Minneapolis; Helen Olson, 5th and 4th, Red Wing; Irene Fischer, 3rd and 4th, Pine City; Kate Barnum, 2nd grade, Pine City; Pearle Seely, 1st grade, Blue Earth City.

FIRE DESTROYS BEREMAN HOTEL

Hostelry in Itasca County Town is Reduced to Ashes.

Houpt, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Bereman hotel in this village was burned to the ground Saturday night at 11:30. The origin of the fire is unknown. Everything was lost to Edward Bereman, the proprietor, with the exception of the contents of a fire-proof safe.

No one was injured and the guests escaped, but were unable to save any of their property. The hotel was valued at $5,000 and was covered by $2,500 insurance.

BOY BLOWN FROM PIER INTO WATER AND DROWNED

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 18.—Clifford Varson of Calumet, aged 17, was blown off the pier of the United States ship canal, nine miles west of Houghton, and drowned. A fifty-mile wind was blowing from the northwest. The body was recovered half an hour after the accident.

DOMESTIC TROUBLES BLAMED FOR INSANITY.

Brookston, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wm. Ball of this city, married, after being rescued from an attempt to drown himself, was yesterday declared insane and taken to Fergus Falls last night. Domestic troubles are assigned as the cause. Gust Swanson will be taken down today from East Grand Forks.

HOTEL GUESTS POISONED.

Langford, S. D., Aug. 18.—Twenty guests at a hotel in Langford were poisoned, several of them narrowly escaping death, supposedly from eating canned vegetables. The hotel was transformed into a hospital, and several doctors worked all night to save the lives of the sufferers. No blame is attached to the hotel management.

WIFE UNDER A CLOUD.

Better Half of Murdered Man Held by Coroner's Jury.

Little Falls, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. William L. Golnick, wife of the man who was murdered in his home in Swan River last week, presumably by robbers, has been held on recommendation of the coroner's jury that looked into the strange killing of her husband. While the nature of the testimony introduced against her is not made public, it is understood to be decidedly damaging.

MONTANA MAN SUCCUMBS WHILE ON THE TRAIN.

Mandan, N. D., Aug. 18.—While traveling from Bozeman, Mont., to Bay City, Mich., Gideon Boucher, according to the papers on his person, expired suddenly on a Northern Pacific train a few days ago. The body was brought here and turned over to an undertaker, while the coroner got into communication with his relatives.

LARGE JULY BUSINESS.

Dickinson Land Office Broke Records Last Month.

Dickinson, N. D., Aug. 18.—All former records of the Dickinson United States land office for receipts for any one month were broken in July, when the total treasury deposits of the local office amounted to $52,207.59, according to the following report just issued for the business transacted during the month ending July 31:

Original homestead entries, 304; commuted homesteads, 157; final homestad entries, 15; railroad selections, 1; public land sales, 19; homestead entries (soldiers' additional), 1; coal land entries, 2; reservoir declaratory statements, 8; coal declaratory statements, 2; excesses, 19; state selections, 5. Total receipts, $52,207.59.

WITH ANOTHER SOCIETY.

Big Falls, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The correspondence from this point in Saturday's Herald erred in stating that Jesse Goar of Montevideo, Minn., was working in this section in the interest of the Modern Woodmen of America. He is working for the Modern Brotherhood of America, of which he is a deputy, being the son of John J. Goar of Two Harbors, the district manager.

DEAD IN BATHTUB.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Aug. 18.—L. S. Tyler, one of the best known men in this part of the state, was found dead in a bath tub at his residence Monday. Death is supposed to have resulted from heart failure. Mr. Tyler had been a member of the legislature in both states.

FEDERAL JUDGE HAS VIEWS ON HANDLING POLICE COURTS.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—If Judge Amidon of the United States district court of North Dakota had his way, municipal judges would not inflict either fines or imprisonment on plain drunks. The judge dropped in the police court recently and watched the trial of a number of cases at the conclusion of which he announced his views on the matter.

Overfatness Condemned

This year, fat ladies must understand the demand is for lines. Curves must go; and this means the fat must come off. Many are trying exercise or dieting, but these methods are too slow, too unreliable. The best method of reducing is provided by Marmola Prescription Tablets. This makes a safe, pleasant, inexpensive (an effective quantity costs only 75 cents) method that frequently takes off a pound or more a day without forming wrinkles, disturbing the stomach or producing any bad effects whatever.

Ask your druggist about this quality of harmlessness. The tablets are made by the authority of the Marmola Co., Detroit, Mich., exactly in accordance with the famous prescription—½ ounce Marmola; ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ ounces Sirup Simplex—which latter your pharmacist will tell he has put up hundreds of times with the very best results.

OPEN BELLE PLAINE BANK.

Plans Now on Foot That May Prove Successful.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Plans for the reorganization of the First National bank of Belle Plaine are being considered and it is believed that one of them will be adopted. It is the desire of the estate of John G. Lund that his stock amounting to $13,000 be sold to some practical banker, who will assist H. B. Kamp, the cashier, in reorganization.

There are two prospective purchasers for the Lund stock, which carries with it the control of the bank.

Mr. Kamp has been in Minneapolis several times the last week and is confident that the bank will soon reopen, as both the capitalists who have the matter under consideration are men of means, and are satisfied that the bank can be made a dividend payer.

The executors, after a hasty inventory of Mr. Lund's land holdings in North and South Dakota and other states, figure that the property outside of Minnesota can be made to yield $100,000 if handled judiciously.

HIS SKULL FRACTURED.

The remains were shipped by his brother, H. E. Reiersgaard to Gary for interment. He had been confined to Bethesda hospitol for the past four months.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Stillwater—Mr. and Mrs. D. J. McCulsh went to Duluth Thursday for a visit with relatives there.

Floodwood—Miss Sandboe, who has been attending summer school at the Duluth normal, returned home Friday night. Miss Sandboe will probably teach the Simonson school in this district the coming term.

St. Cloud—The annual retreat for the Benedictine Fathers began Monday evening at the St. John's abbey and will continue until Friday morning. The exercises are conducted by Rev. Laufer, a priest of the Oblate order of Winnipeg, Can.

Glenwood—At a meeting of the directors of the new Farmers' Elevator company, held Friday evening, a deal was closed with W. F. Dougherty for the latter's elevator property at the Soo depot. The farmers will be ready in a short time to buy grain.

Pine City—Mrs. Carrie E. Green, district president of the W. C. T. U., will be in Pine City Wednesday, Aug. 19 for the purpose of organizing a union here. A meeting will be held at the Presbyterian church at 1:30 p. m., and a short program will be given.

Crookston—Word has been received of the death of Lorens Olsen Tommerdahl at Enumclaw, Wash., July 31, the funeral having been held there Sunday, Aug. 2. Deceased is a brother to Mrs. Peter Cornelius residing near this city, and has two brothers at Fergus Falls. He was one of the pioneer farmers of this section, having come here in 1873.

Aitkin—Petitions for the cut-off canal from a point in Morrison township about five miles below Waldeck's river, to Pine Knoll, are now being circulated for signatures, one being in charge of E. P. Jacques, the other at the store of the Petraborg-Karlstrom company in this village.

Onamia—A Presbyterian Ladies' Aid society was organized at the home of Mrs. R. E. Barton Wednesday. There was a goodly number present, and considerable interest was shown. Mrs. F. R. Burrell was elected president, and Mrs. R. E. Barton secretary and treasurer.

Hinckley—The enormous engines recently placed on the Northern Pacific cannot be turned on the turntable and a Y is being built west of the yards on which to turn them. Ten or twelve teams and about twenty men are now at work on the grading. The Y starts near the Grindstone bridge and runs nearly to the house occupied by I. D. Nye, returning to the stockyards.

Onamia—Robert S. Shaw of Greenbush township is a candidate for the office of probate judge. Mr. Shaw was a member of the board of county commissioners for a number of years.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Ashland—Miss Estelle Reel, superintendent of Indian schools of the United States, and Senator Moses S. Clapp of Minnesota, and wife left Saturday for the Sand Island camp, Miss Reel leaving on the with a large loading hook. Sylvester was brought to the St. Anthony hospital here. The doctors report that he will recover.

Hartford—At the annual meeting of the Kissel Kar company the capital stock was raised from $100,000 to $200,000. All the stock was allotted to the present members. They also passed resolutions to enlarge the plant and add extra machinery, which will greatly increase the output. A new building, 50x130 feet, with four stories, will be erected.

Marinette—Isaac Stephenson and party returned home on schedule time Sunday after completing the twenty-sixth annual trip down the Escanaba river in quest of the elusive trout. Over 500 speckled beauties, non under ten inches, were caught, and the men of the party who distinguished themselves by prize catches were Governor Davidson, I. Watson Stephenson and Fred Hutchinson.

Shawno—The Wausau & Western has begun hauling down the right-of-way. They amount to about 600,000 and have been purchased by the Shawno Lumber company. A short side track has been built to the west just across the Shawno creek bridge to be used in unloading the logs.

Racine—By capsizing of a boat off St. Patrick street in Lake Michigan Sunday afternoon, John Boebel, 23 years old, was drowned, and his companion, Henry Dunhousen, narrowly escaped.

Beloit—Joseph Ceynover and Henry Fredericks were sentenced to six months in the county jail and one year in the Green Bay reformatory, respectively, for stealing a keg of beer from a Schlitz refrigerator car ten days ago.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Houghton—Helen, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie McPhail, died Saturday at their home on Edwards street. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon.

Hancock—Death claimed the three-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Milford of Pewabic Saturday morning. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon with services at the house at 2:30. Interment was at the old Protestant cemetery.

South Range—The Copper Range railroad is filling in several of the bridges along the main line. This is done to further strengthen the trestles.

Calumet—William J. Penhallegan, superintendent of the works of the Republic Iron & Steel company of Birmingham, Ala., is visiting with friends and relatives in the Copper country. Mr. Penhallegan was formerly a resident of this community.

Hancock—The Kerredge theater is dark this week and while it is closed considerable work will be done in the way of brightening up the playhouse for the coming season. The Mack-Leone Stock company will open an engagement here on Monday, Aug. 31.

Calumet—Work has been started on the cement walk to be laid by the Calumet & Hecla company west from the end of the Oak street walk.

R. E. Daniells has gone to Duluth for a few days.

Marquette—The close of Saturday, the last day on which petitions of candidates for nomination in the direct primaries Sept. 1 could be filed, found petitions of Representative John R. Gordon, Charles R. McCabe and T. M. Wells of Negaunee, candidates for representative, on record with County Clerk Jenks.

Negaunee—The employes of the Rolling Mill mine were paid on Friday. It is likely that the Rolling Mill mine pay day will occur on Friday instead of Saturday, at least during the remainder of the summer months, and perhaps longer, as the arrangement would be more satisfactory to the business men and the bank, as well as to the employes.

Michigamme—Mrs. Gust Johnson died Friday evening at her home at Kenton. The remains were brought to Michigamme and interred Sunday in Lake View cemetery. Cancer of the stomach was the cause of her death. The deceased was widely known in both Kenton and Michigamme.

Marquette—R. H. Gross, president of the East Butte Copper company, and treasurer of the Begole syndicate, arrived in Marquette from Butte Saturday and will spend some time with F. H. Begole. They will visit all the principal mines in the Copper country.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Bismarck, N. D.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fredenhagen of Topeka left for the West Saturday afternoon. He will organize the work in which he is engaged in the state prisons of Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. They will return and hold a prison meeting in Bismarck on the second Sunday in September.

Minot, N. D.—U. Renner of Minot, who lived for over twenty years in the oil centers in Ohio, believes that if there is gas at Westhope there must be gas at Minot and therefore believes that the city should go slow before granting a franchise to anyone.

Fargo, N. D.—The funeral of the late Miss Merle Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Richardson, was held Saturday morning at the residence and interment was made in Riverside cemetery. The services were conducted by the members of the Christian Science church.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The Western Union Telegraph company has decided to comply with the orders of the city council and will place all poles and wires in the alleys. This will make the streets clear of poles and will be a decided improvement over the present condition of affairs.

Tolna, N. D.—Theodore M. Dechr has been appointed postmaster here and has formally entered upon the duties of his office. Mr. Dechr has been acting postmaster for several months.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Gus Allison, colored, and Elling Hestengaard, both insane, were taken to Jamestown Saturday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Johnson, Deputy Clerk of Court C. L. Graber and Judge McLoughlin.

Mayville, N. D.—The summer school of 1908 closed last week after the most successful term ever experienced with us. Attendance and interest have been very gratifying. The summer school has come to stay.

Adams, N.D.—The Norton Telephone company, which two years ago consisted of only three or four telephones and wires strung along the fences, today has about 200 miles of lines all among farmers. Adams has five rural telephone lines coming into town, which shows a remarkable growth.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Paul J. Johnson, mayor of Northwood, was injured while attempting to step from an automobile. The machine was moving at the time and Johnson was thrown backward, landing on his shoulder. A broken bone in the shoulder was the result.

Manvel, N. D.—A floater was discovered in the Red river Monday at a point three miles east of Manvel, report of the fact being made to the officials of the county immediately. There is as yet no identification of the body, which was found in a clump of bushes about ten feet from shore with absolutely no clothing on it.

Devils Lake, N. D.—Excitement runs high here with reference to the case of Mary Wright, who is confined in the Ramsey county jail charged with the murder of "Babe" Wright, her 16-year-old adopted daughter. It is said that prominent people are assisting in the defense of Mrs. Wright, and it is known that she intends to make a vigorous fight.

Fessenden, N. D.—George H. Canmore was arrested by Sheriff Graupmann in Fessenden upon information wired from Sheriff W. H. O'Connell of Kalispell, Mont. Canmore was wanted upon a charge of burglary and was taken back to Kalispell in charge of a Montana officer.

Grand Forks, N. D.—H. N. Lee, a graduate of the university law school, has decided to locate in Lewiston, Mont., where he will enter the firm of Blackford & Blackford.

BABY'S VOICE

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the sight of mother and babe, angels smile at and commend the thoughts and aspirations of the mother bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass is such that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with dread. Every woman should know that the danger and pain of child-birth can be avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a liniment for external use, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, assisting nature in its work. By its aid thousands of women have passed this crisis in safety and with little pain.

REPORT OF APPRAISERS

Damages Are Awarded to the Amounts of $63,310.

George R. Laybourn, John A. Stephenson and William Getty, the appraisers appointed to fix a value for the lands condemned by the Soo road for its entrance into the city, have filed their report.

The railroad was represented at the hearing before the appraisers by Fryberger & Fulton, while Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell represented the Northern Pacific.

The appraisers awarded damages in the sum of $63,310, the greater part of which goes to the Northern Pacific, the Guaranty Trust Acompany, the Farmers' Loan & Trust company and the Mercantile Trust company. The other property owners affected and the amounts they receive are as follows: Alice M. Smith, $1,595; P. C. Frazee, $5,375; Western Land association, $4,375; Luther Mendenhall and Charles F. Hutchinson jointly, $7,795.

The condemnation proceedings covered only a small part of the land acquired by the Soo road. The company purchased all of the land it could secure in that way, and the condemnation proceedings covered only the property on which the road could not secure what it considered a reasonable price.

The company now has a right of way from the Great Northern bridge to the union depot right of way.

MARINES GET THEIR BACK PAY

Are Now on the Same Basis as Army Men.

The United States marine corps recruits stationed at Duluth are very much elated over the new system of wages paid which went into effect for the first time on the last pay day, which fell on Friday, Aug. 14.

The pay of the marines is now governed by the same rules which cover the army. The army men receive up until the fourth enlistment an increase in salary of $3 for each enlistment. After the fourth enlistment, they receive an increase of $1 for each enlistment until they are retired. The army's term of enlistment is three years, and the marines four. In a bill that was signed by President Roosevelt, on May 11, this year, it was provided that both army men and marines should have the same increase for each enlistment. This gave the army an advantage over the marines of one year. The army men were paid an increase of $3 every three years and the marines got the same increase every four years.

On the last payday it was decided at Washington, that this was unfair to the marines, and they are now paid their increase every three years. This makes a private receive for the first three years, $15; for the second, $18, and for the third, $21. After that until retirement he gets $1 increase for each re-enlistment. According to this method the marines on Friday received all back pay, and from now on will be paid according to the new system.

NEW LIGHT ON THE TRAGEDY

By Which Annis Lost Life Expected at Coroner's Inquest.

New York, Aug. 18.—New light is expected to be thrown upon the Bayside yacht club tragedy at the inquest to be held Monday evening in the town hall at Flushing, L. I., into the death of William E. Annis, who was killed last Sunday by Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., U. S. A. Dr. Henry Houghton, the physician who was at the side of Annis when he lost consciousness, was quoted today as intimating that Annis, in his conscious moments acknowledged that he was paying with his life for a wrong he had committed. "He told certain things to me," Dr. Houghton is quoted as saying, "which no one else heard and which I have told to no one. When I am called on to testify before the coroner's jury I probably will make it public."

That there was absolutely nothing in the attitude of either of the Hains to indicate that they were laboring under any delusion or any great excitement at the time of the shooting was asserted by the doctor. It was learned today that Frederick L. Norton of Boston, Mrs. Hains' counsel in the divorce action brought by her husband, would visit this city today in reference to his client's affairs. It was understood that Mrs. Hains intends to take some action toward compelling the return of her children to her.

Dr. Houghton this afternoon denied that Annis told him anything from which it could be inferred that Capt. Hains had any cause for the shooting.

Samaritan Picnic.
The annual picnic of the Modern Samaritans will be held Thursday of this week at Lester Park.

Fined $250.
May Nelson of Floodwood was fined $250 by Judge Dibell yesterday for running a disorderly house at that place. She was arrested by the Floodwood authorities and was being held for grand jury examination. She expressed a desire to plead guilty, which was accepted by the court, and the fine followed. She paid the money and was released.

Body Brought Here.
The remains of John Malgren, the homesteader who was drowned while swimming at Hemlock, Minn., were brought to Duluth yesterday by order of Coroner McCuen, and taken to Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms. The man had a sister living at St. Paul. No word has been received from her as yet.

Committee to Meet.
The public affairs committee appointed to see about getting a fire tug for the local harbor will hold a meeting at the Commercial club tomorrow afternoon and consider ways and means to bring about the desired improvement.

Police and Bijou Actors Play.
The policemen's ball team and the Bijou aggregation of ball tossers will play a game at Athletic park Aug. 25 at 10:30 a. m., the proceeds to go to the Children's home. These two teams put up a lively exhibition, and it is expected that quite a crowd will be in attendance, in view of the fact that all money taken in will go to charity.

Motion For New Trial.
Notice of an application for a new trial was filed this morning by E. C. Kennedy, attorney for the defendant in the case of Gust Anderson vs. the Pittsburg Coal company and Michael Ladzinski. Anderson was granted a verdict of $8,000 by the jury some time ago for injuries received when the "clam shell" dipper at the Pittsburg coal dock was dropped on him in the hold of a boat. He sued for $20,000. John Jenswold is his attorney.

Palmer on Range.
Register of Deeds M. C. Palmer has just returned from a trip over the range looking over his home fences for the coming primaries. Mr. Palmer says that while Mr. Lundberg and Mr. Butchart have men working actively over the range and are making inroads in certain cases, he does not have much fear of the ultimate result. The range is baseball crazy, says Mr. Palmer, business houses being shut down and the towns going en masse to follow the progress of the various teams. The recent dissolution of the Northern league and the addition of the Duluth team has done much to increase interest, says Mr. Palmer.

RAIN FELL IN TORRENTS

Cloudburst Flooded Basements and Turned Streets Into Rivers.

Brief But Violent Storm Sweeps Over the City.

No little damage was done in the city this afternoon by the heaviest rain and wind storm that has raged here this season.

Streets were flooded to such an extent that the storm sewers could not begin to carry off the water. Basements along Michigan street were flooded, and excavations for buildings all over the city were washed full of water and mud. On First avenue west and in other parts of the city, the electric wires were blown and beaten down.

A 10-foot galvanized iron chimney was blown from Smith's drug store on First avenue west, falling to the sidewalk and narrowly missing a man who was running up the avenue.

According to Mr. Richardson of the weather bureau, at 1:43 o'clock this afternoon, a squall of wind swept over the city from the northwest, blowing at the rate of fifty-four miles an hour. During the time the gale was at its height, which was for about five minutes, between 1:40 and 1:45 o'clock, 60-100 of an inch of rain fell. The total fall of rain during the storm was 91-100 of an inch, which is an exceedingly heavy downpour for such a short time.

Mr. Richardson promises clear weather for this evening.

COPPERS STRONG AND MORE ACTIVE

Demand for Lake Issues and Bulge on Prices.

Coppers were stronger and more active today than for several days past, a good demand and the scarcity of the good issues bolstering up prices. Some of the lake coppers had a boom, notably Centennial, which went from $32 to $36 and closed at $35.75 bid and $36 asked. There was a good demand for North Butte & Amalgamated, both of which held their own all day and showing slight advances at the close.

North Butte opened at $83.50, touched $83 as a low mark, went to $84.50 and closed at $84 bid and $84.50 asked. Amalgamated Copper opened at $77.87½, went down to $77.12½, advanced to $77.87½ again, fell back to $76.87½ and rallied to $78 at the close. Annconda opened at $46.75, went down to $46.75 and rallied to $47.37½. Butte Coalition opened at $27.12½, went to $27.87½ and dropped back to $27.50 at the close. Calumet & Arizona opened at $120, went to $122, dropped back to $121, advanced to $123 and fell off at the close to $121 bid and $121.50 asked.

The curb market was strong in sympathy with the listed coppers, and some good advances were shown by some of the better curbs, Greene-Cananea claiming most of the attention and showing the most strength. Greene-Cananea sold at $11.37½, $11.50 and $11.62½; Superior & Pittsburg at $13.50, $13.37½ and $13.50 again; Black Mountain at $3.50, Butte & Superior at $1.06, Carman at $3.37½ and $3.50, Copper Queen at $1.37½, Denn-Arizona at $8.25, Globe at $5 and Red Warrior at $3.12½. Calumet & Sonora was quiet at $0.87½ bid and $10 asked, Cliff at $1.25 bid and $1.37½ asked, Mowitza at $2 bid and $2.25 asked.

BRYAN PLEASED

That Oklahoma Bank Changed From National to State Law.

Fairview, Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 18.—Discussing the question or guarantee of bank deposits today, William J. Bryan, Democratic candidate for the presidency, accused the Republican leaders of congress with having enacted into law a currency bill in the interest of the stock market and yet, although they had ample opportunity to do so, they failed to authorize the national banks of Oklahoma to take advantage of the state law relating to the guarantee of bank deposit.

It was no little satisfaction that Mr. Bryan noted in the morning dispatches the fact that the Enid, Okla., National bank had surrendered its charter and come within the provisions of the state law.

VENETIAN FETE AT SPIRIT LAKE

Boat Club Plans Fairy Land at the Branch.

What promises to be one of the most enjoyable evenings yet planned by the officers of the Duluth Boat club for members and their friends will be the lawn fete, to be held at the Spirit Lake branch, on Thursday night.

The paths through the woods will be illuminated, as will the grove, the clubhouse, dancing pavilion and the river. There will be refreshments, dancing, and Flaaten's full band will furnish a choice selection of popular airs.

The grounds will be made over into a perfect fairyland, and one of the most enjoyable of summer evenings is being looked forward to.

The program to be rendered by the Flaatan band is as follows:

March, "National Anthem" ..... Bagley
Selection, "Red Mill" ..... Herbert
Cornet solo, "So Long as the World Rolls On" ..... Ball
Echoes From "Woodland" ..... Ludes
Medley, "Plantation Days" ..... Conterno
"Remombrances From Scotland" ..... Wirth
Selection from the "Merry Widow" ..... Lehar
Medley of the latest popular airs ..... Lampe

FIRE NEAR KIMBERLY IS BEYOND CONTROL.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 18.—A dispatch from Cranbrook, this afternoon, says: "That a bush fire, near Kimberly, is beyond control and running northwards Skookumchuck Creek. Sullivan and Kimberly are. There is a bad forest fire one mile east of Moyie. Another fire is burning at Ryan. No rain for over a month has made everything so dry that it makes fire fighting very difficult.

Yantic Arrives.

The Yantic, the training ship of the Hancock, Mich., naval reserves, arrived in the harbor this afternoon and proceeded to the Superior shipyards, where she will be overhauled. The Yantic was on the cruise to Manitou island with other ships of the lake naval reserves and left there Friday, preceding the others.

THE CHERRY SISTERS.

Marion, Ia., Apologizes So They Will Perform Again.

Can it be that it is ten years, a whole doleful decade, since New York held its sides over the Cherry sisters and what they were pleased to call their entertainment?

It was Oscar Hammerstein who presented New York with a new sensation when he put on the Cherry sisters in vaudeville. Blase Gotham howled with glee when it saw them, says the New York Sun.

It also pelted the sisters with fractional cigars, and when Jessie sang, "Who'll Buy My Flowers?" it uproariously vowed that it would attend to the business and added small coins to the cigar shower.

Jessie was the youngest of the three girls. She used to do a Trilby songlet in very evidently bare feet. The spectacle of Jessie scutting about the stage thriftily gleaning the cents, nickels and dimes from the drifted cigar stubs always elicited a roar, which lasted till the harvest was in.

But the sisters suffered an eclipse not long after their New York appearance. The public got tired of throwing at them. Somehow the artistic career of the sisters had always invited throwing of one sort or another.

In New York it was small change and cigar ends. In consideration of the legal tender the sisters excused the unsolicited tobacco and thought that New York was great. Finally, however, the public became weary even of throwing things, and the sisters therefore retired to their home near Marion, Iowa, where they have lingered to this day, if not the world forgetting, at least by the world forgot.

Now finally they are to be called from their rustic retreat.

But that isn't the whole story. It seems that when the sisters started out with their home made entertainment Marion was the dog they tried it on. And Marion took it very hard, Marion had fits. Marion emitted frightful yaps. Marion threw things.

A complete list of the things Marion threw is not necessary, but there was one item which the sisters resented with peculiar bitterness. Stale eggs and the cabbage of yesteryear were bad enough, but the sisters drew the line, they knew not why, at liver.

Now, according to the corroborative testimony of the Marion butchers, a really extravagant amount of liver was furnished for that occasion. Nobody pretends to say just how many bovine martyrs were butchered to make this Marion holiday, but it is believed that the number was excessive.

The sisters were displeased with this generosity of their fellow townsmen in the matter of liver. In fact they vowed loudly and often that never again would they condescend to enliven the tedium of Marion existance with one of their entertainments until they had received from the citizens a full apology for the liver episode.

That was certainly fifteen years ago, and the sisters have been faithful to that vow ever since. The Marion folks, however, have managed to bear up without much trouble. The Cherry girls have never been called upon to sit up nights to receive delegations of citizens bearing apologies.

At last the unexpected has happened. In the advertising columns of the local papers has appeared the following announcement. It heralds the Cherry sisters redivivae.

Marion Apologizes.

"On the part of the people of Marion would say that the Cherry sisters in the past gave an entertainment in this city and were not afforded the proper protection from the police; neither did they receive the respect that ladies of the stage were entitled to.

"Now, therefore, we do as a committee on the part of the citizens of Marion and the mayor, offer to them our apology for the acts then committed, and fully sympathize with them as to their wounded feelings in receiving such treatment in their home town.

"We accord to them that respect that is due to all ladies, and we agree that it shall be our duty to see that such disgraceful conduct in the past from our people shall not be repeated if in our power to prevent.

"We fully agree that these ladies give a high class entertainment and that their audiences are always satisfied and do not go to the box office to get their money back.

"The committee further agrees that any one witnessing this entertainment on July 4 at Marion will receive a new lease of life.

Beggars are never suppressed in Turkey. The story is told—and they say it is true—about an American lady who by mistake gave a beggar of Constantinople a gold piece. The man had left his post when she returned, but one of his colleagues told her where he "resided."

It was a fine house, and at the door was a servant who politely informed the lady that "my master is dressing; he will be down soon." And then the well-groomed beggar, dressed for dinner, appeared and gladly returned the gold piece, explaining in the meantime that such mistakes were highly embarrassing.

FARMING IS UNEARTHED

American League Club Violated the National Agreement.

Seven Players Subject to Recall, Are Relieved of Strings.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 18.—The course pursued by the Cleveland American League club, in transactions involving seven players, is irregular and in violation of the national agreement, according to a decision handed down by the National baseball commission yesterday, and the players will be subject to purchase or draft in the future by any club.

The decision of the commission is in the form of a notice to all national agreement clubs, and is as follows:

During the past season the Cleveland club filed agreements with the commission that appeared to be in proper form, and were approved by the commission, as follows, all of them being sales of certain players belonging to said club, with options to recall:

With Akron for Players William Hille, William Speas and Dick Breen.

With Nashville for Players Jacob Daubert and H. E. Pay.

With Columbus for Otto Hess.

With Toledo for Charles Pruitt.

With Portland for G. Graney.

Each of the agreements, with the exception of the case of Player Speas, stated with reference to the consideration, as follows: "The receipt of which is hereby acknowledged," meaning that the respective minor league clubs had paid the consideration named in the agreements. Last week the Cleveland club notified the commission that they desired to exercise their options to recall all of these players, and tendered in payment thereof certain notes that they had received from the various minor league clubs involved when the players were sold to them. All of these notes were promissory ones, becoming due between Aug. 15 and 20. None of them bear interest, and the time of each was determined by the time that the agreement for the particular player was entered into. The notes were not placed in banks for collection, but were simply cancelled by the Cleveland club, and the commission is requested to return them to the respective clubs interested.

The course pursued by the Cleveland club in these various transactions is irregular and cannot be approved by the commission, and for the reason all of the agreements above referred to are now set aside, and the players involved will be subject to purchase or draft in the future by any club, in accordance with the rules of the national commission. There cannot be a question but that the agreements referred to are a violation of the national agreement, and is in all cases clearly a case of farming.

The Cleveland club is hereby called upon for an explanation, to show cause why a penalty should not be inflicted against them for their action, as well as all of the minor league clubs involved.

The commission refused the application for a rehearing of the claim of the Williamsport club of the Tri-state league against the St. Louis National League club, relative to Players Charles Dedhanty and Sallee. Some time ago the commission rejected the claim of the Williamsport club for these players.

GRAHAM IS HIT HARD BUT WINS

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Virginia team won another easy game from Eveleth yesterday by a score of 12 to 8. Knutson was knocked out of the box in the first inning, Virginia scoring six runs. Gebeau succeeded him and Virginia had little trouble with him, Eveleth errors helping. Graham was hit hard and Eveleth scored eight runs, but the disastrous first inning was too big a handicap for them to overcome.

HIBBING WINS FOUR STRAIGHT

Gilligan Shuts Coleraine Out in Last Game of Series.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hibbing made it four straight games from Coleraine by taking the last of the series by a score of 7 to 0. Gilligan pitched one of his best games, giving Coleraine only two hits. Brownlee, a southpaw who has been pitching for Hiwabik, was easy for Hibbing and was touched up freely. YOUNG AMERICA LEFT BEHIND

Duluth Yacht Gets Away in Bad Start at Minnetonka.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—From a bad start, being the last to cross the starting line, the yacht Young America, the Duluth Yacht club entry in the Class B race in the Inland Lake Yachting association regatta, yesterday drifted farther back during the course and finished a bad last. There was a stiff wind up and the Duluth crew reefed their sails, putting themselves under a handicap.

The Class B race went to Butterfly, the Minnetonka Yacht club entry, with the Troubadour of the White Bear club second. The Class A race was won by Tomahawk of the Minnetonka club, with the White Bear entry second. The Class A race was close, the Tomahawk coming up from fifth position to first in the last two miles of the course.

WILL ENTER NEXT YEAR.

Yacht Duluth Will be Delivered During the Winter.

Commodore Horace Johnson of the Duluth Yacht club has returned from Chicago, where he investigated the delay in the construction of the yacht, Duluth, which the Duluth club expected to enter in the Nutting cup races at Chicago this fall. The builders could give no excuse but that they were rushed with orders.

Though the Duluth club must drop out of the entries in the Nutting cup races for this fall, the yacht will be delivered during the winter and will be entered next year. The crew will have a longer time to become familiar with the yacht and will consequently make a better showing than if they went in after having the yacht only a few weeks this season.

COLUMBIA IS WINNER

Chicago Yacht Takes Second Race for the Lipton Cup.

Race Sailed in Strong Northeaster Which Troubles Skippers.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—A strong northeast wind enabled the Columbia of the Columbia Yacht club of this city to win the second of the series of races for the Sir Thomas Lipton cup. La Rita II, owned by the New Illinois Athletic club, was second and Spray of the Chicago Athletic association was third. The elapsed time of the winner was 2:47:35, unofficial figures.

An hour before the race started it was expected it would have to be postponed on account of the lack of a wind capable of carrying the yachts within the prescribed limit of three hours, but five minutes before the race was started a strong wind blew up and all the yachts were obliged to reef their sails. The time of the start was delayed for nearly an hour on account of the lack of wind.

Yesterday's course was to windward and leeward and return, three nautical miles to the leg, twice around. Buoys for the course were not set until immediately before the race and as a result many of the skippers lost much valuable time in finding them during the race.

Spray of the Chicago A. A. was the first yacht across the line, with the Chicago I. A. C., Cleveland and Cherry Circle close at her heels. I. A. C. did not reef before the heavy wind and was obliged to luff continually.

Columbia, which is a heavy weather craft, soon took the lead away from the Spray and at the first buoy led by thirty seconds. She showed her superior sailing abilities during this period and Skipper U. J. Herman showed his seamanship in rounding the buoy after taking only one tack against the wind. Many of the other yachts were forced to come about after missing the buoy on the first tack. Chicago was second in rounding the first buoy, while I. A. C. held a good fifth position. Sailing free, Skipper Bailey lost a great deal of time in setting the spinnaker on the I. A. C. and dropped far in the rear. Even in this position he was unfortunate, for the spinnaker caught over the mainstay and it was several minutes before the trouble could be remedied.

At the end of the first round, Columbia had increased her lead to forty-five seconds, with Chicago second, Spray third and La Rita a poor fourth. While the yachts were running before the wind, the northeaster had abated considerably, while the heavy sea caused by the short blow had the effect of shaking the wind out of the sails of the racers. Under this handicap the Columbia lost much of her lead and at the third buoy was a bare fifteen seconds ahead of the La Rita, which had passed the Chicago and Spray, and was now in second position.

Sailing before the wind, the Columbia quickly regained her lead and finished first by a margin of over a minute. La Rita held her lead over the third yacht and Spray had passed the Chicago and taken third place.

La Rita's placing in second position yesterday puts her on equal terms for the cup with Chicago, both having an average of 155.6 points. Cleveland and Columbia are tied for third with 144.4 points. The final race will be sailed today over the rectangular course, three nautical miles to the leg, and once around.

SOX LEAVE FOR HIBBING

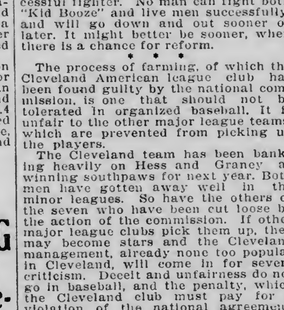
Home Series With Independent Clubs Will Open Friday.

The Duluth White Sox left this morning for the range and this afternoon they open a series of three games with Hibbing, returning Friday to open at Athletic park. The line-up will be the same as it was during the latter part of the Northern league season, except that Toot Thompson replaces Wescott on third base. Thompson is a better hitter than Wescott and will field about as well, so that the club loses no strength by the change.

Only three pitchers are on the staff at present, Thorsen, Murray and Brandt. Another pitcher is being negotiated for by the management and will probably be secured within a few days. The present staff will be able to take care of the three games at Hibbing and the new man will probably be here for the home series.

The series here will open Friday and will consist of four games with Hibbing, three with Eveleth and four with Virginia, after which the Sox will go to the range again, playing Eveleth and Virginia on their own grounds.

The Virginia club left this morning for International Falls, where they will play three games, returning for a series at Eveleth with the Eveleth team.



Today, the Duluth White Sox, almost the same team which won half its games in the Northern league this year, will invade the Mesaba range and the much mooted question of superiority of range ball over the Northern league variety, will be definitely settled in the series, which will extend from today until Sept. 7.

Duluth fans will not admit that the variety of ball played by the independent teams of the range is as good as the Northern league class, but range fans cannot see anything but their teams. There isn't a fan in Hibbing, Virginia or Eveleth, who wouldn't back his team against the Detroit Tigers and the Sox are far from being as dangerous as the Tigers. They bet money on ball games on the range as cheerfully and as freely as the old lady in the lane throws corn to the chickens and the loss of a ball game fills the heart of the range fan with just as poignant grief as a crack over the head with a club in the hands of his best friend would. They are sports from the word go to the finish under the wire and are digging up the money to support teams that are far beyond their means.

The Sox will have to play good ball to win on the range. The teams are not to be held lightly. Gilligan, Sage and Gilchrist on the Hibbing team are all pitchers, who have made their mark in organized baseball. Graham of Virginia could still be in the American association if he so wished. Curtle of Virginia has been burning up the range. Goodwin and Iverson of Eveleth are both good pitchers. Under good managers, every range team is dangerous and every victory of the Sox will be hailed with joy by Duluth fans as an achievement not to be despised.

Tonight on the coast, Stanley Ketchell will go into the ring with Joe Thomas for the third time, and, of course, Ketchell is a prohibitive favorite in the betting. He whipped Thomas decisively twice and there is nothing in sight but another victory.

The fight holds one point of interest. It will prove or disprove the stories that have been coming east of Ketchell's actions. It is said the middleweight champ is going the route many other good men have gone before him. With the knowledge that there is not a middleweight in the world able to defeat him, the Grand Rapids boy is said to be floating his joys on the red stuff that cheers, inebriates and demoralizes. It is said he will go into the ring tonight weighing about 170 pounds where as his proper weight is about 158 at this time.

Joe Thomas is not altogether a weakling. If Ketchell is not in the right condition something may come across to douse the fire in his pipe and chase the smoke away. If the stories of Ketchell's actions are true, a beating at the hands of an inferior fighter would do him more good than anything else. There are examples enough in the pugilistic world for any successful fighter. No man can fight both "Kid Booze" and live men successfully, and will go down and out sooner or later. It might better be sooner, when there is a chance for reform.

The process of farming, of which the Cleveland American league club has been found guilty by the national commission, is one that should not be tolerated in organized baseball. It is unfair to the other major league teams, which are prevented from picking up the players.

The Cleveland team has been banking heavily on Hess and Graney as winning southpaws for next year. Both men have gotten away well in the minor leagues. So have the others of the seven who have been cut loose by the action of the commission. If other major league clubs pick them up, they may become stars and the Cleveland management, already none too popular in Cleveland, will come in for severe criticism. Deceit and unfairness do not go in baseball, and the penalty, which the Cleveland club must pay for a violation of the national agreement, will be a good warning to other clubs contemplating the same action.

It was to be expected that P. F. Walker's record of 9 2-5 seconds for the 100-yard dash at Abergavenny, Eng., would be discredited. Few will believe that a man can cover the distance in that time on a perfect track, and 9 3-5 seconds has been made so seldom that the contention is supported. Now comes Arthur Duffey, who first made the 100 yards in 9 3-5 seconds with a story that he ran the distance in 9 1-5 seconds on the same track on which Walker's record was made. He says the first fifty yards is level, but the last fifty yards of the track is down hill and that a man with speed can easily run the distance in 9 2-5 seconds. He says he never put in a claim for the record of 9 1-5 because he knew it would not be allowed on account of the peculiar construction of the track and Walker's record will certainly not be officially recognized.

WINNIPEG WINS TWO.

TENNIS TOURNEY OPENS.

More Than 100 Players Will Compete in National Singles.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 18.—The largest tennis tournament ever held in this country began today on the historic Casino courts with the opening rounds of the twenty-eighth national championship for singles, for which 145 players from all parts of the country have entered. On the courts will also be decided the championship in doubles with H. H. Hackett and F. B. Alexander of New York defending their title against A. B. Wright of Boston and R. D. Little of New York.

The winner of the all-comers tournament in the singles will have the right to play William A. Larned for the championship.

Fast Team at Walker.

Walker, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Walker baseball team will play Cass Lake here this afternoon and Cass Lake at Cass Lake next Sunday. Last Sunday the Walker team won its ninth straight game, defeating Akeley at Akeley by a score of 6 to 4.

WOMAN DETECTIVE CONFESSES TO PLOT.

Los Angeles, Aug. 18.—The arrest by private detectives in this city yesterday of Fred Yochey, vice president of Union No. 40 of the Western Federation of Miners at Brandsburg, Cal., on the charge of conspiracy to blow up the Yellow Astor Gold mine, has developed a complicated situation. Yockey was arrested, it is said, upon complaint of Mrs. Alice G. Clark, a detective working for a detective agency, retained by the Yellow Astor Mining company to secure evidence. According to published stories Mrs. Clark now charges that all of the accusations against Yockey are false, and says that she was compelled to swear to them by another detective, who fearced her to sign the statements at the point of a pistol. The whole plot, she avers, was an effort to break up the miners' union at Bandsburg.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Secretary Garfield of the interior department returned to Washington Monday from an inspection tour through Hawaii and the public lands, states and territories. He has been absent since June 1.

Three deaths, and an attempted suicide and more than a dozen prostrations were results of the intense heat that prevailed over St. Louis Monday. At 2 o'clock Monday afternoon the thermometer registered 95 deg. Rain at night brought cooling breezes.

CONTRACTS LET.

Emil Engle Gets Water Extension Work on Two Streets.

Two contracts for water extensions were let Saturday. They are for the proposed extensions on Vista and Wyoming streets, and were let to Emil Engle, whose bid was the lowest. He bid $1,857.50 on the Vista street job and $1,909.54 on the Wyoming street work. He will commence work on both extensions at once.

CHAMPAGNE MARK IS TO HAVE A MEANING.

Paris, Aug. 18.—Champagne lovers will shortly stand a chance of drinking a liquid which, whether it be good or bad, will at any rate have been produced in the champagne district.

The French commission appointed to investigate the mystery of how such a little district could possibly turn out so much champagne has finished its labors and sent in its report to the minister of agriculture.

It is believed it recommends that the use of the word champagne be restricted to products of the grape grown in the old province of that name in the northeast of France.

This measure, if enforced, will necessitate rechristening much sparkling wine hitherto sold here, in England and America as champagne.

THIEVERY CARNIVAL

Baseball Fans Numerous as Race for Pennant Grows Closer.

New York, Aug. 18.—To close a carnival of thievery such as this city seldom suffered, the police are laboring today at their wits' end, to compass a secret patrol of the great unguarded stretches of the metropolis in summer. Burglars, pickpockets, yeggmen, bunco steerers, strong arm men and sneak thieves have preyed boldly on the closed vacancy as well as the open ease of Gotham during the last few weeks of midsummer. Almost every block in the deserted residence districts has felt the hands of the masked marauders and hardly an hour has passed in the resorts and walks of the summer crowd that watches, wallets and jewelry have not been reported plucked with impunity. Every available sleuth is today being hustled out to lay hands on the rioting crew of crooks and many a policeman is stripping off his uniform to lie in wait for the powers that prey. Thousands of dollars worth of loot have already been reported as the prize of the underworld this week and, unless Bingham's men outdo themselves at once, it is predicted that New Yorkers will pay a toll of more than a million to their thieves before the summer is over.

Full of Fans.

Never in the history of Gotham has the baseball fan run riot as he has in these days of breathless struggle for the pennant. With thirty thousand souls packed into every square inch of the grounds, ten thousand pressing to every point of vantage on the surrounding hills and many thousands more clamoring before the closed gates, the oldest New Yorker is forced to admit that the nation's sport has never seen better days in these parts. Today the fan is no longer restricted to any class of the cosmopolitan society of this town. Office boss and office boy meet on the bleachers with brokers, barkeeps, society belles and shop girls to yell in long harmonious concert. Batting averages pass current in the conversation of the magnate's office as freely as in the saloons and slums. Scores rival quotations in the interest of Wall street, and the fortunes of the diamond are followed as closely as the market. New York may have only one real team this year, but to every man on it there are ten thousand rooters.

Trinl Tales.

Since Dan O'Reilly has begun to decorate the refreshment stands of Park Row and tell his troubles in the matter of Harry Thaw's bankruptcy maneuvers, a sickly, yellow light is beginning to be shed on the methods of the legal lights of the criminal bar of this city. Today the spectacle of a pack of lawyers, split up and following cross scents, in the threadbare chase after a dissipated fortune is nauseating to the public and not agreeable to fellow members of the bar. More than one professional reputation has been imperiled in the hunt for Thaw retainers, and lawyers are finding the telling of the inside story of the defense no less unpleasant than the people in general have found the tale of the trials. Apparently the Thaw incident is one which can never be closed.

Public Power.

Now that the car lords have been ordered to restore transfers to the people, it is predicted today that a long suffering public may have its first chance in many years to enforce its traction rights. The withdrawal of the paper slips on the main cross thoroughfare of Fifty-ninth street has caused great hardships to the poor and unfortunate. Hundreds of the crippled, sick and maimed in search of cross-town clinics have each day been refused passage for want of an extra nickel. Thousands of workingmen have cut deep into the family support to answer the demand of the trolley kings. If the authorities can make good their promise to bring the magnates to terms, New York will see its first popular triumph within the memory of the present generation.

Enter Edison.

No one is surprised to hear that Edison today is apparently farther along in solving the air ship than those who have devoted a lifetime to this particular problem. The people of this city know the talents of their "Wizard" and, now that he has turned his attention to this broad field of science, expect almost anything of him. No public character is more beloved by the crowd here than this veteran inventor, and everyone is prepared to see him bring over from his workshop in Jersey, new marvels at anytime.

HIS FAVORITE SCOUT.

Gen. Carr Says That "Buffalo Bill" Never Failed Him.

Brevet Maj. Gen. E. A. Carr, U. S. A. (retired), one of the most experienced officers in Indian fighting known to the pages of Western history, who held high commands in the Civil war, refers in his writings in a very eulogistic manner to Col. Cody, "Buffalo Bill." Cody was his favorite chief of scouts, and Gen. Carr was in command at the battle of Summit Springs in 1869, when Cody killed the celebrated chief, Tall Bull. He alludes to him and his services as a scout as follows:

"He was very modest and unassuming. He is a natural gentleman in his manners, as well as in character, and has none of the roughness of the typical frontiersman.

"His eyesight is better than a good field glass, he is the best trailer I ever had, and also the best judge of the 'lay of the country,' that is, he is able to tell what kind of country is ahead, so as to know how to act. He is a perfect judge of distance, and always ready to tell correctly how many miles it is to water, or to any place, or how many miles have been marched.

"Mr. Cody seemed never to tire and was always ready to go in the darkest night, or the worst weather, and usually volunteered, knowing what the emergency required. His trailing, when following Indians, or looking for stray animals or for game, is simply wonderful. He is a most extraordinary hunter.

"In a fight Mr. Cody is never noisy, obstreperous or excited. In fact, I never hardly noticed him in a fight, unless I happened to want him, or he had something to report, when he was always in the right place, and his information was always valuable and reliable."

In his description of the fight at "Elephant Rock" Gen. Carr, after alluding to hardships of the campaign, the difficulties of Indian warfare, the constant skirmishes and dangers of ambush and surprises in a combat that was one to the death, says of Buffalo Bill: "He was the best white trailer I ever saw—on my first expedition we soon learned to understand each other—he saw that I knew the direction I wanted to go and I saw that he knew how to take me there. He was treated by the officers as one of themselves. In fact, was once offered a commission by Gen. Phillip Sheridan. Some scouts have failed me in several instances—Cody never. Once Cody scouted for me on the almost level prairies in drifting snow, that obstructed all signs to guide Gen. Penrose. "Bill" had to find high ground where the snow had been blown off to seek the trail; luckily for us he found it, and we saved at least five days of difficult marching by going straight, and arrived in time to save Penrose's command, which was in a most pitiable condition—men and horses."

ARMSON IS FAVORITE

Gov. Johnson and Hammond Both Out of Field.

As the time draws near for the state Democratic convention, it begins to look more and more as if J. G. Armson of Stillwater would be the choice of the convention. The choice may be said to be the result of elimination, for without the voluntary action on the part of Governor Johnson, in absolutely forbidding the use of his name as a candidate for re-election, there could have been no chance for any other candidate. In fact, in the face of the state-wide cry for Johnson, there would have been little use in the presentation of the name of any other candidate before the convention.

Until the last, the Democrats have hoped against hope that Governor Johnson would consent to the use of his name. The last hope, however, went glimmering yesterday, when the governor repeated his refusal with an emphasis that left no doubt as to his meaning, and left the way apparently clear for the successful candidacy of the mayor of Stillwater.

There seems little doubt at this time, the day before the convention, that Winfield Scott Hammond will refuse the nomination of the Democratic party. Unless the nomination is made by acclamation, it is hardly probable that the congressman from the Second district will accept it, and it is very far from likely that he will receive so unanimous an indorsement, as despite the emphatic refusal of Governor Johnson to run, he will have some supporters to the very end. Then, too, Armson's supporters, and he has many, would hardly accede to any such plan of action, unless they were convinced that the Stillwater man had no possible chance for the nomination.

Figuring, however, that Johnson will not make the run, and that Hammond will accept the nomination only under certain conditions, which are not likely to happen, it means that the nomination of Armson is the one best bet.

The strongest fight will be waged against Ira B. Mills, chairman of the railroad and warehouse commission, against whom there has developed a state-wide opposition. The Democrats seem very likely to land this office, more likely, in fact, than any office outside of the head of the state ticket.

The convention promises to be well attended and full of excitement. Like the Chicago convention, there remains the chance of what might happen. Should some one start a stampede for Johnson, there is no telling what might occur. It is doubtful if it could be stopped. Yet this is not likely to occur—it is just a possibility; a possibility that lends excitement and interest to the convention and makes it one that may develop a dramatic situation.

Kodol

For Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

If you suffer from Indigestion or Dyspepsia; if you are annoyed with gas on the stomach, fulness after eating, belching, sour stomach, heartburn, etc.,

Go to your druggist, get a dollar bottle of Kodol, and if you can honestly say that you did not receive any benefit from it after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay and we will pay the druggist the price of the first bottle purchased by you.

If you knew as well as we do how good a preparation Kodol is it would be unnecessary for us to guarantee a single bottle.

But to get you to know how good it is as well as we know, we practically will purchase the first bottle for you.

You wonder, perhaps, how we can afford to make such an offer.

It is because we have absolute confidence in the honesty and fairness of the public.

We know there are thousands of persons who suffer from indigestion and dyspepsia who would be grateful to us for putting them in touch with Kodol.

That is why.

Furthermore, we know that after you have used Kodol your faith in the preparation will be equal to ours.

This proposition we make is not altogether unselfish, but it is actuated by the knowledge that the use of Kodol by you will benefit you as well as ourselves.

How could we afford to make such an offer to the public, and how could we afford to spend thousands of dollars to tell you about it unless we positively knew and were sure of the merits of Kodol.

We couldn't—it would bankrupt us.

But we know the merits of Kodol and we want you to know.

A perfect digester must contain many ingredients, each in proper proportion.

It must be a liquid, because all those ingredients cannot be put into dry form.

It must be able to digest any food, or any mixture of foods, and completely.

Kodol does that, even in a glass test tube.

No other digester can.

Kodol alone does all of the work. It stops all irritation, and gives the stomach complete rest.

It has taken us years to get a perfect digester, but we certainly have it now.

Please try it today at our risk.

It means more than relief. It means that the stomach will do its own work far sooner than you'll expect.

Kodol digests all the food you eat.

Eat what you need and let Kodol digest it.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. The $1.00 bottle contains 2½ times as much as the 50c bottle.

CASES OF INTEREST

DELIVERY OF MAIL.—In the case entitled National Life Insurance company of the United States of America vs. National Life Insurance company, 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 541, the supreme court of the United States is asked to determine as to which of the parties mail matter addressed "National Life Insurance company, Chicago, Ill.," should be delivered. Part of the mail thus addressed was shown to belong to one of the parties to this suit and part to the other. The postoffice finally issued an order that it should be turned over to the defendant, in view of the fact that the address corresponded with its name and it was first organized. The present action was to enjoin the carrying out of this order, but the supreme court refused to interfere with the ruling of the postal authorities.

RIGHT OF ACCUSED TO BE CONFRONTED BY WITNESSES.—The construction of the constitutional guaranty to an accused of the right to be confronted by the witnesses as including right of cross-examination, is the vital question in the case of Wray vs. State, 47 Southern Reporter, 697, recently decided by the supreme court of Alabama. While accused was on trial for murder, a witness who was extremely ill was brought in on a cot. The court refused to allow a general examination on the ground that it would be inhuman, and perhaps result fatally, but granted the request of the state to ask just one question. Accused was not refused the right to cross-examine, but the supreme court held that he could not be compelled to take the risk involved in doing so, and reversed the judgment of conviction secured in the lower court.

RIGHT TO BE CARRIED ON CHARTERED TRAIN.—A passenger, having boarded a train, tendered the legal fare to the conductor, explaining that the office was not open in time for him to procure a ticket. The conductor refused the fare, and demanded one much larger, which the passenger refusing to pay, was ejected. It appeared that the train was one chartered for an excursion, and that no tickets were sold nor fares collected, except at the instance of the one chartering it, of which fact plaintiff was ignorant. The supreme court of South Carolina in Kirkland vs. Charles & North Carolina Railway company, 60 Southeastern Reporter, 668, held that the railroad could not divest itself of duties to the public, and, not having apprised plaintiff of the character of the train before entering, it was bound to carry him for the regular fare.

STREET RAILWAY FARES.—Plaintiff, in the case of Morrill vs. Minneapolis Street Railway company, 115 Northwestern Reporter, 395, received a transfer from the car on which she was riding to another, the conductor of which refused to honor it, and upon her refusal to pay another fare ejected her. The supreme court of Minnesota held the transfer merely a certificate, not a new contract; that it was the duty of the defendant company to issue correct transfers; that, as a passenger is not bound to examine them, plaintiff was entitled to continue her journey notwithstanding an error of the company.

MOTHER OF INSURED AS MEMBER OF HIS FAMILY.—The Missouri court of appeals holds in Western Commercial Travelers' association vs. Tennent, 106 Southwestern Reporter, 1073, that the mother of insured, not living with nor dependent upon him and having an able-bodied husband living with her, is not a member of his family, as she could not be a member of two families at the same time.

COMMON LAW MARRIAGE.—Defendant in Gleger vs. Ryan, 108 New York Supplement, 13, married a woman who had formerly cohabitated with another man who was plaintiff's father. The New York supreme court held that while a presumption of a valid marriage with the father of plaintiff might be presumed so as to legitimize her and possibly invalidate the ceremonial marriage with defendant, the continued cohabitation with defendant after death of plaintiff's father would establish a valid common law marriage with defendant.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION.—The general assembly of Iowa recently provided for the adoption by certain cities of a plan of government somewhat similar to the Galveston system. The law provides for a main governing board, consisting of a mayor and four councilmen to be chosen at general election. Their powers and duties are exercised through a department of public works under direction of the mayor, and four other departments, each under the supervision of one of the councilmen. There is also a provision for a recall of officers after election. Although assailed vigorously as violating provisions of both the federal and state constitutions, it was held valid by the supreme court of Iowa in Eckerman vs. city of Des Moines, 115 Northwestern Reporter, 177.

RIGHT TO USE OF PARTY WALLS WITHOUT PAYMENT.—Where a party wall has been built by an adjoining landowner under agreement with his neighbor that reimbursement shall be made for one half the cost of the part he may subsequently uses, will the driving of nails and fastening pulleys and cords for suspension of articles for sale constitute a prohibited use of a portion for which the person so doing has made no contribution to the cost? The supreme judicial court of Massachusetts, in the case of Berry vs. Godfrey, 84 Northeastern Reporter, 304, holds that it does, and that the one constructing the wall is entitled to at least nominal damages therefor.

RIGHTS OF MASTER AND SERVANT TO PATIENTS.—In American Circular Loom Company vs. Wilson, 84 Northeastern Reporter, 133, one of defendants, while in the employ of plaintiff, invented certain machinery and acquired by assignment certain other inventions, all of which were put to use by plaintiff, with defendant's acquiescence. Plaintiff sought to require defendant to assign to it all the patents. The court held that there was no breach of duty by defendant in securing a patent to his own invention, but that the assigned patents, secured while acting as plaintiff's superintendent, should be decreed as being held in trust. Plaintiff was held, however, to be estopped by its own acts from claiming the beneficial interest in one of these.

DELEGATION OF LEGISLATIVE POWER.—The federal safety appliance act of March 2, 1893, 27 Stat. 531, c. 196 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, p. 3174), came before the United States supreme court for construction and determination as to its validity in St. Louis, I. M. & S. Railway Company vs. Taylor, 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 616. Section 5 of the act gave power to the American Railway association to designate a standard height for drawbars on freight cars. It was contended that this was an unconstitutional delegation of power, but the supreme court, following the decision in Butfield vs. Stranahan, 192 U. S. 470, 48 L. Ed. 525, 24 supreme court, 349, held the law valid.

SUPPRESSION OF UNSIGNED DUPLICATES OF DEPOSITIONS.—In Decaturville Auto Company vs. Metropolitan Bank, 108 New York Supplement, 1027, it was shown that an order for a commission had been issued for examination of certain witnesses in France, and that the testimony had been actually taken and the depositions subscribed. The witnesses refused, however, to turn them over to the attorneys unless a stipulation should be given that they should not be used in any litigation that might arise against their employer, a French corporation. Plaintiff refused to so stipulate, and defendant then sought to introduce unsigned duplicates of the depositions. The appellate division of the New York supreme court held that under the New York statute it had no authority to do this, but directed the lower court to issue an order for a commission to take testimony on interrogatories if they could be so framed as to exclude the matter to which the witnesses objected, and, if this could not be done, that letters rogatory issue unless plaintiff agree to the admission of the unsigned duplicates.

RESTRAINING PUBLICATION OF PHOTOGRAPHS.—In Mosser vs. Press Publishing company, 109 New York Supplement, 963, the New York supreme court construed the law authorizing any person whose name or photograph is used for acthe purpose of trade, without his written consent, to restrain the use thereof, and concluded that it had no application to the use in a single issue of a newspaper, when it is not in connection with an advertisement, or for the purpose of trade.

LIABILITY FOR INJURIES TO PATRON OF THEATER.—One sitting in the front row of a theater durnig an exhibition of bicycle riding was injured by one of the riders going over the edge and striking him. The lower court decided that it was not the duty of defendant to erect barriers as alleged, and that the petition was open to demurrer. The supreme court of Rhode Island in Brown vs. Batchellor, 69 Atlantic Reporter, 295, reversed the decision, and decided that the mere happening of the accident called for an explanation, and that a slight and almost invisible barrier might have been provided.

ACQUISITION OF CONTROL OF OTHER CORPORATION BY RAILROAD COMPANY.—Statutes of Massachusetts forbid railroad companies from taking or holding the stock or bonds of other corporations. In attorney general vs. New York, N. H. & H. Railway company, 84 Northeastern Reporter, 737, the defendant corporation, owing to its incorporation under the laws of both Massachusetts and Connecticut, contended this provision was not applicable to it, but the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts held that it was a domestic corporation nevertheless, and subject to the laws of Massachusetts.

EXEMPTION OF INSURANCE BENEFITS.—In Himmel vs. Eichengreen, 69 Atlantic Reporter, 511, the Maryland court of appeals holds that the provision of the constitution of the state that laws shall be passed to protect from execution an amount of property of the debtor not exceeding in value $500 does not apply to attachment of money or other benefits, and that a law exempting insurance benefits from attachment is valid, notwithstanding the value may be more than the amount referred to in the constitution. It also holds that non-resident debtors are entitled to the benefit of the statute.

UNLAWFUL ACTS OF STRIKERS.—Complainants abandoned their agreements with the unions and adopted an "open shop" policy. Thereupon the unions and their sympathizers began to interfere with complainants' business. In Reynolds vs. Davis, 84 Northeastern Reporter, 457, complainants sought to enjoin defendants from furthering or inciting a strike against them. The supreme judicial court of Massachusetts granted an injunction restraining defendants from combining together to further the strike in question and from doing any acts whatever, peaceful or otherwise, in furtherance thereof, including payment of strike benefits and putting the plaintiffs on an unfair list.

CHARGES AGAINST FERRY EXPECTED

Eveleth Council to Hear Accusation at Tuesday Evening's Meeting.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tonight's meeting of the council will be well attended, from reports around town, as it is expected that charges against City Attorney Ferry will then be preferred, so as to secure his resignation, which has been asked for already, but which he refuses to hand in, saying that the council has nothing against him. The matter of securing the water tank on the hill, near the baseball park, will also be brought up, as estimates have already been asked for such a tank.

Judge Prince returned Sunday from Winona, where he was greatly honored by the convention of Minnesota Red-men, being Elected great prophet. He will dispose of all the cases now that have accumulated while he was away.

VIRGINIA WOMAN SEVERELY BURNED

Gallon Can of Kerosene Sitting on Hot Stove Explodes.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. John Perala of 119 Locust street was severely burned this morning. Her daughter, aged 6, had placed a gallon can of kerosene on the hot stove as her mother's back was turned, with her washing. An explosion resulted, the burning oil being thrown on the woman's back. One hand and arm were severely burned. The body burns are extensive, but not deep. The damage to the house from fire was about $20.

MINISTER'S WIFE DIES.

Mrs. R. R. Harris Passes Away After a Long Illness.

Biwabik, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Mrs. R. R. Harris, wife of the Congregational minister here, who died Sunday evening, will be held today at Faribault, Minn., where the body was taken yesterday. Mrs. Harris died of pleurisy, after a long illness.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two small children, her mother, Mrs. A. B. Blanchard, Faribault; three sisters, Mrs. R. C. Pelter, Faribault; Mrs. R. W. ASSAULTED AN OFFICER.

It Cost John Lustic $25 and Costs for Act.

Aurora, Minn., Aug. 18.—Special to The Herald.)—John Lustic, after a trial before Judge Tillman, yesterday, was fined $25 and costs for assaulting Officer Dudley of the Mohawk location, with intent to kill. Lustic had his team employed driving a gang of Austrians back to town from the new town of Cotton, where a number of them have had lots given them if they erect houses.

As they reached the Mohawk location, the horses became unmanageable, and Peter Farnino, the driver, was thrown under the rig and drawn for about thirty feet. When the horses were stopped, Farnino arose and began beating them. Marshal Dudley interfered and caused him to stop, when Lustic sneaked up behind with an ax. Dudley was warned and jumped aside, the ax, which was a double-bitted one, missing his head by a few inches.

Immediately after paying his fine for this case, Lustic was arrested for hitting a man over the head with a board last Saturday night, and was put under $10 bonds to appear for trial.

Jim Didge was arrested Sunday night for being drunk and disorderly and fined $10 and costs, which he paid.

The polling places will be as follows: First ward, city hall; second ward, first precinct, North Shore building; second precinct, residence of C. F. Nordstrom; Third ward, M. Peterson's store; Fourth ward, Two Harbors fire hall.

A LASTING EFFECT

This Evidence Should Prove Every Claim Made for Doan's Kidney Pills in Duluth.

Relief from the pains and aches of a bad back is always welcome to every backache sufferer; but to cure a lame, weak or aching back is what's wanted. Cure it so it will stay cured. It can be done. Here's the strongest evidence to prove it:

J. Vaugan of 532 First street west, Duluth, Minn., says: "In the summer of 1898 I told the people of Duluth, through our local newspapers, of the splendid results I had obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. My trouble was a kidney and bladder disorder, that was painful and annoying, and had clung to me for a considerable time. The kidney secretions were quite irregular and contained a sediment which varied in color and condition. There were dull, heavy pains through the loins, and I was very restless at night, being unable to remain in one position for any length of time. The trouble was becoming worse, when I was induced to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I continued taking them until entirely relieved of the affliction. I am glad to say that the cure has been permanent, and will always be pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

SALOON IS LEGALIZED.

Beaver Bay Man Has Been Granted a License.

Two Harbors, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Lake county commissioners, who have been in session here for a few days, have granted Norman Lackie of Beaver Bay a saloon license. He has been conducting a saloon under a license issued a former occupant of the log shack in which the booze has been distributed and, the license having been revoked, it was necessary in order to legalize Lackie's business to issue another license.

Three miles of new road will be built by the county to connect with the state road.

Birds for a new steel bridge over the rapids of White Iron lake, near Ely, in Fall Lake township, will he received by the county auditor and the clerk of the township.

WOMAN'S DEATH ACCIDENTAL.

Mrs. George Cochran Fell and Cut Herself Fatally.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Aug. 18.—Special toThe Herald.)—Mrs. George Cochran who was found in a dying condition from loss of blood while alone in the yard of her home here, Saturday night, and died before Medical aid could arrive, came to her death through an accident, according to the finding of the coroner's jury, this setting to rest the sensational pipe dream printed in several papers tbout her having been foully murdered. A wound in the leg that resulted from a fall in which she probably cut herself caused her to bleed to death. Several pieces of broken glass found around the ground near where she laid, leaves little doubt that the unfortunate woman cut herself in some manner and bled to death. The funeral was held this afternoon from the Episcopal church.

ANOTHER ONE FILES.

Frank Price Latest Candidate for County Attorney.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Price, a local attorney, today filed for the Democratic nomination for county attorney of Itasca county making four candidates for that office to date, the others being, W. A. Rossman, the present assistant county attorney, C. L. Pratt and E. H. Bither, all Republicans.

COULDN'T STAND DISGRACE.

Biwabik, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dread of the thought of going to the poor house probably hastened the death of Daniel Sullivan, an old man, aged about 75, for many years employed by the Iron Range road, who had been sick and was without funds. An officer who went to his room to take Sullivan to the poor farm found him writhing on the floor and he died soon afterwards. When able he had been doing odd jobs about town.

WILLIAM CARR BURIED.

Two Harbors, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of William Carr, who died here Sunday, was held today, Rev. W. E. Gratz officiating. Interment was in the Two Harbors cemetery.

The Lake County Agricultural association will meet tonight at the courthouse to perfect plans for the second annual fair and agricultural exhibit at Two Harbors this fall. Officers will be elected to succeed athe following: President, George Munford; secretary, W. J. Marquis; treasurer, J. D. Rose.

VIRGINIA BOY IS CRUSHED TO DEATH

Run Over by Load of Sand, Dies En Route to Hospital.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Privanovich, the 7-year-old son of ex-Alderman Mat Privanovich was run over about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by a sand wagon and died on the way to the hospital. The boy was sitting on the sand wagon on the side and fell off without the driver seeing him. The back wheel passed over the boy's face, crushing his skull. Mrs. Fuller the only eye witness, who was walking, ran to the boy, but could not pick him up. The driver of the wagon, took the boy in his arms and ran with him toward Lanonts' hospital. He met a buggy on the way and put the boy into it. The young boy breathed his last as he was taken into the hospital. The mother was distracted on hearing the news.

FORM ATHLETIC CLUB.

by Anton Gerbic, Bovey agent for the Hamm Brewing Company of St. Paul, as a beer wagon driver. It is alleged that he collected about $200 July 8 last and decamped. Since then detectives have been looking for him, and the county authorities are gratified that he has been taken and will soon be brought back.

Put Up Stiff Fight.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—After a fight, Nicolai Jolecich, wanted in Bovey, Minn., for an embezzlement, was captured Sunday by Detective Henry F. Goetzen.

A warrant for Jolecich's arrest was received, and he was found by Detective Goetzen in a boarding house at 685 Kinnickinnic avenue. As the detective approached the house, Jolecich jumped headlong through a big bay window, and caught a passenger freight for Chicago.

Detective Goetzen learned that Jolecich got off in Bay View. Goetzen, Sergt. Flynn and several patrolmen returned to the house at dusk Sunday and surrounded the house. Jolecich barricaded himself and threatened to kill any one who approached.

Goetzen broke down the door of the house and a fierce struggle began. Finally Goetzen floored Jolecich. He is an Austrian, about 26 years of age.

FIRING ON SENTRIES

J. Unson of Chicago, was sent to the place to herd the negroes into the arsenal.

Support to Governor Deneen's appeal to the citizens of Springfield to aid the authorities in hastening responsibility for the riots upon the ringleaders was given at a meeting of the chamber of commerce and the Business Men's association this morning. Strict enforcement of laws was urged upon those officials, and the aid of the associations was pledged. The clergymen of Springfield took similar action, adopting resolutions declaring that "maladministration of the laws, which has so long characterized this community," was largely to blame for the riots. The efforts of States Attorney Hatch to bring the offenders to justice was commended, as was also the refusal of Mayor Reece to allow the saloons to reopen.

Timid Ones Not Reassured.

The continued outbreaks of last night and this morning have not reassured the timid portions of the community. If one-tenth of reprots afloat in this bewildered city were true Springfield would be one of the most sanguine places on earth. But they are not. Gen. Wells had a merry time of it last night dispatching rescuing squads to places where they were not needed and escorting firemen to fires that did not exist. Some of the alarms were hoaxes and some the result of nervousness on the part of citizens. Out of all the rush and hurry the sole tangible result was the arrest of two befuddled negroes whose libations had been indiscreet and strong. In the early evening this incident, however, furnished a typical shock, nothing less than that Troop "F" had dispersed a mob which had cut a white man to shreds, cut and slashed him so horribly that the body was unrecognizable.

The rumor was traced from a private soldier to a captain of militia, from him to a livery man, from the latter to a traveling man who thought that he had heard a shot and there it was lost.

What Really Happened.

What had really happened was this: "A few negroes at Fifteenth and Ash streets, had requested that the usual patrol include that neighborhood in its beat. The troopers, on their rounds heard loud voices and fired two shots in the air. As the voices did not cease an investigation followed. The 'mob' was then arrested."

In another instance a whole regiment of soldiers was brought into action when a can of molasses exploded and drenched a negro who was making a cautious purchase at a North side grocery store. The negro was standing at the store counter when the explosion occurred. With molasses dripping from his face, hands and clothing, he ran screaming from the store, through back yards and over fences, until he reached his home. There he cried that he had been killed and that the store had been blown up, and that every one was dead. The sound of the explosion and the cries of negroes alarmed the nearest military camp and several companies of infantry got into quick action. When they reached the store the grocer was laughing so hard that he could not tell them what had happened. So they followed the trail of molasses and came at last to the dripping negro. The clothing was stripped from his body, but there was no sign of a wound. Then the grocer, who had recovered his composure, rushed in and cleared the mystery and the soldiers wearily faced toward their quarters.

and he knew, also, how to hold the favor of Washington.

Began in Civil War.

Admiral Evans began fighting in the Civil war, when he was still in his teens, and completed his record of actual hostilities by the great work he did with the battleship Iowa at Santiago. In the interval and since that time, he rendered his country every kind of service.

Evans went to the Annapolis academy in 1860, and a year later came the outbreak of tthe Civil war. The mother of Robley demanded that he resign from the United States service and fight for the South. His brother has espoused the cause of the Confederacy. But Robley decided in favor of Washington and announced his determination to stand for the Union. It was a decision that cost him many heart-burnings, for it was many years before his mother forgave him.

Brothers Kept Friendship.

His brother fought gallantly for the South, and was twice wounded. He did not share his mohter's indignation at the young naval officer, and the two brothers never wavered in their friendship, despite the divergence in their political views.

Evans' active service began in the West Indies, where he commanded a yacht sent to search for Confederate prisoners. He was first under fire at Fort Fisher, and was wounded in the attack on that stronghold. It was at first decided that both of his legs would have to be amputated, which would, of course, have ended his naval career. But even then Evans had that swiftness of action which later was to bring him distinction. As soon as the doctors communicated to him their decision to take off his legs, he drew his revolver and announced that he would blow off the head of the first man who dared approach him. Adopting new measures the physicians worked with him and managed to restore him to health with both legs intact.

World Admires Spunk.

In 1891 Evans increased his fame by his conduct in Valparaiso harbor. He was in charge of the little gunboat Yorktown, during the trying period when the least slip might have precipitated war between the countries, a conflict that would have entailed serious consequences, since it was no secret that Great Britain at that time sympathized with the South Americans. In the teeth of the protests of the Chilean government Commodore Evans took on his boat the refugees from the American legation and when the natives threatened reprisals he announced that at the first hint of attack he would bombard the city. The world admired his spunk and Washington learned that in "Fighting Bob" it had a man who could be trusted in any crisis.

An amendment was added which required a member of congress to file a statement showing to what extent the lawful voters of his district were restricted in the exercise of their franchise and the methods employed to accomplish such results.

As thus amended the measure passed the house, and coming to the senate, was referred to the committee on privileges and elections, of which I was chairman. While the Republican membership of that committee favored the passage of the measure as it came to us, every Democratic committeeman was opposed to it, and under no circumstances, by reason of the Democratic position, could it have been passed through the senate. It was believed then, and is believed now, that the prevention of lawful voters from exercising their right of suffrage is quite as pernicious and as destructive of free government as the use of money in elections.

Mr. Sherman's Reply.

Candidate Sherman replied as follows:

Senator Burrows and Gentlemen of the Notification Committee: Your chairman, speaking for the committee, has notified me of my nomination by the Republican national convention, held in Chicago in June, as the party's candidate for vice president. As I announced in this bewildered city over true Springfield would be one of the most sanguine places on earth. But they are not. Gen. Wells had a merry time of it last night dispatching rescuing squads to places where they were not needed and escorting firemen to fires that did not exist. to do. That commission will be from an untrammeled American electorate. Shame on the party which, shame on the candidate who insults the American people by suggestion or declaration that a majority of its electorate is venal. The American voter, with rare exception in casting his ballot, is guided by his best judgment, by his desire to conserve his own and the public weal.

The overshadowing issue of the campaign really is: Shall the administration of President Roosevelt be approved; shall a party of demonstrated capacity in administrative affairs be continued in power, shall the reins of government be placed in experienced hands, or do the people prefer to trust their destinies to an aggregation of experimental malcontents and theorists, whose only claim to a history is a party name they pilfered.

With a record of four decades of wise legislation; two score years of faithful pledges as a guaranty of its promises for the future, the Republican party appeals to the people and, with full confidence in their wisdom and patriotism, awaits the rendition of the November verdict.

The ceremonies at the Sherman home were preceded by band concerts in the downtown squares, a parade of the city fire department, a nice presidential salute of nineteen guns and a parade of the gaily uniformed Conklin Unconditionals in escort of the members of the notification committee from Genesee square to the Sherman house and beyond was lined with thousands of people.

Beautiful Weather.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 18.—The day of the official notification of James Schoolcraft Sherman, Republican nominee for vice president, broke clear and delightfully cool and the local committee on arrangements prepared to carry out in full the long out-door program which the heavy rains of yesterday threatened seriously to curtail. Incoming trains during the morning brought thongs of visitors from the middle and western sections of the state, while the interurban trolleys from points as far west as Syracuse were crowded to the full carrying capacity. Among the distinguished arrivals were Secretary Root, whose home is but ten miles from here; National Chairman Frank. H. Hitchock, who came on from Chicago, accompanied by several members of his staff and State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff.

The last details of decoration at the Sherman home in Genesee street were hurried forward this morning.

Bands Give Concerts.

It had been planned to fire a vice presidential salute of nineteen guns at 7 a. m., but this opening feature of the day's program was delayed until 11 o'clock. Bands in three of the public squares gave morning concerts for the edification of the street crowds, and under a cloudless sky the city soon took on its holiday aspect.

The Conkling Conditionals, a campaign marching club of some 300 members, headed by a band of 110 pieces, gathered from several nearby cities assembled at Baggs Square during the forenoon and later served as an escort to the members of the notification committee, who in automobiles, were driven to the Sherman home, a mile or more from the starting place. The line of march lay straight up Genesee street, which, practically from end to end, was a mass of waving colors. Even the unsightly old bridge across the Erie canal had been disguised into a thing of comparative beauty by the elaborate use of evergreens and bunting. Suspended from the overhead girders of the bridge a big electric sign of "Welcome" greeted the visitors. After passing the canal the notification committee had to drive directly beneath a huge Bryan and didate to be "the overshadowing issue • • • now under discussion." It is no issue. Surely the people shall rule, surely the people have ruled; surely the people do rule. No party rules. The party, commissioned by the people, is simply the instrument to execute the people's will, and from that party which does not obey their expressed will, or which lacks the wisdom to lead successfully, the people will withdraw their commission.

Government of the People.

For half a century, with but two exceptions, the people have commissioned the Republican party to administer the national government; commissioned it because its declared principles appealed to their best judgment; commissioned it because the common sense of the American people scented danger in Democratic politics. Ours always have been, always must be, a government of the people. That party will, after March 4 next, execute old laws and enact new ones as in November it is commissioned by the people

"Shall the people rule?" is declared

Following the notification ceremonies at 12 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Sherman entertained the members of the notification committee and a few guests at luncheon. The afternoon was given over to a carnival of sports and music at Utica park. A dinner by Mr. Sherman, band concerts and electrical illuminations tonight will bring the day to a close.

Chairman Hitchcock met a number of Republican leaders here and made arrangements to engage them in the speaking campaign. He received a telegram from Leslie M. Shaw of Iowa, former secretary of the treasury, promising to make two or three speeches in Vermont next week. Mr. Shaw later will go to Maine for a few speeches and secretary Wilson, of the department of agriculture, also will speak in that state.

LEADING-MEN FILE.

Congdon, Buck and Grant Formally Enter Legislative Race.

Richard F. Grant yesterday filed for the Republican nomination for representative from the Fiftieth district. Mr. Grant is of the firm of Sullivan & Grant of this city.

Chester A. Congdon and George W. Buck have also entered their names with the secretary of state for the legislative race, in the Fifty-first district.

Ten Years in Bed.

"For ten years I was confined to my bed with disease of my kidneys," writes R. A. Gray, J. P. of Oakville, Ind. "It was so severe that I could not move part of the time. I consulted the very best medical skill available, but could get no relief until Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me. It has been a Godsend to me." Sold by all druggists.

SOME WILL ENTER RACE

Several Democrats Indorsed at Hibbing Will File for Office.

Others Have Not Yet Reached a Final Decision.

Statements have been made that all the men recommended as candidates at the Democratic county convention at Hibbing, last Frday, are refusing to permit the use of their names. This statement is without foundation. It is still too soon after the convention to say that none of the recommended candidates will run, and as yet not one of the men who did not inform the county committee of his intentions last Friday, has come to a final decision in the matter.

It was stated that P. H. Martin has no intention of becoming a candidate for the legislature in the Forty-ninth district. That is probably true. He was never recommended by the convention or by the county committee to become a candidate for the legislature in the Forty-ninth district. The convention felt very well satisfied with the candidates already in the field in that district, and decided that it would be very well to let them go along unmolested.

Another statement is that Dr. O. A. Oredson would not be a candidate for the legislature in the Fiftieth district. Dr. Oredson was also a Hibbing convention, but as yet he has not informed the committee or any one else that he would not make the race for the legislature.

Charles d'Autremont will not be a candidate for congress. Business reasons prevent Mr. d'Autremont from making the run.

Andrew Nelson has not given his final answer to the committee as yet. Mr. Nelson was asked to take the matter under advisement, when he stated that he did not believe he could make the race for county attorney, and as yet he has not given his final answer to the members of the county committee.

Joseph Ward Reynolds will be a candidate for the legislature in the Fiftieth district. P. H. Nelson will be a candidate for railroad and warehouse commissioner. W. B. Getchell has not given his final decision as to whether he will run for county treasurer. Charles Jesmore, recommended for county sheriff, will make the run. Mr. Jesmore was a delegate to the convention that nominated him, and gave his consent to the use of his name. John Lowe will be a candidate for county commissioner from the Fifth district. Mr. Lowe has already given his answer. Emil A. Tessman will be a candidate for county commissioner from the First district. Bernard Forrestal will not be a candidate for the office of register of deeds. Dr. M. B. Cullum will not be a candidate for the office of county auditor. Dr. J. H. Jern will, if his present intentions are carried out, be a candidate for county coroner. August Hagberg will, as far as is known, be a candidate for county commissioner from the Third district. A. M. Thomson of Virginia will be a canddate for clerk of the courts.

The fact the the convention recommended certain candidates does not prevent other Democratic candidates filing. A committee has been appointed for the purpose of inducing the most worthy men in the party to come out, as the county committee believes that the more candidates there are in the field the better will be the final result to the voters.

WHEAT HAS A REACTION

Closes Slightly Higher in All the American Markets.

Trading is Quiet in Duluth—Flax Weak and Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 18.—The bearish operations of yesterday were not resumed when the market opened this morning and wheat had a healthy reaction in all of the American markets, closing higher than yesterday. The September option regained the dollar mark again in both Duluth and Minneapolis and the better feeling in these markets was an influence felt everywhere.

There was little news to influence the market. Reports from Canada and the Northwestern states on thrashing continue good and the bears are perfectly satisfied with the situation. The weakness in the markets of the United States affected the European and Canadian markets and wheat closed off in Winnipeg, where there was a holiday yesterday.

The September option closed ⅝c up in Duluth, ⅝c up in Chicago, 1-1⅛c up in Minneapolis, ¾c up in New York, 1c up in St. Louis, ¾c up in Kansas City and ⅛c off in Winnipeg. The December option closed 1c up in Duluth, ⅝-¾c up in Chicago, 1⅜c up in Minneapolis, 1¼c up in New York, ¾-⅞c up in St. Louis, ¾c up in Kansas City and ⅝c off in Winnipeg. Oats were 1⅜-½c up and coorn 1⅜-¼c up.

The total visible supply of wheat today is 17,473,000 bus against 50,953,000 bus a year ago, a decrease of 33,480,000 bus. The visible supply of corn is 1,740,000 bus against 4,945,000 bus a year ago, a decrease of 3,195,000 bus. The visible supply of oats os 2,665,000 bus against 1,348,000 bus a year ago, an increase of 917,000 bus.

The total stocks of wheat in all positions is reported to be 6,771,000 bus, an increase of 864,000 bps. A year ago the stocks were 16,724,000 bus. The total stock of corn in all positions is 1,005,000, a decrease for the week of 166,000 bus. A year ago, the stock was 2,042,000. The total stock of oats in all positions is 1,209,000 bus, an increase of 482,000 bus. A year ago, the total stock was 669,000 bus.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅛d lower in Liverpool and corn ¼d lower. Wheat closed ½c lower in Berlin.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "As a result of the lower American cables yesterday and the free movement to market of new English wheat values here was ¼d to ⅜d lower at the opening. Following this and during the remainder of the morning the market was quiet and steady having gained the early decline. Strength was attributed to good support by leading houses and fewer offerings. At mid-day the general market was easy and values unchanged to ⅛d lower than Monday.

"There was no feature at the opening in corn and values were nominally unchanged. During the morning pressure developed and values showed a sharp decline losing ½d. The weakness resulted from a poor spot trade continued larger and cheaper La Plata offerings."

Car receipts of wheat were 15 against 38 last year, and at Minneapolis 125 against 52 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 140 against 90 last year. Chicago received 253 against 451 last year. Winnipeg received 19.

Primary receipts of corn were 461,000 bus, last year 538,000 bus. Shipments 278,000 bus, last year 380,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 11,482 bus.

Trading in the Duluth market was quite brisk at the opening, but fell off as the session advanced and was quiet at the close. Flax was a little off on account of heavier offerings, while there was a reaction in wheat and a little improvement.

September wheat opened ⅛c off at 99¼c, advanced to 99¾c, went off to 99½c and rallied to $1, closing at $1 bid. December wheat opened ¼c up at 96½c, went to 97c, went off to 96¾c, rallied to 97¼c and closed at 97¼c bid.

September flax opened ¼c off at $1.29, went off to $1.28¼, rallied to $1.28½ and fell off at the close to $1.28¼. October flax opened unchanged at $1.27, fell off to $1.26 and closed at that figure. November flax opened unchanged at $1.27, fell off to $1.26 and closed at $1.26 bid. December flax closed 1c off at $1.23½.

Durum wheat was unchanged and old cash spring wheat sold at 20c over September wheat. Oats were 1⅜c up and rye and barley were the same as at yesterday's close.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Buying by Commission Houses and Steady Cables Give Wheat Strength

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Buying by commission houses based on the steadiness of the Liverpool wheat market in the face of a sharp decline here yesterday caused firmness in the local market today. Offerings were limited. September opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 91⅝c to 91⅞c and advanced to 92¼c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 393 cars, against 570 cars last week and 612 cars a year ago.

The market continued firm the remainder of the day, small primary receipts and strength of corn helping to uphold prices. September sold up to 92½c. The market closed firm, with September up ⅝c at 92⅝c.

Corn was strong, particularly the September delivery, owing to buying by a leading bull. Active demand by feeders for cash corn in Missouri was a strengthening influence. September opened ⅜c to 1c higher at 76c to 76¼c, advanced to 76⅝c and then reacted to 76c. Local receipts were 255 cars, with 72 of contract grade.

Demand continued active all day and prices made an additional advance September selling to 76½c. The close was strong at September 1⅛@1¼c higher at 76⅜@½c.

General demand for oats, due to some extent to the advance in corn, caused firmness in that market. Offerings were light. September opened ¼c higher at 46⅝c and advanced to 47c. Local receipts were 280 cars.

Provisions were quiet and steady. Pit traders were bearishly inclined, but the strength of corn and oats had a tendency to restrict offerings from that source. The September deliveries opened unchanged from last night, initial trades on pork being at $15.07½, lard at $9.25½ and ribs at $8.77½.

Close: September, 92⅝c; December, 94⅛c; May, 98½c. Corn—September, 76⅜@½c; December, 64¼c; May, 63⅞@64c. Oats—September, 47¾@⅞c; December, 48¼c; May, 50@⅛c. Pork—September, $14.72½; October, $14.85; January, $15.72½. Lard—September, $9.17½; October, $9.27½@9.30; January, $9.00. Ribs—September, $8.70; October, $8.80; January, $8.02½. Rye—Cash, 78½@¾c; September, 77c. Barley—Cash, 60@66c. Timothy—September, $3.65. Clover—October, $11.75. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 93½@94½c; No. 3 red, 93¾@94c; No. 2 hard, 93½@94½c; No. 3 hard, 92½@94c; No. 3 spring, $1.00@1.10. Corn—No. 2, 78½c. Oats—No. 2, nothing doing; No. 3, 46c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Prices Erratic at Range of a Cent, But Closed Firm.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 18.—Receipts ran over today for the first time this season and enough new crop wheat turned up to make the Minneapolis run 125 cars against 52. This was important, not as much in itself as in the fact that it clearly shows the beginning of an increased movement. Against there was a decrease of 125,000 bushels in elevator stocks for three days which left the supply situation strong as ever. Liverpool was surprisingly firm, considering our weakness of yesterday, opening ¼@⅜d lower and coming only ⅛d lower in second advices. The winter wheat movement was small and strengthening to the markets, particularly, the receipts of only 253 cars in Chicago against 451. Duluth 15 cars against 38. Futures were erratic and up and down in a price range of about a cent, closing firm. September opened 99⅜c; high, $1.00⅝@¾c; low, 99⅛c; close, $1.00⅝. Old September opened $1.00; high, $1.00¼@⅜; low, $1.00¼. December opened 97c; high, 98⅜c; low, 97c; close, 98⅜c. Old December closed, 98⅞c.

Cash wheat held around $1.23 for No. 1 Northern, but the velvet chaff of that grade sold at $1.16@1.18. No. 2 Northern sold at $1.19@1.20 and for velvet chaff in that grade $1.13@1.15. This heavy decline in velvet chaff was the feature. General demand for old or new regular spring wheat was excellent.

Close: No. 1 Northern, $1.23@1.24; spot, new; $1.08 to arrive; No. 2 Northern, $1.19@1.20; spot, new; $1.05 to arrived. No. 3 wheat, $1.13@1.16.

No. 3 yellow corn, 76¾@11¾c.

No. 3 white oats, 45¾c.

No. 2 rye, 72¾@74¼c.

Barley—Receipts, 14 cars. Demand good and prices 1 to 2c higher. One car choice malting went as high as 62c; two brought 61c and seven sold at 60c. Very poor no grade brought 52½c. Close—52@62c.

Flax—Receipts, only two cars being delivered on previous sales made to arrive. Two cents under Duluth September is 61c to arrive, and September 62c bid for spot. Close—$1.25, spot; $1.26 to arrive.

Mill—Stuff, 1950, 20c for bulk bran.

Flour demand shows no increase, except that there is a little inquiry now for flour, based upon new crop prices. Not much business is actually done, but millers say conditions are pointing to increased activity before long. Prices remain firm and steady, in line with the strained old crop supply situation. Shipments, 23,064 barrels. First patents, $6.15@6.25; second patents, $6.00@6.15; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

BOY KILLED BY HEAT.

Norway, Mich., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The excessive heat that has prevailed in this section for some time claimed a victim yesterday in John Enama, a 15-year-old boy, who died at the Swift hospital after a severe struggle against the inevitable.

The deceased, a son of Baptista Enama, was overcome by the heat Saturday while employed as a waterboy for the crew working on the sewer excavating here.

There has been no rain here for five weeks and the heat has been unusual.

Knights of Columbus.

The Knights of Columbus' annual picnic takes place tomorrow at Fond du Lac. The knights and their friends will go up the river on the Newsboy, leaving the Lake avenue dock at 9 a. m. and Superior at 9:30. A splendid program of sports has been arranged by Dr. E. W Fahey, Frank O'Donnell, Justin Zuger and John Murray, officers of the Duluth lodge.

MONSTER OREGON ELK.

Seaside correspondence Portland Oregonian: James Heckman, who is just in from a timber cruise in the Necanicum mountains, is able to verify the legend of a monster elk, which has led many hunters on a wild chase through the mountains of the Upper Necanicum.

For years it has been reported that an elk larger than any horse in Seaside, with a hoof that made a track over seven inches in diamenter, roamed the woods near the headwaters of the Necanicum and the North Nehalem. He was too wary for the most experienced hunters, who tried in vain to stalk him.

Jim took a stroll while they were nooning and within a half mile from camp came to an open glade containing about eighty acres. Standing within the edge of the timber he counted sixteen elk feeding leisurely in the opening. He noticed three bucks, good large fellows, but he almost had the ague when he saw the monarch of the herd, which he avers is a monster.

Being to leeward of the band and within eighty yards of them, Jim had a splendid chance to observe the elk. The big fellow had a magnificent pair of antlers, twelve points on one and eleven on the other, in the velvet. The other bucks were large, but they looked like pigmies by the side of the big fellow.

LAST GREAT CANADIAN RAFT.

Quebec Chronicle: News comes from Ottawa to the effect that a large timber raft is now on its way down to Quebec, having arrived at the capital from Deschenes on Saturday afternoon. The raft was built on the Coulogne river. The raft method of transportation is fast becoming obsolete and it is thought that this may be the last raft that will be seen.

The raft is manned by eighty men, with Noe Valiquette as head pilot. To get through any rapids it has been divided into separate cribs, the cribs going down individually. The value of the raft, which comprises about 10,000,000 feet, is estimated at from $80,000 to $100,000.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Opened Higher, Declined on Heavy Selling, But Rallied Again.

Unfounded Reports of J. J. Hill's Illness Had Bearish Effect.

New York, Aug. 18.—The stock market opened active and higher, with large blocks of stocks changing hands. Most of the representative stocks were up considerable fractions, and American Smelting, American Sugar and National Lead a point.

Heavy selling of the Hill stocks together with a sharp drop in St. Louis and San Francisco second preferred, turned the course of the market downward, and induced general selling which soon wiped out the opening advance. Northern Pacific yielded 1½, Great Northern preferred 1¾ and St. St. Louis and San Francisco second preferred, 2¾. The Hill stocks pulled up sharply at 11 o'clock and the entire market began to advance again.

The rally carried American smelting and Thir Avenue up 2 points and St. Paul, Reading and Colorado Fuel 1 before it was checked again by renewed selling of Great Northern preferred and Northern Pacific. On unfounded reports of the illness of James J. Hill, Northern Pacific extended its decline to 2⅜. New York Central and Reading also 1¼, Union Pacific and Missouri Pacific 1, and the rest of the list was driven back to yesterday's closing or below. Wisconsin Central improved 2½. Bonds were easy.

Moderate purchases for both accounts caused improvement in values. American smelting sold about 96. Southern Pacific ruled 1¼ above last night and the active list generally rallied about a point from the lowest.

A sharp drive against American Smelting forced it back 2½ from its higher price and induced active realizing at other points. When the decline had expended its force trading became very quiet, but a late demand for Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and United States Steel roused the market after which prices hardened. United States Steel advanced 1 and Southern Pacific 2 points.

The market closed steady and active. Special stocks made considerable progress upwards, which imparted a stimulating effect on the market and offset the traders' realizing. Union Pacific was run up a point, Northwestern 2 and Third Avenue 4½. Around 2:30 Reading and American Smelting fell back over a point and other stocks also became reactionary. Near the end buying was resumed.

New York stock quotations furnished by Fred H. Merritt, 328 West Superior street.

Closing prices are bid.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Aug. 18.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 7@8 points during the early session and sold off to a net loss of 14 points on the active months under bear pressure. Private cables from Liverpool attributing the lower market there to firm offers from the South, probably encouraged selling here, but August held around the closing figures of last night. there was moderate support at the decline to 9.27 for October and during the middle of the morning prices were 3 or 4 points up from the lowest.

Spot closed quiet at 10 points decline; middling uplands, 10.40; middling gulf, 10.65; sales, none. Futures closed steady; closing bids: August, 10.10; September, 9.40; October, 9.31; November, 9.03; December, 9.04; January, 9.01; February, 9.03; March, 9.06.

FISHERMEN'S SUPERSTITION.

Los Angeles Times: In British Columbia the Indians ceremoniously went to meet the first salmon and in flattering voices tried to win their favor by calling them all chiefs.

Every spring in California the Karaks used to dance for salmon. Meanwhile one of their number secluded himself in the mountains and fasted for ten days. Upon his return he solemnly approached the river, took the first salmon of the catch, ate some of it and with the remainder lighted a sacrificial fire. The same Indians laboriously climbed to the mountain top after the poles for the spearing booth, being convinced that if they were gathered where the salmon were watching no fish would be caught.

Very widespread, in fact, is this native belief of the necessity of caution whenever Adam is on fishing bent.

In Japan among the primitive race of the Ainos even the women left at home are not allowed to talk lest the fish may hear and disapprove, while the first fish is always brought in through a window instead of a door so the other fish may not see.

The Esquimaux women of Alaska never sew while the men are fishing, and should any mending be imperative they do it shut up in little tents out of sight of the sea.

Under no circumstances on the northeast coast of Scotland will a fisherman at sea mention certain objects on land, such as "minister," "kirk," "swine," "dog," etc., and the line will surely be lost if a pig is seen while baiting it. As on the land chickens must not be counted until they are hatched, so at sea fish must not be counted until they are all caught. It is good luck to find mice nibbling the nets, a horseshoe nailed to the mast will help, and a herring caught and salted down will produce wonders.

In the Shetland islands a cat must not be mentioned before a man baiting his line and among the Magyars of Hungary a fisherman will turn back and wait over a tide if he meets a woman wearing a white apron.

Every year the natives of the Duke of York island decorate a canoe with flowers and fern, fill it with shell money and cast it adrift "to compensate the fish for their fellows caught and eaten."

It was always the custom of the Maoris, the primitive inhabitants of New Zealand, to put the first fish that they caught back into the sea "with a prayer that it might tempt other fish to come and be caught."

If the fish did not come soon enough in British Columbia the Indians used to employ a wizard, who made an image of a swimming fish and put it in the water to attract live fish to the bait.

North Butte uncovers big deposits of high-grade ore on the 2,200-foot level and stock advances fast.
Butte & Superior may open up big deposits of high-grade copper ore on the 1,000 and 1,200-foot levels, and if they do there will be big things doing in the city of Duluth, for much of the stock is held here and on the ranges. This mine is one of the great possibilities, and no one can foretell what a great future it has ahead of it. I look for the stock to easily advance to $2, and if they get what they expect in the drifts $7 will look cheap for it. Buy it to a standstill at this low level. Ballaklava and Shattuck are two of the best. These two are absolutely safe at this level, and on good news from either should advance several points.

OLD FASHIONED SUMMER DRINKS.

London Evening Standard: Buttermilk in days long gone by was almost a fetish in the hands of the beauties of the time. When Marie Antoinette and her ladies rolled up the sleeves of their flowered muslins and played with the churns and cream bowls in the laiterie at the petit Trianon the buttermilk craze was at its height.

Unguents for the face as well as the potions in which they indulged were probably responsible for the lovely complexions which made poets compose odes to the bloom on their cheeks and painters almost implore on their knees that disdainful beauties should relent so far as to have their charms immortalized. In baked buttermilk one of the strongholds of the complexion was said to lie. In a few days it worked wonders, while perseverance in its use during the whole of the summer months would preserve the skin smooth and soft as a roseleaf.

Where the sour milk prophet errs today is in insufficiently diluting the buttermilk, the proportions in the genuine old recipes of the past being that of a gill to a pint of fresh milk. This was poured into a jar with a fitted lid and placed before the open range during the whole of a day.

By night the milk had turned to the consistency of clotted cream, in which state it was poured from a height from one vessel to another until, by some magical means, the contents had gone back once more to the smoothness of fresh milk. It was then sweetened with cane sugar and enclosed finally in a stone bottle, corked down tightly and placed before the fire but not too near for five or six hours. At first baked buttermilk does not always appear particularly pleasing, the mere fact that it is distinctly sour making it an acquired taste.

If it was not acid, however, it was scarcely considered to have been perfectly made, while if it effervesced when the bottle was opened it formed not only a mere refreshing summer drink particularly when well iced, but was thought to be particularly efficacious as a means of improving the complexion.

BARK'S LONG VOYAGE.

Boston Transcript: After what is believed to be the longest voyage with cargo ever made by a sailing ship, the British steam bark, Johanna arrived in the lower harbor one morning recently. It is nearly seven months since she sailed from Java. Since then she has been to St. Helena, Falmout, England and Delaware Breakwater. Her 17,000 miles of sailing and knocking from port to port was due to the advance in the price of sugar.

Capt. Doey said the Johanna loaded at Cheribon and Tagal, leaving the former port Nov. 25. She took on board 8,859 big baskets of sugar, each weighing 700 pounds. By the time Falmouth was reached, April 22, the advance price of sugar in this country caused the bark to be ordered to Delaware Breakwater, whence she was sent to this port to discharge her cargo.

ORDER TO EXAMINE FINAL ACCOUNT.—
In Probate Court.
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis.—ss.
In the matter of the estate of Esther T. Wadhams, Decedent.
THE PETITION OF Samuel F. Wadhams, as representative of the above named decedent, together with his final account of the administration of said estate, having been filed in this Court, representing, among other things, that he has fully administered said estate, and praying that said final account of said administration be examined, adjusted and allowed by the Court, and that the Court make and enter its final decree of distribution of the residue of the estate of said decedent to the persons entitled thereto, and for the discharge of the representative and the sureties on his bond.

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard, and said final account examined, adjusted and allowed by the Court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in the City of Duluth in said County, on Monday, the 31st day of August, 1908, at ten o'clock A. M., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald, according to law.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., Aug. 4, 1908.
By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF, Judge of Probate.

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION —OF— CEDAR LAKE LAND COMPANY.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That we, whose names are hereunto subscribed, have agreed to and do hereby associate ourselves together under the constitution and general laws of the State of Minnesota, and more particularly under the provisions of Chapter 58 of the Revised Laws of said State for the year 1905, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, as a corporation, under the name and for the purposes hereinafter set forth, and to that end do hereby adopt the following Articles of Incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be Cedar Lake Land Company and the general nature of its business shall be buying, selling, and dealing in mineral and other lands and for the purpose of mining, and working of ores and minerals, said business to be carried on in the State of Minnesota and elsewhere, but the principal place of transacting the business of said corporation shall be in the City of Duluth, County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, with such other offices and places of business, either within or without the State of Minnesota as may from time to time be determined by the management of such corporation.

ARTICLE II.

The period of its duration shall be thirty (30) years.

ARTICLE III.

The names and places of residence of the incorporators are as follows:

Wm. E. Culkin, residing at Duluth, Minnesota;
P. H. Seymour, residing at Duluth, Minnesota;
Mabel Sorenson, residing at Duluth, Minnesota; and Victor H. Gran, residing at Duluth, Minnesota.

ARTICLE IV.

The government of this corporation and the conduct and management of its affairs are hereby vested in a board of four directors, and except as herein provided shall be elected by the stockholders at their annual meeting, which shall be held on the first Tuesday of January of each year, and who shall thereafter elect the following officers: President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer. Any two of said offices may be held by the same person with the exception of the offices of President and Vice President.

The first meeting of the corporation shall be held on August 29th, 1908, without notice, and the first annual meeting shall be held on the first Tuesday of January, 1909, but until such time and until the directors thereat shall have qualified, the following persons shall be and constitute the board of directors of this corporation: Wm. E. Culkin, P. H. Seymour, Mabel Sorenson and Victor H. Gran. The officers shall be elected at the first meeting above provided for, to hold until the succeeding annual meeting.

The officers and directors of this corporation, except those elected at the first meeting shall hold office for one year, or until their successors are elected and qualified, and in case any vacancy occurs in any of the offices or membership of the board of directors of this corporation, either before or after the first annual meeting, the same shall be filled by the board of directors until the next annual meeting and until such vacancy shall be filled by election held in accordance with these articles and such by-laws as may be adopted providing for elections.

The board of directors of this corporation may adopt, and is hereby authorized to adopt such by-laws, rules and regulations for the corporation and the management of its business not inconsistent with these articles, or with the constitution and laws of the State of Minnesota, as may be deemed needful for the government of officers and the conduct of the affairs of the corporation, and may create such other offices in addition to those herein provided as may from time to time be deemed necessary, and may fill such offices as it may so create, and may abolish and discontinue such offices at will.

The board of directors shall also have power, when in its judgment cause exists, to remove any such officers of this corporation from their positions and declare the offices vacant.

ARTICLE V.

The amount of capital stock of this corporation shall be Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000) and the same shall be divided into one hundred shares of one hundred dollars each, and shall be sold either for cash or for property and things of value deemed by the board of directors to be equivalent thereto, such determination by the board of directors to be final and binding upon the parties in interest.

The stock of this corporation shall be paid for as called for by the board of directors, and no stock which has not been subscribed for and upon which the payments have not been made as required by the board of directors, shall be entitled to vote or representation in any of the proceedings of this corporation.

ARTICLE VI.

The highest amount of indebtedness to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of Ten Thousand dollars ($10,000).

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals this 13th day of August, A. D. 1908.

SEASON FOR CHICKENS

Prairie Fowl May be Shot in Two Weeks.

Hunters Already Taking Out Licenses—Prospects Bright.

With the season for turtle dove, snipe, prairie chicken, pinnated, white breasted, or, sharp-tailed grouse, woodcock, plover, wild duck, geese, and all other aquatic fowl barely two weeks away, Duluth sportsmen are beginning to sit up and take notice. The hunting licenses are now ready at the courthouse and three were issued yesterday afternoon, James L. Travers, J. W. Nelson and W. J. Webb being the first of the local hunters to take out licenses. For the hunter shooting only small game in his own county a license is unnecessary, but for one who intends to shoot in other counties a license must be secured, the fee being $1.00.

While the first licenses were issued yesterday, inquiries from sportsmen have been coming in for some time. One man asked to get his license about the middle of July and questions are numerous.

The shooting around Duluth last year was about as poor as it is possible for it to be, and the killing throughout the state was very light. Most of the hunters are looking for a considerable improvement this season, though the shooting around Duluth is likely to be rather slim. The western part of the state and the Dakotas, however, are said to be teeming with game, and a much better season than last year is looked for in this district.

The season for quail, partridge, ruffed grouse, and pheasant does not open until the first of October, a month later than the chicken season, and doubtless many Duluth hunters will wait until that time for going out. October is an open month for both chicken and partridge. The partridge season lasts a month longer, through November, while the game laws shut down on the killing of chickens on Oct. 31. The season for brook trout is almost at a close, Aug. 31 being the last day on which the fish may be caught.

It is expected that there will be a general exodus for the chicken fields on Sept. 1. A considerable number of Duluthians have been postponing their vacation through the hot weather so as to take their time off during the open season, and the Zenith City will be well represented in the Western Minnesota and Dakota fields this fall. The game commission has prepared a very clear and concise summary of the game laws, which may be had upon application at the county auditor's office at the courthouse.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Lid is Tilted.

The Civic league has been watching closely the saloons of Superior, and is positive that the lid is not being kept on as tight as it should be, especially on Sundays. The members deny that the number of arrests that are made each Sunday for intoxication come from liquor that is sold outside the city limits, as has been claimed.

Buried in Washington.

The body of Col. H. C. Van Luven, who for sixteen years was a resident of Superior, and who died Saturday at Washington, will be buried in the Soldiers' cemetery at the national capital.

Hunting Season.

Hunting season in Wisconsin for partridge, plover, snipe, woodcocks, ducks, geese, quail, rice hens, rabbits and squirrels opens Sept. 1. Already the Douglas county nimrods are preparing for the opening of the season. Deer season does not open until Nov. 11 and continues only twenty days. At the county clerk's office hunting licenses can be obtained by residents in the state for the usual $1. For outsiders the charge is $25.

Will Divide Town.

It is proposed to divide the town of Amnicon into two equal parts, the dividing line running almost east and west. The petition, which is signed by Robert Howard, M. L. Hansen and H. Fliteau, asks that one part be called Amnicon and the other Midland. Proceedings to this effect were brought in the circuit court yesterday.

Opens Campaign.

Ex-Mayor C. S. Starkweather opened his campaign in the interests of Congressman John J. Jenkins yesterday. He drove about the city, stopping at prominent street corners and making speeches to good-sized crowds.

Men Past Sixty in Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old." Sold by all druggists.

ORGANIZED BY DULUTHIAN.

Eau Claire, Wis., Aug. 18.—A local branch of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers has been organized here by Frank Fisher of Duluth, international organizer. Thirty members joined, and more are expected. A branch was organized here two years ago, but lapsed on account of lack of interest.

NORTH BUTTE MINING COMPANY.
DIVIDEND NO. 11.

A quarterly dividend of $400,000.00, being $1.00 per share, on the outstanding stock of the company has been declared out of the surplus earnings, payable on September 26th, 1908, to the stockholders of record at the close of business on Sept. 12th, 1908.

The transfer books will be closed from Sept. 14th, 1908, to Sept. 26th, 1908, both inclusive.

JOHNSON IS NOMINATED AGAIN FOR GOVERNOR BY THE MINNESOTA DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

RIOTING IS CONSIDERED ENDED AT SPRINGFIELD; TROOPS ORDERED HOME

About 1,500 Men Will be Held for Day or Two Longer.

Work of Grand Jury Has Salutary Effect on Lawless.

Merchants Anticipate an Early Resumption of Normal Business.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 19.—Coincident with the departure for their homes today of the First and Fourth infantry regiments, which have been on riot duty here, it was announced that the Third and Fifth infantry regiments will depart tomorrow. This will reduce the military force here to about 1,500 men, an ample number to handle the situation which has shown a much less serious aspect since the meeting of the special grand jury yesterday.

The determination to follow up today's departures with two more on the following day was reached at a conference of Governor Deneen, Maj. Gen. Young and Adjt. Gen. Scott last night, but it was not announced until this morning.

The riots are now regarded as history, and business men anticipate an early resumption of the normal amount of business. The reduction of the force will save the state about $20,000 a day, it is stated. The national guardsmen have worked hard and effective since their arrival, and their personal conduct, according to officers and citizens alik, has been exemplary.

Decrease in Mob Spirit.

The effect of the news that the troops had begun to depart was anxiously watched by the state and city authorities. Since the determination of Governor Deneen to establish order at all costs was evidenced by the summoning of 4,200 soldiers to the city, there has been notable decrease in the mob spirit here. At the same time threats as to what would happen when the troops left have been numerous and widespread, and there is a well defined fear that the lawless individuals who have not yet been apprehended may endeavor to renew the disturbance later this week.

A counteracting effect is looked for from the special grand jury, which yesterday indicted George Richardson for the alleged assault upon Mrs. Mabel Hallam and which today began to consider the evidence against rioters. The

MOTIVE FOR THE MURDER

Of William Annis May Have Been a Divorce Suit.

Mrs. Hains Filed Counter Charges Against Husband, Aug. 10.

Boston, Aug. 19.—A possible motive for the killing of William E. Annis, at the Bayside Yacht club, last Saturday, by Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., may be found in the fact that Mrs. Hains had filed a suit against her husband, the papers being served upon Capt. Hains in New York on Aug. 10. The fact that a suit had been filed became generally known today. In her suit, Mrs. Hains made sensational charges against her husband's character, and at the same time she demanded in her petition that the case itself in action for divorce, be given a public hearing.

The report of the filing of the suit against Capt. Hains by his wife is confirmed by Charles H. Libbey, father of Mrs. Hains. It is believed by Mr. Libbey and daughter that Capt. Hains and his brother, T. Jenkins Hains, concluded that Mr. Annis was behind the bringing of the accusations, and that it was Annis who suggested to Mrs. Hains that the only way she could clear herself of the charges preferred by Capt. Hains, in his divorce action, was by demanding that the case be tried in open court.

In speaking of the case, Mr. Libbey said that his daughter had been subjected to the greatest cruelty by Capt. Hains, and that she returned to her father's home on June 2, a few days after she had been cruelly beaten and ill-treated by her husband, in the presence of his brother, Thorton. According to Mr. Libbey, Capt. Hains attacked his wife at Port Hamilton, last May, and as a result of the beating he is alleged to have given her, medical aid had to be called in; her body having been covered with cuts and bruises.

BELIEVED EVERY MINER PERISHED

Little Hope Held Out for Seventy Men Entombed in Mine.

Wigan, Eng., Aug. 19.—It is now believed that not a single man of the seventy miners who were entombed by an explosion which occurred yesterday in the Maypole coal mine here survived the disaster. The four men reported rescued yesterday were engaged in an adjoining building. The ventilating fan, which was put out of order by the explosion, was repaired this morning, and the mine having been cleared of gases, the rescue party again descended. The sight which met their eyes was horrifying. Not far from the bottom of the shaft eighteen bodies were found all frightfully mutilated, legs and arms had been blown off and heads battered almost beyond recognition.

The management of the mine declares that between sixty and seventy men were underground at the time of the explosion and that there is no hope that any one will be brought out alive. The women and children, however, who remained at the pit head all night, refused to leave until the bodies of their dead are brought to the surface. Nothing else will convince them of the hopelessness of waiting.

ASSISTANT P. M. GENERAL TALKS

Tells Editors Attitude of Postoffice Department Towards Editors.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hon. A. L. Lawshe, third assistant postmaster general, was the principal speaker at this morning's session of the National Editorial association. His subject was, "The Attitude of the Postoffice Department Toward Newspapers and Second-class Mail Matter."

Mr. Lawshe entered into a discussion of the workings of the postoffice department, inviting the attention of the delegates to the various rates of postage fixed by congress and an examination of some of the statistics recently compiled. He outlined the laws governing the department, especially those relating to second-class matter, for, he stated, the daily newspapers furnish a little over 40 per cent of the second-class mail and the weekly and other papers furnish a little over 15 per cent. Mr. Lawshe said that the present rate on second-class matter is justified, but he is not in favor of an increase in the rate.

It has been stated that the express companies carry newspapers cheaper than does the postoffice department. This Mr. Lawshe denied, for, he stated, the express companies do not handle it in the same way that the postoffice department does.

Demand for Penny Postage.

Mr. Lawshe said there is a great demand for penny postage, and with the second-class mailing privilege brought back to its original basis, as intended by congress, and with the elimination of a few other costly abuses, he predicted that the publishers of the United States may continue to enjoy the present second-class rates of postage, and that the business men of the country may secure in due season the cent an ounce rate.

Mr. Lawshe stated that the enforced return of undelivered copies at the third-class rate, at the expense of the offending publisher, is a reform advocated by many widewake publishers, and one which he has recommended.

In concluding, Mr. Lawshe said:

"During the past ten years the postoffice department has undertaken to wipe out the abuses which have grown up. Until recently its efforts met with honest but misguided objection from legitimate newspaper men, who felt that their rights were being trampled upon. Somehow they always came to the rescue of the fakers. Now the situation is changed. It is now evident that the legitimate publishers are not going to persist in a course of opposition and folly until they 'kill the goose that lays the golden eggs.' This is not a question of politics; it is a question of business."

DUTCH CONSIDER AFFAIR WITH VENEZUELA AS ONE AFFECTING THEIR HONOR

Not Susceptible of Solution by Means of Arbitration.

The Netherlands' Cabinet Considers Matter Until After Midnight.

Minister Goes to Castle to Acquaint Queen With the Conditions.

The Hague, Aug. 19.—After a nine-hour session, during which the dispute between the Netherlands and Venezuela was canvassed exhaustively in all its phases, the cabinet dispersed shortly after midnight, and Minister of Foreign Affairs Van Swinderen proceeded to the royal chateau at Het Loo to acquaint Queen Wilhelmina with the result of the council.

The terms of the Netherlands answer to the letter of President Castro of Venezuela were fully discussed, and it is understood that the actual text as well as broad lines of action drawn up to meet any possible eventualities, were agreed upon.

In diplomatic circles here the view is entertained that the present difficulty between Holland and Venezuela is not of a nature to be settled by arbitration, and in explanation it is pointed out that the dispute is not of a private commercial character like the difficulties that have arisen between Venezuela and Great Britain, Germany and America. In these cases the governments in question sought satisfaction for claims, but Holland has no claim against Venezuela. It is maintained here that the present question is rather one of sovereignty and national honor, matters which are not susceptible of solution by arbitration.

RUN DOWN BY TRAIN

Brewer Gluek and Wife of Minneapolis Meet Awful Death.

Struck by Engine While Riding in an Automobile.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Gluek, a wealthy Minneapolis brewer, and his wife were instantly killed early today at Cottagewood, Lake Minnetonka, in a collision between their automobile and a train on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railway. Mr. Gluek and his party were enroute to the city and at the railroad crossing, near Cottagewood their automobile was caught on the track by the train and hurled against a small station at one side. Mr. Gluek was instantly killed and Mrs. Gluek was pinned down under the debris which speedily took fire from the ignited gasoline from the automobile. She was dead when taken out. Two other members of the party, a mother and child, suffered injuries. Mr. Gluek was secretary and treasurer of the brewing company bearing his name and was an old resident of Minneapolis.

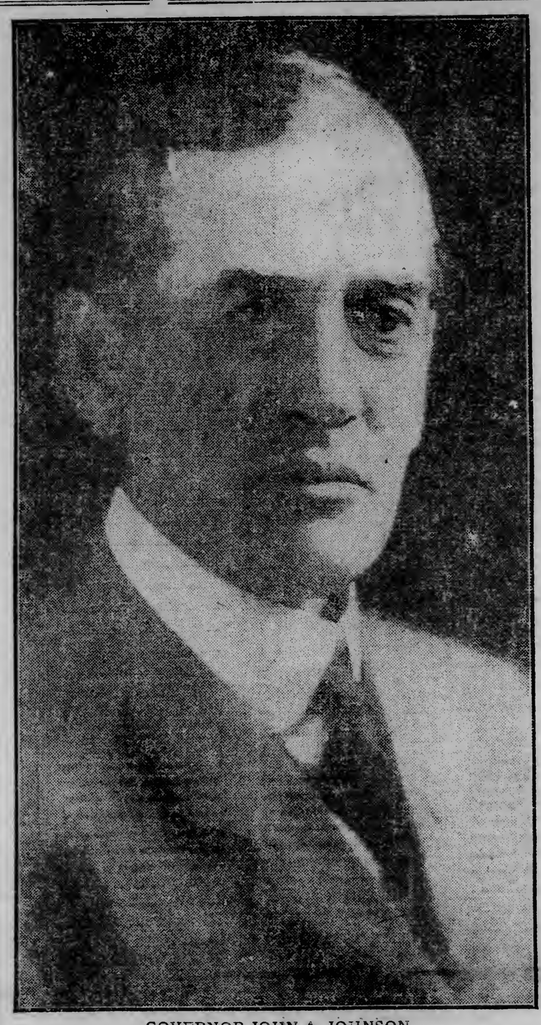
The other occupants of the Gluek automobile were Mrs. Edward Lebalre, of New York city, sister of Mrs. Gluek, and her 2-year-old daughter. Both received serious injuries which may prove fatal.

STEEL MEN ARE VISITING IN THE COPPER COUNTRY.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several men connected with the United States Steel corporation or subsidiary companies are here inspecting the copper mines and other interests and taking a sort of a vacation. The party is being shown around by H. J. Wessenger of Duluth, chief engineer of the Oliver Mining company. Others in the party who are domiciled at the Douglass house here are: John Reis and M. A. Neeland, New York; E. E. Slick, Pittsburg; James L. Bernard, Beaver, Pa.; L. Holmes, Chicago; H. J. Daniels, Worcester, Mass.

HOUGHTON GOLF PLAYERS ARE COMING TO DULUTH.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Portage Lake golf club will send a team to Duluth this week to play a series of match games with the strong aggregation representing the club of that city. Six men will be chosen who on Thursday evening will leave for the Zenith City and on Friday and Saturday will meet their adversaries on the latter's links.



GOVERNOR JOHN A. JOHNSON.

WOMAN SHOOTS HER DIVORCED HUSBAND.

Vermillion, S. D., Aug. 19.—In a quarrel last eveing at her home near Alsen, Mrs. Christine Clark shot and fatally injured Charles A. Clark, her divorced husband. Clark died at 8 a. m. today from a bullet wound in the abdomen. Mrs. Clark was arrested today, but has nothing to say regarding her act and does not seem to realize her position.

ENTHUSIASM RUNS HIGH

In Favor of Governor Again Heading the State Ticket.

Demonstration for Johnson Lasted One Hour and Five Minutes.

Johnson Placed in Nomination by Mayor Lawler of St. Paul.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the roll call for the nomination of governor, Aitkin yielded to Ramsey county and Mayor Daniel W. Lawler of St. Paul nominated John A. Johnson for governor. Great applause greeted the mention of Johnson's name.

The demonstration for Johnson, which followed Lawler's speech, has now lasted forty minutes. His nomination by the convention is certain.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald)—Johnson was nominated for governor by acclamation after a demonstation lasting one hour and five minutes.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The work of organization of the Democratic state convention was completed at the session this morning. After the appointment of the members of the committees on permanent organization, credentials and resolutions, Frank A. Day, chairman of the state central committee, suggested that a committee, consisting of a member of each judicial district, be appointed to caucus for a state ticket. A motion to this effect was made and carried, the following members being placed on the committee: First district, Senator Schaller; Second, R. T. O'Connor; Third, John Costello; Fourth, S. A. Stockwell; Fifth, E. F. Kelly; Sixth, C. O. Donley; Seventh, J. J. Daly; Eighth, D. H. Evans; Ninth, O. Johnson; Tenth, H. G. Day; Eleventh, John Dwan; Twelfth, Charles H. Dart; Thirteenth, S. B. Nelson; Fourteenth, J. E. Bouvette; Fifteenth, A. G. Rutledge; Sixteenth, O. J. Johnson; Seventeenth, Frank A. Day; Eighteenth, N. P. Ohalr; Nineteenth, Julius Dosey.

Johnson Ovation.

State Chairman Frank A. Day opened the convention this morning by stating that there was plenty of material in the Democratic party, and that the wishes of Governor Johnson in the matter of keeping his name from third term idea should be respected.

Mr. Day was interrupted by cries of "Johnson," and the first indication of a stampede for the nomination of the governor was given. The Johnson ovation lasted fully five minutes. Senator Ray D. Farrington of Ortonville was elected temporary chairman of the convention, upon the conclusion of Mr. Day's speech, Mr. Farrington made a speech, in which he referred to Jacobson as the nominee of the special interests, and to John A. Johnson as the champion of the people, the idol of every man in the convention, and a Democrat of national prominence. Another wave of Johnson sentiment greeted the conclusion of Mr. Farrington's remarks.

Frank S. Batley of Ramsey county and Andrew Nelson of Mower county were chosen as assistant secretaries.

Committees Meeting.

The caucus of the state committee, which will name candidates for the state offices, outside the office of governor, is being held this afternoon.

Caucuses of the committee on resolutions, the committee on credentials and the committee on permanent organization are also being held.

The convention will be called to order after the caucuses of these committees are finished, and the work of nominations for the state offices will be begun. On every hand is heard the name of Johnson. It is the unanimous sentiment that he will be the nominee of the party. The Johnson sentiment is so universal that the governor will be unable to resist the call of the party. It is expected that his nomination will occur shortly after the re-

VESSEL IS BLOWN UP

Dynamite Exploded Under the Destroyer in the Detroit River.

Thirteen Men Seriously Hurt, Six of Them Probably Fatally.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 19.—Thirteen men were seriously injured, six of them probably fatally, today in the lower Detroit river, when a charge of dynamite exploded under the drill vessel "Destroyer" which has been working on the new Livingstone channel. The day shift started to clean out a hole over which the drill vessel lay, preparatory to a blast, when a charge of dynamite left in the hole by the night shift exploded without warning. All the injured men belong at Amherstburg, except Elmer Carpenter and Fireman John Morey, who live in Detroit.

When the tug Columbia reached the scene the "Destroyer" was found sadly wrecked with her boilers standing on end and the decks strewn with maimed and bleeding workmen. The injured were taken on board the tug and hurried to Amherstburg for medical attention.

Another among the injured is Paul Truesdale, a United States government inspector from Madison, Wis. He was painfully bruised and shaken up. Austin and Morenci, are the most seriously injured. Both sustained internal injuries and broken legs. The dredge "Destroyer," while badly damaged, is not in a sinking condition. Her drills are broken and twisted beyond further use.

MARQUETTE HAS REPEALED MUCH DISCUSSED ORDINANCE.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Marquette's saloon ordinance, which had been a bone of contention ever since enacted a few months ago, and which had been taken into circuit court and there pronounced valid, has now been repealed by the common council. This action has come as a big surprise, and was accomplished only because two former advocates of the measure unexpectedly went over to its opponents. The ordinance imposed a city tax of $250 on the saloons over and above the license fee of $500 provided for by state statute, and it has been strenuously opposed by the liquor interests.

Women Are Bearing Long Wait Better Than Men.

"No scraps here."

The would-be settlers waiting in the halls of the federal building for the opening of the Fond du Lac reservation on Sept. 15 are determined not to fight. This morning two of the men who had slept on the floor all night, and who were not in the best of humor got to discussing the political chances of Bryan and Taft. They finally got angry, and told each other in no uncertain terms to go to thunder.

One of the men went out to lunch, and brought back with him a huge poster, on which is almost the life size picture of a policeman of average dimensions, advertising a certain brand of tobacco, and in large letters across the bottom it says "No scraps here."

The long wait is beginning to tell on most of the waiters, especially the men, who grow sulky, and tire of talking. The women, however, remain smiling and bright, and refuse to think about how much longer it is until Sept. 15.

NEWS OF DEATH OF WASHINGTON

Duluthian Has Old Newspaper Telling of General's Death.

What is probably the oldest newspaper in Minnesota, if not in the country, is now in the possession of Capt. M. McLean of 4324 Gilliatt street, Lakeside. He came into possession of it through a friend in New York.

The paper is a copy of the Ulster County Gazette of Kingston, N. Y., and bears the date of Jan. 4, 1800. It is valuable, not only for its age, but because it was the first issue of the paper after the news of the death of Gen. Washington reached Kingston. The paper contains a cut of Washington, which is of remarkable excellence, considering the period when it was done, and is edged with black in mourning for the death of "The Father of His Country." A poem by "A Young Lady" on Washington is a feature of the front page. As Washington died Dec. 14, 1799, more than twenty days previous, the paper furnishes an interesting comparison of ancient and modern newspaper enterprise.

The paper is yellowed with age, but is still in a good state of preservation and is perfectly legible throughout.

JOHN HINSEY HAS BEEN REINSTATED

Chicago, Aug. 19.—John A. Hinsey, "the Capt. Dreyfus of the Knights of Pythias," after suffering for seven years' expulsion from his lodge and a charge of embezzling $500,000, has been exonerated and reinstated.

Hinsey, who is head of the claim department of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, and one time a political power in Milwaukee, was restored at the recent biennial convention of the Pythians in Boston. The official action of the order was announced here last night. The charges against Mr. Hinsey were made by Ogden Fethers of Janesville, Wis., when Fethers was supreme chancellor. Hinsey was indicted and charges preferred against him in his lodge. He fought the indictments and they were quashed and all the subsequent civil suits which were started he either won or they were dismissed. The end came at last in the Boston convention and on a final roll call, which resulted 88 to 80 in Hinsey's favor.

WORKMAN ON DOCKS HURT

Falls While Jumping From Steamer to the Wharf.

A man who gave his name as John Smith, a laborer, who was helping to unload the steamer Northern Queen yesterday afternoon, lies at St. Mary's hospital seriously hurt as a result of a fall sustained while trying to jump from the boat to the dock. He fell in between the boat and the dock, striking his head in some manner.

He is still out of his head, and grave fears for his recovery are felt by the attending doctors.

He was unknown at the docks.

ROMANCE IN AN AUTO

Duluth Man Mistaken for Driver of "For Hire" Car.

Later Lunches With "Papa" When the Drive is Over.

There have been all kinds of automobile stories, romances, exciting chases, accidents, and things of that sort, but it remains for a Duluth man to have a real automobile experience.

This man drives his own car, and drew up before the Spalding hotel this morning with the intention of getting shaved. He didn't notice that he had landed among other automobiles that were waiting to be hired for the boulevard drive. He was in the act of stepping down on the sidewalk when he heard a sweet feminine voice say: "Here, papa, this one looks the best." Before he could get away, "papa" was asking if the machine were safe; how long it would take to go around the boulevard, and what it would cost.

"Actually, they were in my car before I had a chance to say a word," said the owner. "I didn't know what to say, so I pretended to monkey with the engine a little to gain time in which to get up my courage to say, 'this car is not for hire, sir.'

"Then the humor of the situation dawned on me, and I thought of all the funny plays I had seen, where some one wasn't what they are supposed to be, and I made up my mind to be game.

"I took the whole party around the hill, answered all questions, spoke only when spoken to, furnished 'papa' with matches, and, as near as I could guess, played the part to perfection.

"About the last mile of the drive I began to get fresh and remark how much I had enjoyed the ride, and kept up a continued conversation until the members of the party began to look at one another in wondement.

"Arrived at the Spalding, I put them wise in as gentle a manner as possible before the old gentleman could offer me money. I told them all about it; we all laughed, and I lunched at his expense this noon."

Lodge Is a Live One.
Grand Chancellor De Forrest Ward and Grand Vice Chancellor McAllister of the Knights of Pythias of Minnesota paid an official visit to North Star lodge, No. 35, of this city last evening. The grand lodge officers witnessed an exemplification of the third rank work by North Star's famous degree team and spoke in very complimentary terms of it. North Star lodge was chartered as one of the "live ones" of the state. The grand lodge officers left on a late train last night for Minneapolis.

Quarantine Lifted.
Quarantine in twelve smallpox cases was lifted by the health department today. The number of both smallpox and diphtheria cases in Duluth is being gradually reduced.

Arrested for Shoe Theft.
Patrick Cochren, wanted in Superior for the theft of three pairs of shoes from M. Shapiro, 311 Tower avenue, was arrested by the Duluth police today. He will be taken back to the Wisconsin city for trial. He is said to have taken the footwear from Shapiro's store when the proprietor was not looking.

Melgren Funeral.
The funeral of John Melgren, who was drowned while bathing at Hemlock on Aug. 16, will take place from Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms, Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Interment will be at London road cemetery.

E. A. Silberstein Back.
E. A. Silberstein of the Silberstein & Bondy Co., returned on the North West, after a month's absence in the Eastern markets. He says one has only to go a short distance from Duluth to wish themselves back, as the weather away from here is intolerable. Mr. Silberstein reports business as improving in the East, and that everything points toward a general revival throughout the country.

Brother as Executor.
Jacob Carlson, brother of Nels Carlson, the farmer who shot himself on the Seville road, beyond Pike Lake, yesterday afternoon, this morning made application to the judge of probate to be appointed executor for the estate, in order to enable him to pay funeral expenses, etc. Carlson leaves about $400 in property.

Bankruptcy Papers.
Martin Jasper and Elias P. Dahl, doing business under the firm name of Jasper & Dahl, in the village of Chisholm, Minn., this morning filed involuntary bankruptcy papers with W. H. Pressnell, clerk of the federal court. A number of Duluth and Minneapolis firms are named as the creditors.

PERSONAL

Miss Lawton, who holds a responsible position in the Cincinnati store of J. M. Gidding & Co., is in the city. She came in on the North West last evening and will spend a few days here before going South.

PRICES FALL AT THE CLOSE

Calumet & Arizona Quarterly Dividend is a Disappointment.

The copper market opened strong this morning and held its strength during the early hours of the session, but toward the close, selling for profit-taking overloaded the market and prices fell away again, most of the good issues going below their level of yesterday. A quarterly dividend of $1 was declared on Calumet & Arizona The amount was the same as the last dividend, but it was not as large as expected, and the disappointment over the failure to increase sent the stock down from $123 to $119.62½ in a few minutes. The weakness in some of the other stocks was not so pronounced, but lower prices prevailed all along the list at the close.

North Butte opened at $84.37½, went to $85, dropped back to $84 and closed at $84 bid and $84.25 asked. Amalgamated opened at $78.37½, dropped back to $78, advanced again to $78.62½ and fell away at the close to $77.37½ bid and $77.50 asked. Anaconda opened at $47.25, went to $47.62½ and fell back to $46.75 at the close. Butte Coalition opened at $27.62½, dropped back to $27.50, advanced to $27.87½, fell off again to $27.25 and closed at $27 bid and $27.50 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $122, went up to $123.50, fell off to $122 and then to $119.62½, closing at $120 bid and $121 asked.

The curb market was strong today, with considerable activity in some of the issues. Denn-Arizona was bid up quite freely, while a good deal of Greene-Cananea came out at the improved prices. Butte & Superior had a small-sized boom, going to $1.37½, its highest figure for a good many months.

Greene-Cananea sold at $11.62½ and $11.75, closing at $11.75 bid and $11.87½ asked. Black Mountain sold at $3.62½, Superior & Pittsburg at $13.62½, Butte & Superior at $1.06, $1.12½, $1.25 and $1.37½, Calumet & Sonora at $10, Denn at $3.50, $3.62½, $3.87½ and $4, and Utah at $1.37½. Butte-Balaklava was inactive at $7 bid and $7.25 asked, Carman at $3.25 bid and $3.50 asked, Copper Queen at $1.25 bid and $1.37½ asked, Red Warrior at $3 bid and $3.25 asked and Superior & Boston at $6 bid and $6.25 asked.

THINK TROUBLE WILL FOLLOW

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 19.—News of the departure of the troops was carried into the so-called badlands, and the respectable negro settlements, by an Associated Press correspondent. Some were excited by the tidings, some appeared hopless and weary of the struggle. Some in tired voices said they would wait and see what happened, and others declared their intention of leaving the city. With scarcely an exception they expressed the opinion that trouble would follow the withdrawal of the National guardsmen.

At Edwards and Tenth streets were found two colored young men married to white women. They had received a letter, signed "Mob," threateing to burn down their cottages.

"That means we'll have to take to the fields again," said one of them, "unless there is enough men left to protect everybody."

On Twelfth street the reporter met an aged colored man whose white head was protected by an ancient soldier's cap. He was trundling a small trunk on a wheelbarrow.

"Where are you going, uncle?" he was asked.

"I dunno, sah, but I'so goin' away frum here. The soldiers is goin', and I ain't goin' to wait fo' no mob, not much."

"I'm a wash lady and a widow with two children," said a neat looking colored woman occupying a small, partly demolished cottage on Mason street.

"These soldiers shouldn't go yet—not yet. I don't know what will become of my two children if the mob starts rioting again. It's hard on them sleeping in cornfields. These bad white folks don't think nothing of killing a colored person when they get mad."

Thus it was throughout the district. Even though a good-sized guard is still left, they feel that any loosening of the military means more trouble.

Elizabeth Mary McLean Dies.

EARLY DAY CAMPAIGNS

Rancors of Politics in Washington's Time Hardly Equalled.

American Consul General at Winnipeg Talks of the Dominion.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—When you hear, as you are likely to in the present campaign, that these are days of decadence in politics, you may answer that as a matter of unpartisan, unbiased record, the politics of this time are as admirable for many things as those of the year of the election of Washington. In truth, they have in various particulars improved, and you may be surprised to know that all, or almost all, of the ill-humor, the fears, the confusions, the doubts, and much of the same sort of cheap money craze made the period preceding Washington's election one of excitement and apprehension. Improvement is marked in the absence now of scurrility and scandal, and a deeper trust in the sense the people will show in the selection of a president.

It is a fact of which, tactfully enough, the histories make little, that the rancors of Washington's campaign have scarcely been equalled since, except possibly in the campaigns of Blaine and the first one of Grover Cleveland. To us who see him in the proper perspective, Washington is an impeccable and irreproachable character; but to his political opponents he stood for theories and intentions which to them were abhorrent. Gossip spake bad things of his morals, and party spirit went so far as to asperse the motives which guided him in the Revolution. All this is down in the old-fashioned type of these days, and may be found in the rare volumes of Americana, which are owned by the Lenox library.

There were no nominating conventions in those days. The method for naming party choice for president is only sixty-five years old. Many men remember how it began in the year of the anti-Masonic movement, when that ephemeral party set the copy. There were problems then, as now, to engage the country—the tariff, currency, relations with other governments, and Washington and his adherents did not represent the the sole existing opinion regarding them.

Dr. J. E. Jones, known to old newspaper men hereabouts as "Nimpo" Jones, one time night doctor of the postoffice department and private secretary to ex-Senator Tom Kearns of Utah, and now American consul general at Winnipeg, Canada, has been in Washington for a few days. Jones is debonnair in manner, enthusiastic in speech, and a friend, to hear him tell it, of Roosevelt, Jim Hill, Cardinal Gibbons and the premier of Canada.

Speaking of the situation in the Dominion, Mr. Jones said:

"Annexation is dead. Canada has thrown off the swaddling clothes of a province and is now assuming the lordly garb and strut of an empire. In five years the population in the Northwest has doubled, and it will repeat the trick in the next five years.

"The wheat crop this year will approximate 150,000,000 bushels, and fruit is being largely raised to offset the California product. The recent forest fires, however, have devastated a richly populated section in the fruit district, and there have been large losses through them.

"There is a great demand in the Northwest territory for farming lands, mostly by our own farmers of the Middle West, who are being gladly welcomed in preference to the immigrants from the mother country. Great inducements are held out to them to come and they are rapidly taking advantage of the opportunity.

"No," said the consul general, "I shall not take out naturalization papers and settle down there as a prosperous former. The States are good enough for me; but even our own delightful country, and our innate patriotism, will not permit an observant man to deny or overlook the wonderful resources and prosperity of the great Far Western country, where I have been located for some time."

The plaza in front of the magnificent new union station in Washington is to be treated in a very original and artistic way, according to the plans which have been been received by the commissioners from Burnham, the Chicago architect, who designed the station. To those who have seen this magnificent edifice, and have trudged with suit case in hand from the place where a kindly railroad puts you off under an umbrella shed to the outermost point of the station, whose immensity appals you, and then to have to walk from the front door of the edifice to a street car line a half block distant, the decoration of the plaza will irresistably appeal. But to those who have never seen the union station, but who hope to in the next year, plans already being laid for inauguration, it can, with truth, be said that the union station, in the capital of the nation, is pretty nearly the biggest thing out of doors. And the plaza, which is to be ornamented, is a stretch of ground covering four city blocks.

In the center of the plaza, according to the Burnham design, will stand a memorial statue of Columbus, fronting the building, while in the distance will be a large flag pole. On each side of the Columbus memorial, and slightly to the rear, will be two artistic fountains. At close intervals along the roadway will be placed tall bronze columns and lamp standards. Details of the Columbus memorial have not been worked out, but rough sketches have been prepared. The front will show a prow of a caravel, with Columbus standing at the prow. Thus it is supposed Columbus stood while his mutinous crew were urging that he turn back, when, lo and behold, he sighted green boughs and other indications of land floating upon the sea. To these evidences of nearby land he called the attention of his lieutenants and the crew, and the result was that the mutiny was quelled and land reached several days thereafter. The boat and water effect will be in stone, and the figure of Columbus in bronze.

Nelson Files.

David Nelson of the West end filed this afternoon for the office of county commissioner. He is the first Democrat to file.

Men for Road Work.

Judging from the size of the order for men to do road building work, received by the National Employment agency from Deer River, considerable work is being done on the county roads of Itasca county.

Forty men are wanted at Deer River as soon as possible to build county roads. The order states that it is a big job and will last at least two months. The pay offered is $2 per day and 20 cents a yard for ditch digging.

SHORTHAND REPORTERS HEAR ANNUAL REPORTS.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 19.—The meeting of the National Shorthand Reporters' association today was opened with the reading of the annual report of the committee on legislation prepared by Col. Henry C. Deming, chairman, of Harrisburg, Pa. and Charles F. Roberts, secretary of New Haven, Conn. After discussion, a communication from Edward V. Muurphy of Washington, D. C. was read. Other papers on the program are "Our Stranger Friend, the Short-hand Reporter," by Col. Deming, and Association Observations," by Kendrick C. Hill of Trenton, N. J.

CUP COMPETITORS GET AWAY AGAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—The Lipton Cup competitors got away today on what promised to be the final race of a series scheduled for yesterday, but which was declared "no race" by reason of the contestants failing to cover the course in the allotted time. The course today was the same as that of the previous mis-trial, a quadrangle, three miles to the leg, with a time limit of three hours. The Cleveland, entered by the Cleveland Yacht club, and the Spray of the Chicago Yacht club, were the favorites before the start.

HARTFORD, WIS., MAN SHOT BY EMPLOYE.

Milwaukee, Aug. 19.—L. Kissel, manufacturer of automobiles, at Hartford, Wis., and a member of the Hartford Plow company, was shot by John Gerbierl, an enraged employe this morning in the Kissel company stores. Two bullets entered Kissel's head and he was shot once in the stomach. Kissel is in a dangerous condition and being 70 years old his recovery is in grave doubt. The affair is said to be the result of a trivial dispute. Gerbierl was at once taken in hand by the excited bystanders and placed in jail. Kissel was brought to a Milwaukee hospital.

DR. HENRY HOPKINS DEAD.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The garden reception which was held this afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Adams, of 2110 East Superior street, to present their daughter, Miss Esther Adams, to Duluth society was the most beautiful event of the summer. The garden of the Adams home is probably the most beautiful in the city and the setting was a charming one in which to present a young girl at her coming-out party. A canvas walk on the closely-cropped grass from the gate led to the marquee on the western side of the lawn, where Mrs. Adams and her daughter received. Evergreen trees were placed at the street edge of the walk as a screen from the street. The marquee was decorated in greens and a three-leafed screen was placed at the back of the tent hung in a delicate tracery of green, and before this the hostess and her daughter stood. Miss Adams made a most charming picture against the background of green. She wore a simple gown of embroidered white with a graceful hat of white, and she carried a bouquet of American beauty roses. Mrs. Adams was also gowned in white and wore a large white hat.

In the pergola on the side lawn, with its simple white columns and trailing vines, a pretty Japanese effect in decorations was achieved. Here punch was served.

The guests wandered through the garden paths which led from the pretty formal garden with the flower beds of brilliant, blooming flowers to the wilder recesses of the garden, no less artful and beautiful. The garden, which is on both sides of the creek rushing through the grounds, is arranged in the most artful manner to preserve the characteristic features of the lovely natural scenery. In the valley of the creek, behind a tiny rustic bridge, the tinkling music of a mandolin orchestra chimed in with the gurgle of the stream. Nearby the refreshment table was placed, trimmed in greens, and the service was from graceful baskets, carrying out the idea of rustic simplicity. On the hill at the eastern bank of the creek a summer house is concealed, and the guests came upon it unexpectedly. An open-air fireplace is built of the native stone, and coffee kept hot on the open-air fire was served in the summer house, which was a veritable room in the tiny tops. A rustic pergola leading from this exquisite garden into the formal cement walks near the house was hung with pale lavender and white Japanese wisteria. Square Japanese lights after a simple craftsman design, stenciled in black with a design of Japanese iris, were hung in the half-concealing bits of the woodland, and these lights will be the illumination for this evening.

Receiving informally about the lawn were Mrs. Russell Bennett and Miss Frances Passmore, both of Minneapolis, who are the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Adams. This evening the reception will be continued from 8:30 o'clock on. The assisting hostesses will be Mrs. A. M. Marshall, Mrs. G. C. Hartley, Mrs. A. M. Miller, Mrs. Katherine Van Loo, Mrs. W. C. Agnew, Mrs. J. N. McKindley, Mrs. A. H. Comstock, Miss Josephine Peyton, Mrs. M. F. Jamar Jr., Miss Jessica Marshall and Miss Hardy of Boston.

The decorations throughout the grounds were designed by Mrs. Adams and Chalmers Agnew. During the receiving hours several hundred guests will be entertained.

Informal Affairs.

Miss Roella Lovett entertained very informally yesterday afternoon at her home, 1718 East Third street in compliment to Mrs. Roy Williams of Cleveland.

Miss Gladys Heimbach entertained informally this afternoon at her home on East First street and Miss Helen Smith will be hostess Friday at an informal afternoon.

Dancing Party.

Miss Isabel Patrick was hostess last evening at a dancing party at the main house of the Boat club, in compliment to her guestss, Miss Sager and Miss Frances Sager of Chicago. The dancing room at the club was simply decorated with greens and Japanese lanterns and receiving with the hostess and guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Patrick and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Applin of London and Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Jamar, Jr. About 120 guests enjoyed the evening.

Will Meet in Park.

The Women's Missionary societies of the First Methodist church will be entertained Friday afternoon of this week by Mrs. John Carson and Mrs. J. E. Goodman at Chester Park. The meeting will be held at 3 o'clock and the members are to meet at the appointed hour at the first bridge. Important district business will be discussed. If the weather is unfavorable the meeting will be held with Mrs. Goodman at her home, 1424 East Fifth street.

House Party.

Miss Cora Hilliard will entertain at a house party at the Hilliard cottage near the Spirit Lake branch of the Boat club in compliment to her guest, Miss Marie Nelson of Minneapolis. The guests will be entertained until after the lawn fete at the branch.

BACK FROM FAR NORTH

W. A. Eaton Talks of His Recent Trip to Alaska.

Says Southeastern Alaska Has Great Future In Mining.

W. A. Eaton of the Red Warrior Mining company is home from a business trip through Southeastern Alaska. He was accompanied by C. W. Prichards of Denver, one of the most prominent mining engineers in the country. Mr. Eaton is enthusiastic about the mining possibilities of the country, and says that while mining is still in its infancy in Alaska, those fields are bound at some future day to be among the foremost mines of the world.

A great part of the journey inland was made in a small boat, the party leaving Wrangel, which is an old Russian trading post, situated in the southeast, and going through the Thousand islands. "Never in my life have I seen such scenery," says Mr. Eaton. "At times we were so carried away with the grandeur of it all that we forgot to take pictures.

"The season there is very late this year, and we were unable to get to some of the property we wished to look at, on account of the great depth of the snow. While you, in Duluth, were eating ice cream to keep cool, we were trudging through huge snowbanks in Alaska.

"A great future awaits the country as soon as the copper and gold fields are fully explored. Katchikan is, I think, the part that will develop great copper resources, while gold and copper both are now being mined near Sitka.

"While there, we secured options on several properties that will, I think, prove a good investment. This is my third trip, so that the unusual things about the country are an old story to me. The Indians, their peculiar method of living, and their picturesque costumes are the chief attractions for the tourists, outside of the snow-capped mountains, and beautiful scenery along the rivers."

Much of the time since going away Mr. Eaton has spent in the open. He is as brown as an Indian, and says he never felt better in his life.

NOTICE TO KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

The Third Annual Picnic will be held Wednesday, Aug. 19, at Fond du Lac. Steamer Newsboy leaves Lake avenue dock, at 9 a. m.; Superior at 9:30.

Attractive Trip.

There are no finer river trips in the world, than those made daily by the Newsboy and Mascotte, to the picturesque old Indian trading post of Fond du Lac. The silvery St. Louis winds its way between the greenest banks, and most beautiful rocky formations, that ever delighted the eye of the nature lover. The Newsboy and Mascotte, under the personal direction of Capt. Harvey D. Clow make a trip each —a day's outing of absolute safety and unalloyed pleasure.

Visitors to Duluth, who have traveled extensively, pronounce this trip to Fond du Lac equal to the most famed river rides of the Old or New world. It is particularly attractive to women and children.

The Newsboy leaves its dock at the foot of Fifth avenue west at 9 a. m. and the Mascotte at 2 p. m.

COLONIAL JACK HERE THURSDAY

Walking Around United States Trundling a Wheelbarrow.

"Colonial Jack," with his famous sphinx wheelbarrow, is due to arrive in Duluth tomorrow evening, on his tour by foot around the border of the United States. He started from Portland, Me., June 1, and expects to be back to the starting point, Sept. 1909, or before. To complete the trip in the time limit he must travel an average of twenty-two and one-half miles a day. He is now 250 miles ahead of his schedule. At the conclusion of the trip he will write a book on his adventures along the road.

Jack will come to Duluth over the South Shore road. He is a native of St. Peter, Minn., and is 35 years old. He will have traveled 1,800 miles by the time he reaches Duluth. His sister will be here from St. Peter to meet him. Jack's wife is following the route by train ,and spends every Sunday with her husband.

PATENT FOR DULUTHIAN.

Washington, Aug. 19.—A patent for preventing moisture containing material from freezing to the sides of a receptacle has been issued to S. G. Stevens of Duluth.

RAILROADS

SCARCITY OF TIES EXISTS

Dealers Forced to Almost Give Them Away Last Winter.

A shortage of railroad ties is the thing that now worries construction managers. The shortage is very pronounced, and it is with difficulty that the roads secure enough to keep up even the smallest repairs.

When the money stringency hit the country about a year ago the railroads stopped making repairs and refused to buy any ties. The tie business previous to this time has been good, and hundreds of men were engaged all over the north woods getting out ties. Some had only a few dollars invested, but the majority had all their capital in the business. When the railroads quit buying it hit these dealers hard, and many almost gave their ties away to meet their expenses.

There are now no ties on the market, and with the increased business the railroads wish to do repair work and are unable to get the wood.

The price has gone up several cents during the past few weeks, and it is possible that this winter the small dealer will make up his loss of the year before.

Winter Resigns.

Winnipeg, Aug. 19.—A. O. Winter, general superintendent of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway, resigned yesterday. His successor comes from the Wabash.

Must Test Eyes.

Paul Smiths, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Of far reaching importance is a protective measure adopted here last night by a conference of railroad officials, which makes it compulsory for all railway employes engaged in the operations of trains on the New York Central lines to undergo a physical examination and to have their eyes tested.

Cows are one thing and calves are another. A porterhouse steak, even considered during the process before it reaches the half rare and thoroughly delicious stage at which it is served, is not so bad, but veal is different. When one sees a dear dead calf hung by its helpless front legs in the butcher shop, one cannot but doubt the degree of civilization in which one lives. That that poor, innocent should have been torn rudely from its gambols on the green—and is there anything on earth that gambols with such delicious innocence as a young calf, so conscious of the good time it is having, and so content with the vistas opening out before?—or that it should have been hustled out of the paths in the cool of the woodland shadows only to ultimately be bartered over the counter as veal cutlets—is almost too, too much.

The constant, constant tragedy of life, even to an irritating optimist, is certainly appalling.

It is the time to preserve peaches, if you would do so. They are today selling at $1.15 per crate.

the EVENING STORY

One Hilarious Outing

By Blymer Chapman.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

She was esteemed the most fortunate woman in the world. And indeed she looked it. The wife of the wealthiest man in the city, who eagerly gratified her every whim; beautiful, possessed of faultless taste and the means to minister unto it; courted, admired, acknowledged the social leader; with every avenue of pleasure, travel, dress, society, philanthropy—everything open before the magic touch of Manson's millions and Manson more than willing to use the magic of his millions for any purpose she desired—what more could any woman want?

And yet Margaret Mansfield sat in her blue and gold boudoir with leaden heart and looked out into the shimmering sunlight and shivered as might a prisoner in a dungeon who saw the golden gleams of the sun outside but knew it never could be her's.

It was one of her blue days—that is about all there was about it—and yet she had had so many blue days of late that the sunlight did not appeal to her as it used to in the old days. The worst of it was the luxurious surroundings had began to pall upon her and she had fallen into a dreadful habit of late of asking herself continually: "Was it worth while?"

In vain did she shrug her patrician shoulders and reply: "Of course it is worth while; what else could I have done?" ever and gain came back the question, "Was it worth while?"

This afternoon there was upon her the smell of the new mown hay and the smell of the new milk in the clean little dairy and the smell of the grass and all the growing things—aye, and the smell of the barnyard and all the living things therein, including Jake, the hired man. And these smells and the visions they inspired carried her back to the old place out in the Genesee valley and to all the happy days of her youth when she trailed ever in the wake of a mighty star whose name was identity and over which towering so far into the heavens as almost to be lost sight of, rose her castles in the air.

Ah, finally these castles had been reduced to one—but that one castle had been so much more splendid than all the rest that they all looked cheap beside it. And then—but why pursue vain regrets and drag back the skeletons of the past?

Anyway the mind of madame was thoroughly upon the country—the old Genesee valley this afternoon and it seemed to her that if she could not get a whiff of the sweet fresh air she must stifle.

Of a sudden she arose with determination and rang for her maid.

"Pack one trunk with the simplest things. I am going away for a few days. There will be no society, no occasion for any clothes excepting the most simple—do you understand?"

Felice understood—that was why Felice had lasted so long in madame's service.

In the meantime Mrs. Manson had descended to the apartments of her liege lord.

"If you have no objections, sir, she said, "I think I will run down to the old place for a day or so—I am hungry for a whiff of the old Genesee air."

"Why, sure," he replied, heartily, turning from his market reports to devour his handsome wife with his eyes. "Awfully sorry I can't go along, but that P. C. T. & L. B. deal is coming off in the next few days and I daren't take my eye off the gun. Take the maid with you?"

"No," she replied, decisively, "I want to go alone."

"All right," he replied, indulgently. Then puckering his brows: "Where you goin'? You know the old place is—who the thunder owns the old place, anyway—nobody I know."

"I do not intend to stop at the old place," she said calmly. "I just want to go down and see it all again—and smell it. I shall stop at the tavern."

He received this with a peal of laughter. "Oh, get away," he snorted between his laughs. "Not that old unpainted barn in the town. Why, woman alive, you are not thinking of going there alone?"

"Exactly," she replied. "There is no danger nor any disgrace possible, as it is a most respectable place. The only thing that could possibly happen to me would be a little discomfort—and that can't hurt me much in a few days."

"Oh, well, as you please," he replied, turning back to his market reports. Then as she swept from the room he looked up and sighed a puzzled sort of a sigh.

"And she might go to New York and stop at the Waldorf and see the opera just as well. The women certainly do beat all time."

Hence it was that Margaret Manson found herself on the platform of the little red-painted station, a day later, and negotiating with old Bill Simpson to take her to the tavern. Already had she got the fragrance of the country in her nostrils and she prolonged the happy operation as long as possible because Bill was one of her earliest recollections and she remembered the things he would do to get an extra dime from a hapless traveler. So she took her time to dicker with Bill, letting the traveling men in the 'bus work off their bile as best they could. Finally, having beaten Bill down to the lowest price he ever had been known to take—the lowest price any man could haul a person for at the Corners, and hold up his head, she got into the vehicle with great glee. Already her depression had dropped from her and the quick blood of youth bounded again in her veins.

As she alighted from the 'bus she paralyzed Bill by dropping a dollar in his grizzled paw and declining to take the change he reluctantly counted out for her.

Then she tipped into the old tavern and was assigned to her great, barn-like room, from which she emerged almost immediately and took a walk across the old fields filled with so many beautiful memories, and away down by the creek where her happiest moments had been spent—where she had won the one true love of her life—and lost him. It was a delightful and melancholy afternoon. Somehow his presence had seemed to be actually beside her and all the tender moments of the old courtship had recurred over and over again as she passed the spots where they had taken place. Once or twice she had turned and spoken to him as though he actually were beside her.

Arriving at the back of the tavern she threw off her shawl and resolved to go into the old parlor from which there was a perfect view of the winding river. The landlady was busy, so she went along by herself, knowing the way full well—indeed how many dances she had attended at the old tavern and in that identical parlor.

She was surprised to find the door closed—she never had seen it closed before. Opening the door she stepped in and nearly ran directly into a casket standing in the middle of the room. She recoiled with a cry—but not before she had caught sight of the face beneath the glass.

Merciful heaven, it was his face—the face of Duncan Mitchell, the old sweetheart she had won and lost. But, oh, how old and careworn and sad—and the locks on the temples, how gray and thin. Involuntarily she went down on her knees beside the casket. She touched the glass above the face. It moved. She slid it to clear open and leaning forward pressed her lips upon those of the lifeless clay.

Presently in came good Mrs. Bingham, the hostess, and all full of contrition that her aristocratic guest should have run into such a chamber of horrors. No, the guest was not at all offended or alarmed—only curious. Who was the man in the coffin in a public house? Had he no friends? How came him here?

Ah, the story is short. He formerly had lived here but had gone away many years ago and his people had all died since. He had been a member of the life saving service on the great lakes and had met his death in a heroic effort to save the lives of others. He had ample funds for burial but left the request that he be buried in the old town "where I felt the only joy I ever knew" as the paper found upon him said.

"And there's a romance," whispered Mrs. Bingham, coming close to her guest and purring. "The paper reads: 'And if there should be one who gave me the one glimpse of heaven I ever had and then shut it from me—should this one know of my death, I want her to know that the girl she saw me with in the old orchard on that terrible June night, and whose presence and whose kisses I could not explain, was my sister. Had I explained it would have ruined my sister's life and that of her husband. As it was, it ruined mine—and possibly Margaret's. But I was bound in honor—and afterwards Margaret would not let me explain. I want her to know, however, that no other woman's lips have touched mine and that I die with her name on my lips and in my heart.' Ain't it just like a story?"

Was it A moan the landlady heard? She turned quickly, but the patrician face of the guest made no sign.

When they buried him the coffin was literally swamped with roses—where they came from nobody knew except that they came by express and bore the mark of a great florist.

"Did you enjoy yourself at the old tavern, my dear?" bantered Mr. Manson a few days later when his aristocratic wife appeared at the breakfast table.

"Hilariously," replied Mrs. Manson.

WEST END

CARBOLIC ACID ROUTE

Employment Agent Commits Suicide in the West End.

Had Been Drinking Heavily for Several Days Past.

Locking himself in his room, Peter Nordeen, an employment agent, committed suicide this morning by drinking carbolic acid.

Nordeen, whose place of business was at 519 West Michigan street, boarded at the home of Charles Anderson, 2424 West First street.

He had been drinking heavily for several days past, and on Monday he was arrested on the charge of drunkenness. He was arraigned in the municipal court, but pleaded not guilty, and on the testimony of several witnesses, that he was sober, he was released.

Last evening he went to his room, asking Mr Anderson to call him at 5 a. m. Anderson called him as requested, and Nordeen responded. Later, when he did not appear, Mrs. Anderson called him a second time, and again he responded. About 7 o'clock, he had not yet come down stairs, and Mrs. Anderson went to call him a third time. She noticed the odor of carbolic acid, and trying the door, found it locked. She heard a disturbance in the room, but Nordeen did not respond to her calls, and she became alarmed. She rushed to the door and summoned a neighbor. Mr. Anderson also happened to be passing at the time, in his milk wagon, and the three tried to break open the door. It resisted their efforts and Anderson then climbed through the window. He found Nordeen lying on the floor with his face badly burned with carbolic acid.

Dr. Pare was immediately summoned, but he pronounced Nordeen dead, and the coroner was notified. The body was taken to Forward's undertaking rooms.

Nordeen was 40 years of age and unmarried. As far as is known, he had no relatives in Duluth.

HARD WORK IN DAKOTA.

Harvest Work Didn't Make Hit With West End Boy.

Alec Marshall, son of H. M. Marshall, of 2305 West Eighth street, has returned from the harvest fields of North Dakota. He says "it's a no good business working in Dakota."

"The water is not fit to drink," he said yesterday. "The bunk houses are not worthy of the name, and the food is old and for the most part poorly cooked. The weather is very warm, and the long hours of the North Dakota farm makes it most impossible to live.

"Conditions are so bad that the men are leaving in great gangs and making their way further West, in the hope of striking better conditions. College boys who go out in Dakota to work during the harvest are getting theirs this year. A number of them who were to some expense going are trying to stick it out, but for the most part they are going home.

"The dream about large wages is a big myth. After you are out there they pay you whatever they feel like, and you are glad to get it, too."

West End Fire.

The families of J. P. Johnson and Olaf Larson, who occupy the double house at 2005 West Fifth street, were driven into the street yesterday by a fire which started in the chimney. At one time the flames looked very dangerous, and the personal effects of both families were taken out in a hurry.

No. 2 fire department arrived on the scene in time to get the flames under control. The loss on the building is estimated at $500.

New Residents in West End.

F. M. Huntley of Buffalo, with the members of his family, arrived in the city Monday. Mr. Huntley is a traveling salesman for the Borden Condensed Milk company, and has been assigned to this territory. They will make their home at 2224 West Third street.

Storm Raged in West End.

Every time it rains the West end gets more than its share. Yesterday, when the cloudburst struck that part of the city, basements were flooded and the mud and water rushed along the streets and avenues in torrents.

The sewer at Twentieth avenue is defective, and the water stopped and flooded the street to the depth of more than a foot. The wind blew so hard that it worked in through the crevices of the large show window of A. F. Lundholm, the music dealer, and destroyed a window display of sheet music.

West End Shortrails.

The funeral of George Woods was held this morning from the St. Jean Baptiste church.

Ralph Whittle and David McFarlane will leave this evening for Brainerd, where they will spend two weeks visiting friends and relatives.

The Young People's society of the Zion Norwegian Lutheran church will meet in the basement of the church building Friday evening. A program will be rendered and refreshments served.

The funeral of Alphonse LeTourneau, the lad who was drowned Monday while playing on a raft, took place this morning from the St. Jean Baptiste church. Interment was at Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. J. O. Milne, of 1927 West Second street, who was operated on a few days ago in the Duluth hospital, is improving.

Mrs. H. K. Madsen is visiting this week at her old home in Milwaukee.

The funeral of Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, who died Monday, was held this morning from Forward's undertaking parlors.

The Modern Woodmen will meet in the Columbia hall this evening.

Miss Tillie Aronson has returned from an enjoyable two weeks' outing at Deerwood.

IS SAVED FROM WATERY GRAVE

Steamship Men Fish Nicholas Johnson From Duluth Canal.

At 12:30 o'clock Johnson plunged head foremost from the north pier of the canal, at the end of the Booth slip, into the water. He struck the water with a cry, which, with the splash, was heard by men on the boat. They rushed to the pier and with pike poles fished the struggling man out.

After being landed, he fought to jump back into the canal, but was prevented. Johnson was taken to police headquarters in the patrol wagon, and upon his arrival there said he did not know why he wanted to kill himself. He was booked as a drunk.

PRAISE FOR ALL HANDS

Commander of Naval Reserve Lauds Minnesota Tars and Gopher.

Hard Work Over; Men En Route Home by Easy Stages.

(By The Herald's Staff Correspondent on the U. S. S. Gopher.)

Harbor Springs, Mich., Aug. 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The final triumph in a series of successes for the Minnesota Naval Militia during the present maneuvers came today (Monday), when an official inspection of the U. S. S. Gopher was made by Commander W. P. White of the Wolverine, commanding the squadron, assisted by Capt. Culver, aide to Assistant Secretary Newberry of the navy department, and staff.

The venerable Gopher, which has seen so much service in times of both peace and war, fairly shone this morning when Commander White and his party drew alongside. The men and the officers were dressed in their best blues and went through the different drills with a zest and vim which won the highest commendation by Commander White, in a speech to the ship's company in the forecastle at the conclusion of the inspection.

"When I first saw the Gopher she was an old ship, and for years she was a lighthouse tender, and what you of the Minnesota naval militia have done with the decrepit old vessel is little short of marvelous," said Commander White.

Praises Officers and Men.

"I want to compliment the officers and men on the Gopher for their work since the maneuvers began, and to say that it has shown that you have given a great deal of time and attention to this naval militia proposition. You have been compelled to use an old boat and have labored under many disadvantages, and altogether you have made a splendid showing. Few ships as old look as tho Gopher does now. Your work in the different evolutions deserves the highest praise, and I particularly noticed the smartness of your boats in the boat drills.

"Naval officers perhaps above everyone else appreciate what the naval militia is doing. Now, the navy is supposed to be constituted of 40,000 men, although it is not up to that mark, and in time of war, 60,000 men would be needed. You of the naval militia are practically the only men not in the regular navy who when called upon in time of war would be ready for service on a man-of-war."

Commander White told the men to be proud of the uniforms they wore and never to feel that they were lowering themselves when they saluted an officer on shore. "It is an old-time military custom of saying how do you do," said Mr. White. He concluded his address by complimenting the entire organization upon its effectiveness.

As he went over the ship's side after the exercises, Capt. Culver complimented Commander Eaton and Lieut. Commander Scully upon the efficiency of their corps, saying: "Although you have had the poorest tools to work with, you have had the best ship in the fleet, from the outset."

In the "man overboard" drill during inspection this morning, the Gopher's lifeboat crew returned the buoy thrown from the ship's stern in 2 minutes and 55 seconds, beating the entire fleet. No other one of the warships made as good time in this drill during inspection. The Yantic of Houghton accomplished this same drill in 4 minutes and 40 seconds. The Gopher's crew has been known to make better time than this, but a heavy sea was rolling this morning, which handicapped the oarsmen in the work.

Gopher Homeward Bound.

From the way it looks now, it would seem that the maneuvers are about over and that after today, the Gopher will start for Duluth by easy stages, stopping in all probability at Mackinac Island and Isle Royale. The Duluth boys have worked very hard during the maneuvers and on the way back home they will have a good time.

The fleet has been at Harbor Springs since Friday, going out into the lake for maneuvers and returning in the evening.

Harbor Springs is a very beautiful place. Many wealthy people have costly but unostentatious summer homes here. The officers of the fleet were guests at a "hop" Saturday evening at the Harber Point club.

Harbor Point at Harbor Springs, comprises a Socialistic colony made up of rich men. They own all of the Point, on the co-operative plan and anyone who seeks to buy a lot and join the happy family is given an examination that would make you gasp. If good social standing and ample funds are lacking, the applicant is excluded. There are many rules in this rich man's summer society, all of which must be lived up to.

The members of the colony have a very good time all summer long. Saturday night's "hop" was particularly brilliant, in honor of the fleet. Commander White and many other officers, and their guests danced.

The principal industries of Harbor Springs are the manufacture of Indian curious and souvenir postal cards. There are a number of summer hotels and clubs filled by all-summer guests as the fly-by-night tourists stop at Petoskey just across the bay. Harbor Springs also, is the home of the worst barber in the United States, despite the galaxy of finely tailored and swaggy summer visitors.

None of the summer visitors entrust their features to this barber's tender mercies. They use safety razors. Speaking of this barber a fellow citizen remarked that "he is so bad that even the town people won't let him shave them." The fellow owns his own shop, however, so he gets the money anyway.

GEORGE C. COWING.

H. L. FRANK OF MONTANA DIES IN CINCINNATI.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 19.—H. L. Frank, for thirty years a prominent figure politically and in a business way one of Butte's most highly honored pioneers, died Monday in Cincinnati.

Mr. Frank was 57 years of age and a native of Ironton, Lawrence county, Ohio. He was never married. He first came to Butte in 1887, engaging in the wholesale liquor business, but in later years he was largely interested in mining, principally in Montana and Alberta, Can. In 1895 he was elected mayor of Butte and served two terms, declining a third one.

Mr. Frank represented Silver Bow county in the first and second Montana state legislatures, and in 1891 was a candidate with John MacGinnis and Walter Cooper for the United States senate. He received all but three or four votes necessary to election. At a most dramatic scene in the session he pleaded with his supporters to cast their votes for Paris Gibson that the deadlock might be broken. Gibson was then elected.

In 1893 he established the town of Frank, Alta., and last year sold his coal interests at that place to the Canadian Pacific company for $2,000,000.

PARKS FOR VIRGINIA

Fine System May Result From Ordinance Park Board Proposes.

Many Other Important Matters Are Considered by City Lawmakers.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—If the city council passes an ordinance presented to that body last evening by the board of park commissioners, there is a fair prospect that a beginning will soon be made in the matter of establishing and improving a system of parks and parkways in this city. The park board held a meeting last evening and organized by electing John Cestin, Jr., as president and Otto A. Fohler secretary. After a thorough discussion of the situation, the conclusion was reached that the board could accomplish but very little under the authority granted to it by the city charter, and therefore it was decided to prepare an ordinance for presentation to the council, which would give the board authority to expend money, acquire property, improve same and hire and discharge the necessary help. If granted such authority, the board proposes to go ahead with a systematic plan of beautifying the city, its streets and boulevards. The ordinance was given its first reading.

Residents of the north side of Maple street between Railroad and Mesaba avenues asked the council to set out the sidewalk six feet from the lot line, so that the space between could be boulevarded to conform to the remainder of the street, and the request was granted.

The city engineer's report of his final estimate on the sidewalk to the cemetery was read and referred to the mayor and council as a whole. There was built 4,782 feet of walk at 45 cents per foot, and there is still due the contractor $1,151.90, a payment of $1,000 having been made some time ago.

Roxie Walters, captain of the Virginia Baseball club, made application for a position on the fire department, and it was referred to the chief. Three new fire alarm boxes were ordered for location in the South side of town, and the clerk was instructed to ask permission from the Mesaba Telephone company to paint the poles red on which the fire alarm boxes are located. The committee on city property and buildings was instructed to purchase storm windows for the fire hall. The matter of purchasing a new hook and ladder truck was laid over. The estimated cost is about $2,500.

The ordinance to preserve the public peace and good order received its third reading and was passed. The license ordinance received its second reading. It fixes the license fee of theaters at $100 per year, circuses at $25 per day, and traveling shows at $10 for the first day.

The clerk read a letter from Superintendent D. M. Phillips which stated that the Great Northern railway would not make changes desired by the city in the contract prepared by the road by which the tracks of the company might be used for transporting dirt from the Commodore mine into the city for filling purposes. The contract provided that the city must assume all liability in case of damages being done by collisions or otherwise and must pay $1.25 per train mile for trackage. The council considered both requests excessive and rejected the contract, instructing the clerk to so inform the railway company. He was also instructed to thank the management of the Missabe road for their courtesy in granting the city permission to cross their tracks. The clerk was further instructed to advise the Great Northern railway that it is the council's desire that the company shall station flagmen at both of its crossings inside the city limits, as provided by ordinance.

To Buy "Park Forty."

The clerk was authorized to draw an order for $3,000 to pay a warrant issued for the purchase of what is known as the "park forty," which has been leased to the Virginia Lumber company, and also an order on the general fund for $150 interest due on the warrant.

The council designated the places for holding the primary election in the several wards and appointed judges, as follows: First ward—Fire hall, Judges—S. A. Reid, Fred Engel and Henning Erickson. Second ward—Finnish Temperance hall. Judges—Sam Milavetz, E. E. Burley and John Sturundo. Third ward—City hall. Judges—P. O. Hanson, D. E. Cuppernull and W. E. Hannaford. Fourth ward—Northern hotel. Judges—W. R. Byrne, P. Egan and N. A. Olson.

An arc light was ordered placed at the corner of Hickory street and Central avenue. The street commissioner was instructed to furnish labor necessary to do the digging so that the Light and Water company may remove all hydrants now inside the sidewalk line to the outside of the curb line.

The city engineer was instructed to make a preliminary survey and estimate of the probable cost of a system of storm sewers covering the entire platted portion of the city. The engineer stated that if it is proposed to permanently improve the streets of the city, a system of storm sewers would be the first thing necessary. The clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for construction of the lateral sewers in the alleys of the Second ward petitioned for last week. Work on the trunk sewer in Wyoming avenue will be started this week.

Next Wednesday, Aug. 26, at 2 p. m., the heads of the different city departments will meet at the city hall for the purpose of fixing the amounts of money necessary for conducting their departments during the ensuing year.

Messrs. D. W. Stebbins and W. E. Pickering appeared as a committee from the Commercial club and presented a blue print of the proposed new road of easier grade between Virginia and Eveleth with the request that the council have a rough estimate made of the probable cost of constructing the road. No action was taken.

VICTIM OF TUBERCULOSIS.

Popular Coleraine Girl Taken by Dread Disease.

Coleraine, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Miss Christine Nelson was held at the Methodist church yesterday morning. There was a large attendance of friends. The services were conducted by Rev. F. W Hill, the resident pastor of Coleraine. A committee of the Epworth League had tastily decorated the church room with flowers. At the close of the services the body was taken to the railway station and from there to Milaca, where it will be interred.

Miss Christine Nelson was a victim of the dread tuberculosis. She was a graduate of the Milaca high school in the class of 1907, and soon after graduation removed to Coleraine with her parents.

ALLEGED FORGER FROM HIBBING

William Niemi Brought Here to Await Grand Jury's Action.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Niemi, a young Finn., 18 years of age, who has been employed by the Mahoning Ore & Steel company, is alleged to have received checks from the paymaster by false representation, due John Mattson, for the sum of $33. Niemi is said to have forged Mattson's name to the paper, and received the money from Jacob Hill, a Pine street saloonkeeper. His preliminary examination was held yesterday, before Judge Brady, and he was bound over to the district court. Bail was fixed at $300. Niemi was unable to furnish the necessary amount, and was taken to Duluth by Sheriff Wright.

MOVING HOMES FROM SELLERS

New Addition in West Mahoning to be Used —Hibbing Notes.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new method of moving houses has been introduced in Hibbing. That is by using a steam roller.

The Oliver Iron Mining company has platted forty acres of ground on West Mahoning and Sellers streets onto which will be moved the houses yet remaining in the Sellers location. It is understood that new houses will also be built here making the piece of ground one of the most thickly populated residence districts of Hibbing.

J. A. Miller of Third avenue has commenced a big auction sale preparatory to moving into the store at present occupied by Ryder's furniture store. Mr. Miller was compelled to move on account of the new brick block which Dr. D. C. Rood intends to erect on that site.

Owing to the fact that Company M have the past been handicapped by darkness falling upon them before they were well started on their drills, Capt. Sullivan has had placed around the ball park several electric lights. Company M will hold a drill Thursday evening.

Charles J. Grant has been engaged to manage the Hibbing Roller rink for the coming season. Mr. Grant is an experienced man and will no doubt be successful here. The rink will be opened to the public on Sept. 1.

"In Old Kentucky" scored quite a hit here last night.

A stag party was given by J. L. Stewart of Fourth avenue, last night. Cards were followed by lunch.

Peter Johnson, who was struck by a train on the Great Northern track at the Penobscot location last Wednesday evening, is doing nicely and is able to be about.

R. W. Hitchcock has returned from Fosston, where he has been spending a week with his family.

CELEBRATION AND FAIR.

Two Harbors to Have Big Time Sept. 18 and 19.

Two Harbors, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Lake County Agricultural association, at a meeting held here, has perfected arrangements for the anual county fair.

George Munford was re-elected president, W. J. Marquis secretary, and L. D. Rose treasurer. E. R. Fitch was elected assistant president and J. J. Croke assistant secretary. The latter is a well known poultry fancier. An advisory board was chosen, consisting of Thomas Owen, John Gran and ohn Sturbeck, and a meeting will be held at the president's office tomorrow evening. It is proposed to celebrate the twentyfifth anniversary of the establishment of Two Harbors at the same time the fair is held. The fair will be held Sept. 18 and 19. Sub-committees for the various departments of the fair will be chosen.

OVERTURNED LAMP BLAMED.

Two Harbors Residence is Completely Destroyed by Fire.

Two Harbors, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire yesterday afternoon completely destroyed a dwelling house on West Fourth avenue, owned and occupied by P. B. Sawyer. The loss is about $1,300. The insurance was $800, in the Hartford Insurance company and the Liverpool, London & Globe company. The dwelling owned by Mrs. M. Glasford, near by, caught fire several times, but it was extinguished by the fire department. The fire was caused by an overturned lamp.

Thirty ore trains were run out yesterday and business has assumed a temporary increase. Three or four independent boats took on cargoes here this week, being the first in some weeks.

The Herald excursion on the steamer America last evening brought up an unusually large crowd.

FATALITY AT HILL MINE.

Louis Frazier of Marquette is Accidentally Killed.

Coleraine, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fatal accident occurred Monday night at the new Hill mine at Marble, nine miles east of here. A young man by the name of Louis Frazier employed on the steam shovel placed his head within one of the wheels of the ponderous machine and accidentally tripped a lever with his foot which set the wheel in motion, killing him instantly. About one-half of his head was torn off. Coroner Peterson called a jury, which found death was due to an accident. The body of the young man was brought to Peterson & Goodwin's morgue.

Deceased was 26 years old and had been employed at the Hill mine for about a year. He was unmarried and came from Marquette, Mich., to which place his body will be taken. A brother is expected to arrive today to take charge of the remains.

FIRST WARDERS OBJECT.

Eveleths Want Red Light District Removed—Council Proceedings.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A petition from a majority of those living in Central division, No. 2, was presented to the council last night, asking that the division be taken into the city proper. The petition was referred to the proper committee.

The city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for a hook and ladder truck which will be adequate for the fire protection in this city. The clerk was also authorized to pay the $960 interest on outstanding bonds.

The question of securing a water tank to be placed on the hill near the baseball park for fire protection received much attention. Estimates on a certain kind of tank were furnished by the Minneapolis Steel & Machinery company for a 150,000 gallon tank, 80-foot tower, $7,000; for 200,000-gallon tank, 70-foot tower, $11,000; for a 250,000-gallon tank, 65-foot tower, $15,000; for a 300,000-gallon tank, 60-foot tower, $17,000. Some were of the opinion that a 200,000-gallon tank would be sufficient, though a large number of those present thought that a 300,000-gallon tank ought to be secured, so as to insure fire protection.

The residents in the First ward are objecting to the disorderly houses that now are there, and have asked the council to do away with them if possible. The question of the raising of the street grade at the More hospital was referred to the committee on streets and alleys.

Some time ago, all property owners on streets having sewers were instructed to connect up. Recently the health commissioner went around and found some of the houses still without the connection. One prominent man who did not connect one of his houses to the sewer was personally told to do it. This he has not done. The matter was referred to the health committee.

The ordinance fixing the charge of weighing at the city scales and the privileges and rights of those whose loads are weighed had its first reading. This ordinance was drawn up by Attorney Arnold, who is acting in place of City Attorney Ferry, who is under suspension. The committee who were to prefer charges against Ferry last night were not quite ready, but the charges will be preferred at the next meeting.

The city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for repainting the inside of the city hall, and was also instructed to secure an adding machine for use in his office, to cost $225.

RIOTING IS CONSIDERED ENDED AT SPRINGFIELD.

appeals of Governor Deneen, the chamber of commerce, ministers' associations and other civic bodies, that citizens generally furnish information to the state's attorney concerning the riot, have met with such prompt response that the authorities are encouraged in the belief that the better elements of the community are aroused to the danger which threatens them unless the mob spirit is quenched.

Lack of Definite Testimony.

The inquiry into the lynching of Scott Burton was brought before a coroner's jury this morning, but there was a noticeable lack of definite testimony. Most of the witnesses described the scenes in the "black belt," but when questioned as to the identity of members of the mob, their memories failed them. If this condition continues, the chances of conviction of the persons charged with leadership in the riots will be remote.

The morning hours today were the most quiet which the city has experienced since the troubles began. An inspection of outposts by an Associated Press correspondent, after midnight, showed that the streets were deserted and that sentries and patrols were finding little to occupy their attention. Occasionally a shot would be heard, but in all cases nervous militiamen had mistaken shadows for lurking marauders. There was no indication whatever of a renewal of the sniping at pickets which caused so much commotion yesterday morning. The readiness of the militia to return such fire had discouraged the individuals who had attempted to terrify the troops by attacks from ambush. The only untoward incident occurred at Woodside, a mining district, where stones were thrown at deputy sheriffs who had been sent to guard mine shafts there. The deputies fired in the direction from which the missiles came, and there was no further trouble.

ADVANCE SHOWING OF....

New Tailored Suits!

We are showing a big variety of the newest of this Fall's styles of Ladies' Tailored Suits. While our stock is still far from complete, the suits on display cover practically every new departure, every radical change in both styles and materials. We are showing nearly all lengths in the coats to be worn during the coming season from 32 to 40 inches, and although the semi-fitted styles still predominate, they are more shaped than those of last season and resemble greatly the tight-fitting models. Plain Tailored Suits are again greatly favored, but there are many others trimmed with braid and satin bindings, while still others are button trimmed.

The Skirts are in the gored models—full flaring—many of them have deep folds of self cloth. Materials are chevrons, cheviots, broadcloths and fancy worsteds—and the prevailing colors are brown, blue, smoke, green and black, in plain colors or striped materials.

Taken altogether our showing is a thoroughly representative one—and we invite your inspection. We know that with the inspection will go your approval. Prices $19.50, $25.00, $29.50, $32.50 and up to $50.00.

Linen Suits--Last Call--Final Cleanup!

There are not a great many of these Summery Suits left on hand, but what there are must go. Our rule to clear out all goods in their own season is inexorable—and besides, the new suits are arriving so rapidly that everything else is given second place and second thought. Hence, these prices. This is to be the final clean up—the prices are lower than you've seen them anywhere this season—and there are no fictitious values. This is not hot air—it is Truthful Advertising.

LOT 1—Just about 15 suits in blues, pinks and browns—our best linen suits, with tailored jackets—in the semi-fitted styles, the prices of these garments ranged from $20.00 to $27.50. Your choice on Thursday, each $10

LOT 2—This lot includes all of our Wash Suits of Repps and Linens—30 to 36-inch length jackets—full cut skirts—formerly sold up to $12.50. Come early on Thursday morning—we warn you, there are not many suits left. Clean up price $5

The August Rug and Carpet Sale!

We expected big returns from our August Sale of Rugs and Carpets—and with the prices and inducements offered, we did not expect too much. The result of the first three days of the sale came fully up to our expectations, even if anything, went a little beyond. The sale will be continued for the balance of this week—for the benefit of those who have not, so far, participated, we reprint the special items—every one will be found to be exactly as represented—there is no "hocus pocus" here, and former and sale prices are exactly as advertised. Anticipate your needs for this fall, and purchase now, the price-saving is enormous.

Carpet Department.

A Big Special to Start With—All of our all-wool best two-ply Ingrain Carpets—sold regularly at 90c yd—this week, made, laid and lined, per yard 69c

LONELY FARMER KILLS HIMSELF

Carl Carlson Uses Shot Gun With Fatal Effect.

The fact that he has been drinking heavily recently is said to have been responsible for the suicide yesterday afternoon of Carl Nels Carlson, 40 years old, a farmer living alone in a tent in the town of Solway. He shot himself in the mouth with a shot gun. The body was brought to Duluth last evening by his brother, Jacob Carlson, and placed in the undertaking rooms of R. R. Forward & Co., in the West end. The funeral will be held from the undertaking rooms Thursday.

The brother says that a neighboring farmer called at Carl's tent yesterday morning and found the front tied together. After the heavy shower in the afternoon he paid another call, and this time found the tent open, and Carlson's dead body in a sitting position. Coroner McCuen was notified, and will investigate the case.

AN ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE

Crazed From the Effects of Whisky and Cocaine.

An unknown man, crazy from the effects of whisky and cocaine, attempted to commit suicide by hanging in the city jail at noon today. He was discovered and rescued from his perilous position before he was able to accomplish his object.

The man, who is a foreigner, evidently a laboring man about 40 years of age, was arrested on West Superior street shortly before 12 o'clock. He was raising a disturbance in the saloons, and made himself so generally obnoxious that the police were called.

At the central station he absolutely refused to give his name. A large quantity of cocaine was taken from his person. He seems to be temporarily insane, with violent tendencies. All the way to the police station in the patrol wagon he fought the officers.

Turned in the large general cell at the jail, he immediately started a rough house, and began trying to get into a fight with the other prisoners there. To put an end to the trouble, he was placed in one of the small iron-barred cells in the room. Shortly afterward he made a rope of his necktie and leather belt, tying the two together and fastening one end to the side of his cage. He tied the other end about his neck, and then lifted his feet from the floor.

The prisoner had been hanging thus for a minute or two when a fellow-prisoners suspected something was wrong, and called the jailer by pounding on the door. The man was still unconscious when taken down. He will be carefully guarded until he regains his senses.

PLANNED TO BREAK JAIL

Released Prisoner Tells of Plot for General Jail Delivery.

The Story is Emphatically Denied by the Authorities.

Was a complete delivery of the St. Louis county jail, including the release of Wilson and Mattich, murderers, and other long term criminals, nipped in the bud by the narrowest kind of a margin early this month?

According to one of the prisoners who was released within the last week, it was, but the story is denied absolutely by the jail authorities. The ex-prisoner vouches for its truth, however, and gives all the details of the plan.

It was planned, he says, by Jake Schuhe, forger and desperado, now doing time in Stillwater, for Sunday afternoon, Aug. 2. So far the story is credible for Schuhe was known to be a desperate character, and often boasted that he would never go to the state's prison alive. Partners in the game were David Mattich, and another of the prisoners, it is claimed. Mattich is now serving a twenty-year term in the penitentiary. The scheme was to be carried out immediately after the services, which are held on Sunday afternoons. The men are then free in the corridors, and it was planned to overpower the guard upstairs, await the arrival of the jailer from below, overpower him, and secure his keys, and then make the gateway. Willie Mattich and his confederate were overpowering the guards, Schuhe was to slip down into the jail office and cut the telephone connections, making it impossible for the matron, who is on the second floor, to notify anyone by telephone. The rest of the gateway was to be made as quickly and silently as possible, leaving the jailer and guard gagged and locked in cells.

The scheme was planned first for the preceding Thursday, according to the prisoner, and then postponed until Sunday, as it was thought that the Sunday services offered a better opportunity. During the interval between Thursday and Sunday, however, it is stated that one of the prisoners went down and told the plan to the jailer, putting an end to the plot.

The jail officials claim to have heard nothing of it. They say that long term convicts frequently get to talking about how they are going to break jail, and that Schuhe probably started the jail delivery rumor by his boasting. That the plan suggested was at least considered by the prisoners, appears fairly certain, however, from its completeness.

EASTERN HEADQUARTERS

Chicago, Aug. 19.—The Eastern headquarters of the Democratic national committee will be formerly opened in New York Aug. 21 and National Chairman Mack, on his arrival in that city, will announce the sub-committee which will control the campaign in the East and name the chairman in charge of the Eastern headquarters. Mr. Mack said today that Mr. Bryan would reach here Saturday and that he had invited the heads of the various bureaus and many prominent members in nearby states to confer with the candidate.

SUPERIOR NEWS

WAS CASE OF MURDER.

Foxboro Settler Had Bullet Wound in His Skull.

According to report, Chief of Police McKinnon, Deputy Sheriff Stone, Coroner Dudley and County Physician O'Brien, made some startling discoveries concerning the Young murder case, on their trip of investigation to Foxboro. They returned yesterday, but are withholding all information pending the arraignment of the suspects.

At Foxboro, they exhumed the body of Young, which was identified then by John Johnson and the three Chaffey brothers. It is claimed that in their investigation, they found the skull to be crushed, and a rifle bullet imbedded in the head. The body was in such a state of decomposition that it was reburied in another and deeper grave.

The news of the suspected murder was first brought to the Superior police last Sunday by Johnson and Jacobson. They are now being held for witnesses in the trial. When the information was given, Jacobson stated that Johnson told him of finding a part of a human body protruding from a shallow grave near Kramer's shack. The police went to Foxboro, where they found things as represented and arrested Kramer, and August Sletten, who is suspected of having been implicated in the crime. It is believed that Kramer, who had been drinking heavily before the disappearance of Young about July 4, killed Young, his shackmate, in a drunken brawl.

Will Hear Arguments.

The railroad commission will meet to hear the arguments of General Counsel A. H. Bright and Chief Engineer Richard Green of the Soo line, on the application of the Great Northern road for a certificate of necessity to build a tressle from H. avenue to the interstate bridge. They arrived in the city last evening. The commissioners arrived today and with representatives of the Soo, Great Northern and the Northern Pacific roads will look over the proposed route of the trestle.

May Take Up Bonds.

At the meeting of the city council last evening, a proposition was submitted concerning the taking up of approximately, $31,000 worth of outstanding street improvement bonds. The bonds are held by the Aetna Life Insurance company of Hartford, Conn. The amount stated includes interest past due for the past several years. The matter was referred to the finance committee for investigation and recommendations.

AURORA BOREALIS.

Magnificent Display of the "Northern Lights" Seen in Duluth.

The hills back of Duluth were illuminated with one of nature's most beautiful phenomena, the aurora borealis, last evening.

Shortly after 12 o'clock the most gorgeous display took place. The whole northern sky was brightened for nearly an hour by the pale green streamers. The rays shot from a great black cloud that spread out nearly the whole length of the city and to the north of it. Such a brilliant display at this season of the year is unusual.

COMMITTEE SEES ROADS

Record Run Made From Duluth to Point Near Eveleth.

The road committee of the county board, consisting of Commissioners Ed Patterson, John Sundeen, Charles Kauppi and George Tischer were taken over the Miller trunk road in P. McDonnell's big touring car yesterday, for the purpose of legalizing the roads along the state ditches. This is necessary in order that the roads may hereafter be kept up with county funds.

The time in which the trip was made with the four commissioners and Mr. McDonnell and driver in the car, speaks well for the quality of the road. They left Duluth at 9 a. m. and reached a ditch fifty-seven miles out, and within eight miles of Eveleth at 11:30. They drove back between 1 and 5:30, stopping an hour and a half at the Cloquet river, and also stopping at Pike Lake. They drove in from Pike Lake in 29 minutes.

CIRCUS MEN COMMITTED.

Employers Fail to Pay Fines and They Go to Jail.

A. Walker and W. M. Walker, brothers, charged with stealing $30 from John Zolar of Eveleth on Aug. 6 last, were committed to the county jail here this morning. The Walker brothers were employed by a circus which toured the range towns and were held there for some time in the expectation that the circus men would pay their fines, $50 each, and release them. This they failed to do, however, and they commenced serving their time this morning.

EVA TANGUAY WILL MARRY

New York, Aug. 19.—The latest phase of the Salome craze has set all New York to wriggling it out. Eva Tanguay is to marry Julian Eltinge.

Eva, the "Queen of the Vaudevilles," who has discarded her famous "I don't care" for the more exciting pastime of showing her gyroscopic version of the original wicked wriggler, is to give her hand—if she can keep still long enough—to the good-looking Harvard graduate, who is now Saloming a few himself. While the first announcement of the engagement startled Broadway sufficiently, it has recovered its breath, and the wedding promises to be one that will go down in the annals of the Gay White Way folklore.

First and foremost, all the Salomes of New York are to be invited, provided they will promise not to Salome during the ceremony. Gertrude Hoffman, Maud Allan (if she is in America), and even "Tony" Macaluso will be given front pews.

Miss Tanguay suggested yesterday that the time honored wedding march be sidetracked, and that "Nothing Bothers Me," be played as the happy couple wriggle up the main aisle.

Mr. Eltinge demurred, saying the fact that he was also to be a part of the sketch made Miss Tanguay's pet song seem out of place for the time, and it was agreed that the organist might select her own music.

The public has become accustomed to see Miss Tanguay in male roles at least in roles in which flounce skirts were not part of her costume, and to watch Mr. Eltinge impersonate the gentler sex so long that only personal friends will be allowed to attend the festivities.

"They might not know which is which," explained the actress.

LOW LUMBER CUT.

Less This Year in Minnesota Than in Thirty-Five Years.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. E. Sinclair, surveyor general of lumber, reports that the lumber cut this year will be the lowest since 1873. This will be due principally to the high water in the early part of the season, and the low water at the present time. The conditions now are more favorable than at any other part of the present season, and it is expected that more lumber will be cut in the remaining three months than has been cut thus far this year.

In the first four months of this year about 80,000,000 feet of lumber was cut, while the cut for the same months last year amounted to over twice that amount.

Vermillion, S. D., Aug. 19.—As the result of burns received on a gasoline explosion at their home in Alsen, Mrs. J. S. Andersin is dead and her husband is in a critical condition. Mrs. Anderson was pouring gasoline into a washboiler when the explosion occurred. She was a bride of only two months.

EXPECT WORK TO START.

NAB ALLEGED FORGER.

Minot, N. D., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Morris Blackman was arrested here yesterday by Capt. John Sullivan on a charge of forging a check for $10 at McCanna.

It is asserted that Blackman forged the name of Frank Kelly, a farmer, to the check and passed it on Flaherty, who runs a poolroom and soft drink place at McCanna.

CHAFIN IS NOTIFIED

That He is Candidate of Prohibition Party for Presidency.

Enthusiastic Gathering of Cold-Water Men at Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—At Music hall last evening, in the presence of a large and enthusiastic audience, Eugene W. C. Chafin of Chicago accepted the nomination for the presidency by the Prohibition party. The address formally notifying Mr. Chafin of his selection as the head of the party was made by Prof. Charles Scanlon of Pittsburg on behalf of the committee on notification appointed at the national convention at Columbus, Ohio, July 16.

Charles R. Jones, chairman of the national committee, called the meeting to order and announced the selection of Samuel Dickie, president of Albion college, Albion, Mich., as chairman of the gathering. Mr. Dickie delivered a brief address and then introduced Mr. Scanlon. He was greeted with applause as he began his notication address, and throughout his speech was interrupted by evidence of approval of his remarks.

"You are not asked," said Mr. Scanlon, turning to Mr. Chafin, who occupied a seat on the platform, "to lead a forlorn hope. The final issue of this struggle is not now nor has it ever been in doubt. The principles advocated by the Prohibition party are as certain to prevail as time is to continue."

Mr. Scanlon mentioned other things besides the liquor traffic which demand attention. "Recognizing these other questions," said he, "the Prohibition party has framed a platform which is clear and concise, conservative, constructive and comprehensive. It contains everything of value in all of the others without their evasive technicalities, obscurities, false issues, sophistries and subterfuges."

Mr. Scanlon concluded amid an outburst of cheering. When it had subsided, he handed Mr. Chafin an elaborately engraved copy of the Prohibition party's platform adopted at Columbus and signed by the chairman of the committee on resolutions, the chairman of the convention, and by the chairman of the national committee.

Prolonged applause greeted Mr. Chafin as he accepted the honor. It was some minutes before he was able to continue his speech. He spoke in part as follows:

"The makers of the Federal Constitution wisely provided that once in four years the people should have an opportunity, through the election of a president and a house of representatives, to record the advance made in morals and adopt new and necessary methods of government. If one or more political parties are to be kept in power twenty-five or fifty years, each succeeding administration carrying out the policy of the past, and refusing to enact into law the progress attained, then such party or parties have violated the very spirit of the Constitution, and turned our democracy into despotism, making the political boss dictator.

"We are dangerously near that condition of things in the pending presidential campaign. The attempt made by the Republican and Democratic parties to create a factitious issue is the most farcical in our history, in the face of the fact that during the past four years the question of the prohibition of the liquor traffic has attracted wider attention of the press and the people than all other public issues combined. The calm thought and common sense of the moral citizenship have pronounced sentence of death upon the liquor traffic, and the only thing that stays its execution is the protection and care of these two old political parties, kept alive by blind political party prejudice.

Conspiracy of Old Parties.

"For a long time there has been a disposition on the part of the leading politicians of these old parties to belittle and ignore the liquor problem. This has now reached an acute stage which amounts to a conspiracy on the part of the leaders of these parties to coin up the conscience of the people into liquor license revenue and offices.

"Mr. Chairman, the platform adopted by the national convention of the Prohibition party over which you presided is so plain and comprehensive, that no voter need read it a second time to understand exactly what it means. I have studied the platforms of all other political parties. Ours gives the voter the only opportunity he will have this year to cast his ballot against the liquor traffic, and for other reforms being earnestly demanded by the American people.

"The lofty ideals of twentieth century statesmanship calls for a United States senate born of an intelligent people's conscience, instead of mocking statues surrounding the pedestals of concentrated wealth; the equalization of public burdens by a system that will compel the rich to pay their proper proportion of the costs of government. A graduated income and inheritance tax will be a long step in this direction.

A Tariff Commission.

"The development of the trusts has changed entirely all the old theories of a protective tariff and free trade, and the people demand legislation in their interest on this important matter, which can best be worked out by a permanent tariff commission. We are the only party that strikes a blow at the social evil, so closely allied to the liquor traffic; and propose the only practical method of stamping out polygamy throughout the nation by the uniform marriage and divorce law.

"While not a line of history will be changed by the election of a Republican or Democrat, the triumph of the Prohibition party and the placing of its platform in the Constitution and upon the statute book will write the longest, brightest, purest and most beneficent chapter of history that has marked the progress of civilization since governments were instituted among men."

Following the address of Mr. Chafin, Clinton N. Howard of Rochester, N. Y., spoke on the prohibition movement, after which Felix T. McWhirter, treasurer of the national committee, and Dan R. Sheen, nominee for governor of Illinois on the Prohibition ticket, made speeches. A. M. Thatcher of Boston, a leading Prohibitionist, sang several party songs.

During the day an informal reception in honor of Mr. Chafin was held at the Auditorium hotel, and at a meeting of the national committee in the afternoon plans for the Prohibition campaign were made.

YOUTHFUL LIFE SAVER.

Boy of Seven Saves Playmate From Being Fatally Burned.

Auburn, Wash., Aug. 19.—Albert Gilbert, the 7-year-old son of a resident of this place, is a candidate for a Carnegie medal.

Albert was playing in a tent with little Phyllis Fletcher. They found matches and started a fire. The little girl's dress caught fire and she started to run for the house. The flames were fanned into a blaze, when Albert, who had run after her, caught her in his arms and threw her on a sandpile, rolling her over and over and using his hands to quench the fire. Finally he tore the dress from her body and carried her into the house.

The girl was badly burned, but her face and hair were untouched. She will soon recover. Albert's hands were frightfully burned, but not badly enough to make an amputation necessary. He bore the pain manfully, and while the doctor bandaged the little hands in oil meal, Albert kept asking if his little playmate was all right. When assured that she would soon be well again, he smiled.

BIG THEATRICAL COMBINE.

One Night Stand Houses Have All Been Consolidated.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The biggest theatrical booking combination for one night stand houses in America was formed in Minneapolis yesterday, through the consolidation of the booking interests for a 30,000 building submitted by a W. Jencks of Sioux Falls, S. D., and H. L. Walker of Brookings, S. D.

Bookings for 260 one-night-stand towns in six Northwestern states and all Canada west of Port Arthur are absolutely controlled today by the combination.

Hereafter it will be practically impossible for a one-night-stand or repertoire company to do business in the Northwest or Western Canada except through this combination. To all intents and purposes the only theaters in the Northwest whose bookings are not controlled by the combination are the theaters in the few largest cities which are booked by Klaw & Erlanger, and the vaudeville and stock houses.

TO TALK ABOUT DULUTH FIRE TUG

Public Meeting in Progress at Commercial Club Today.

Interested Duluthians are having an opportunity to express themselves on the fire tug question this afternoon at the public meeting, which was called at 3:30 o'clock in the Commercial club rooms. Those who are agitating for the tug are anxious to get something definite under way in the near future, as the city conference committee meets in September, and if the city intends to do anything next year the question must be put up to it.

The statement made by T. W. Hugo, at the meeting at the Commercial club a week ago, pointing out the danger, not only to the harbor front, but to the main business section, from a big harbor front fire, has awakened a decided interest in the fire tug question, and a large attendance of harbor-front and other property owners is expected this afternoon. The presence of such a tug would, it is stated, result in the saving of $30,000 annually in fire insurance premiums, and harbor front firms are taking an enthusiastic interest in it.

DANISH WORKERS SPLIT.

Strife Among Unions Follows Proposal to End Strike.

Copenhagen, Denmark, Aug. 19.—Through the intervention of the minister of interior affairs, the Employers' association and the committee of the labor unions have agreed to settle the various questions in dispute and start work again. Several of the branch unions are disappointed at the compromise and declare that they will continue the strike. Among them is the Typographical union. This means that probably there will be a serious split among the Danish labor unions and a continuation of trouble. The newspapers are still unable to get out their regular editions.

MEN OUT OF EMPLOYMENT.

The depths to which the recent panic and its afterclap of industrial depression sent the country are to be measured most accurately by statistics of non-employment; and on the other hand the most significant evidence of the increasing betterment of conditions is the number of men that are being taken back and put to work by the nation's industries.

Now that it is practically all over, or at least so clearly on the up-grade that complete recovery is only a question of time and patience, it is interesting, if somewhat disturbing, to consider the extent to which non-employment went. Bare figures, showing so many men out of employment, are not illuminating unless the imagination is set to work to conjure up the unpleasant picture that this non-employment involves: a grim picture of homes, none too comfortably supplied even when work is steady, condemned to hardship and privation amounting in many cases to positive starvation, by the loss of work; a picture of city streets lined with gaunt, hungry and well-nigh hopeless men whose strength is wasting in ill-fed idleness though their strong arms seek only the chance to earn an honest day's pay; a picture of idle smokestacks, deserted factory yards and sluggish markets; a picture of tradesmen robbed of their custom by the era of idleness brought on by the drunken frenzies of Wall street's gambling debauch.

Happily, this picture is a picture of the past. Today, though prosperity is not at its flood and industry has not yet attained its former speed, underlying conditions are sound, the crop outlook is excellent, good prices are assured for farm products, the campaign has thus far failed to disturb conditions materially, and the prospect for a lively fall and winter are good.

But on April 1, as shown by a report made by Labor Commissioner Williams of New York, there were in that state 138,131 union laborers out of work. A canvas of 386,115 members of unions developed the fact that more than 100,000 were absolutely without work during the first three months of the year; which, to men whose comfort depends upon constant employment, is pretty serious business. Commissioner Williams says that this is a larger percentage than in any other year for which there are statistics. In 1897 the percentage of labor union members out of work was 24.8 for the first quarter of the year; but the number idle was only 35,381. In 1902 the percentage was as low as 6.2. For the generally prosperous decade from 1898 to 1907 the mean percentage of idleness at the end of March was 17.5, and the percentage of continuous idleness for the first quarter was 10. This year's percentages are therefore respectively twice and two and a half times as great.

These figures cover only union laborers, and there are none for common laborers; yet the percentage of idleness among common laborers must be at least as great if not greater, and probably the savings of the common laborers as a safeguard against non-employment were very much smaller than those of union workers. These speculations make it all the more pleasant to know that conditions have changed for the better.

A GOOD OBJECT LESSON.

Oklahoma has a law guaranteeing bank deposits. Each bank is taxed lightly to provide a guaranty fund, and when a bank fails depositors are paid in full and the state takes over the bank's assets and makes them reimburse the guaranty fund as far as they will go. It is claimed for the guaranty plan that it will prevent bank runs by giving depositors assurance of safety, and it is opposed on the ground that it forces honest bankers to put up for the losses caused by dishonest and careless bankers

The Oklahoma law covers both state and national banks, but the government has ruled that the national banks cannot come under it. The result has been that depositors, showing their confidence in the guaranty system, have been taking their deposits out of national banks and putting them in state banks. The effect of this is to make national banks change into state banks. Yesterday the Enid National bank, one of the largest banks of Oklahoma, became a state bank, and the dispatch carrying the news says that ten other national banks are preparing to follow suit.

So far, apparently, the law is working as it was expected to work. If the national bankers of Oklahoma objected to being assessed for the guaranty fund, they had only to remain national bankers, and they would escape. They are voluntarily becoming state bankers, however, and coming under the law, and those that continue as national banks will unquestionably be found advocating a federal guaranty law.

PLENTY OF CHEAP APPLES.

According to all reports, this will be a banner year for the apple crop, and that is a more important item than it seems at first blush.

There is scarcely a fruit that can approach the apple as an all-round, all-the-year privilege and pleasure. Though there are apples and apples—apples with a flavor as delicious as nectar and apples with a taste like inferior pine wood—when it is just right it is hard to beat the apple as a fruit; and besides, it is cheap.

The American people, as a whole, don't eat enough fruit. Fruit is a very valuable article of diet because of its beneficial effects upon the interior department of the human body, and it is not only pleasant to take, but properly taken it is not only a delicacy, but a valuable food and a medicine. Therefore it is a good thing for the country to have apples cheap, good and plentiful.

New York shippers estimate that the present season will furnish the largest supply at the lowest prices that the public has seen in several years. Strangely enough, the producer will not share in the general happiness of the announcement, for in spite of the larger supply of this national favorite fruit, he will not, it is claimed, profit by it. An authority quoted in a New York trade journal says that hard times tend to raise the price of meats and vegetables, but to decrease the price of fruit. When a man's income is cut or his employment fails entirely he will buy only the so-called necessaries and let luxuries alone. This is taking the view that meat and vegetables are necessaries and that fruit is a luxury; which is partly wrong. Fruit has always been considered a luxury, but it is time that the American people changed their viewpoint and called fruit a necessary; they will be the better for it if they eat more fruit, and they can find none that will do them more good than apples.

Though more territory is coming under cultivation every year, and though the opening up of the valleys of the Rockies and the country beyond is bringing new supplies into the market, the American Agriculturist publishes figures showing that this country produces less than half as many apples now as it did a decade ago. The crops for 1894, 1895 and 1896 averaged 62,000,000 bushels of apples a year; the crops for 1904, 1905 and 1906 averaged but 28,000,000 bushels. This in spite of the wider fields under cultivation and the greater number of people there are to buy the product. This is a condition that merits the earnest study of the department of agriculture, because apples ought to be so plentiful that everybody would have lots of them all the year around; and they ought to be so cheap that they will become a staple article of diet on every table, considered as much a necessary as potatoes.

NOT EASILY DONE.

The St. Paul Dispatch urges that the National Editorial association, now in session in St. Paul, take action about the tariff on paper and wood pulp, a matter of vital interest to every newspaper publisher and every newspaper reader.

The suggestion of the Dispatch is timely, and it should be acted upon by the association. However, it is accompanied by a naive and disingenuous reflection that there is no need of declaring for or against any political party while emphasizing the need of the removal of the tariff on paper and wood pulp.

The National Editorial association is, of course, a nonpartisan body, as it is made up of editors of newspapers that are Republican, Democratic and independent; so it would not desire to make a partisan matter out of its action on the tariff under cover of which the paper trust is oppressing the newspaper industry with exorbitant charges.

Yet if the association does manage to keep from declaring for or against any political party, it will accomplish a bit of very delicate maneuvering; for the appeal for relief from the exactions of the paper trust was made by all the newspapers of the country to congress last winter, and relief was denied by a congress in absolute control of one of the two great parties. Its failure to grant this relief, the need of which nobody denies, was actuated, as Congressman Bede has said with unexpected frankness, by the fact that if relief had been given to one industry, it would have had to be extended to others; a consummation, evidently, devoutly to be shunned by the Republican congress, even though it was very much desired by the people.

However, the abolition of the tariff on wood pulp is very much needed, and the association will do well to declare the need once more, in the most emphatic language at its command.

THE EXPENSE OF MARRYING.

Custom has made getting married rather an expensive investment; though there is no law of necessity that makes it costly, excepting insofar as custom becomes so binding as to constitute itself a law of necessity. All that are actually needed to make a marriage are two willing hearts, $2 for the license and a fair fee for the minister; though it is well to have, besides these, something to go housekeeping upon, and it is pleasant, no doubt, to be able to make the wedding an occasion for gathering your friends and relatives together.

But in any event, the investment is a good one, providing both parties have chosen well; in which respect it does not differ from any other investment, if you choose to look upon it in such a mercenary light.

The federal government has been investigating this matter,—and a very important investigation it is, though it is a little surprising to find that the government has been engaged in it,—and it has issued a bulletin showing the results of its explorations. The government agents found that the people of the United States spent $8,765,892 for wedding presents alone during June. The exactness of the figures, though the odd cents are thrown off, has a firm and convincing appearance, just as though the government agents had found the price mark on every single wedding present made in the entire country in June; yet it is hard to dispel a lingering doubt about the accuracy of the figures, even at that. Who put a price upon the presents? If the donors fixed it, what is to prevent their saying that a 49-cent present cost them $2.35? Or, for the matter of that, if the recipients made the estimates, they certainly could not be expected to depreciate the value of the gifts by fixing the price a whit lower than the actual. But analysis of the figures is profitless. In the absence of definite information about where they were gathered, it is much more comfortable to assume that the investigators got the figures straight from the dealers that sold them, and to accept them as precisely correct.

For if we start analyzing and doubting, the same disturbing queries will arise as to the government's statement that June wedding trousseaus cost $22,765,021. It is better to take it for granted that these figures are accurate, and the same thing is true of the item of $12,000,000 for bridal bouquets, wedding breakfasts and hack hire. One item that is certainly not over-estimated is that of clergymen's fees. There were 345,675 clergymen who officiated at 643,890 weddings, and they were paid $497,365.80, or a little more than 77 cents for each wedding. If this is the average, what, when we know how many men there are that appreciate the service enough to pay handsomely for it, must have been the fees of those who were paid the poorest? Upon wedding journeys, music, rice, liquors, tips and the hire of portable porte cocheres $4,567,320 was spent, which makes about $50,000,000 in all, or an average of about $77.65 for each wedding.

And it was worth every penny of it, to society and to the parties themselves.

Less than four weeks left before the primary election which is to settle the aspirations of many candidates.

The asters, the golden rod and the hay fever producing pollen of the ragweed are heralds of autumn.

The manner in which the governorship nomination has pursued Governor Johnson is a very pretty compliment, but mighty embarrassing at that.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Duluth is picnic crazy," said J. F. Reynolds, a Minneapolis salesman at the St. Louis last evening. "In all the cities that I visit there are none that compares to Duluth in the number of picnics. Every time I come here I see a dozen or more parties starting off. Don't you do anything here in the summer but go to picnics?"

• • •

"You meet a cosmopolitan crowd on that Isle Royale trip," said C. L. McBride of Milwaukee, who passed through Duluth yesterday on his way back from an outing on the island. "I spent only a week at the island, but I met people from all parts of the country, and not a few from other countries. I met an Englishman and his wife, who were traveling around the world. There were people from New York, California, Canada and New Mexico. The island seems to be better known to people 1,000 miles away than it is to people right up here in the Northwest.

"The green stone hunting is still a favorite recreation of the tourists. Many of them spend all their spare time looking for the stones, but the beaches have been pretty thoroughly picked over by this time, and the professional hunters who blast out the rock of the right formation with dynamite, are about the only ones who find any valuable stones now."

• • •

"A fruit farm in Washington for mine," said a Duluth salesman who travels through the West, to a party of friends at the Lenox last evening. "I was out there this summer in some of the fertile valleys of Washington, and I tell you the life on some of those small fruit farms looked almost ideal. The climate is beautiful, and they tell me that there is a first-class living and some thing besides on a 10-acre farm. About ten acres, they say, is all that a man can take care of. One man told me he got a return of $1,000 from an acre there last year. Of course that is exceptional and a much smaller sum is the average. Probably half of that would be a big crop. Of course such land with trees on it is very valuable and is held as high as $500, $600 and even $1,000 an acre. For a man who likes country life, that seems to me to be ideal."

• • •

"Why don't you Duluth people get wise on this vacation business?" asked a prominent range man in the Spalding lobby last evening.

"You people down here, or at least the majority of you take your vacations in the summer, when you ought to know enough to stay in Duluth, and go to some internally hot place in the South or the East, where you swelter for a couple of weeks at some hotel and come back all fagged out, physically and mentally.

"Why more people don't stay in Duluth, which is the ideal summer resort and wait until fall for a canoe trip up north is a mystery to me. Beginning the first of September we have about two months of ideal canoeing weather in Northern Minnesota. Get a congenial party of four or six and start out with packs and canoes for a trip through the northern lakes. You can go fifty miles or a thousand if you want to, and you can take it from me there is no more ideal way to spend a vacation. I never tire of it, and never let an autumn go by without getting out for a few days at least. The flies are gone, the weather is just cool enough to make a man want physical exercise, and the nights would make the most chronic insomnia sufferer sleep his head off. A month's trip with a congenial party will cure all the physical and mental ills that afflict mankind."

Stevenson of Illinois.

Washington Star (Ind.): This is an era of young men in politics. But not all the veterans have quit the scene. Here and there may be found a man of many years and scars still full of life and fight.

Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois is one of these. As a political factor he dates far back, and has witnessed many changes. He has served in congress, in the office of first assistant postmaster general and in that of vice president of the United States. Personally, he is very popular, and politically has been able to adjust himself to many difficult conditions.

In the days of greenbackism Mr. Stevenson was a leader of that cause, but this record did not interfere when Mr. Cleveland, a gold standard man, was picking new officials for the post-office department. The second place there was bestowed upon the Illinoisan. Civil service reform was one of the Cleveland shibboleths, but Mr. Stevenson swung the axe so industriously that within a few months scarcely a Republican postmaster within his reach was to be found. He was called the "headsman," and his block was very red.

In 1892 the ex-greenbacker and then silver champion was nominated for second place on the ticket with Mr. Cleveland, still a gold man. In office he and his chief got along well together, and while Mr. Cleveland was forcing his anti-silver policy through the senate, Mr. Stevenson viewed the proceedings serenely from the vice president's chair. He had no vote, but he did not utter a word in letter or interview for silver.

In 1896 Mr. Bryan characterized the Cleveland and Stevenson campaign as a bunko game. His reference was to the treatment silver had received after assurances that it would be treated fairly. But in 1900 Mr. Stevenson was nominated for second place on the ticket with Mr. Bryan, and was as comfortable in that relation with the great champion of silver as he had been eight years before with the great champion of gold.

Such a career is very unusual. It shows on the part of Mr. Stevenson versatility, adjustability, industry and staying powers. He "keeps on keepin' on." Age cannot wither him, no repeated changes exhaust his infinite variety. Will his candidacy help Mr. Bryan in Illinois? It has that purpose largely, if not solely, in view.

On Duty.

THE WEATHER.

Though a sudden squall of unusual severity sprang up out of the northwest yesterday afternoon, with a breze of fifty-four miles an hour and rainfall at the rate of more than seven inches an hour, otherwise the weather has been perfect. It is clear, cool, fine, with temperatures just about right. Last night's lowest was 42 degs., and yesterday it got up to 80 degs. The weather man says it will be fair tonight and tomorrow, with cooler weather tonight and somewhat warmer temperature tomorrow.

A year ago today it was clear, cool and pleasant.

The sun rose this morning at 5:10 and sets tonight at 7:13, making 14 hours and 3 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The barometric depression central Tuesday morning over the Red River valley has moved to the New England states. This disturbance, in connection with slight depressions overlying Arizona and the North Pacific coast region, caused light to heavy showers or thunderstorms in the western lake region, Mississippi and Lower Missouri valleys and Middle Western states during the past twenty-four hours. A severe northwest squall occurred at the Head of the Lakes Tuesday afternoon, the wind blowing at the rate of fifty-four miles per hour for one minute and .63 inch of rain falling in five minutes. An area of high pressure central over the Dakotas has caused much cooler weather throughout Manitoba, the Dakotas and Northern Minnesota. Pleasant weather is indicated for this locality tonight and Thursday."

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

Asheville	90	Memphis	90
Atlanta	94	Miles City	86
Baldford	70	Milwaukee	78
Bismarck	78	Minnedosa	68

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Aug. 19.—Local forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Thursday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermillion iron ranges—Fair weather tonight and Thursday; cool temperatures tonight; somewhat warmer Thursday.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Forecasts until 7 p. m., Thursday: Upper Michigan—Partly cloudy tonight and Thursday.

Wisconsin—Partly cloud; and cooler tonight; Thursday generally fair with cooler in south portion.

Minnesota—Generally fair tonight and Thursday; cooler in south portion tonight; warmer Thursday.

North Dakota—Generally fair tonight and Thursday; rising temperature.

Upper Lakes—Fresh to brisk northerly winds tonight and Thursday; probably local showers tonight; Thursday generally fair.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Virginia Enterprise: The mortgage tax law is receiving some hard knocks from the press of the state, and if the coming session of the legislature does not repeal the law it will not be because they should not. The law as framed was ostensibly with a view to taxing the man with money to loan on securities, but as it works out simply places an additional burden upon the borrower.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore (Rep.): Candidates for public offices sometimes make extremely funny breaks. Recently in a speech at West Duluth, Candidate Jacobson charged that the extravagance of the state of Minnesota was due to the Democratic administration. Minnesota is not under Democratic rule, and Mr. Jacobson knows it. Aside from a Democratic governor (and even his political faith is doubtful) every other elective officer in the state government, including majorities in the senate and house of representatives, is Republican. Mr. Jacobson was probably thinking of something else when he made the remark.

Hendrum Review: One of the first duties of the legislature is to repeal the mortgage registry tax. It has proven a tax on the borrower—the man who can least afford to pay it.

St. Peter Herald: The revolt in the First district is taking form. A dozen or more of the leading Republican editors of the district held a meeting at Owatonna last Saturday and they will fight the re-election of Congressman Tawney. The latter has disregarded the sentiment of his district for years and, because of his subservience to the wishes of the Cannon-Payne-Dalzell crowd during the last session of congress, he will be made to pay the penalty, as did McCleary.

Walker Pilot (Rep.): To a man who has the itch for office as bad as Jacobson has, any talk of scratching the ticket naturally irritates him.

Fairmont Sentinel: Bob Dunn, who is the power behind the throne in the Jacobson party, devotes a large portion of the editorial page of his paper to saying nice things of Jim Hill. Does the reader catch on?

Cass Lake Times: We have passed through a good many presidential campaigns and have seen the "sacred fire" kindled from a few smouldering coals into roaring flames by well-directed efforts, but have never seen political energy so lifeless and the voter so indifferent as now. There is no enthusiasm, no hurrah and bluster and visible life in the political arena except among the office seekers.

Paynesville Press: Something is the matter with Bob Dunn. His editorial page in the Princeton Union was scanned closely last week and no reference was found to "venomous curs" or "addled-brain political demagogues." He contented himself with such gentle phrases as "mercenary editors," "vultures scent the carrion crow from afar," "three-spot," "underling," etc. Robert must be sick or getting feeble-minded when he contents himself with such mild English.

Morris Sun (Rep.): It is conceded on every hand that Taft will easily carry this state in the coming election, but on the other hand, men who have traveled over the state quite generally state that there is a great deal of Bryan sentiment also, and they seem to think that the Nebraskan will come nearer carrying this state this year than in any of his previous campaigns. There is not such a keen interest taken in the national election as formerly, and as a consequence there is a ripe field here for missionary work by both parties.

Harmony in Democratic Ranks.

Chicago Journal (Ind.): For the first time in twelve years the democratic party is united in hearty support of its presidential candidate. Alton B. Parker, who ran for president four years ago, is making speeches on the Pacific coast in favor of Mr. Bryan. He made one last week in Los Angeles, and now it is announced that he will address the people of San Francisco.

Four years ago Mr. Parker had only Bryan's nominal support, and Bryan men did not even make a pretense of supporting him. The result was that he carried only the Southern states and was overwhelmingly defeated. If this years he had refused to take part in Mr. Bryan's campaign he could not have been blamed.

But Mr. Parker, and with him probably that wing of the party which heretofore has opposed Bryan, now forgets the past and takes off his coat for the party candidate. He will do all in his power to elect Bryan, which is more than several candidates against Mr. Taft at the Chicago convention are doing for the Republican nominee.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1888.

•••The North Dakota Elevator company, which moved its headquarters from Jamestown to Duluth a year ago, will again move in a few days, this time to Minneapolis. Though it will ship as much grain to Duluth as ever, it will have no office here and will consign all its grain to A. J. Sawyer's Duluth house. Mr. Chambers, general manager of the company, will leave for Minneapolis tomorrow.

•••Joseph A. Mannheim will be a candidate for county treasurer.

•••Duluth needs and should have as soon as possible a United States district court. Bills providing for setting apart the northern part of the state as a district, with sessions of the court at Duluth and Fergus Falls, have been introduced in congress, but have apparently been lost in the shuffle.

•••The West Superior opera house will be opened for the season by the Richard Foote Tragedy company, presenting "Richard III."

•••E. C. Chandler has nearly completed a dwelling house on the corner of Sixth street and Seventh avenue east.

•••The London Miller says that in less than a decade Minneapolis will be sidetracked as a milling center and that Buffalo and Duluth will grind the grist for the world.

•••Duluth stood twenty-first in the list of American financial centers last week, with bank clearings of $2,285,580.

•••Foundations of the various buildings for the blast furnace are completed, and part of the iron work for the furnace is on the ground.

•••Polk's new directory shows an increase of 5,700 people in Duluth for the year. The estimated population is 38,700.

•••Charles C. Salter, son of Rev. C. C. Salter, has arrived from California and will remain in Duluth.

•••The Boat club races drew large crowds yesterday afternoon. Myers and Chisholm won the pleasure boat race for the Bement cup, making the mile and a fifth in 8:30. W. B. Silvey and Henry D. Pearson had a close race for the single scull championship, Pearson winning by about a length, in 6:20. The novice single was won by Raymond Moore in 7:15, defeating Hopkins and McLean. Two crews, one stroked by Dean Burke and the other by Banning, started in the barge race. The Banning crew was given twenty seconds handicap and won, owing to the breaking of a rowlock in the other boat. Pearson and Moore won the doubles from Mahar and Hopkins in 5:52.

IN THE EIGHTH DISTRICT.

Ely Miner: The Eighth congressional district cannot afford to turn down J. Adam Bede at the present time. His continuous efforts in behalf of the district have borne fruit and about the only thing that the anti-Bede crowd have against him is that he stands in with the powers that be in Washington.

Bovey Iron News: Bede's enemies are claiming that Bede's support is made up of postoffice editors. This is partially true but only to a degree; but it is true and there is no getting around the statement that Bede's opposition is made up of disappointed officeseekers. D. B. Henderson, late speaker of congress and one of the greatest statesmen this country ever produced, once nearly lost a renomination because he did not have offices enough to go around and was compelled to turn down a few of his professed friends. Henderson's opponent afterwards developed into a nonenity. But had he been elected the country would have lost the service of one of its best men.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: It is true that Mr. Bede enjoys the friendship of the speaker, as he does with many another of the big men of the nation, and good common sense would seem to indicate that such alliances are rather to the good of the district Mr. Bede represents than otherwise. Those who do not gain their Washington information solely from the Duluth News Tribune know that Mr. Bede has opposed the speaker in several important matters and that he works out simply the tool the publication seeks to make the voters of the district believe.

Milaca Times: Congressman J. Adam Bede has represented the Eighth district faithfully and well in congress. The people of the district will be slow to see any necessity of making a change at this time. Which would be merely experimenting to see if they could get any other man that could do as well.

Thief River Falls Press: Congressman Bede in his speeches is defending the late session of congress. This means his own vine and fig tree for J. Adam.

Cambridge Independent Press: Minnesota has and has had many able, dignified, forceful, and famous statesmen among its Washington delegations and for our part we prefer dignified statesmanship to flippant mediocrity. Mr. Miller may not have had much experience as a legislator, but neither had Senator Davis when he first went to Washington and in the present situation we are impressed with favor by the dignified bearing, cordial manner and pleasant appearance of Mr. Miller and his utterances on public questions of importance to the people at large appeal to us as sensible and mature and the result of deliberation and thought, and as springing from a serious and dispassionate mind and one filled with patriotism and suggestive of sympathy for the laborer as well as justice to the capitalist.

Aitkin Republican: There is an impression abroad in some quarters that Hon. C. B. Miller, who is carrying on an active campaign for a congressional nomination, is the same man who ran against Mr. Bede two years ago, but such is not the case. Mr. Miller is an attorney of Duluth and two years ago was elected to the legislature, where his cleverness in debate and oratorical ability soon won him a place among the influential leaders of the house. The man who opposed Congressman Bede two years ago was E. L. Millar, publisher of the Duluth Trade News.

Ely Miner: The esteemed News Tribune of Duluth has been plunged into extreme silence by the accusation of J. Adam Bede that it is a "malicious liar." J. Adam knows whereof he speaks and would not make the accusation if good and sufficient evidence was not at hand to make it stick. The Bede record in congress as given by the morning daily of Duluth was directly opposite to that given by other papers.

Sea Monsters.

A loan shark bathes in the summer sea
By the sandy Jersey shores.
And an inky squid and a stinging ray
Swear they will have his gore.
A devilfish comes at their call to arms
And a Portuguese man-of-war,
And the dogfish bark at the bold loan shark
And he bathes on the sandy bar.

"Let the swordfish draw and the sea-horse relgh
And the drumfish set to drumming!"
He wallows away in the nice, clean spray
And he doesn't know what's a-coming.

The wavering seagull flaps its wings,
And the wild waves wildly wave him,
But the Jerseacow is angered now,
And nothing on earth can save him.

The gray crab catches him under the tide,
The dogfish snap at his heels,
And they shock him stiff with a current supplied
By a school of electric eels.
Then off they swim, to a funeral march
Played on a comb by a merman,
And bury him dank in the uttermost bank
While a puff-fish preaches the sermon.

LOVING CUP FOR EVANS

Retiring Admiral Presented With Handsome Token by Friends.

Pleasing Ceremony Held at Hotel at Lake Mohonk, N. Y.

Lake Mohonk, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Far from grim warships and the sea, where he spent nearly half a century in the service of his country Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans of the United States navy, who is at this quiet mountain hotel, reached the age limit of 62 years yesterday and passed from the ranks of the country's active fighters.

In reply to a friend who asked the admiral how he felt on his sixty-second birthday, he replied characteristically: "Fit as a fiddle. I am 62 years young today and I expect to reach 100. I am taking on flesh at the rate of half a pound a day, and I haven't got a thing to do but loaf. Who wouldn't get well under such circumstances?"

The formal celebration in honor of the admiral took place this evening in the large parlor of the Mountain hotel.

The room was gaily decorated with American flags, but the feature which attracted the attention of everybody was a battle-scarred flag, which the admiral carried on the Iowa during the battle with the Spanish fleet at Santiago. Albert K. Smiley introduced as presiding officer of the ceremonies J. Edward Simmons of New York. When Admiral Evans was brought into the room in a wheel chair, the audience applauded him vigorously, keeping it up until the admiral silently raised his hand as a request for silence. Mr. Simmons then delivered an eulogy of the admiral.

A large number of letters from men distinguished in public and private life were then read by Mr. Simmons.

Among others who sent letters regretting their inability to be present, were Governor Hughes, Paul Morton, former secretary of the navy, and Gen. Anson G. McCook. Each letter voiced the writer's high appreciation of the admiral and his services to his country.

Following the reading of the letters, impromptu addresses eulogizing the admiral were made by Col. Walter S. Franklin of Baltimore, F. W. Stevens, vice chancellor of New Jersey, Judge Geore of Champaign, Ill., Commodore F. C. Benedict of New York and Rev. Dr. Herrick Johnson of St. Louis.

After the audience had sung "America," Dr. Andrew Draper of New York made the address of presentation of the loving cup, which was a gift to Admiral Evans from the guests of the hotel.

In accepting the loving cup Admiral Evans said in part:

"Ladies and gentlemen: In one respect at least naval officers are exactly like any other worthy servants of the people—they are glad when they have pleased their employers. From what I have heard and seen here tonight it seems that during my forty-eight years of actual service I have given satisfaction to you who may fairly be assumed to represent the people of the United States—my employers. I have not the necessary words with which to thank you for what you have tonight done for me. Please accept my sincere thanks for the beautiful cup, which will be preserved and valued by those of my family who survive me.

"It may not be out of place for me to say that during my forty-eight years of service I have done all in my power to uphold the honor and dignity of my country, and that I have loved the dear old flag as I love nothing else in this world. That I have suffered severely under that flag must be evident to any one who sees me, but I would live my life over again just as I have lived it if I knew the suffering was to be a thousand times as great. I go to the retired list with a feeling that it is a reward for long and honorable service, and I hope to enjoy the rest and comfort it may bring, unless some emergency shall call me back into active service, when I shall give all that remains of me to my country as willingly as I have given the best years of my manhood. I thank you again most sincerely for the courtesy you have shown me."

Cheering and applause followed Admiral Evans' speech. Just at the close of the exercises a huge birthday cake, covered with sixty-two lighted candles, was brought into the room. This gift seemed to please the admiral more than any other part of the ceremony of the evening. A reception followed and men, women and children vied with each other in their efforts to show their admiration of Fighting Bob.

OLDEST MONTANAN ANSWERS THE CALL.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 19.—James Boner, aged 101, the oldest man in the state of Montana, was found dead in bed at his home near Virginia City. Boner was one of the familiar characters of the early days in Montana. He was one of the teamsters of Gen. Johnston's memorable expedition to Utah in 1857. Boner came to Montana in 1863 with Joseph Alfred Slade, who was later hanged by the vigilantes because he had cut off the ears of a man, had shot him full of holes, and offered the ears in jest as payment for drinks.

DEBATE ON TELEPHONE FRANCHISE IS HEATED

"Liar, Liar, Liar" Shouts Manager Hubbard in Excited Tones.

Mass Meeting Declares Against the Proposed Amendment.

Organized labor in Duluth apparently is strongly against allowing the Zenith Telephone company to charge a toll on its Duluth-Superior lines.

At the mass meeting held in the council chambers last evening, called for the purpose of learning public sentiment on the proposed amendment to the franchise, the attendance of sixty-five persons consisted almost entirely of union men. Business men of the city have shown what is, to the aldermen, an annoying lack of interest in the matter.

During the course of the meeting a communication was received from the carpenters' union, representing 432 members, entering a vigorous protest against the proposed amendment. A big majority of the men present last night registered their vote against the proposition, and some of them spoke against it. Walter Thompson, local manager for the Singer Sewing Machine company, leading the opposition. At times the arguments became rather warm and personalities were indulged in.

"Liar" Shouted Hubbard.

At one stage of the game Manager Hubbard of the telephone company jumped to his feet and excitedly shouted "liar, liar, liar," after Mr. Thompson had made the statement that he knew of two directors in the concern, who were buying common stock, and that one of the bookkeppers was trafficking in the stock, also. This was the most exciting scene during the evening, although Mr. Thompson and Mr. Hubbard in more polite terms virtually called each other liars several times.

Their statements were so radically opposed when it came to giving alleged facts concerning the company, that the average layman, who was acquainted with neither Mr. Thompson or Mr. Hubbard, was left to his own judgment as to the honesty of the two men, deciding on one or the other of them, and then placing what belief he could in the statements made by the favorite in the "honesty" contest.

Alderman McKnight opened the meeting. He read the proposed amendment to the franchise, as introduced by himself at the council meeting the previous evening, the communications received by the council from the telephone company, the reports of committees, etc., adding an outline of the situation as he saw it, with arguments both for and against, and presented by friends of the company and friends of the opposition. He was nominated ass permanent chairman, but declined the honor, and J. F. Armstead was elected in his place. E. J. Kenney was made secretary. Nearly all the aldermen were on hand, and the mayor was also in attendance.

Attorney Bert Fesler and Mr. Hubbard appeared for the telephone company and carefully explained its side of the case, saying it would be utterly impossible to comply with the demands of the city council in the way of placing the wires in underground conduits unless an additional source of revenue were provided, and stating that the only practical way they saw of increasing the revenue would be to charge a toll between Duluth and Superior. They expressed the belief that it would be suicidal to raise the regular local rates, and thought it unfair that all the subscribers should be made to suffer for a privilege which was of use to only a few.

Mr. Fesler began by saying there could be no doubt as to the value to the community of an independent telephone company, as opposed to the Bell people, or as to the fact that conditions had been greatly benefited locally since the independent company was started here. He declared that in the time it has operated here the Zenith company has lost $110,000 in cash, and that it has absolutely no money with which to make the improvements asked for now. He stated that no more preferred stock could be issued, without letting the stock fall below par. He explained that since the company was organized it has paid only two quarterly dividends, they being 1½ per cent in each case. No dividend has been paid in the last eight years. He carefully went over the position of the company and explained why more preferred stock could not be issued until an additional source of income is provided. He said the charge of a toll between Duluth and Superior would pay interest on preferred stock up to $200,000.

Only Source of Revenue.

"This is the only possible source of revenue we can figure on," said Mr. Fesler. "Duluth and Superior present the only instance in the United States of free telephone service between two cities. Less than 10 per cent of our subscribers make more than 90 per cent of the calls between Duluth and Superior. It is hardly fair that the remainder of the subscribers should be called upon to stand the burden of maintaining the service between the two points, when they get practically no use from the lines, as compared to the 10 per cent. Our franchise reads so that we cannot raise the rates of any telephone without raising the rate of all, so that means of reaching the 10 per cent is denied us."

Here Fred Reynolds asked regarding the proposition made the city by the company at the last mass meeting, offering to give the city a controlling interest. Mr. Fesler said that, as a guarantee of its sincerity in the present matter, the Zenith people stood ready and willing to give the city a controlling interest in the company if it would take over the company and manage it.

Walter Thompson had brought a formidable array of figures along with him. He said that in 1902 the company showed a deficit of $4,479, that in 1903 its surplus earnings were $5,085.17; in 1904 the surplus amounted to $10,-977.25; was $20,175.07 in 1905; $17,-299.60 in 1906, and $23,641.20 in 1907. He said that in view of these figures, taken from the reports filed by officials of the company with the city comptroller, he could see no reason why dividends should not have been paid each year. According to his statements, in 1903 a dividend of 5 per cent should have been paid on the common stock; in 1904, 10 per cent, in 1905, 20 per cent, in 1906; and in 1907 25 per cent, leaving a balance in the treasury every year of from $3,000 to $6,453.

Claims It Is Big Steal.

"The proposed toll charge," he declared, is a bigger steal than when the water and light company tried to sell its plant to the city for $2,000,000. The next thing we know they will be asking us to pay a toll between Duluth and West Duluth. What other cities are doing has nothing to do with the local proposition. They should not be taken into consideration at all. I am surprised that the common council should for a moment even consider the proposition of the telephone people. The aldermen are humiliating us by asking us to vote on the proposition, even.

In answer to a question, Mr. Fesler said $20,000 worth of extensions and replacements were needed at present, with no money to make them. Mr. Hubbard said the surplus money spoken of by Mr. Thompson all went to pay for extensions, replacements and other improvements. He said the books of the company were open at any time to any one interested, and declared that in five minutes confidential talk with Mr. Thompson or any business man in the city of Duluth he would be able to convince his hearer or hearers that Mr. Fesler had made a clear exposition of the company's case. He gave some figures in partial proof of his claim, and asked that the newspaper men withhold them, for he thought it better for every one concerned if these were not published, but said he was willing to go over these same figures and the books of the company with any committee that might be named. The figures had to do with the cost of installing telephone service, etc. He said that the entire surplus mentioned by Mr. Thompson had gone into construction, etc., and that in order to serve the people at all satisfactorily these improvements had been absolutely essential.

Mr. Hubbard declared that if the city continued to grow at its present rate, as it is expected it will continue to grow, it will be necessary for the company, in keeping pace with the progress of Duluth, to spend $500,000 in improvements within the next ten years, and from $1,000,000 to $1,600,000 will have to be spent inside of the next twenty years. He asserted that the Zenith company now has 700 or 800 more actual subscribers than the Bell company, and that a gain over the Bell people is being shown every year. He expressed the belief that none of the subscribers in Duluth have paid an adequate price for telephone service since the independent company became established, but said rates in general could not be raised because the patrons of the company were recruited largely from the poorer classes, who would have to have their telephones taken out if the price were raised.

"The free service to Superior is an absolutely unfair and iniquitous proposition," he declared. "Unless we can charge a toll between Duluth and Superior, we are up against the proposition of making the poor man pay the bills of the rich man. We, who invested our money in the company, have lost it, have received no interest on it, and have given our labor and endeavors entirely without compensation in the interests of the company. We are making no complaint on this score. We went into the deal with our eyes open, thinking it was a money-making proposition. It proved to be otherwise. The investment did not pan out the way we expected, and our money is gone. We have no more reason for complaining than the men who have lost money in other legitimate business ventures. Only we have now reached a point where we absolutely cannot go any farther in complying with the city's improvement demands, unless an additional revenue is provided, and, as we have stated before, the only means we see of raising this additional revenue is by a toll charge between Duluth and Superior.'

The Zenith Telephone company, it was explained, at present represents a cash investment of something over $400,000.

Dr. J. N. Tufty said he did not believe it was right for the free toll system to be in effect between Duluth and a point outside the state or county. H. L. Shepherd said it wasn't right to ask the 90 per cent to pay for the privilege used by the 10 per cent.

The amendment, allowing the telephone company to charge a toll of 10 cents for every call between the two cities, with a cent charged for each additional minute above 10 minutes, will be acted upon by the council next Monday night.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

That the Panama canal can be completed within five years, and at much less cost to the government than has been generally supposed, is the information which Col. Goethals, engineer in charge of the work, is expected to bring Secretary of War Wright from the isthmus, next month.

Another mining camp, near Jellico, Tenn., was cleared of negroes Tuesday by an armed band. Notice has been served on all negroes within a thirty-mile radius, to get out in three days, and even Jellico and La Follette are threatened. It is reported that a cabin has been burned and six negroes cremated.

Congressman Tawney of Minnesota has announced that Republican headquarters would be opened Sept. 11, in rooms rented in the Auditorium hotel, Chicago.

While the Baldwin airship had been accepted, as far as construction, speed and endurance were concerned, Capt. Baldwin still had one provision of his contract to carry out. This was to train two signal corps officers to handle the craft. Tuesday, in an hour's time, he trained three officers to Gen. Allen's satisfaction.

SKIN CLEARED

By Simple Change in Food.

It has been said by a physician that most diseases are the result of indigestion.

There's undoubtedly much truth in the statement, even to the cause of many unsightly eruptions, which many suppose can be removed by applying some remedy on the outside.

By changing her food a Kansas girl was relieved of an eczema which was a great annoyance to her. She writes: "For five months I was suffering with an eruption on my face and hands which our doctor called eczema and which caused me a great deal of inconvenience. The suffering was almost unbearable.

"The medicine I took only gave me temporary relief. One day I happened to read somewhere that eczema was caused by indigestion. Then I read that many persons had been relieved by eating Grape-Nuts.

"I decided to try it. I liked the taste of the food and was particularly pleased to notice that my digestion was improving and that the eruption was disappearing as if by magic. I had at last found, in this great food, something that reached my trouble.

"When I find a victim of this affliction I remember my own former suffering and advise a trial of Grape-Nuts food instead of medicines." "There's a Reason."

READING BIBLE IN SCHOOLS.—The constitution of Texas provides that no money shall be appropriated from the treasury for the benefit of any sect or religious society, theological or religious seminary, or for the support of any sectarian school, and that no one shall be compelled to support any place of worship against his consent. In Church et. al. vs. Bullock et al., 109 Southwestern Reporter, 115, it was held by the supreme court of Texas that the singing of hymns and reading from the King James version of the Bible did not convert a school into a place of worship, so as to deprive it of the right to public funds for its maintenance.

CONSTRUCTIVE EVICTION.—Plaintiff in Jackson vs. Paterno, 108 New York Supplement, 1073, leased an apartment from defendant. There was no stipulation in the lease as to heat, but more actual subscribers than the Bell more actual subscribers than the Bell company, and that a gain over the Bell people is being shown every year. He expressed the belief that none of the subscribers in Duluth have paid an adequate price for telephone service since the independent company became established, but said rates in general could not be raised because the patrons of the company were recruited largely from the poorer classes, who would have to have their telephones taken out if the price were raised.

"The free service to Superior is an absolutely unfair and iniquitous proposition," he declared. "Unless we can charge a toll between Duluth and Superior, we are up against the proposition of making the poor man pay the bills of the rich man. We, who invested our money in the company, have lost it, have received no interest on it, and have given our labor and endeavors entirely without compensation in the interests of the company. The Protective Tariff.

To the Editor of The Herald:

"The protective tariff has two purposes," said the Republican statesman. "The first is, to shut out the low-priced products of foreign pauper labor, and thus allow our manufacturers to sell their product at higher prices, so that they can pay high wages."

"I see," said the intelligent voter; he was very intelligent.

"The second object of protection is to encourage competition in the home market by making manufacturing profitable, with the result that this competition reduces prices,"

"I see," said the intelligent voter.

"In other words," observed the statesman, "protection puts prices up for the producer, and reduces prices for the consumer."

"I see," said the intelligent voter, and straightway enrolled himself as a member of the Theodore Taft First Voter League. PACK.

INHERITANCE BY MURDER—The action in Perry vs. Strawbridge, 108 Southwestern Reporter, 641, was instituted for partition of real estate formerly owned by a Mrs. Evans, murdered by her husband, a suicide. Two daughters of Evans by a former wife claimed as heir on the ground that he had inherited an interest through his murdered wife. The supreme court of Missouri decided that Evans took no interest in his wife's estate when he murdered her, and therefore his daughters inherited nothing.

INJURY TO PASSENGER FROM IMPLEMENT CARRIED ON CAR—In the case of Farrier vs. Colorado Springs Rapid Transit Railway company, 35 Pacific Reporter, 234, it was shown that a passenger mounted a trailer attached to an electric car, and placed a long hoe that he carried on the front platform, so that its handle was just beneath the hood of the front car. Owing to an irregularity of the track the weight of the hood of the first car descended upon the handle, causing it to splinter, and a piece of it to fly backward, strike and injure a passenger within. It appeared that the conductor knew of the position of the hoe, but did not request the owner to change it. The supreme court of Colorado held that the question of the negligence of the conductor in permitting the hoe to remain in its position was for the jury.

DAMAGE FOR ILLEGAL MARRIAGE—In the case of Colt vs. O'Conner et al., 109 New York Supplement, 689, recently before the supreme court of New York, a woman who had married testator in good faith, and had nursed him through a long illness, keeping their marriage secret at his request, was allowed to recover damages for the injury caused by marrying her while he had a wife living.

MISTREATMENT OF ILL PERSON—The son-in-law of plaintiff was janitor of an apartment house, in the basement of which he resided. While plaintiff was there she was seized with erysipelas. Defendant, the landlord, learning this, told the janitor that if she were not removed by noon he would call an officer and put them all out. Thereupon plaintiff left. In Tucker vs. Burt, 115 Northwestern Reporter, 722, she claimed damages for the resulting aggravation of her malady. The supreme court of Michigan held the janitor was merely an employe, not a tenant; that he had no right to entertain a guest obnoxious to defendant; and that defendant violated no duty in causing her removal.

PRESUMPTION THAT ATTORNEYS' SERVICES ARE GRATUITOUS.—Plaintiffs, attorneys, were engaged by defendant's agent and sent pleadings by his other attorneys, but there was no proof or authority on the part of any of these persons to contract for the payment of attorney's fees, and the New Jersey court of errors and appeals in Bentley vs. Fidelity & Deposit Co., 69 Atlantic Reporter, 202, held that no recovery could be had without proof of such contract, and that no liability arose from the simple fact of performance of services, as they were presumed to be gratuitous.

LIABILITY OF VENDER OF UNWHOLESOME FOOD.—In Farrell vs. Manhattan Market Co., 84 Northeastern Reporter, 481, it appeared that plaintiff purchased a chicken at a bargain counter, and on eating a portion of it suffered from ptomaine poisonings. The determining factor of the case was a question of evidence as to whether the dealer was responsible for plaintiff's choice of the fowl or whether she made her choice without reliance on his skill. The supreme judicial court of Massachusetts held that the burden of proof on this proposition was on plaintiff and that she had failed to sustain it.

OBSTRUCTION OF STREAM BY LOGGING OPERATIONS.—The Supreme judicial court of Maine in Smart vs. Aroostok Lumber Co., 68 Atlantic Reporter, 527, held that, although defendant logging company had monopolized the commercial business on a navigable stream by filling it with floating logs, plaintiff was entitled to its use for access to his summer cottage, and that navigation for the purpose of mere pleasure is as much within the protection of the law as a use for commercial purposes.

PREFERENCE OF BANKRUPT STOCKBROKER.—A broker, having pledged stocks, becoming insolvent, redeemed certain of them, and turned them over to the customer for whom they were purchased. On the ground that this transaction constituted a preference, the trustee in bankruptcy brought action for recovery, alleging that, as the broker was under no obligation to deliver particular certificates to the customer, the relation of debtor and creditor, rather than of pledge and pledgor, existed at the time of insolvency. The United States supreme court in Richardson vs. Shaw, 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 512, held that the real character of the broker was that of common-law pledgee, and, the certificates of stock being merely tokens of ownership, it was immaterial that he was not compelled to return any designated ones to his customer.

NATURALIZATION.—The petitioner in Re Wehrli, 157 Federal Reporter, 938, filed a declaration of intention to become a citizen in 1898, but failed to complete the naturalization proceedings before congress, in 1906, passed an act providing that an alien may file a petition to be naturalized not less than two nor more than seven years after declaration of intention. It was claimed that his right was barred, but the United States district court held that the statute, being one of limitation, should not be given a retrospective effect, and the act would not bar the right until seven years after its passage.

BANKER GIVEN DOSE.

Sioux Falls, S. SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

DULUTH SOX ARE BEATEN

Hibbing Wins First Game of Series From Misfit Team.

Sox Go Without Catcher and Use Three Men in Position.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—A misfit aggregation, wearing the uniform of the Duluth team of the Northern league, was humbled here yesterday by Judge Brady's Hibbing Colts, the score being 4 to 1. The Duluthians were outplayed in the field and at bat and the Hibbing team had very little trouble winning.

The lack of a catcher was the stone on which the Sox stubbed their toes and fell in a heap. They failed to bring a catcher with them, and the result was disastrous. Koepping went behind the bat at first, but in the fifth inning his thumb was broken and he had to retire. Thompson won in, but he couldn't hold down the job and was sent back to short. Monroe finished the game behind the bat.

Brandt pitched for Duluth and was wild and ineffective. The Hibbing men got to him for seven well-placed hits, while Gilchrist held the Duluthians in check all the way, with four hits and one lonesome score. The Hibbing team played fine ball in the field in the pinches, while dumb play on the part of the Duluth infield helped the home team in several places.

Duluth scored their only run, the first of the game, in the fourth inning. Hopkins walked, was sacrificed to second by Monroe, stole third and reached home on Ness' out to shortstop.

Hibbing evened it in the fifth on Moynihan's single, a wild pitch and a tangle at first base over Booth's grounder. In the sixth, Brookins singled, went to second on Fagin's sacrifice, to third on Gilchrist's out to left and scored when Calligan hit for three bases. In the seventh, Hibbing scored two more and sewed up the game. Geiselman reached first on a wild throw by Thompson, went to second when Brandt fumbled Moynihan's sacrifice; Booth sacrificed both men along. Carroll fanned. Geiselman scored on a wild pitch and Brookins hit for two sacks, scoring Moynihan.

The game was fast and fairly well played, but there was nothing spectacular about it. The fans were well pleased, and the Sox will undoubtedly draw well here for the remainder of the series.

The detailed score of the game follows:

LASKER IS WINNER.

World's Chess Champion in Match With Dr. Tarrasch.

Dusseldorf, Aug. 19.—Dr. Emanuel Lasker of New York, the world's chess champion, was the victor in the first game of the chess match of eight games up between himself and Dr. Tarrasch of Neuremberg for the championship of the world. Dr. Lasker won on the fifty-fifth move.

The game between the two masters was begun Monday and adjourned at the thirty-second move after four hours' play. Lasker at that time having a king's pawn advantage. Yesterday Tarrasch missed an opportunity of making the game a draw because he exchanged his remaining bishop for Lasker's knight. Then Lasker carried out a fine hook manouver, using to advantage his pawn superiority on the king's side and securing a passed pawn with which he captured Tarrasch's book. The second game will be played today.

THOMAS OUT IN SECOND

Californian is Saved by Gong in First and Finished in Second.

San Francisco, Aug. 19.—After about one minute and a half of fighting, in the second round, last night, Stanley Ketchell of Grand Rapids, Mich., knocked out Joe Thomas of this city with a shower of punches to the jaw and body.

In the first round Thomas landed a couple of punches to the body, which seemed to give him confidence. Ketchell backed Thomas into a corner, made a half shift and caught Joe on the side of the head with a hard left handed punch. Ketchell then feinted Thomas wide open and sent in a fierce right hander on the stomach, putting Thomas down for the count of seven. When Joe arose, Ketchell sent him down again with hard rights and lefts to the body and jaw.

When Thomas toed the scratch for the second round, it was only a question of how long he could stand in front of the hurricane fighter from Michigan. Ketchell rushed Thomas, and after a little sparring sent him to the mat for the count of eight. Ketchell rushed Thomas to the ropes and hammered him unmercifully about the head and body. Referee Smith had counted nine over him, when Capt. Anderson of the police department motioned Smith to stop the encounter. Thomas had absolutely no chance to continue the fight. Ketchell was a 10 to 4 favorite.

CHAMPIONS WIN TENNIS DOUBLES

Hackett and Alexander Defend Title Against Wright and Little.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—The superiority of superlative team work over brilliant individual play was demonstrated at the opening day of the twenty-eighth annual national championship tennis tournament on the Casino courts yesterday, where H. H. Hackett and F. B. Alexander of New York successfully defended their title to the championship in doubles by defeating B. C. Wright of Boston and R. D. Little of New York, three sets to love. The scores were 6-1, 7-5, 6-0.

The match of the championship yesterday was disappointing almost from the start. Out of the twenty-five games which were played only nine went to deuce, while in the first and third sets the challengers took only twenty-one out of the seventy-five points which were scored by both teams. Little's errors lost the first set, and Wright's the second, while the quality of Hackett's play was the feature of the third. Alexander bore the brunt of the work in the first and second sets, and did so well that although he drove repeatedly at Wright, the latter could not stand the pace.

Hackett and Alexander now have two legs in the championships and will win permanent possession of the cup if they defend their title next year.

Good progress was made yesterday in the singles. There were few surprises. Among the twelve defeats the most prominent was that of L. X. Waldner of Chicago, one of the Western champions in doubles.

AUTO CLUBS BREAK.

One Great National Association Puts Ban on the Other.

New York, Aug. 19.—The Automobile Club of America, through its contest committee, at a meeting of that body last night, officially placed the ban of the automobile clubs of Europe upon the Vanderbilt cup race, to be held by the American Automobile association Oct. 24 on Long Island. A resolution was adopted declaring that any manufacturer, driver, owner, mechanic or agent taking part in this or any other American international race not sanctioned by the club will be debarred from all races to be held in the future here or abroad, under the sanction of any member of the International Association of Recognized Automobile clubs of which the Automobile Club of America is the only American member. The action marks the final break between the two great automobile clubs.

TEAM IS SELECTED.

Hackett, Alexander, Larned and Wright to Represent America.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—Official announcement was made last night of the make-up of the team which will represent the United States in the contest with the British team, preliminary to the international tennis matches for the Davis cup, to be held in Australia this year. The men chosen are H. H. Hackett and F. B. Alexander, both of New York, who successfully defended their title to the championship in doubles yesterday, William A. Larned of Annapolis, Md., the national champion, and B. C. Wright of Boston.

SCOT IS ELIMINATED.

David Jolly Loses in Golf Semi-Finals at Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—David Jolly of St. Andrews, Scotland, was eliminated yesterday from play for the Western Junior golf championsip at the Westward Ho Golf club and Charles Evans of Edgewater and Albert Seckel of Riverside will meet in the finals today for the title. Jolly was defeated in the semi-finals by Evans, 3 and 2. Seckel won the right to appear in the finals by defeating Donald Edwards of Midlothians 1 up. The contestants of yesterday will play 36-holes in the Bridge match.

EEL PACES FAST MILE.

First Heat of 2:16 Pace at Poughkeepsie Run in 2:02½.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The feature of the opening day of the grand circuit meeting at the Hudson river driving park yesterday was the 2:16 pace, in the first heat of which the Eel went in 2:02½. He thus beat the track race record, his own record, and made the fastest mile paced in the Grand Circuit this year. The Eel's chief competitor was George Gano. The first heat was a great race between these two horses, to the three-quarter post. It was then that the Gano horse began to slacken speed and the Eel won eased up. The Eel won the second and third heats in 2:05 and 2:06 respectively. The last quarter of the second heat was paced in 29¾ seconds.

Jack Leyburn won the 2:09 trot, with comparative ease, after losing the first heat by a break soon after the word was given. This heat went to Locust Jack, reducing his record from 2:11 to 2:08½.

Geers won the 2:16 trot with Loyal, after losing the first heat to Raffles.

GREAT SHOOTING RECORD.

Capt. Casey Makes a Remarkable Score at Camp Perry.

Camp Perry, Ohio, Aug. 19.—What is said to have been the most extraordinary long range rifle shooting ever seen in America, was accomplished yesterday by Capt. K. K. V. Casey of the First Delaware, in the Leech and Winbledom cup matches, both of which he won by record-breaking scores. In the Leech match for the cup represented by Capt. Leech of the Irish team which visited New York in 1874, a match at 800, 900 and 1,000 yards Casey scored 104 out of a possible 105. In the Wimbledon 1,000 yard match yesterday afternoon, he scored 97, beating the match record of 91, made by Capt. Richards of Ohio in 1903. Casey won the Wimbledon here last year by the score of 88.

The Wimbledon match was continued from Monday. About 275 riflemen participated in this event, the largest of the individual contests conducted by the national rifle association. The Wimbledon contest was open to all comers.

Papke Has Advantage.

New York, Aug. 19.—"Billy" Papke of Illinois had the better of a six-round bout with Sailor Burke of this city at the National Athletic club last night. No decision was rendered.

PLANS FOR NEXT YEAR

Duluth Magnates Working to Put City in Bigger Circuit.

New Northern League or Franchise in Western Are Possibilities.

Because Duluth is out of organized baseball for this year, it doesn't follow that it will be for evermore. The invasion of the Twin Cities, which has been talked of more or less for the past two years, may come about next year. If it does, Duluth will have better baseball than ever before.

A. W. Kuehnow went to Minneapolis yesterday and will have a conference with Mike Cantillon of the Minneapolis club and George Lennon of the St. Paul club of the American association. He will probably learn something definite on the trip, and plans for a new league or Duluth's membership in an old one will be made immediately, so that there may be no hitch on account of lack of time before the opening of the season of 1909.

Two plans are alive by which Duluth will have organized baseball. One provides for the placing of Northern league teams in the Twin Cities to play dates when the American association teams are on the road. Another is hinged on the possibility of the St. Paul franchise of the American association being transferred to Chicago. Both Lennon and Cantillon are heartily in favor of the former plan, and it is believed that the other association magnates will give their consent, which is necessary before the Northern could invade the Twin Cities under the protection of the National association.

The latter plan may take time in working out. The invasion of Chicago by the American association was proposed last year, and fell through. This year it is believed another attempt will be made, and it may succeed. In that event the Western league will immediately enter St. Paul and, in order to fill out this end of the circuit and make an even number of teams, will take in Duluth.

The Western league plan is the better of the two, but it is based on the possibility of the American association going into Chicago, which is doubtful at best. However, a Northern league with St. Paul and Minneapolis in the circuit, would certainly be a success, and Duluth fans would see good ball without the possibility of the league blowing up in the middle of the season on account of lack of support.

If the Sox are to win the majority of their games with the range teams, it will not be by presenting a makeshift line-up on the field. Yesterday's game, when they attempted to play without a catcher, is an indication of what they may expect unless the team is kept right up to the minute in its personnel. Yesterday's mishap probably could not have been avoided at the time, but one would think that a catcher would certainly be provided for before the team left for the range. As a result of the whole thing, Koepping is probably out of the game for the remainder of the season and the Sox are weakened just that much.

The range teams are not weaklings. They cannot be beaten by any old thing with the name of a league attached to it. Real players playing real baseball must be put in the field if any of the strong range teams are to be humbled.

The fans want to see the Sox take a majority of the games from the range clubs. They want to see it just as much as they ever wanted to see Duluth win a pennant in the Northern league. The range fans have been talking for years. They have boosted range ball until the believer in organized wants to see them get it right between the shoulders and the head. It is just as necessary that the Sox be kept up to A1 ability now as it ever was during the season, and nothing else will satisfy.

Now for Stanley Ketchell and Tommy Burns. Ketchell's victory over Joe Thomas was such that there is no doubt of his being the greatest fighting machine at his weight the country has ever seen. He disproved, to all appearances, the stories of his indiscretions in the way of leaning against the mahogany. No man could fight as he did last night without being in trim for it, and he certainly realizes what will happen to him when he meets Tommy Burns if he is not right up to the highest fighting pitch.

What a fight that will be! Tommy is a wily fighter and Ketchell is a cyclone. When the two clash, the dust will fly, and when somebody goes down, the crash will be heard all over the fighting world.

Burns will certainly be compelled to give Ketchell a fight. The Michigan boy has come to the front with a rush, beaten everything in his class so decisively that there is no doubt of his supremacy, and now is in a position to go after the heavyweight title. Burns cannot fight shy of him, for he is the logical aspirant for a title Burns holds by the grace of Jim Jeffries and a lot of dubs. Burns hasn't met a real fighter since he secured the title, but when he meets Ketchell he will at least know that he is in a fight.

The Winnipeg papers, piqued over the failure of the Maroons to win the Northern league pennant, and the success of Brandon, which is held in Winnipeg as the mastiff holds the yellow cur, blame Duluth for the disruption of the Northern league.

Their line of reasoning is positively funny. Because the Duluth management would not come across with about $200 to the fund to pay up the back salaries of the Fargo club, and agree to help carry the Fargo team for the remainder of the season, the failures and misfortunes of President Lamb and the Winnipeg team are heaped on the shoulders of the Duluth magnates, and Winnipeg is left free to harp on the hard luck and misfortune string.

Duluth always has been the butt of the other cities when the Northern league went to smash. Four years ago it was because Duluth made a runaway race of it, last year because Duluth objected to the small attendance in the Copper country, and this year because Duluth wouldn't pay salaries for a losing club, so that Winnipeg might have a chance to overhaul Brandon and win the pennant. The Duluth people don't mind. The misdirected wrath of the Winnipeg people will not injure Duluth, and the baseball enthusiasts will try to meander along without Winnipeg and, possibly, get into a bigger league than Winnipeg ever could. Winnipeg wants no more of Duluth, and Duluth doesn't care for any more of Lamb, thank you.

RACE CALLED OFF.

Lipton Cup Yachts Fail to Cover Course in Allotted Time.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—The Lipton cup contestants failed to cover the course within the time limit of three hours yesterday, and the third race of the series was declared off, with the leading yacht, the Spray, of the Chicago Yacht club, six minutes from the finish line. The Cleveland would have won second place had the race been completed. The wind was light from the south-southeast. Victory for the Spray yesterday would have given her the cup by 1-10 point advantage over the Cleveland entry. The race will be sailed today, weather permitting, over the same course, a quadrangle, three miles to the leg.

BUTTERFLY IN LEAD.

Minnetonka Boat Again Finishes First in Her Class.

Minneapolis, Aug. 19.—In the second day's racing of the Inland Lakes Yacht association at Minnetonka yesterday Butterfly, the Minnetonka boat, again won in her class, with Merry Widow of White Bear second and Royal Flush of Calhoun third. In Class C, Skip, the Minnetonka boat, defeated Doe Wah Jack of the Hislakee club.

Butterfly now has 12 points, Merry Widow 10, Royal Flush 8, Twenty-three 3, Virginia 2, and Young America 2. Skip and Doe Wah Jack are tied with 3 points each.

ACTORS VS. POLICE.

Most Spectacular Baseball of the Year Billed for Thursday.

The actors and employes of the Bijou theater and the police team will clash again at Athletic park Thursday, and the Thespians are out for revenge. Joe Maitland and "Izzie" Silver have been out every day doing a battery stunt, and Maitland is now able to throw the ball up to the plate. Formerly he tried to get the ball across the plate on the first bound, but usually it took two, so his improvement is marevious. The cops won last week, and the actor men will play with new life after the sting of defeat.

Chief Troyer will umpire, and the Bijou force will line up as follows: Catcher, Isadore Silver; pitchers, Joe Maitland and H. McClellan; first base, J. J. Desmond; second base, B. Dugan; third base, O. Anderson; shortstop, Dummy Scott; left field, Prendergast; center field, Billy Noble; right field, P. Somers; substitute, Frank Quandt.

Tuesday, Aug. 25, the Bijou team and the cops will meet in a game for the benefit of the Children's Home.

Hummers Have Record.

By beating Duluth Heights last Sunday by a 7 to 4 score, the Hummers made it nine straight victories, and they are considerably elated over their success. Manager Lavell of the Spalding team has a yell, however. He claims the Hummers cancelled a game with his team for next Sunday, and can give no valid reason. He says the Hummers evidently do not care to have their record broken, which is the only reason he can find for the calling off of the game.

Crozier is Winner.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 19.—Richard J. Crozier of Philadelphia yesterday retained the state tennis championship, defeating Arthur Clarkson of Milwaukee in three straight sets. Fred Washburn and M. Smith of St. Louis defeated R. Ernst and R. White in the doubles and finals.

CARDINAL IS MUCH SHOCKED

Milan, Aug. 19.—Cardinal Gibbons was seen at the Milan railway station on his way from Rome to Switzerland, in company with Bishop Foley of Detroit and Bishop O'Connell, rector of the Catholic university at Washington. His eminence looked well, although evidently tired by the railway journey.

When told of the race riots at Sprin Springfield, Ill., the cardinal was greatly distressed and said:

"Although I fear nothing that I could say would do much good, I wish you would say that I deplore these terrible occurances because they not only outrage Christianity, but they also strike at the foundations of our government, which owes so much of its prosperity to the existence of good feeling between the white and colored people."

The cardinal had little new to say concerning the recent important substitution of the Vacation for the propaganda in the management of American Catholic affairs.

"The change," this cardinal said, "is absolute and will no doubt redound to the honor and welfare of the church."

"I found Pope Pius looking very well," he continued, "although he weighs thirty-five pounds more than when I was last in Rome."

Bishop Foley deplored the race riots at Springfield no less than the cardinal and said:

"I believe in educating the negro, but it was a great mistake to give them votes before they were educated."

Excellent Health Advice.

Mrs. M. M. Davison, of No. 279 Gifford Ave., San Jose, Cal., says: "The worth of Electric Bitters as a general family remedy, for headache, biliousness and torpor of the liver and bowels is so pronounced that I am prompted to say a word in its favor, for the benefit of those seeking relief from such afflictions. There is more health for the digestive organs in a bottle of Electric Bitters than in any other remedy I know of." Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c.

THREE FIREMEN KILLED IN LONDON, ONT., FIRE.

London, Ont., Aug. 19.—Three firemen were killed and a fourth was dangerously hurt last night when the floors of a burning building fell upon them. The dead: Fire Chief Lawrence Clark, Firemen McQuuain and Cockburn.

The fire broke out in the basement and the firemen were in the cellar trying to get at the source of the flames when the first and second floor of the building crashed through on them. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

S.S.S. BEST TREATMENT FOR CATARRH

The entire inner portion of our bodies is covered with a soft, delicate lining called mucous membrane; this is kept in healthy condition by the nourishment and vital vigor it receives from the blood. So long as the circulation remains pure this membrane will be healthy, but when the blood becomes infected with catarrhal impurities and poisons this inner lining of the body becomes irritated and diseased, and the unpleasant and serious symptoms of Catarrh commence. There is a tight, stuffy feeling in the nose, watery eyes, buzzing noises in the ears, often slight deafness, difficult breathing, etc. The disease cannot be reached by external treatment, though such measures afford temporary relief in some instances. S. S. S. cures Catarrh by cleansing the blood of all impurities and poisons. Then as rich, pure blood circulates through the body, the inflamed, irritated membranes heal, the discharge ceases, headaches are relieved and every symptom disappears. Catarrh, being a disease in which the entire blood circulation is affected, can only be cured by a remedy that goes to the very bottom and removes every particle of the impurity from the blood. And this is just what S. S. S. does. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free.

GARFIELD IS OPTIMISTIC

Secretary of Interior Says Conditions Favor Taft's Election.

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 19.—The speech Mr. Taft will deliver here Friday to the Republicans of Virginia will involve, according to a statement of Mr. Vorys today, a general discussion with reference to the part taken by the Republican and Democratic parties in meeting the abuses of trusts and monopolies, with reference to the duty of Southern Republicans to make every effort to increase the Republican vote in the South by accession from the ranks of Independent Democrats.

James R. Garfield, secretary of the interior, reached here today, after a trip through several Western states. He made a report to Mr. Taft on political conditions as he observed them, which he said afterwards was a very optimistic report from a Republican standpoint.

"The political sentiment, as I entertained it," said Mr. Garfield, "was exceedingly favorable to Mr. Taft. There was local trouble in some of the states I visited, but I was told by both factions in each case that nothing would interfere with the head of the ticket. Business is good, crops are good, and I never have seen such heavy railroad business in the West."

Mr. Garfield said that the train on which he came was polled at Kansas City, showing 47 votes for Taft and 17 votes for Bryan.

IS MARRIED FROM BED

Goes to Hospital Instead of on Her Honeymoon.

Instead of a wedding journey with her husband, Mrs. Arthur A. Clarke, who was until a few minutes after 10 o'clock this morning, Miss Lulu A. Hockridge, was tenderly lifted into a carriage to be taken to St. Mary's hospital. The bride was taken ill yesterday and although there was no possibility of the original plans for a pretty home wedding, with friends to help celebrate the happy occasion, it was decided to have the wedding anyway and so this morning at 10 o'clock the simple service was read at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. G. Thompson of 1802 Michigan street, by Rev. James L. McBride of the Second Presbyterian church. The bride was unable to leave her bed and after the service she was taken to the hospital.

When she is able to travel Mr. Clarke will take his bride to Two Harbors, where they will be at home.

BRYAN GETS HIS MINNESOTA MULE

Mascot Sent by State Agricultural Society Reaches Lincoln.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 19.—W. J. Bryan, the Democratic candidate for the presidency today received from the Minnesota State Agricultural society the long-expected trick mule which is to be the "mascot" of the party this fall. The mule arrived in Lincoln early today and was taken out to Fairview by one of Mr. Bryan's men, where it was given a hearty welcome by the candidate and his family.

"I am going to have a caucus of newspaper correspandents to select a name for this mascot of mine," declared Mr. Bryan, as he led the animal about the lawn by a halter. "They tell me that it is the best trained mule in the United States and we will have to properly name it before the day is over."

Mr. Bryan denied himself to visitors during the morning as he was anxious to complete his several set speeches prior to his departure for Des Moines tomorrow night. He explained that he will have all his time on the ten days trip fully occupied, and must have all of the speeches ready before he starts. His bank deposit guarantee speech is in the hands of the printer and he is now working on his speech on labor, which is to be the feature of the Chicago labor day celebration.

BARNARD RE-ELECTED.

Duluth Man Pleases Directors of Old Soldiers' Home With His Work.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Minnesota Soldiers' Home last week, F. H. Barnard, formerly assistant postmaster here, was re-elected commandant of the home. He left Duluth last March to take the position and has given satisfaction in his administration of affairs.

The business of the board meeting consisted of the usual routine, to which was added the annual reports of officers and the election of officers. All the officers of the home were re-elected, as follows: S. H. Towler, president; George A. Whitney, vice president; W. H. Harries, secretary; F. H. Barnard, commandant; F. L. McKusick, adjutant; M. K. Williams, quartermaster; Dr. E. J. Davis, surgeon; Rev. Leland P. Smith, chaplain.

TOWNS STILL THREATENED

Kimberly and Sullivan in Danger From Forest Fires.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 19.—Forest fires burned all last night in the neighborhood of Kimberley, says a Cranbrook dispatch. The towns of Kimberley and Sullivan are still threatened.

The weather is now cloudy and the residents on the eastern slope of the mountains are hoping for a heavy rain to remove all danger. Everything is as dry as a cinder and when a fire starts it spreads rapidly.

Another serious fire is burning about a mile from Moyie and a change in the direction of the wind may cause its destruction. A fourth fire is burning near Ryan. There is smoke in all directions and a vast amount of valuable timber has been destroyed.

The Canadian Pacific and the government have called in their fire fighters around Kimberley, as any attempt to control the flames is out of the question.

INCIDENT AS IT REALLY WAS

Evans Tells of Remarks Concerning Spaniards' Bad Shooting.

New York, Aug. 19.—A special dispatch from Lake Mohonk, brings the following story of Admiral Evans. The other day a friend asked him: "Admiral, is there any truth that after the battle of Santiago you called out from the bridge of the Iowa to a captain of another battleship: 'Those Spaniards cannot fight a damned thing except water.'"

Admiral Evans laughed and replied: "I will tell you what I really said and what the incident really was," he said.

"One drizzly day during the blockade we stood in toward the harbor and shelled the shore batteries. It wasn't as exciting as it might have been, for whether we hit anything or not I know the Spaniards did not come near us. After the shelling was over a press boat lay alongside my ship and a newspaper man asked if we had been hit. I shouted back: 'They didn't touch us. The Spaniards didn't hit anything except water and they couldn't have hit that if there wasn't so damned much of it.'"

Some Weather Forecasts.

If the dew lies heavily on the grass in the morning, after a fine day, the one following is sure to be fine also. If not, and there is no wind, rain must come. If the wind veers about much, rain is sure. If your system needs toning up, try a case of golden grain belt beer, the ideal home tonic. ARTHUR UPSON FOUND DROWNED

At Bemidji and It is Thought He Committed Suicide.

Bemidji, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—While rowing their launch about eighty rods from the city dock, Rev. S. P. White and Floyd Brown came upon the body of Arthur Upson of Minneapolis floating in deep water.

Circumstances surrounding the finding of Upson's body, coupled with the fact that he made an attempt to take his own life by jumping off the highest part of the Tenth Avenue bridge, in Minneapolis, into the river about three years ago, gives rise to the theory that Upson drowned himself.

Friends of Mr. Upson scoff at this idea and say that Mr. Upson's mood a week ago, when he left Minneapolis, was most cheerful, a letter received since that time indicating that his thoughts were far from death.

Arthur Wheelock Upson, poet and author, was 31 years old, yet in his comparatively brief career he had won a measure of fame that comes to but few men of his years. He was best known as the author of several volumes of verse, among the most notable being "The Sign of the Harp," "The City" and a recent publication, "The Tides of Spring."

Mr. Upson was a graduate of the University of Minnesota, and afterwards was an instructor in the English department of that institution. His mother lives in Minneapolis. Former pupils and friends in Duluth lament the untimely ending of this brilliant young man.

LYCEUM—Mack-Leone players in "A Diplomatic Tangle."

AMUSING FARCE.

Mack-Leones Present Clever Comedy Which is Well Received.

The Mack-Leone players gave their first performance last night of Richard Hodge's three-act comedy drama, "A Diplomatic Tangle." The play is one of the funniest yet put on by this clever company, and made a great hit with the large audience present. The plot hovers about Leopold Fritz Jocelyn of the foreign office who is to marry a Miss Chadwick. Earlier in his career he has an escapade with "Gloriana," who still sticks to him, and has in her possession letters and photographs of which he wishes to gain possession. In order to do this he exchanges places with a servant, and enters the employ of "Gloriana." Many humorous situations and exciting climaxes are the result.

Mr. Chapman plays the part of Leopold Fritz Jocelyn, and does the best work of his career in Duluth. Miss Holmes plays the part of "Gloriana," the young widow, with her usual grace and daintiness. Frank Patton, as Timothy Chadwick, a retired tanner, gives satisfaction, as does Jap Quigley as Count Evertoff, a Russian diplomat. Marshall Farnham, as the real servant, is very funny, and both Miss Meade and Miss Cleveland give a good account of themselves in small roles.

This entire play is up to the usual Mack-Leone standard.

The Normanna Singing society sang between the acts, as they will continue to do all week, with a change of program each evening.

Mr. Mack does not appear this week in the play, being in Chicago coaching James J. Corbett in his new play. Mr. Mack will, however, appear in the cast next week, which is the last of the Mack-Leone engagement.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

TO REBUILD THEIR MILL

Shevlin-Mathieu to Erect Plant on Ruins of Spooner Fire.

They Expect to Have Larger and Better Mill Than Before.

Spooner, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Shevlin-Mathieu Lumber company will rebuild their saw mill here, which was destroyed by fire Aug. 3.

Plans and specifications are being drawn for a larger and better constructed mill than the one, which was reduced to ashes. The timbers for the main structure are now being cut, and the erection of the mill will commence as soon as the debris is disposed of.

A spur will be built from the main track of the mill, thereby work will be hastened. Laborers are at work clearing away the debris.

The company intends to have the building completed by fall. During the winter months the machinery will be installed.

The Scandinavian Missionary Friends of Spooner, have completed their new church building. The church is located on the northeast of the Church block. It is a comodious little edifice, and was dedicated Sunday.

The dedicatory ceremonies were conducted by Rev. A. Roadfelt, vice president of the Scandinavian Mission society, assisted by Rev. A. Tornell and Rev. S. Tunhurn. A number from out of town attended the services.

MINOT HAS SENSATION.

Prominent Young Man Shoots Woman He Has Courted.

Minot, N. D., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Something of a sensation was caused here by the shooting of Mrs. Mike Heinz by Charley Alley, both being prominent. The man had been paying attention to the woman and they had a serious disagreement, during which the woman became so enraged that she is said to have shot Alley in the arm. The latter is then said to have grabbed the weapon and wounded her, a bullet taking effect in the abdomen inflicting what may prove to be a fatal wound. Alley is not under arrest. The woman is said to be well to do, having recently inherited a large amount of money.

CHAFIN AT FARGO.

Prohibition Candidate for Presidency to Speak There Aug. 25.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eugene W. Chafin, presidential candidate of the Prohibition party's ticket, will speak in Fargo on Aug. 25. Arrangements have been made for the address to take place in Island park, where a platform will be erected. A band has been secured to furnish music for the occasion.

Mr. Chafin will speak here at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and at Hillsboro in the evening. He will then continue west, stopping at Valley City and Bismarck and at several places in Montana.

WOMAN PROTESTS INNOCENCE

Persists Foster Child, 'Babe' Wright, Killed Herself.

Devils Lake, N. D., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The preliminary examination of Mrs. Mary . Wright, charged with the murder of her foster child, Beulah, or "Babe" Wright, at Derrick, N. D., has been postponed, the state not being ready to go on with the case. The adjournment was taken until Prof. Babcock of the University of North Dakota, will be ready with his report of the analysis of the child's stomach. It will probably be a week before the professor will have his report ready.

Mrs. Wright continues to protest her innocence and insists the girl committed suicide in a fit of despondency. Besides the evidence of Prof. Babcock, the state will put on Doctors Sihler, McIntosh and Flynn of Devils Lake and Dr. Cox of Edmore, who assisted in the post mortem examination.

SECRETARY LOEB HERE.

President's Private Secretary in Northern Minnesota on an Outing.

Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Loeb, secretary to President Roosevelt, is in Northern Minnesota for a few days' outing. He passed through here Monday in the private car Yellowstone of the Northern Pacific with Howard Elliott, president of the road; George Thompson of the St. Paul Dispatch; John R. Miller, president of the Capital National Bank of St. Paul, and Gustave Scholle, consul to Warsaw, Russia. The party went north on the Minnesota & International railway, and will spend a week at Kabekena camp on Woman lake.

PLENTY OF FARMHANDS.

No Scarcity of Help in North Dakota at Present.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—There does not seem to be any reason for a shortage of labor this year in the harvest fields or for threshing in North Dakota, as there has been a constant rush of laborers West for the past two weeks. Both the transcontinental railroads have had a big business in this line, and the movement still continues without any prospect of abating.

It was reported at the Northern Pacific offices that the average daily movement of field laborers during the past two weeks was 200, and this only covers a small percentage of the men that come into the state over the other railroads which enter the state in other sections. Large numbers have and are coming from the South, where they have been at work in the fields of Nebraska and South Dakota. The Great Northern has had almost as great a business as has the Northern Pacific, which makes the daily average through Fargo about 400 for the past two weeks. In other words, at least 5,600 farm laborers have passed into the state through Fargo during the past fourteen days.

UPPER PENINSULA EXHIBIT.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Through the Upper Peninsula Agricultural association, the northern portion of the state will be well represented at the Michigan state fair, which opens at Detroit, Sept. 3.

Leo M. Gelsmar, director of the experiment station in Chatham, Alger county, and secretary of the Upper Peninsula association, says that the exhibit will be one of variety rather than size, the aim of the association being to show the great number of crops which can be grown north of the straits.

DULUTH MAN ON CROPS.

John Miller Thinks Outlook in North Dakota is Good.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hon. John Miller, president of the John Miller Company of Duluth, was in Fargo the day before yesterday, on his way home from Chaffee, where he is interested in milling and other enterprises. He has been making his annual tour of inspection through this part of the state, inspecting the grain fields and crops generally. Mr. Miller stated that there were the best reasons for expecting large shipments of grain this fall, and so far there had been the best possible conditions for the harvest, which was now at its height in the Red River valley.

Generally there is more wheat in the stack than in the shock. There were a few late fields uncut, and he believed the wheat was better in the valley than further west. The weather could not have been better. A few large fields of oats have yielded well in quantity and are good in quality.

Mr. Miller said further that after what he had seen he could not help but feel gratified at the outlook for the farmers and commercial interests generally.

OLD CROW WING SETTLER.

J. J. Stearns, Veteran of Civil War, Heeds Final Call.

Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Death has claimed John J. Stearns, one of the old residents of Crow Wing county, a veteran of the Civil war, who enlisted at Lake City in February, 1864, and was attached to G. company, Eighth Minnesota volunteers and afterwards transferred to the Twenty-third Veteran reserve, being kept on special duty until July, 1865.

John Johnson Stearns was born in Spring Arbor, Mich., March 6, 1841, and was united in marriage at Lake City, Minn., April 28, 1863, to Miss Amie E. Cammish, who survives him. To them were born fourteen children, of whom eleven survive, as follows: Mrs. A. M. Nelson, St. Paul; Mrs. M. M. Thompson, Fort Worth, Tex.; Mrs. L. M. Hess, Superior, Wis.; Mrs. Pearl Harmon, Littlefork, Minn.; Mrs. Emma Hall, Brainerd, Minn.; Mrs. Harlet De Moe, Menomonie, Wis.; J. W. Stearns, Brainerd; Fred Stearns, Warroad; Harry Stearns, St. Paul, and Walter Stearns, Brainerd.

KILLS FISH WITH CLUB.

Woman Dispatches Giant Muskellunge Weighing 32 Pounds.

Wausau, Wis., Aug. 19.—To say that a woman, unaided, brought ashore a thirty-two pounds muskellunge and then killed it with a club sounds somewhat on the order of Baron Munchausen's tales, but Mrs. M. C. Thorn of this city is exhibiting her fish as proof of the story. She fought the fish for about an hour and when it no longer struggled, fastened the pole in the boat and rowed to the shore. She landed on a long shallow beach and wading ashore beached the fish as well as she could. She was afraid to touch it and getting a club beat it over the head till she killed it.

ESCANABA'S NEW BUILDING.

Bids to be Invited for United States Structure.

Escanaba, Mich., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Postmaster H. W. Coburn has been directed by the United States treasury department to advertise for bids for the construction of Escanaba's new federal building, for which $60,000 has been authorized by congress. It is expected that the appropriation will be sufficient to cover the cost of the structure. Postmaster Coburn has a copy of the plans and specifications and they indicate that the Delta county metropolis will have a large and handsome building. The bids are to be filed at Washington before Sept. 17. The contract is expected to be awarded promptly and work commenced this fall.

BODY IS UNIDENTIFIED.

No One Claim Cadaver Found in the Red River.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—With but little hope of identification, the body of the unknown man found in the Red river, twelve miles below here, was buried in the potter's field. The body had lodged in a clump of bushes. Deputy Sheriff Johnson and M. Norman went down Monday afternoon and brought the body of the unknown to Grand Forks. When taken from the water, there was no clothing on the body, and it was evident that it had been in the water for about ten days.

Coroner Rounsevell decided it was a case of accidental drowning and that no inquest was necessary.

The body was that of a man about 30 years old, five feet six inches in height, with dark hair and gray eyes. He had not been shaved for a couple of days before death. His hands indicated that he was a laborer.

It is believed that the man went in bathing and got beyond his depth. His identity will probably be established if his clothing is found.

MANKATO ELKS TO BUILD.

Mankato, Minn., Aug. 19.—The Mankato lodge of Elks has adopted plans for a $50,000 building submitted by a Minneapolis architect. It has purchased a site, and will issue $25,000 bonds, which a committee is placing among the membership, which numbers 500. The building will be two stories and a basement high, of handsome design, and for the exclusive use of the Elks. It is intended to commence work this fall.

WOMAN OFFERS REWARD FOR SLAYER OF HUSBAND.

Little Falls, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. William Golnik, wife of the man who was murdered here last week, announced yesterday that she would give $1,000 reward to the persons who effected the capture and conviction of the parties who killed her husband. The woman seems to be over-anxious that her husband's slayers be prosecuted, and, it is stated, will hire detectives to work on the case.

LIKE ALASKAN WHEAT.

New Species Said to be Popular in North Dakota.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The efforts of certain boosters to get the farmers of North Dakota to go in heavily for the so-called Alaskan wheat have not been very successful. The claims of 200-bushel yield, hail-resistant qualities, and other things, are discounted. The farmers who have experimented with the new variety state that it will undoubtedly yield larger for a year or two than the fife and blue stem, but that the quality is less acceptable. They also assert that should the wheat be all that it is claimed, it would be the worst thing for the state that could happen, for the large yields would reduce the price, and there is no money in cheap wheat. Of course, the general reduction would be beneficial to the rest of mankind. However, it would damage North Dakota grain growers.

HANGING PROVES EFFECTIVE.

Failing to Fatally Shoot Herself, Woman Uses a Strap.

Minnesota Lake, Minn., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Fred Keter, living four miles southeast of here, committed suicide by hanging after attempting to end her life by shooting.

Her husband and hired man were working in the field, and she sent her 10-year-old daughter to a neighbor's. Then she took a 22-caliber revolver belonging to the hired man, and went to the granary and fired two shots, one taking effect just above the left eye and the other just below it.

As these did not effect her purpose, Mrs. Keter hanged herself with a strap tied to a rafter in the granary. She was 35 years old, and the cause for her deed is said to have been ill health. Her husband and one daughter survive her.

EVIDENCE OF MARRIAGE TO BE SECURED IN HAMBURG.

St. Paul, Aug. 19.—There was an unexpected turn in the Lando will case yesterday when Judge Bashlie of the probate court appointed Adolph Lando, father of the late Dr. David H. Lando, and the alleged Mrs. Dr. Lando, joint administrators of the late Dr. Lando's estate. The estate is valued at $17,000 and the contest was over the letters of administration.

Mrs. Lando claims she was married to Dr. Lando in Germany, but has been unable to furnish documentary evidence. The question is being discussed of sending a commission to Hamburg to find the minister, who is alleged to have married the couple.

CROOKSTON'S NEW FIRE CHIEF

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fire department has elected Albert Barrotte, the former assistant chief, chief to succeed Tom Morris, who resigned because the city council cut off his salary of $50 per month, which he received in addition to $5 per fire. Barrotte was instructed to serve only on condition that the council fix his salary at $75 per month and make him custodian of all the fire department equipment.

CHARGED WITH THEFT.

Devils Lake, N. D., Aug. 19.—L. W. Blackburn, alias J. Davis, from London, Eng., was arrested yesterday charged with grand larceny. He stole a Great Northern identification check from J. R. Higgins. Both are employed on a farm at Garske.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON ASKED TO WELCOME SONG FEST.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 19.—An invitation has been extended to Governor John A. Johnson to make the address of welcome to the Norwegian-Danish Singers' union, whose festival will be held at the Auditorium Friday and Saturday, Aug. 28 and 29.

The Twin City Singers' union will sing the well-known singers' greeting song, that was written by the Norwegian poet-composer, Grieg. The Festival orchestra that has been organized for the occasion, will have as concertmeister, Carl Guetter of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra.

RESTAURANT MAN BANKRUPT.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 19.—Special to The Herald.)—Papers in bankruptcy have been filed by Carl Fjeld, a restaurant man of Portland. He places his liabilities at $1,700 and his assets are $1,400, all exempt.

STREET SWEEPER KILLED.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Swan Johnson, employed by the city as driver of the street sweeper, was instantly killed Monday night shortly before midnight. He had started after the sweeper when the team became frightened and ran away. Johnson lost his balance and fell from the wagon, the wheels passing over his head, killing him almost instantly. He leaves a wife and three children.

TROUT SEASON ENDS.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 19.—The trout fishing season of 1908 closed in the Upper Peninsula Sunday and fishermen are today packing away their rods and reels and their duffle satiated and satisfied with the memory of a good season's sport. In general the review of the season would say that there were more fish caught and bigger fish than for several seasons.

CONVENTION AT MARQUETTE.

Hancock, Mich., Aug. 19.—The convention of the Republicans of the Twelfth district will be held in Marquette, Saturday, Sept. 12. It was originally intended to hold it at Hancock, but delegates from the lower counties objected on the ground that the discomfort would entail too much time and travel. The convention will be composed of ninety-seven delegates.

OLD OTTER TAIL RESIDENT.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Aug. 19.—Ole C. Dahl, one of the original settlers of Otter Tail county, died Sunday at the advanced age of 91 years. He settled in the town of St. Olaf in 1868, on the site of what is now the village of Dalton, which was named after him. He is survived by three children, one of whom is County Commissioner G. O. Dahl, of this city.

TO REOPEN TILL CASE.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Aug. 19.—Mandamus proceedings have been begun in the Wisconsin supreme court to secure a writ directing Judge Helms to reopen the case against John Till, the plasterer-on-the-ceiling artist, which was dismissed on a technicality. The supreme court will take up the case some time next month. Till has employed good legal talent to represent him.

SECOND BOLT FATAL.

Draper, S. D., Aug. 19.—John Egge, a farmer residing northwest of this place three miles, was instantly killed by a bolt of lightning. A flash of lightning set the prairie on fire, and while he was in the act of putting it out a second bolt struck him. His brother, who was with him, was stunned by the shock, but soon recovered.

GET FROSTY RECEPTION

Duluth Retailers Give Stamp Men Cold Shoulder.

Determined That the Evil Shall Not Demoralize Local Trade.

The trading stamp scheme is getting another chilly reception from Duluth merchants, the big Superior street houses leading the opposition, and the fight against them is being carried on with determination. Duluth merchants have decided that they cannot by any means give their patrons as good a service through the trading stamp system as they can without it, and some time ago they ruled against the system and are sticking to their guns.

The agents of the trading stamp company have given up the idea of influencing the big merchants to come in on the scheme and have now turned their attention to the small merchants in town. It is said, however, that all the Duluth retailers are following the lead of the larger houses, and no establishment has taken up the stamp system so far.

The merchants say that the only noticeable effect of the trading stamp system all over the country, is a thorough demoralization of both merchants and customers, the bringing of inferior goods on the market, and no real gain whatever in the end. The merchant and the stamp company cannot afford to give something for nothing and prices have to go up or quality of goods down to cover the extra expense of luring trade with the green stamp premiums.

The company which is trying to break into Duluth mercantile circles just at present is the Green Trading Stamp company of Minneapolis, and its agents are still at work in the city trying to swing the tide of opposition the other way. So far it has been up-hill work.

"BUFFALO BILL."

Famous Scout and His "Wild West" Coming to Duluth.

Col. William F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill," will visit the city soon, after an extraordinary season at Madison Square Garden, New York, and at three alternate encampments in Chicago, where thousands were unable to obtain admission. The Wild West and Col. Cody's assemblage of Rough Riders of the world come to town after spending no less than five years in the cities of Great Britain and continental Europe. When the nations beyond the seas find instruction and delight in the Wild West, there must be something exceptional in its features. This is easily explained by the fact that this exhibition of life in the old Far West, when men took their lives and those of their loved ones in their hands to establish homes on the great plains, is real, actual and truthful. Realism here finds its highest type, the most simple and faithful that can be conceived.

Real Indian chiefs, braves, squaws and papooses, real Mexican vaqueros, real cowboys and real ranch girls, real cavalry of the United States, England, Germany, Japan, South America, Arabia and Russia; these are all here, there is no imitation, no clap-trap. There are Cossacks and little brown men of Japan; the American soldiers, cavalry and artillery, real veterans. So are all the other military representatives. It may happen that this is the last opportunity of seeing the wonders of the Wild West, for the march of time may carry it into the far beyond. At any rate, the opportunity should not be neglected, for in no other way can the American student obtain a close, clear and more comprehensive idea of a wonderful and important epoch in the march of events of American history. You see no theater tinsel, only the real men just as they lived and died in the days between the forties and the seventies. The success in New York and Chicago is too well known to make further eulogy necessary. Many novelties never before presented are added to the lengthy program, including Ray Thompson's group of trained Texas horses, a game of football on horseback, and a railroad train holdup.

No street parade will be given, every energy of the staff being utilized to give good performances twice daily, at 2 and 8 p. m., rain or shine.

CASTRO REFUSES

To Allow Brazilian Minister to Care for French Interests.

Caracas, Aug. 17.—Via Willemstad, Aug. 19.—A sensation has been caused in diplomatic circles by the refusal of President Castro to permit the Brazilian minister to take charge of French interests in Venezuela. The French interests necessarily are being neglected.

It is very unlikely, in view of the present state of affairs, that President Castro will permit the representative of any of the foreign countries to take the French interests in hand.

President Castro left yesterday for a trip to Barquisemeto. The president invited the British minister to accompany him, which is believed to be significant in view of the present crisis.

TRACK LABORERS STRIKE.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 19.—About 700 Italian track laborers on the Northern Pacific railway went on strike yesterday for higher wages and it is thought that by the end of this week the number will be 1,000. The strikers have been ordered to vacate the box cars in which they are living. They have refused to do so and will be evicted. Practically the entire Pacific division is affected.

WOMAN HAS VERY NARROW ESCAPE

Plain Clothes Man Will Stop Boys Shooting on Point.

The careless use of firearms by small boys on the point reached a climax yesterday when a bullet from a .22-calibre rifle crashed through the window of Percy S. Kingsley's cottage on Twenty-second street, whistled within a foot of Mrs. Kingsley's head, and buried itself in the opposite wall of the room. The light target rifles have been steadily increasing in number on the point this summer, and in the restricted area, their use by youngsters who have not yet arrived at years of discretion, is growing increasingly dangerous. There is no police protection on the point, so the city ordinances against the discharge of firearms within the city limits is not enforced. Complaints have been growing more numerous however, and after yesterday's narrow escape the police have decided that something must be done. A plain clothes man will be stationed on the point for the balance of the week, and as long as there is any evidence of the promiscuous shooting of small arms on the point.

MATTER OF FACT SUICIDE.

Louisville Man Neither Drunk or Insane, But Tired of Life.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 19.—Alfred T. Wimberly, state manager of the Bankers' Life association of Des Moines, Iowa, and a well known insurance man, was found dead in bed at his home yesterday afternoon. Death was caused by a self-inflicted pistol wound, according to the coroner. A letter found on a table in the room read as follows:

"I am neither drunk nor insane. I have no domestic troubles or business troubles. I have committed no crime. I am simply tired of life. I have always had despondent spells for which my Creator is responsible. I have no fears for the hereafter, if there is any. This is for the public if the public wants it.

"A. T. WIMBERLY."

TWO START ON A 4,000 MILE TRIP IN A CANOE.

Schenectady, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Richard Strevell, 28, and Raymond Bosder, 18 years old, left here Monday on a 4,000-mile canoe trip.

They go by way of the Erie canal, which they will follow to Buffalo, thence through the Great Lakes to Green bay, Lake Michigan, and by river and canal reach the Mississippi river.

In the spring they will head for the Gulf of Mexico, to Key West, and then will start crosswise north to New York, and by way of the Hudson river and Erie canal will reach home again.

The craft in which Strevell and Bosder travel is a 16-foot cedar and canvas canoe. The trip is purely for pleasure and recreation.

STARTS EARLY IN LIFE.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—With a bottle of rock and rye in one pocket, and a bottle of gin in another, and a diminutive, but murderous little revolver in another pocket, Lee Metz, 19, who claims to hail from Heckla, Wis., and says he is a student at Gordon's, invaded Rinehart's hospital yesterday, and created a disturbance which resulted in his being sent up for thirty days this morning, or to pay a fine of $20 and costs.

MARKET IS STRONGER

The Wheat Prices Slightly Higher With But Little Trading.

Flax Market Closes Strong After a Sharp Advance.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 19.—With little news to affect the market, wheat went up again today in the American markets, the September option getting well above the dollar mark again in Duluth and Minneapolis. Threshing reports from North Dakota show good weather conditions and fair results, though some of the counties have a smaller yield than was estimated early in the summer. The increase in all markets was slight and, with no bearish news, the movement was naturally upward, the bull crowd ruling.

The September option closed ⅞c up in Duluth, ¾-⅞c up in Chicago, ¾-⅞c up in Minneapolis, ⅝c up in New York, ¾c up in St. Louis, ⅝-¾c up in Kansas City and unchanged in Winnipeg. The December option was ¼c up in Duluth, ¼-⅝c up in Chicago, ¼c up in Minneapolis, ¼c up in New York, ½c up in St. Louis, ⅝c up in Kansas City and unchanged in Winnipeg.

Oats closed ½-⅝c up and corn ⅝-¾c up.

Bradstreet reported an increase of 819,000 bus in the visible supply of wheat. The official crop report issued by the minister of agriculture of Hungary, under date of Aug. 15 estimates the wheat crop at 144,800,000 bus, against a final in 1907 of 120,000,000 bus. The corn crop is estimated at 143800,000 bus against a final crop in 1907 of 147,900,000 bus.

Wheat closed ⅛d to ¼d higher in Liverpool, and corn ⅛d higher. In Paris wheat closed ¾c lower to unchanged. Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"The strength in the American wheat markets yesterday stimulated better support at the opening, at which time offerings were light and values were ⅛d higher. During the remainder of the morning the market was extremely dull and easier, the advancing tendency having been checked by the cheaper offerings of new English wheat and a bearish Hungarian official report. At midday the market was quiet, with prices ⅛d to ¼d higher than yesterday.

"At the opening the corn market was steady and ⅛d higher, being influenced by the firmness in America yesterday. Later, however, the pressure to sell LaPlata parcels caused a reaction, and the early advance was lost. At midday the market was quiet and unchanged from Tuesday."

Car receipts of wheat were 2 against 14 last year, and at Minneapolis 141 against 51 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 143 against 65 last year. Chicago received 138 against 186 last year. Winnipeg received 15 against 108 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 733,000 bus, last year 889,000 bus. Shipments were 425,000 bus, last year 341,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 450,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 403,000 bus, last year 315,000 bus. Shipments were 184,000 bus, last year 319,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 2,100 bus.

There was very little activity on the floor of the Duluth board today. Prices were well supported on little news. A good demand for flax sent the price up and the losses of yesterday were recovered with some to spare. September wheat opened unchanged at $1.00 and dropped off to 98⅞c, coming up again to $1.00⅞ at the close. December wheat opened unchanged at 97¼c, went off to 97c and up again to 97½c, closing at that figure.

Flax showed little strength at the opening, but came up toward the close, and the closing figures were well over yesterday's. September flax opened ¼c off at $1.28, went up to $1.28¼ and then to $1.30⅜, closing at that figure, 2⅛c over yesterday's close. October flax opened unchanged at $1.26, went off to $1.25¾, and came up at the close to $1.28, a gain of 2c. November flax opened ¼c off at $1.25¾ and went to $1.28 at the close, a gain of 2c. December flax opened unchanged at $1.23½, went up to $1.24 and then to $1.25, closing at that price, 1½c over yesterday's close.

Durum wheat was unchanged and cash spring wheat sold at 16½c over September. Oats were ½c up and rye unchanged, while barley went off 1c to $49.60.

The close: Wheat—No. 1 hard, on track, $1.18; on track, No. 1 northern, $1.17; No. 1 northern, new, $1.10B; September, $1.00⅞B; December, 97½cB; durum on track, No. 1, 94c; No. 2, 92c; September, 89¼cB; October, 8¼cB. Flax—To arrive, $1.20⅜; on track, $1.30⅜; September, $1.30⅜B; October, $1.28; November, $1.28N; December, $1.25B. Oats—To arrive, 47¼c; rye, 73-75c; barley, 50-61c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Steady at Opening, But Eased Off Later on Selling.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—The wheat market was about steady at the opening today, owing to moderate buying by some of the leading bulls, but eased off later on selling by commission houses, which was based mainly on weakness in Northwestern markets. Weather was again favorable for the harvesting of the spring wheat crop, and this tended to augment bearish sentiment. September opened ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, at 92¼c to 92⅜c, sold up to 92¾c and reacted to 92⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth, and Chicago reported receipts of 281 cars, against 256 cars last week and 251 cars a year ago.

The market continued firm the remainder of the day. The high point for September was reached at 93¼c. Small country acceptances in the Southwest helped to strengthen the market. The close was firm, with September ¾c to ⅞c higher at 93⅛@¼c.

Urgent demand by shorts caused a strong opening in the corn market, the September delivery showing especial strength. Sentiment became a little less bullish in the day, because of profit taking by pit traders, brought out by predictions of showers today for Illinois. September opened ⅜@½c to 1@⅛c higher, at 76⅞c to 77½c, and for a time held within that range. Local receipts were 118 cars, with 26 of contract grade.

Oats were strong on active demand for the September delivery. The buying was due largely to crop damage reports. September opened a shade to ⅜@½c higher, at 47⅞c to 48¼c, and advanced to 48½c. Local receipts were 103 cars.

Provisions were easy owing to a 5c decline in live hogs. Trade was light. September pork was 2½c, at $14.70. Lard was 5c lower, at $9.12½. Ribs were off 2½c, at $8.67½.

Close: Wheat—September, 93⅛@¼c; December, 94⅜@½c; May, 98⅝.

Corn—September, 77⅛; December, 65¼@⅜c; May, 64⅛c.

Oats—September, 48⅜; December, 48¼c; May, 50⅛c.

Pork—September, $14.77½, October, $14.90, January, $15.75.

Lard—September, $9.22½, October, $9.23½, January, $9.10@9.12½.

Ribs—September, $8.70; October, $8.77½@8.80; January, $8.10.

Rye—Cash, 78½c, barley, cash, 61@67.c.

Timothy—September, $3.65; Clover no quotation. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 94@95c, no 3 red, 93½@94½c; No. 2 hard 93¾@95c, no 3 hard, 93@94½c. No. 1 northern, $1.16@1.20. No. 2 northern, $1.12@$1.17. No. 2 spring, $1.04@$1.08. Corn—No. 2, 79c; no. 3, 78½@79¼c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Receipts Larger With Prices Erratic and Inclined to Drop.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 19.—Cables ¼d higher to open and only ⅛@¼d higher in second advices reflected the continued indifference of the Liverpool market to price changes on our side. Wheat receipts were again larger, making the second day of an increase, the run today being 141 cars against only 51 a year ago. The trade noted the light movement of winter wheat to Chicago, where receipts were 138 against 186, but on the other hand advices indicate that Minneapolis is going to get much more wheat daily from now on. The local supply situation remained strong and the decrease in stocks for this week is 150,000. Duluth got two cars against 14. The market was strong but erratic and inclined to dip back again when any heavy selling appeared. Near the close there was a sharp advance. September opened $1.00½, high, $1.01½; low, $1.00@⅛; close, $1.01⅜@½c. Old September opened, $1.01⅜; high, $1.02¼; low, $1.00⅝; close, $1.02¼. December, 98c; high, 98⅝c; low, 97¾c; close, 98⅝c. Old December, closed 99⅛c.

Cash demand continued urgent, business limited only by the light offerings. No. 1 northern, $1.23 to $1.24 and No. 2 at $1.20@1.21 for regular spring wheat. The velvet chaff is in disfavor with millers, and today it sold at discounts of 8c to 9c under the ordinary prices. Close—No. 1 northern, $1.24 spot; new, $1.08⅜ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.20@1.21 spot; new, $1.05⅝ to arrive. No. 3 wheat, $1.13⅝1.16.

No. 3 yellow corn, 76¾@77¼c.

No. 3 white oats, 46⅛c.

No. 2 rye, 71¾@73¾c.

Barley—Receipts, 79 cars.

The market was firm, with a good demand. Close, 52@62c.

Flax receipts, only one car. Practically no business, and all buyers waiting for the new crop to move. Nominal quotations, Duluth September price for No. 1 seed, on spot here, and 2c under to arrive. Close, $1.31⅛; spot, $1.30⅛ to arrive.

Millstuffs, steady, millers quoting bran in bulk at $19.50@20. Flour remains in the same hesitant position, buyers taking only what they must have on old crop basis and waiting for the establishment of the market on a new crop basis. Shipments, 22,604 barrels. First patents, $6.15@6.25; second patents, $6@6.15; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Steady Drop in the Last Hour on Increasing Trading.

Large Blocks of Harriman, Hill and Metal Stocks Sold.

New York, Aug. 19.—Speculation began at the stock exchange today with scarcely any variation in prices from yesterday's closing. Business also was unusually small. American Smelting gained ¾, which was the first fluctuation noticed.

Small buying orders were executed and slight advances resulted. Speculation in the main, however, was uninteresting, the traders apparently being disinclined to do much on either side of the market. The local traction stocks were sold on the unfavorable financial statement rendered to the court by the receivers of the Metropolitan system. Interborough Metropolitan preferred sagged 1½ and Third Avenue 1⅜.

Increasing strength was shown by several stocks, including a few of the usual leaders, but the general demand was limited. Westinghouse Electric advanced 5 points, Delaware & Hudson 2½, General Electric 2, and Union Pacific, Reading, Kansas City Southern ½, American Smelting preferred, American Ice, North American, International Pump and Allis-Chalmers ½@1. The market was running off at 12 o'clock, the 1-point advances in American Smelting, Reading and Union Pacific being canceled and New York Central selling as much below yesterday's closing. Bonds were irregular.

The undertone of the market continued heavy, but there was not much stock marketed, prices sagging largely from the absence of demand. American woolen fell 1½ and Brooklyn Transit and National Lead 1. Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred gained 3.

By the time prices had receded to below yesterday's closing the shorts had commenced to cover, but their buying did little more than steady the list, the weakness of New York Central, St. Paul and the local tractions being potent influences in holding the general list down. Louisville and Nashville lost 1, St. Paul 1¼, New York Central and National Lead 1⅝, and Interborough-Metropolitan preferred 2¼. Prices were sagging again at 2 o'clock.

The market closed active and weak. Prices declined steadily in the last hour on an increasing volume of business. New York Central was the weakest feature, but large blocks of the Harriman and Hill and the metal stocks were also sold. New York Central broke 3¾, Third Avenue 4, Northwestern 2, Northern Pacific and Missouri Pacific 1½, and Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Amalgamated Copper 1.

Treasury Balances.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Today's statement of the treasury balances: Available cash balance, $191,506,310; gold coin and bullion, $32,331,683; gold certificates, $31,748,000.

New York Money.

New York, Aug. 19.—Close: Money on call, easy; ¾@1¼ percent; ruling rate, 1; closing bid, 1; offered at 1. Time loans easier on large offerings; sixty days, 1½@2 per cent; ninety days, 2½@2¾ per cent; six months, 3½@3¾ per cent. Prime mercantile paper 3@4 per cent. Sterling exchange, steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.84.80@4.84.95 for sixty-day bills and at $4.86.40 for demand. Commercial bills, $4.83⅞@4.84½. Barsilver, 51⅛c. Mexican dollars, 45c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, heavy.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Aug. 18.—The cotton market opened easy at a decline of 8@10 points, and during the early session sold off to a net loss of 13@15 points on the active months, owing to lower cables, the break in the English spot market, talk of labor troubles and shut downs in Lancashire, and favorable weather and crop reports. Wall street bulls seemed to be supporting the market, but the undertone showed little improvement with prices only a point or so up from the lowest during the middle of the morning.

Futures closed steady. Closing bids: August, 10.10; September, 9.25; October, 9.18; November, 8.91; December, 8.92; January, 8.88; February, 8.91; March, 8.94. Spot closed quiet at 5 points decline; middling uplands, 10.35; middling gulf, 10.60. No sales.

St. Paul Livestock.

FOREST FIRES

Are Extending in Every Direction on Vancouver Island.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 19.—Forest fires on Vancouver Island are extending in every direction and the latest reports indicate that the settlements are threatened. In Koksilah district, twenty square miles are ablaze. The fate of the scattered ranchers is unknown. The flames are advancing on Goldstream and 150 inhabitants are back-firing to save the village. Several lumber camps have been wiped out. A dense pall of smoke hangs over fifty square miles of territory and only a soaking rain can arrest the march of conflagration. Some of the richest timber land in the province has been laid waste and a severe blow has been dealt to the lumber industry. Telegraph and telephone messages state that the eastern side of Bowen Island is a mass of fire. A settlement of eighty souls was surrounded in flames, but it is impossible to ascertain their fate.

KERN WILL DELIVER AN ADDRESS AT MILWAUKEE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 19.—The Democratic vice presidential candidate, John W. Kern, accompanied by a delegation from Indianapolis, and Mayor Rose of this city, who went to Chicago to meet him, are expected to arrive here late this afternoon. Mr. Kern will be entertained by the Associated Rose clubs of Milwaukee and will deliver an address at Wonderland park tonight. It is not thought that Mr. Kern's speech will touch upon any particular subject.

MANY SENTENCED TO DEATH.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19.—The handing down of seven more sentences of death was reported today, making the total for one day, yesterday, throughout the empire 26, and constituting a sinister record. Ten more death sentences were announced today, five at Vilna, two at Warsaw and three at Lodz.

Members of Duma Released.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19.—The seventeen members of the first duma, who on May 21 of this year began serving in St. Petersburg the sentences of three months' imprisonment imposed for signing the Viborg manifesto, were released today.

Lord Northcote of Australia Sends Message to Battleships.

Sydney, Aug. 19.—Lord Northcote, governor general of Australia, has sent by wireless telegraph to Rear Admiral Sperry, commanding the American battleship fleet, the following message:

"On behalf of the commonwealth of Australia I tender from the whole of its people a hearty welcome to the American fleet which represents so magnificently our friends and kinsmen of the United States. I hope you have had a good voyage from New Zealand. On your arrival here you will receive an enthusiastic greeting from this part of his majesty's empire."

CROOKED WORK BY IMPORTER

Customs Officials Seize Valuable Goods for Mrs. Gardner.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—United States customs officials here have seized tapestry, paintings, statuary and rare pieces of armor, valued at $80,000, the property of Mrs. "Jack" Gardner of Boston, which was bought abroad for Mrs. Gardner's palace in Back Bay Fens. The goods, the custom officers allege, were brought into this country as the "household goods" of Mrs. E. Rockwell Crane Chadbourne of this city, a friend of Mrs. Gardner, on which Chadbourne, the government officers say, placed a valuation of $8,000. An investigation was begun by the customs authorities and when the real value of the goods was discovered, the tax of $80,000 was placed upon them by Collector of Customs Ames. Fines and penalties for alleged evasion of the customs laws were fixed at $70,000, which, it is said, has been paid. However it is declared that $80,000 additional will have to be paid before possession of the property can be secured. Officials of the customs department have turned the case over to District Attorney Sims, for further investigation.

Butte & Superior, the stock for big advance. Buy it to a standstill, for it is coming fast. It closed today at $1.25 bid, and you will see it gradually climb to $2.50 or $3.00 a share. The outside buying on this one is something tremendous, and I am glad to see it, for if there is a stock in town that will help the general public, it is this one. Stock will advance without any news from the mine. If they cut it on the 1,000 and 1,200-foot levels, $7.00 will look cheap for this stock. Buy Ballaklava and Shattuck also, for they both have got to advance fast, very soon.

port of the various committees is made.

Armson Applauded.

Mayor J. G. Armson of Stillwater took his place upon the platform this morning, in response to an invitation from Frank Day, and was greeted with loud applause. He has a strong following, and should Johnson's friends prevent the nomination in spite of the wide sentiment for him, it is very probable that Armson will be the nominee.

The Ticket Suggested.

The ticket recommended by the committee this afternoon is as follows:

Lieut. governor—J. J. Keiter of Olmstead county.

Secretary of state—R. F. Lamb of Murray county.

Attorney general—M. E. Matthews of Lyon county.

Treasurer—Henry P. Nelson.

Railroad commissioners—Hans P. Bjorge of Ottertail county and Robert Meen of Faribault county.

Ante-Convention Gossip.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Notwithstanding Governor John A. Johnson's oft-repeated declaration that he would positively not be a candidate for renomination for the office of governor of Minnesota, and which has lately been coupled with the threat that if he was named against his will the convention would have to do its work over again, the probabilities early today were that the convention which assembled at 11 o'clock would ignore the governor's wishes. Yesterday, when the fact was brought to his attention that he might be made the nominee despite his protests, Governor Johnson said that if he was nominated the ticket would be without a head, for he would not lift his finger to further his candidacy. This emphatic declaration may have its effect, and in that event J. G. Armson, mayor of Stillwater, will undoubtedly be the nominee. During the past week Congressman Hammond, who was a conspicuous factor, has been eliminated by his declination to run.

Nothing in the nature of a definite slate has made its appearance, but the gossip indicates that the following will be named as the rest of the ticket: Lieut. governor, J. J. Reiter of Rochester; secretary of state, Julius Vanstrum of Canby; treasurer, Frank Zins of St. Cloud; attorney general, M. E. Matthews of Lyon county, or T. D. O'Brien of St. Paul; railroad commissioners, F. M. Currier of Mankato, and T. J. Knox of Jackson.

Mayor J. G. Armson of Stillwater stated this morning that under no circumstances would he be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. He said he regarded it as Governor Johnson's duty to answer the call of the party and make the race for governor, even at a great personal sacrifice.

A dark horse has developed; it is none other than John Jenswold of Duluth. His name is on the lips of many delegates, and questions are being asked on all sides regarding him. He may develop a strong following out of the complex situation that exists at the present time.

The members of the Duluth delegation are quartered in the two cities. The sentiment of the delegation is for Johnson, but many of its members do not think there is a possibility of the governor accepting a renomination.

Beltrami county has sent a full delegation down. It is instructed for Johnson, and its members will fight for the governor's nomination until the last. The attitude of the Beltrami delegation is typical of the sentiment of many other delegations from the northern part of the state.

A caucus of the Freeborn county delegation, last evening, at the Merchants hotel, resulted in the recommendation of Lafayette French of Austin as Democratic candidate for congressman from the First district. Decisive action will be taken today. Mr. French will be opposed to James A. Tawney, probably, on an "Anti-Cannon" platform. J. T. Meighen of Albert Lea refused to become a candidate.

The Bryan men held a conference last evening at the Nicollet hotel, Minneapolis. The conference had an important bearing on the convention today. T. T. Hudson of Duluth, F. G. Pike of St. Paul, C. E. Vasely of Little Falls, W. H. Williams of Minneapolis, Charles d'Autremont of Duluth and S. A. Stockwell of Minneapolis were among the prominent Bryan men present.

T. V. Knatvold, former state senator, will oppose J. A. Tawney in the Republican primaries for congressman from the First district.

ENGINEER'S TAME SPARROW.

Animals' Friend.—Jim is the name of a sparrow which is the pet of the enginedrivers and firemen at one of the railway centers in the north of Scotland.

He was hatched within the noisy precincts of a busy locomotive stable, but falling out of the nest before being fully fledged, was placed in a cage and tenderly cared for in the railway office. On the third day he began to be friendly, and in a very short time was flying all over the room, and even allows himself to be petted.

In fact, he quickly became so tame that one day when his owner, the local railway engineer, was writing, he flew into his hand and quietly fell asleep, and when about six months old began to accompany him on his daily rounds among the engines in the yard, perched jauntily on his shoulder or hopping contentedly by his side.

He chooses very queer places for his nests, the oddest and most awkward so far being the inside coat pocket of his owner, whom he would follow wherever he went, stuffing the selected pocket with miscellaneous nesting material. Jim is now six years of ago.

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION —OF— CEDAR LAKE LAND COMPANY.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That we, whose names are hereunto subscribed, have agreed to and do hereby associate ourselves together under the constitution and general laws of the State of Minnesota, and more particularly under the provisions of Chapter 58 of the Revised Laws of said State for the year 1905, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, as a corporation, under the name and for the purposes hereinafter set forth, and to that end do hereby adopt the following Articles of Incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be Cedar Lake Land Company and the general nature of its business shall be buying, selling, and dealing in mineral and other lands and for the purpose of mining, and working of ores and minerals, said business to be carried on in the State of Minnesota and elsewhere, but the principal place of transacting the business of said corporation shall be in the City of Duluth, County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, with such other offices and places of business, either within or without the State of Minnesota as may from time to time be determined by the management of such corporation.

ARTICLE II.

The period of its duration shall be thirty (30) years.

ARTICLE III.

The names and places of residence of the incorporators are as follows:

Wm. E. Culkin, residing at Duluth, Minnesota;

P. H. Seymour, residing at Duluth, Minnesota;

Mabel Sorenson, residing at Duluth, Minnesota; and

Victor H. Gran, residing at Duluth, Minnesota.

ARTICLE IV.

The government of this corporation and the conduct and management of its affairs are hereby vested in a board of four directors, and except as herein provided shall be elected by the stockholders at their annual meeting, which shall be held on the first Tuesday of January of each year, and who shall thereafter elect the following officers: President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer. Any two of said offices may be held by the same person with the exception of the offices of President and Vice President.

The first meeting of the corporation shall be held on August 29th, 1908, without notice, and the first annual meeting shall be held on the first Tuesday of January, 1909, but until such time and until the directors thereat shall have qualified, the following persons shall be and constitute the board of directors of this corporation: Wm. E. Culkin, P. H. Seymour, Mabel Sorenson, and Victor H. Gran. The officers shall be elected at the first meeting above provided for, to hold until the succeeding annual meeting.

The officers and directors of this corporation, except those elected at the first meeting shall hold office for one year, or until their successors are elected and qualified, and in case any vacancy occurs in any of the offices or membership of the board of directors of this corporation, either before or after the first annual meeting, the same shall be filled by the board of directors until the next annual meeting and until such vacancy shall be filled by election held in accordance with these articles and such by-laws as may be adopted providing for elections.

The board of directors of this corporation may adopt, and is hereby authorized to adopt such by-laws, rules and regulations for the corporation and the management of its business not inconsistent with these articles, or with the constitution and laws of the State of Minnesota, as may be deemed needful for the government of officers and the conduct of the affairs of the corporation, and may create such other offices in addition to those herein provided as may from time to time be deemed necessary, and may fill such offices as it may so create, and may abolish and discontinue such offices at will.

The board of directors shall also have power, when in its judgment cause exists, to remove any such officers of this corporation from their positions and declare the offices vacant.

ARTICLE V.

The amount of capital stock of this corporation shall be Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000) and the same shall be divided into one hundred shares of one hundred dollars each, and shall be sold either for cash or for property and things of value deemed by the board of directors to be equivalent thereto, such determination by the board of directors to be final and binding upon the parties in interest.

The stock of this corporation shall be paid for as called for by the board of directors, and no stock which has not been subscribed for and upon which the payments have not been made as required by the board of directors, shall be entitled to vote or representation in any of the proceedings of this corporation.

ARTICLE VI.

The highest amount of indebtedness to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of Ten Thousand dollars ($10,000).

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals this 13th day of August, A. D. 1908.

ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR PROBATE OF FOREIGN WILL.
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis.—ss. In Probate Court.

In the Matter of the Estate of John J. Murphy, Decedent.

Certain instruments purporting to be authenticated copies of the last Will and Testament of John J. Murphy and of the probate thereof in the County Court in and for the County of McHenry, State of Illinois, having been presented to this court, and the petition of Elizabeth A. Murphy being filed herein, representing, among other things, that said decedent, then being a resident of the County of McHenry, State of Illinois, died testate in the County of McHenry, State of Illinois, on the 30th day of June, 1908, leaving estate in the County of St. Louis, State of Minnesota, and that said instrument has been allowed and admitted to probate as his Will in the court above named, and praying that said Will be allowed and admitted to probate in this state, and that letters testamentary be issued thereon to her;

IT IS ORDERED, That said petition be heard before this court, at the Probate Court Rooms in the Court House, in Duluth, in said County, on Monday, on the 31st day of August, 1908, at ten o'clock a. m., and all persons interested in said hearing and in said matter are hereby cited and required at said time and place to show cause, if any there be, why said petition should not be granted.

ORDERED, FURTHER, That this order be served by publication in The Duluth Evening Herald, according to law, and that a copy of this order be served on the County Treasurer of St. Louis County not later than ten days prior to said day of hearing.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., August 5th, 1908.

STRAIN IS TERRIBLE

Wilson Gradually Breaking Down While Waiting for Sentence.

Wife Slayer Shows Signs of Increasing Nervousness.

These are trying days for Henry Wilson, wife murderer. Convicted of murder in the first degree, with the grim prospect of death by hanging before him, and the great question of life or death depending on the judge's words, he has been waiting for more than a month, daily expecting to be hustled into a coat, handcuffed, surrounded by deputies, and lead over the court room to hear his doom pronounced. Each day has passed wearily by without the summons.

The strain is an awful one, and even the iron frame and almost animal nature of the man who so brutally slaughtered his young wife in West Duluth last spring are gradually breaking beneath it. At times he is so nervous that nothing can be done with him. Sometimes he is surly. Always his muscles are twitching, moving with an incessant and increasing nervousness.

This morning he was brought down to the jail office to be shaved. Standing by the high desk in the office he showed every sign of nervous strain. A passing street car startled him. Suddenly he leaned over and sank his teeth in the wood of the top of the desk, leaving a deep dint in the varnish. While being shaved, Wilson is handcuffed to the chair in which he sits.

He was asked if it was pretty hard waiting. "It's hell!" he growled, and would say nothing more.

Wilson's sentence is entirely in the hands of Judge Dibell. In order to do away with the necessity of the county attorney moving for sentence every day or two, he has stated that he would notify the various attorneys on the day when he will sentence him. The sentence is expected daily. A life sentence is the lightest punishment, which can be imposed.

We, the undersigned, President and Secretary of the DULUTH EDISON ELECTRIC COMPANY, hereby certify that, at a regular annual meeting of the stockholders of Duluth Edison Electric Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Minnesota, held at the office of the Company at Duluth, Minnesota, on July 14th, 1908, at two o'clock P. M., duly convened in accordance with the articles of incorporation and by-laws of said Company, at which meeting there were present, either in person or by proxy, the owners of ten thousand and seven (10,007) shares of the Company, out of a total of fifteen thousand (15,000) shares issued and outstanding, the following resolutions were duly adopted by the affirmative vote of all the stockholders present:

RESOLVED

1. That the first paragraph of Article III of the Articles of Incorporation be amended so as to read as follows:

"The amount of the authorized capital stock of this corporation shall be Two million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($2,250,000), divided into twenty-two thousand five hundred (22,500) shares of the par value of One hundred dollars ($100) each. Of said authorized capital stock, twelve thousand five hundred (12,500) shares shall be preferred stock until the same shall be retired as hereinafter provided, and the remainder thereof, that is to say, ten thousand (10,000) shares before, and twenty-two thousand five hundred (22,500) shares after, such retirement of the preferred stock shall be common stock."

Instead of as follows:

"The amount of the authorized capital stock of this corporation shall be Two million dollars ($2,000,000), divided into twenty thousand (20,000) shares of the par value of One hundred dollars ($100) each. Of said authorized capital stock, ten thousand (10,000) shares shall be preferred stock until the same shall be retired as hereinafter provided, and the remainder thereof, that is to say, ten thousand (10,000) shares before, and twenty thousand (20,000) shares after, such retirement of the preferred stock, shall be common stock."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we, A. W. Hartman, President, and C. E. Van Bergen, Secretary, of DULUTH EDISON ELECTRIC COMPANY, in accordance with the authority conferred by the foregoing resolutions, have hereunto set our hands this 31st day of July, 1908, and have hereunto affixed the corporate seal of said Duluth Edison Electric Company.

A. W. HARTMAN,
President.

SOCIALIST FILES.

Ed Blackwood of West Duluth Enters Race for Sheriff.

The Socialist candidate for sheriff filed this morning. Edward Blackwood of 5201 Ramsey street, West Duluth, this morning paid his $10 fee and entered the race for sheriff on the "Public Ownership" ticket. This is the official name for the Minnesota Socialists. Blackwood was recommended at the Socialist convention, held in Flaaten's hall here some time ago.

Charles Jesmore, the Democratic candidate, has not yet filed.

GANG BROKEN UP.

West Duluth Police Arrest Boys Charged With Petty Offenses.

A band of lawless youngsters, none of them over 15 years old, has been rounded up in the last few days by the West Duluth police. The gang numbers about eight, the oldest of whom will have to stand trial in the juvenile court for a number of larceny charges. The younger members of the gang will probably be let off with warnings and allowed to profit by the plight of the older ones.

This crowd of boys has for some time been an ever present nuisance to West Duluth residents and a menace to their property. Among the numerous charges held against them are the robbing of Anton Wallin's candy and fruit stand at Fairmont park of a good part of its stock. They also on several occasions have broken the seals on box cars. From some cars at Sixty-third avenue west they stole several boxes of cigars and smoking tobacco and nearly half a case of beer, besides enough chocolate candy to make the whole crowd sick.

William Olson, the 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Olson, on Seventy-fourth street, who has been on parole, was one of the members, it is claimed. He was arrested yesterday and will be tried again for not keeping his promise of good behavior.

PROHIBITION CANDIDATE.

West Duluth Local Option Club Would Elect a Legislator.

Minnesota a prohibition state within five years! This is the object the Prohibitionists of this city and the range towns are striving for. Their first move will be to attempt to put one of their members into the state legislature this year.

According to reports made last evening at the meeting of the West Duluth County Option club, held at the Our Savior's Norwegian Lutheran church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Wadena street, already a man prominent in the prohibition movement, has been selected to run in the Forty-ninth district. His name was not made public. He will be an opponent to Dr. David Graham and Joseph Austin.

The Prohibitionists feel that the only way in which they can hope to accomplish their end is to be represented in the legislature. Their candidate will file for office in the near future.

This movement has been considered for some time by the Morning Star lodge, I. O. G. T. of West Duluth, the Finnish Temperance order, the North Star lodge, I. O. G. T. of the West end and many other temperance orders on the range.

The club that met last evening is composed of representatives from the different churches and temperance societies of West Duluth. It was organized for the purpose of uniting the efforts of the temperance workers. It has not been fully decided yet whether they will retain the name of the West Duluth County Option club. This will be decided at the next meeting, which will be held at the call of the temporary chairman, Rev. John A. Bjerke, pastor of the Norwegian church. At that meeting a constitution for the club will be acted upon.

Will Make Bread.

The summer domestic science school, which is being conducted at the Irving school by the Women's council, has only ten more days in which to complete its course. During the last of the the course the art of bread making will be taken up by the pupils. There are about sixty of them, ranging in age from 8 to 18 years. The older girls have been taking a course of meat cooking, while the younger are being taught to prepare the simple kinds of pastry. The teachers who have charge of the work are Miss Hogan, instructor of cooking, and Miss Martha Whiteman, head of the sewing class.

West Duluth Briefs.

The Oak Hall baseball team will leave Sunday on the America for Two Harbors, where they will play the Two Harbors baseball team.

L. R. Clark and family and Henry Hewitt and family have broken camp on Grassy Point and returned to their homes in West Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Parker of Virginia are guests at the Phillips hotel.

E. G. Kriedler of Scott-Kriedler company is in Chetek, Wis., where he is visiting friends.

Miss Bertha Norby, who has been the guest of Dr. and Mrs. D. E. Seashore of 702 Fifty-seventh avenue west for the past week, has returned to her home in Detroit, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Gavert are on a fishing trip at Moose Lake.

The funeral of Edward Allen of 214 North Sixty-first avenue west, took place this morning at 9 o'clock from the St. James Catholic church.

The division of the Young People's society of the Westminister Presbyterian church, known as the reds, will hold a taffy pull this evening at the home of Miss Cora Sorenson, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Cody street.

Miss Rose Sullivan of the Phillips hotel, has returned from visiting friends at Ironwood, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Holt and family have returned to their home in Scanlon, after a short visit in West Duluth.

Mrs. Lyman Fargo, and Mrs. R. M. Weaver and daughter of 4721 West Sixth street, are in Minneapolis to attend the wedding of Miss Nina Caw and C. L. Fargo. Mr. Fargo is the son of Mrs. Lyman Fargo, and brother of Mrs. Weaver. He was formerly a resident of West Duluth.

Next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Our Savior's Norwegian Lutheran church, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Wadena street, there will be a temperance talk by Peter Swanson, one of the most prominent temperance speakers in Norway, and also a member of the Norwegian parliment. He came to this country as a delegate to the international lodge of I. O. G. T., which was in session in Washington, D. C. two months ago. He is now a visitor in West Duluth.

SPRINGFIELD AUTHORITIES UNABLE TO GET EVIDENCE AGAINST THE MURDERERS

Witnesses of Recent Rioting Are Unwilling to Testify.

Failure of Coroner's Jury to Hold Anyone, a Handicap.

Regiments of State Militia Are Rapidly Leaving the City.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 20.—The local authorities began today the task of overcoming the handicap on their efforts to fix responsibility for the recent riot, caused by the failure of the coroner's inquest to hold any one responsible for the death of Scott Burton, the negro lynched in the "black belt" last Friday night. The open verdict of the coroner's jury was a blow to the hopes of the state's attorney and other officials, who saw in it a confirmation of the suspicion that witnesses to the rioting would fail to recognize the leaders of the mob when called upon to testify in public proceedings. Of the four witnesses upon whom Coroner Woodruff had depended for the success of his first riot inquest, only one appeared on the stand. That witness displayed an unusually poor memory when confronted with incisive questions, and the absence of the other three made the coroner's task futile.

This condition existed, despite the appeals of the commercial organizations and Governor Deneen that law-loving citizens volunteer their testimony regarding the riot and its leaders. There was a generous response to these appeals, so far as the secret grand jury proceedings are concerned, but few persons seem willing to risk the enmity of the lawless element of the community by appearing in the open as defenders of the strict letter of the law.

The grand jury went ahead with its investigations today, but there was considerable less enthusiasm regarding its work than was displayed two days ago.

Renewal of Threats.

The departure of all except two regiments of the state militia caused a renewal of the threats that there would be "something doing after the soldiers leave," and this feeling was reflected

QUEEN WILHELMINA
Of the Netherlands, Who Has Weighty Questions Concerning Trouble in Venezuela to Decide.

REPLY OF THE NETHERLANDS

To Venezuela Not to be Given Out Until Delivered.

The Hague, Aug. 20.—The government of the Netherlands has no intention of giving out the terms of its reply to President Castro of Venezuela until its communication to the chief executive of the republic is actually delivered. This will be done through the intermediary of the German minister at Caracas, Baron Von Seckendorff, who is watching out for Holland in Venezuela.

The suggestion has been mooted by some politicians that the other powers having claims again Venezuela, will join with Holland in united action against that republic. This proposal however, does not meet with favor here, and no such suggestion from any other power has officially reached The Hague.

The government of the Netherlands, is confident of its ability to handle the situation single-handed, and has the sympathy of the United States.

GUESTS OF PRESIDENT

New York, Aug. 20.—James S. Sherman, the Republican candidate for vice president, arrived here from Utica early today and soon after left for Sagamore Hill, accompanied by Chairman Frank H. Hitchcock, to lunch with President Roosevelt, and according to political gossip, confer on the situation which centers around the fuestion of Governor Hughes' availability as a candidate to succeed himself. Mr. Sherman and Chairman Hitchcock breakfasted together and at 9 o'clock, left on the yacht of former representative, George J. Smith, for Oyster Bay. The yacht will run into Oyster Bay, where an automobile will be waiting to take Mr. Sherman and Mr. Hitchcock to Sagamore Hill.

The president's luncheon table will seat a number of well known men today. Besides Mr. Sherman and Mr. Hitchcock, there will be present, Representative William S. Bennett of New York city, Michael J. Dady of Brooklyn, Former Representative George J. Smith of Ulster county, New York, William J. Youngs, United States district attorney for Eastern New York, and assistant secretary of state, Robert Bacon. Capt. Cameron McR. Winslow, assistant chief of the bureau of navigation, and James H. Kidder of New York, a well known big game hunter, also was among the guests.

FIRST DAY AT SYDNEY

Reception to the American Fleet is Most Gratifying.

The General Public Program Will Begin on Friday.

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 20, 8.30 p. m.—The first day of the sojourn of the American battleships at Sydney has passed and while there have been comparatively few functions, tomorrow being set aside for the public reception and the official landing, the spirit of cordiality and whole-hearted welcome which fills the people of this city has found opportunity for expression in several ways. Numberless harbor craft have circled all day long around the white battleships anchored in the bay, and the shores and headlands were crowded until late this afternoon by thousands of interested spectators.

This afternoon, the admirals of the fleet and the captains of the various battleships came ashore and called officially upon Lord Northcote, governor general of Australia, and Sir Harry Rawson, governor of New South Wales. The American officers were saluted upon landing. Later, the governor returned this official call and was in his turn saluted by the American fleet.

This evening Lord Northcote gave a dinner in honor of the American officers. There were present sixty-six Americans, including the admirals and the captains, as well as Sir Harry Rawson, the British admiral, ministers of the state and commonwealth and a number of judges and local naval and military officers of high rank.

As darkness came down this evening, the fleet was brilliantly illuminated and the city and harbor also were illuminated, but not as completely as they will be later. The entire population is given over to holiday making.

The fleet paymasters today drew $500,000 from the Sydney banks. The store ship Glacier came into port this evening.

TO PREVENT A REACTION

Teheran, Aug. 20.—The Russian infantry in the Persian capital is being exerted quietly, but firmly against the wave of reaction which threatens to follow the dissolution of parliament. M. Hartwig, the Russian minister, who has made it a practice to abstain from intervention in the internal affairs of Persia, yesterday had an audience with the shah and advised him as a friend to put a check on the fanatic Mullah Sheik Fazlutta, who has been delivering re-actionary addresses to gatherings of the lower classes in the Dzhami mosque. The sheik appeals to the passions and endeavors to incite to excesses which might result dangerously to Europeans. One of his arguments is that the constitution conflicts with the religion of the land. He has urged also that there be a general strike on the day of the next elections.

The shah at once forbade Fazlutta to continue his speeches under pain of the most severe punishment.

Mrs. Custer Returns.

New York, Aug. 20.—Mrs. George B. Custer, widow of the general who lost his life at the Little Big Horn battle, has returned from an automobile tour of Europe. She received while away a letter telling of the acceptance of William C. Potters' design for an equestrian statue of the general to be put up at his home in Monroe, Mich.

WOMAN IS INDIGNANT

Mrs. "Jack" Gardner Says Customs People Have Persecuted Her.

Admits Ownership of Art Goods Seized in Chicago.

Boston, Aug. 20.—Mrs. John L. Gardner, in an interview credited to her by a local morning newspaper, acknowledges her ownership of the art goods which have been seized by custom officials in Chicago, because of having been brought into this country by Mrs. Emily R. C. Chadbourne, under an alleged false declaration, in which the goods were described as "house effects," but declares she did not know of Mrs. Chadbourne's intention to bring them to this country.

The statement attributed to Mrs. Gardner is in part as follows:

"The customs department has always persecuted me and I have paid thousands of dollars duty upon objects of art as a result of their impositions. The goods in Chicago belong to me. I had lent them to Mrs. Chadbourne for her home in Europe. I doubt if the articles would total $60,000 in value, and I think Mrs. Chadbourne had a perfect right to bring them into this country as 'house-goods.'

"I don't know whether the $70,000 in fines and penalties was paid by me or not, as I have a man who looks after such things. I have not paid $80,000 to keep the art objects from being sold at auction. If the duty is paid in full, and a still bigger fine is paid without protests, I don't see why the customs people should take the articles, too."

CONSUL CANNOT LEAVE ISLAND

Willemstad, Curacao, Aug. 20.—The Dutch island of Aruba has furnished the latest incident in the existing difficulty between the Netherlands and Venezuela. Five days ago a Venezuelan coast guard vessel arrived at Aruba for the purpose of taking away the Venezuelan consul. As soon as the purpose of the visit became known the people of the island started a demonstration. They crowded around the residence of the consul and wanted to haul down his flag. The governor of the island appeared, however, and succeeded in putting an end to the disorder.

The consul refused to leave his post, saying that illness made his going away impossible and consequently the coast guard vessel sailed away with her mission unfilled.

Ships Leave For Aden.

Colombo, Aug. 20.—The battleships Alabama and Maine, which have been detached from the Atlantic battleship fleet and are preceding the fleet by about a month on the trip around the world, left here today for Aden, where they are due Aug. 27.

KIDNAPING IS FEARED

Two Daughters of Wealthy Wisconsin Farmer Disappear.

Beihn Sisters of Kenosha Missing Since Monday.

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 20.—Detectives today are trying to penetrate the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Gertrude and Dorothy Beihn, daughters of Jacob Beihn, one of the wealthiest residents of Southern Wisconsin. The girls, 11 and 14 years old, respectively, have not been seen since their parents left them sitting in a hammock on the lawn at home Monday night. Many people believe the girls were kidnaped and are held for ransom.

Another tangle is the receipt by Mrs. Beihn, who is the stepmother of the missing maids, of a note several weeks ago warning her that a plot was on foot to steal the girls. Members of the household say that Monday night a closed carriage was driven up to the Beihn gate. It is declared that a man was heard sharply commanding the girls to enter and that they obeyed him. The horses then were whipped and the victims rapidly carried away.

After an unsuccessful search by relatives and local authorities Mr. Beihn came to Kenosha last night and engaged detectives to work upon the case.

The girls' mother has been dead for several years. Twelve months ago their father married Mrs. Anna Schenkenberg of Milwaukee. The stepmother appears to have been well-liked by the children, and not a word of dissatisfaction at their home life has ever been uttered by them in public.

Mystery Deepens.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 20.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Kenosha, Wis., says: "The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Gertrude and Dorothy Bichn is growing deeper and no trace of the girls has been found. Blehn was in Kenosha early today and was in conference for several hours

TRAIN NO. 13 IS DITCHED, 13 HURT

Passenger Cars on Iron Mountain Wrecked in Oklahoma.

Fort Smith, Ark., Aug. 20.—Passenger train No. 13 on the St. Louis Iron Mountain & Southern railway, running between Little Rock and Kansas City, went into the ditch near Illinois, across the line from here in Oklahoma, this morning. Thirteen persons are reported injured. No deaths are reported.

The wrecked train left Fort Smith at 2:17 o'clock this morning. It was made up of two sleepers, a common coach, a smoker and a baggage-car. All went into the ditch, except the engine and tender. The wreck occurred between telegraph stations and the gathering of details was slow.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON WILL ACCEPT NOMINATION BY DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

GOVERNOR JOHN A. JOHNSON,
Who Puts Personal Feelings Aside and Accepts Call of the Democratic Party.

Will Lay Aside All Personal Considerations in Matter.

Believes It His Duty to Listen to People's Demand.

Nomination One of Most Spectacular In History of Politics.

THE TICKET.

For Governor—John A. Johnson of Nicollet county.
For Lieutenant Governor—J. J. Reiter of Olmsted county.
For Secretary of State—R. F. Lamb of Murray county.
For State Treasurer—Peter H. Nelson of St. Louis county.
For Attorney General—M. E. Matthews of Lyon county.
For Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners—H. P. Bjorge of Otter Tail county and Robert Mee of Rice county.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Shortly before noon today Governor Johnson called the newspaper men together and announced that he would accept the nomination tendered to him by the Democratic state convention at Minneapolis. He did not issue a formal statement, but said:

"After due consideration of the matter, and before I have been formally notified, I will tell you that I have made up my mind to lay aside all personal considerations and listen to the call of the party. I will accept the nomination when it is formally tendered to me.

"I desire, also, to make it emphatic that if the committee had called on me before the nominating speech had been made I would have positively declined to be renominated."

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eighty minutes of frenzied cheering, of wild shouting, of cakewalking, marching, countermarching and singing, signalized the nomination of John A. Johnson at the Democratic convention yesterday afternoon. It was a scene that will go into political history, its like has never before been witnessed at a Minnesota state convention. It was the culmination of the movement that had set in for the renomination of Johnson—a sentiment that the close friends of the governor found it impossible to check.

It was while waiting for the report of the resolutions committee that the motion to nominate a candidate for governor was put and carried, the underlying current that had pervaded the convention since the opening speech by Frank A. Day in a moment made itself felt, and before Daniel W. Lawler took the stage to begin his eloquent nominating speech it was apparent to every one in the big auditorium that John A. Johnson was the unanimous choice of the Democrats of Minnesota.

Early Wednesday morning it was almost a foregone conclusion that Johnson would be nominated, despite the earnest, sincere efforts on the part

EXPLOSION OF AUTOMOBILE

Causes Serious Injury to Two Men Near Lafayette, Ind.

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 20.—Two men were perhaps fatally burned and three others seriously injured by the explosion of an automobile near here yesterday. Those seriously injured were Thomas Denman, a wealthy farmer, and Ralph Sear of Boswell, Ind. The others wounded were William Coffenberg, Leo Schuessler and Warren Mankey, also of Boswell.

The explosion, which was caused by gasoline, occurred while the machine was running at a rate of thirty miles an hour. The men, with their clothing ablaze, leaped from the machine, which ran into a fence and was totally destroyed by fire. The cries of the men attracted neighboring farmers, who hurried to their assistance.

RECEIVER APPOINTED

M. J. Carpenter in Charge of Southern Indiana Railroad.

One of the Roads Engineered by John R. Walsh.

Linton, Ind., Aug. 20.—M. J. Carpenter, formerly president of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad company, was appointed receiver for the Southern Indiana railroad at Chicago this morning.

Attorney James C. Hutchins, Ovid B. Jameson, Indianapolis, and Lessing Rosenthal, appeared with E. K. Boisot before United States Circuit Judge Kohlsaat at a late hour last night on behalf of the First Trust and Savings bank, the representative of the associated clearing house banks of Chicago, to apply for a receiver for the Southern Indiana Railway company. Three similar bills were filed by the First Trust and Savings bank, one in the northern district of Illinois at Chicago, one in the eastern district at Danville, Ill., and one in the district of Indiana at Indianapolis. James Rosenthal appeared on behalf of the railroad companies.

Judge Kohlsaat entered orders in all the cases appointing Myron J. Carpenter, formerly president of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad company, and an experienced railroad man, as receiver. Mr. Carpenter selected E. C. Ritsher, who is thoroughly conversant with the affairs of the railroad as his counsel and associated with Mr. Ritsher is William Talbott, former attorney of the railway company.

Petitions of Intervention.

This morning petitions of intervention were filed by the Chicago Southern Railroad company, asking for the extension of the receivership to that road. The application was taken under advisement by Judge Kohlsaat and the hearing continued by him to Saturday, Aug. 22, at which time orders will, it is stated, be entered extending the receivership.

The Southern Indiana Railway company runs through the southern part of Indiana from Quaker, a point in the boundary line between Illinois and In-

HEAVY GALE ON ONTARIO

Wind Kicks Up Bad Sea, Putting Stop to Navigation.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 20.—A 45-mile gale kicked up a heavy sea on Lake Ontario last night and stopped navigation, only the largest steamer, Toronto, being able to make port, and that vessel ran foul of the wreck of the Titanic, which was sunk by the Kingston last week. The steamers North King and Caspian were unable to cross and tied up at Canadian ports. The gunboat Sandoval put back into port after trying to reach Oswego, where the training ship was to assist in the entertainment of the state volunteer firemen's association. Considerable damage was caused to cottages along the lake front.

THE GOVERNOR CONGRATULATED

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 20.—"Things are moving along nicely," remarked William J. Bryan today as he hung up the receiver of his telephone after a long distance talk with Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic national committee, who is in Chicago. Mr. Bryan, however, would not disclose the nature of the developments as communicated to him by Mr. Mack, but said that whatever information he was to make public would be given out at Democratic headquarters.

The unanimous action of the Minnesota state convention in re-nominating Governor John A. Johnson for a third term was gratifying news to the Democratic candidate, who at once forwarded a telegram of congratulations.

"It is a great compliment to Governor Johnson to be nominated for a third term by the unanimous action of his convention," said Mr. Bryan, "and I have no doubt that his candidacy will greatly strengthen the national ticket in that state."

As a result of the injury yesterday to an eastern newspaperman who undertook to ride the trick mule, Mascot, sent to Mr. Bryan by the Minnesota State Agricultural society, the Democratic candidate has determined to permit no further experiments of the kind. The affair came near ending in a tragedy. The correspondent is still confined to his bed, with a physician in attendance. This morning the mule was put to the more practicable task of pulling a grass-cutter over the lawn of the Bryan home.

KILLED UNLOADING LOGS.

FIRE DESTROYS CHISHOLM HOME

Incendiarism Suspected —Twenty-Seven Blind Piggers Arrested.

Chisholm, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire early this morning destroyed the residence of Mike A. Jaducovich in the Exmore location. The fire started about 3 o'clock and the house was burned to the ground. Incendiarism is suspected. The loss is about $1,000.

Twenty-seven blind-piggers were arrested yesterday by Chief of Police Dennis Madden. They will have a hearing before Judge Freeman. More are to be arrested. The wives of the "piggers" surrounded the jail last night with crying babies in their arms. A bystander insulted one woman and was knocked down by Chief Madden. Shots were fired in the ground to scare the crowd.

HELD TO THE GRAND JURY

Pool Game Swindlers Have Examination in Police Court.

Burt Moore's Ability as an Attorney Surprises Court.

Burt Moore, alleged professional swindler, would make a good attorney. In the examination of himself, Ray Nichols and Byron Shreve, arrested Aug. 15 on the charge of beating Wallace Lapp, a North Wisconsin farmer, out of $20 in a crooked pool game, he acted as attorney for the defense this morning, and the way he cross-examined Lapp while the latter was on the witness stand would have done credit to a veteran lawyer.

It was chiefly through his efforts that Shreve was discharged, but the case against himself and Nichols was so strong it would have been no disgrace for the best criminal attorney in town to lose the case. Nichols and Moore were bound over to the grand jury, and the bond in each case was set at $500.

All three are young men, about 22 years of age. They are believed to be "dope" fiends, for a full opium outfit was taken from them by the police. They are known to the police in different cities in the West, and seemed utterly dumbfounded when they learned how completely Chief Troyer had their records. Nichols on the witness stand told a straight enough story, until cross-examined by Assistant County Attorney Greene, when he became badly tangled up and contradicted himself several times.

Nichols coaxed Wallace Lapp into a pool game in a Superior street establishment Saturday, and the two got to betting on the result of the games, it is claimed. Then Moore appeared on the scene and took a cue. After playing for a while, Moore and Nichols claimed they had won $20 from Lapp, and took that amount from a roll of bills he had in his hand. He claims it was a plain steal, and that that amount of money had not been bet. At this juncture a third party appeared on the scene and threatened to arrest Lapp and the other two, and Nichols made off with the money.

Lapp notified the police, and inside of half an hour Detectives Irvine and Schulte had spotted the three men in the West hotel. They arrested the trio and took them to the police station. This morning Lapp could not positively identify Shreve, and the court was compelled to let him go, although the police are convinced that he is one of the gang, and that he has been working with them in several crooked deals. It appears that they have operated in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Duluth. Nichols said his profession was singing in moving picture shows, while Moore was a piano player and Shreve a bartender.

Car Jumped Track.
A Woodland car returning from the scene of the parade review at Hunter's Park last night, jumped the track just two blocks this side of the grounds, causing a small-sized panic among the passengers and delaying traffic for about an hour and a half. No one was hurt. The car was crowded to the doors, and when the trucks jumped the rails the passengers were very much frightened.

D. W. Paddock Arrested.
D. W. Paddock was arrested this morning on a grand larceny charge. It is claimed that he appropriated to his own uses $51 cash which he collected for Prof. George Tyler. The matter was settled out of court and the case dismissed this afternoon. Mr. Paddock claims he was guilty of no offense, and that nothing more than a civil suit should have been brought.

CLOSING SESSION OF THE EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Today's session will conclude the business of the National Editorial convention, which is in session here. After the selection of the next place of meeting and the election of officers, the delegates will spend the rest of the week in sight-seeing and visiting nearby cities, notably Minneapolis, Red Wing and Duluth.

The selection of the next place of meeting developed into a spirited contest between Seattle and Toledo. Seattle claims the convention by reason of an invitation two years ago to the association to meet in Seattle in 1909, during the Alaska-Yukon exposition. The Ohio delegation, which is a large one, is backing up the claim of Toledo.

There are also others, notably the Texal delegation, after the honor, but Seattle and Toledo seem to be making the biggest efforts.

Personal Injury Suits Aggregating $40,000 Are Filed.

Personal injury cases aggregating $40,000 were filed in the district court this afternoon.

Charles Hanson wants $20,000 from McLeod & Smith for injuries sustained while working as a riveter on the new addition to the board of trade building. He fell about fifteen feet and sustained serious injuries. The accident took place on June 5.

Sam Dicesare had charge of a mule car at the Mohawk mine last spring. The mule balked and Sam stepped in front of the car to shove it back from the mule's heels. Then the mule started up suddenly, and the car ran over him. He wants $10,000.

John Skepancic was killed by dynamite at the Bell mine on May 15, and his brother wants $5,000.

Charles Wickstrom, while working for the Skibo Lumber company, was crushed under a tree, sustained a broken leg and internal injuries. He wants $5,250

COPPERS FALL UNDER PRESSURE

Profit Taking Sends Prices Down, But Losses Are Small.

Profit taking sent the copper market down this morning in Boston, but good support prevented the decline from becoming of very great proportions and none of the good issues lost very much on the day's operations. In most cases, the closing prices were nearly equal to the opening prices this morning.

North Butte opened at $83.75, dropped back to $82.75 and came up at the close to $83.75. Amalgamated opened at $77.26, dropped to $75.75 and came up to $77.25 at the close. Anaconda opened at $46.75, dropped to $46.25 and rallied at the close to $47. Butte Coalition opened at $27.25, dropped to $26.50 and rallied at the close to $27. Calumet & Arizona opened at $119, dropped to $118, rallied to $120 and fell back at the close to $118.

Most of the local curb stocks were strong, but the higher priced curbs acted in sympathy with the listed market and showed some weakness. Greene-Cananea sold at $11.87½ and $11.75 and was quoted at $11.62½ bid and $11.75 asked at the close. Superior & Pittsburg sold at $13.75, went to $13.87½, fell back to $13.62½ and closed at that figure bid, with $13.75 asked. Black Mountain sold at $3.62½ and closed at $3.50 bid and $3.75 asked. Butte & Superior sold at $1.25 and $1.37½. Calumet & Sonora at $10, Carman at $3.37½. Copper Queen at $1.37½. Denn Arizona at $4.12½ and $4.25. Red Warrior was inactive at $3 bid and $3.25 asked. Globe at $4.62½ bid and $4.87½ asked. Mowitza at $2 bid and $2.25 asked. Cliff at $1.25 bid and $1.37½ asked, and Butte-Ballakiava at $7 bid and $7.25 asked.

FUND GROWS VERY SLOWLY

Few Responses to Appeal for Aid to Sufferers.

The Herald fund for the benefit of the Clinton sufferers was added to this morning when a man, who refused to give his name, stepped into the office and donated a dollar which, he said, was all he could afford to give. He said he was ashamed of Duluth people, who would not contribute to such a worthy cause. Later, this same man found another party, who contributed $1.50.

There was previously acknowledged $28, and the additions to the fund now bring it up to $30.50.

The fund which the Commercial club started with $50 has grown to about $65.

ALLEYS ARE IN BAD SHAPE

Chain Gang is Busy Cleaning Up the Hillside.

The chain gang is busy on the hillside cleaning out the back alleys.

The city foremen who are working with them, say that they are in bad shape. Several loads of garbage were hauled this morning, and it will take some time to clean them thoroughly.

People in the vicinity are being warned not to let it happen again. It is said that people dump their ashes, tomato cans, and rubbish in the alleys.

LAWYERS MISS AN OLD FRIEND

Case of Long Standing is Settled and Dismissed.

One of the old land marks on the court calenders in Duluth has been effaced.

The case of Stitt & Howe against the Rat Portage Lumber company has decorated court calenders for years past, and has gone through almost every conceivable process of the law. It was dismissed this morning on stipulation of the attorneys, H. B. Fryberger and R. R. Briggs. Stitt & Howe were suing for $11,877 on a logging contract.

GIDDING'S, The Home of Correct Attire for Women, already offers a liberal Pre-Autumn representation of the things that will be worn for the coming season.

Every innovation of outline, trimming, collar or sleeve detail has been carefully considered—its merits weighed against its faults. Worthy points have been accepted, unworthy points rejected, until now we feel with confident assurance that our Fall showing is to represent "Perfection in Every Detail," in all types from extreme to extreme.

Last, but not least, is price consideration. We ask no more than our competitors—as fair comparison will readily show. $25.00, $29.50 or $35.00 buys a perfectly tailored suit with style in every inch. Of course, additional luxuries mount to higher figures.

LUMBER TRADE IS IMPROVING

Prominent Chicago Dealers Pay Visit to Duluth.

Isaac Baker of the Hines Lumber company of Chicago and Gen. W. R. Robbins of the C. A. Paulser Lumber company of the same city are at the Spalding today. Both men represent companies that are among the largest corporations in the United States.

"The lumber business is showing a slight improvement," said Mr. Baker. "As yet the sales are not heavy. Buyers are looking the field over, but are doing very little buying. I am up here looking the field over myself; like the rest of the lumbermen, I don't expect to do much buying.

"The buyers are waiting until after the elections are over. They are not buying in any large quantities. They are simply taking enough lumber for immediate wants. That is the principal reason why there have been no large sales for the past few months.

"I might say that the business is showing a slight improvement. I think that conditions will gradually grow better. The general industrial situation is improving, and I believe that the lumber situation will reflect the general improvement of other lines of business."

Mr. Robbins said substantially the same. He looks for an improvement, but believes that it will be gradual. Gen. Robbins, like Mr. Baker, is up here to look the field over.

ORIGIN OF "AMERICA."

Boston Transcript: "I suppose I am the only person here who heard 'America' sung the first time in this country," said the Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D. D., in an address at the Old West Roxbury Meeting house, "It was on a Fourth of July when I was a boy. I had spent all my celebration money and on my way home had to pass Park street church. I decided to go into the church, where there was a celebration of the nation's holiday.

"There was a chorus of boys and girls who sang 'America' on that day for the first time. I don't remember whether I tried to sing it. Later in life, Dr. Smith told me how he came to write the verses to the tune of 'God Save the King.'

"The minister of Park street church told him that there was to be a celebration of the Fourth of July at the church and that he wanted Dr. Smith to write some verses of a song for it, and handed to Dr. Smith a number of English and German music books and told him to find some tune in them and fit his verses to the music.

"Dr. Smith looked through the books and selected the tune, which he had never heard, and which has been sung as 'America' in this country ever since."

ALL RUN DOWN.

Miss Della Stroebe, who had Completely Lost Her Health, Found Relief from Pe-ru-na at Once.

Read What She Says:

MISS DELLA STROEBE, 710 Richmond St., Appleton, Wis., writes:

"For several years I was in a run-down condition, and I could find no relief from doctors and medicines. I could not enjoy my meals, and could not sleep at night. I had heavy, dark circles about the eyes.

"My friends were much alarmed. I was advised to give Peruna a trial, and to my joy I began to improve with the first bottle. After taking six bottles I felt completely cured. I cannot say too much for Peruna as a medicine for women in a run-down condition."

Pe-ru-na Did Wonders.

North Dakota Prohibitionists to Discuss Matter Tuesday.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The North Dakota Prohibitionists are to hold a state convention and mass meeting here next Tuesday. Ostensibly the meeting is for the purpose of selecting presidential electors, but some of the leaders are in favor of the selection of an entire state ticket. No regularly elected delegates will be in attendance, but a large number of enthusiastic Prohibition workers are expected to be here. The cold water people will entirely ignore the provisions of the state primary law and ask to be placed directly on the ballot.

FAIRBANKS SPEAKS AT EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, MO.

Excelsior Springs, Mo., Aug. 20.—Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, spent today at the Springs where he is the guest of E. E. Morse, an old time friend and was billed to deliver two addresses. He arrived this morning from Chicago and was met at the Ryan by a delegation of citizens and escorted to the home of Mr. Morse by a troop of cavalry sent from Fort Leavenworth, Kan. In the afternoon he addressed the Chautauqua, on "William McKinley." This it is said will be the only Chautauqua address the vice president will make this year. Tonight he is to speak at a big gathering of Missouri Republicans.

MARINE NEWS

LAKE TRADE OPENING UP

Busy Season is in Prospect for the Big Freighters.

Independent Vessel Owners Have Promise of Ore Cargoes.

After a long season of idleness and much talk about the opening up of lake trade, business seems to have at last wakened up in earnest. Ever since the opening of lake navigation early last spring it has been "two weeks" or "next month" that trade on the Great Lakes would be on with a big rush.

It's better late than never, however, and from now on every available boat on the Great Lakes will be pressed into service and used until the ice makes it impossible this fall. The Heffelinger and the Wolvin of the Wolvin Steamship company are being refitted, crews sent aboard, and will be on their way down the lakes with ore cargoes by the end of the week. This will mean that every steel trust boat is busy and the independent boats will now get all the work they can care for. The Wolvin and the Heffelinger are the last two boats of the fleet to be fitted out, and when they are in shape every boat belonging to the Wolvin company will be busy.

Last week the Tomlinson company refitted three boats, the Gilchrist concern is starting four this week from Buffalo and the Pittsburg company has sent notices to the independent concerns asking them to refit and report for business.

Nearly all of the ore carrying trade so far this year has been done by the boats belonging to the steel trust, so that the independent men have been idle. The announcement that the steel company is going to rush ore down the lakes and give them work is hailed with delight.

Nothing has been given out on what basis the freight rate will be made this year, but it is generally supposed that the rate will be the same as last year.

ENLARGE DRYDOCK.

Superior Yards Will be Able to Build the Largest Vessels.

Considerable interest has been aroused in Duluth and Superior vesselmen by the dispatch from Cleveland stating that $100,000 will be spent on the shipyards at Superior. Barnett & Record have been awarded the contract and work will be started at once.

For a long time the shipyards at Superior have been handicapped in the work of construction of large vessels on account of the short docks. Now that the docks are to be lengthened the largest boats can easily be drydocked, and no difficulty will be experienced in building the largest boats.

The company intends to build drydocks at Buffalo which will cost $300,000.

President of Tugmen Here.

J. V. O'Connor, grand president of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective Association of America, is in the city on his annual tour of the Great Lakes. He is inspecting the union organizations at the different ports, and says that while things have not been as lively as usual this year, that the tugmen suffer less than in other branches of the lake work. Mr. O'Connor is from Buffalo.

Coal Dock Collapses.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Pittsburg Coal company's dock at Point Aux Frene, in Mud lake, collapsed last night. The north pockets and decks, together with a large amount of coal, were thrown into the water. It is supposed that the current washed away the mud bottom, causing the piling to give way.

HEAVY COAL MOVEMENT

Western Points Are Being Rapidly Supplied With Winter Fuel.

The western movement of coal has set in in earnest during the past two weeks and it now looks as if the agents through the Dakotas and the further Western states will be fairly well supplied before the eastern movement of wheat begins.

Long strings of loaded coal cars are seen leaving this city, for Western points, and traffic officials say that the bulk of the early movement will have been placed along the line before the wheat movement will demand the motive power of the roads.

The officials of the road are encouraging the ordering of coal. The new cars of both the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific are of greater capacity than the old cars, and many of the dealers are ordering full car load lots, thus cleaning up the movement at a much earlier stage than would be the case if the ordering was done in smaller quantities.

Most of the coal that has moved west at this date has been commercial coal. Very little railroad coal has gone West. The railroad officials plan to supply all of the coal agents first and then attend to the wants of the railroad companies. If the present rate of coal shipment continues there is little probability that the West will endure a coal famine, no matter how early or severe the winter it.

DOMINION GOVERNMENT TO DAM MANY STREAMS.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 20.—The Dominion government has decided to dam all of the streams running down the entire eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains in Canada, with the view of conserving the supply and preventing annual waste of water by floods in the spring.

These waters will be used for navigation where it is necessary, and it will also be a more complete system of protection to the forests from fires. In the West it will be supplemented by an appointment of fire rangers.

WEST END

LOVED HIS MISTRESS

Dog Frightens Conductor and Gets Free Car Ride.

Male Passengers Back Woman Up in Stubborn Stand.

A do with a great affection for his mistress and a great dislike for any outsider who attempts to interfere with a display of that affection, created a sensation on a West Duluth car, in the West end, last evening.

The woman boarded the car in the West end, and the gates were closed against a dog which was following her. Instead of going home, as all good dogs should do, the animal galloped along after the car, until two blocks further on, when it came to a stop, and the gates were opened, the canine leaping aboard.

He was kicked off by the conductor, but at the next stop he managed to evade the watchful eyes of the man in blue, and succeeded in getting inside the car. It didn't take him long to locate his mistress, and with a joyful bark he leaped into the seat beside her.

The conductor told the woman she would have to put the dog off. She responded by saying she didn't let him on in the first place, and that if any one was going to put him off the conductor would have the job on his own hands. Taking the hint, the conductor started to take hold of the animal, but a sharp growl, and a row of glistening teeth, warned him to desist. Another attempt a few moments later met with the same result.

The man then ordered the woman off the car and she refused to go. He couldn't get at her over the growling dog. By this time the passengers were greatly interested, and a group of men said if the conductor put the woman off they would put him off. This was followed by a heated argument, but the men were firm, and the dog was firm, and there was nothing to do but make the best of a bad bargain. The conductor finally retreated to the rear platform, and the woman and dog remained victorious in the seat until Third avenue was reached, where they both got off.

WILL OPEN BIDS.

School Board Will Let Contract for New Ensign School.

At the special meeting of the school board tomorrow night bids for the construction of the new J. D. Ensign school will be opened and the contract let. This new school will take the place of the old Horace Mann school, which burned some time ago. Work will be started at once, as that is part of the contract conditions.

West end people look forward eagerly to the completion of the building, as a number of the children will have quite a distance to go to school while the new building is being constructed. The pupils will be divided according to the district in which they live, and will be cared for at the Adams and Madison buildings.

West End Shortrails.

The Ladies' Aid of the Swedish Methodist church met this afternoon with Mrs. Swan Anderson of 2308 West Eighth street.

The fire department was called out yesterday afternoon to extinguish a fire in a small shed on Twenty-third avenue west and Michigan street.

Mrs. J. B. Dye and daughter of 113 Twentieth avenue west returned yesterday from Munger, Minn., where they have been visiting with relatives.

Edgar G. Banta and his neice, Miss Rose of Springfield, Ohio, are visiting with Mrs. A. M. Maseau of 1112 West First street. They came up on the Juniata.

A. A. Ohrn, who has been visiting with Edward Thorsdtad of 2628 West Fifth street, has returned to his home in St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Larson of Whiteface, Minn., are visiting in the West end. They will leave for Lake Nebagamon tonight.

Mrs. Knute Nelson of West Fifth street left this morning for Bismark for a visit with friends.

Shirts, neckwear, hosiery, suit cases, bags, hats, fancy vests, rain coats, everything that makes up the stock of the Spalding Haberdashery, to be closed out quick. Sale starts tomorrow, at 9 a. m. If you want something good for a little money be on hand.

GRAND RIDE FOR A SONG

Herald's Next Lake Excursion Will Occur Saturday Afternoon.

The excursion season will not last a great while longer. If you neglect the opportunity of enjoying one of The Herald's popular excursions on Lake Superior, or the St. Louis river, you will regret it. The Herald believed that lowpriced excursions during the midweek and on Saturday would be appreciated by those who cannot go on regular excursions given by the owners of the boats, and the popularity of The Herald's excursions this season has borne out that belief.

The Herald's next excursion will occur Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, when the steamer Easton will leave Booth's dock, at the foot of Lake avenue, for a 30-mile sail down Lake Superior; fare for round trip only 30 cents. The Herald affords the people of Duluth a five-hours' ride on the greatest body of fresh water in the world, including a return trip in the glorious moonlight, for a mere nominal sum. People who have enjoyed the lake excursions this season declare it one of the grandest trips of their lives. Everybody is enthusiastic about The Herald's excursions.

Take the family and the lunch basket and go on next Saturday's excursion. The boat will stop one hour at Two Harbors, and reach Duluth at 9 o'clock.

Tickets are now on sale at The Herald office. Buy early, as the sale will be limited to the number the Easton can carry with comfort and pleasure for all.

Deputies For Pratt City.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 20.—A special detail of deputies was sent to Pratt City late last night, where it was reported that trouble seemed to be brewing along the drift slope of the mines there. At Columbiana, Ala., in Shelby county yesterday fifteen men were held without bail charged with the dynamiting at Acton in which one man was killed. Two of the men held are officers in the miners' union.

BEN PITTMAN TALKS TO THE SHORTHANDERS.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 20.—Today's session of the National Shorthand Reporters' association, in convention, here, was devoted largely to discussion of the report of the committee on legislation.

Ben Pittman of Cincinnati, brother and assistant of the originator and promulgator of the Pittman system of shorthand, delivered an address. He is 86 years of age, and is still active in his profession.

Tonight the annual banquet will be given, the speakers being Oscar L. Detweiler, Philadelphia; Henry D. Goodwin, Milwaukee; W. E. McDermitt, Chicago; Charles L. Morrison, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Charles H. McGuirrin, Kalamazoo, Mich., and Edward H. Eldridge, Boston.

YANTIC REPAIRED.

Members of Michigan Naval Reserves Will Return to Hancock.

The steamer Yantic, the training ship of the Michigan naval reserves, is still in drydock at Superior, but will be let into the water some time this evening and will leave tomorrow morning for her post at Hancock.

The Yantic was put into drydock on orders from the government, for a thorough inspection and overhauling. No extensive repairs were necessary, but there was some caulking to be done and she was painted at the water line. The entire hull was examined and found to be in good condition.

Only about twenty-five members of the Hancock and Escanaba divisions are on the boat on the present trip, which is not part of the cruise. They have spent the past two days in Duluth and Superior, having been given shore leave while the boat was on the dock. The reserves on the trip are under the command of Ensign Banks, the two higher officers having remained at Hancock.

REDUCED RILEY'S MAJORITY.

Recount Cuts Down Votes for Contestee in North Dakota.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Pollock will hear the final arguments in the contest case of Mrs. Mattie M. Davis against J. W. Riley on Sept. 1. The former has been county superintendent for a dozen years and was defeated under the primary law for renomination. She instituted a contest, claiming wrong counts in some country precincts and fraud in two wards in Fargo. The recounts have been completed in these, reducing the majority of Riley from seventeen to twelve.

Men Past Sixty in Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old." Sold by all druggists."

Shirts, neckwear, hosiery, suit cases, bags, hats, fancy vests, rain coats, everything that makes up the stock of the Spalding Haberdashery, to be closed out quick. Sale starts tomorrow, at 9 a. m. If you want something good for a little money be on hand.

Final Cleanup of Columbia Suits Starts Tomorrow!

As usual we bid our "Undesirables" leave the counters when the season wanes. And as usual it will be a great sale because every suit which because of its loneliness is undesirable to us is just what some one of you will want.

$6.75 A Suit For Two Days Only

They are not $6.75 suits by any means, but they must go at this price because they are odds and ends left after the regular sales removed the rest of their kind. Their values run up to $15 and $18, and in some cases $20.

All sizes are in the lot of over 200 suits, from size 35 to 48 chest measure, with special suits for stout and slim men—also quite a number of the modish two-piece outing suits.

ON THE IRON RANGES

EMPLOYES GIVEN A LIBERAL OFFER

Oliver Mining Company Offers Inducements for Home Owning.

Chisholm, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Oliver Iron Mining company offers to sell to any employe here, the dwelling in which he lives, if owned by the company, by such employe paying not less than 20 per cent nor more than 50 per cent of his salary monthly, the company to keep up the insurance and taxes. If the employe cannot keep up these payments or he is compelled to move elsewhere, the money paid in is to be refunded.

The company has decided to build twelve more new buildings at the Monroe location this fall, and will start work upon them as soon as possible. They will be erected on the east side of the location, and they are now clearing ground. The Monroe location is the finest one on the range.

ONLY THIRTEEN IN OPPOSITION

Hibbing School District Becomes Independent After Quiet Election.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some time ago the Hibbing Commercial club advocated the idea, at one of its meetings, of making Hibbing an independent school district. Accordingly, at a speial election, just held, it was decided to make this district independent. There was little interest shown in the election, as only 106 votes were cast, 93 for and 13 against.

On or about Sept. 18 an election will be held to elect six members of the school board. It seems to be the consensus of opinion that the three present members should be retained, owing to their familiarity with the work required, and three new members elected to work in conjunction with them. The schools will be opened Aug. 31. The present board is going ahead with the regular routine of business and will, at its next regular meeting, select an architect for the new school which will be built on the west end of the block now occupied by the Central school.

HIBBING JAIL ON ROLLERS.

Village Lockup is Being Moved—Other Events.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The material for the basement of the new Cox block and the M. & M. bank is now on the ground and work toward the completion of the new buildings will be rapidly pushed forward.

The building which has been used for a jail here for years past has been put on rollers preparatory to being moved, in order to make room for the new city hall.

This evening the Yeomen of America will give one of their popular card and dancing parties.

Many Hibbing citizens are taking advantage of going to Sturgeon lake this summer. Among those visiting the Thomas Inn at present are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Roddy and niece, Miss Doyle.

Miss Pauline Markham, who has been in Bemidji the past month, expects to return to Hibbing in the near future.

J. Miller and D. Elias, who have been in Duluth, yesterday returned home.

Fred Kohrt has returned from a business trip to Duluth.

MAY BUILD SEWER.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to Th Herald.)—The contract with Pastoret & Lunz for the relaying of the water mains is completed. The work must be finished within thirty days or otherwise a penalty of $10 a day over that time will be exacted. Work will be started in a few days.

The sewer which was to have been started some time ago on Monroe street from Grant avenue to the depot, but which was laid over until a future date because the mining company was digging underground along the street, may yet be put in this year. Alderman Hatch of the First ward, which includes Monroe street, says that work on a sewer can now be started as the mining company has completed its work in that vicinity.

On account of all the improvements that will be made this year by the city, it is very possible that a levy will be made this year, and certificates of indebtedness will be given now, so that ready money will be on hand to build a large water tank, which is absolutely necessary.

LAKE COUNTY SOCIALISTS NOMINATE CANDIDATES.

Two Harbors, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Socialists of Lake county have nominated the following ticket:

J. W. Woodfill, sheriff; J. A. O'Malley, auditor; A. A. Geragren, clerk of court; L. D. Rose, superintendent of schools; R. E. Jones, probate judge; C. W. Dawson, register of deeds; Nels Westlund, commissioner in Fourth district. N. S. Hallman was chairman of the convention and L. D. Rose secretary. The platform of the Socialist state convention was indorsed.

CHISHOLM WILL AGAIN SEARCH FOR CEMETERY.

Chisholm, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—For several years past an attempt has been made to secure a piece of ground for a cemetery, but it has proved impossible. Several pieces have been found, but when the owner was approached he refused to sell, for fear that there was iron ore underneath. Another trial is being made, and there are some hopes of getting a burying ground.

SHIPPING CANISTEO ORE.

Washed Ore From Holman Shipped for Testing Purposes.

Coleraine, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Twelve carloads of ore from the Holman mine that have been put through the new washing plant and are to be further tested, were shipped from here yesterday, making the first shipment from the Canisteo district this season.

The exploration forces are moving their drill equipments to the east of the Hill mine for the purpose of testing the ground for a possible ore body before using that location for a dumping place. Many stripping dumps on the Mesaba have had to be moved because a thorough exploration had not been made before dumping.

Drills have also been put to work on sections 20 and 21-56-23, between Marble and Taconite, and are proving up on ore there.

TO WED THURSDAY EVENING.

Virginia Couple to be Made One—Other Current Events.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The wedding of Miss Julia Florence Helstrom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Helstrom of Central avenue, and Oscar Tomte, will be solemnized this evening at the residence of the brides parents. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Shurvenius, pastor of the Norwegian Methodist church. The couple will leave on Saturday for a honeymoon trip, after which they will reside in this city.

Ed Keneete, one of the head sawyers for the Virginia Lumber company, has resigned to take a similar position in the saw mill at Winton.

Judge James P. Carey went to International Falls Tuesday evening to join the Virginia ball club on their Canadian tour. They won the first game with International Falls yesterday by a score of 2 to 1, several Winnipeg players having been enrolled by the International Falls club for this series.

Mrs. Neomie Doolittle and Miss Lida Doolittle, grandmother and aunt, respectively of Mrs. Otto Johnson, visited here this week, departing yesterday for a visit with friends at Eveleth before returning to their home at Ashland, where Miss Doolittle is principal of the primary school.

Mrs. Joseph G. Watt has returned from a visit to Duluth.

Mrs. R. R. Bailey has returned from a visit with friends in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Sadie McNeil has returned from a visit in Duluth and was accompanied home by MissEsther Carlson, who will be a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gilmore for a few days.

Mrs. Ruth Bahr and Miss Edith McMurray have returned from a visit to St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Chase are receiving a visit from Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Eaton and son, Henry, of Necedah, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Simons are entertaining Miss Gertrude Campbell, librarian of the state normal school at St. Paul.

C. T. Fairbairn, manager of mines for the Republic Iron & Steel company, came up from Duluth Monday, accompanied by Mrs. Fairbairn, who is undergoing treatment at the Lenont hospital.

Gerald Roskilly has gone to Ishpeming, Mich., to join his mother and sisters, who are visiting relatives there.

George Simons, bookkeeper for the American Exchange bank, has returned from an outing with friends on the banks of the Cloquet river.

FAREWELL PARTY

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A party was recently given in honor of Miss Violet White, who is to leave soon for her home in Merrill, Wis. A large number of guests were present at Missabe Mountain township hall, where dancing and games were the order. While here, she has been the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. Perlman and family returned yesterday from a long trip to Chicago, Milwaukee and Minneapolis. Last Sunday they attended the wedding, at Milwaukee, of the brother, Harry Shanedling, well known in this city. The bridegroom will return in about a week after a short trip East.

The Zenith Electric company is now under the sole control of Abram Rauma, as Mr. Garske has gone into the employ of the Bell Telephone company at the local mines.

A dance was given early in the week at Vail hall by a number of young people. About thirty couples attended.

A reception was given Tuesday night at Missabe Mountain township hall by members of St. John's church in honor of Rev. Mr. Craswell, who has just recently returned from a trip to Europe. Music was furnished by an orchestra and refreshments served. A large number of the church members were present.

Dr. Lee Spurbeck, a graduate of the dental department at the state university, has been secured by Dr. Denton to act as his assistant in place of Dr. Kohagen, who has returned to Minneapolis.

EVELETH AGAINST VIRGINIA.

Series of Four Games Will Begin on Friday.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow afternoon Eveleth will begin a series of four games with Virginia. Although they lost the last series, the local players are not discouraged and expect to even up on this series. So far Virginia has only won one game from Eveleth on the local grounds, which sign is very hopeful. Two new players have been secured, and this will strengthen the team considerably. Godfrey of the late Fargo league team will play field while Williams, also of that team, will cover second, Freer going into left field. After the Virginia series Eveleth will play a series of games with Duluth, at Duluth.

NOT DRILLING ON FORTY.

Stories to That Effect Said to be Premature.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of stories have recently appeared in the papers about the drilling on the forty adjoining the Gilbert townsite, which was supposed to have been platted for the Sparta people, who have sold out to the Steel corporation. On investigation it develops that the stories were without foundation, though some drills have been working in the neighborhood of the forty. The Sparta people are making preparations to leave town, either to move over to the Gilbert or to leave altogether. It has been about thirteen years since the town of Sparta was first started and was the result of finding ore at the present Genoa mine, a vein of which is supposed to run under the town proper, and on account of which the people will have to move.

Sunday School Picnic.

Eveleth, Minn. Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A Sunday school picnic of one of the classes at the M. E. church was held Tuesday at Sparta. The children were taken out to the picnic grounds in autos belonging to J. C Poole and Dr. More. A trip on the gasoline launch was taken by the picnickers and lunch was brought along.

VIRGINIA MILL TO BE STARTED

Plans on Foot to Resume Operations at Old Sawmill.

Virginia, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Present indications are that logging operations will soon be resumed by the Virginia Lumber company. W. H. Cook, William O'Brien and other officers of the concern have been here this week making arrangements for resumption of sawing at the old mill, which was closed down about four weeks ago, with the intention of rebuilding it in part and adding a horizontal resaw. The demand for lumber has recently increased to such an extent, however, that the plan has been altered and the old mill will be started up and operated night and day as soon as necessary repairs can be made. It is expected that the mill can be made ready to begin sawing shortly after the first of September. Owing to the fact that the logs in the lake are being rapidly reduced to lumber, it will be necessary to begin woods operations soon, in order to keep the mills stocked with logs. There is about 4,000,000 feet of logs to be brought here from Rainy Lake. These logs belong to William O'Brien personally, but are to be sawed here. About 7,000,000 in Pelican lake are now being shipped to this point. This will be sufficient to keep the two mills running about twenty days, when it will be necessary to begin supplying the mills direct from the woods. This will furnish employment to hundreds of additional men both in the mills and camps.

While there is considerable lumber piled in the yards of the company, nearly all of it has been sold, and it is reported that considerable additional sales have recently been made.

RETAIL CLERKS' PICNIC.

Annual Outing is Being Held at Burlington Bay.

Two Harbors, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Things are doing at Burlington bay, near here, today, where the retail clerks of the city are holding their annual picnic. The ideal weather has attracted a large crowd, and a pleasant day is being spent. There are sports of various kinds, for which a long list of prizes are hung up by the business houses. A dance in the opera house this evening will bring the picnic to a fitting close.

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

AURORA COUNCIL IS MUCH ELATED

Fitger Brewing Company Agrees to Sell Only Licensed Places.

Aurora, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the council meeting last night the fight between the council and the Fitger Brewing company of Duluth, came to an end. The brewery had been asked to send the council a signed agreement, and it did, as follows:

"Permit us to say that we have instructed Charles Hill, our Aurora agent, several months ago to confine his sales of beer to licensed places only, except in such instances where your own police or village authorities will allow such sales to be made. The above policy will be strictly adhered to in the future.

Respectfully yours,
"FITGER BREWING COMPANY,
"A. FITGER, President.

"Dated, Duluth, Minn., Aug. 15, 1908."

This letter from the Fitger company, it is thought, will induce the other companies to do likewise and the council and the entire village are jubilant over the victory. Several saloons have gone out of commission since the council passed the famous blind pig agreement, and these will probably resume business soon.

A fire ordinance was passed by the council, limiting the territory to Jackson street and the alleys east and west. Buildings hereafter must be fireproof, and if destroyed by fire or otherwise, the buildings must be rebuilt according to the ordinance if less than 50 per cent is loft standing.

A resolution was passed condemning the out-houses on the alleys east and west of Jackson street, and the property owners are compelled to connect with the sewer. Christianson & Nelson were appointed village plumbers.

Company Awaits Ammunition.

Eveleth, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local militia company has been very busy of late on the rifle range, but as the ammunition is now very low, the men will have to stop shooting for a while. The rifle range is now in first class condition, and the boys have been making good scores in their practice shoots.

Paper's Fine Quarters.

Chisholm, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. E. Talboys, proprietor of the Chisholm Herald, has moved his place of business to larger and more commodious quarters, next to the postoffice. He also installed a new Prouty power press, which will be run by steam power.

SPRINGFIELD AUTHORITIES UNABLE TO GET EVIDENCE

in the anxiety which was manifest in all circles of the city.

In fact a renewal of the rioting is expected momentarily, and the negroes especially fear that once the mob is started again no power of the state can prevent the most serious disorders.

Only the Seventh regiment of infantry and eight troops of the state cavalry regiment were on active duty today. The Second, Fifth and Third regimental organizations broke camp this morning, reducing the military force to about 1,000 men. Not more than a third of these were on active duty and the decrease in military display and regulation was noticeable.

The force may be reduced still further tomorrow, according to common report, but none of the officials in charge would confirm or deny this. It is certain, however, that the immediate return of normal conditions is the goal sought in all quarters. This can be accomplished only by the withdrawal of the troops from the streets and the abrogation of the orders which, in many instances, require the presentation of special orders before citizens can pass sentries stationed at certain street corners. The regulations of the city officials regarding the early closing of all business houses and the prohibition of the sale of liquors within the city limits are still in force.

Morning Devoid of Alarms.

This morning was almost devoid of alarms. Some firing was heard in the outlying eastern sections of the city but nervous militiamen were responsible for it. One sentry challenged the shadow of a tree stirred by the wind, and shot when it refused to halt and another fired four times at a pile or refuse which failed to "keep moving." There were probably half a dozen calls for troops at the various headquarters but in none of the cases was their presence needed.

Work was resumed today at the Tuxhorn mine, which had been shut down because of the refusal of the whites and negroes to work together. The orders of the officials of the miners' union were responsible for this and the other miners affected by similar conditions are expected to resume tomorrow.

Negro refugees continue to leave town in increasing numbers. Neighboring villages and hamlets however are in many instances refusing the negroes a haven and most of the colored people who departed today were bound for communities at a distance from this city. Many of the negroes selected Missouri as their destination but most of the emigrants started for Chicago, Peoria and other Illinois cities.

RECEIVER APPOINTED

diana to Westport, Ind. At Quaker, it connects with the Chicago Southern Railroad company, which runs through Illinois to Chicago Heights. All the capital stock of the latter railway is owned by the Southern Indiana Railway company, and this road operates the Chicago Southern. The notes under which today's receivership was procured are owned by the First Trust and Savings bank, for the account of the associated banks, and were acquired at the time these banks took over the assets of the Walsh banks. This receivership, it is thought, will in no way affect in any unfavorable way John R. Walsh, or the firm of B. R. Walsh & Co. The receivership was made necessary by the industrial depression, which has existed and was asked for the purpose of conserving the credit and resources of conserving pany. It is stated by the Walsh interests that the receivership will be regarded as satisfactory by all concerned, and that reviving business will soon place the receiver in a position to care for the pressing obligations of the company.

Archers in Contest.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Archers competing in the thirteenth national archery tournament today shot a double york round and began the handicap events. A fine breeze made accurate shooting difficult.

Congress Ends.

Copenhagen, Aug. 20.—The fifteenth international congress of Orientalists, which has been in session in this city for a week, came to an end today. The next congress will be held at Athens in the spring of 1911.

CURED TO STAY CURED

If you suffer from backache—
From urinary disorders—
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.
Duluth people testify.
Here's one case of it:

L. P. Schneider, butcher at McAuley's Washington market, and living at 210 West Fourteenth avenue, Duluth, Minn., says: "A statement I made in 1898, recommending Doan's Kidney Pills, and which has been published in the local papers, very mildly expresses my opinion of that remedy. After suffering for a long time with pain through the back and loins, which made it almost impossible for me to stoop and lift anything without torture, and after using various medicines and treatments without effect, Doan's Kidney Pills cured me, and the lapse of six years has proved that the cure has been permanent. I suffered the worst tortures of kidney trouble. Often the pain felt as if a sharp knife was piercing me. At night, although tired out, I could not rest or lie in one position without becoming sore all over. The kidney secretions were irregular and contained a heavy sediment. Since I found this sure cure I have time after time advised others to use Doan's Kidney Pills, and I never miss an opportunity to speak well of them."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

VISITING AT ISLE ROYALE

Minnesota Naval Reserves Enjoying Outing at Picturesque Spot.

Expected to Reach Duluth on Gopher Friday or Saturday.

(By Staff Correspondent on Board the United States Steamship Gopher.)

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Aug. 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Weather predictions for tomorrow (Wednesday) are reign.

The principal reigning will be done by Neptune, Rex, who will leave salt water for the first time in his royal wet career, to make subjects of the members of the Minnesota naval militia.

His royal majesty, Neptune, will board the good ship at the point of no variation, where the compass shows no deviation whatsoever. When he comes aboard and during his entire stay on board, his majesty will be in command of the ship, and the navigator will be the only officer to retain his rank during that time.

The Order of Neptuneus is one of considerable moment in the United States navy. It originated several years ago and a large number of men in the service hold membership cards and diplomas showing them to be loyal subjects of Neptune and duly informed as to affairs at his court. There are several men aboard the Gopher who at different times have crossed the equator as members of Uncle Sam's regular navy and who are members of the Neptune fraternity. They will assist his majesty in the initiation exercises tomorrow.

When the Gopher gets to Duluth, all hands should hold cards in the Neptune order. Every one from Commander Eaton, Lieut. Commander Scully and the rest of the officers down to the lumpiest signal boys will be received at Neptune's court. It is expected that a pleasant time will be had, as the editor of the Hickory Corners Chronicle would say.

Greeting From Neptune.

To the officers and men of the United States steamship Gopher:

Neptune Rex—Greetings: Know ye that I, Neptune Rex, king imperial of all the seas, having heard of the achievements of the United States steamship Gopher on the unsalted seas, have decided to leave my salty domain for the first time to visit the great fresh water seas and will pay a visit to said ship with my entire court. The crew of this ship is warned to properly prepare for my reception. As the equator, my usual place of coming aboard ships of the United States navy, does not touch the boundaries of the Great Lakes, I will board your ship at the limes of no variation, that imaginary line where the mariner's compass points due north and south.

(Signed) NEPTUNE, REX.
C. WEED,
Secretary of State.

The maneuvers ended yesterday and the Gopher is homeward bound, after capturing all the honors of the fleet. The boat will go from here to Isle Royale, where the officers and men will enjoy a two days' outing. Then the ship will set sail for home, arriving at Duluth Friday night or Saturday morning. GEORGE C. COWING.

KIDNAPING IS FEARED

with the district attorney, after which it is claimed a search was started in Racine. It is claimed that Blehn charges a lawyer of this county with having some knowledge of the plot to take the two girls away from his home. Relatives declare they have not knowledge of their whereabouts. It was discovered this morning that a part of the clothing of the girls is missing. It is claimed it was taken since their disappearance.

SATISFACTORY HARVEST.

Farmers of Red Lake and Marshall Counties Do Well.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Not for many years have the farmers of Red Lake and Marshall counties garnered such a satisfactory harvest as they are at present busily engaged in saving. No drouth or frost or other untoward circumstance has occurred to mar the prospects or make this anything else than a normal valley season. This week will see much of the barley and wheat in shock in this section. It will all produce a good crop and heavy yield per acre, the only light portions being that sowed late or on spring plowing. In this connection an interesting fact is forcibly brought to the observer's attention. It is that grain sown on fall plowing promises to yield thirty per cent more than that planted on spring breaking, and all other conditions being equal. Some farmers have already threshed their first harvest and the results verify the promises and prospects of the earlier part of the season. The grain is plump, heavy and hard, and the yield uniform. Threshing will be general all over the counties mentioned above within the next ten days.

FOOT RACE FOR GIRL.

Suitor to Run Against Father for His Consent.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 20.—William R. Klein, aged 40 years of Allegany will run a foot race next Saturday with W. J. Lictus to see whether or not he will continue paying attentions to Lictus' 18-year-old daughter, Marie. If Klein loses the 200-yard race he agrees to retire as a suitor, and if he wins Lictus agrees to withdraw all objections.

Lictus and Klein are about the same age. When Klein began to court Marie, her father warned him to keep away. Lictus told Klein he was too old for Marie. Klein answered that he was as good a man as Lictus and to prove it would run him a foot race. If he did not win he would not ask to court Marie further. Lictus agreed.

Marie is grooming Klein for the race and wants him to win.

BALLOONS CRUISE ABOUT OVER BERLIN.

Berlin, Aug. 20.—The Parseval and the Gross steerage balloons cruised together for two hours today over Berlin. They performed various evolutions with great success, and were close to each other for the entire flight. They sailed the length of Unter den Linden, only a short distance above the house tops and were cheered by the crowds in the streets. The duke of Sachsen-Altenburg was again at the helm of the Parseval.

Both balloons will make daily ascensions for the purpose of training new men in their management.

LOST FAMILY IN EARTHQUAKE

Prisoner Who Attempted Suicide Says He is College Graduate.

The man who tried to commit suicide in the city jail yesterday noon by hanging himself with a rope made of his necktie and belt, says his name is Theodore W. Peters. It was not until last night that he would give the police his name. He says he wants to die because he lost his wife and four little children in the San Francisco earthquake. The police think he is not entirely in his right mind and do not know whether to believe his story or not.

He is 33 years of age and claims to be an expert civil engineer and college graduate. He has been working lately as fireman on one of the lake vessels. He said he landed in Superior and then came to Duluth and began drinking. A bottle of cocaine in his possession, he said, was for the purpose of killing himself. It is thought, however, that he is a cocaine fiend.

Chronic Diarrhoea Relieved.

Mr. Edward E. Henry, with the United States Express company, Chicago, writes: "Our general superintendent, Mr. Quick, handed me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy some time ago to check an attack of the old chronic diarrhoea. I have used it since that time and cured many on our trains who have been sick. I am an old soldier, who served with Rutherford B. Hayes and William McKinley four years in the Twenty-third Ohio regiment, and have no ailment except chronic diarrhoea, which this remedy stops at once." For sale by all druggists.

COLUMBIANS HOLD PICNIC

Duluth and Superior Knights Break Even in Athletic Honors.

The Duluth and Superior Knights of Columbus went up the river yesterday on the steamer Newsboy for their annual picnic. It was one of the most successful outings in the history of either of the organizations. After luncheon in the grove, a fine program of sports was run off, a feature being a tug-of-war between the Duluth and Superior Knights. This was won by Superior. Duluth got back at the Columbians from across the bay later, however, by beating them in a ball game by a score of 9 to 5.

The races and the winners follow:

Boys' race, Ray MacLamimarra, Duluth; girls under 17, Verne Walsh, Superior; young ladies over 18 years, Miss Connelly, Superior; sack race, John Lynch, Duluth; three-legged race, Dr. E. W. Fahey and Dr. Sheridan, Duluth; men's race, J. H. Daly, Duluth; married women's race, Mrs. John Sexton, Duluth; fat men's race, Dr. Fahey, Duluth; bachelors' race, Edward Conway, Superior.

OPEN AIR DRILL SEEN BY MANY

The Local Militia Goes Through Movements in Dashing Manner.

Companies A, C and E of the local militia held the first big open air parade and drill which they have given here, last evening at Hunter's Park. A large number of the friends of the boys were on hand to watch the maneuvers and they were well repaid for their trip. Maj. H. V. Eva took charge of the drill, and the companies were marched in review before him, the Third Regiment band leading. Inspection preceded the review, and all military formalities were observed.

Battle formations, the attack, with support and reserves, and the charge, were put through by the boys in a dashing fashion that brought applause from the spectators.

The officers for the drill were as follows: Commander and staff, Maj. H. V. Eva, Lieuts. Chisholm and Weiner; Company A, Capt. Franklin; Company C, Capt. Knowlton; Company E, Capt. Miser.

Miner's Awful Fall.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Aug. 20.—While ascending to the surface in the bucket in the new shaft at the Tobin mine at Crystal Falls, Henry Freeman was seized with an attack of dizziness when at a height of 175 feet and before his companions could aid him, fell to the bottom. He was instantly killed. A wife and three children survive him.

WOMAN'S NIGHTMARE

MOTHER'S FRIEND

HER COSTUME QUITE SIMPLE

Grecian Dancer Wears Yard and a Half of Chiffon.

New York, Aug. 20.—"A yard and a half of chiffon. Yes, that's all I wear in my Calypso dance. It is cool and comfortable. But do you really think it is a bit too startling for even old Broadway?" and the slim and sinuous La Sylphe, with eyes big with wonder, nonchalantly inquired as to the reception of the most daring bit of costuming—or the lack of it—that has ever come under the limelight of the Great White Way.

In rejuvenating the siren of Homer's Odyssey, whose charms caused a matrimonial mixup in the domicile of Ulysses, La Sylphe has brought the next-to-nature garb of this original affinity right out into the calcium of Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue theater. The costume, which has made audiences gasp, is given in detail below:

One piece of flesh-colored chiffon, one and one-half yards—length, breadth and width included.

One jet girdle, two inches wide, caught around the waist and dangling in one broad band in front down to the bare knees.

As the curtain rose on a darkened scene depicting Calypso's isle, the waltz form of a sleeping woman was dimly discernible, high on a projecting rock. To the accompaniment of low music she awoke and slowly descended, divesting herself of a cloud-like veil which enveloped her body, while the stage became bathed in calcium light.

Draped in the yard and a half of chiffon, minus folds or furbelows, caught in at the waist by a jet girdle which sharply defined the flesh tones, La Sylphe stood in Eve-like simplicity before the astonished audience, which, with one big breath, grasped in unison, then settled back to criticise or commend this latest daring dance.

Faster and faster the music grew, while in an ecstacy of motion, Calypso twisted, writhed and wriggled with remarkable rapidity. A sudden crash, and she fell in a heap, struck by a bolt from the blue—a nerved, coiled mass of femininity clothed—in a yard and a half of chiffon!

WHICH DIED FIRST.

Nice Legal Point Growing Out of Double Drowning.

Annandale, Minn., Aug. 20.—The tragic death of Mr. and Mrs. George Raisbeck, whose bodies were found in Lake Sylvia, near here, about three weeks ago, is to be probed again. This time it will be under the direction of Judge Charles S. Cutting of the probate court of Cook county, Ill., to determine the heir to George Raisbeck's estate, consisting of valuable real estate in Chicago, New York and New Jersey, and thousands of dollars in life and accident insurance.

If it should be decided that the husband died first, Percival Raisbeck, his only son will lose the estate, as it would by law, go on the husband's death to the wife. She was Percival Raisbeck's stepmother, consequently her property would not go to him, on her death. As she was without heirs, the estate would go to the state of Illinois.

The investigation carried on, following the finding of the bodies, showed that the deaths were accidental, and it was believed that Mrs. Raisbeck had been stricken with heart failure, had fallen into the lake, life being extinct before she struck the water, and that her husband jumped in to rescue her and was drowned. Should this be regarded as the solution of the mystery by the probate court, the entire estate will go to Percival Raisbeck.

MAN CONDEMNED TO READ.

Judge to Test Abilities of Prisoner, Who "Almost" Graduated.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Charles Hunschl told Municipal Judge Going he "almost" had graduated from grammar school, in answer to the judge's question to how high he had gone in school; "I am going to give your schooling," said the judge. "I want you to read 'Bryce's American Commonwealth' through by Sept. 1, and then tell me a synopsis of the book. If you are unable to do so, you go to jail." Hunschl, who is 21 years old, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

TWO DIE OF DIPHTHERIA.

Aitkin, Minn., Aug. 20.—Two deaths from diphtheria have occurred in the family of John Elmhurst, Bessie, aged 10, and Ritta, aged 3. Two more children of the family are sick. Mr. Elmhurst is a timber cruiser and at present is north of Aitkin in the woods.

Hughie McMonigal of Staples died here Tuesday night at the home of his sister, Mrs. McRae. He made this his home for years before moving to Staples.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES; PEOPLE FALL IN MUD.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 20.—While a party of twenty-four Peorians were standing on the bridge over French's canyon, at Starved Rock, late yesterday, the bridge collapsed and threw the twenty-four men, women and children into a tangled mass in the mud, twenty-five feet below. Nine are known to be injured and seven of them were brought to this city by train. The most severely hurt were kept at the hotel in Starved Rock.

GOVERNOR KEEPS HIS PROMISE OF IMMUNITY.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 20.—Following out his declaration of immunity to any one defending lives or property against night-riders, Governor Wilson yesterday granted pardons to Walter Duncan, who was convicted of shooting and killink Newt Hazlett at Jacksonville, Shelby county, in June and Riley Harroid, who was indicted as an accessory to the murder. Both men are prominent farmers. Hazlett was shot as he was riding along the road alone, and for several days his slayer was not known. He was reputed to be a leader of the night-riders.

Tailors Will Strike.

New York, Aug. 20.—A general strike of the members of the United States Brotherhood of Tailors was ordered at a meeting of the general executive board of the brotherhood held here last night. Michael Price, secretary of the board, announced that 30,000 tailors in various parts of the country would be idle within a week, unless the demands of the men were granted.

The demand is for a 20 per cent increase over prevailing wages. Immediately following the issuance of the order 1,100 workers in this city were called out. This will tie up fifty-seven shops here, it is said.

FIREMAN RUN OVER.

Eau Claire, Wis. Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Victor Olson, 28, son of August Olson of this city, who was employed as a fireman on an Omaha switch engine in the Altoona yards was run over yesterday afternoon. His left leg had to be amputated, while his right, although crushed may be saved. His condition is critical, but he may live.

TO ADVERTISE DAIRY GROWTH

Forthcoming Meeting of Red River Dairymen to be Interesting.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The executive committee of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association will meet next Saturday at the experimental farm here for the purpose of determining the time and place for the sixth annual convention. The Twenty-five Thousand Commercial club has appointed a committee of three, consisting of Mayor J. D. McPhee, President J. D. McPhee of the First National bank, and James E. O'Brien, to confer with the executive committee of the Dairymen's association, and offer every inducement for holding the convention in Crookston.

It is planned to make the convention a regular jubilee in celebration of the wonderful progress of the Ninth congerssional district in the dairying line, as shown in the government report recently published, in which this district lead the entire state in progress made in two years. Efforts will be made to have large exhibits of dairy products from the creameries of the entire district. E. K. Slater and several other state officials will be here, also a representative of the dairy and food department from Washington.

To get the best advertisement from the gigantic exhibit, all the land men of this city and other sections of the district will make a special effort to have land-seekers here from Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and other sections of the East and Middle West, and give them an adequate conception of the great possibilities of Minnesota as a dairy state, and the splendid progress that has already been made in that direction.

Proof is inexhaustible that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carries women safely through the Change of Life.

Read the letter Mrs. E. Hanson, 304 E. Long St., Columbus, Ohio, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was passing through the Change of Life, and suffered from nervousness, headaches, and other annoying symptoms. My doctor told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good for me, and since taking it I feel so much better, and I can again do my own work. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me during this trying period."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

JOY FOR THE NIMRODS.

Best Prairie Chicken Shooting in Years is Expected.

Crookston, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The prairie chicken hunters are assured the best sport this year in seven or eight years. This year the harvest was started exceptionally early, and by Sept. 1 practically every field will be cut and thousands of acres threshed. The dogs will have splendid running and there is an abundance of birds reported in all directions. Farmers state that not in many years have they seen the number of chickens.

Bathing Hints.

Never bathe when exhausted or in ill-health. Never bathe when the body is cooling after perspiration. A morning bath may be taken by those who are strong and healthy, before breakfast, on an empty stomach. When exhausted or in ill-health, try a good, pure malt tonic, like golden grain belt beer. Serve this beverage with your meals and you put health and strength into your system. Order Duluth branch, Minneapolis Brewing Company.

JOHN W. KERN SPEAKS.

Vice Presidential Candidate Delivers Address in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Aug. 20.—John W. Kern, the Democratic candidate for vice president, accompanied by an Indianapolis delegation and Mayor Rose of this city, who met the party in Chicago, arrived in Milwaukee at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was welcomed at the railway station by a number of prominent Democrats and a gathering of people who were anxious to see the nominee. The occasion for Mr. Kern's visit was the picnic given at Wonderland park, under the auspices of the Associated Rose clubs of Milwaukee and where he delivered an address last night. The picnic was attended by thousands of Democrats from Milwaukee county and by visitors from the state at large.

Leaving the station, Mr. Kern was driven to the Plankinton hotel, thence to the park, where addresses were made by A. J. Aylward and A. J. Schmidt, gubernatorial candidates for the nomination in the Democratic primaries.

KILLS WIFE AND SELF.

Lyndon Station, Wis., Aug. 20.—According to reports received here, Herman Myer a resident of this county, Tuesday night killed his wife and committed suicide. Myer was a farmer.

Duel Will Prove Fatal.

Robinsonville, Miss., Aug. 20.—H. B. Suber and H. J. Gilmore, rival merchants, fought a duel with pistols in front of the former's store here last night. Suber was shot in the breast. His pistol failed to explode, but he retreated to his store and, seizing a shotgun, emptied the contents into Gilmore's back as the latter was leaving the scene. The wounded men were conveyed to a Memphis hospital aboard a special train. Both will die.

Eau Claire Boy Hurt.

Eau Claire, Wis., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eugene Haas, aged 3, was quite badly hurt yesterday at his home on Bellevue avenue by falling from the second story window. His neck was wrenched and he was otherwise bruised about the body, but no bones were broken. He also bit his tongue quite severely.

Many Horses Dying.

Neenah, Wis., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Within the last six days hundreds of horses along Lake Winnebago have died of a peculiar disease, and horse owners are becoming alarmed. Dr. Herzog, the Chicago veterinarian, is preparing an anti-toxin to counteract the germs of the disease, but it will be several weeks before his experiments will be completed. The disease attacks the animals suddenly, causing their death in three days.

YOUNG GIRL TAKES LIFE.

Armour, S. D., Aug. 20.—Having made careful inquiries as to how Andrew Gogolin, who committed suicide recently near this city, held his gun, the 16-year-old daughter of John Stoltz residing ten miles west of Armour, killed herself by blowing out her brains with a shotgun. The grief-stricken parents are at a loss to account for the girl's action.

Ill at Brainerd.

Eau Claire, Wis., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—E. W. Regil has received in a letter from Brainerd stating that the condition of Gordon Winkler was still very serious, although hopes were held out for his ultimate recovery. Mr. Winkler, who was quite seriously injured some time ago, is now a patient at the Northern Pacific hospital in Brainerd. Not only did he suffer a number of fractured ribs, but pneumonia also developed afterwards.

Drug Company Bankrupt.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 20.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed with Clerk of Courts Montgomery, for the Valley City Drug company by John A. Day, proprietor. The bankruptcy proceedings will be taken up before the referee some time in the near future. The debts aggregate a considerable amount but are fairly well balanced, by the goods of the company and other assets.

FIGHT MECCA IN NEW YORK

Plum Island, Government Land, Will be the Place.

New York, Aug. 20.—New Yorkers yesterday awoke to the realization that a prize fight Mecca was about to installed within ten miles of the city hall, giving the sporting element all of the action that had previously been denied them by the police.

If this scheme does not run into a dream, finish fights, dog fights, chicken disputes, and other unbridled events for the delectation of the gay will flourish as at Goldfield, with a calm old person wiggling his fingers from the end of his nose at the police, and telling them to select either of the rival plays of Savage and Fiske and go to ——.

Also the playbills of the day.

To make a long story short, Judge W. S. Overton has leased from the United States government Plum Island, bounded on the north by Dead Horse inlet, east by the Atlantic ocean, south by Sheepshead bay, and west by Goose-creek. Take the boat at the named pier and you can't miss it.

Judge Overton says that he told the government what he wanted with the place when he leased it, and that as the government runs the land, the city and state authorities have no jurisdiction. He promises to start with fights, and if the game succeeds he will put on Sunday baseball next season. As it is only a twenty-minute run from town, the value of the plan is evident.

PIONEER BUILDER CALLED.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 20.—Matthias T. Bakke, a resident of Minneapolis for about forty years, is dead. He was 72 years old. Mr. Bakke was a carpenter and builder and was well known among the earlier residents of Minneapolis. He is survived by his wife and four children.

Saved by Jumping.

Minot, N. D., Aug. 20.—While William H. Whinney and John Ginsberg were speeding along yesterday at a good rate along the Mouse river, the steering gear became unmanageable and the machine headed for a twenty-foot embankment of the river. Both jumped just in time to escape being carried over with the machine, which went to the bottom of the river, and is in all probability a total wreck.

A SPONTANEOUS UPRISING.

The demonstration which followed the mention of Governor Johnson's name in yesterday's Democratic state convention, and which resulted in his unanimous renomination for the governorship in spite of his own disinclination and the earnest efforts of the party leaders, is unique in the history of state politics. It is probable that no governor of any state was ever more highly honored than Governor Johnson was yesterday, and though the nature of the compliment is rather embarrassing in view of his well known reluctance to make a third campaign for the governorship, the nomination comes in such form that it is hard to see how it can be refused.

Governor Johnson had made his position quite clear, and the party leaders, though with great reluctance, had accepted with the best grace possible his refusal to be considered as a candidate for a third term and were doing the best they could to draft another candidate who would appeal to the voters of the state. But Governor Johnson and the party leaders reckoned without the rank and file of the party, backed up in their earnestness by the support of thousands of independent voters all over the state. County after county instructed its delegates for Johnson with a whoop, and when the delegates got together, reflecting the well-nigh unanimous sentiment of the home communities, they nominated Governor Johnson by acclamation for a third term, and the bestowing of this great compliment took such a form that though the governor has not yet made an announcement of his determination, it is difficult to see how he can avoid bowing to the will of his party, even though it is at considerable personal sacrifice and against his own inclinations and desires.

It is not often that a man who has served two terms as governor of a state is tendered a renomination in this manner. Indeed, we know of no other instance in which good service has been endorsed by a demonstration so spontaneous and so earnest as that which began yesterday when Mayor Lawler of St. Paul mentioned Governor Johnson's name and continued until, an hour and five minutes later, the delegates were completely worn out by their enthusiasm; though before they subsided they had swept the protesting leaders off their feet and had nominated the governor for a third term by acclamation.

No clearer case of a spontaneous expression of the popular wishes has ever been recorded in a political convention. These delegates came fresh from the people, most of them definitely instructed by the voters to act as they did. It mattered little to them that Governor Johnson did not desire a third nomination, that to accept it meant a personal sacrifice, that the party leaders had taken his refusal to be considered in good faith and were doing what they could to head off the cyclone of Johnson enthusiasm and to secure the nomination of some other man. They wanted Johnson, and that was all there was to it. They made their wants known in a manner that was not to be withstood. They threw their party's fate into the arms of Governor Johnson and hastily adjourned before he could restore the responsibility to them.

Minnesota is to be congratulated upon this substantial showing that its people appreciate the earnest service which Governor Johnson has given them during his two terms, and upon the fact that apparently it is going to have the chance to return to the governorship for another two years the man who has done so much to give the state a clean and honorable fame throughout the nation.

THE TRADING STAMP HUMBUG.

It is somewhat surprising, in view of the many times that trading stamps have been rejected by practically all of the reputable merchants of Duluth, to find that another attempt to introduce them here is being made.

Beyond any doubt the effort will fail, for Duluth merchants have grown too thoroughly accustomed to doing business upon a business-like basis to be tempted by any such cheap device for attracting trade.

The trading stamp plan, like any other premium device for forcing sales of commodities of any sort, is uneconomic, wasteful and costly to everybody concerned—except to the dealers in the premiums, who get high prices for inferior stuff.

The idea of the trading stamp is that purchasers at stores dealing in them are given stamps according to the amount of the purchases, and these stamps, when you get a bushel of them, are good for plush albums and cheap phonographs and fragile rocking chairs at a premium store. The hope is that merchants using the stamps will immediately draw a lot of new trade away from those who do not use them; though of course where the practice is started it often turns out that everybody in business takes it up, so there is no possibility of any diversion of trade at all.

But the hope of attracting trade by such cheap devices is doomed to disappointment. Let nobody imagine that the dealers in premiums are philanthropists who are giving things away. They charge well for their services, and somebody has to foot the bill. It must be either the merchant or the consumer, and in either event money that ought to go into lowering of prices or increasing of service goes out of town to fatten the schemers. In any event, the community that takes up the trading stamp scheme can't help losing.

Besides, the people have grown wise in these matters; and they know that where it is necessary to force the sale of anything by bribing people to buy it, there is something the matter with that commodity, whether it is crackers, dry goods, beefsteak or newspapers. If the commodity is what it ought to be, it will sell on its merits, and people will not have to be bribed with trading stamps or premiums in order to induce them to buy it. As the Duluth News Tribune correctly puts it, "it is a means of bringing inferior goods on the market at a high price, which must be done to cover the expense of the premiums, and it is the customer who pays the difference." If the customer does not pay the cost in higher prices, he pays for it by getting inferior goods. That is an economic proposition that is without exception or variation.

The trading stamp scheme is a parasite upon legitimate business, a bloodsucker seeking to tap the veins of commerce and draw from them sustenance that it does not earn. Trade is very much better off without it. It must be paid for somewhere, somehow, and usually the merchant has to shuffle off the cost of it upon the consumer, who, when he understands this, will not thank the merchant who introduces it.

THE INFAMY OF THE DINGLEY LAW.

The atrocious class favoritism shown in the Dingley tariff has been exposed time and again, but it cannot be exposed too often. That is evident from the fact that the exposures thus far made have aroused no storm of indignation at all commensurate with the facts. If there had been such result, the law would have been changed long ago, or the very stones of the national capitol would have been brought down about the ears of the neglectful statesman at Washington by the fury of an outraged people.

Jesse F. Orton, writing in the Brooklyn Citizen, furnishes some new figures which show once more the rank hypocrisy of the claims of the tariff's defenders that it is a measure for the benefit of labor.

For instance, if you wear imported gloves worth $41 a dozen, you are compelled to pay upon them a duty at the rate of $4.40 a dozen; the tariff tax amounting to 14.19 per cent. But if you can only afford cheap gloves worth $4.53 a dozen, the tariff upon them is at the rate of $3 a dozen, or 66.28 per cent. Workingmen wear few gloves worth $41 a dozen, but those who do wear such gloves get off with a tariff tax less than a quarter as great as those who wear the kind of gloves that workingmen must buy.

Woolen or worsted cloth, if it costs only 39 cents a pound, the kind workingmen are likely to buy, pays a tariff tax of 135 per cent; but if it costs $1.12 per pound, which is beyond the workingman's reach, the tariff tax is only 94 per cent.

Wool blankets worth 29 cents a pound are taxed 165 per cent through the tariff; while those worth $1.05 per pound are taxed only 71 per cent.

Women's and children's gloves worth $4.20 per dozen—about the right price for the workingman's wife and children—pay a tariff tax of 75 per cent; while gloves of a finer quality, worth $19.98 per dozen, pay a tariff tax of only 21 per cent.

Iron or steel trousers buckles, worth 8 cents per hundred, are taxed at 77 per cent; but if they are fancy buckles worth $1.28 per hundred, the tariff tax is only 26 per cent.

Watch movements worth 85 cents each are taxed 66 per cent, while those worth $30 each are taxed only 35 per cent.

Fur hats and bonnets worth $2.60 per dozen are taxed 97 per cent; while those worth $25.50 per dozen are taxed only 47 per cent.

Partly manufactured wool and hair worth 33 cents per pound is taxed 149 per cent; that worth $1.14 per pound is taxed only 94 per cent.

Plushes and similar fabrics worth 36 cents per pound are taxed 142 per cent; if they are worth $1.09 per pound they are taxed only 95 per cent.

Knit fabrics worth 36 cents per pound are taxed 141 per cent; but those at $1.07 per pound, beyond the workingman's reach, are only taxed 96 per cent.

Winter flannel underwear worth 10 cents per pound is taxed 144 per cent, but if it is worth more than 70 cents per pound it is let off with 86 per cent. And so it goes.

These are some of the operations of a tariff law that is supposed to benefit the workingman and the farmer. Shame on such hypocrisy!

AN INTERESTING TAX SUGGESTION.

William Busselman of this city, in a communication to The Herald, suggests that we discuss a plan of exempting from taxation machinery in constant operation. He discusses this unique and attractive proposal so well himself that we quote his remarks:

> This exemption would be an inducement and a premium to keep the machinery in operation and thus give employment to the operators. I believe the benefits to the public would be greater from the employment than from the taxes paid; in other words, the loss of the tax would be less than the gain by operation of the machinery. Such exemption might complicate the manner of assessing, but I believe the problem can be solved. Manufacturers should be encouraged, and conditions should always be such as to cause expansion and outlay to increase and develop resources. Exemption would enable manufacturers to sell for less, thus benefiting consumers, and would also make them more successful competitors in foreign markets, increasing the demand for our goods and, incidentally, raising wages. Perhaps this is an approach to the single tax idea. No matter. Tax idle machine, exempt all other. Would strikes and lockouts be averted? That depends upon the law's provisions. In case of strike, exempt; in case of lockout, tax. Let a tax commission decide this.

Well reasoned. It is certainly desirable to keep machinery going and labor profitably employed.

It is true that the adoption of this system would somewhat complicate the process of assessment and taxation, and it is also true that under the constitutional limitations of tax laws in this state its adoption would be impossible here. There may be some doubt, also, whether the amount of the tax exemption would be a sufficient bounty to induce manufacturers to keep the wheels moving whn the market is glutted with their products; though when we come down to the bedrock of justice, there should be no glutted markets until everybody is supplied with all they need of the "over-produced" commodities. It has often happened that there has been overproduction of commodities, accompanied by a shutting down of factories and the loss of employment to thousands of workers, when many people were suffering for the need of the very commodities which were lying in warehouses awaiting a market.

In general, our tax laws are radically wrong insofar as they tend to penalize industry and to put a premium upon idleness; and with this in view, Mr. Busselman's suggestion is good. It reaches only a part, however, of the evil of the tax systems now in operation, and some day it may be widened to such an extent that instead of penalizing progress and rewarding sloth, as the tax laws do now, the tax system will work just the other way; in which event, beyond question, there would be a wise discrimination between idle property and active property.

The method of taxation which punishes industry and rewards idleness has grown out of the ancient kingly habit of keeping the royal household supplied with funds by taking a liberal share of the proceeds of the people's thrift. Idle property belonged, pretty generally, to royalty; productive property, mostly, belonged to the people. So the king taxed industry and exempted sloth, and we, without thinking clearly enough about it, have kept on doing the same thing ever since.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The double of John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, was in the city yesterday, and created a mild sensation about the lobby of the Spalding hotel. The resemblance was so very striking that many people were certain he was Mr. Rockefeller.

James B. Caryell of Williamsport, Pa., is the man who attracted so much attention. He is a trifle taller than the Standard Oil man, and has more hair on his head, but otherwise the resemblance is so striking that these little details are not noticed. It was whispered about the lobby that John D. was traveling incognito, but Mr. Coryell was able to prove his identity beyond a doubt.

The Pennsylvania man is president of the Williamsport First National bank, and has other large interests. He says it is nothing new for him to be taken for Mr. Rockefeller, and that the mistake has been made many times.

"Every time I hear of a murder or a tragedy in the woods like the one at Foxboro, I think that the majority of such cases are never heard of," said a well-known rango business man at the St. Louis last evening.

"Every once in a while we read of a skeleton being found in the woods, or the partly decomposed body of a man being found in some lonely cabin.

"It strikes me that it would be a very easy matter to commit a murder in the north woods and escape punishment. Many of the men living there have no relatives or friends in this part of the country, who would inquire about them if they were missed.

"Take that Foxboro case for example. If the published reports of it are correct, the death of Young would probably never have been reported if a little more care had been exercised in disposing of the body. The fact that parts of it were left protruding from the grave was the only thing that enabled the authorities to get wind of it. Young would simply have been added to the list of those who have disappeared.

"I often think that many a man who has dropped out of sight may have met his death in some lonely fight in the woods, or may have been put out of the way by men who were after his money. Out in the woods, away from civilization, the laws of society do not seem very real to men whose passions or greed are aroused."

"Pigs is pigs."

L. J. Smalley was telling at the St. Louis hotel of what a funny sight he saw at Grand Rapids, Minn., recently. Mr. Smalley sells dairy appliances, and had occasion to visit a farm not very far from the town, one day last week. It was at the farm that he saw the peculiar sight.

"The first thing that arrested my attention when I alighted from the buggy was a number of pigs chasing furiously from tree to tree, out in the front yard," said Mr. Smalley. "I had never seen animals acting so funny before, so I stopped and watched them for about five minutes.

"Suddenly the farmer came around the corner of the house, and I immediately asked him the cause of the most peculiar actions on the part of the porkers. The farmers said that last winter he was troubled with a hoarseness of the throat that left him almost speechless; he couldn't speak above a whisper. He couldn't call the pigs, so he hit upon the idea of pounding on one of the trees when the feed was ready. At the end of the winter the pigs would come running when they heard the knock on the tree.

"'They didn't forget the habit. That's the reason why those poor deluded pigs are chasing furiously around the yard now—the woodpeckers are making the hogs crazy."

The Real Solvent.

Columbus, Ohio, Press-Post: When the Golden Rule becomes the nation's law then, and only then, will the questions of trusts, greed and avarice be solved.

"Is it kind, and is it fair?" should be the question, rather than "How much can I make on this deal?" or "I will take advantage of this because he is not 'posted.'"

The Golden Rule will settle questions formerly settled by the sword. War, then, would become a lost art, and avarice would sink away and hide—ashamed of the light of God's glorious day or right.

When man deals with man by the Golden Rule the millenium is nearing the dawn, and the darkness of the night of selfishness is passing away.

THE WEATHER.

Still the weather is delightful. It was a trifle warmer today, as it might well be since yesterday's highest temperature was 68 degs., and last night's lowest was 50 degs., and the weather man says it will be warmer again tonight and tomorrow, with probably some local showers or thunderstorms tomorrow. A year ago today it was cool, with a hint of fall in the air.

The sun rose this morning at 5:12 and sets tonight at 7:11, making 13 hours and 59 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Light to heavy showers fell during Wednesday or last night in Central Valley and Southern states, due to the influence of barometric depressions central off the North Atlantic coast and over the Gulf of California. The Dakota high pressure has advanced its center to Iowa and has caused cooler weather throughout the lake region and Middle states, while a barometric depression of moderate intensity has moved from the North Pacific districts to Saskatchewan, attended by warmer weather in Western Canada, Montana and the Dakotas. This disturbance will cause somewhat warmer weather at the Head of the Lakes tonight, probably developing local showers during Friday or Friday night.

Following were yesterday's highest temperatures:

Baltimore American: Practical Parent—Can you support my daughter?

Titled Suitor—If I had that much money of my own do you suppose for a minute I would want to marry her?

Washington Star: "Is your wife economical?" asked the intrusive questioner.

"In some respects," answered Mr. Meekton. "She doesn't believe in wasting money on cigars or expensive lunches or baseball tickets, or a number of other articles that I might mention."

Yonkers Statesman: "Can you tell me where I can have some cuts made?" asked the newspaperman of the stranger.

"Why, yes," was the reply; "that is where I get shaved, right across the street there!"

Chicago Tribune: Kutten—I was surprised when this morning's Thunderbolt, in referring to me, said I had a "Websterian intellect."

Dreen—So was the editor. He told me he wrote it "lobsterian."

Atlanta Constitution: "Sal, will you dance this dance with me?"

"No, Bill; I done promised Jim."

"That's all right; Jim's busy just now; somebody's stole his razor an' spiked his shotgun."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: There is nothing more disappointing than not to be disappointed in a person.

A man can keep out of a great deal of trouble by never being guided by his judgment.

A woman is never willing to call it a cottage unless it cost four times as much as a house.

The way for a man to improve his wife's confidence in him is not to be afraid to talk at home about the typewriter girl in his office.

There is not much excitement for a woman in church if she can't see how much somebody she hates doesn't put in the plate.

Governor Hughes.

New York Sun: The blustering futilos who are the Republican machine of this state have to be kicked into ordinary political common sense. The record of the administration of Governor Hughes, whatever friends or enemies he has made, cannot be avoided by the nomination of another candidate. The change would be a confession of failure. If Hughes has done well, through him alone can the Republican party avail itself of that strength. If he has not done well, the Republican party cannot shift the blame and the unpopularity on him and hope to win with another man. It is Hughes or a Democrat.

It is possible that the voters of New York may not approve a governor whose chief offense in the eye of the machine has been his refusal to submit to it, to postpone to its demand the public advantage. Without calolery, without threats, with no illegitimate interference with the legislature, by the power of public opinion and his own upright persistence, he has forced the Republican mercenaries to adopt much of his program. Most of the rest of it tends to dock still more the power of the machine. Another reason for its impotent opposition.

It may be that the sores of Barnes and Woodruff and Parsons and that gang have touched with pity the people of New York. Perhaps the art of independent voting has been forgotten here, the old home. But remembering how Tilden and Cleveland were supported, in spite of the fierce hatreds which they necessarily created in Democratic rings and machines, the friends of Governor Hughes can afford to be cheerful.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

•••Ralph W. Baker died yesterday as a result of Bright's disease, coupled with rheumatic complications. He was 45 years of age and had been a resident of Duluth since January, 1885, when he came here from Toledo and became the first secretary of the re-organized board of trade. He remained in the secretaryship until July, 1887, when increasing ill health compelled him to resign. He leaves a wife, who is a sister of Denison B. Smith and Mrs. George E. Welles of this city, but no children. The board of trade today adopted a resolution to attend the funeral in a body, and to place the flag on the board's building at half mast until after the funeral.

•••Sigmund Lessing died yesterday from tuberculosis. He was one of the prominent members of the Duluth Turn Verein and Knights of Pythias and was president of the Duluth Concordia society. He was born in Germany in 1852 and came to this country when about 14 years of age. The funeral will be held under the auspices of the Turner society.

•••The new grain storage house of the Manitoba railroad is nearly completed. This house, which is a reservoir on the same plans as Elevator I, will hold 1,500,000 bushels. It will swell the capacity of Duluth elevators to 19,500,000 bushels.

•••Charles J. Hebard and daughters, Miss Hebard and Miss Mary Hebard of Pequaming, Mich., are in Duluth. Mr. Hebard is head of the big Pequaming Lumber company.

•••Plans for the new Bethel are nearly completed. The building will be two stories high, with corner tower, and will cost about $10,000.

•••The present indications are that Charles Canning of Norman county will be the Democratic candidate for congress against S. G. Comstock in the Fifth district. He is a farmer and has served in the legislature.

•••Mr. Jennings, an old and respected resident of Duluth, died yesterday at his residence on Twenty-third avenue west, between First and Second streets.

•••J. Allyn Scott, the West end correspondent of the News, will go on the Northern Pacific excursion to Helena.

•••Trouble which has existed for some time between Richard Collins, a policeman at the East end in Superior, and his wife, culminated yesterday in his shooting her twice at the home of James Myers, where she was doing some sewing for the family. She was shot in the ankle and thigh, but not dangerously. Mr. Myers prevented her being killed by seizing Collins' revolver and shooting him back of the right ear. He received only a scalp wound and will recover.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

St. Cloud Times: It is remarkable that, in spite of the fact that the large corporate interests of the United States are unanimously supporting Taft, the Republican papers still proclaim that their plan of tariff revision will tend to remedy the trust evils.

Morris Sun: We note from some of our exchanges that Frank Eddy eats pie with a knife and J. F. Jacobson eats no pie at all, and we don't think it's very nice for the fellows to be telling such things around town. One casts a shadow of failure over the efforts of Frank's parents in teaching their son the right kind of table etiquette, and the other is by no means a glowing tribute to the cullinary ability of Jake's life companion.

Cannon Falls Beacon: The "high priest of Harmony" in Minnesota in his sanctum in Princeton is reverting to his natural tone of voice and his native vocabulary in dealing with members of the state press who do not approve of the nomination of the personal representative of his friend, J. J. Hill, for railroad and warehouse commissioner.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: Bob Dunn is getting vitriolic again, damning everybody who does not agree with him that Jacobson and Mills should be elected. Bob has had one lesson. Does he need another?

Walker Pilot: Judging by the class of papers who are asking, who is Kern? that gentleman has been using a little judgment in past years, in picking up acquaintances.

Franklin Tribune (Rep.): Frank Eddy's indirect jab at Governor Johnson as the "three-suited, kidgloved disciple of masterly inactivity" was neither funny nor fair. All who know John Johnson know that there is no more plain nor unpretentious man in high official station than he—both in dress and manner. It may be the correct thing for Republican speakers and editors, who want to show their orthodoxy, to take a kick at the governor just now, but it will not help Republicans nor injure Governor Johnson.

Ortonville Herald-Star: As an evidence of good faith, Bob Dunn says Jacobson could be elected without any campaign fund or campaign committee. We believe that to be true, but can he be elected in spite of them?

Perham Enterprise: The Little Falls Herald apologizes for the Minnesota Democrats who indorsed Hearst in 1904 by stating that they did so because they thought him nearer to Democratic ideals than Parker was. The proof that they were mistaken is furnished by the fact that Parker is still faithfully working in the ranks of the Democratic party, while Hearst is doing all in his power to destroy it.

Ortonville Herald-Star: In his tour of the state in an automobile this fall we trust Jake will burn nothing but dehorned gasoline. He can't afford any taint of John D.

Waseca Herald: Shall the republic be wholly turned over to the classes that have enriched themselves by plundering the masses, or will the people retain some of their rights by electing a president whom plutocracy can not corrupt, cajole, flatter or bulldoze—William Jennings Bryan?

"Ther Kind They Advertise."

When I cou' inter town ter buy or few things fer ther niece
Them counters piled with purty stuff give me an awful chase.
My wagon stands awaitin', and I scratch my head, and say:
"I wunder what hit's best ter buy in bargain-goods ter-day?"
But, in ther end, when some clerk asks, with manner pert an wise,
"What sort of plow-share do yer want?" ther clerk I say—nor mind his chipper taunt—
"Jes' wait er minit, son," sez I;
Before I settle down ter buy—
"Does them folks ADVERTISE?"

Money Favors Money.

Thomas H. Benton: A great moneyey power is favorable to great capitalists, for it is the principle of money to favor money. It is unfavorable to small capitalists, for it is the principle of money to eschew the needy and unfortunate. It is injurious to the laboring classes, because they receive no favors and have the price of the property they wish to acquire raised to the paper maximum, while wages remain at the silver minimum.

It Was Odd.

Philadelphia Record: There was a poor old carter whose sole means of livelihood was an old white horse that was periodically troubled with colic.

On these occasions a neighboring veterinary attended to the needs of the suffering animals, and the frequency of these spells and their fortunate endings caused the owner to look upon them with unconcern.

But one night the old horse made a few desperate kicks and breathed his last.

"Well," said the doctor, "old Jim will work for you no more."

"Is he dead?" exclaimed the bereaved carter. "That's odd. He's had the colic twenty times already, but he's never done this before."

RECKLESS AUTOISTS

Run Down Farmers' Buggy, Seriously Injuring Occupants.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Anthony Siellzo, 50 years of age, and Albert Kuski, 45 years of age, farmers residing near White Bear, were struck by an automobile, while driving towards home late last evening in a double seated buggy, near the Arcade street hill.

Siellzo was seriously injured, and, besides suffering a painful gash in his head, is thought to be internally injured. Kuski was more fortunate, and escaped serious injury.

The automobile and its occupants did not stop, after crashing into the unfortunate farmers, but, on the contrary, the unknown occupants urged the chauffeur to apply more speed, which was done, and the large touring car was soon lost to sight.

AERONAUT FELL IN BAY

Two Boys Paddled After Him in an Old Rowboat.

Prof. LeRoy, aerial artist for the West Duluth street carnival, last evening spent a very chilly half hour in the waters of the St. Louis river, while waiting to be rescued by two small boys who were trying to paddle to him from the shore in a heavy boat they had borrowed from a nearby mill.

Some difficulty was experienced by the professor in filling his balloon with gas, but when at last he had it inflated, he made a splendid start, soaring away over West Duluth and out over the river, near the foot of Main street. There he cut loose his parachute and floated slowly down, the evening breeze carrying him farther and farther out towards the middle channel of the river.

Some boys on the dock watched his descent, and when he alighted in the river, started out after him in a boat they found at the mill. They had no oars, so had to paddle, and it was slow work. But the professor was dressed in his show tights, so was not bothered by any heavy clothes in trying to keep his head above water until assistance came. He slept until late this morning and did not suffer any bad effects from his cold plunge and tedious ride in the chilly night air. The balloon, also, fell in the river, a few hundred feet from where its rider landed.

Prof. LeRoy was watched in his ascent into the heavens and descent into the river by hundreds of pairs of eyes from the carnival grounds on Central avenue. He is scheduled to make another trip on Saturday.

HAD BOGUS LETTER.

Book Agents Use Questionable Methods in West Duluth.

An attempt to sell text books under false pretenses, has been lately made in West Duluth by a book agent.

He has presented at each house he has visited a typewritten statement, bearing the forged signature of Superintendent of Schools R. E. Denfeld. This document states that before a child could enter school this fall, he or she must be supplied with one of the books for which he was agent. Supt. Denfeld has no knowledge of the paper or of the book agent who has been trying to sell books with his recommendation.

At one home he carefully questioned the mother concerning the number and names of her children, taking down all the information he received. He then told the woman that it was necessary that all of her children be supplied with one of the books before they started to school this fall. The paper he carried corroborated his story and she signed her name to an agreement to buy a certain number of books from him. She also said she would have to consult her husband before she made any purchases. When the man of the house refused to pay for the books, the agent tried to frighten them into it, by threatening a law suit. His bluff did not work. As far as can be learned no one in West Duluth was taken in by the game.

This morning W. J. Nelson of South Fifty-seventh avenue, telephoned to the West Duluth police station, telling of a woman who had visited his house at about 10:30 o'clock this morning, and attempted to sell him a school text book which she said she had a letter to recommend it from Superintendent Denfeld. The book she also claimed was endorsed by the school board in the same letter. Mr. Nelson had heard of agents in West Duluth, who were trying to sell such books, so refused to even look at it or read the letter. He also warned her against a continuance of her practice, and told her that the people were acquainted with such methods as hers.

Though the police searched Fifty-seventh avenue thoroughly this morning they could find no trace of her. It is believed that she took the warning given her by Mr. Nelson and left the West end of the city.

MRS. WEST DIES.

Husband Has Not Yet Been Located in Dakota Harvest Fields.

While her husband slept last night after a hard day's labor in the harvest fields of North Dakota, ignorant of the fact that she had been ill, Mrs. Aaron West of 11 South Fifty-seventh avenue west, died after a week of suffering from an abcess, at about 11:30 o'clock, at the West Duluth hospital.

West left home about two weeks ago in search of work in Dakota. At the time of his departure his wife complained of a pain in her side. She herself thought it was nothing more than rheumatism. Later it developed into an abcess which became so serious that she was taken to the hospital. When her husband arrived at Fargo, he telephoned to his brother Charles West of the West Duluth Transfer line, and asked after his wife. His brother, not knowing of Mrs. West's illness, told him that she was well as far as he knew. West said then that he intended to go to Castleton, N. D.

When Mrs. West's condition became so serious that there seemed slight hope for her recovery, every possible effort was made to find her husband. The police were asked to inform the police of different Dakota towns so that they might keep a watch out for him. Even then they found no trace of West.

Yesterday Charles West received a letter from his brother postmarked from Niagara, N. D., and written on Niagara house stationary. He immediately telegraphed there saying that his wife was very low and not expected to live. In return the hotel people there wired back that they had no knowledge of a man by that name, but thought probably that he might be working on one of the outlying farms. Every possible effort is being made now to reach him.

No arrangements will be made for the funeral until Mrs. West's relatives arrive from Forrest Lake, Minn. They are her father, Henry Laudgraber, and two brothers and two sisters, Harvey and George Laudgraber, and Mrs. John Youst and Mrs. Victor Johnson. They are expected to arrive this evening or tomorrow morning. W. H. Richter, undertaker, has the funeral in charge.

EX-BOARDER PAYS AN OLD DEBT

Settles an Account Left Standing for Seventeen Years.

Here's gratitude.

For seventeen years a man whose name is withheld owed J. J. Haley of this city a board bill of $40. Yesterday he showed up, sought out Mr. Haley and paid the bill along with $10 interest.

Mr. Haley had long since forgotten about the man, money, and all, and was greatly surprised when the stranger handed him the $50. The man seemed to enjoy the experience, and told Mr. Haley about it so clearly, that he readily recalled the incident.

After leaving Duluth, and the $40 board bill behind him this man drifted West, and acquired a large fortune.

WHALES IN PORTLAND HARBOR.

Lewiston Journal: Two whales, one about 100 feet and the other about 75 feet in length, were seen Monday swimming about the harbor by several cottagers at Evergreen Landing, Peaks Island.

The monsters were peacefully romping about in the water and when the steamer Pilgrim came down the harbor they swam some distance away, but remained in view of the people all the time flapping their huge tails out of the water and spouting water. It was a sight not often seen in Portland harbor.

STOCKS OF GOLD LARGE

Piling Up in Banks of England, France and Germany.

Demand for American Products Sure to Call Big Outlay.

New York, Aug. 20.—The weekly reports of the great banks of England, France and Germany show stocks of gold still piling up. The amounts now held in each of the countries named are record breaking, and, while the discount rates are very low, there seems to be no disposition on the parts of the managers of the banks to push the work of reducing the vast amounts held in the vaults.

There are two weighty reasons for the caution of European financiers.

First, they are fully aware that the demand for American products is sure to call for great payments to the United States during the coming ten months.

Second, the virtual overthrow of the Sultan's power in the Turkish Empire and the new conditions which are beginning to appear in Italy and Spain tend to disturb the peace and quiet of Europe and call for extreme conservatism in all matters pertaining to European financiering.

It is acknowledged that much of the opposition to the sultan was the result of the work of agitators, who were supplied with funds by compatriots in the United States, England and France. These men at heart are republicans, and, however premature their hopes, there is no doubt that it is to the end of a government by the people that they are striving to attain.

Thousands of Turks and Syrians in the last score of years have visited the United States, France and England, and the freedom and security of person and property in these advanced countries have appealed to them in many ways and made them bitter, active and dangerous opponents of autocratic rule and despotic government.

Revolution and reformation once started in the Turkish Empire, made up as it is of people of diverse races and of different religious faiths, it is extremely difficult to predict the effect upon the empire itself or upon the action of the neighboring powers.

India Presents Peril.

India is none too peacefully inclined at present, and the virtual overthrow of the Sultan, the state head of the Moslem faith, is certain to cause commotion, discussion and increased unrest.

Persia is a prey to civil war and England and Russia are both watching the struggle between the shah and the advocates of a constitutional government, awaiting the opportunity to strengthen each its own interests. The Young Turks, the new force in the Turkish government, are in close relations with the opponents of the shah, and will extend effective aid in the effort to do away with his tyrannical rule. Egypt, too, where such great and important English interests are lodged, is apt to be stirred up to ideas of a better distribution of the governing power among the people of the country and will show antagonism to the concentration of power in the agent of a foreign country and the figure-head called the khedive. Take it all in all, the news from the Turkish empire this past month is the most important to Europe and to the world at large since the capture of Constantinople by Mohammed II.

While the Turkish empire is in the throes of actual revolution, which means complete reconstruction, Italy and Spain are both upon the threshold of a change in their forms of government, while Portugal is aflame with indignation at the revealed iniquities and appalling graft of royal personages and favorite statesmen. Hence, the desire of the bankers of London, Paris and Berlin to hold, as far as possible, their huge accumulation of gold and silver.

Sterling Exchange Drops.

The price of Sterling Exchange has steadily but slowly dropped for the past two weeks, and whenever our bankers require shipments of gold from Europe they will come now in due course of trade.

There exists in New York now the fullest confidence as to the sound and stable business conditions in our own country. Europe no longer discusses conditions here with uneasiness, for our immense crops in European minds, gives us the control of all the money we can use in our commercial and financial affairs, and the very fact of the existence of such tremendous productions of cotton, corn and wheat insures the values of our railway stocks and bonds.

Europe is ready now to buy our crops, Europe is ready now to buy our securities, with all the funds her bankers deem it prudent to spare, in view of existing political conditions in the Mediterranean countries. In both France and England American credit was never so high as it is today, confidence in the integrity of our people has been advanced and more fully established by the higher standard of business morals indorsed and demanded by the three most important political parties of the United States.

Domestic developments of last week were all for the good in commercial affairs. Telegrams from Topeka, Kan., reported the Missouri Pacific railway shops in the Southwest had all received orders to reopen to the highest point of activity, and that these orders would put 5,000 additional men to work. The Santa Fe, the Rock Island and all the other Southwestern roads are increasing their operating forces in every branch of their work. From the Canadian border to the Gulf and Rio Grande there is ample evidence in plantation and farm that the railways of the United States never had such a tonnage to carry as will be presented to them this autumn and winter.

Political movements were ignored in all the markets this week and did not even furnish momentary "chaff" in the marts or exchanges.

The merchants and brokers, manufacturers and commission men have settled down to an increasing trade and are determined to make money in the uprise of prices which, they believe, is close at hand in many of the commodities.

APPEALS FOR SECOND TIME

McAlpine-Millen Case Will Go to Supreme Court Again.

John McAlpine this morning filed notice of appeal in his case against his former partner, John Millen, from Judge Dibell's ruling denying him a new trial of the case.

McAlpine and Millen, seeking to dissolve their former partnership some time ago, asked the court to settle certain differences which arose over the division of property. The case was carried to the supreme court and decided against McAlpine. He submitted a request for a new trial some time ago, saying that he had new evidence in the form of affidavits from rivermen bearing on the question. The court refused the motion, pointing out the great expense of a new trial and referring to the fact that the new evidence was discovered in time to have been submitted to the supreme court, and it should have been presented then.

TAFT REFUSES TO MIX IN CONTEST.

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 20.—William S. Edwards of Charleston, W. Va., chairman of the delegation from that state to the Chicago convention, has just completed an unsuccessful mission to Mr. Taft, in an effort to have him meet a party of West Virginia politicians at a fishing resort in the mountains a short distance from here. Mr. Taft's firmness in declining to become involved in the factional difficulty in the state did not detract from Mr. Edwards' expressions of confidence that the Taft ticket would be successful in his state.

Robert Mather of New York, came to the homestead today and paid his respects to Mr. Taft.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Duluth and Helen Holmes are going to suffer a mutual sorrow at the conclusion of next week. Party of the first part and party of the second part are both "all kicked in" over the threatened separation. What Duluth society is going to talk about after she leaves town is hard telling. Let two or three be gathered together in the name of sociability, and the conversation starts, "Isn't she see—weet?" "I wish she were going to stay." "Did you see her in 'Stronghear!'?" "Wasn't she see-weet?" "And as the 'Southern Girl'? Oh, my!"

In the dusty gloom of an unset Lyceum stage this morning Miss Holmes consented to tell how the threatened departure was racking her nerves and tearing her heart strings. She sat gowned in a blue suit and that stunning hat you've seen her in on the street, you know—the one with the soft blended blue ostrich feather wound around the crown—and she was bent gracefully over a little book, and her lips moved in that laborious way in which in youth one was wont to study with the aid of a leading and stubby forefinger such sentiments as "I—see—a—cat."

Miss Holmes was studying the literature of next week's play, "The Middleman." "I am 'Mary' next week," she said, in that sweet voice. She glanced down, closing from view the soft blue of her pretty eyes, and her tender mouth took a pathetic droop—"and ruined," she said.

Then that tack was discontinued.

"I have enjoyed my summer in Duluth so much," she said with a pretty rush of gratitude. "It has been fine. I have enjoyed every minute of it, and I should dearly love to stay two months longer. We are going East very soon after the season closes, and my plans are not yet made for the year. I have had two offers—one to go with the company I was with two years ago, 'The Shepherd King,' and another as leading woman with a stock company in the West, but this winter I don't want to play in stock and I'm not very keen about one-night stands. I think we'll just go to New York and have some ocean dippings and see what will turn up. If I go into stock for the winter, I would like it to be very near New York."

Then, just here, a gentleman who was wandering around the stage and grumbling gently to himself, said: "I can't tell," and then he said again "I can't tell," only louder, and then again, only much louder, "I can't tell."

Miss Holmes sat with a pensive look on her sweet face and a faraway look in her pretty eyes and then the gentleman wandering around the stage said again, good and loud this time, "I CAN'T TELL."

"What ails him?" asked the interviewer.

"I CAN'T TELL," bellowed the gentleman.

"Oh, Mercy," said Miss Holmes. "My cue," and she fled up stage, or down stage, whichever it was, and fluttered into the middle of the brown rug and said, with that cooing quality in her voice, "Dear Nancy."

That seemed to please the gentleman who had retorted that he couldn't tell, and they had a nice chatty little time there together, half saying their chat and half reading it from the little books. Then "Dear Nancy" went out, or he only pretended to go out and turned around and came right in again, and then he was Miss Holmes' father—only pretending, still. He was her father in next week's play. Then they acted a while together and then father left and Miss Holmes, standing alone on the stage with the rest of the company sitting around in chairs studying hard and paying no attention to her, gulped down a sob or two and decided to go away forever. Then another gentleman came in and Miss Holmes insisted that she wouldn't take a cent—no, it wasn't a cent, a farthing—more than was due her as governess, before she went away forever. The gentleman tried to insist, but she wouldn't hear of it, and she came out of the center of the stage.

"It ends all right," said Miss Holmes to the interviewer, who was weeping copiously but silently at the sadness of the whole affair, "But isn't it pathetic while it lasts?" she inquired.

The interviewer vowed that it was, and then followed a ray of dusty sunshine out onto Fifth avenue.

STATE SECRETARY.

Miss Robinson Is Named Y. W. C. A. Officer.

Miss Robinson of New York has been named by the national committee of the Young Women's Christian association of America as the state secretary for the Minnesota organization. Miss Robinson is the successor of Miss Daisy M. Griggs whose wedding took place in July, and during the conference which has been recently held at Lake Geneva Miss Robinson was greeted by many of the Twin City workers. The Duluth association was not respresented at the conference this year. Mrs. Wesley Feetham, local secretary, has written to Miss Robinson to invite her to visit the local association during the world's week of prayer in November.

METHODIST BISHOP.

Dr. Quayle to Speak Before Literature Class.

Dr. William A. Quayle of Chicago, the recently appointed bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, will lecture in Duluth during the coming season under the auspices of the Ladies' Literature class. Dr. Quayle will give his lecture on Oliver Cromwell in this city. This lecture has attracted wide attention for its deep insight into the times in which Cromwell wrought and its profound comprehension of his achievements.

The class will this year study the history of England between 1630 and 1760, that period of constitutional conflict followed by the commonwealth, the restoration and finally the political revolution which ultimately brought about the rise of the cabinet governments. The Ladies' Literature class has stood primarily for scholarly research upon the part of its individual members. Ten years ago the members of the class began the study of history not so much reference to detailed events as from a sociological and philosophical point of view. From this viewpoint the study of the history of Egypt, Chaldea, Greece, Rome, Mediaeval Italy, Germany, France and England to the time of the seventeenth century has been considered. The outline of work for this year will be prepared by Miss L. Ella Roe, Miss Mars, Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge, Mrs. F. D. Adams, Mrs. C. G. Spring, Mrs. W. H. Hoyt, Mrs. John Christie, Jr., Mrs. H. R. Spencer, Mrs. W. G. Hegardt and Mrs. A. H. Crassweller.

AT DEERWOOD.

Duluth Young People Guests at House Parties.

A number of Duluth young people will be guests at house parties at Deerwood the last week of the month. The Duluth people who form the Duluth colony at the summer cottages on Lake Reno at Deerwood will be hosts to a number of Duluth guests and out of town visitors. The guests will go up next Wednesday to remain for a week.

At Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Adams' cottage, "Woodland," as guests of their son, Robert, are Susan Stryker, Julia Morrow and Chalmers Agnew.

At the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. White, as guests of Miss Caroline Hall and Durand Hall of Milwaukee, who are spending the summer at the White cottage, "Wyuka," are Mary Goodell, Molly Dyer of Milwaukee and Morris Davidson of Louisville, Ky.

At Mr. and Mrs. James T. Hale's cottage, "Three Pines," as guests of their son, J. Tracy Hale, Jr., are Katherine Hunter, Harriett Stryker, Helen Congdon, William Salisbury of Chicago, Miron Bunnell and Hale Codding of Towanda, Pa.

There will also be a party at Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Buxton's cottage.

LAWN FETE.

Beautiful Affair to Take Place at Spirit Lake.

The lawn fete this evening, which will be held at the Spirit Lake branch of the Boat club promises to be one of the very beautiful affairs of the late summer. The natural location of the Spirit Lake club house is unsurpassed on the St. Louis river and with the decoration and illuminations, it will be transformed into a fairyland of beauty. Many of the members and their friends will leave this evening on the special train which will leave the union station at 8 o'clock, instead of as at first announced, to be present for the affair. A musical program by the Third Regiment band will be a feature of the evening. Many of the members will entertain at dinner at the club house earlier in the evening.

Wed at Minneapolis.

Announcements have been received in the city from Theodore Bruhn of Minneapolis of the marriage of his daughter, Miss Clara Louise Bruhn, to John D. Schwieger of this city. The wedding took place Tuesday of this week at Minneapolis. After Sept. 1 Mr. and Mrs. J. Schwieger will be at home at 731 West First street.

Household Hints.

Ammonia painted over woodwork will darken it.

Whole cloves scattered plentifully among clothes in drawers and boxes will keep away moths as effectually as camphor.

When cleaning knives add a little carbonate of soda to the bathbrick on the board, for then they will polish much quicker.

A neglected grate or one which has been red hot, should be rubbed over with a cut raw potato before it is blackleaded. The result will be a brilliant polish.

Ink stains on silver or plated articles may be removed with a paste made of chloride of lime and water. This should be left on for a little while, and then washed off in warm water.

Match marks on the kitchen walls, which have been caused by carelessly striking matches on them, will disappear if rubbed first with the cut surface of a lemon, then with a clean cloth dipped in whiting. Afterward wash the surface with warm water and soap, and then quickly wipe with a clean cloth wrung out of clear water.

To cover the pan in which the fish is cooking will make the flesh soft.

Blackleaded mixed with vinegar will be found to give a specially good polish to the kitchen stove.

When washing lace, never rinse it in blue water with the idea of improving the color. Real lace should be finally rinsed in skim milk, which will give it a soft, creamy color.

To replace the small piece taken out from side and sew it all around with strong white thread. Stand them in stone or glass jars, closely together as possible.

To every five dozen peaches allow one gallon of vinegar, one pound of brown sugar, one-quarter teaspoonful of cayenne. Put the vinegar, sugar and cayenne into a porcelain lined kettle, bring quickly to a boil and immediately take off. Pour boiling hot over the peaches. When cold tie up. They will be ready for use in ten days and are very good.

Peach Mangoes.

Now that the fruit is so plentiful housewives will find peach mangoes both economical and delicious.

Select large freestone peaches. Put them in stone jar and cover with brine sufficiently strong to bear an egg and let stand forty-eight hours; then take them from the brine and throw them into cold water for twenty minutes.

Wipe each one carefully without breaking the skin, and with a sharp silver knife remove a small piece from one side and extract the stone. Sprinkle the inside lightly with celery seed.

Have ready sufficient grated horseradish moistened with vinegar to fill the peaches. As each peach is filled,

the EVENING STORY

The Chaplain's Night Off

By J. L. Kestor.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

"Bert" Robertson and "Busty" Bush were the closest chums in the college. They roomed together, ate together, studied together, fought for each other and were altogether considered as one.

But after graduation each went his several way, and ultimately Bert developed into Herbert H. Robertson, attorney-at-law, while "Busty" was transfigured into a Methodist Episcopal clergyman under the alias of the Rev. Augustus W. Bush. They settled in different cities and pursued their callings with credit.

Their ways diverged very rapidly, however, and while Robertson slid along the rose-lined lane of free-handed good fellowship, as became a rising attorney and lobbyist, the Rev. Bush tightened up and became more prim and correct as the days vanished. Of course, they grew apart, as all college friends do. Robertson went the way of high finance, wine, woman and song. Bush went up the straight and narrow path, growing more rigid and ascetic every day.

Their lives converged again when, in answer to the thunder and smoke and fire in which the Maine went down in Havana harbor, the call went forth from Washington for troops to avenge the crime and teach manners to the dons. Both men turned up in the state camp as officers in the same hastily-improvised regiment. Bush had gone in as chaplain, while Robertson, ever eager for action and adventure, had, through his political associations, secured a major's commission.

The state authorities were wofully unprepared for the horde of volunteers which descended upon them. Everything was lacking, including tents. So when Maj. Robertson, dominant, self-assertive and efficient, fell over Chaplain Bush trying to shrink into a corner, and learned that he was unprovided for as to quarters, he carried him off to his own tent and, with a few quick motions, had secured the necessary equipment to make him comfortable.

"You can't stand around and wait for some kind fairy to get your cots and blankets in this bloody old world, Busty," he said. "You've got to get out and hustle for 'em. Have a drink, Busty. I brought this stuff from the city myself. It's fine."

"No, thank you, Bert," replied Bush, rather abashed, but yet liking the sound of his old nickname. "I'm all through with that sort of thing."

Then he added, "But go along. I'm no crank."

They sat amid their memories and reminiscences until far into the night, renewing the old comradeship and starting a new one.

All this would have been very well, had it not been far the Rev. Bush's carelessness and Maj. Robertson's haste and the difference in their characters.

What happened was this: The Rev. Augustus Bush, being very devotedly in love with a charming maiden, a devout daughter of the church, as well as of a prosperous family, learned that his lady love had arrived in town and was domiciled with friends on Fifth street. Inasmuch as they were formally engaged she had sent him word.

"I am at the Chalmers, on Fifth street, where I will be glad to see you this evening, should your duties permit. Dora Blakesly." So the message ran.

Dress parade was on, in which he had no part, when the message was delivered. Immediately he leaped for his dress uniform, and a few moments later was surveying himself with some complacency in the small hand mirror the tent afforded. Truly, he was a gallant figure. The uniform made him appear more virile and manly than his sober preacher garb. And he went gaily forth to his sweetheart—and his doom.

Oh, most unfortunate of clergymen, most blundering of men, what have you done? Snatched up Maj. Robertson's uniform by mistake. Alas! you are built like your tent-mate and the coat fits to perfection.

A half hour later the major dashed in, the duties of dress parade over, and dove into his dress uniform also (as he thought.) Anyway, it was the only dress uniform in sight and fitted all right, and he had an engagement at the club down town, where a half-dozen young fellows from the city were awaiting him—and he was overdue. Besides, it was dark and he could not see plainly.

The result was that Chaplain Bush went to call on his lady love with the gold leaves on his shoulder and Maj. Robertson went for a wild night at the club with the shepherd's crooks on his collar. With the chaplain it made no difference, as the ladies were not conversant with the intricacies of military heraldry, and the gold leaves looked as prim and sedate as the shepherd's crooks would have appeared.

But with Maj. Robertson it was different. He burst into the club like a cyclone, tired and dry from his duties in the field, and shouting loudly and persistently for a high-ball. His friends, knowing his rank and personality, did not notice any particular inconsistency between his behavior and the insignia he wore; but he was introduced to many strangers from the city and local circle, and many there were who were impressed most vividly by the difference between his conduct and his clerical attire.

Every new introduction he made the occasion to buy another drink, and to every good story he responded with one just a trifle more suggestive.

Among those who drifted into the club was Will Blakesly, and the antics of the "chaplain" amused him exceedingly—albeit they also shocked him. Especially was he impressed when somebody proposed a game of poker, which the "chaplain" seconded most enthusiastically. Young Blakesly had not caught Robertson's name, and as the party entered the card room took occasion to ask him. The major dove into the pocket of his coat and produced a card which he handed Blakesly. It read:

"Augustus W. Bush, L.L. D., Chaplain 123th I. N. G."

The young man gasped in a new spasm of surprise. This, then, was his sister's fiancee—the devoted young priest whose beautiful spirituality had won her earnest, honest heart. Blakesly had been abroad for several years and had just returned. He never had met Bush, and in view of all the circumstances he scarcely felt he would care to meet him again.

But even while he burned with indignation at the hypocrisy and deception this clerical mountebank had practiced on his sister, he sat in wonder and amazement at the conduct of the Rev. Bush—at the tricks and sharp practice he used to win the money of the others at the table—at his swaggering, devil-may-care air, at his ribald stories and yet more ribald songs, at his free drinking and more than occasional blasphemy. The whole performance was not bad or disgusting, except that it was wholly without the pale of an honest priest.

Blakesly pondered for several days as to what to do about it. He was a man of the world and not at all Puritanical in his judgment of men. Nor did he make it a practice to dip into other people's affairs.

But this was so flagrant—so plain—so simple a case of a red-hot sport hiding in the guise of the clergy, that he felt it his duty to warn his trusting and unworldly sister. Still, so conservative was he, that it required several days' hard thinking before he could convince himself that this was the right course.

Then, with the Blakesly directness, he told the whole pitiful story—and filled before her tears. That same night the Rev. Augustus W. Bush was rudely aroused from the sweetest day-dreams he had ever known by a note from Miss Dora which shattered those day-dreams into smithereens.

But dormant in Rev. Augustus W. Bush, chaplain, lay the old "Busty" Bush, football player, oarsman and crack wrestler of his class, and after repining for several days, "Busty" got the better of the "Reverend" and he marched to Miss Dora to demand an explanation—nor would he submit to interference by the girl who answered the door. He forced his way into Miss Blakesly's presence and demanded an explanation with a vigor and initiative which, while it did not enhance his spirituality in Dora's eyes, gave her a new insight into his manhood—which, after all, is the real thing in the eyes of woman.

Thus forced, she told him the dreadful tale and pointed at him the finger of scorn and stamped her pretty foot many times.

After the outburst was over, "Busty" (for it was "Busty" now) laughed a great laugh, and demanded to face her brother.

"Yes, I'll face him," said Blakesly, dropping his napkin and striding to the reception room. "The whelp, to dare make such a bluff!"

The two men faced each other in silence for a moment, then Blakesly began to feel the red blood creep into his face and neck. "Busty" stood his ground, calm and assertive.

"Well, I'll be dished," said Blakesly, weakly. "This is not the man I saw. But, look here. Is this your card?"

"It is," replied the chaplain.

"Well, there's some mistake," returned Blakesly, desperately. "But where were you in Tuesday night?"

"Where was I, Miss Blakesly?" asked the chaplain, turning to the girl.

"Tuesday night? Why, here, of course," she replied. "That's the day we arrived and I sent you the note."

"Well," said Blakesly, gulping desperately. "It's on me, and I'm an ass. But please tell me who in thunder it was gave me this card."

The chaplain pondered a minute—then a great light broke upon him and he laughed until it got beyond a laugh—he whooped.

"It was the major," he cried, still slapping his legs. "We tent together, and in my haste to respond to your note I got into his coat. I noticed it when I took it off. Naturally he took what was left."

After their laugh, Blakesly quietly withdrew and the lovers made up in the old, old way. It did cost Blakesly many bottles, however, nor did Robertson escape scot free. Even the chaplain became "Busty" once more and bought a supper (without wine) at the club.

GRANITE IS BEING LAID

Excavation Work on the Courthouse Will be Finished Today.

Stone for Superstructure is Arriving Every Day.

Today will see the close of the excavation work on St. Louis county's new courthouse All of the dirt has been removed and Supt. Ericson stated that he expected by this evening the last of the rock would be out of the way. This winds up a tedious portion of the work which proved much more difficult of completion than the contractors anticipated.

Three carloads of granite arrived yesterday and were unloaded at the track. This morning they were brought up to the courthouse site and the setters started at work placing the big blocks in place. The granite is expected to arrive steadily until all of it is received.

Mr. Ericson expressed himself as very well satisfied with the progress of the work, now that the rock is all out. There has been little difficulty in getting labor so far, but it has been of a comparatively poor quality, says Mr. Ericson. Hardly more than 1 per cent of the men who have been employed have been a resident here, most of them being of the floating class that work in the woods or in the harvest fields, or anywhere that they can get work. They do not make the best class of laborers according to Mr. Ericson.

Boy Saved by Bull.

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 20.—A Burleigh county boy owes his life to his father's bull. John Berg, the 12-year-old son of Jacob Berz, living in the northeast part of this county, was badly gored and trampled by a wild steer he was trying to drive away from his father's herd, and had not a bull belonging to Berg taken up the fight for the child he might have been killed. While the boy was down and being trampled and an effort made to gore him the bull made a charge on the intruder and a fierce fight ensued, ending in the flight of the steer. The boy is in a hospital here and will recover.

INQUIRIES FOR FREIGHT CARS

From Various Sources Brings Encouragement to Iron Market.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 20.—The Iron Trade Review says: Inquiries for freight cars have been bringing encouragement to the iron market, and specifications against contracts in nearly all lines continue to come in freely, but actual new business placed during the past week has been very light. It is estimated that inquiries for new cars now pending, including 7,000 for the Harriman lines, amount to nearly 10,000, and there is reasonable assurance that orders for 12,000 tons will soon be placed, causing a comfortable increase in the demand for steel and iron products.

Owing to the decreased cost of building lake vessels, figures are now being received on the construction of several big freighters.

Inquiries for pig iron aggregating a considerable tonnage are pending, including about 5,000 tons in the Eastern territory and about an equal number in the Central West. Some of these inquiries are apparently sent out to test prices. In the South the market is much firmer, and there is also irregularity in Northern quotations. Pig iron stocks are low all over the country. Sales of iron ore are proceeding very slowly.

The American Bridge company has sold 10,000 tons of structural material to a Canadian firm.

The demand for wire products continues very active, and the principal interest is operating 80 per cent of its capacity. Production of tin plate is now 52 per cent of capacity, which compares with 54 per cent last week. Specifications against sheet contracts in the Pittsburg district are now the best of the present year. More interest in sheet is shown by both jobbers and consumers, but there is still considerable irregularity in prices.

NEW PLAN TO GET TUG

Suggested That the Big Property Owners Advance the Money.

City Would Pay Owners Back on Installment Plan.

A new scheme to obtain a fire tug was suggested at the meeting of those interested at the Commercial club yesterday afternoon. The plan is for the property owners to raise the money by subscription, pay for the tug, receive the money back from the city on the yearly payment plan. It is said that this plan should prove very satisfactory, for as soon as the fire tug is obtained the insurance tax on the dock property will be greatly reduced.

At the meeting yesterday the men present were mostly those interested in dock property, and therefore mostly interested in fire protection. They are bound to have fire protection, and every one of them agreed that should the city agree to their plan the money could be raised inside of a half day.

W. A. McGonagle offered to turn over the plans of the fire tug recently built for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road and thus save the city a large amount of money. Mr. McGonagle also said that if the fire tug is to be bought, this is the time to get it, as it can be obtained now several thousand dollars cheaper than it can be bought next year.

George Spencer said that a pumping device had been installed in his mill, and at the recent fire had not that been working along with the assistance of the Missabe fire tug, he is sure the whole western end of the city would have been burned. He also said that while the Duluth fire department did effective work, that not one of the lengths of hose was attached on pipes belonging to the city, but were on pipes that the company had laid at its own expense. "There is not a city hydrant near the place," he said.

Mr. Spencer said that if the city would agree to the plan of the property owners he is sure they would be willing to start the subscription list with $5,000. E. C. Blanchard of the Northern Pacific said that the railroad company, he felt sure, would come with a substantial sum, but he was unable to say how much.

City Attorney Wilson said last night that he had not thoroughly investigated the matter, but that in his opinion it would be found impracticable under the city charter.

The city council has refused from time to time the responsibility of furnishing a fire tug, arguing that since the dock men are the ones to receive the benefit, they should pay.

Both Mr. McGonagle and Mr. Spencer pointed out yesterday the benefit it would be to the city as a whole. Mayor Haven put away all argument on this score by saying that the need of fire protection was well known, and that the only thing to talk about is the way to get the tug.

There were more than forty cards sent out announcing the meeting yesterday, and there were only eight present. These eight, however, made up in energy what the meeting lacked in numbers, and by the time the meeting broke up, every man present was enthusiastic about the plan explained.

of the governor to stave off the inevitable. Close friends of the governor labored in vain to stem the tide of rising Johnson sentiment. It was as futile an attempt to harness the raging torrent of Niagara.

The events immediately preceding the wild outburst for Johnson were not staged according to program. At a caucus Wednesday morning among the Hennepin county delegates A. B. Choate was chosen as the man to nominate Johnson. In preparation for this honor, Mr. Choate had prepared a lengthy speech. But the spontaneous outburst of the convention changed the order of events.

When the motion to nominate a governor was carried, the secretary was ordered to call the roll of the counties. The name of Aitkin county was the first on the list. Aitkin waived its privilege and the sentiment that with difficulty had been held in check all during the convention was about to break forth.

Lawler's Speech.

Daniel W. Lawler stepped to the platform. There was a hush and an ominous silence. It was the calm before the storm. "There is but one man," began Mr. Lawler, "and that man is John A. Johnson, the only man who could be suggested—" but the speaker got no further. Like the sudden discharge of a battery, the convention was upon its feet and the air was filled with an ear-deafening din that shook the roof of the big hall. The band joined in and the demonstration began.

Suddenly a little, broad shouldered man, holding a county banner aloft, sprang from a seat in the middle of the hall and rushed upon the stage. The man was the irrepressible "Paddy" McDonnell of Duluth and the banner was that of St. Louis county.

Quickly the other standard bearers followed the lead of the St. Louis county man, and soon the stage resembled a small forest of stripped timber. When the last banner bearer had reached the stage, there began the enactmnt of a scene that has had no qual in the political history of Minnesota. Men forgot themselves, women leaned far out over the balconies and lent encouragement to the wild cheering. In a moment the fuse of popular sentiment had been touched off—the convention "blew up" and the sentiment was being expressed in a manner that left no doubt of its sincerity.

Bryan's Picture Lifted.

The lifting of the large picture of Bryan into the marching line added another wave of applause. Women were pulled into the marching line. Staid professional men executed rakish cakewalks. The serious, stern face of "Cardinal" R. T. Connor of St. Paul was seen to relax and he let forth a wild whoop for Johnson, waving time to the music with a flag. Men shed their coats and tossed their hats wildly into the air. Hats were lost, men embraced each other and women lent their emotions to the wild scene. The band played desperately to make itself heard above the mighty din of human voices, and above all was heard the even, deep-voiced cry of "Johnson, Johnson, Johnson."

The story of yesterday's convention is the story of the personal popularity and the compelling personality of John A. Johnson. There was no political maneuvering for the nomination of Johnson. The voters of Minnesota took any choice in the matter of naming a gubernatorial candidate out of the hands of the politicians.

Day Opens Convention.

Frank A. Day opened the convention. Mr. Day flayed Jacob Jacobson, styling him as a tool of the trusts and said the convention that nominated him was as bold a body of political freebooters as ever held sway in state politics. Then Mr. Day touched the spring of the convention.

"The governor has asked me to do my best to keep his name from the convention. Of coourse I don't know what you will do about it. It is only loyal to my chief that I carry out his wishes in this matter. We have plenty of material in the party. We have won in the past because we deserved to win and because we had the man. Ah, yes, we had the man."

The work of organization was then taken up. R. D. Harrington was elected as chairman. Richard Tattersfield of Hennepin was made secretary. Frank S. Battley of St. Paul and Andrew Nelson of Duluth were selected as assistant secretaries.

In his speech, Chairman Ray D. Farrington severely arraigned the record of the Republican party. He characterized it as the party of special interests, the party of corporate abuse. He stated that all these years the Democratic party had been right and that its victory this fall would be the result of this conviction of the people. The mention of the "fearless tribune of the people, William J. Bryan," brought forth a wild cheer that bespoke complete harmony between the Bryan and Johnson men.

"You have a duty before you," said the chairman. "The man who is the unanimous choice of this convention has indicated to you that he does not desire a renomination. It is up to you to decide in this matter."

"We have decided on Johnson," came a roar from the rear of the hall, and the Johnson stampede was narrowly averted, even at this early hour.

A recess was taken to allow the committees to finish their work, the convention reassembling at 2 o'clock. The credentials committee made its report shortly after the convention was called to order for the afternoon session. As there were no contesting delegations it was decided to seat all of the delegation and give each delegation the full county vote. The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of making the temporary officers permanent, the motion being carried. Then came the wait for the report of the committee on resolutions. It was moved that the nomination for governor be in order, ans a deep breath of excitement moved the convention.

Then came the nominating speech of Daniel W. Lawler. Like fire the magnetism of his words swept over the audience.

"There is only one choice for this convention to make—and that choice is John A. Johnson." The inevitable had happened, and the pent up enthusiasm of the convention was loosened.

Made Unanimous.

After the eighty minutes of tumult had with difficulty been terminated, the work of calling the roll of counties was resumed. The call got as far as Beltrami county. A motion from one of the county's delegates that roll call be dispensed with, and the nomination of Governor Johnson be made by acclamation was carried by deep-throated shout of "ayes."

The Resolutions.

Next came the report of the committee on resolutions. The resolutions indorse the establishment of a state harvester plant at the state penitentiary; favor the wide open tax amendment to the state constitution; favor a non-partisan judiciary; indorse the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people; indorse the initiative and referendum; and favor an employers' liability act, eliminating the clause regarding contributary negligence on the part of the employee.

The report of the slate committee recommended Julius J. Reiter of Rochester, for lieutenant governor, Richard F. Lamb of Clayton, secretary of state; P. H. Nelson of Hibbing, for state treasurer; M. E. Matthews of Marshall, for attorney general; Hans P. Bjorge of Otter Tail county and Robert Moe of Rice county, for railroad and warehouse commissioners.

In the matter of committee appointments St. Louis county fared very well. The delegates representing the Eighth congressional district held a caucus at the noon recess, choosing the following men for committee appointions; John Dwan of Two Harbors, member of the committee on resolutions; Martin Hughes of Hibbing, member of the committee on state slate; W. B. Geichell, committee of honorary vice presidents; S. C. Hannon of Lake county, committee on credentials; J. F. O'Brien of Carlton, committee on permanent organization.

The committee from the Eighth district will also request Charles d'Autremont to be a candidate for congress.

Could Not Stem Tide.

John Dwan of Two Harbors was earnestly requested by Governor Johnson early in the day to do everything possible to prevent the governor's renomination. Mr. Dwan found it quite useless to attempt to carry out the request of the governor, during the time when the convention was swinging on to the nomination point, but after this event, explained why he had not carried out the instructions, in a speech that received a burst of applause from the convention.

The following committees carried on the work of the convention:

Committee on Credentials—Arthur Carmichael, J. W. Anderson, P. D. Scannell, Senator Glotzbach, Charles Davis, Dr. C. O. Cooley, Dr. A. F. Gilkinson, J. W. Craven, W. R. Hodges, C. A. Dorival, S. H. Diarrhoea Cured.

"My father has for years been troubled with diarrhoea, and tried every means possible to effect a cure, without avail," writes John H. Zirkle of Philippi, W. Va. "He saw Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy advertised in the Philippi Republican and decided to try it. The result is one bottle cured him, and he has not suffered for eighteen months. Before taking this remedy he was a constant sufferer. He is now sound and well, and, although 60 years old, can do as much work as a young man." Sold by all druggists.

COMING ON HORSEBACK.

Buffalo Bill and the Rough Riders Will be Here.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West, with its multitude of rough riders from all parts of the world, American Indian warriors, Mexican vaqueros, English lancers, Japanese, cowboys, ranch girls, Arabian nomads, Russian Cossacks, United States cavalry, infantry and artillery, and all of the other startling features that Col. William F. Cody has gathered together, will be here in a few days.

There is no tinsel and the only paint is on the Indians, who appear in war paint and feathers, just as they did when the great West was a hot, debatable ground for the savage and the white man. All is real, simple and historically correct. Buffalo Bill's original Wild West has had many imitators, but its success and the interest in the story it presents seems to increase with the years.

This season no street parade is given, as the efforts will be directed to the presentation of an effective and thrilling program. Two performances, at 2 and 8 p. m., rain or shine, will be given, ever seat being covered from the elements.

Don't expect the stomach to do work it can't do. That is unreasonable. While you need help—let Kodol do it for you. Kodol digests all the food and it is the only preparation that does. If the stomach is unable to digest food—

There is only one way. It must have help.

Don't expect it to do work it can't do. That is unreasonable. Help restore its abilty to act for itself. It soon puts it in condition to do its work unaided. When that condition is reached—

You don't need help.

You don't need digesters.

You don't need Kodol.

But while you do need help let Kodol do it for you. Then note the physical improvement that only comes with perfect digestion. And perfect digestion supplies sufficient nourishment.

Kodol is not a cure—Nature alone cures. But Kodol assists the stomach by doing part of its work. Then nature completes its cure. A little help from Kodol makes the burden lighter and easier to bear.

There are tonic properties in Kodol that cause the stomach and whole system to respond. That is what you want. That's what you get in Kodol.

Lack of nourishment is not generally caused by lack of food. It is because you don't assimilate what you eat and because it don't digest.

Eat good food and all you want

Don't avoid this nor that because it dosen't agree with you. That only shows the stomach needs help. If your appetite craves certain things your system requires them.

Here is where Kodol benefits you.

It not only digests the food you have eaten, but tones up and puts the stomach back to a healthy and normal condition.

As long as part of the food remains undigested, the stomach is not at rest. All food must be digested. Only part means that the stomach must go on working at an impossible task.

Some things are a partial help and do part of the work. But that is not enough. The part they do is not the most essential part. Just what they fail to accomplish is what is most required by the body. Part way will not do. "Part way" will never take you to a journey's end. All or none should be the demand.

That is why Kodol is so successful.

It digests all food as quickly as a healthy stomach will do it.

If it fails it costs you nothing.

Fairness cannot go further.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say that it has not done you any good return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money. We will then repay the druggist. This offer applies to the large bottle and to but one in a family.

The dollar bottle contains 2¼ times as much as the fifty cent bottle. Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

CORONER'S JURY RETURNS VERDICT

New York, Aug. 20.—After being out twenty-two minutes, a coroner's jury last night brought in a verdict that William E. Annis, who was killed last Saturday at Bayside, L. I., came to his death as the result of pistol wounds inflicted by Capt. Peter C. Hains Jr., U. S. A., aided and abetted by Thornton Jenkins Hains, his literary brother.

There was a greater crowd than the little courtroom in the town hall at Flushing, L. I., could hold when the inquest began, and hundreds of men and women awaited the verdict outside.

When the jurymen filed into the room and the foreman announced the verdict, there was a demonstration. Coroner Ambler had to rap with his gavel and court officers had to caution the spectators, for an attempt was made to applaud the verdict. Maj. John Powell Hains, who has come here from Chicago to stand by his brothers, and who was sitting beside Capt. Hains, gripped his brother by the arm and whispered words of encouragement, assuring him that the inquest would have little bearing on the case.

In the excitement a crowd gathered around Thornton Jenkins Hains and began to question him as to the tragedy in which he played such an important part. He was asked if he felt justified in holding a crowd at bay with a revolver while his brother shot down Annis. Before Hains could reply, John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for the brothers, rushed to his side and shouted:

"No, no; don't answer that question." In his effort to prevent Hains from answering, the lawyer clapped his hands over his client's mouth, and was probably just in time to prevent the prisoner from committing himself.

Only two witnesses were called. They were Charles H. Roberts of Flushing, who testified that he was standing on the clubhouse float when he heard the report of a pistol shot and saw Capt. Hains in a kneeling position clinging to the dropping body of Annis as he emptied the contents of his revolver into it, and coroner's physician, Walter G. Frey, who testified that Annis came to his death from the bullet wounds.

OKLAHOMA GOVERNOR

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 20.—Omer K. Benedict, editor and owner of the Times, has been arrested here by the sheriff of Logan county on a warrant charging him with criminal libel. The warrant was issued on complaint of Governor Charles N. Haskell. It was based on an editorial in last Friday's Times, in which it was intimated that Governor Haskell was in conference with representatives of the Standard Oil company in the Coates house at Kansas City, Mo., on June 16 last, when he was supposed to be in Muskogee. Mr. Benedict was taken to Guthrie.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT

Northern League May Have Teams in the Twin Cities.

Franchise in the Western League Next Year is Possibility.

A. W. Kuehnow, secretary-treasurer of the Duluth Baseball club, returned this morning from the Twin Cities, where he went on private business, and, incidentally, to talk over the baseball situation with Mike Cantillon and George Lennon. He saw both men and is perfectly satisfied with the result of his interview.

"Both of the Twin City magnates assured me of their support in the event of the Northern league placing teams in the Twin Cities next season," Mr. Kuehnow said this morning. "They are willing to give up their parks to the Northern league any time their teams are away from home, and will use their influence with the other association magnates to secure their consent to the Northern entering the Twin Cities, under the protection of the national agreement. They even wanted the Sox to go there and play next week, but that is impossible under the present conditons.

"As for the prospect of entering the Western league, it is somewhat in the air. I did not learn anything definite on the intentions of the American association magnates of entering Chicago, but I believe they are making plans to do so. In that event, the St. Paul franchise will go to Chicago and it will be up to the Western league to extend its territory to take in St. Paul. Duluth would, of course, be included so as to fill in this end of the circuit with two teams.

"There is some talk in the Western league of dropping Denver and Pueblo if the scheme to take in St. Paul and Duluth is put through, but I do not think that course will be taken, as Tebeau is the life of the Western league and he owns the Denver club."

Mr Kuehnow is not at all pleased with the showing of his Sox at Hibbing and will take immediate steps to strengthen them up. If Billings will not do, another catcher will be secured immediately and a pitcher will probably be added to the staff.

The Sox return to Duluth tomorrow to open their home series with the independent clubs. The first games will be played with Hibbing, the series of four beginning tomorrow. Eveleth follows for three games, and then Virginia will come for four, after which the Sox will return to the range to finish their season.

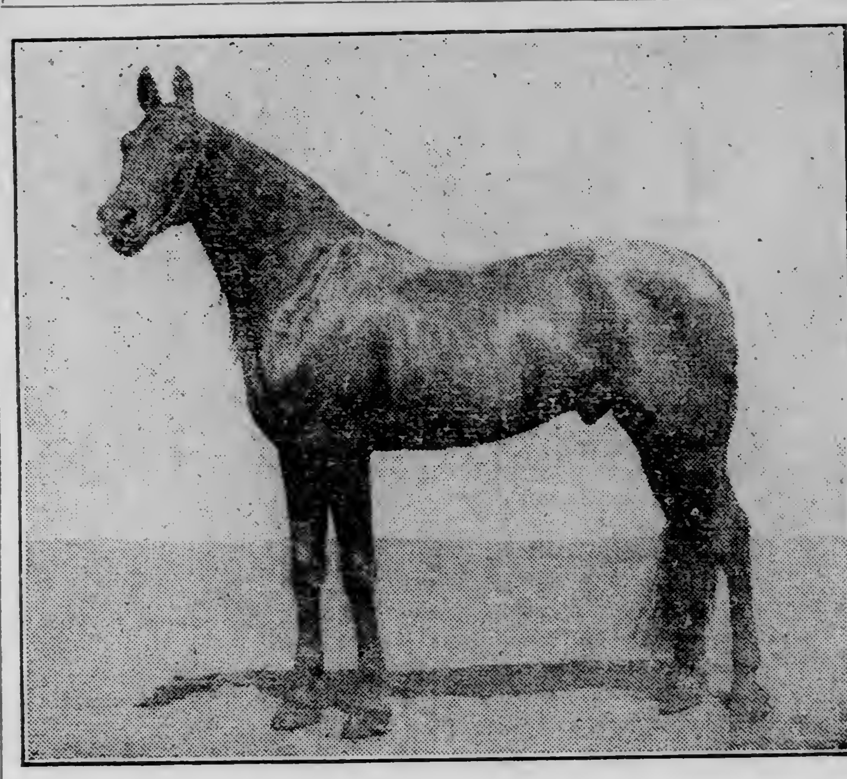
ST. PAUL HORSE WILL RACE AT MINNESOTA STATE FAIR



SIR BOREAL.

One of the highest bred horses now in training at the Minnesota state fair track is Sir Boreal, a dark bay, 7 years old, owned by George W. Kibbe of St. Paul, and descended from the long line of Electioneers, Hambletonians and George Wilkes'. Sir Boreal's record to date is 2:25¼ made on the Stillwater track last fall, but in the past two months, under the care of the veteran trainer, E. J. McCarr, he has developed so rapidly that he will be entered in the 2:18 trot, and in the late closing racing events of the Minnesota state fair, and Mr. McCarr thinks, will easily take down a portion of the money.

WEATHER LOSES FOR COLUMBIA

Chicago, Aug. 20.—A heavy sea, which caused the judges to lose the buoys, cost the Columbia of the Columbia Yacht club the Lipton club yesterday afternoon's race. The third buoy was cast adrift by the heavy waves, and before the judges could mark the corner of the square the Columbia and Jackson Park, who were leading, had passed two miles out of their course. The trial was immediately called no race by the judges, and the final race will be sailed today over the same course.

It may be said that the elements cost the Columbia the race, for the Chicago yacht was tied with the Cleveland of Cleveland, Ohio, for third place, and her winning yesterday with the Jackson Park second would have given her the trophy.

A fresh breeze greeted the racers at the start and Columbia was immediately made the favorite by the yachting experts. She crossed the line in second place with the La Rita leading, but soon passed the Illinois Athletic club yacht, and held the lead when the first buoy was rounded. The position remained the same at the second leg, but on the third leg the Jackson Park beat out the La Rita for second place This assured the Columbia the cup, as she could win with the Jackson Park in this position, but the third buoy was lost and the trial called off.

HAMBURG BELLE MAKES RECORD

Spanish Queen is Defeated in Fast Race at Poughkeepsie.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Hamburg Belle defeated Spanish Queen in the Oakland Baron 2:03 trotting stake at the Hudson river driving park yesterday, and established a new trotting race record for the track when she stepped the first heat in 2:05¼. This also equals her own record. The two succeeding heats were each in 2:07, making the three fastest heats aver trotted over the local track.

Andrews rushed off in the lead with Hamburg Belle soon after the word was given in the first heat, and led Spanish Queen by half a length at the quarter, which was reached in 23 seconds. The pair went down to the half in 1:01¾, making the second quarter in 28¾ seconds, a 1:55 clip. Hamburg Belle maintained her lead and won the heat handily by half a length. The second heat was a repetition of the first. Durfee made a bid with Carolkin in the third heat, but left his feet in the stretch and Hamburg Belle took the heat and race.

Alceste, driven by Geers, after winning the first two heats of the 2:28 trot easily, broke at the seven furlongs pole in the third heat and was beaten by Van Detta. In the following heats Alceste appeared to be paralyzed in her hind quarters and was beaten by Vandetta in the slow time of 2:16¼ and 2:20¾.

EVANS IS CHAMPION.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Charles Evans, Jr., of the Edgewater Golf club, Chicago, Western inter-scholastic golf champion, yesterday won the Western junior championship at Westward Ho links by defeating Albert Seckel of Riverside Golf club, 10 up and 9 to play, in the 36-hole finals. Although a high northeast wind swept the course, Evans played brilliantly, making the first round in 76 and putting Seckel eight down at the end of the morning play.

Phillip Stanton of the Kenton Country club, Grand Rapids, defeated Frank Adams of Westward Ho, 3 up and 2 in the finals for the Westward Ho cup.

HAYES BACK IN AMERICA

Winner of Olympic Marathon Says He Was Treated Well.

Difference in Rules Said to Have Caused American Complaints.

New York, Aug. 20.—"I have nothing to say against the way the English people treated us," said John J. Hayes, winner of the Marathon race at the Olympic games, upon his arrival here yesterday on the steamer Oceanic. Hayes' view of the treatment given the American team of athletes at the games in London was echoed by J. P. Halstead, the Cornell runner, who was also a passenger on the Oceanic. That there were grounds for complaint by Americans was admitted by both athletes, but neither believed that the team from his country was intentionally discriminated against by anybody connected with the conduct of the sports in the stadium.

Hayes got a reception at the pier from a party of friends who had assembled to greet him. He was asked at once about the games and, in discussing the race, he said:

"They thought before the race that the Englishmen were the only ones that had a chance, and they were naturally a great deal disappointed when they did not win. Morrisey was the only American who was mentioned before the race as having any show at all. I don't know anything about the assisting of Dorando across the line. He was disqualified on the testimony of the judges. I, myself, did not have to make any protest."

Hayes did not care to say anything about the incidents connected with the awarding of the prizes, which have occasioned discussion.

"When anything was not particularly pleasant, we did not care much," he said, "for we knew that it would be made up to us when we got home. I have nothing to say against the way the English people treated us. The English press does not represent the feeling of the English people. I have had a delightful time in England and an especially good one in Ireland. I come here perfectly satisfied."

Halstead, who was defeated by Sheppard in the first heat of the 1,500 metre race, some comment being excited because the two best American runners were drawn in the same heats, said:

"I had a fine time and was very well treated. I do not believe that the Englishmen were intentionally unfair. I think the fact that I was drawn against Sheppard in the first heat was simply the luck of the draw. Their rules and ours differed, and it was because of these differences that most of the disputes arose."

The other Americans among yesterday's arrivals were J. N. Patterson, the steeplechaser from the University of Michigan; R. M. Spitzer and Edward Doust of Yale, M. J. Ryan and George Cameron.

HIBBING WINS WITH TWO HITS

Thorsen Pitches Fine Game, But Sox Fail With Stick.

Hibbing, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—In one of the fastest and best played games seen on the range this season, the Hibbing team defeated the Duluth White Sox yesterday by a score of 2 to 0.

The great Thorsen, who was expected to humble the Colts, was sent to the mound by Williams and he came as close to turning the trick as anybody could. Only two lonely hits were secured off him; but one was a home run by Brookins and the other a two-bagger by Sage with a man on second base, Hibbing winning, 2 to 0.

Sage pitched a fine game for Hibbing. The Sox got to him for only six hits and he kept them well scattered, almost perfect support helping him out of pinches and preventing Duluth's scoring. In the seventh inning, Williams drew a pass and went around to third on two singles, but he was caught at the plate and Duluth's only chance to score had gone. Score: R. H. E.

AMERICANS ARE WINNERS.

Seven of Eleven Contests in Scotland Won by Olympic Victors.

Edinburgh, Aug. 20.—In the match yesterday between a team of Irish-American athletes vs. Scotland, the former won seven of the eleven events on the program. Melvin W. Sheppard captured the half mile, Lawson Robertson won the 100-yards and R. Cloghen the 220-yard dash, Perry Carter the high jump, C. J. Bacon the 120-yard hurdle, Daniel J. Kelly the running broad jump, and Lee J. Talbot the hammer throw.

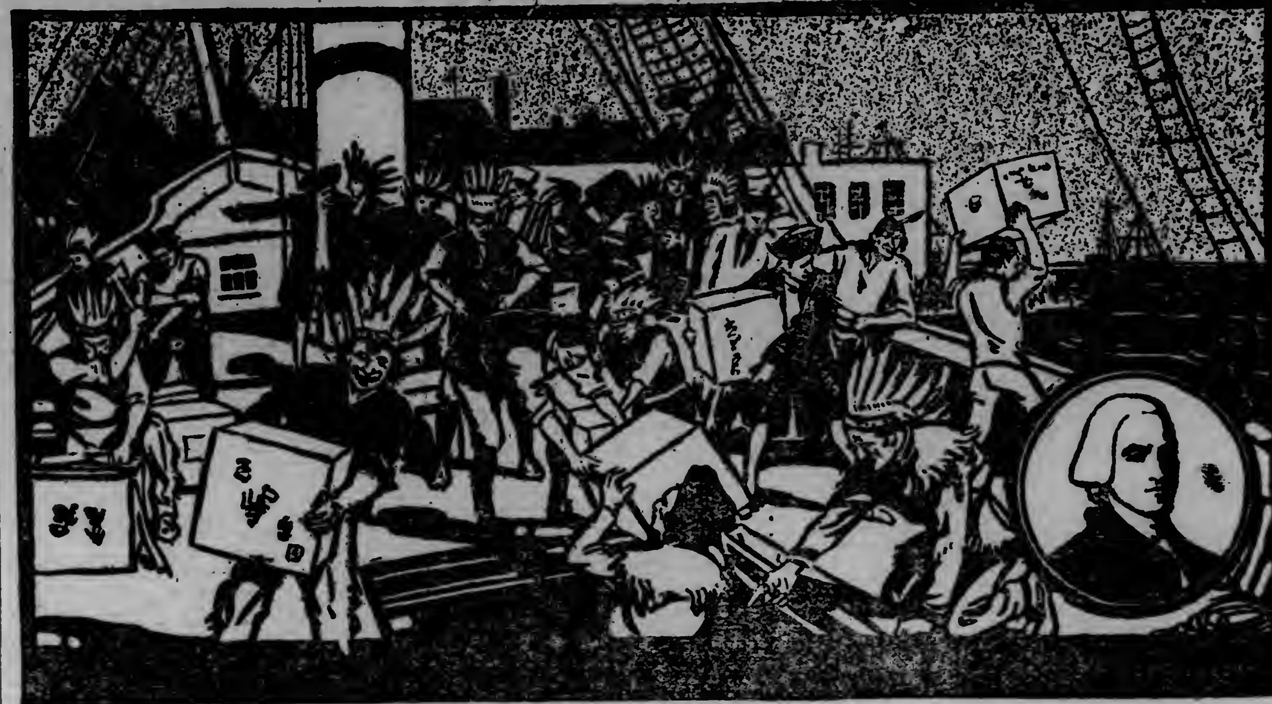
Jamieson of Scotland won the mile run, beating J. P. Sullivan, and Harvey W. Cohen of the Irish-American team. Young of Scotland captured the quarter-mile dash from J. P. Taylor by four yards, Nicolson of Scotland beat Talbot in the weight-putting event, and Duncan of the local team won the four miles run, in which George V. Bonhag finished fourth. No records were made.

AITKIN WINS IN SLOW TIME.

Mount Vernon Handicap Won by Neck in Hard Drive.

Empire City Race Track, Yonkers, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Jack Atkin, carrying 132 pounds, won the Mount Vernon handicap one mile here yesterday after a hard drive. He was under a strong pull at the stretch, where Notter gave him his head, but he had to be ridden out to win. The time was very slow, for the mile was run in 1:40 4-5.

Jack Atkin went to the front on the first turn, but Wool Sandals took the lead at the turn into the back stretch and continued to show the way to the stretch. Here Jack Atkin took the lead, but was immediately challenged by Tieling. These two fought it out in the final furlong, but Jack Atkin last long enoough to win by a neck. Tieling was three lengths before Zienap.



John Hancock.

UPON the Declaration of Independence his name may be read without spectacles. It stands out the strongest, boldest, finest signature.

In the most realistic sense John Hancock pledged life and fortune to finance the Revolution in its earlier stages.

He held investments in banks, breweries, distilleries, stores, hotels, and owned a fleet of ships engaged in the rum, wine and oil trade. The seizure of one of them (for evading the revenue laws) precipitated the Boston Massacre. He was strong-hearted, full of enterprise, patriotic and bold of spirit. Over many a foaming glass of Boston Ale and hot punch he often declared, "I glory in publicly avowing my eternal enmity to tyranny."

DAY'S PLAY IS DISAPPOINTMENT

Clothier Defeats Little in Straight Sets at Newport.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 20.—Tennis at the Casino yesterday was not up to championship form for the star match of the day between former Champion William J. Clothier of Philadelphia, and R. D. Little of New York, another crack player, was won by the former without difficulty, while straight set victories and seventeen defaults in the other matches disappointed the crowd which had anticipated better sport.

The Clothier-Little match was played on the championship court and as Little defeated his opponent only three weeks before at Longwood, a brilliant and long drawn out contest was anticipated. Clothier, however, won in less than an hour, in straight sets, 6-2; 6-2; 6-3.

Among the other winners of the day were F. B. Alexander of New York, R. Stevens of Hoboken, Robert Leroy of New York, and A. C. Butler of Boston.

The second round was completed yesterday, and when play stopped last night the third round, except nine games, had been finished.

Third round, A. L. Hoskins defeated H. C. Pello, Jr., 6-3; 6-4; 0-6; 6-0.
N. Thornton defeated G. O. Wagner, 8-6; 6-3; 4-6; 7-5.
J. O. Aimes defeated Craig Biddle, 2-6; 6-4; 6-3; 6-3.
J. D. F. Jones defeated H. C. Jonson 6-2; 6-3; 12; 10.
B. C. Wright defeated W. H. Connell 6-1; 6-2; 6-1.
C. Hale defeated Norman Johnson 0-6; 6-0; 6-8; 9-7; 7-5.
H. Torrance, Jr. defeated W. H. Trotter 6-2; 7-5; 6-3.
R. L. James defeated R. W. Thomas 6-1; 6-4; 6-3.

LASKER WINS HARD GAME.

American Chess Player Slips at Opening, But Recovers.

Dusseldorf, Aug. 20.—Dr. Emanuel Lasker won a remarkable victory yesterday in the second game of the series of eight up for the chess championship of the world in forty-one moves, after a calamitous beginning.

Dr. Tarrasch, the Neuremburg master, employed a Spanish opening and obtained a favorable attacking position. Lasker then made a serious mistake, which Tarrasch utilized to great threaten Lasker's king, and at the permitted him to turn a pawn and threaten Lasker's king, an dat the same time a pass pawn. He failed, however, to make full use of his advantage, permitting his attack to die off.

The New York expert immediately started a strong counter attack in the center and succeeded in cramping his opponent's position. Despite Tarrasch's desperate efforts, whereby Lasker lost another pawn, Tarrasch was compelled to resign after the forty-first move. Dr. Lasker was the victor also in the first game of the match which was concluded Tuesday night.

Marshall won the first prize of the German Chess union's tournament, of which the Lasker-Tarrasch match is the feature.

PARADISE OF HUNTERS

Season for Chicken and Water Foul Will Open Soon.

Partridge Will be in Season One Month Later.

The sportsman is preparing to lay away his fishing rod and work a transformation. From a fisherman, he will become a hunter. Guns will be brought out and polished up, the sporting goods stores are selling ammunition and hunters' supplies. Soon the trains to the Northern woods and lakes will carry their loads of hunters bound for the chase, while the prairies in the western part of the state will draw their quota of chicken hunters.

Sept. 1, the trout season closes and the speckled beauties will be left to enjoy their streams unmolested by hook or fly until April 15 next year. On the same date, the season for wild duck, goose and other aquatic fowl and for prairie chicken, turtledove, snipe, pinnated, white breasted or sharp-golden plover will open and the versatile sportsman need not worry over suspension of outings.

September will not see a very great rush for the woods, lakes and prairies. The season for quail, partridge and ruffled grouse does not open until Oct. 1, and those birds are the prey of most of the hunters in Northern Minnesota. The chicken season extends from Sept. 1 to Nov. 1, so that the hunters, who wait for the opening of the partridge season may make one long trip of it and take in the chase for chicken, duck and partridge at one time.

The state places a limit of fifteen birds for one day's bag and fifty aquatic birds for forty-five other game birds is the limit one may have in his possession at any one time. A non-resident may ship twenty-five birds to his place of residence.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

IS LOOKING OVER RIVER

Uncle Sam Sends Representative to Examine Red Lake River.

Federal Aid Towards Improving Streams Navigation is Expected.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—After long delay and only on the urgent request of patriotic citizens, has the United States government finally taken cognizance of the needs of better navigation on the Red Lake river, which flows through this city on its way to join the Red River of the North.

This week, an engineer, a representative of the war department at Washington, in whose authority is vested the task of caring for the navigability of the streams of this country, arrived in this city and is now engaged in examining the river with a view of learning its needs. There is no question of the importance of the 100 miles of navigable water, reaching from this city to the great Red Lakes. This stream is the easy and natural outlet for all trade from the broad territory it drains.

At the present time several steamboats ply its waters, caring for the business that now exists, two of them making regular trips, carrying freight and passengers between Thief River Falls and points along the river and the Red Lake. The recent and rapid settlement of the Red Lake Indian reservation that borders the river for half its course, as well as the development of this northern country, and the trade about the lakes make this business possible. This trade is somewhat interrupted during low water by shallows that can be easily dredged. Were this done and a controlling dam installed at the lake's outlet the navigation of the stream would be assured.

P. R. McDONNELL BEGINS BIG JOB

Duluth Contractor Starts on His Grand Forks Paving Contract.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Contractor P. R. McDonnell of Duluth has commenced work upon his big paving contract here, and there is a general belief that there will be no delay caused by threatened injunction proceedings.

Scott Rex, who served notice on Mayor Taylor, Contractor McDonnell and City Auditor Alexander that an application would be made for an order restraining McDonnell from carrying out his contract, has announced that there will probably be no action brought in court. He has been acting for persons whose names have not been announced.

Although it was not stated what the grounds for the action would be, it was generally understood that the claim would be made that the contract was illegally awarded to McDonnell because he had not bid on 15,000 and 30,000 square yards of pavement, as well as 48,000 square yards. The specifications provided that any omission meant that a bid would be invalid, but City Attorney Feetham and other attorneys hold that the bid of McDonnell was complete in every detail as far as it referred to the 48,000 square yards for which the contract called. They hold that the omission of the bid on the 15,000 and 30,000 square yards did not affect the validity of the bid on the larger number of square yards.

Stillwater Man Buried.

Stillwater, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Frank G. Peterson, late proprietor of the St. Paul house, was held yesterday afternoon at that hotel. There was a large attendance including a body of the Fraternal Eagles in regalia. The services were conducted by Rev. C. E. Benson, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church. Interment was made in Fairview cemetery.

The funeral of William Wedzel was held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Hill officiated. There was a large attendance of friends and the floral tributes were many and beautiful.

CLAIM LOCOMOTIVE IS HOODOOED

NO. 47 LYING ON ITS SIDE.

Akeley, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Engine No. 470 of the Great Northern is again in the Melrose shops being repaired. It is considered by railroad men to be hoodooed. Recently it was working on the Red River Lumber company's logging road at Akeley. Try as hard as possible, the crew could not make 470 do a decent day's work. It became more stubborn and could scarcely pull its load of logs. The crew kicked, and 470 was ordered to the shops for repairs. When the news reached the engineer, the old engine took on new life, and just before the engine arrived to replace it, No. 470 ran amuck, left the track, overturned, and lay on its side in the swamp, or the like. Then a new engine came and helped the wrecking crew to put 470 into condition to be taken to Melrose for repairs.

Fargo Professor Lauds Institution at Lake Itasca.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prof. D. E. Willard, who recently returned from Lake Itasca, Minn., where he was giving a series of lectures at the summer school of forestry which was being held in the Minnesota state forest, spoke very entertainingly of the work of the school and the condition. Aside from lecturing, Prof. Willard, who was accompanied by Mrs. Willard and their young son, made the trip as an outing as well in this delightful primeval forest.

"The school at which I lectured," said Prof. Willard, "is held annually in the Minnesota forest which surrounds the Lake Itasca region, for the purpose of giving the students a chance to do practical work. They are taught everything practical in the way of forest work or the lumbering butiness, and the state forest is an ideal place for this work, as it is still practically wild. On the thirty-mile drive which we took to get to the camp where the school was being held, I only saw two farms, and even these were only small clearings in the timber.

"The students attend the lectures in the forenoon, and in the afternoon take up some practical work, such as cruising or survey work. They have plenty of time to enjoy themselves on the lakes, and boats are provided and we were kept well supplied with fine fresh fish.

"The timber and underbrush is so thick in some places that it is almost impossible to make one's way through it, and the state is now making preparations to intersect it at several points with roads, and it will then be more accessible."

SUMMER TERM SOON ENDS.

Twenty-Second Year of School of Mines Closes Aug. 28.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The summer term at the Michigan College of Mines will come to a close on Friday afternoon of next week, Aug. 28, and with it will come the ending of the twenty-second year of the local institution. Commencing with a week from next Friday, the annual vacation period of one month will ensue, after which, on Monday morning, Sept. 28, the fall term, marking the commencement of the twenty-third year, will be started.

The term that is rapidly waning has been one of the most successful in the history of the local institution. The usual large classes in field survey and shop practice have been busily engaged during the past ten weeks, and will continue this branch of work until the summer term ends one week hence. Daily crowds of students with transit and rod may be found on the hills and in the valleys adjacent to Houghton, within a radius of five miles, and lines are run just as if the students were surveyors in real life.

EXPECT MANY SHOOTERS.

Tournament at Minot to be Well Attended.

Minot, N. D., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many prominent shooters from Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, South Dakota and different points in North Dakota have signified their intention of being present at the big tournament to be held in Minot on Aug. 23 and 24, and there is no longer any question that the shoot will prove to be one of the grandest events of its kind ever held in this section of the state.

Many improvements have been made at the shooting grounds at the fair grounds and several new traps have been placed so that everything will be in readiness for the opening day. A large gathering of Minot sportsmen have been putting in considerable time of late practicing and preparing for the tournament, and there is no question but what they will give an excellent account of themselves when the time comes.

GWINN'S SPLENDID SCHOOL.

Cleveland Cliff's Model Town to Have Fine Affair.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a cost of $40,000 there is being erected at Gwinn, the model town which the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company is establishing in Southern Marquette county, what will probably be the finest high school building in the country, when the size of the community is considered. Of solid brick, two stories high and 145x65 feet in ground dimensions, the structure will contain six class rooms, five recitation rooms and an assembly hall that will accommodate 300 pupils. In the basement, which will extend under the entire building, will be the manual training department, equipped with all necessary machinery and appliances. The school will have a steam heating plant, modern ventilating system, two laboratories and bath rooms for boys and girls. It is expected the structure will be ready for occupancy shortly after the first of the year. Charlton & Howell of Marquette and Milwaukee are the architects, and the Foster Construction company of Milwaukee is the builder.

RAILS ARE BEING LAID.

Work Progressing on Railroad to Pembina Cement Mines.

Edinburgh, N. D., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. Guthrie & Co. of St. Paul, the contractors who are building the railroad from Edinburgh to the Pembina Portland cement mines, have commenced laying steel rails.

The work will be concluded by the opening week of September and trains will be in operation by Sept. 3 or 4.

The Northern Dakota Railway company, which was organized last year, has been making some wonderful progress during the summer in the construction of the new line. The grading of the line was completed a number of days since, and the steel laying contractors were in readiness to commence their work immediately.

A crew of 150 men with a track laying machine are making wonderful progress, going toward the mines at the rate of a mile and a half a day. This rate will be kept up until the entire job is completed. The company expects to conclude its contract by Sept. 1 and the line will be in shape to handle trains a few days thereafter.

MANY SEVERELY INJURED.

Later Accounts of Glendive Wreck Tell of Injuries.

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 20.—Miss Anna Slattery and Mrs. Swan have returned from Brainerd after having gone to Glendive to aid in nursing those injured in the recent wreck near that city on the Northern Pacific railway. They accompanied the injured when they were removed to Brainerd.

They say the injuries were something terrible, nearly all being scalded and burned. Miss Slattery waited on a Mr. Jones of Pittsburg, whose wife had come to Fargo to meet her husband. She had engaged a special train to convey her husband from Brainerd to Pittsburg, and Miss Slattery was to accompany her. Mr. Jones died, however, before the hospital at Brainerd was reached. He was the son of B. F. Jones of Pittsburg, the millionaire iron master, who managed the Blaine campaign in 1884.

Miss Slattery says the Northern Pacific claim agent was very busy settling for injuries. Any one who could show a cut or burn or bruise was able to secure a good sized check.

OHIO SYNOD MEETING.

Six Days' Session of Evangelist Church Being Held..

Appleton, Wis., Aug. 20.—At Zion Lutheran church in this city the first session of the Ohio synod of the Evangelist church, comprising Ohio and other states, opened yesterday for a six days' conference. According to President Schuette, the next synod in all probability will be held at Pittsburg, Pa. The personal business of the synod aside from the biennial reports of the officers and a review of general conditions in the synod during the last two years, will be a disposition of the question of affiliating the Ohio and Iowa synods. This question has been under informal discussion for nearly two years, and it is said there is a strong probability of the two synods becoming combined, thus throwing into one organization the management of practically $10,000,000 worth of property and combining the interests of upwards of 500,0000 communicants.

Officers of the synod are present as follows: President, Rev. C. H. L. Schuette of Columbus, Ohio, vice presidents, Rev. E. A. Boehme of Youngstown, Ohio, and Rev. D. H. Ernst of St. Paul; English secretary, Rev. W. H. Price of Detroit, Mich., German secretary, Rev. W. Dahl, of Oshkosh, Wis., treasurer, C. Nagel of Springfield, Ohio.

BRIDGE FOREMAN HURT.

Scaffold Collapses and His Spine is Injured.

Shelly, Minn., Aug. 20.—Foreman Frederickson, in charge of the erection of the new bridge on the Great Northern here was seriously injured Tuesday by the scaffolding collapsing. Mr. Frederickson was caught beneath the heavy timbers and his spine was badly injured and it is feared that he sustained serious internal injuries. He was taken this afternoon to the hospital at Hillsboro. He is brother to the contractor, who is constructing the bridge.

PAROLED INMATE ESCAPES.

George Monroe Wanted by Authorities at St. Cloud.

St. Cloud, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Monroe, a paroled inmate of the state reformatory, escaped from the farm of Nels Gleberg, Monday afternoon.

Monroe was brought to the reformatory Nov. 20, 1905, charged with forgery in the second degree. On July 9, 1908, he was let out on parole, working on the farm of Gleberg, near the reformatory. He told the farmer he intended to walk over to the institution Monday afternoon. When he did not return in the evening the reformatory people were called up and notified of his escape.

BLAME IS NOT FIXED.

Jury Unable to Decide Blame for Goodrich's Death.

Moorhead, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The inquest held upon the death of Frank Goodrich, the Great Northern engineer who was killed three and a half miles southeast of this city in the Sunday morning wreck, was conducted Tuesday by Coroner Vincent. The jury found that Goodrich came to his death by being crushed between his engine and tender on Sunday morning, Aug. 16, and did not attempt to fix the blame.

WINONA WELCOMES VETS.

Many Attending Reunion of Those Who Served in Last War.

Winona, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A military parade and a ball last evening closed the state convention of the Spanish-American War veterans, who met in convention here yesterday.

The veterans began to arrive Tuesday evening, although the convention did not open until noon yesterday. Local veterans and ladies met all trains and escorted the visitors to headquarters.

The ladies' auxiliary served dinner, which was followed by an open session, at which addresses of welcome were made by Commander A. J. Rick of the local post, Mayor E. S. Muir and Mrs. Miller, president of the auxiliary. The responses were by Department Commander Miller of St. Paul and Mrs. Isis B. Olson of St. Paul, president of the Minnesota auxiliary.

MUZZLE MENOMINEE DOGS.

Mayor Spies Proposes to Take No Further Chances.

Menominee, Mich., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fearing a general epidemic of hydrophobia, Mayor Spies issued a proclamation yesterday, ordering all dogs in this city to be either muzzled or chained for a period of sixty days. Several dogs suffering from rabies have been shot by the police during the past few days, and as the canines were running at large it is feared that other dogs have been bitten.

The last sacraments were administered to John Rodjinsky, who was bitten some time ago, as the physicians have given up all hope for his recovery. Andrew Anderson, who was bitten yesterday by a mad dog, was sent to the Pasteur institute at Ann Arbor at the expense of the city.

Inspector at Spooner.

Spooner, Minn., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. W. Schmidt of Lake City, Minn., who for the past three months has held the position as customs inspector on the Lake of the Woods, has received the appointment as inspector at this port, taking the position made vacant by the transfer of J. M. Owens.

HELD ON BURGLARY CHARGE.

Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 20.—Victor Bloom and Harry Colby, arrested at Ashland on the charge of stealing decoy ducks and other articles in Oshkosh, were held upon the charge of burglary in the night time in default of bail in the sum of $800 each. They were conducted to the county jail and their examination was set for Aug. 25.

Charged With Lid Lifting.

Calumet, Mich., Aug. 20.—Archie Hall and Charles Ekdahl, two Calumet saloonkeepers, are facing charges of "lid-lifting," because of the activity of Rev. C. H. Rutledge of the Anti-Saloon league, who obtained the evidence upon which the liquor dealers were arrested.

INJURED STEALING A RIDE.

Little Falls, Minn., Aug. 20.—Joseph H. Tuzinski fell under the wheels of a freight train, upon which he was trying to steal a ride to Royalton. His right foot was crushed and had to be amputated. It is expected he will recover.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Lake Linden—Joseph Cronwolf, aged 50 years, passed away at his home in Hubbell on Monday evening after thirty years' residence at that place. MARKET IS STAGNANT

Little or No Trading on the Duluth Board.

Duluth Board of Trade, Aug. 20.—Wheat went up again today in the American markets, but the advance amounted to very little on account of the light trading. Traders in every market are waiting or the new crop. In Duluth there is no cash wheat to be had. The stocks in the elevators are very low. What operations there were on the Duluth board were altogether in options.

Reports from the Northwest indicate that the weather could not be better for threshing and that the yields are entirely satisfactory. The first cars of new wheat are expected to arrive in Duluth next week, and until the crop begins to arrive, cash trading will be practically nil on account of the diminished stocks of old wheat. The cash price on old wheat is now 18½c over September wheat, but there is none to be had at that figure, while the new wheat to arrive in August is quoted at 10½c over September wheat.

There was little or no news to influence the market today. Other American markets were waiting just as the traders are in Duluth, and no attempts were made to move prices by speculative operations. The feeling is good and in consequence prices held up in the stagnation, but the changes were hardly appreciable.

The September option closed ⅝c up in Duluth, ¾c up in Chicago, ⅜-½c up in Minneapolis, ½-⅝c up in New York, ½-⅝c up in St. Louis, ⅝-¾c up in Kansas City and ½c up in Winnipeg. The December option closed ⅝c up in Duluth, ⅜-½c up in Chicago, ¼c up in Minneapolis, ⅜c up in New York, ⅜-½c up in St. Louis, ¼-⅜c up in Kansas City and ⅛c off in Winnipeg.

Oats were ⅝c up and corn ½c up in Chicago.

Wheat closed 1d to 1¼d higher in Liverpool and corn ½d lower. Wheat closed ½c to ¾c lower in Paris, ¼c lower in Berlin and in Budapest there was a holiday today and no market. Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Offerings were light in the speculative wheat market as a result of the better American cables yesterday and fewer American offerings, and prices at the start were ¼d higher. The good support continued during the morning and values showed a further gain of ½d to ⅝d. The strength was attributed to the forecast of light shipments from Argentine this week, and the fact that importers bought freely. At midday the market was very firm and from ¾d to ⅞d higher than Wednesday.

"There was an easier undertone to the speculative corn market at the start and values were ⅛d lower and further declined ⅛d during the morning. The easiness was the result of the continued pressure to sell La Plata parcels and a poor consumptive demand, but the decline was checked by the talk of small shipments from Argentina."

Car receipts of wheat were 3 against 20 last year, and at Minneapolis 110 against 104 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 113 against 124 last year. Chicago received 105 against 203 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 516,000 bus, last year 760,000 bus. Shipments were 690,000 bus, last year 688,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 395,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 37,000 bus, last year 379,000 bus. Shipments were 195,000 bus, last year 300,000 bus.

There was little or no trading on the floor of the Duluth Board of Trade today. Early in the session wheat was bid up on light offerings, but the close was little higher than yesterday. September wheat opened ¾c up at $1.01⅝, advanced to $1.02 and went off to $1.01½ at the close. December wheat opened ¼c up at 97¾c, went to 98¼c, fell off to 97⅝@97⅞c and closed at 97⅞c.

The flax market was also quiet, some offerings with little buying strength sending the prices down again. September flax opened unchanged at $1.30¾, went to $1.30½, fell off to $1.30¼, then to $1.29, rallied to $1.29½ and closed at $1.29¼. October flax opened ¼c up at $1.28¼, went off to $1.27½, then to $1.27, up to $1.27½ and dropped off at the close to $1.27 bid. November flax opened ¼c up at $1.28¼, went off to $1.27½, then to $1.27, rallied to $1.27½ and fell back at the close to $1.27 nominal. December flax opened 1c off at $1.24.

Durum wheat was unchanged and oats were ⅞c off at 46¾c. Rye was unchanged and barley was 1c up at 51-56.

The close: Wheat—No. 1 hard, on track, $1.21; on track, No. 1 northern, $1.20; No. 1 northern, new, $1.12B; September, $1.01½B; December, 97⅞B; durum on track, No. 1, 94c; No. 2, 92c; September, 89cB; October, 88¼cB. Flax—To arrive, $1.30¼; on track, $1.32¼; September, $1.29¼B; October, $1.27B; November, $1.27N; December, $1.24B. Oats—To arrive, 46⅜c; rye, 73-75c; barley, 51-62c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 3, last year, 20; oats, 4; rye, 2; barley, 6; flax, 5, last year, 8.

Receipts—Wheat, 17,938; oats, 5,954; rye, 1,871; barley, 15,498; flax, 11,420.

Shipments—Wheat, 50,824.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

An Advance in Wheat Prices in Liverpool Gives Market Strength.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—A penny advance in the price of wheat at Liverpool contributed largely to a strong tone in the local market today and brought out an active demand from commission houses. Offerings, however, were meager. A report from St. Louis that a large quantity of flour had been sold to go abroad helped to strengthen the market. September opened ⅜@½c to ¾@⅞c higher at 93⅝c to 94c and advanced to 94⅜c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 128 cars against 315 cars last week and 327 cars a year ago.

The market continued firm all day, the September and December option showing the greatest strength. Purchases of approximately 2,000,000 bus of wheat by a leading bull was an important factor. For September the high point of the day was reached at 94¾@94½c. The close was firm with September up ¾c at 93⅞@94c.

The corn market was strong, particularly the September delivery, which soon after the opening, advanced to a point above last night's close.

The market was less buoyant during the last half hour and May declined to within a point below yesterday's close on selling by pit traders. The close was irregular, September and December being firm and May easy. Final quotations on September were ½c higher at 77⅝c.

There was a general demand based chiefly on damage reports from Missouri, Illinois and Indiana. September opened ¾@½c higher at 77½c to 77⅝c and advanced to 78¼c. Local receipts were 214 cars with 53 of contract grade.

The feature of trade in oats was the urgent demand for the September delivery by shorts, which resulted in an advance of nearly 1c compared with yesterday's close. Distant futures manifested less bullishness. September opened ⅛@½c higher at 48½c to 48⅞c, and sold up to 49¼c. Local receipts were 118 cars.

Provisions were quiet and firm. The firmness was due mainly to the strength of coarse grains. September pork was up 2½c at $14.80. Lard and ribs were also each up 2½c at $9.25 and 8.72½ respectively.

Close: Wheat—September, 93⅞@94c; December, 94⅞c; May, 98⅞c. Corn—September, 77⅝c; December, 65½c; May, 63¾@64c. Oats — September, 48¾c; December, 48⅜c; May, 50⅛c. Pork — September, $14.85; October, $14.97½; January, $15.85. Lard—September, $9.25; October, $9.35; January, $9.12½@9.15. Ribs—September, $8.72½@8.75; October, $8.82½; January, $8.15. Rye—Cash, 77½@78½c. Barley—Cash, 62@67c. Timothy—September, $3.65. Clover—September, $11. Corn—No. 2 white, 79¾c; No. 2 yellow, 80@80¼c; No. 3, 79@79½c; No. 3 white, 79@79¾c; No. 3 yellow, 80c. Oats—No. 3 white, 48½@49c; No. 4 white, 47½@48½c; standard, 49c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Strong Supply Situation and Higher Cables Gives Wheat Strength.

Minneapolis, Aug. 20.—The strong supply situation and higher foreign markets put wheat up here. Liverpool opened easy, but its close was 1@1¼d above yesterday. The local elevator stocks decreased 200,000 bus for five days, which brings down the total to 615,000. Receipts were 110 cars against 104 and Duluth 3 against 20. Light receipts were reported at Chicago, Kansas City and St. Louis, and total primary shipments of 690,000. The market turned dull and eased off near the close. September opened $1.01¾; high, $1.02½; low, $1.01⅝; close, $1.01⅞; old September opened $1.02½; high, $1.03⅛; low, $1.02¼; close, $1.02½. December opened 98⅜c; high, 99⅜c; low, 98⅞c. Old December closed 99⅜c. Cash demand was good with $1.24, the going price for No. 1 Northern spot and $1.21 for No. 2. Six cents over September was bid for No. 1 to arrive and 3c over for No. 2 to arrive. Velvet chaff sold at discounts of 7c, 8c and 9c under the regular spring wheat. Local and outside millers bought today. Close: No. 1 Northern, $1.24@1.25 spot; new, $1.09⅛ to arrive; No. 2 Northern, $1.21@1.21½; spot, new, $1.06⅛ to arrive. No. 3 wheat, $1.14@1.16. No. 3 yellow corn, 76¾@77¼c. No. 3 white oats, 46⅝@46⅞c. No. 2 rye, 73¼@74¼c.

Barley receipts, 63 cars with the largest proportion of good barley. The range on 42 cars sold was 57@61½c, with 11 cars at top price, ten at 61c and six at 60c. Demand was excellent. Malting barley firm, feed grades firm to 1c higher. Close 55@62c.

Flax receipts: The first car of new stuff was in from South Dakota and it graded number 1 northern and brought $1.30½. Duluth September price is the spot basis and 1@2c under to arrive. Close $1.29.

Mill-stuffs quoted unchanged by millers at $19.50@20.00 for bulk bran.

Flour shipments are a little larger, but business in general is quiet and demand moderate. Buyers are all waiting for prices to be established on the new crop basis. Shipments 35,714 barrels. First patents, $6.15@6.25; second patents, $6.00@6.15; first clears, $4.35@4.45; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

CHINAMAN LOSES LIFE

Minneapolis, Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three fires in Minneapolis yesterday afternoon caused a total property loss estimated at $80,000 and the death of one man. In an effort to save his money from the flames, Hing Lee, a Chinese laundryman, rushed back into his burning laundry at 3031 Nicollet avenue after he had once been driven out by the smoke and fire. He secured the money, but before he could make his way out again was so badly burned that he died at the City hospital last night. The fire followed the explosion of a gasoline stove.

The heavy financial loss of the day was caused by a fire in a five-story brick building. There was no one in the building when the fire started at 6:30 p. m.—presumably from grease and oil in the elevator shaft—and before it was discovered it had gained good headway.

PERMITS FIRST.

Building Inspector Says Contractors Must be More Prompt.

Building Inspector S. M. Kielly says that people who intend to build structure from now on will have to take out permits before the building is started or they will find themselves in trouble.

He says that the great majority of people do not think it necessary to take out permits until after the building is completed. This causes a great deal of confusion, and the inspector says it will have to stop.

The Telephone Tolls.

The attempt of the Zenith Telephone company to charge a toll for calls from this city to Superior, will come up for discussion before the public affairs committee of the Commercial club, tomorrow evening.

No one is apt to think more highly of a store than its owner does—hence his advertising should be so big that it will reflect his belief in his store's importance—and so continuous that it will have the force of iteration.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Market Sold Down During the Morning, But Rallies Followed.

Day's Losses Cancelled and Close Was Active and Strong.

New York, Aug. 20.—Speculation was slightly irregular at the opening today, but although the tendency was downward, losses were trivial except in the Hill stocks, which lost a point.

Slight advances prompted renewed selling, which was directed mainly against the Harriman, Rock Island and metal stocks. The rest of the list was affected sympathetically, but offerings were moderate. New York Central, which showed some firmness at the outset was forced down from 102½ to 101. Rock Island preferred made a rapid decline to 69, a loss of 3¼. Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Rock Island, Louisville & Nashville, Illinois Central, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting and National Lead fell 1. Kansas City Southern advanced 1, American Malting preferred 1¾. The apparent absence of support to many of the representative stocks encouraged the bears to sell the list freely. Liquidation, also, was observed in certain stocks and the general undertone was weaker than for some time. American Smelting gave way 2⅝, Amalgamated Copper, American Locomotive, National Lead, Mining, United States Pipe Foundry, and Louisville & Nashville 2; St. Paul and Pressed Steel car 1¾. Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Reading, Chesapeake & Ohio and Brooklyn Transit 1½ and some other stocks a point or thereabouts. Bonds were heavy.

New York Central broke to par before the decline in the market was checked. Rallies of a half point followed, but trading came very dull on the rise.

Recoveries were increased to the extent of a point or so when Southern Pacific was advanced to nearly a point above yesterday's closing. Business became progressively smaller as prices ascended.

The market closed active and strong. A brisk demand sprang up which cancelled the day's losses and placed a number of stocks fractionally above yesterday's closing. The rise had its inception in the buying of the Harriman stocks, particularly Southern Pacific, which rose over 2 points and crossed 99. Union Pacific and New York Central also gained a point.

New York stock quotations furnished by Fred H. Merritt, 328 West Superior street.

Closing prices are bid.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Aug. 20.—There was a sensational break in the cotton market early today and after opening easy at a decline of 5 to 15 points, the market sold off to a net loss of 16@36 points on the active months, under heavy liquidation by the bull clique and aggressive selling by local and southern bears. It was estimated that between 50,000 and 75,000 bales were liquidated during the first hour. There was covering on a scale down, but the market showed no important rallying power and was very nervous and unsettled during the middle of the morning.

October contracts sold at 8.80 during the late forenoon or 38 points net lower, while the later months sold about 22 points net lower and August continued dull and relatively steady. Prices at midday were 2 or 3 points up from the lowest on coverig, but the undertone of the market showed little improvement and long cotton kept coming out from time to time, reflecting the favorable weather and bad trade reports and fear of further bull clique liquidation. Spot quiet; middling uplands, 10.25; middling gulf, 10.50.

Cotton prices suffered a sensational break in the local market today, October delivery selling down to $8.81, which is 37 points under yesterday's closing figure and $5 per bale below the recent high mark.

Spot closed quiet, 25 points decline; middling uplands, 10.10; middling gulf, 10.35. Sales, 248. Futures closed steady; closing bids: August, 9.58; September, 8.81; October, 8.70; November, 8.60; December, 8.60; January, 8.58; February, 8.61; March, 8.64.

American Ends Life.

Bournemouth, Eng., Aug. 20.—John Pedman Reid, said to be a wealthy American, was found dead in his apartments here today. He had shot himself with a revolver, which was found at his side. An inquest has been held, the verdict of which was "self-destruction during temporary insanity."

Balaklava should sell at $30 by Christmas, Shattuck at $35, North Butte at $100. All the good coppers are a buy right now, for you will see how high they will sell in a few weeks.
Butte & Superior is attracting the attention of the entire country. Butte is sending in orders to buy this stock at the market price, and on very heavy buying it advanced from $1.25 bid to $1 7-16 bid at the close. I look for it to sell at $3 a share in a short time and should easily advance to $1.62½ to $1.75 by tomorrow evening. Buy Butte & Superior to a standstill at this low level. Which of the others can you double your money on in so short a time? At the close of business today every share listed for sale was sold. We have a big market on this issue. Offer us your stock.

VERY NICE IN STORES

When Customers Break Things or Damage Goods Accidentally.

New York Sun: "I've been waiting for years," she said, "to see somebody drop something in the crockery department of some store and yesterday I saw it. When I went in a mother and her daughter were looking at dinner sets, and at that moment the daughter had in her hands a cup and a saucer which she was looking over, and I hadn't been there half a minute before the tragedy I had been so long looking for happened. She dropped the cup! And it went down with a crash.

"The mother had kept calm and the daughter tried to, and she did very well, too, but still she was frightened, as I know I should have been if I had dropped it, and I knew she was waiting to see what would happen next, as I know I was, but everything went off very nicely.

"A floorwalker was right near there walking along slowly with his hands behind his back, but the crash didn't seem to shock him at all. He simply turned slowly half around to a man standing near with a brush, and then kept calmly along, quite unruffled, and the man with the brush came and brushed up the fragments of the broken cup, and that's all there was to it. No tragedy, not even any comedy, and then the mother and her daughter went on looking at the dinner sets."

"Well," said one of two other girls to whom the first had told this little story, "once I was in a store where they had a sale of silks, and they had a lot of silks spread out on a counter, and a woman customer who came in set down on top of those silks a bundle and then began looking at the silks. And then presently I saw that a dark colored fluid of some sort had leaked out of that bundle and stained the silks under it.

"The saleswoman and the customer discovered it as soon as I did, and the woman who had put the bottle down there picked it up and, of course, the saleswoman picked up the silks so that the fluid couldn't soak any more of them, but it had already soaked through three or four folds.

"I wondered what was going to happen, because here was damage enough done to amount to something. But the woman customer kept her head beautifully. She was very sorry, naturally, but she didn't get scared at all, and the saleswoman kept cool and when the floorwalker came along he kept his head and was very polite and nice. He assured the customer that the damage was slight and really not worth considering. In fact, they were just as nice about it as they could be, and that was all there was to it, except, of course, that the woman customer lost whatever there was in the bottle."

"Now, here is something," said the third girl, "that happened to me. There is a store where they keep on a counter some jars of sachet powder, and when I went into that store if I was near that counter I used to pick up one of those jars that contained a powder that I liked and take a little sniff of the powder. Well, this bottle stood at the back end of the row over by the back of the counter and one day when I set that bottle back over the edge of the counter—I set it on the air and down it went.

"You talk about what happened when the girl dropped the cup. Why, when that bottle struck the floor it sounded to me as if a whole crockery store had fallen down.

"But the salesman said that was nothing. Why, he said, those bottles were falling off the counter all the time and there wasn't much in that one anyway, which was true, and that was one thing to be thankful for. But he couldn't have been any nicer about it if he had tried."

IN HIGHLAND.

"I met Alfred Vanderbilt in Paris the Sunday of the Grand Prix," said a Pittsburg millionaire. "He tooled his coach with four perfect bays, before the race, to Armenonville, the pretty Helder restaurant in the Bois, and he lunched there with his party at a table next to mine.

"He said he would leave Paris for the London horse show the next morning, and on the matter of London he told me an incident concerning the English accent.

"He had ordered, he said, some duck for luncheon in a village on the coach route to Brighton, and the waiter asked him about this duck. The waiter said:

"'Ow will you 'ave it, sir? Will you heat it cold, or shall I 'eat it for you?"

Street Cars

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

This company operates a street railway line in the city of Duluth between Third avenue east and the end of Rice's Point and another street railway line in the city of Superior between Twenty-first street and the end of Connor's Point. These lines are separated by the waters of St. Louis bay, and are operated as two distinct and separate lines.

The fare for a continuous ride in one direction between any two points on either one of these lines it 5c.

The public is hereby notified that this company does not, by undertaking to carry any passenger, or by accepting fare for such carriage, assume any responsibility beyond that of carrying such passengers safely between points on the above mentioned lines.

This company is not responsible for close connections, nor safe transportation, between the above mentioned lines by any ferryboat or other means of transportation. While the employes of this company have been instructed to keep themselves posted and give upon request all the information they can as to the probability of connections being made with other transportation lines, the company has not better means of foreseeing unexpected interruptions in the service of such lines, nor of telling how long such interruptions will continue, than the public has, and therefore, cannot be responsible for notice of such interruptions.

We, the undersigned, President and Secretary of the DULUTH EDISON ELECTRIC COMPANY, hereby certify that, at a regular annual meeting of the stockholders of Duluth Edison Electric Company, a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Minnesota, held at the office of the Company at Duluth, Minnesota, on July 14th, 1908, at two o'clock P. M., duly convened in accordance with the articles of incorporation and by-laws of said Company, at which meeting there were present, either in person or by proxy, the owners of ten thousand and seven (10,007) shares of the Company, out of a total of fifteen thousand (15,000) shares issued and outstanding, the following resolutions were duly adopted by the affirmative vote of all the stockholders present:

RESOLVED

1. That the first paragraph of Article III of the Articles of Incorporation be amended so as to read as follows:

"The amount of the authorized capital stock of this corporation shall be Two million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($2,250,000), divided into twenty-two thousand five hundred (22,500) shares of the par value of One hundred dollars ($100) each. Of said authorized capital stock, twelve thousand five hundred (12,500) shares shall be preferred stock until the same shall be retired as hereinafter provided, and the remainder thereof, that is to say, ten thousand (10,000) shares before, and twenty-two thousand five hundred (22,500) shares after, such retirement of the preferred stock shall be common stock."

Instead of as follows:

"The amount of the authorized capital stock of this corporation shall be Two million dollars ($2,000,000), divided into twenty thousand (20,000) shares of the par value of One hundred dollars ($100) each. Of said authorized capital stock, ten thousand (10,000) shares shall be preferred stock until the same shall be retired as hereinafter provided, and the remainder thereof, that is to say, ten thousand (10,000) shares before, and twenty thousand (20,000) shares after, such retirement of the preferred stock, shall be common stock."

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we, A. W. Hartman, President, and C. E. Van Bergen, Secretary, of DULUTH EDISON ELECTRIC COMPANY, in accordance with the authority conferred by the foregoing resolutions, have hereunto set our hands this 31st day of July, 1908, and have hereunto affixed the corporate seal of said Duluth Edison Electric Company.

A. W. HARTMAN,
President.
C. E. VAN BERGEN,
Secretary.

Signed, sealed and delivered in presence of
A. J. McCULLOCH,
ANNIE KNUTSON.

TERM PROMISES TO BE LIGHT ONE

September Session of District Court May be Dull.

From present indications the term of the district court beginning in September will be an unusually light one. Up to this time the number of cases filed with the clerk of court has been far below the average, and while nearly two weeks remain before the term opens it is the general opinion that the term will be a light one.

Very few personal injury suits have been filed, and much of the matter which will come up is of a minor character. Quite a number of criminal cases are due to come up during the term. It will commence Sept. 2.

A Faithful Friend.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since it was first introduced to the public in 1872, and have never found one instance where a cure was not speedily effected by its use. I have been a commercial traveler for eighteen years, and never start out on a trip without this, my faithful friend," says H. S. Nichols of Oakland, Ind. T. When a man has used a remedy for thirty-five years he knows its value and is competent to speak of it. For sale by all drugists.

SUPERIOR NEWS

KRAMER PLEADED GUILTY.

But Attorney Interposed, and Said Prisoner Was "Rattled."

The spectators who yesterday attended the preliminary hearing of Matt Kramer, charged with the murder of Erick Young, were startled when at the close of the reading of the charge, the accused man announced, "I'll plead guilty of all of that."

Attorney H. W. Dietrich for the defense, hastened to interpose, entered a plea of not guilty, and demanded an examination, which was set for Aug. 28. Later when the formalities of the court had been gone through, Attorney Dietrich and his client closeted themselves in Judge Parker's private office in consultaiton, which resulted in the announcement being made by the attorney that the prisoner was excited when brought into court and did not understand what he was doing. He also declared that he believed that Kramer is not guilty, and stated that the matter will be fought to the end in the court.

Kramer was remanded to jail without bail. During the brief time he was in the court room he appeared very nervous, but listened attentively to the reading of the charge against him. The complaint was signed by Sheriff Bird. Attorney Foley appeared for the state.

Though nothing of a definite nature has been given out by the authorities as to what they they have learned concerning the alleged murder of Young near Foxboro, it is believed that they have some information that they expect to spring during the trial.

It is rumored that the crime was committed with a rifle, and that the police have the rifle and the bullet that brought death, in their possession Coroner Dudley and two other county officers are at Foxboro today making further investigations.

August Sletten, who is also suspected of having had a hand in the crime, is still held in jail.

Daisy Mill Will Run.

According to the plans that are now proposed, the Daisy mill at the East end will be operated again by the middle of September. It is planned to have day and night crews, approximately eighty men being employed. It is the understanding that the Listman mill, which was started up when the Daisy closed down for repairs, will continue to be run full blast when the Daisy is again operated.

Sues for $10,000.

Suit was instituted yesterday by Andrew Peterson in the Superior court against the Pittsburg Coal company for $10,000 damages for injuries the plaintiff alleges he received at the company's docks on July 3. Peterson claims that a clam bucket was allowed to fall on him through the carelessness of the company's employes.

Prominent Witnesses.

Among the prominent witnesses in the hearing before the state railroad commission yesterday on the Great Northern's application for a certificate of necessity and convenience, authorizing the construction of an elevated trestle from "H" avenue to the Interstate bridge, were Vice President Farrington and General Supt. Philbin of the Great Northern road.

NORTH DAKOTA JOBBERS DESIRE BETTER DEAL.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—At request of the Fargo Commercial club a special meeting of the state board of railway commissioners has been called by Governor Burke to meet in Fargo next Tuesday. The meeting will be for the purpose of discussing the regulation of railroad rates between the Twin Cities and North Dakota. Under the present conditions the Twin City jobbers and merchants have a big advantage over competitors in this territory.

THERE IS CLAIMED TO BE DUE and is due at date of this notice Three Hundred and Thirty Dollars ($330.00), upon a mortgage executed and delivered by Daniel M. Hoyt and Lizzie M. Hoyt, Mortgagors, to Elisha R. Brace, Mortgagee, dated May 31st, 1890, recorded in office of Register of Deeds, St. Louis County, Minnesota, May 31st, 1890, at four o'clock P. M. in Book 37 of Mortgages, page 477.

Following assignments of said mortgage in writing were made and recorded in said Register of Deeds office, viz:

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION —OF— CEDAR LAKE LAND COMPANY.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That we, whose names are hereunto subscribed, have agreed to and do hereby associate ourselves together under the constitution and general laws of the State of Minnesota, and more particularly under the provisions of Chapter 58 of the Revised Laws of said State for the year 1905, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, as a corporation, under the name and for the purposes hereinafter set forth, and to that end do hereby adopt the following Articles of Incorporation:

ARTICLE I.

The name of this corporation shall be Cedar Lake Land Company and the general nature of its business shall be buying, selling, and dealing in mineral and other lands and for the purpose of mining, and working of ores and minerals, said business to be carried on in the State of Minnesota and elsewhere, but the principal place of transacting the business of said corporation shall be in the City of Duluth, County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, with such other offices and places of business, either within or without the State of Minnesota as may from time to time be determined by the management of such corporation.

ARTICLE II.

The period of its duration shall be thirty (30) years.

ARTICLE III.

The names and places of residence of the incorporators are as follows:

Wm. E. Culkin, residing at Duluth, Minnesota;
P. H. Seymour, residing at Duluth, Minnesota;
Mabel Sorenson, residing at Duluth, Minnesota; and

ARTICLE IV.

The government of this corporation and the conduct and management of its affairs are hereby vested in a board of four directors, and except as herein provided shall be elected by the stockholders at their annual meeting, which shall be held on the first Tuesday of January of each year, and who shall thereafter elect the following officers: President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer. Any two of said offices may be held by the same person with the exception of the offices of President and Vice President.

The first meeting of the corporation shall be held on August 29th, 1908, without notice, and the first annual meeting shall be held on the first Tuesday of January, 1909, but until such time and until the directors thereat shall have qualified, the following persons shall be and constitute the board of directors of this corporation: Wm. E. Culkin, P. H. Seymour, Mabel Sorenson, and Victor H. Gran. The officers shall be elected at the first meeting above provided for, to hold until the succeeding annual meeting.

The officers and directors of this corporation, except those elected at the first meeting shall hold office for one year, or until their successors are elected and qualified, and in case any vacancy occurs in any of the offices or membership of the board of directors of this corporation, either before or after the first annual meeting, the same shall be filled by the board of directors until the next annual meeting and until such vacancy shall be filled by election held in accordance with these articles and such by-laws as may be adopted providing for elections.

The board of directors of this corporation may adopt, and is hereby authorized to adopt such by-laws, rules and regulations for the corporation and the management of its business not inconsistent with these articles, or with the constitution and laws of the State of Minnesota, as may be deemed needful for the government of officers and the conduct of the affairs of the corporation, and may create such other offices in addition to those herein provided as may from time to time be deemed necessary, and may fill such offices as it may so create, and may abolish and discontinue such offices at will.

The board of directors shall also have power, when in its judgment cause exists, to remove any such officers of this corporation from their positions and declare the offices vacant.

ARTICLE V.

The amount of capital stock of this corporation shall be Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000) and the same shall be divided into one hundred shares of one hundred dollars each, and shall be sold either for cash or for property and things of value deemed by the board of directors to be equivalent thereto, such determination by the board of directors to be final and binding upon the parties in interest.

The stock of this corporation shall be paid for as called for by the board of directors, and no stock which has not been subscribed for and upon which the payments have not been made as required by the board of directors, shall be entitled to vote or representation in any of the proceedings of this corporation.

ARTICLE VI.

The highest amount of indebtedness to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of Ten Thousand dollars ($10,000).

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, the parties have hereunto set their hands and seals this 13th day of August, A. D. 1908.
